

Kentuckians Run For Office....

Kentuckians love to run for any public office. But, most of all, they like to run for county sheriff.

According to the annual report of the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance, about 1,100 officers were up for grabs last year and 3,229 Kentuckians grabbed them there. There were 50 candidates for state Senate, 286 tried for state House of Representatives, eleven tossed in the hat for special elections and 280 bid for city offices. But the biggest scramble was for county offices, with 2,602 candidates.

If divided equally, there were three candidates for every office. But, some offices are more popular than others.

Kentuckians' passion for running for sheriff was exemplified in Jefferson County, where 18 persons vied for county sheriff, that's the 1973 record. Harlan County had 15 contenders for sheriff.

On the other hand, few persons run for property valuation administrator. However, Dr. K. P. Vinsel, executive director of the registry, said that doesn't necessarily mean fewer persons would like to run for that office.

"The only candidate for public office in Kentucky who must pass a test first is the one for property valuation administrator," Vinsel said. "Sometimes, only one or two persons in a county pass the test. So, that's all that run."

Of all the offices up for grabs, the job of coroner is one of the least sought - usually only one or two candidates in each county.

Roy Stokes, far right, formerly of Mt. Vernon, is shown participating in a ground-breaking ceremony in Warren, Michigan prior to construction of Mr. Stokes' company's new Technical Training Center in that city. Mr. Stokes, technical training director for Tuff-Kote Dinol, is the son of Mrs. Lella Stokes of Mt. Vernon and the late Theodore Stokes. Mr. Stokes completed twenty years with the U.S.A.F. in 1968, and for two years after that was an Automotive Engineering Technical for a large auto manufacturer and prior to assuming his duties with Tuff-Kote, served as an assistant to the Technical Director of a large Roustrooping Firm. He recently completed a trip to Japan, Guam, Okinawa and Hawaii in connection with his duties at Tuff-Kote.

Of course, the number of candidates dwindles after the primary - and, in some counties the amount of money spent on the election drops to almost nothing after the primary. Vinsel explains that some counties are basically one-party counties, so the primary is the decisive election. "In counties where almost everyone is, say a Democrat, the winner of the Democratic primary is a sure winner. So, hardly any additional money is spent on the campaign after the primary."

Besides listing the candidates for office, the registry's annual report lists campaign committees plus expenditures and campaign contributions. Lumping the Kentucky candidates together by party, Democrats spent about $145 million on campaigns last year; Republicans spent $500,000 and other candidates spent about $150,000.

The Democrats received about $764,000 in contributions in excess of $500, or about half of their campaign expenses. The report shows, The Republicans got about $186,000 in contributions in excess of $500, nearly one-third of their expenses. On the other hand, other candidates received more in $500-plus contributions than they spent. They reported $207,840 in contributions. That's about $60,000 more than their reported expenses.

But, the annual report shows that some candidates didn't bother to report on all their contributions and expenses although none of these "No Reports" won an election. And, according to Vinsel, most of them were for minor county offices.

A limited number of copies of the reports is available from the Kentucky Department of Public Information, Public Information and Regulation Cabinet, Capitol Annex, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. James Ray Fordyce of Louisville wish to announce the arrival of a daughter born May 2, 1974. She weighed six pounds. She has been named Sandra Layne and is welcomed home by a sister, Halia. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Sam Davidson of Orlando and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Fordyce of Livingston.

Ninety-seven persons attended Sunday School at the Fairview Baptist Church May 12th. Our hearts were blessed with the spiritual, old fashioned wonderful sermon brought by our pastor, Rev. Ray Dean. Many tears were shed by the mothers and others at this Mother's Day service. I hope all of you who read this paper had a chance to see your mother on "her" day, or got in touch with her by phone. You know we just have one "Mother" and we need to love and cherish her while she is here - when she's gone, there won't be any more. But I'm sure many of our elderly mothers spent a very lonely day with no one to care or talk to. It's so sad to see a precious mother, or father, pushed aside to live their days out in loneliness as we see so many doing today. But remember this, the way we treat our parents "good or bad" is very likely to be the way our children will treat us when we get old and can't help ourselves. God has a way of making us pay for our wrong doing and a blessing for us when we do right. We need to love and honor our parents. They have done so much for us.

Susan Wren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Wren, spent a few days in the Bera Hospital last week. We thank the Lord that her condition has improved. Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Wren Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hundley, Mr. and Mrs. William Powell and family, Arnold Hundley and Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Baird and daughter all of Berea. They all attended church services at Fairview Sunday. Mrs. Reppert remained at the Chasteen home until Tuesday morning.

THE THIRD PLACE TEAM in the Rockcastle Mixed League were the JETS shown in the above photo. They are, from left: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Winstead and Mr. and Mrs. Jess Cummins.

This was first published in England in 1488. It is entitled "Mother Shipman's Prophecies". We don't necessarily agree with all of it, but it is interesting, and 1488 is a long time ago.

This was first published in England in 1488. It is entitled "Mother Shipman's Prophecies". We don't necessarily agree with all of it, but it is interesting, and 1488 is a long time ago.

MOTHER SHIPMAN'S PROPHECIES

A carriage without a horse shall go.
Disaster fill the world with woe;
Around the world thought will fly.
Quick as twinkling of an eye...
And waters shall great wonders do
How strange and yet it will come true...
The world quite upside down shall be...
And gold be found at the root of a tree...
Through lowering hill proud man shall ride...
No horse or ass move by his side.
Beneath the waters men shall walk...
Shall ride, shall sleep, shall even talk.
And in the air, men shall be seen
In white and black as well as green.
In waters deep there shall float...
Iron as easy as a wooden boat.
Gold shall be found amidst the stones...

In a land that is not even known.
Fire and water shall wonders do
And England shall admit a Jew.
A house of glass shall come to pass...
IN England, but then alas...
War will follow with the war...
In land of pagan and the Turk.
And state and state in fiercest strife will seek to take each other's life.
But where the north shall divide the south...
An eagle shall build in a lion's mouth...
All England's son worse fight be done...
England and France shall be as one
The British olive next shall twine...
In marriage with a German vine
All England's sons that plough the land...
Shall be seen a book in hand.
Leaving shall sbb and flow...
The humble shall most wisdom know.
And in these murderous far-off days...
The women shall adopt a craze...
To dress like men and trousers wear...
And cut off all their locks of hair.
True love shall die and marriage cease...
And nations wane as babies decrease...
And wives shall fondle cats and dogs...
And men live much the same as hogs.
Water shall flow where corn doth grow...
The corn shall grow where water flows.

Then world then to an end shall come
In nineteen hundred and ninety one.

RE-DISCOVER KENTUCKY
Many friendships were renewed over bubbling pots of bugoo at the recent Kentucky Colonels' annual barbecue in Louisville. Old acquaintances swapped jokes, recalled former picnics and stirred up memories of younger years.
Herbert K Lykins, 72, Elberton, Ga., was most vividly reminded of his youth in Frankfort as a legislative page.
Born in the Caney-Cannel City section of Rowan County, where his mother taught school and his father ran a lively stable. Lykins has traveled extensively since those days, including a stint in Hollywood as an "extra". Yet one of his favorite subjects in his firsthand account of the state's General Assembly An. Unc. Sen Jim Dan Whiteaker first introduced him to the lawmakers.

"Gov. A O Stanley liked me and when he assigned to go to Washington he asked that I go along as a page, but I didn't get to," Lykins noted.

When Edwin P. Morrow was elected Governor in 1919, Lykins said he returned to Frankfort as a page for an extra session of the Legislature.
He recalled carrying messages for several dignitaries and especially remembered dancing with the Governor's daughter, Edwina.
"Edwina and I both loved to dance when they entertained at the mansion and Capitol. One time, Governor Morrow toned down the band for a special announcement, but we so wrapped up in the dance we danced right on later we were so embarrassed we ran from the floor," he related.
Of all the people the youth met as a page, he said his most memorable was "The Veep," then Sen Alben Barkley.

"He addressed me as 'Lykins, boy' when he requested a favor," the former page noted, adding that they often chatted between messages.
Lykins migrated to Hollywood during the depression when jobs were scarce. He later worked with Mickey Rooney, Hedda Hopper and Robert Young's brother, Joe.

Although Lykins never became a star, he managed through the lean years as an extra and bit player, and once "squired" Hedda Hopper to a premiere of her movie.

While Lykins was on the West Coast, before becoming a Georgia businessman, Vice President Alben Barkley visited California. Lykins decided to see him in his hotel, but was told no visitors were being allowed.
"I told the clerk to send my name up and I'd show him," he explained.

When Barkley read the name, he called down, "Why, Lykins boy, you come on up these stairs. You gonna come right on in, boy."
Such recollections were in abundance at the Colonels' picnic.
"There are a lot of us Kentucky Colonels," Lykins stated, adding that "this year was the best reunion of all."

How To Hang On To A Good Husband

While almost every wife wants to keep her husband, not all know how — or how to keep him happy. Here are some hints that may help!

1. Avoid too much togetherness. Respite don't explore the different interests which give each of you individuality and lend spice to a marriage. If necessary, go your separate ways on an evening. Does he read the paper at breakfast? Let him; a few "conversation breakfasts" may convince you that you were both better off staring at the headlines.

2. Be a homemaker — not a housewife. Both you and your home will be more gracious if you learn the fine arts of running it — flower arranging, gourmet cooking, Streamline your housekeeping to make time for these finer things.

3. Return to romance. Remember your courtship days... the way you hung on his every word... dressed up just for him... it worked then, it may again. Get away from the housework and the children for a weekend of just the two of you. At a Holiday Inn you can relax, enjoy the pool, the many restaurants, your comfortable room and each other — remind him you're really a woman as well as a wife!

4. Be prepared for emergencies. Extra cans of stew on the shelf and a cake in the freezer can serve to save you when supper burns or unexpected dinner guests arrive. Learn how to do simple home repairs and first aid yourself.

While this won't guarantee a return of your honeymoon, it may help insure that you'll have a man around the house!

THREE CALAMITY DAYS

The State Board of Education has allowed calamity days for those school districts that lost days due to the tornado and to floods. Under this ruling, Rockcastle County will get three days, one for the lost day due to the aftermath of the tornado and two due to the flood conditions in January.

The local school board voted at its last meeting to reduce the school term by the number of calamity days allowed. Therefore, school will be in session 172 days instead of the usual 175 days and will be out on Tuesday, May 28th.

Friday, May 24th, is set up as a professional day for teachers to work on grades and records. Teachers will be required to work on this date but students will not attend. Monday, May 27th, Memorial Day will be observed as a holiday.

THE CUMBERLAND COLLEGE CHAMBER CHOIR, under the direction of Dr. Harold R. Wrenn, will be singing at the First Baptist Church of Mt. Vernon, on Sunday evening, May 19, 1974 at 7 p.m. The group, consisting of twelve singers and instrumentalists, will perform a varied concert including various types of sacred and contemporary music including selections from "Godspell." The Chamber Choir is well-known in Kentucky and other southeastern states through their church, high school, and campus appearances, as well as their annual Christmas television special. The group has been invited to sing at Expo '74 an internationally recognized world exposition, in Spokane, Washington, on June 5th, and are currently preparing for the trip. The public is cordially invited to attend this concert.

1974 Tax Assessment Tops 50 Million Mark

According to the first recapitulation by Rockcastle County Property Valuation Administrator Robert Croner, total taxable property assessment for Rockcastle County for 1974 is $52,894,060 as compared with 1973's assessment of $43,795,295.

A breakdown of taxable categories is as follows, with 1973 figures in parentheses:

- Residential property, $14,734,525 ($10,398,185); Farm acreage, $19,324,035 ($16,335,945); Commercial property, $4,600,675 ($4,309,820); Oil rights, $5,000 (same); Minerals, $56,300 ($39,300); Aircraft, $22,000 (same); Watercraft, $32,730 ($60,000); Merchants Inventory, $1,486,555 ($1,441,250); Professional fixtures and tools $358,090 ($336,340); Drilling, mining and construction tools, $57,600 ($38,520); Mobile Homes, $1,223,700 ($1,111,700); and Other tangible personal property, $1,500 ($19,700).

Intangibles (Stocks, Bonds, Notes and Mortgages), $3,102,895 ($2,681,735) - Income derived from these all goes to the state at the rate of $2.50 per thousand; Manufacturing machinery held for use, $380,905 ($289,815); and Bank Shares, $1,196,140 ($931,700).

In addition to income derived from all categories above except intangibles, the county will also receive revenue from public service franchises in the county. Franchises are assessed by the state rather than through the local tax office. Mr. Croner said there were also 8,611 motor vehicles licensed in the county in 1974 at an assessed value of $6,331,510, as compared to 4,861 vehicles in 1973 at an assessed value of $5,222,185.

Total taxpayers in the county in 1974 is 5,898.

The tax rate for 1974 will be set by the Fiscal Court in June.

Out-Of-Pocket Medical Costs Locally

Compared with people in other areas of the country, how much are Rockcastle County residents paying per year for health care?

How large are their personal out-of-pocket expenditures for medical, dental, hospital and other health services, over and above the portion of their bills covered by insurance?

Because the cost of medical care is a matter of major concern, a special study was conducted by the National Center for Health Statistics to determine how big a burden it represents for families in various sections of the nation.

The only other full scale study of this kind that it has made was in 1962. Since that time, it finds, an increasing proportion of these expenses are being paid through insurance benefits, through medicare and through other government programs.

Despite this, however, because medical costs have zoomed in recent years, the consumer is left with bigger bills to pay than ever before.

In Rockcastle County's regional area, the figures show, some 13.4 percent of the population incurred no medical expenses at all in the year. Of the others, 38.0 percent had no more than $100 to pay.

The out-of-pocket costs for the area as a whole came to $182 per capita. Included in this amount were insurance premiums paid.

Elsewhere in the United States, the expenditures were a little higher, $183 per capita.

It broke down to $47 for doctors, $29 for dentists, $27 for prescription medicines, $21 for hospital care, $10 for optical expenses and the rest for miscellaneous health services, equipment and premiums.

The cost per individual ranged from considerably less than the average to considerably more. It varied from area to area and from family to family.

Age was an important factor. In the local area, for example the cost was only $113 for those under 17 but rose to $300 for people over 65.

The total out-of-pocket outlay, for every man, woman and child in Rockcastle County, came to approximately $2,275,000 in the year, it is estimated.

MRS. SALLIE E. DENNEY

Mrs. Sallie Elizabeth Denney, 78, of Route 1, Brodhead passed away Wednesday, May 8th, at her home. She was born in Rockcastle County March 29, 1896, the daughter of the late David and Ida Bell Owens. She was a member of the Poplar Grove Baptist Church.

Survivors are: her husband, Irvin Denney of Route 1, Brodhead; two daughters, Mrs. Martha Hasty of Louisville and Mrs. Beulah McLaure of Jacksonville, Florida; three sons, Craig of Brodhead, Irvin, Jr. of Route 1, Mt. Vernon, and Wayne of Route 1, Brodhead; four sisters, Mrs. Myrtle Box of Louisville, Mrs. Ollie Bradley, Mrs. Mary Ellen Noe and Mrs. Dollie Payne, all of Route 1, Mt. Vernon; eight grandchildren and five great grandchildren also survive. One infant daughter preceded her in death.

Services were held Friday, May 10, 1974 at 2 p.m. at the Cox Funeral Home Chapel with Bro. Don Cummins and Bro. Linville Coldiron officiating. Burial was in the Poplar Grove Cemetery.

DOG WARDEN SALARY EXPLAINED

Curt Roberts of Mt. Vernon, who was recently named Dog Warden by the Rockcastle County Fiscal Court effective June 1, has asked us to explain his reason for taking the position for $1.00 per year, rather than the regular salary which the county had been paying for this service.

Mr. Roberts said it was his feeling that the money saved by the county on this office, which amounted to several thousand dollars, could be used by them to help pay for an ambulance service.

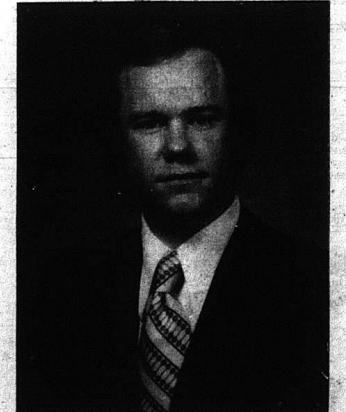

THE WILDCATS took first place in the Rockcastle Winter Mixed League. Awards to the top bowlers were presented last Saturday night at the League's banquet at Cedar Rapids Recreation Center. JOHN NICHOLS'

Frankfort Watchline

We know it's going to be a hum-drum Senate primary election this month. In fact, it's worse than that. It's almost a waste of money.

Yes, we realize that there's a democratic (note the small "d") process that must be protected, but it seems ridiculous to finance a full election in both parties rather than simply nominate Republican Marlow Cook and Democrat Wendell Ford in an informal convention.

Or maybe there's someone out there who doesn't seriously believe that Cook and Ford will win their party elections.

Yes, the news media would have little to write about were it not for Cook's technical difficulties in getting on the ballot.

At this writing, the Court of Appeals has still not decided the appeal of Cook's lower-court sanction by Secretary of State Thelma Stovall, but we think the senator will survive that, too.

Reporters must dutifully relate, without sarcasm or comment, that a Covington woman calling herself "P. Pres. R. Sisi. N.T. Clay" is a bona fide Democratic congressional candidate in the fourth District.

And then there are the stories of the attempts by Lyle Willis of Covington to get on the Democratic May ballot despite Cook-type troubles that he encountered.

In Willis, if he defeats two other obscure Democrats in a Republican Gibraltar, going to knock off Republican incumbent Thelma Carter in November?

It's obvious that he is not and what we're pointing to is the vexing problem of being fair to all candidates - to an almost illogical degree.

The bigger news outlets are always concerned about accusations of bias, and you'd be surprised how a faint squeal from some perennial political loser flusters them into strenuous backward-bending in the cause of fairness.

On the other hand, some years ago in Georgia, a restaurant owner was running for governor on a segregation plank. He didn't have a chance, of course. We all know that and we grinned when his name and his ax-hill tactics were mentioned.

In fact, unaccompanied by any newsmen or aides, this candidate would stop at a pay phone at the end of a campaign day and call the news media, collect, with a report of his activities. Sometimes, depending on who answered, those calls weren't accepted.

Well, to everyone's surprise, Lester Maddox was elected governor of Georgia. But that doesn't disprove our theme, since Maddox was running the kind of campaign aimed at the emotions of many Georgians.

No such obscure candidate for the Senate or for Congress in Kentucky is riding any popular issue that could lead to a starry upset.

There Are Two Races, However - Every Kentucky congressional incumbent is safe this year except maybe Democrat Frank Stubblefield in the 1st and Republican Gene Snyder in the 4th.

State Sen. Carroll Hubbard is trying hard to oust Stubblefield, who's been in for fifteen years. And Sen. Hubbard's brother, Kyle, is trying to win the Democratic primary in the 4th to get a chance to unseat Snyder who's becoming a fixture in his district.

These races are worth watching. The others? Forget it.

What's Next? - Developments over Watergate in recent days and weeks have us wondering, in fact, just how much of a Senate general election campaign we're going to have.

Marlow Cook tells the press that he thinks the president has so damaged the image of his office and confidence in government that he should consider resigning.

That should be looked upon as the final split between Cook and the White House. Cook says he wasn't representing the White House anyway. He's representing Kentucky.

Well, Gov. Ford indicated that a good deal of his campaigning against Cook this summer and fall was to be based on the Nixon administration's record. What does the Cook-Nixon divorce do to Ford's battle plan?

The governor tells us there's no problem. He says he can easily campaign against Cook's record. And he throws in the charge that Cook's timing is bad - that he's "me-tooing" other prominent Republicans. Ford says he was calling on Nixon to call it quits a long time ago.

Who knows? Maybe by the time you read this, Nixon will have already hung up.

By the way, it occurred to us the other day that the potential for a special session for any of several reasons already exists for the Kentucky Legislature this summer. And if the president is still around, the potential for impeachment goes on in the Congress is very ripe for about that time.

Wouldn't it be something if Ford and Cook were too busy with these troublesome items to do any campaigning toward November? Sure would save a bunch of money, right?

Duster's just one of the eight great reasons why we're No. 1 in compact sales. And a nice easy price is just one of the things Duster has going for it. There's also small-car handling and parking, room for five people inside and plenty of trunk space out back.

And good gas mileage. How good? In recent U.S. Auto Club tests, Duster's Slant 6 got better gas mileage on the open road than the Nova and Maverick 6. And, in city driving, even got slightly better mileage than the 4-cylinder Mustang II. So it's small wonder that America's No. 1 selling compacts come from Plymouth. C'mon in, get a No. 1 deal on the No. 1 compacts.

Carl Miller replied that if a UK Board of Trustees member is found to be in a conflict of interest situation, he is subject to removal for cause but could continue in office until removed by a court judgment. Miller said in conflict of interest cases involving school board members, the attorney general has traditionally authorized citizens to employ counsel for prosecution when sufficient documentary evidence suggests that a violation has occurred.

The story the electric company doesn't tell you.

The electric utilities have talked a lot of people into believing that by switching to electric appliances they'll be ready for the day when we run out of fossil fuels.

What they don't tell you is that more than 80 percent of all the electricity generated in the United States is produced by steam turbines that burn gas, oil, or coal.

Not only does the electric company make electricity with these "fossil fuels," they waste about 70 percent of the fuel energy they use in the process, and spend that wasted heat into the very atmosphere we're trying to clean up. What's their preferred source of energy? Gas — because gas burns clean and is economical.

When the electric company asks you to switch your home heating, air conditioning, water heating, cooking and clothes drying to electricity, they are asking you to use two or three times as much gas, at two or three times the cost, to do a job that gas can do better by coming straight to your home.

So it really doesn't make much sense to ask electricity to do jobs that were meant for gas, does it? Go ahead and use electricity for your light bulbs and mixers and toothbrushes and can openers, but count on gas to cook and heat and dry and cool. All the jobs that gas does best.

To preserve gas... use gas.

A WEEKEND OF MOUNTAIN MUSIC

From folk songs to bluegrass to "ol' time" mountain music they'll all be featured this Memorial Day weekend at the fifth annual Mountain Heritage Folk Festival May 24-26 at Carter Caves State Resort Park near Olive Hill.
The festival, which

More than 70 musicians will perform in a natural outdoor amphitheater in the beautiful Cascade area of Carter Caves, according to Park Superintendent Mason Branham.

The "picking and singing" starts Friday evening at 7:00 to kick off the festival and will last until the early hours on Saturday. Later Saturday morning, a folk workshop follows, featuring a folk medicine display of early mountain remedies, a session of folktales and lessons on mountain folks will exhibit some native arts and crafts at the amphitheater.

Saturday afternoon will be devoted to modern folk and bluegrass music, followed by another night of old mountain tunes.
A Sunday morning hymn session begins the last day of the festival, and a final round of music from 1-6 p.m. wraps up the three-day event.
Admission will be $2.00

VET-TIPS

Dr. Tom Maddox, State Veterinarian, says that the State Equine Infectious Anemia Regulations are still in force.

All equines entering the state or going to Racetracks, Sales, or Shows are required to be tested for Equine Infectious Anemia and must be accompanied by an Official Health Certificate, within six months of the Entry, Sale, or Race Date.

He also states that he does not have enough manpower to police the Fairs and Shows, except that the State Fair will be policed.

Allow two weeks lead time before the date of entry, sale, show or race for the test to be performed. The laboratory may be over-run with requests for the test and may not be able to get your report in the mail.

EIA Statistics: As of October, 1973, Dr. R. C. Knowles, USDA, reported that 124,837 horses have been tested for EIA. Of those tested, 4,130 were positive (3.3%).

Michigan reported 9,180 tests in 1973. 104 were positive (1.13%). Most positive cases were tested twice; the actual number of positive horses were probably one half the positive cases reported.

New York tested 36,107 in 1973 with 592 positive. 479 of the positives were euthanized. The University of Kentucky Department of Veterinary Science tested 1608 horses in 1973 with 15 positive cases.

CONTROLLING BAGWORMS

Bagworms are perhaps the principal pest of evergreen trees in most of Kentucky. If there are enough bagworms, they will strip evergreens shrubs of their foliage and cause them to die. Maple, rose, box elder, willow, and many other flowering shrubs are also attacked by bagworms, though rarely are any of these damaged as badly as evergreens. Orchards are seldom bothered because sprays used to control other pests will also control bagworms.

Bagworms pass the winter in the egg stage inside the bag that contained the female. In late May or early June the eggs hatch and the naked larvae crawl out of the bag in search of food. By using silk and bits of leaves, bark, or twigs, they soon build a small bag around their hindpart. As the larvae grow, they eat onto the bag making it large enough to allow the larvae to withdraw into the bag when disturbed. By early September the bags reach their maximum size of 1 1/2-2 inches. At this time the larvae permanently suspend shank, brisket, and plate) than the hindquarter.

Chuck cuts make up about half of the forequarter's weight. All less tender cuts require moist heat for proper cooking. The average forequarter from a 350 pound side will weigh about 180 pounds and give you from 130 to 145 pounds of beef to take home after much of the fat and bone have been trimmed away.

A hindquarter is the back half of the side. It contains the short loin, sirloin, round and flank sections. A hindquarter has more of the more-tender cuts than the forequarter, and will give you more of the very tender steaks and roasts. But, a hindquarter also has a lower yield of usable lean meat and will usually cost you more per pound than the forequarter.

Much of the hindquarter can be cooked with dry heat, but parts of the round and the entire flank contain less-tender cuts that require moist heat cooking. An average hindquarter from a 350 pound side will weigh nearly 170 pounds and give you from 110 to 125 pounds of usable meat to take home.

So, if you're looking for the most economical purchase that will give you the most usable meat, a forequarter is probably what you're looking for. But, if you're looking for more of the tender and succulent steaks and roasts, a hindquarter would probably be your best bet. Consider the characteristics of each and decide which is best for you.

If you want both, then buy a side. But remember a side, forequarter or hindquarter is not all steak and roast - each will give you a considerable amount of ground beef to take home.

For those who don't have large freezers, or don't want to spend so much at one time, an alternative is to buy at retail only the particular cuts you prefer. By watching for advertised "specials" on these cuts, you can often save money.

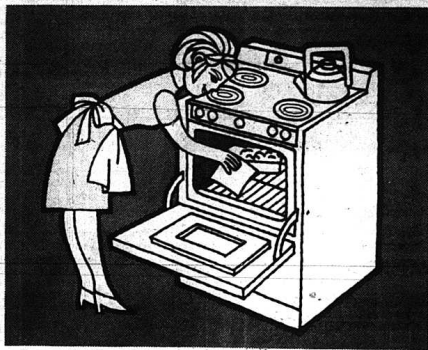

This method enables you to buy a little, or as much, of a particular cut as you desire and to control the amount of money you spend at one time.

purchase you make. USDA grades are important considerations. The quality grade indicates eating quality, and the yield grade the percentage of usable meat that a carcass will Save while you bake and broil!

Cooking is one of the major energy users in most homes so you should know that top-of-the-range cooking costs more than oven cooking in the long run.

Surface units are on the whole time they're in use. But an electric oven is on for only part of the time it's used. It uses less energy because it cuts off when the right temperature is reached, and its insulation holds heat in.

You also can warm foods and plates in an already heated oven without using more energy.

Electricity is too good to waste!

Tips on Buying Abundant Beef For Freezers.....

It took him 42 days, but he did it. He ate the whole thing - a whole roast ox! According to the Guinness Book of World's Records, in 1890 Johann Ketzler of Munich, Germany, set the world's meat-eating record by eating one whole roasted ox in a 42-day span.

Now Mr. Ketzler probably did not have a modern freezer for safe long storage of his meat; but if you do, and if you like to eat a lot of beef, maybe a bulk beef purchase is the thing to do.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Marketing Service (AMS) says now is the time for consumers to stock up their freezers with beef, while supplies are temporarily abundant and prices are more attractive. Commercial beef production during May is expected to exceed both the year-ago level and the 1970-72 average. Fat cattle prices remain well below break even levels, and prices at retail are reflecting the plunge in prices to livestock producers.

If you aren't inclined to eat a whole beef carcass like Mr. Ketzler did back in 1890, then you need to know which part of a beef carcass contains the cuts you prefer.

Bulk beef buyers commonly buy either a side, forequarter or hindquarter of a beef carcass. The side is half the carcass split lengthwise from front to back. It contains both the forequarter and hindquarter. Buying a whole side involved a considerable amount of money. Furthermore, since an average 350-pound side will give you from 240 to 270 pounds of usable beef, you'll need ample freezer space in which to store it.

If you'd rather make a smaller purchase, maybe you'd like a forequarter or a hindquarter, both of which are only about one-fourth of a carcass.

A forequarter is the front half of a side. It contains the following sections or "wholesale cuts" - the rib, chuck, fore shank, brisket and plate. A forequarter contains the delectable rib cuts; it has more usable lean meat and usually costs less per pound than the hindquarter. On the other hand, the forequarter has more of the less-tender cuts (check, fore

Roy Brown, left, Edward Sowder, Jr. and Kenneth York, looking over a new Haybine Mr. Sowder purchased.

Down On The Farm

By: Roy G. Brown
Assistant Vice President
Cumberland Production
Credit Association

We are visiting on the farm of Edward, Jr. and Bernice Sowder at Spiro. In the picture are Edward, center, Kenneth York, Soil Conservationist, right, and your writer, Roy Brown, on the left, looking over a new Haybine Junior had purchased and was using for the first time. The Haybine cuts and conditions the hay. It also windrows hay with the same operation if needed.

Junior was cutting an old stand of alfalfa and orchard grass. The alfalfa was about gone due to the cold weather and alfalfa weevil. Junior has another field of alfalfa that is windrowed and ready for cutting when the weather is dry enough.

Edward and Bernice have 102 acres of farm land, all in excellent condition. They just recently built a new brick home and last year they built a new meat barn as you can see in the center of the picture. They have an excellent dairy operation of about thirty-five cows, along with other cattle. They grow about 3,750 pounds of tobacco and ten acres of corn that is used mostly for silage. Their son, Billy, was helping in the hay when we visited them. He has been attending Sue Bennett College in London. They also have a daughter at home.

The Sowders are very active in community and county programs for the good of the country. We are proud to have them doing such a good job "Down On The Farm."

Contracts Announced - Gov. Wendell H. Ford has announced the selection of architectural and engineering firms to undertake planning for most of the Capital Construction projects contained in the fiscal 1974-76 executive budget. The announcement followed the notification of the planning firms of their selection by Charles Fryor, Jr., commissioner of the Executive Department for Finance and Administration.

James O. King, head of the department's Office for Policy and Management, said the announcement represents the "first step toward realization of these projects, and we hope each firm can begin immediately on programming, to be followed by design and specifications for the award of contracts so construction can begin as soon as possible."

Calamity Days Granted - The state Board of Education will permit school districts to be excused for up to five calamity days resulting from flooding and last month's tornadoes. In approving the regulation change, the board made it clear it did not intend to excuse school closure for weather conditions, icy roads, sickness and the like. Board Chairman Milton Yunker, Owenboro, said there was no way a school superintendent could anticipate a disaster such as that caused by the tornadoes.

If the bookmobile does not stop near your home, why not call the library and tell them where you live and ask that they stop. You will be glad you did.

Your bookmobile schedule for the week of May 19-25 is as follows:

No-Fault Causes Confusion

It's no one's fault but many Kentuckians are confused about no-fault auto insurance.

A no-fault law passed by the 1974 Kentucky General Assembly goes into effect beginning July 1, 1975, so — omitting the details that still must be ironed out — what is no-fault? What does it do? Why?

Simply, no-fault insurance is a plan under which an auto owner can collect from his own insurer for medical bills and lost wages resulting from an accident regardless of who was to blame for the accident.

But the concept is as simple as an income tax form. And, someone eventually has to pay the bill.

Making no-fault even more complex is Kentucky's unique form of the auto insurance — among the half of the nation that has adopted some form of no-fault. Unlike other states, Kentuckians have three options. They can take no-fault insurance alone, reject no-fault entirely, or take out a quasi-no-fault policy that lies somewhere between no-fault and traditional insurance.

To reject no-fault, a person must inform the state commissioner of insurance in writing that he intends to do so. He can then purchase whatever type of auto insurance he wishes in the same manner as is done now.

There are six basic categories of auto insurance coverage — property damage, comprehensive, collision, bodily injury, medical payment and uninsured motorist. No-fault pays for only the last three — bodily injury, medical and uninsured motorist.

That means no-fault pays only for injury to people — not to cars. It will not reimburse anyone for bent fenders or any other type of property damage. Anyone who wants to be insured for things no-fault does not include should buy an extra type of insurance. During the first year, no-fault policy holders will get a reduction in premiums for bodily injury liability combined with uninsured motorist insurance and $1,000 medical payment insurance. But, the reduction won't amount to much to the policy holder. For instance, a business man in Frankfort and a farmer in Smiths Grove would save about $4 a year on the basic no-fault policy. A 21-year-old man in Louisville would save about $15.00 a year.

According to State Insurance Commissioner Harold McCuffey, the big advantage in no-fault is quicker payment of claims and an increased number of accidents covered.

"With no-fault insurance we will get 60 percent more of our people covered," McCuffey said. "About 60 percent of all accidents in which someone is killed or seriously injured are either one-car accidents or accidents in which both parties are believed to be at fault. Then the people receive nothing, except medical payment, because they are at fault."

Also, McCuffey continued, "with no-fault insurance, payment of claims is prompt since it is not withheld until a law suit is established."

To get all these no-fault advantages, the policy holder gives up the right to sue — except in certain circumstances. Litigation still is allowed in cases of permanent disfigurement, certain types of serious fractures, permanent injury, permanent loss of bodily function, death or medical expenses in excess of $1,000.

If someone wishes to retain his right to sue — he can do that, too. The third option allows a person to buy no-fault coverage and still retain the right to sue in all cases. This form of insurance costs more than the others.

State law requires insurance companies can place the maximum coverage within certain limits — though individual companies can place the maximum coverage higher than the state requires.

The law specifies that owners and operators of motor vehicles must provide a minimum of $10,000 public liability for one injury arising out of an automobile accident and $20,000 limit for all injuries incurred in an accident. The $10,000 one injury/$20,000 all injuries in one accident minimum was already required for all automobile insurance. This public automobile liability insurance protection currently carried by Kentucky motorists. No-fault coverage will continue to protect the motorist against claims arising out of his negligent operation of a motor vehicle if he injures someone who has rejected no-fault. A no-fault policyholder is also covered if the injured person suffers the type of injury for which the law permits him to sue, if the adverse party is killed, or if the adverse party's medical expense exceeds $1,000.

A policy holder has the option of purchasing up to $40,000 no-fault insurance. But, if this is no-fault, who cares who was negligent? The insurance companies do, for three primary reasons. First, fault still must be determined for payment of property damage.

Second, the company insuring the person who was at fault may have to repay the other insurance companies for expenses they incurred because of the accident.

Third, the companies need statistical information on accidents to determine rates for different categories of people. For instance, premiums for young men are higher than for middle-aged women because records show young men cause more accidents.

But with no-fault coverage, the determination of who was to blame is behind the scenes. Persons directly involved in an accident are not called into court — except in some cases where they are called upon to explain what happened. And payment for injuries usually is completed before a case ever goes to court.

Despite the confusion and the complexities, no-fault auto insurance does provide prompt payment for many injuries, and is on its way to Kentucky.
