

Rockcastle Recollections

By: John Lair

It has generally been the understanding among Rockcastle citizens that the court house was burned in 1873 and that all county records were destroyed. It was believed at the time that the fire was of incendiary origin and the grand jury returned indictments against the man suspected of having taken this method of destroying his own criminal record, as revealed in the papers of both the Circuit Court Clerk and the County Court Clerk. His trial, incidentally, was set for different dates over a period of time and finally dismissed without further action.

First official notice of the destruction of the court records was taken during the February term of Circuit Court, 1873, when John K. McClary was appointed special commissioner to "hear proof concerning any records destroyed or mutilated by the fire of the 13th of February, 1873, which destroyed the clerk's office of Rockcastle County. This order, however, was itself destroyed when on August 13th, of the same year, the clerk's office was again destroyed by fire, and a duplicate order was issued. It appears that in those two fires all Rockcastle County records from 1810, the date of formation of the county, to 1873 were completely destroyed.

In Order Book No. 1 of the same year, 1873, it appears that D. N. Williams, County Court Clerk, was permitted to set up his office in the office of the county judge, to begin keeping records until new quarters could be established and Wm. Fish, Circuit Court Clerk, was to be allowed to use the Jury Room for his temporary office. From this it becomes quite clear that the court house itself was not burned, as we had come to believe. From this, we conclude that the two clerk's offices must have occupied quarters in a building other than the court house.

The theory of the non-burning of the court house itself finds further support in an act of the Legislature, approved in 1872, providing for sale of bonds for the building of a new court house, with fireproof vaults. It seems hardly likely that the Fiscal Court, applying to the Legislature for such action prior to 1872, would staple cotton, which are still under marketing quotas.

Farmers who sign up will be eligible for program payments should payments be required. Under the 1973 Act farmers are guaranteed a "target price." For corn it is $1.38 a bushel, for wheat, $2.05 a bushel. If the average price for these commodities falls below the target price, the producer receives the difference between the target price and the 5-month average price received by all farmers for wheat and feed grains.

GAS SHORTAGE AFFECTING INTERSTATE TRAFFIC

Traffic on Kentucky's interstate highway increased by six per cent in 1973, compared to 1972 statistics.

However, figures for December 1973 show interstate traffic down from December 1972 totals by 11 percent.

Dudley Shryock, a traffic analyst for the Bureau of Highways, attributes this decrease directly to the fuel shortage.

"Through the first 11 months of 1973, the interstate traffic count in Kentucky was running well above 1972 totals. However, at the beginning of December, when gasoline stations were closing early and on Sundays, interstate traffic began to decline," Shryock said.

Figures for Kentucky's primary and secondary roads show the traffic count for primary roads up five percent over last year, while secondary road use increased three percent.

As for future months, Shryock explains that the Bureau of Highways can do nothing but wait and see.

"Unfortunately, from our preliminary figures for January and February, it seems as if this trend will continue."

"Already gas consumption for January 1974 is down by seven percent," Shryock concluded.

COAL GLIDES BILL - HB 655, a bill limiting the amount of overburden a strip-mine operator could place on the side of a mountain, was passed by the House and was sent to the Senate for approval. Under the bill, no more than 40 percent of the displaced rock and earth from a contour strip mine could be stacked on a mountainside below the stripped area.

 have known the court house would burn in 1873. All in all, it appears quite certain that the court house was not destroyed in either of the two fires set to destroy the records of the two clerk's offices. Of course it is possible that the building might have suffered considerable damage by one or both configurations, which might have necessitated its rebuilding.

The original court house, built in 1810, was a two-story log building. By 1873 it had been in use for sixty three years and the citizens of the county may have concluded as early as 1872 that a new building was needed. Also, an act passed by the Legislature in 1868 provided that each county court house should have at least one fireproof vault for the protection of county records. Neither the old court house nor the clerk's offices, if in separate buildings, provided such vaults, so the Fiscal Court may have been considering the erection of a building to meet state requirements before the fires occurred in the clerk's offices.

According to an article by Mrs. R. W. Griffin which appeared in the History of Kentucky Courthouses, published in 1972 by the National Society of Colonial Dames of America, the new court house erected here in 1873 was built from bricks hauled from Mullins Station. I find that in 1873 there was a brick yard at Dudley, Kentucky, which was quite near Mullins Station, so there is a strong possibility that it was the Dudley plant from which they were hauled to Mt. Vernon, by wagon and team, over ten miles of pretty rough county road, which in wet weather could become almost impassable.

The new court house, a commodious two-story building, was a source of much pride to the citizens of Rockcastle County and rendered good service for almost one hundred years, being replaced by the present structure in 1964. It was completed in 1875, at a cost of around $17,925.08, including cost of additional land added to the court house lot, plus the services of Mr. J. Miller, receiver appointed by the building committee, J. M. Fish, J. Williams and M. J. Cook. The county sold sixteen $1,000.00 bonds, to the revenue from which was added county taxes collected by the sheriff's office. $3,000.00 more was raised from bonds sold to Farmer's National Bank. A separate building committee to use this money in building a new jail consisted of M. J. Cook, James J. Carter and J. M. Fish. It was found necessary only a few years in 1886 an additional $8,000.00 was raised by a new bond issue and M. J. Cook, John W. Brown and J. K. McClary were appointed as building committee. This was, no doubt, the well-constructed stone building which is in use until the court house was razed to make way for the present building.

Incidentally, the county seems to have had trouble over the years with its prisoners. In spite of massive stone walls and heavy iron bars there have been many escapes. Old court order books since 1873 show many accounts of extra guards being hired from time to time to try to prevent the loss of special inmates. For instance, the man indicted for "court house burning" occasioned the addition of five extra guards on all shifts to prevent his rescue by friends and relatives. I have the iron cells or cages in use in both the first and second jails, as they show definite proof of sixteen successful efforts to escape. Even the old jail door, which I also have, was not always proof against the ingenious workman, with a good saw. It seems that in recent years many escapees sawed through cell bars and then cut their way to freedom by way of a small passage through the extra thick stone walls. An amusing incident occurred when Dee Bostic, a man of powerful physique and considerable pride in his reputation as a good stone mason, achieved the seemingly-impossible feat of cutting a full sized doorway through this wall to make his escape with some feeling of dignity. He is reported to have said that if he wanted to get out of jail he would walk like a gentleman - not crawl through a hole like a dog."

I have been told that the walls of the first jail, erected in 1811, were made of oak two by eights, laid flat upon each other and spiked together with big, square, hand cut - iron nails, or spikes. It stood in back of the old court house, not inside it, as in the present instance. Both the first court house and the old jail were built on a level to a feet to which country people coming to town must have been prone to hitch their horses, because I find an early order to the effect that the sheriff would turn loose any animal found hitched to the court house fence.

In my youth, my father took me on a visit to the county jail. If his purpose was, as I suspect, to give me an object lesson of what a terrible place it was to be in, he certainly succeeded in doing so. I never encountered before or since, such a damp, dark, foul-smelling dungeon and I dreamed about it many times afterward. I still don't see how prisoners could exist in a place of confinement such as it was some seventy years ago, but at that time there was no thought of making a jail very attractive to those who broke the law.

The burning of the court houses, by the way, must have been of fairly common occurrence in the past. I have found a state law setting the penalty for burning a court house or clerk's office at from seven to twenty-one years in the penitentiary. The man indicted for burning the Rockcastle County building, or buildings, not only escaped the consequences of his alleged crime but continued to leave further evidence of misconduct in the files of the clerk's offices. From 1873 to 1879, inclusive, they show him charged with sixteen different crimes, including arson, forgery, stealing, carrying concealed weapons, selling liquor to minors - in fact, just about everything except murder.

Rockcastle's present court house and jail was erected in 1964. It is thoroughly modern and equipped with every comfort and convenience, even extending into the jail section, which leaves nothing for a prisoner to desire except his freedom and I am not so sure that all of them even want that, with living conditions such as they are!

U.S. Taxes Produce $4,155,000 Locally

Taxes are again in the spotlight in Rockcastle County, what with the day of reckonings, April 15th, just around the bend.

The big question among local residents is how much of a bite Uncle Sam will be taking this time.

Last April he collected approximately $3,845,000 in personal income and employment taxes in the area, based upon the previous year's earnings.

This is the estimate of what was turned in locally, as determined by a breakdown of the overall tax receipts throughout the State of Kentucky.

The statewide total was approximately $1,458,000,000, according to figures released by the Treasury Department.

It is estimated, as a result that Rockcastle County residents contributed 0.25 percent of the Federal income taxes collected in the state.

Because employment was at a high level in most parts of the country in the past year, despite relative weakness in the economy in the last quarter, total earnings were greater than in 1972.

The tax yield, therefore, is expected to be greater, since bigger earnings mean bigger taxes.

The Administration anticipates that its receipts from individual income and employment taxes will be $2.8 billion greater than they were last April.

Its budget, submitted to Congress in January, counts on $202 billion from this source, as against last year's total of $177.2 billion.

Taxpayers in the local area will be bearing their proportionate share of the increase. Their payments next month will

BRODHEAD & MT. VERNON AWARDED FUNDS.....

In a telegram Tuesday from Marlow W. Cook, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has approved $18,900 for Brodhead and $6,000 for Mt. Vernon to reimburse the two communities for sewage treatment facilities.

Cook said the funds were provided under Section 206 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act for sewage projects constructed between June 30, '66 and July 1, '72.

"I am pleased to see Brodhead and Mt. Vernon get this money," Cook said, "because this is what we in Congress intended when we appropriated the funds last year for this reimbursement program."

be close to $4,155,000, it is estimated.

The President's budget for the next fiscal year, projecting income and expense figures through June 30, 1975, calls for individual taxes of $220 billion, which is $18 billion more than this year.

Total personal income in Rockcastle County will have to be about 90 percent greater in 1974 than it was in 1973 for local residents to meet their share of this increase.

Most families find themselves in a bind because their bigger incomes result in larger taxes, leaving them less able to cope with rising inflation.

Wheat, Feed Grain Signups By Mail

Farmers who want to sign up for the 1974 wheat and feed grain programs will be able to do by mail this year, according to Harold Ballinger, Executive Director for the Rockcastle County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

In the past, farmers had to go up to the county ASCS office to sign up in person, sometimes facing long lines. Bad weather often prevented farmers from getting to the county office and consequently, sign up sometimes had to be extended.

Another new feature this year, Mr. Ballinger said, is that sign-up will be combined with certification. "The procedure is very simple," he said. Farmers wishing to participate in a program should call, write, or visit the county office as soon as possible after planting, for sign-up and certification. After filling out and signing the forms, the farmer leaves them at the county office or mails them in as he prefers. "It is as simple as that," Mr. Ballinger said.

Signup begins with certification; that is, when the farmer certifies the averages of crops he has planted. The final date for sign-up will be determined by the State Committee and will be announced later.

Participation in the two commodity programs has been simplified, too, he said. There are no set-aside requirements, no restrictions on planting for the 1974 crop, and no conserving base requirements through the next—low—crop—years—the duration of the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, Ballinger said.

This means that under the 1974 program, farmers will be able to plant as many acres as they want of any crop except tobacco, peanuts, and extra long

GUARANTEED LOANS AID TO FARMER

Gov. Wendell Ford has signed into law House Bill 556, a measure extending the power of the Kentucky Farm Development Authority to guarantee loans to farmers for the purchase of farm machinery and livestock.

Previously, the agency's authority had been limited to guaranteeing loans for the purchase of farm land and the construction of buildings on the land.

"This legislation can have a positive impact on the future of agriculture in Kentucky," said the administration bill, sponsored by House Majority Leader John Swinford of Cynthiana.

"There is an urgent need for more young people to become involved in agricultural careers," the Governor continues, noting that the average age of today's farmer is 60. "In the past, the large initial capital investment required to start a farming operation has prohibited many young people from going into farming. "This bill will do something about that. It will enable him to have a bigger operation with less capital."

VET REP HERE MARCH 27

Trash Collection Still Poses Big Problem For County

One year ago this month, the county-wide garbage collection system went into effect. The system was instigated and financed by then County Judge Charles C. Carter and members of the Fiscal Court from Revenue Sharing Funds.

Under the system, thirty-eight garbage containers were placed throughout the county (except within any of the three town's city limits) and citizens were asked to use them for dumping trash free of charge instead of adding to or creating more illegal dumps in the county.

Rockcastle Sanitation, owned and operated by Guy C. Martin and Kenneth Cromer, were awarded the bid for installing and emptying the containers one week at an approximate cost to the county of $2,000 per month.

The system has been a mixed blessing to the county. The good part seems mainly to be that it has helped to keep down illegal dumping which was such an eyesore to motorists and those living near the dumps and which also presented a health problem of no little significance.

On the minus side of the ledger would have to be the abuse of the system by persons who care little enough for their surroundings that they will not take the time to put their garbage in a free container but will instead stack the sacks outside or, even worse, simply pull up in their cars and leave the sacks out the window to lie on the ground and be blown hither and yon and gotten into by dogs. This is happening as residents of areas where the containers are located can attest to.

One of the worst areas seems to be the containers just North and South of Mt. Vernon (the picture is of the container located just North of Mt. Vernon on U.S. 25). A problem here would apparently be that one container is not sufficient to hold the trash which is dumped here.

Residents of the area tell us that the container is filled to the brim each day, thus giving people the excuse to stack their garbage around the outside of the container, always overflowing even though more than the once-a-week trip is made to this particular container.

Bags of trash lying on the ground outside the container is also the main complaint of the operators of the system (who are not bound under their contract to police the area around the container but have been going so to date).

There are also reports that, at least in one instance, the landowner who gave the use of the area should be so abused. There is threatening to withdraw the use because of the unsightly conditions which exist most of the time, due mainly to users' carelessness.

It is a sad reflection on our society that a system, which has proven its usefulness to the county, should be so abused. The main idea behind the installation of the containers was to clear up the unsightly illegal dumps located throughout the county but what seems to have evolved are thirty-eight unsightly legal dumps. And, the only thing that will help correct the situation is the cooperation of the users themselves and adjustments by Fiscal Court in the system. *****

THE GOOD, THE BAD AND THE UGLY—Scenes such as this scattered throughout the county as the thirty-eight public dumping sites are causing concern among the county's residents, particularly those who live near the sites of the containers. To what the public's carelessness in using the containers, provided free-of-charge by the county, will lead to unclear, but more cooperation is certainly needed from the public to make the system an asset to the county instead of a blight on our environment.

JOHN NICHOLES'

Frankfort Watchline

One of the more amusing while intriguing tales cropping up here lately deals with the abundance of prospective candidates for lieutenant governor and the fortunes of one in particular.

Because of a turn of events late last week, that job (decreasing in importance if some would have their way, became tied tightly to the coming race for the U.S. Senate.

In our view, one of the front runners for the second highest post in state government, Jefferson Co. Judge Todd Hollenbach, stubbed a toe in his haste to win the Mountain legislators to his side with support of a measure that would have brought to the eastern Kentucky region a share of the coal tax excess.

Motives attributed to the judge are what we are talking about. It's the opinion of those around Gov. Wendell Ford that Hollenbach wanted to upset, if not slip, the governor's timetable for the Senate race by sneaking a bad apple into the budget basket and a wedge between Ford and the vital eastern Kentucky vote.

You see, just because Hollenbach has been told by the governor to forget running for the Senate, not everyone's convinced that the young judge will drop his Senate aspirations that easily.

Then, along comes the governor with an alternative to the earlier coal tax sharing plan ... one that he'll support ... one he says he's been planning all along ... gets the coal country lawmakers behind him ... and suddenly causes a lot of problems in two areas for a certain big city politician: The Lt. Governor's job and the Senate post.

And it's an ironic turn of events, because it was just a few days earlier, that many were viewing the governor's troubles with his house leadership with fears that he'd abort his Senate plans.

There's only one fellow in the state who'd benefit from that. It strikes us, too, that the role played in Ford's new version of severance tax return legislation by Greenup House Democrat Terry McBrayer raises his neck immovably as the prime candidate for Lt. Gov. It shows us an individual over whom both Ford and Lt. Gov. Jim Carroll might agree.

Meantime, if the bill goes through to strip the Lt. Governor from his chairmanship of the Legislative Research Commission, you'll have a number two man for little more than ceremonial purposes. The taxpayers will be footing a $25,000 a year salary, and we're upkeek and whatnot for that nice old mansion down the street.

But that does not reduce prestige and the status of the job for many and the scramble is on.

An ancient view of the Lt. Gov.'s job is that you don't run for it ... you are, instead, selected by the candidate for governor. But the theory may be going out the window for 1975.

We don't believe that Lt. Gov. Carroll - whom you may have heard is intensely interested in the Governor's job - will select a running mate. Why should he? Wendell Ford did okay without a number two man on his ticket in the Democrat primary. Common sense tells you that to tap one fellow means you're going to make someone else mad and thus one section of the state will be mad, too.

Okay, who's out there? There's McBrayer, young enough, mid-30's, personable, with political savvy. And he's not only acceptable to Carroll, he's probably preferred by him. But McBrayer's not part of the Ford Administration, like Environment and Natural Resources Chief Tom Harris, Parks Boss Ewart Johnson, and Transportation Secretary Jim Gray. There's Hollenbach, with a clutch of Louisville-area votes to hope for and there's Attorney Gen. Ed Hancock who has his own gutsy, independent, but usually winning campaign flavor.

There are others, like Fayette Co. Judge Bob Stephens, who's told us he's in, then out, then in again for Lt. Gov., and probably a dozen or so members of the General Assembly.

We could drop names all day, but there's one more we can't quit without mentioning - Secretary of State Jim Stovall. Anyone who thinks that idea's a joke had better flip a few pages in the political record book.

She's always been a shoe-in for just about any state job she's run for and has built such a solid political base that if she gets well-known men get into the race this time, Mrs. Stovall is one immensely popular lady who knows how good her chances can be.

Equal Time - When Whiteburg's Hooper Dawabara was evicted from the House of Representatives a couple of weeks ago, he became a folk hero. There's no question about it. His fellow House members aren't ignorant of what's going on around them and there's talk of someone, probably Lexington's David VanHorn, petitioning Speaker Norbert Blume that the other 98 be thrown out, too, so their next elections can also be guaranteed.

Homemakers And The Energy Crisis - What To Do?

Food probably accounts for 12 to 13 percent of the U.S. total energy requirement - that is, counting the whole process for food from the growing stage through the retail stage and on into the "pot." The homemaker - or whoever happens to be doing the chef's hat in your house - can definitely contribute to energy-saving by preparing fuel-saving meals.

One way to contribute to energy saving measures is to plan baking so that, several things are cooked with one use of the oven. Preheat the oven no longer than ten minutes, as for cakes, pies or breads. Avoid pre-heating when not essential. For meats, turn off oven a few minutes before end of cooking time and let residual heat finish the cooking.

One-dish, top-of-the-stove meals may be another way to save.

FUEL-SAVING CASSEROLES - TOP OF STOVE

Top-Of-Stove Casserole

1 small onion

Add rest of ingredients, except tuna. Cook slowly, about 20 minutes, stirring to keep from sticking. Break tuna in large pieces into the sauce. Cook ten minutes longer, stirring as needed to prevent sticking. Serve on hamburger rolls.

Luncheon Meat Spanish Rice

1/2 cup uncooked rice
2 1/2 cups canned tomatoes
1 small onion
1/2 green pepper
1 stalk celery
2 1/2 cups cut-up canned luncheon meat

Cook rice in fat or oil until lightly browned. Chop onion, green pepper, and celery. Add to rice. Stir in tomatoes. Heat to boiling. Lower heat. Cover and cook about 25 minutes until rice is tender. Add meat to rice and heat until meat is hot.

Vegetable Soup

4 stalks celery, with tops
2 medium-size onions
2 medium-size carrots
1/4 head small cabbage
3 cups water
2 cups canned tomatoes
1/4 cup margarine or butter

Salt & pepper to taste
1/4 cup uncooked rice
Cut up celery, onions, carrots, and cabbage. Bring water to boil. Add all ingredients except rice. Cover and boil slowly fifteen to twenty minutes, until vegetables are almost tender. Add rice. Lower heat and cook about 25 minutes longer until rice is tender.

Note: Add 3 beef bouillon cubes or 2 cups canned meat before cooking soup, if you like. Other raw or canned vegetables may be added if desired.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank each one for their kindness shown to me in the passing of my husband. A special thanks to the Cromer Singers, to Bro. Arnold for his good message, and to the Dowell and Martin Funeral Home. Everyone was so good and a special thanks to my good neighbors.

God bless all.

The Billy Lawrence Family

Down On The Farm

By: Roy G. Brown
Assistant Vice President
Cumberland PCA

We are visiting today on the farm with the Billy Lawrence Family. In the picture you see Dorothy, Billy and son Frankie with their new silo, automatic feeding operation. Also pictured are some of their fifty cow dairy herd. When I visited the farm, Dorothy and Frankie were milking and Billy was plowing tobacco land.

They operate as a family farm. At the present time they are producing about 4,300 pounds of milk every other day.

Besides the dairy, they grow 2,700 pounds of tobacco on their farm and rent about 4,500 pounds. They grow corn, mostly for silage and put up hay. Billy renovated a pasture in February and did an excellent job. This is a must in producing forage for dairy cows.

They won the Merit Award in an area of several counties last year for the remarkable job they had done with their farming program.

A great big salute goes out to the Billy Lawrence Family "Down on the Farm."

EASTER SEAL CHILD - Gov. Milton J. Shapp and Joel Frith of Smithfield, the state Easter Seal Child, "pucker up" as the governor tries to persuade Joel to whistle during a meeting in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania recently to kick off the Easter Seal Drive. Joel is the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Frith of 40 Liberty Street, Smithfield, Pa. The 1974 Pennsylvania Easter Seal Child is a great nephew of Mrs. Dan Gray of Broadhead. Joel has Spina Bifida, a birth defect which prohibits the full development of the spine. Approximately two years ago, he was fitted with leg braces since the disease involves the muscles which control leg movement and inhibits walking. For the past two years, Joel has been receiving physical therapy at the Easter Seal Center and is now able to walk with the aid of braces and crutches.

News & Views from your Rockcastle Co. Library

The phrase "Try it, you'll like it" can be applied to a lot of things - the Rockcastle County Public Library, for example. The weather for the last month has been rain, rain, rain and what better way to spend a rainy day than reading?

Have you seen the new Rockcastle County Public Library? If not, be sure and visit them and just browse around and see the new library, visit with Mrs. Davis, the librarian and while there, check out the books of your choice.

New books received at the library include:

Writing Popular Fiction, by Dean R. Koontz. Fan of popular fiction, professional writer, new writer looking for markets - whoever you are, you will enjoy this book. It takes you behind the publishing scene and shows you how popular novels, science fiction, mysteries, suspense thrillers, Gothic romance, adult fantasy, Westerns, and erotica - are created and how you can write them, too.

Who Wakes the Groundhog?, by Ronald N. Road. This is the story of the strange ways of living things around us. Some birds, plants, and animals seem to rush headlong into each season. Others linger as if reluctant to let go of the past.

Please Don't Go, by Peggy Woodford. Mary began to think about herself that first summer in France. Shortly after her arrival at the seaside village of Trequines, she realized how differently it all was from London - the food, the customs, the people.

The Three Billy Goats Gruff, by Peter Christen Ashjornsen. Once again the Three Billy Goats Gruff brave the fearsome Troll in order to reach a fine meadow full of grass and daisies. And, once again, Paul Galdon's special feeling for animals and nature results in a strikingly fresh interpretation of a classic children's tale.

Have You Seen My Cat? by Eric Carle. A cat has disappeared and a boy is worried. Few words are necessary as we follow the trail of the missing animal. Eric Carle's colorful collage illustration of the members of the cat family tell the story and eventually solve the mystery.

Inflation has hit us all right where it hurts most, in the pocketbook. Prices zoom outta sight and the cost of everything goes up. Everything! Well, not quite. The price of a library card hasn't changed at all - it's still free! There's a free one awaiting you at the Rockcastle County Public Library now, just for the asking. And with that card you can get some of the information you need to combat the high cost of living. There's a wealth of material available to help you get your money's worth at the Library.

New books have been received from the Dept. of Libraries in Frankfort. Among them are:

Wonders of the World of Horses, by Sigmund A. Lavine. Junior horsemen, whether novices or skilled, will find this presentation, which includes the history of the horse, its physical characteristics, and rules for care and training, an interesting and interesting reading. There is a discussion of the origins of various breeds, the purposes for which they were developed, and summaries of the standards for each breed. Also included is a chapter detailing the place of the horse in art, literature, mythology, and superstition.

The Pig and the Pond, by Robert Musser Brown. "The Pond" is the home of a fascinating collection of militants as ever formed a committee or raised a battle flag: A potpourri of militants - Fig Skunk, Fowler the toad, Frog, Challenger the horse, and the duckling Talleyrand, to name a few. They weren't always militants. Peacefully abiding in their community, they lolled in the lush greenery or, like Pili, contemplated the apple on the tree whose branch drooped gracefully over his pen. Or they refreshed themselves in the clear water of the Pond. The Pond, home, until.....

Physician to the World: Esther Pohl Lovejoy, by Olive Burt. During her poverty-stricken childhood, Esther Pohl Lovejoy was determined to become a physician, and was one of three women accepted at the University of Oregon's medical school. After her graduation, she set up a practice in Portland with her physician husband. Later, the Pohl's joined Esther's brothers in Alaska, where they established a hospital.

THE HUMAN SIDE OF THE LIBRARY By Charles F. Hinds State Librarian

The bookmobile program received official state recognition in 1954, when business and labor leaders donated book vans to the Commonwealth for use in rural areas. Twenty years ago, 80 percent of rural Kentucky lacked access to a public library. Today, 97 out of the 120 counties provide county-wide service for their citizens through a library system built around town libraries and satellite bookmobile services. A fleet of 110 bookmobiles are assigned to these 97 counties and certain cities, such as Louisville. Drivers and maintenance costs of the units, are provided by local public financing. Bookmobiles have become identified in Kentucky with motherhood, apple pie and the flag. This is fine, but it should be clearly understood that in most counties of Kentucky, bookmobiles are also meat, bread and potatoes.

First and foremost, in that last reporting year over 40 percent of all books checked out of what Gov. Wendell Ford calls the "people's universities," were (Cont. to 8)

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

After Abortion What?
Dear Editor:
The U.S.A. adopted abortion in January, 1973. Is it good, or is it bad? Here is what I read: Abortion came to Germany before 1900. Euthanasia arrived by 1920. By 1938 Germany effected the first gas chambers. Pediatricians first did away with defective children. Later they put to death children who were bed-wetters, who had misshapen ears, learning disabilities, etc.
Later the old age homes were cleaned out. Private homes were invaded and elderly people who were getting a little forgetful were taken away. All the WWI amputees were also done away with.
Then Hitler took over the gas chambers. He killed off all the Gypsies on the German countryside. And more than 6 million Jews.
The U.S.A. sat in judgment over the Germans...at the Nuremberg Trials. A condemned and anguished Nazi judge said, "I never knew it would come to this." The American judge answered simply, "It came to this the first time you condemned an innocent life."
Abortion came to Germany.

Now it is here. Do we turn back? Or what country will sit over us at the Washington Trials? But do not worry. By then they will have done away with you.

Moreover, the bookmobile drivers provide extra little services not spelled out in the job specifications.
According to Cumberland County Bookmobile Librarian, Ruth B. Murley, "I've taken used clothes, helped get free lunches and shoes and clothing for school children. There are a lot of things we need to know about other than books. Though books are our first concern, we also need to know where people can get their welfare checks, when different people can be seen and information about such private subjects as birth control measures."
This past Christmas, with the assistance of Mrs. Jewell Thomas, regional librarian, toys were collected and distributed to mentally handicapped children.

"Now when I arrive at the mental health center, this one little boy runs up to me with a happy smile and repeats in my ear, over and over, the single word, 'car'. You see, the gift I left for him last Christmas was a small racing car," Mrs. Murley said.

by: perlina m. anderson
Went skating over the weekend with the four girls since my husband and son decided to try their father's - realized after about an hour of skating that I would have been better off fishing. But, it wasn't too bad. I didn't fall or get knocked down and that's an accomplishment for me in itself, and the two middle girls picked up a little prowess on the skates. You know, children these days have a hard time learning to skate because the clip-on skates that were so popular in my childhood, have disappeared from the scene today. I don't know why. They were relatively inexpensive and were fun - of course, if you lost your skate key you had problems and you never, never dared to use good shoes with them for fear of damaging the soles. But other than that, they were a fun thing to fool around with and gave you some experience for the skating rink.
Skating is a sport at which if you are not good by the time you are an adult - you really should forget it. A child doesn't look too awkward bouncing up and down around a rink but adults get pretty funny besides, they can't usually stand the pace. My husband, who has never been on a pair of skates but once in his life, is a case in point. Shortly before our marriage a traveling rink came to Versailles and I maneuvered my eye on the sidelines, you find yourself being extremely cautious. Oh, well, it was fun anyway.....

I watched President Nixon's speech before a group of Chicago executives last Friday and was once again amazed at his ability to think on his feet and also at the sense of humor he so often displays.
At the same time, you can listen to one of his speeches these days and, while not thoroughly convinced, you begin to wonder if he could be capable of all those horrible things his detractors accuse him of. Then just as you've convinced yourself that he's right and things are looking up, you pick up a newspaper and see where some other important document has mysteriously and conveniently "been lost." Ah, well, it's a weird old world these days.....

Have you noticed the increased number of speeding violators that are being fined these days since the 55 mph speed limit was imposed. It's really foolish for anyone to violate that particular law to wonder if he could be capable

Crime prevention begins at home...with light.
A burglar wants no part of a well-lighted home. Someone could be there. Alert neighbors might identify him for the police. A prowler car might pass at the moment of entry. Much safer to go to work where it's dark.
Plan your safety lighting strategically - backyard floodlight, porch light, or our special pole service that includes installation and maintenance. In any case the cost is low - protection priceless. And the same safety lighting welcomes your family or friends.

Your budget, our budget.

Your household budget and our company's budget are almost identical. Like you, we have to keep our expenses in line with our income. Like you, we have to have a good credit rating in order to be able to borrow money to make improvements. And like you, we work hard to fight inflation and keep our budget balanced. Sometimes though, our expenses go up a lot faster than our income. Thus, just as you seek increases in your income, to balance your budget, we have to ask for an increase in telephone rates in order to keep our budget balanced. There's no mystery to the business of the telephone business. It's just a matter of living within your budget and doing the best job you can. That's what you do... and that's what we do.

Farmers May Have To Allocate Nitrogen To Various Crops.....

One of the decisions a farmer with only a limited supply of nitrogen fertilizer must make this spring is how much fertilizer to apply to each crop. This decision is especially difficult if he is growing two grain crops such as corn and wheat, since both of these crops respond well to nitrogen and both show promise of strong prices in the fall.

To make as much money as possible from his crops, a farmer should be guided in allocating a limited amount of fertilizer by the yield response he expects from each crop and by the price he expects to get for each crop. That is pointed out by Ken Wells, Extension Soils Specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, and Wilmer Browning, UK Extension Specialist in Agricultural Economist.

If a farmer finds that he cannot obtain enough nitrogen for both his wheat and corn acreage at the rates he would usually apply, Wells and Browning make the following recommendations:

Wheat - If 60 pounds or more of actual nitrogen per acre were applied last fall, apply little or no nitrogen this spring. Concentrate on maximizing corn yields. If less than sixty pounds of nitrogen was applied last fall, try to topdress with thirty pounds of N per acre early in the spring.

Corn on well-drained soils - A. No-till planting: (1) In new soil, apply not more than 75 pounds N per acre. (2) In continuous no-till, apply not more than 100 pounds N per acre. B. Conventional planting: (1) In fresh sodland, apply not more than 50 pounds N per acre; (2) On continuous corn land, apply 75-100 pounds N per acre.

Corn on soils which don't drain well: A. On upland soils, apply 125 pounds N per acre; B. On bottomland soils, apply 150 pounds N per acre.

Wells and Browning emphasize that these rates are somewhat lower than would normally be recommended, if sufficient nitrogen were available; and that these rates are not likely to produce maximum yields. However, they should result in the greatest yields possible for both corn and wheat when there is a short supply of nitrogen.

The UK Specialists point out that when fertilizing corn, better use of available is made when most of it is applied when the corn is about knee-high. This is especially true for soils with slow drainage. If it is possible to delay application of most of the nitrogen on such soils, the amounts listed above for bottomland soils can be reduced by 25 pounds per acre.

GROW VEGETABLES IN CONTAINERS

There's no longer any excuse not to have a vegetable garden. Even people without land can garden if they really want to. All you need is a doorstep, a window sill or a balcony, and a few guidelines on how to use this limited space to maximum advantage.

Bushel baskets, plastic buckets, coffee cans, empty milk cartons, plastic bags and other easily accessible containers are all suitable for raising vegetables. Just fill them with a suitable planting soil and choose the right kinds of vegetables to grow.

Here are a few variety suggestions: Radishes take up little space and grow fast. Radishes will grow readily in any type of wooden, metal or plastic container, and will be ready for harvesting in twenty days.

Growing to perfection above are several kinds of vegetables, including young cabbage (top) and mature radish (center) and frilly looseleaf lettuce (bottom). Boxes and bushel baskets provide ample growing space.

Next try lettuce. There are fast growing miniature varieties for small containers like window boxes and pots, and decorative kinds such as Ruby and Salad Bowl that will dress up a bare space. Half-bushel baskets lined with plastic make good miniature lettuce gardens.

Peppers and tomatoes will grow in plastic bags as long as drainage holes are present to prevent waterlogging. Also gallon milk containers with the tops cut off are ideal.

Many kinds of herbs can be grown on a sunny window, especially parsley which is the most useful of all herbs to grow. Chives can be grown in coffee cans to provide enough flavor for salads, soups and egg dishes.

Zucchini squash and crook-neck squash are quick to mature, and both will thrive in gallon containers, providing the soil is fertile and they are kept in a sunny location.
