

Rockcastle Recollections

© John Lair

It will be noted that thus far in this series of articles on the earlier days of Rockcastle County very little has been said concerning Brodhead. This lack of attention has been solely on account of lack of information on the subject, not by reason of any lack of interest.

Most of the older people I have been able to locate and interview confess to a failure to ask questions of old timers now gone on who must have had the information we need.

It appears that Brodhead, like other towns along the Railroad, did not make much progress or assume much importance until after the tracks were laid. I have been told that in the case of Brodhead the small settlement there was considerably scattered until the railway station was built to afford a sort of focal point for newer buildings. I have heard that one of the earliest buildings there was Boone's Fork Church House and there seems to be two stories concerning it. One is that this church stood on Boone's Fork Creek, or branch, some little distance from the railroad; another has it that it stood across Dick's River, in a flat of woods near the present highway bridge. Personally, I am unable to determine just where it stood and when or how it was eventually demolished. That it was a meeting place of some importance in earlier days is attested by the fact that Raccoon John Smith, one of the most noted of early backwoods preachers in any part of the state, sometimes held services there.

Earliest settlers on which I have any information at all seems to have been the Stigall family and the earliest grants I find awarded to one of that name seems to be George Stigall, or Stagal, under date of 1805. Next is William Stigall for land on Dix River in 1812, but none of these are for big acreages, seeming to indicate that whichever Stigall settled at Brodhead in earlier days must have acquired his land by deed or barter from a previous owner. Both William and George Stigall are shown in the Rockcastle County census for 1810, neither in 1820 - and a G.W., which may have been George, in 1830. Also, George Stigall was listed for taxes in Lincoln County, of which Rockcastle was a part, in 1800, so we may assume that he was here before 1800, since this census was made up from tax lists of that year and it seems reasonable to assume that he must have been here long enough to accumulate taxable property before he would be paying tax. The Stigall family owned many slaves and a group of eight from their plantation were the first slaves sold South from Rockcastle County, leaving here at the outbreak of the Civil War. One of them escaped and came back home. The other seven were sold by the man who had them in charge and the money invested in a plantation near Magnolia, Mississippi. He also opened a store there and eventually died a wealthy man but Rockcastle relatives never received anything from his estate.

We learn from the Journal of J. Henry Fish that his mother was the youngest of three daughters of a Capt. J. W. Anderson and his second wife, the widow of the Stigall man who had formerly owned a tract of many acres of land around present-day Brodhead. After her marriage to Capt. Anderson they continued to live there until her death. Their daughter married Jesse Fish in 1822, while he was serving as deputy sheriff under Capt. Anderson, who served at least one term and possibly two as sheriff of Rockcastle County. Jesse and his wife, Evaline, had eight children. She died giving birth to twins and was buried in the old Renfro Valley Cemetery with a baby on each arm. Her death occurred in 1835.

Capt. J. W. Anderson, her father, apparently came early to Rockcastle County, although I find no mention of him in the census report. From the circumstance of his leaving Canada, his former home, it is just possible that he did not allow his name to be listed in the census. His grandson, the J. Henry Fish mentioned above, discloses in his journal, written about his 65th year, that Capt. Anderson had to leave Canada on account of being accused of giving information relative to, as he puts it, "the Indian, French and American Wars." He was an Indian trader, but led his trade goods and other property, leaving in the night and never going back to reclaim any of his belongings.

Fish states that Capt. Anderson died of the infirmities of old age, in 1833. If this is correct then he must have been at least 75 years old at the time of his death, which would have placed his birth date at sometime in 1758 and he would have been too young to be engaged in the French and Indian War. Since, however, the aftermath of this conflict did not terminate until after the close of Lord Dunmore's War in 1774, he might easily have been involved in circumstances making it advisable to leave very hurriedly and be careful to avoid publicity after he got here. After settling here, whatever his past experiences, he seems to have become Brodhead's most prominent citizen as well as one of Rockcastle County's first. Though not shown on the census report, his name does appear on the delinquent tax list for 1818.

The Brodhead area first gained some prominence from the fact that here was the beginning of Dick's River in the coming together of Boone's Fork and Negro Creek. There are two stories as to how Dick's River got its name. The generally accepted version is that early hunters in this section met an Indian, which they had known previously by the English name of Dick, who told them they would find plenty of game on his river and that they should kill all they needed and then go home. The hunters followed his directions for locating the stream and named it for him. Another story which gained some credence was that in an attack by Indians on a party of early settlers along Skaggs Trace, a Negro slave was among those killed, the stream on which they were camped at time of the attack being later given the name of Negro Creek. This story goes on to say that the colored man's name was Dick and the stream into which the creek emptied was named Dick's River to commemorate his death. One thing seems to be certain; the original spelling was Dick's River, when and by whom it was changed to Dix River is now unknown.

The beginnings of the Brodhead settlement also served as a location point along the continuation of Skaggs Trace toward Logan's Fort and eventually the Falls, later Louisville, Kentucky. Later, when the route was changed so as to bring the road around by the present Mt. Vernon, it still came back to Brodhead as a landmark on the trail to Crab Orchard and points beyond. Being nearer to the earlier settlement of Crab Orchard, located in the fringes of the more affluent blue grass section, as the settlement at Brodhead grew it attracted a good class of pioneer settlers, many of whose descendants still live there.

When the L and N tracks were laid through Rockcastle County in 1868, Stigall's Stand, like other settlements along the right-of-way took a new lease on life. Its name was officially changed to Brodhead, honoring a Mr. Brodhead who had been instrumental in constructing the road. The settlement grew in size and individual industries began to spring up. Not the first, but one of the most important was the tobacco factory founded by Dick Martin, originally from Virginia. Their product was shipped to a wide market. The plant was later moved to Junction City to take advantage of better freight rates. The first roller flour mill in the

One pollution solution.

Kentucky Utilities' $52 million investment in pollution control equipment

Electricity plays a vital role in pollution control. First, because most pollution control equipment requires the use of electricity. Secondly, because the generation of electricity itself can adversely affect the environment.

It is in this second area that we're spending $52 million between 1973 and 1977. To make sure we generate electricity in compliance with environmental standards.

Where does this $52 million go?

- Into electrostatic precipitators that remove 99 per cent of the dust and ash from stack emissions at our coal-fired generating stations
- Into equipment that removes sulphur oxides from coal-fired generating unit stack gases
- Into cooling towers at generating stations, where they are needed, to reduce the temperature and quantity of warm water returned to lakes and streams
- Into equipment required to monitor, on a continuing basis, the environmental impact of our stations.

As you can see, clean air and water are obviously no longer free. We are doing our best to minimize these costs since, naturally, the cost of environmental safeguards must become part of the price of electricity.

It's wise to use electricity...use it wisely!

KENTUCKY LEGISLATIVE OVERVIEW

Veterinary School Bill - HB 69, a bill that would establish a school of veterinary medicine at Murray State University, failed to get out of the House State Government Committee.

Only five members of the committee voted that the bill should be reported to the House floor favorably. Eight votes are required.

Student Quota Bill - The Senate State Government Committee reported favorably SB 108, a bill requiring a student quota system for admission of medical, dental and legal students to state colleges and universities.

Under SB 108, the following requirements would be made:

- **Each of Kentucky's seven congressional districts be allocated ten per cent of the enrollment positions for entering classes in the state colleges of medicine, dentistry and law.
- **Allocation of fifteen per cent of the remaining enrollments to the state at large.
- **Limit out-of-state enrollments in entering classes to fifteen percent.

Mobile Home Safety - The Senate passed HB 65, a mobile home safety bill that would establish a state Mobile Home Certification and Licensure Board to license and regulate manufacturers and dealers of mobile homes.

Here's an ideal opportunity for the small family to own a home or the investor to purchase good investment property.

TERMS: 20% down day of sale, balance due in thirty (30) days upon delivery of deed.

Mt. Vernon Has 89.1% ZIP Code Usage

Postmaster James Smith today thanked postal customers in Mt. Vernon for their regular use of the ZIP Code with mailing addresses.

"Customers in the 13-state Central Region in which Mt. Vernon is a part leads the other four Postal Regions with an 89.1 percent ZIP Code usage.

According to recent figures, the national average for ZIP Code usage by mailers reached 87.3 percent," Postmaster Smith said.

Postmaster Smith said the success of the ZIP Code is well established. Its public acceptance has come a long way from that first day nearly eleven years ago when the program was launched in Washington with a special Ethel Merman version of "Zip-A-Dee Doo-Dee" that was to be heard in thousands of promotional spots on radio and television around the country.

It was on July 1, 1963, that the Postal System's Zoning Improvement Program went into effect. There was an immediate furor over the advent of ZIP Coding, but the people who predicted dire things for the future of the U.S. Mail as a result of adding five figures to an address have long since been proven wrong.

"Fortunately, there were those who also recognized that a growing population, a more mobile life style, and a growing volume of mail (it was 30 billion pieces in 1942, 49 billion in 1962, 87 billion in 1962, and now 90 billion) would require an addressing system more sophisticated than the one that had been used for the previous hundred years," Postmaster Smith said.

"There also had been great public controversy in 1963, when the Post Office Department came up with the then radical concept that mail should be addressed by street and number. Before then, mail was sent to a name in a city or town and that individual had to come to the post office to pick it up," he said.

Included in the shipment were Shortleaf Pine, Scotch Pine, White Pine, Loblolly Pine, Locust, and Yellow Poplar. Farmers interested in planting trees this spring should get in touch with Steve Bullen at Mt. Vernon, phone 256-2957. Orders should be placed before March 15, 1974 to insure delivery this spring. There are still several hundred acres of idle and unproductive land in Rockcastle County that should be planted in trees this spring.

He noted that fears that the ZIP Code would speed the demise of the identity of American place names have proved groundless. "Just look through the current directory of post offices, and you'll find the continuing existence of such places as Alpha, Illinois; Gas, Kansas; Weeping Water, Nebraska; Zap, North Dakota; Tea, South Dakota; and Luck, Wisconsin," he said.

"None has been endangered by the addition of the five-digit ZIP Code as part of its mailing address. On the contrary, the residents of these places as well as those who live in the most congested part of any metropolis - now can be located more quickly, more accurately, and at less cost than would be possible without the mechanized applications of ZIP Coding."

Down On The Farm

By: Roy G. Brown
Assistant Vice President
Cumberland PCA

I am afraid we, as farmers, may get frightened by the high cost and short supply of fertilize this year and short change our crops - especially pasture and hay. We will still need to carry on a good fertilization practice on these important crops every year. If we fail to fertilize one year, we can very easily get behind and will take more the next years to bring them back up to high productivity.

"It's a proven fact that livestock will gain more and be less likely to get disease if they have high quality pasture and hay that has been properly fertilized with the right analysis according to soil test; and with the high cost of fertilizer, we can save money by using only the right amount of needed fertilizer.

Many farmers have been busy the past few days renovating and seeding pasture. Now is the time to get this important job done. This will be an excellent start to "make more in '74."

Sales in 1972 totaled $68,914.394. Nationally, sales of Series E and H Savings Bonds totaled $6,286 million in 1973. The total cash value of Savings Bonds and Freedom Shares outstanding reached $90,812 million.

county was located at Brodhead by R. S. Martin, T. S. Frith and John Perkins.

In the edge of what is still the best agricultural region in the county, the town early derived substantial support from it. Brodhead has had its share of substantial business and professional men who have brought credit to the county. Such well established old family names as Cherry, Frith, Pike, Sowers, Francisco, Cass, Anderson and Martin have contributed to the worth of the community, while the Albright family has been so numerous and important that at one time the town might well have been named Albright City.

The town's most enduring claim to fame, however, might be considered the Brodhead Fair, later designated by Jim Messer (the man who did most to make it that way) as "Little World's Fair." It has long been and still is one of the most popular and well-attended county fairs in Kentucky and has for many years served as a gigantic homecoming for folks who have left Rockcastle County to try their fortunes elsewhere but can't resist the temptation to come back once a year to look for relatives and old acquaintances at the Brodhead Fair - and generally find them.

Frankfort Watchline

Instead of some heavy analysis of the legislative and political trends this time, how about a mixture of anecdotes and potpourri about the current session?

By the way, one of our buddies laboring in a distant state mentioned by phone the other day just how lucky Kentucky's capitol newsmen are.

"Sixty days and you don't see 'em for almost another two years," he said of the Kentucky lawmakers. "Here it seems to last forever."

He works in a state where the legislators drop by maybe two or three days a week ... every week.

Ready, Get Set - Little doubt now that the front-runner Democratic candidate to oppose Marlow Cook's race for reelection to the U.S. Senate is going to be Gov. Wendell Ford.

The only question is when. Others may wonder whether to wait will harm his candidacy.

One thing's for sure, all questions will be answered by April 3. That's the filing deadline.

Sort of sad about Jefferson County Judge Todd Hollenbach the other day, wasn't it?

Believe it was the day of the Jefferson - Jackson Day Dinner here when the judge and "Gov." as Ford is affectionately known by those close to him, had a bright and early meeting over at the mansion.

We think Hollenbach learned then that Ford plans to make the Senate race, choking off the blood, blue-eyed big city judge's plans to do the same a few days later. In fact, we're pretty sure that an order for printed invitations to an announcement were canceled that same day.

Hollenbach quipped later that what really hurts is that he's being razed for pulling out of the race because he's scared of State Rep. Ray Maynard, an already announced U.S. Senate candidate. Maynard's running a tongue-in-cheek primary race, trying to get some of his fellow Democrats off their duffs.

Now, we understand that Judge Hollenbach is becoming interested in joining that horde that's planning to run for Lt. Gov. We wonder though if that's not sort of a comedown for someone who's been Jefferson County judge for a couple of terms.

Cobblers Beware - Meantime, we overheard Greenup House Democrat Terry McBrayer, oft-mentioned as one of the most popular potential Lt. Gov. candidates, almost admit he's already running.

The disrepair of his footwear was brought to his attention one day last week by a colleague. "I know it," he grinned, "but I'm getting ready to hit the ole campaign trail, my friend. This is not time to be getting my shoes fixed."

Better watch it, Terry. It didn't work for Adlai Stevenson, did it?

Home Fires Smoldering - Cold Spring House Republican Art Schmidt the other day tried to do away with the Commission on Women as part of the action on an ill-fated Kentucky Equal Rights bill.

A kindly colleague from the other party, Lebanon's Sam Thomas, quickly rose and said to Schmidt, "Now that you can't go home for a while, you're sure welcome to come to my place for the weekend."

Schmidt assures us his wife's not really mad at him.

Oh Where, Oh Where? - You're not gonna believe this one. Three days after a favorable report from House committee, some of the leadership in other parties suddenly realized that the Governor's budget bill hadn't been heard from.

A frantic search was on and ... whew ... the bill was finally found in the clerk's office. The poor overworked computer system that spews out the bills in yeomanlike fashion just took a little longer than usual working in some changes in the budget.

We might add that some folks in the first floor vicinity of the governor's office were just a little bit upset until that particular lost sheep was returned to the fold.

Got An Oil Can Handy? - This has to be a record. There's one bill up here that changes exactly one word - just one - in an existing law. It makes city courts out of police courts. That's all.

But the bill is 136 pages long and weighs about two pounds. No wonder the poor computer's got arthritis.

KTC Approves Eight Million For Projects

Kentucky Telephone Company, a member of the Continental Telephone System, has approved more than $8 million for construction projects to expand and improve customer service during 1974, according to W. W. Thomason, Kentucky president.

Of the total, nearly $6 million will be spent on local calling equipment and facilities; more than $1 million on long distance equipment and facilities; and $1 million on telephones and other station-related activities. The total expenditure represents an increase of almost $1 million over last year's budget.

The 1974 program in the

Mt. Vernon, Brodhead and Livingston exchanges includes automatic number identification equipment ties with new direct distance dialing equipment being installed at the London central office.

THE COMING OF SPRING - And Outdoor Living!

Look but don't touch if you happen to see the vine that has three leaves. It may be three-leaved ivy, poison creeper, climbing sumac, poison oak or even markwood, ptery, or mercury. Slender vines of these may run along the ground, grow with shrubbery, or take support from a tree. Whatever - watch out!

Signs of spring always bring those balmy days when a walk to the woods or day-trip to the mountains may cause more discomfort than pleasure.

The best preventative measure is knowledge - know your plants. Leaves of common poison ivy are extremely variable, but if you see the three leaflets you can be fairly sure.

If you see common poison ivy in full sunlight, it looks more like a shrub than a vine. A ten percent water solution of potassium permanganate, obtainable in any drug store, usually is effective if applied within five to ten minutes after exposure.

ON WATER - In and Out Of The System -

Homeowners seldom realize how much water is wasted in the normal operation of their homes.

Most city dwellers are the worst offenders of water waste. Reason? No one told us that it takes about five gallons of water to flush one cigarette butt down the water closet! More than 99 percent of sewage is water according to USDA's Soil Conservation Service. The family who has to consider a septic tank effluent (liquid leaving the tank) bubbling onto the lawn outside thinks twice about the effects of that casual use of a single flush - or constant drip of a spigot!

Leaky faucets and fixtures waste gallons of water per day, but you can keep them in repair. Don't overflow the tub or run the shower unnecessarily. Running water while shaving - or while cleaning vegetables at the sink? Think twice - is it necessary? Not really.

ENERGY - On Your Refrigerator -

A seven-point check on your refrigerator might surprise you. It may be one of the energy-wasters in your home contributing to the five percent waste of the Nation's total energy. You may be able to eliminate this.

1. Try the two-point plan and see how your kitchen shapes up.
1. Refrigerator defrost manually? Defrost it, defrost builds up or becomes greater than one-fourth inch.
2. Avoid unnecessary opening of the refrigerator or freezer by removing several items for the meal at once.
3. Don't go "just looking" in your refrigerator "for what ever."
4. Close the door immediately after placing items in or removing them from your refrigerator.
5. Allow foods to cool before placing them in the refrigerator. Cooling hot foods quickly? Just place the container first in cold (or even in ice water) to reduce the temperature before storing it.

Remember, cooling is faster by convection.

6. Leaving town for a while? Defrost and unplug your refrigerator, and leave the door open.

7. Check the gasket around the door. Is it damaged or otherwise ineffective? It should be replaced. Try the dollar bill test - close the refrigerator door on a dollar bill and if it can be removed easily, you have a problem to eliminate!

FOOD CLIPS:

Mild cheese refers to the degree of curing (or ripening) and generally refers to cheddar cheese.

Sharp cheese, conversely, is cured longer (or held at a specific temperature and humidity) longer than other curing categories. A sharp flavor results. It may also be called "aged."

Ice or sherbet? Water ice is like sherbet - except that it contains no milk solids. Sherbet is made from milk, fruit or fruit juice, stabilizers, and sugar.

Ice milk is made from milk, stabilizers, sugar and flavorings and contains between two and seven percent milkfat. Ice cream is usually made of cream, milk, sugar, flavorings, and stabilizers and must contain at least 10 percent milkfat.

Planning freeze-it-yourself meals? Cooked chicken or turkey casseroles freeze well - in fact, any type of cooked meat used in combination with vegetables will freeze well. Flaky pastry is a good way to top it before freezing.

Two for one? Why not make six-six meat loaves can be made as simply as one. Freeze five in portions for your family. Meat loaf has better quality if frozen baked rather than unbaked.

Cooked dry beans freeze especially well because freezing softens beans somewhat. Cook them until barely tender for the best quality frozen product.

Remember, new potatoes are better than mature potatoes in most frozen dishes. Mature potatoes tend to disintegrate or become watery when boiled and then frozen.

Fresh or raw foods are not, necessarily, better than frozen ones. It depends on how they are handled. The Vitamin C value of frozen, reconstituted orange juice provides the same as the juice squeezed from fresh oranges.

Raw cabbage stores well. It holds its Vitamin C well even at room temperature.

Improves with age? Yes, sweet potatoes actually improve in storage. The Vitamin A value of sweet potatoes increases during the maturing period before they reach the retail store.

ROCKCASTLE CHAPTER D A R REPORTS...

The Rockcastle Chapter D A R met on Saturday, March 2, 1974 at the home of Miss Janie Ramsey in Berea, with Mrs. Robert Huff, Regent presiding, and Mrs. Elbert Eversole and Mrs. Harry Mullins assisting with the ritual. The President General's Message was read by Mrs. Roy Green.

Mrs. V. G. Walker and Miss Ramsey conducted a memorial service for Mrs. Gilbert Adams, charter member of the chapter, who died January 1, 1974. A touching tribute written by Mrs. Edgar A. P. Smith, Jr. was read during the services. Mrs. Adams was the sister of Mrs. John Lair and aunt of Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Joe Henderson, Mrs. Lowell B. Griffin and Mrs. Earl Teater, Jr., members of Rockcastle Chapter.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Henderson reported on Bi-Centennial plans for the county and chapter. Miss Ramsey presented to Mrs. John Lair, chair, a book of the Rockcastle County marriage records compiled and indexed by Miss Ramsey for the Genealogical Research Committee of the KSDAR. This copy is to be placed in the Rockcastle County Library and other copies are being placed in DAR libraries in Washington, D. C., the John Fox, Jr. Library in Paris, Ky. and in the Ky.

Miss Janie Ramsey and Mrs. John Lair.

Historical Society Library in Frankfort.

Mrs. Huff introduced the speaker for the day, Mrs. Ann White of Lexington, Chapter National Defense Chairman. Mrs. White is well qualified to speak on this subject for as a civilian worker at Avon Army Depot in Lexington, she keeps the mechanical engineering date file updated. She said that in the defense system there is a world wide control program operated by civilian workers. With a system of scheduled work load, these workers know who to contact and can mobilize immediately to assist, determine when to take old active defense of our country. Mrs. White, also, stressed the moral obligation of adults to convey to the youth of our country a strong moral code. If this were done, enemies of our democracy would not have followers. A breakdown in our moral code has brought about the present Watergate Scandal.

A social hour followed the program. Others present for the meeting were Mrs. Sallie Parsons of White, and guests Mrs. A. M. Hatt of the Berea Laurel Ridges Chapter, Mrs. Patty Boswell of Cincinnati and Mrs. John D. Walker of Ft. Knox.

By H. Lee Durham

WHAT TO DO IN MARCH...

To be a good gardener one must learn when to be in a hurry and when to restrain himself. With the first warm days of March comes the temptation to get out, as old timers used to say "tearing up the patch." This tearing up the patch is well and good when limited to plowing up the soil and otherwise preparing seed beds, but don't get too ambitious about planting vegetables or removing winter mulches. Except for some varieties of peas which can be planted in February, the planting of other vegetables can wait until after the middle of the month or later, according to Extension specialists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Although the fickle weather of springtime here in Kentucky makes absolute dates for planting an impossibility, the experience has been that soon after March 15, a gardener may be reasonably safe in setting out broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, and brussel sprout plants. He can, without a great deal of risk, plant beets, collards, kale, lettuce, radishes, and parsnips. He can also put out onion sets and plant Irish potatoes. Early March is a good time to resseed bare areas on the lawn. Frost action will help work the seed into the ground, but don't expect the seed to germinate until the warmer days of April. In bluegrass lawns, the UK specialists recommend two pounds of Ken Blue Bluegrass per 1,000 square feet. POSTED - Danger - No hunting, trespassing or fishing on my land located at Conway, Donald Ambrose, 25x12p

Monday night guests of Mrs. Virgie Sowder were Hazel Charlton of Richmond, Indiana and Juanita Laswell of Webster, Indiana. MATERNITY LEAVE QUESTION SETTLED

Teachers won a significant victory in the US Supreme Court on January 21 when the highest judicial body in the land struck down mandatory teacher maternity leave. The high court ruled 7 to 2 that such mandatory leave-of-absence provisions, regardless of an individual's ability to continue work, violated the Fourteenth Amendment's guarantee of due process of law.

This ruling means, according to NEA President Helen Wise, finally, that "pregnant teachers who can work and want to work will no longer be compelled to leave their jobs a specified number of months before the scheduled birth."

Furthermore, she reported, "The educational process will be enhanced by this ruling since teachers free from unreasonable restrictions are better able to provide the type of instruction which parents, teachers, and students want."

In the case of this nature were through the lower courts here in Kentucky.

(Lower courts, in general, have held that the decision as to when to begin or to end maternity leave is one to be made by the teacher and her physical, not arbitrarily by the local school board.)

The majority opinion for the court, written by Justice Potter Stewart, stated that "this court has long recognized that freedom of personal choice in matters of marriage and family life is one of the liberties protected by the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment...By overly restrictive maternity leave regulations can constitute a heavy burden on the exercise of these protected freedoms."

SUE BENNETT FOLK FESTIVAL

The programs and exhibits will be open to the public and a detailed schedule for the Festival will be announced in the near future.

Partial Hospitalization Program For County

A new program, Partial Hospitalization, has been opened in Brodhead for the citizens of Rockcastle County by the Cumberland River Mental Health Center. The program is under the direction of Pat Gilbert. She is assisted by Virginia Bray.

Partial Hospitalization provides day-care services for clients who do not require full time hospitalization and can return home in the evenings and on weekends. The client comes to the center every weekday and is involved in a program of social and daily living activities which promote an atmosphere of mental health.

Transportation is provided for the clients. The partial program operates Monday through Friday from 9 a. m. until 2 p.m. The Center at Brodhead, located in the old Murphy House, can handle up to fifteen clients.

There is a planned schedule each day which includes recreation, crafts, music and meal planning and preparation. From time to time special events are planned, such as picnics and holiday celebrations. The program provides the opportunity for the clients to meet people, form relationships and learn appropriate forms of behavior.

Each client is seen regularly by a psychiatrist and medication is prescribed when necessary. Group support is provided through group therapy sessions, led by a psychologist, where clients can share their problems and experiences.

To illustrate how much the clients enjoy the new program at Brodhead one client while preparing for the noon meal looked up at the clock and said, "It's just 10:30 a.m., we've still got lots of time." Pat Gilbert said we look out for all their
