ramblings.....

by: perline m. anderkin

This column almost didn't make it this week. For one thing, there was no particularly fascinating idea inside my head hammering for admittance to the original thought world (it would probably scare me to death anyway, right?) and secondly, I visited "Maureen" Tuesday and anyone in business over sixteen in this town knows the connotation there.

Yes, it was time to make my annual settlement with the government and I don't really believe I even came out with a forty-fifty split. I have come to the point where I think it would be easier and more convenient for everyone concerned if I simply turned everything over to the government and told them to let me have what they thought they could spare. The only humorous incident that I have ever had connected with tax time (and at that time it really wasn't too funny) came when I was nineteen and trying to make good on my first job at a bank in Lexington. My boss came to my desk on April 15th and handed me his tax forms filled out in pencil and told me to type them so he could take them home for his wife's signature and get them in the mail before the deadline. Simple, right? Well, I busily set about my task and typed the federal form first and then returned to the state. When I came to the itemized deduction part there he had simply written in "Same as Federal". So, me, in my youth, innocence and ignorance, typed that phrase on the form, neatly put them in order and handed them to him as he was leaving the office. You can imagine my embarrassment the next morning when he sauntered up to my desk and calmly explained to me that he had meant the phrase "Same as Federal" for my information and not that of the State Internal Revenue Service and that my blopper had resulted in his being a day late in filing his returns. I didn't get fired, but believe me, each job from him was thoroughly explained for some time after that.....

But, I honestly think I have found the reason for my my incapacity to make and keep a buck through the simple game of Monopoly. I sat down last night for a game with my 12-year-old son and next door neighbor and practically broke the world's record (which I had established in an earlier game) for going bankrupt. My husband, thoughtfully watching the game, commented that from my performance there, a great many questions had not been answered for him concerning our financial condition.

Since taxes are really all I have on my mind at present and I have beat that subject to death, I guess I will call it quits for another week.....

1974 Economic Predictions Made For Kentucky

Whatever the effects of the energy crisis on the national economy, Kentucky will be spared the full force of them, says the Kentucky Council of Economic Advisors in its recent annual report.

The report predicts that for the national economy, "the most probably result of the oil shortage will be a recession during 1974."

Economists had predicted a national economic slowdown during 1974 anyway, with somewhat higher rates of unemployment and some moderation in the rate of inflation. However, the energy crisis is expected to modify those trends, reduce the American economy to a "no-growth" state and create significantly higher unemployment and inflation.

Dr. Charles Hayward, director of the economic study group, explains that because the country's labor force is growing at a rate of about 1.5 percent per year, the occurrence of a no-growth situation automatically produces 1.5 percent more unemployment.

Unemployment will not be directly affected by the oil shortages but may experience some indirect effects, Hayward says. The report says, "The most reasonable assumption is that there will be a sufficient supply of fuel to allow firms to continue in operation, but at a lower level of output than would be possible in the absence of the oil shortage."

This effect in Kentucky will reduce the wood supply if major industries are hampered, causing shortages of raw materials other than petroleum products and compact disc players.

Kentucky is a growth area and its manufacturing plants are newer and more efficient than the national average for industrial plants. The report predicts, "Kentucky industry should experience a slowdown only after a national slowdown occurs as management will operate the more efficient plants when overall production is cut back."

Further slowdowns in Kentucky and the nation could be felt as a result of "consumer pessimism," lack of faith in the economy serious enough to reduce overall consumer spending and, therefore, production.

The study points out, however, that Kentucky has an advantage over many states because of the increased demand for the state's vast coal reserves which should counteract to some extent the dampening effect of the energy crisis on the state's economy.

The Kentucky Council of Economic Advisors was created (Cont. to 9)

Punishment was fixed at five years in the State Penitentiary.

KEEP DOGS UP!

County Dog Warden Billy Kirby reminds dog owners in Rockcastle County that even licensed dogs are, under the law, required to be confined to the property of their owner.

Mr. Kirby said that he had received numerous complaints throughout the county of dogs (both licensed and unlicensed) running loose, especially in the towns.

Mr. Kirby said that any dog caught running loose would be picked up.

MEMBERS OF THE TRI-CITY RESCUE SQUAD are shown returning a patient to the Rockcastle County Hospital from Sowder Nursing Home in Brodhead Wednesday after a prank call Tuesday night, saying there was a bomb planted on the premises, forcing the evacuation of twenty-one patients from the building. ## Longer Life Span In Rockcastle County

Life expectancy, for the average resident of Rockcastle County, has reached an all-time high.

A child born today to local parents has excellent prospects of living to the middle of the 21st century, even if there is no further improvement in the span of life.

Its expectancy at birth is now 71.1 years, according to the Institute of Health Insurance. This compares with 59.7 years in 1930 and 68.2 in 1950.

At the turn of the century, it states, longevity has increased more than 24 years for the average person. Most of the gain was realized in the period between 1900 and 1950, when infant mortality was sharply reduced and when antibiotics and other drugs conquered many of the infectious diseases.

The added life span is reflected in the rising proportion of people reaching the retirement age of 65 and beyond.

In Rockcastle County, some 680 men and 700 women, equivalent to 11.2 percent of the total population, are now in the 65 and over bracket, the latest Census Bureau figures show.

Many of them are continuing to lead an active life rather than retire.

Parsons Appointed To Serve On Committee

School Superintendent Charles B. Parsons has been appointed to serve on the Executive Committee of the Regional Organization for Providing Educational Services (ROPES).

ROPES Region Thirteen consists of an eight-county area including Jackson, LaRue, Clay, Knox, Whitley, Bell, Harlan and Rockcastle Counties with Mr. Barry Thacker, Pineville, as Director and Mr. Ray Roundtree of London as Assistant Director.

The ROPES Headquarters are located at Union College in Barbourville. The idea behind ROPES is to increase cooperative relationships between local education agencies to (1) improve the delivery of services provided by the Department of Education; and (2) provide a framework which allows local education agencies to voluntarily cooperate in joint ventures.

Other superintendents serving with Mr. Parsons on the Executive Committee are: Denver Patton, Whitley County; James Harvey Hampton, Knox County; Mrs. Mildred Roland, Harlan County; and Hayward Gilliam, Laurel County.

Among other things the Executive Committee plans to recommend to the Board of Directors is the idea of Cooperative Purchasing, Drug Education Policies, and In-Service Training for Teachers on a Regional Basis.

Other persons for Rockcastle County serving ROPES include Dr. Rudolph Burdette and Bige Towery, members of the Advisory Council; Gatiff Craig and Wayne Stewart as members of the Board of Directors.

than retire. Approximately 13.2 percent of the men in that age category are still in the labor force.

By the same token, life expectancy beyond age 65 is greater than ever. For men it is over 13 years and, for women, nearly 17.

With the longer life span, the likelihood is better than ever that a Rockcastle County couple, recently married, will be alive and able to celebrate their silver anniversary together. If they are in their early 20's the odds are eight to ten in their favor.

Scientists at Stanford University and elsewhere envision a major increase in life expectancy in the near future due to revolutionary advances in biology.

They predict that "the availability of artificial organs will lead to production lines, both for the devices themselves and for their installation in human beings."

"Millions of them will be implanted before the end of the century, carrying man toward a 100-year life expectancy."

Hospital Evacuated After Bomb Threat

A prank caller at the Rockcastle County Hospital Tuesday night resulted in the evacuation of twenty-one patients to the Berea Hospital, Sowder Nursing Home in Brodhead and to the patients' private homes.

According to M. H. Hoskins, Administrator, Rhonda Owens, a nurse, took a call at 9:20 from a male caller, who did not identify himself, who stated that there would be an emergency at the hospital about midnight and hung up. Ten minutes later, at 9:30 p.m., another call came, from apparently the same source, which repeated the original message and also said that someone would be killed because a bomb had been planted behind the hospital.

Ms. Owens immediately notified Dr. Orson Arvin, who was on duty at the premises, who in turn called Mr. Hoskins. They then notified Bill Bailey, chairman of the hospital board, and the hospital was evacuated within forty-five minutes from the second call.

Five of the more seriously ill patients were transported to Berea Hospital, six were taken to Sowder Nursing Home in Brodhead, and ten were released to their families.

A complete and thorough search of the hospital building and grounds was conducted by State Police and local law enforcement officials but a bomb was not found.

Patients were returned to the hospital Wednesday morning.

The hospital has asked that a public nod of thanks is due Berea Hospital, Sowder Nursing Home, Cox Funeral Home, Dowell and Martin Funeral Home and the Tri-City Rescue Squad for their immeasurable aid in this emergency.

WHAT PRICE A JOKE?

The "Prank" Tuesday night which caused the evacuation of twenty-one patients from the Rockcastle County Hospital has to rank high on the list of outrageous crimes that can be perpetrated.

To viciously add to the woes of the sick, old and young, takes a mind far lower than we care to contemplate. Common sense should dictate that the disruption in schedules of the very ill could result in serious consequences even death and the penalty for such an outrage should be serious enough to the offender that, if caught, it would make him and others think twice before trying it again.

More and more, every day, we see those who think nothing of trying to disrupt the orderly process of those who are trying to do their share toward making our world a better one. It is a sad comment on our society and a little frightening that we are walking among us such a person.

We trust that no one will be left uncertain in the apprehension of the perpetrator of this crime. pa.

A NEW BUILDING IN MT. VERNON - Sam Ford of Mt. Vernon is the owner of the building presently under construction on East Main Street in Mt. Vernon, which is being built by Better Buildings, Inc. of Berea. According to Mr. Ford, the building will be leased as office space or to a business. ## Frankfort Watchline

What can one say now that something like the 1974 session of the Kentucky General Assembly is finally over? He can certainly comment that it was not one of the Commonwealth's proudest moments.

But, we know it's easy to reflect on a session with this and miss criticism. At this point there's really no other way. Hell, be months before the real impact of the session is known, really, with court tests and unforeseen problems cropping up.

We must note, though, that it appears a good deal of questionable legislation came out... along with the good. And we think it was generally a poor session.

There's a fellow in the governor's office who agrees with us. But we were surprised when he told us that "it shows what can happen if you let 'em have too much legislative independence."

He went on to allow as how Gov. Ford took a totally hands-off attitude toward the Legislature - did not twist arms. But he backs up when reminded of the brief arm-twisting recess in the House several weeks ago when the budget threatened to come apart at the seams because of poor House leadership diplomacy on the coal tax sharing issue.

And there was that eleventh-hour House Democratic caucus called to bind members to the previous question so that, for some mysterious reason, a couple of suspect overweight truck bills could slide through unamended.

"Too much legislative independence?" howls one House Democrat, a maverick but highly respected. "Hogwash. Why, they (the administration) tried to screw us down so tight that when we did finally break loose, the whole administration program almost broke apart, too."

But, you ask, what does this have to do with the quality of the legislation passed by the 1974 session? Plenty. When the lawmakers begin to worry about the kind of leadership they are getting, and whether or not it will affect their bills, they tend to forget other vital statewide bills until it's too late.

Want some examples? Look over the no-fault insurance, over the broadform deed bill, over workmans compensation changes, over the vital Louisville school legislation... all these final week problems should have enjoyed the early attention and quick passage that the governor's budget, reorganization and coal research bills got.

We can but look to the future in our despair, though. We know two sure things about the next legislature... there will be a new governor and there will be new leadership. Things have to get better.

Let's check out some prime examples of what we believe was poor lawmaking this time.

Quickly and efficiently improved was a measure to gut Kentucky's image as a stolen car dumpyard with a good automobile title law. "It would have too much" was the opponents' lament, but they'd ignore that stolen cars cost Kentuckians dozens of millions of dollars a year. Then the lawmakers turn around and support what critics call the biggest "turkey" bill of them all, a bill that forces on Kentuckians reflectorized license plates.

Why? We're not real clever. We know that there are few firms in a position to supply these reflectors and we'd like to know - excuse this - how they made the lawmakers see the light.

Well, it'll cost Kentucky a half-million dollars... for plates that shine at night.

Then there's no-fault insurance which, after three years of public study and debate, was relegated to a closed-door conference committee - reporters thrown out - and somehow the matter's suddenly solved in a thirty-minute whisper session. Looks like an insurance man's dream to us, with its one redeeming feature, mandatory liability insurance, called out.

How about overweight trucks? Well, we're still gonna have 'em, since wiser heads on capital hill have prevailed.

Oh, yes, we've got a bill. We've got a bill without teeth. It's without the circuit court concurrent venue in Franklin County... it's without stiff bonds to require compliance and to insure road repairs. Nope, none of that.

Looks like to us that since the Court of Appeals said you can't use special permits to tear up the roads, someone decided they'd make it legal.

And we'll close by asking about a little-noticed move in the Senate Rules Committee to refuse to let out a bill that would have put a stop to allocations and setting of prices at tobacco auctions. The measure sailed through the House, then someone noticed its fiscal implications to leaf dealers would have been severe, very severe.

So, regardless of the fiscal implications to the farmers in the state, the powers that be scuttled the worthwhile measure.

Well, it's over, we hope, for another two years.

What appears to be happening to the taxpayer after such sessions reminds us of a couple of romantically-inclined porcupines, one of whom looked up from what he was doing and said, "I'm enjoying about all of this I can stand!"

ADD VARIETY TO YOUR GARDEN —

It has often been said, "variety is the spice of life." A home garden also needs variety. Most gardeners stick to the more common vegetables such as corn, beans, lettuce, onions, peas, tomatoes, and potatoes. These vegetables are important in the garden, but why not try a new vegetable or two this year. It may prove interesting and put some variety in your gardening routine. It will be a new experience for you to grow it and add a new taste to your meals.

If you have never grown any of these vegetables before — let me challenge you to try one or two of them. Vegetables to try this year may include one or more of the following: asparagus, lima beans, cauliflower, bibb lettuce, okra, squash, kale, eggplant, head lettuce or others. Most of these vegetables grow well under our conditions.

Crop:	Planting Date:	Harvest Date:	Feet of Row:
Bush Beans	April 15	June 20	220
Lima Beans	May 15	August 1	100
Pole Beans	May 10	July 15	100
Beets	April 15	May 25	50

Squash	May 10	July 15	50
Tomato	May 1-10	July 5	125
Watermelon	May 10	August 15	75

Many of the warm season vegetables should be divided into several plantings — spaced about every two weeks. For

When you are experimenting with new vegetables, be certain not to over-plant them. Set only a few plants the first year and give them good care. Generally speaking, you and your family will have to develop a taste for new vegetables.

Visit your County Extension Service office for information on planting, cultural practices, and harvesting the new vegetables you have chosen to grow this year. HAPPY GARDENING!!

When the danger of frost has passed and the birds are singing their melodies, it is time to consider planting the vegetables considered warm season crops in your garden. Remember, these crops are easily damaged by frost and must not be seeded or planted if the seeds come up before the frost date has passed.

The following table lists warm season vegetables, planting date, harvest date, and feet of row needed for a family of five:

Crop:	Planting Date:	Harvest Date:	Feet of Row:
Bush Beans	April 15	June 20	220
Lima Beans	May 15	August 1	100
Pole Beans	May 10	July 15	100

WILD GREENS TIME

Nothing, according to old-time country women, perks up a "dauncy" appetite like a mess of wild greens. Pending the harvest of the first vegetables from early-planted gardens, country people once scoured spring pasturefields, river bottoms, and sunny fence rows for messes of what was then called "wild salad."

Of all the early spring greens, pokeweed was at the top of the list. Tasting somewhat like spinach, it was gathered soon after emerging from the ground. Upland cress, or "cresies," ran pike a close second in popularity. Then came dandelion, lamb's quarter, sour dock, evening primrose ("Speckled Dick"), broad-leaved plantain, pepperglass, shepherd's purse, wild mustard, wild lettuce, white top (fuzzy bristles) and toothwort - which was also known as "crow's foot."

These edible wild plants can still be gathered and put into the pot. They grow here, there, and everywhere, and are mostly free for the picking. Their food value and high vitamin A and C content are admitted by dietitians, and their unique flavor adds zest and interest to meals.

But it must be remembered that wild greens are tasty only when they are very young. Otherwise, they may be too bitter or too stringy to be palatable.

Dandelions, cress, and evening primrose should be gathered in the rosette stage, before they start stemming up to bloom. Evening primrose rosettes can be most easily identified by tiny red dots on the leaves.

Dandelion greens, properly prepared and served with dressing, make a tasty salad. Blossoms, gathered and fried, taste like sauteed mushrooms. Wine made from the flowers is a delightful brew - "summer caught and stoppered in a bottle" is how Ray Bradbury described it in his nostalgic novel, Dandelion Wine.

Poke is best when it is from 6 inches to 1 foot in height. At six inches from the ground it can be cooked like asparagus tips. After the leaves have unfolded, they can be removed and prepared like spinach. Leaves can be picked almost any time in early spring from the stems of lamb's quarter, wild lettuce, white top, pepperglass, shepherd's purse and toothwort.

Poke and cress make appetizing fare when cooked by themselves, but the other greens are best when blended. In this blending of greens the bitterness of one is offset by the blandness or tartness of the others.

The best practice is to wash the fresh-culled greens thoroughly, and examine each leaf carefully for slugs and other insects. The greens can then be put in a covered skillet or saucapan with a little water added, and perhaps a small amount of bacon grease for seasoning. Cook only until tender when picked with a fork; then remove and salt to taste. A dash of vinegar always adds to the taste of wild greens.

Unlike many other pioneer foods, "wild salad" is not a gift from the Indians. According to some food historians, early American Indians held the same kind of aversion for wild greens that sometimes is shown by modern youngsters when confronted by a plate of spinach, and they wouldn't have eaten them on a bet.

There are a number of books now available on gathering and cooking wild greens. And almost any wildflower field guide from your local library or bookstore will contain photos, sketches, and descriptive information that will assure positive identification.

**Editors Note: If you want to delve further into wild greens, you might look up some of the following books at your local library or book store.

Other books: Audrey Wynne Hatfield, How To Enjoy Your Weeds; Bradford Angier, Feasting Free on Wild Edibles. (This article was sent to us by Nevel Shackelford of the University of Kentucky.)

Retirement Credit For Military Service Allowed

House Bill 216, a bill allowing credit for military service in Kentucky retirement systems, has been signed into law by Gov. Wendell H. Ford.

The bill permits state employees, National Guard technicians and state police, after first participating in a Kentucky retirement system but then leaving state employ to enter the armed forces, to have credited as current service that period of military service not exceeding six years.

This is permitted only if the person received an honorable discharge and was re-employed within two years after discharge.

House Bill 216 also provides for retirement compensation for military service, credited as current, based on a payment formula adopted by the retirement board.

This formula provides that the employee pay 35 percent of the retirement compensation and the state pay the other 65 percent, from funds appropriated specifically for funding of this retirement system program.

If 3 or 4 years in the service is more than you can afford to give right now, consider the Army's new 2-year enlistment idea.

Or you can choose to serve with us in Europe. Either way, you get the same total benefits package as with a longer enlistment.

Including a new starting salary of $326.10 a month, with a raise to $363.30 in just four months.

(If you sign for computer training and the Delayed Entry Option, it will all be spelled out in language you can understand.)

We'll also give you a card. On the front is what you signed for. On the back is an address to write to in the Pentagon. Just in case you didn't get what's on the front.

Last week I had the privilege and honor of being one of the judges at the Rockcastle County High School The Future Farmers of America were having their Speech Contest on various interesting subjects.

This was a real honor to me to visit with such a fine group of young boys from "out on the farm." They all did a wonderful job on the subjects they had selected.

It gives you confidence in the youth of our land when you can hear and talk with such good boys like this.

We usually hear and see of the very few that bring disgrace and shame because that is what the news media use for excitement. The good things being done are very seldom made known to the public.

Placing first and second in Junior Speaking were Mark Jasper and William E. Bollen, Jr., respectively. Horticulture, Walter Trebalo and Gary Kidwell; Beef, Jeff Saylor and Carl Sowder; Dairy, James Parsons and Dwayne Adams; Swine, Eddie Hammond and Gary Kidwell.

Congratulations to a fine group of boys doing a fine job in agriculture from "Down on the Farm."

REFOUND AT THE STATE LIBRARY AND ARCHIVES

Jeffrey Duff, an archivist in the Kentucky Department of Library and Archives, recently rediscovered in the course of his work a court document involving Abraham Lincoln's father. It had been misfiled in Hardin County records for several years. The 14-page suit was filed by plaintiff Thomas Lincoln against defendant Denton Geoghegan, a wealthy landowner, for the forced payment of four pounds, nine shillings, no pence and 75 cents in American money.

Thomas Lincoln alleged that Geoghegan owed him for his labor in hewing timbers to be used in the construction of a sawmill. The defendant refused to pay Lincoln on the grounds that the work was not satisfactory, as the timbers prepared were neither square nor the required length.

Lincoln won the litigation in the county court, but it was later settled in a Circuit Court return complaint by Geoghegan. Lincoln failed to receive the full amount for his work on the sawmill and was further required to pay court costs.

The original county court suit is of interest for several reasons. First, it shows Lincoln was willing to stand up and fight for his rights - a far cry from the shiftless or lazy representation of him by some historians.

Secondly, the case illustrates the scarcity of coinage on the frontier. The bill and court cost assessments were ordered to be paid in both English and American currency.

Thirdly, this case, plus hundreds of others, helped to support twenty-two lawyers in a county still thinly settled and primitive in development.
