CICADAS HAVE EVOKED UNUSUAL BELIEFS.....

Many Kentuckians have witnessed the emergence of periodical cicadas this year, and are unfamiliar with these remarkable insects which take so long to grow up.

There are two types of periodical cicadas, explains Rudy Scheibner, extension Entomologist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. One type requires 13 years to complete its life cycle and the other takes 17 years. The cicadas that are plaguing Kentuckians this year belong to Brood XIV of the 17-year type. "The last time we saw them was in 1897," says Scheibner, "and we won't see this brood again until 1991. By that time this year's experience will only be a dim memory and people will again regard them with wonder and awe."

The frequent occurrence of periodical cicadas has led to some misconceptions about their significance, notes Scheibner. The Indians thought their appearance had an evil significance. Remnants of that idea exists today in the belief that the W-mark near the end of the cicada's wing signifies war. "Since there seems to be war somewhere in the world every year, the cicada seems to be right, although there is no connection between cicadas and war," says Scheibner.

Early American colonists had never seen periodical cicadas, so when they were beset by these insects they associated them with the Biblical story of the locust plagues of Egypt during the time of the Exodus. It was perhaps this association that led to the cicadas being called locusts. Locusts are really migratory grasshoppers quite unrelated to cicadas. Migratory grasshoppers, or locusts, still plague northern Africa from time to time.

There is also a misconception that periodical cicadas or their eggs are poisonous. The folk lore of parts of Kentucky and other areas admonishes against eating fruit from trees in which cicadas have laid eggs. If this admonition were followed, not much fruit would be harvested this year, and that could lead to hard times. The hard times might then be blamed directly on the cicadas instead of on people's beliefs about the cicadas.

Scheibner says that the notion of cicada eggs being poisonous may be a variation of the "hoop snake" story. As described by storytellers, the hoop snake is a deadly creature with a stinger in its tail. The snake is said to take its tail in its mouth to form a hoop and roll after its victim. At the appropriate time the snake straightens out like an arrow and sails tail-first at its quarry. If the snake misses its mark and stings a tree, the tree wilts in a few minutes, according to the accounts.

Scheibner says the female cicada has a probe at the end of her body which she uses to make slits in twigs of trees. Her eggs are then laid in these slits. When there are a large number of cicadas, many slits are made and the twig may wilt from the damage or even break off. However, it is not because of any poisonous aspects of the "stings" that the twig wilts - it's just mechanical damage.

Only woody plants are attacked by the egg laying cicadas, according to Scheibner. Peach trees are favorites as host trees, but many other trees may be attacked as well as the canes of the raspberry and blackberry. Garden vegetables are not attacked, although cicadas may temporarily rest on the plants during the time they swarm from place to place.

UK SETS NO-TILL FIELD DAY FOR JULY 17TH....

You can learn about some of the latest research findings on no-till crop production by attending the Findings of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture's No-Till Field Day on July 17th. The field day will be held at UK's Spindletop and Maine Chance Farms near Lexington, beginning at 9 a.m. The advantages of using the no-till system are well-known to many farmers in Kentucky, where last year over one-fourth of the state's soybean acreage and one-fifth of the corn acreage was planted no-till. The no-till system saves fuel, time and labor. In addition, it helps prevent soil erosion, an especially important consideration this year with more steep land being used for row-crop production.

Much of the pioneering work in the development of no-till was done by the UK College of Agriculture, and UK scientists are continuing to conduct extensive research on no-till crop production. These scientists will be on hand at the field day to discuss their work and answer questions. In addition, they will show no-till plots of corn, soybeans, tobacco, alfalfa, clover, peppers and tomatoes to field day visitors.

Effective use of herbicides is an essential part of no-till crop production. What are the best materials, rates, and methods of application? At the field day you will be able to take a first hand look at some 25 herbicide treatments for corn planted in sod, thirty treatments for corn planted in cornstalks, and thirty-six treatments for soybeans planted in small stubble.

UK researchers are testing a mechanical pasture renovator which seeds legumes into grass pastures without tillage. The machine applies a herbicide which helps control the grass while the legumes are becoming established. Also showing promise as a no-till corn planter, the machine was developed by UK agricultural engineers and will be demonstrated on the field day.

In addition, you can see plots of red clover and alfalfa seeded by the machine. Early indications are that when the machine is used, less seed is needed than with conventional renovation. Plots of alfalfa and clover seeded at different rates will be shown at the field day. You can also see plots treated with two different chemicals during seeding, and plots fertilized at different rates.

How about planting tobacco no-till? UK Researchers are trying it, although it's not yet a recommended practice. No-till tobacco planted on different dates, in plots treated with different chemicals, and with different rates and methods of fertilization will be shown in field day visitors.

Information on varieties, insect control, planting dates, water use, liming, and many other topics related to no-till crop production will be presented at field day.

If you want to find out more about the no-till system of growing crops, you should plan to attend the field day. You can reach the field day site by taking the Newton Pike exit off I-75, going north on Newtown Pike to Ironworks Road, and then west on Ironworks Road until you see a sign showing where to enter Spindletop Farm.

NEW INSECTICIDE REGISTRATION ON TOBACCO

Orthene, a product of Chevron Chemical Company, has been registered for use on Flue-cured and air-cured tobacco. This means that it can be used on our Kentucky-grown leaf.

It is labelled to control budworm, green peach aphid, cabbage looper, and flea beetle. The label rate is 1/2 pounds of formulation per acre which is equivalent to 1 lb. actual per acre.

In UK tests, the compound has performed well against the tobacco pests mentioned above. Also, the compound is relatively safe, compared with other alternatives. However, treatment at the recommended label rate will cost the farmer over $9.00 per acre for the chemical alone. We have the situation of an excellent chemical that is priced two or three times higher than other recommended materials.

QUAL HOMEMAKERS MEETING REPORT....

On Monday night, June 17th, the Quail Homemakers met at the home of Mrs. Delores Albright.

Twelve members were in attendance, along with the Home Demonstration Agent, Cheryl Witt, and her assistant. The lesson on "Summer Salads" was presented by Mrs. Martha Hamm, Mrs. Shirley Martin and Mrs. Albright. The salads they had prepared were served during the meeting and every one enjoyed these salads.

Visitors are welcome to these meetings, which are held each third Monday night of each month.

TAX, TRUCK TRAFFIC INCREASE.....

Records of the state Bureau of Vehicle Regulation's Division of Motor Vehicle Tax indicate a growth in trucking operations in Kentucky during recent months. The two cents-per-gallon motor fuel surtax which heavy equipment motor carriers (more than two axles) are required to pay on all fuel consumed in Kentucky has amounted to $2,322,287 during the first ten months of the current fiscal year.

Motor Vehicle Tax Director A.A. Platt said this figure represents an 18.3 percent increase in surtax collected and fuel consumed on Kentucky highways by truckers over the same period in the 1972-73 fiscal year.

It also represents a continuing trend of recent years according to Platt.

"There was a 14.4 percent increase in the surtax account in fiscal 1972-73 as compared to fiscal 1971-72," said Platt. "And there was a 13.2 percent increase in fiscal 1971-72 over the previous fiscal year."

The two cents-per-gallon surtax is paid by the trucking industry over and above the nine cents-per-gallon fuel tax which everyone pays when purchasing gasoline.

Both the nine cents-per-gallon tax and the additional two cents-per-gallon surtax which the trucking industry pays, are used to maintain Kentucky's highways.

Platt said the trucking industry pays the surtax to cover the additional maintenance expenses which heavy trucks necessitate.

Down On The Farm

By: Roy G. Brown
Assistant Vice President
Cumberland PCA

How many can remember what life was "Down on the farm" a few years ago? A few things that come to my mind are the kerosene lamp, the old lanterns that we took to the barn with us to feed or to go possum hunting, how we had to cut wood for our cook stoves, heating stoves and fireplaces, and how we had to carry the water from the snow and cold.

We used to have to take the wood and milk in the living room to keep ice from freezing in the bucket and jugs.

Remember when wheat and oats were cut with a cradle, tied in bundles, shocked and then wait for the old steam thrasher. The farmers would all help each other at thrashing time. While all the men were working, the women would all get together and prepare dinner for their men. When the wheat and oats were thrashed, the farmers would take the wheat to the flour mill and deposit it for flour to use in making biscuits, pie-cakes, etc. for the whole year.

As you can very well see, we didn't know about white bread and canned biscuits. "Down on the Farm" in those days.

USDA Increases Funding for Special Summer Food Service Program for Children —

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has allocated an additional $1.79 million to eight southeastern states to operate the Special Summer Food Service Program for Children this year, raising the total allocation for these states to $9.45 million.

Officials of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS), which administers the program nationally, said the funding increase was necessary because so many interested sponsors have submitted applications. FNS officials said the agency has tentatively committed the increased funding to the states according to projected needs. Early in the summer, after programs are under way, funding may be redistributed based on reviews on actual program operations, FNS officials said.

The special Summer Food Service Program provides nourishing meals to youngsters from low-income homes who, during the school year, depend on free school lunches for a significant part of their nutritional needs.

This year, FNS officials said, the program aims to feed about 341,000 southeastern children through public and nonprofit private service programs such as day camps and recreation programs.

JACK GREENE-JEANIE SEELY AT TOMBSTONE

A tiny, blonde bombshell and a giant of a man will appear at Tomstone Junction on June 23rd. Their names — Jack Greene and Jeanie Seely! This duet is known coast to coast for their special brand of Country Music.

Both have had giant hit records — including a Grammy for Jeanie's rendition of "Don't Touch Me" and the hit of the 1967 CMA awards "There Goes My Everything." They recently performed before the 11th Annual United Nations Concert and Banquet at the request of the White House.

Jeanie has been performing since the age of eleven. The Pennsylvania native is married to songwriter Hank Cochran, who wrote her biggest hit "Don't Touch Me."

Jack is originally from Marville, Tennessee. He is a former member of Ernest Tubbs' "Texas Troubadours."

In 1967 he came to star in his own right and had nine straight No. 1 records!

Jack and Jeanie put together a show that flows like an electric current. Everyone moves but as a unit. Jack takes a turn; Jeanie is right there with a song. Right on her heels comes one of the "Green Giant" bandmen with a solo. Music rolls right on top of the final note as the cee wheels into a hard driving instrumental, right from today's Top 10 list.

You can see this exciting show at Tomstone Junction. Tomstone Junction is located one mile from Cumberland Falls State Park.

New Parkway Section Opens June 17 — Transportation Secretary Billy Paxton has announced that a 13-mile section of the Daniel Boone Parkway was to open for traffic between Manchester and Big Creek Monday, June 17th.

Construction of the Parkway, begun in August 1969, will cost the Department of Transportation an estimated $106.6 million. The new section brings to 48.46 miles the completed portion of the 66-mile toll road.

Sam Alexander, deputy superintendent of public instruction, said, "Teachers, and most other state employees, have been covered for some time. We are pleased that this program of insurance will now be available for this large group of people that has not been insured before."

Gil McCarty, deputy commissioner of the state Dept. of Insurance, added, "We are presently evaluating the data presented in order that we may get preliminary insight as to what the cost of insuring the non-teaching personnel might be. After we have evaluated the data, we will forward it to the Executive Department for Finance and Administration."

The non-teaching employees are being provided with life insurance as a result of legislation passed by the 1974 General Assembly. Additional legislation provides that the same group of employees will be included in the county employees' retirement system by July 1, 1976.

Energy Conservation Tip — A Maintenance Tip — Drain a bucket of water from the faucet at the base of your water heater at least once a month. This prevents a build-up of mineral deposits and sediment that cause your heater to work harder and use more energy. The practice extends the life of your heater, too.

Set your water heater at "normal." This is the most economical setting. It should provide sufficient hot water for nearly all your needs.

Kentucky Educational Television cameraman, Jim Versaw, films "The Legend of Daniel Boone" at Harrodsburg. KET is filming the bicentennial festivities for a series of programs to air later this summer.

Kentucky State Fair Is August 15 - 24th

Looking at the list it's easy to see how the 1974 Kentucky State Fair rates as the biggest entertainment fair package ever put together.

Paid acts recently signed include Mel Tillis, The Mike Curb Congregation, Sami Jo, Olivia Newton-John, Ray Stevens, Lester Flatt, The Osborne Brothers, Mac Wiseman, Cappy's Hat Band, Boots Randolph and Brush Arbor.

Free attractions as yet unannounced include David Hoy, the U.S. Air Force Logistics Command Band, Popejoy Trading Company and the Pantomine University Band.

This year the State Fair runs from August 15th through the 24th.

Opening day will offer a triple helping of talent.

Singer/comedian Mel Tillis and his band The Statesiders will headline the bill and will be joined by The Mike Curb Congregation and Sami Jo. Tillis, the man who turned an embarrassing stutter into a comic act sings in the country vein and has written nearly 1,000 songs, including giants "Detroit City" and "Ruby, Don't Take Your Love To Town."

The Mike Curb Congregation is a collection of today's clearest young people who sing pop, country and easy listening tunes, including their biggest song, "It's a Small, Small World." Sami Jo will add more country flavor to the bill, with "Tell Me A Lie" and other hits.

Singer/composer Ray Stevens will appear the following night, Friday, August 16th, with his latest chart topper "The Streak." He's put out a lot of madcap tunes "Gitarzan" and "Ahab the Arab," but has also shown a different "streak" in his personality with songs like "Everything is Beautiful."

Australian singer Olivia Newton John's popularity grows with each new record; so far with "If Not For You," "Banks of the Ohio," "If You Love Me Let Me Know" and "Let Me Be There."

On Monday, August 19th, several top bluegrass talents will present a Bluegrass Celebration. Inimitable singer and guitarist Lester Flatt will lead the celebration with the Nashville Grass. Sonny and Bobby Osborne began their careers over twenty years ago in Ohio and have since taken their banjo and mandolin skills all over the world.

Mac Wiseman grew up singing and strumming pure bluegrass and helped form the Country Music Association along the way. Cappy's Hat Band, a musical foursome, will round out the bill.

Boots Randolph, a name synonymous with saxophone, will take the stage Wednesday, August 21st, with Brush Arbor. Randolph had been making a name for himself as both musician and witty emcee since his "Yakety Sax" became a hit in 1958. Brush Arbor has been together only a couple of years, but the country/western sextet has already appeared on TV's "Dean Martin Presents Country Music" and at numerous concerts.

Additional free entertainment at this year's Fair will include David Hoy, a nationally known psychic who deals in extrasensory perception (ESP) and foretelling the future. He's done everything from predicting a bridge collapse to finding misplaced false teeth. Hoy will lecture and demonstrate his unusual ability Saturday, August 24th.

The U.S. Air Force Logistics Command Band will be on hand to perform opening day. Popejoy Trading Company will supply the bluegrass sound twice a day during the Fair. P.U. Band, a pantomime group, will give one performance on opening day, August 15th.

Paid attractions previously signed for the 1974 Kentucky State Fair include Rare Earth, Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, Tommy Steiner's Rodeo, Death

Riders, Mac Davis, O. B. McClinton, Pee Wee King, and Charlie Rich.

Free entertainment signed earlier include M&M Circus Internationale, Joe Frisco Petting Zoo, Mitchell Marionettes, Jack D'Johns, Chiffonettes, Silverbird, That Old Gang of Mine, and Tolly Tolliver and the Shaffner Players Tent Show.

CONSUMER COMMENTS

By: Ed W. Hancock
Attorney General of Kentucky

The Kentucky General Assembly in 1972 passed a law providing that druggists may substitute a cheaper generic name drug if the Drug Formulary Council has determined that the two drugs are medically equivalent.

Consumer groups and members of the drug industry have argued for years over the issue of generic drugs versus brand name drugs. Consumer advocates contended that consumers were often paying up to ten times as much for a brand name drug when a cheaper generic equivalent would do the same job.

Drug companies and doctors on the other hand contend that the generics were often not as medically effective therapeutically. The Kentucky law provides a compromise - it allows substitution, but only where the Drug Formulary Council, consisting primarily of health professionals, has determined that the generic drug is medically equivalent and where the doctor has not provided otherwise on the prescription.

The Council has now certified certain generic equivalents to be medically equivalent for one drug, ampicillin, and similar regulations for three other drugs have been filed with the Legislative Research Commission. These drugs are phenoxymethyl penicillin, erythromycin and penicillin G. When you have a prescription involving ampicillin, or later involving the other three if the regulation is approved, you may ask your pharmacist to fill it with the cheapest generic equivalent and may save substantial sums of money.

Furthermore, you can always inquire of your doctor whether a drug he is prescribing has generic equivalents and whether or not he feels they will do the job even if the drug is not on the list. This can effectuate substantial savings that can be very important if you have large medicine bills and are on a limited budget.

For answers and suggestions to aid with consumer problems, Kentucky residents may call on the toll-free Consumer Hotline, 1-800-372-2960, or write the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, Room 34, Capitol, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

FOREIGN TOUR VISITS ROCKCASTLE

Seventy-eight members of the British Country Music Association were in Rockcastle County Monday and Tuesday as part of a seventeen-day visit to this country.

The group included men, women and one child from several countries in Europe including England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland. Monday night, a special performance was put on for the tour at the Big Red Barn in Renfro Valley and on Tuesday, the 18th, the group was escorted in two Greyhound buses, to Fort Sequoyah and to Great Salt-petre Cave.

Three Orlando youths got a surprise last Thursday morning while Ginseng hunting at Big Hill when they came upon the above 42-inch rattler which boasted 9 rattles and 1 button. One of the boys said the rattler was coiled and struck at him but he managed to evade the bite and shot him with a pistol. land holdings by dishonest land speculators and the remainder was taken for debt. The son of one of proprietors of Boonesboro in a letter, of which I have a copy, lauded the idea of Boone being the great pathfinder and gave it as his opinion that Boone didn't cut a bush between Cumberland Gap and Boonesboro, following out buffalo trails all the way. When Boone applied for the job of laying out the Wilderness Road some years later, his application was ignored.

Finally, he was urged by the Spanish Government to settle in their territory, in what was later to be the state of Missouri, thinking that his being there would draw other settlers who remembered his work in Kentucky. He was given great tracts of land, in payment for his services, but the tragedy was that this land, also, was taken for debt by court procedure. I have in my possession these court actions, given to me years ago by an old man in Florida whose grandfather, a clerk in the Spanish courts, had left them to me. Finally, the bodies of Boone and Rebecca, his wife, were brought back and buried in Kentucky soil, so that of all the thousands of acres he once owned in the state he had helped to create, he was left at last with only enough for two graves.

Even now undeserved indignities are being heaped upon his memory. The great farce perpetrated by the TV Show, Daniel Boone, has so confused children and other viewers that they have forgotten what history teaches of this outstanding pioneer and have accepted the teachings of irresponsible producers and script writers who are either ignorant or purposely misleading for the gratification of their own mistaken sense of importance. The old pioneer deserves better chroniclers than this!

young men go there. However, if an enrollee wants to learn a skill taught at another center, he'll be placed in that center. Edwards and Lay agree that there's lots to do at Whitney Young. They both enjoy the off-campus swimming trips. Edwards also likes track and team sports - discus and shot-put, football and baseball.

Lay enjoys the arts and crafts program. He's tried ceramics and leather work, and one of the plaster casts he's made, a cost of arms, is now on the wall of his sister's home. In his vocational training, he's worked on several projects which will improve the center's facilities - steel window frames for one of the buildings, a barbecue grill and two football practice sleds.

Edwards is one of the student leaders on the campus. He's co-chairman of the food committee and the student government, vice-president of the Honor Dorn (a self-governing dormitory) and a member of the student welfare committee.

He's also tutored in the GED classes. He's earned six hours of college credits through extension courses from Murray State University, and hopes to study for an Associate of Arts degree in electrical engineering from the University of Louisville.

Both young men praise their instructors. Lay says that at first, he was afraid that the program would be too hard, "but it wasn't that hard...you can go right along. Mr. (Clark) Filch pushes you in the GED classes, but he helps you, too." Edwards says that his vocational instructor, Samuel Eaton, "shows his students the whole extent of the field." Edwards also reports that the air conditioning students "have a lot of spirit...we'll help each other. If someone has trouble understanding one lesson, we work it out together." ENLISTS.....

Vincent Keith Ballinger, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Weikie Ballinger of Mt. Vernon, recently departed for basic training with the Navy at Orlando, Florida. He enlisted for two years under the provisions of the Navy's 23X Program and chose to attend Electrician School as his enlistment guarantee. He attended Harry Sparks Vocational School and is a 1974 graduate of Rockcastle County High School. *****

Dairy Day To Include Bicentennial Celebration

Plans are now being made to include Rockcastle's Bicentennial Celebration with Dairy Day activities in Mt. Vernon on Saturday, June 29th.

In addition to normal Dairy Day activities, several floats will be included in the parade which will contrast early pioneer life in Kentucky with modern day life; the Main Street merchants have been asked to dress their windows in displays depicting the early settlers and settlements in Kentucky; an Arts and Crafts display will be on exhibit in the City Park and Dairy Doll contestants will be dressed in period costumes.

Also, we have been asked to pass along a request to anyone in the community who might have old items such as farm equipment, buggies, surreys, etc., that these items might be lent to be used in the Dairy Day Parade. If you have any items such as these, please contact Harold Ballinger at the ASCS Office in Mt. Vernon.

Also included in the parade will be the Bicentennial Flag which has been purchased by John Lair for use by the county. The Bicentennial Flag will be displayed in addition, of course, to the American Flag.

All 4-H club members with horses are also asked to participate in the Parade and will receive a ribbon for doing so.

Of course, don't forget the regular Dairy Day activities which have been scheduled.

State Dairy Princess Susan Eichenor will be attending; the annual Dairy Princess contest will be held along with the Dairy Doll contest; there will be the annual recognition of dairy leadership and the drawing for a dairy lifer donated by the Bank of Mt. Vernon.

There will be three candidates for Dairy Princess this year: Janet Sue Burton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Burton; Verla Rose Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hayes and Teresa Gail Lawrence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawrence.

Contestants in this year's Dairy Doll Contest will be: Sandy Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Roberts; Sandy Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hayes; Tracy and Terri Bullock, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Bullock; Sandra Gentry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Gentry; Judy Lee York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. York; and Sherri Mink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy H. Mink.

Two From Rockcastle Graduate From Berea: One Honored

Two Mt. Vernon students were among the 185 graduates of Berea College who received degrees at the commencement exercises recently.

They are Judy Lane Reese, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D. Reese of Route 3 and Mrs. Loretta Gale Powell, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kirby of Route 2.

Miss Reese, receiving an A.B. degree in Elementary Education, was elected in 1973 to Kappa Delta Pi, an Honor Society for education majors. Mrs. Powell also received an A.B. degree in Elementary Education.

Patricia Lou Reese, also the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D. Reese of Route 3, Mt. Vernon, received the Donald Pugsley Memorial Award at Berea College's recent Scholarship Day convocation for excellence in freshman mathematics. She also was named to the Dean's Honor List for the fall term.

THE CENTRAL AMBULANCE SERVICE is now permanently located at the rear of the former Dinner Bell on space donated by Floyd Owens. Home Ownership High In Rockcastle County

In terms of assets, how well off is the average Rockcastle County family?

Most people have only a vague idea of their net worth. They have never taken the trouble to figure out just how they stand in that respect.

Their concern has been with more current matters - weekly income, food bills, taxes, medical costs and installment debt.

Were they to take stock of their possessions, such as cars, bank accounts, pension reserves, investments and life like, they would probably discover that they are richer than they thought.

Among the assets that a large proportion of families in Rockcastle County have built up for themselves over the years, a major one is the family home.

The equity that they have in their homes, over and above the mortgage debt on them, is

SEND ENTRIES TO JUNE JACKPOT.....

This Saturday, June 22nd, is the deadline for entries in the Southern Belle June Jackpot in which the winner will receive a new combination refrigerator-freezer filled with Southern Belle Products.

To enter, all you have to do is simply guess the amount of money Southern Belle Dairy paid raw milk producers in Rockcastle County during the past year. The entry coming closest to the correct amount will win and you may enter as often as you like.

All entries should be sent, on a postcard, to Post Office Box 165, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky 40456 and should be postmarked no later than June 22nd.

The contest is being sponsored by the Southeastern Graded Milk Producers Association in Rockcastle County.

approximately $9.5 million and is growing steadily with the increase in realty values. This total is for the one-family, non-farm dwellings that are owner-occupied.

Details on home ownership, covering all sections of the county, are contained in data compiled by the Department of Commerce in its latest Residential Finance Survey and in its Census of Housing reports.

The total market value of all owner-occupied dwellings in Rockcastle County, based upon their findings, is estimated at $19.8 million.

The figures show that most one-family homes in the United States - three out of every five - have mortgages on them.

As for the local regional area, close to 60.5 percent are mortgaged, the other 39.5 percent being wholly owned by their occupants.

In general, mortgage debt amounts to about 62 percent of the market value of one-family homes. Applying this average to the homes in the local area, the mortgage total is approximately $10.3 million.

The difference between the market value and this debt is the equity that local families hold, about $9.5 million.

Home ownership in Rockcastle County remains at a high level. No less than 72.7 percent of the dwellings in the area are owned by their occupants, the government figures show.

By way of comparison, in the United States, it is 62.9 percent and, in the State of Kentucky, 66.9 percent.

NEW GROWER WHEAT ALLOTMENTS

A new farm wheat allotment may be established for the 1975 crop wheat acreage for farms that did not have a 1974 allotment, if they meet eligibility requirements, Mr. Harold Ballinger, Director of the Rockcastle County ASCS Committee, announced today.

A 1975 wheat allotment will be established automatically for most farms that had a wheat allotment in 1974.

To be eligible for a new farm allotment, the operator must expect to receive more than 50 percent of his income from farming. Neither the owner or the operator may have an interest in any other farm which will have a 1975 wheat allotment, and the person making application must have had at least one year production experience in a prior year.

Applications for a new farm allotment must be filed in the county office on or before July 1, 1974. Any interested producer who can meet these requirements should contact the county office before the final date for filing an application.

FOUR FROM ROCKCASTLE CERTIFIED BY STATE AS EMT'S.....

Four Rockcastle residents who have been certified as emergency medical technicians (EMT's) by the Kentucky Department for Human Resources' Bureau for Health Services. They are: William L. Griffin, James F. Harness, Tommy E. Hodges and James K. Adams.

They are among the 25 who have successfully completed a 12 1/2 week course at the Garrard County Health Department in Lancaster. The EMT course is part of a federally funded project co-sponsored by the Departments for Human Resources and Law and Justice. It covers all aspects of emergency medical care and transportation of the sick and injured.

To qualify for certification, students must attend twenty-five lessons which include seventy-one hours of classroom training and ten hours of in-hospital observation. More than twenty hours of subject material are presented on videotape prepared by physicians from the University of Kentucky Medical Center.

"Successful completion of the state's EMT course qualifies students to take the written and practical examination for the National Registry of EMT's," says Thomas A. Thompson, EMT training project director with Emergency Medical Services. "Our students who pass the state course are also doing well on the national exams."

This is the third year for the EMT training project in Kentucky. In the last two years, more than one thousand ambulance drivers and attendants, firemen, policemen, nurses, rescue squad members and others responsible for emergency care of the public were certified.

Under the "Good Samaritan Law" passed in 1972 by the General Assembly, EMT's are exempt from liability in civil damages for administering emergency care of treatment when pay for such services is neither expected nor given.

NOTICE OF SCHOOL HEARING

The Kentucky Department of Education and the Rockcastle County Board of Education will hold a public hearing in the cafeteria of Rockcastle County High School at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, June 24, 1974.

This meeting is being held in connection with a facilities survey which is being made this summer by the Rockcastle County School District.

Interested citizens who wish to express their views on the school building plans for the future are invited to attend.

Good Records Needed For '74 Farm Census

Farmers and ranchers: get ready for the 1974 Census of Agriculture! Keep good records of your farming operations this year! This is the request of the Bureau of the Census, the Federal agency that will conduct the 20th nationwide Census of Agriculture during the first part of 1975. The Bureau is part of the U.S. Department of Commerce's Social and Economic Statistics Administration.

Farmers will receive their report forms by mail early in January. They should fill them out and mail them back promptly. Having accurate and detailed records will make it easy for farmers to do this. Questions will be much like those in the last previous agricultural census which covered farming and ranching during 1969.

Questions will ask for acreage of cropland harvested; quantity and market value of major crops produced; acres irrigated and means of irrigation; acreage treated with pesticides; lime and other soil chemicals; acreage fertilized by kind of fertilizer (dry, liquid, gas).

Questions on livestock and poultry will cover the number of each kind on the farm as well as the number sold and the sales value. Quantities and sales value of their products will be sought.

Details will be requested about farm products produced or marketed under contract. A few questions will be included about hired and contract labor, the number of workers and cash wages paid; also about any injuries to workers.

Further expenditure questions will cover amounts spent for feed, fertilizer, pesticides, lime, gasoline and other farm fuels, machine hire, and livestock and poultry purchases.

There will be questions about the various types and uses of land, such as cropland not harvested, other pasture and woodland, and about the value of land and buildings on the farm.

Operators will be asked about farm related income such as recreational services, custom work provided other farmers, or payments for participation in Government farm programs.

Two types of report forms are being prepared: one for farms with sales of $2500 or more, and another less detailed form for farms with sales of less than $2500. No matter which form a farmer receives, he need answer only those questions which apply to his operation. He should skip questions that apply only to other types of agricultural operations.

By Federal law, every report of census data is confidential. It may be seen only by sworn Census employees and will be used only for statistical purposes. The census is a confidentially. It also allows the farmer to complete the report at his convenience with accurate information from his records.

JOHN NICHOLS'

Frankfort Watchline

Like a man out of breath to catch a train that hasn't left the station yet, State Senator Tom Ward of Versailles is off and running for the office of Lt. Gov.

And in the wake of that press conference a couple of weeks ago, the biggest question still remains: not who's going to win the Democratic nomination for that office when it finally becomes a proper subject for voter attention, but how many other candidates will Ward's action have dragged out of the woodwork?

When the time comes, say Frankfort watchers, you'll not be able to count the serious hopefuls for the Lt. Governorship on the fingers of both hands ... and maybe the toes of both feet. And that's only among the Democrats.

Let's see ... there's Fayette County Judge Bob Stevens, Parks Commissioner Ewart Johnson, Attorney General Ed Hines, Jefferson County Judge Todd Hollenbach, Secretary of State Thelma Stovall, former Transportation boss Jim Gray, Kentucky Jaycee bigwig Jim Vernon and the current favorite, Greenup State Representative Terry McBrayer ... to name a few.

And of course, Sen. Ward. But Ward's not playing the game. In Democratic circles, a fellow's supposed to quietly await the end of the November Senate turkshuft before daring to discuss 1975. The idea is not to rock any boats ... concentrate on the party's big aim.

But Tom Ward doesn't hear that kind of advice. You know, he's the Presbyterian minister-college instructor farmer who shocked a Senate gallery full of temperance folks last March with a yes vote on a bill to authorize Sunday liquor sales in parts of the state.

He said loudly that his vote wouldn't kill him and that he feels a greater evil than drinking is self-righteousness.

Yep. That's the same Tom Ward ... one of four ministers in the Kentucky Senate's last session. To call him a maverick might be unfair, but he's the guy that surprised Central Kentucky by beating a Ford administration backer in incumbent to get where he is.

He's set himself up as a sort of conservatism watchdog. He's blasting his party leaders on such dynamic issues as the Red River George dam ... the Cumberland charlilt ... strip mine control and we're sure there's more to come.

If he keeps this up, you're sure to see him and take notice.

Ward owes nothing to either Gov. Wendell Ford or Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll, both of whom aren't overjoyed at his announcement and certainly didn't encourage him.

Ford wants all sights on the Senate race. So does Carroll. If Ford goes to Washington, it's a year's free ride in the Governor's chair for Carroll. Wouldn't hurt him for the race in '75.

Meantime, will Carroll slate with any Lt. Gov. candidate? He says no. The best way to slate, anyway, is to let your campaign people know who you like and allow them to quietly link your names through bumper stickers and such just a few days before the primary.

Geographically and politically at present, a Carroll-McBrayer team makes the most sense. We're not convinced, however, that former party chairman J. R. Miller has abandoned hopes of beating Carroll for governor next year or at least saddling him with a Lt. Gov. not of Carroll's choosing.

You know, those two fellows are still fueling the unofficial home of the Kentucky Democratic Party: "The party's not healthy if we're not fighting with each other."

We might see current party chairman Bill Sullivan become a candidate for Lt. Gov. ... or Miller might put Hollenbach or Gray.

And what are Ford's thoughts on all of this? He's probably anxious to get away to Washington and leave it all behind him.

Back to the rat race for Carroll's job. Will Ward's announcement cause others to follow soon? Probably not. It did stir three of them to call Carroll for advice. Be cool, they were told.

How about McBrayer? Any change in battle plans? Nope ... that is, unless maybe Hollenbach rushes out in Ward-like fashion. Then, maybe Terry will reassess.

And sitting back smiling contentedly, knowing that if enough other well-known Democrats get in the race the Lt. Gov.'s nomination's hers, is Thelma Stovall. Her base of support is "local" and it's constant, and she's got a string of successful campaigns to prove it ... more than any of these other young whippersnappers.

Meanwhile, still too early to tell who to pick from among the Republicans, but as we said in April, it's got to be a selection made from the party's legislative ranks.

But, like Ford, the Republicans aren't worrying about that now. They're aiming at making sure Governor Ford doesn't get that Frankfort to Washington ticket this November, thus denying Carroll that free year to get used to being governor.

Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Of the tens of thousands of outdoor-minded Kentuckians who enjoy hunting, fishing, hiking, camping, boating, and nature watching, most are very considerate of their fellow man and of the fish, wildlife and scenic beauty of the landscape.

However, there are a few "slobs" who are making it most difficult to enjoy the many things that so many take for granted.

Take as example some of the following situations where the "slob" has left his mark and as a result has caused difficulties for those who are anything else than the "slob."

For the most part where farms have been posted with "No Trespassing No Hunting No Fishing Don't Ask" signs the slob has been there.

Farmers' gates have been blocked with parked vehicles so that the landowner cannot get his farm machinery from one field to another. Gates have been left open and livestock has been scattered, often times ruining crops or even getting on the highways. Barns have been burned, fences have been cut or mashed down, creek, river and pond banks have been littered with cans, glass and trash. Livestock has been injured by stepping on or devouring this litter.

The result of this or these experiences has caused many areas to be closed to everyone.

Still other places where the "slob" has left his mark is in camping areas, where his trash and fill make it most difficult for anyone else to use the same site without having to first clean up the mess.

Repair Progresses

Kentucky's Fair and Exposition Center in Louisville sustained extensive damage during the April 3 tornadoes, but repairs are nearing completion. The roof of Freedom Hall was little more than a series of gaping holes (top right), but men in "cherry pickers" sandwiched their work around graduations, sports events and concerts (left). Nearly all 10 horse barns nearby were leveled, however, replacements are rapidly taking shape (bottom photos).

Job Corps Offers Future

By: Mary Gehant

Ernest Lay and David Edwards realize that it takes a skill to get a job, so the two young men are learning trades at the Whitney M. Young, Jr., Residential Manpower Center near Simpsonville.

Lay looks forward to next September, when he'll be 17 and can take the tests for a General Equivalency Diploma (GED). He feels that by that time he'll be "pretty good at welding" and hopes to "get a good job and make something of myself."

EDWARDS ALREADY HAS HIS GED. He believes he set a record in getting it since he entered the Corps on October 17, 1972, and earned his GED on December 8th. His vocational training is in the air conditioning - refrigeration - heating program.

Lay left school in May of 1973. He was living at the Lexington Drop-In Center when he became 16 and started looking for work. A counselor at the Job Service Office, Dept. for Human Resources, pointed out that, without either a high school diploma or vocational skills, Ernest had very little chance of obtaining anything more than a menial job. The counselor suggested the Job Corps - a federal program operating in conjunction with the Dept.'s Bureau of Manpower Services and designed to give youths like Lay a second chance for education and training, with full support during their training period.

Edwards came into the Corps by a somewhat different

Difference in Water-Bath and Pressure Processing in Home Canning - Have you wondered about the difference in water-bath and pressure cooker processing of foods in home canning?

The water-bath method is used for processing fruits, rhubarb, and tomatoes and is done using a pan with a lid and rack. The rack is used to hold the jars off the bottom of the cooker. The pan is large enough to cover the jars with one to two inches of water, so that the jars are surrounded with boiling water. The lid is used to help retain the heat. The acid in some fruits and vegetables helps prevent the growth of some bacteria which is the reason the water-bath process can be used. However, low acid fruits and vegetables must be canned using the pressure cooker. The spores ("seeds") of some bacteria are highly resistant to heat, which makes it necessary for them to be destroyed by high heat. This is accomplished with the pressure cooker.

What are foods processed by these methods? The water bath is used for such foods as peaches, plums and tomatoes. The pressure cooker is used for such foods as beans, peas, corn, beans, greens and okra.

Jars and Lids for Canning - Have you had problems of spoilage of home canned foods? Take a look at the jars and lids you have been using.
Do the jars have chips or nicks at the top? If they do, this can cause poor seal - thus spoilage. Do not use these jars for canning.
Do you tighten the two piece lid as tight as you can get it before and after processing? If you do, this can cause the sealing material to be broken - and again spoilage.

What can you do? Run your finger around the tops of jars and inspect them visibly to make sure they are smooth and free from nicks and cracks.
If two-piece, self-seal lids are used, follow the manufacturer's instructions in adjusting the lid and tightening the metal ring. After processing, when the canned product is thoroughly cool, take off the metal ring, if possible, without forcing. If the ring sticks, cover it with a hot, damp cloth for a minute or two to loosen. Then wash them to prevent rust and they may be used again. However, the lid may be used only once.

Buying Fruits and Vegetables for Home Canning - Do you wonder how many fruits or vegetables to buy for home canning? You can expect to get about 30 to 45 pints of peaches from one bushel of peaches.
You can expect 30 to 40 pints of snap beans from one bushel of green beans.
Knowing this can help you decide if it is economical for you to buy beans for home canning.

For information on yields of other fruits and vegetables, call your County Extension Agent or write your County Extension Agent for a copy of B-194 "Home Canning Fruits and Vegetables."

Storage of Canned Food - What is the best way to store canned foods? They should be stored in a clean, cool, dark, dry place. Canned food kept in a warm damp place may change in color and flavor.
How long should home canned food be stored? It is wise to use all of it within a year.
Freezing does affect canned foods. Canned foods that have been frozen may have undesirable changes in flavor and texture. However, they will not spoil unless the seal is broken.

ramblings...

Have had a great deal of fun the past few days (and the Reds haven't even been on TV) and have garnered a couple of new experiences in the process.
Now I realize that to most men in the area, and possibly several of the women, catching crowds for 'rot line bait is probably not a new experience. But, since I came from a non-fishing family, last Saturday afternoon was the first time I have ever rolled my slacks up as high as they would go for a person who practically holds last rites before baiting a hook with a minnow is no laughing matter. Chasing minnows into a net isn't really all that bad, especially if someone else reaches in after them to put into a minnow bucket; for, the experience of seeing crowds for the first time and actually being expected, for a fleeting second, by my husband to pluck them out of a net and into a bucket -

Actually, wading the stream, once my body temperature adjusted and I had learned to walk with sand in my shoe, was fun and I guess the most fun was in seeing my neighbor, who had managed to conquer most of her feminine aversion to things that wiggle, refuse to pick up a crowded, too! Of course, once you bait a 'rot line you have to rise with the sun the next morning and check it, right? There's where the really fun part comes in because once you get your eyes open at 5:30 in the morning and all movable parts moving - the river is a peaceful, idyllic place to be - whether there are any fish on the 'rot line and bush lines or not.....

Had another experience Sunday which wasn't so amusing at the time but was kinda funny later...we forgot one of the children and left her at Church. Now I can explain it because I can always swear I took a head count and had the right number of heads because we had taken a friend's child to Sunday School with us. After church, we decided to head to Richmond and get a bite to eat and had just pulled onto the Interstate when our six-year-old friend's child in the car with us. Of course, this caused us to have to take the first emergency crossing to return and deliver (Cont. to 10)

If you're really cool, you'll save cold cash!

By simply setting your thermostat carefully and thoughtfully, you can save up to 15%. And that doesn't mean making big changes. As little as two or three degrees will do it.

For instance, if you set your thermostat at 79 degrees instead of 78, you can save about 5% on the cost of operating your air conditioner. Save 10% at 80 degrees and 15% at 81. That's worth thinking about... if you're really cool.

When did Daniel Boone first show up in what is now Rockcastle County? History nor legend give us the exact date, but we can form a fairly accurate conclusion.

His first visit to any part of Kentucky was in 1767, when with William Hill, a close friend and hunting companion, he visited in what is now Floyd County, establishing a hunter's camp at a lick ten miles west of the present city of Prestonsburg. It is quite unlikely that his wanderings carried him as far as Rockcastle, because it is a matter of historical record that a severe snow storm forced them to stay in this camp during the entire winter, following which they returned to the Yadkin.

It was not until the spring of 1769 that Boone again set out for the fabled hunting grounds of Kentucky, this time in company with John Finley, whose acquaintance he had made when they were on Braddock's tragic expedition, and who had told him many stirring tales of the rich cane lands and the abundance of furs and game with which he was familiar, having been a trader among the Indians and having traversed much of the country he so ardently described. With Boone and Finley went John Stuart, Boone's brother-in-law and inseparable hunting companion. Three venturesome neighbors, Joseph Holden, James Mooney and William Cooley, were hired to go along with them to do the camp work, skinning animals and cooking so that the hunters could devote their full time to hunting and trapping.

This time Finley was able to guide them through Cumberland Gap, through which Dr. Walker had passed nineteen years earlier on his first trip of exploration into Kentucky. Their main camp was established on Station Camp Creek in Estill County and from there they made excursions, generally in pairs, in all directions, returning every few days to headquarters camp. After they were joined, later in the season, by Squire Boone and Alexander Neely, Daniel Boone and John Stuart generally hunted together and one day were captured by a hunting party of Indians on their way home from their annual hunt in "The Dark and Bloody Ground." They escaped, but were captured a second time and held prisoners so long that their companions, thinking they had been killed, broke camp and started back to the settlements. They were overtaken, however, by Boone and Stuart, who succeeded in persuading Squire and Neely to remain for a longer hunt.

In the early part of 1770 Boone and Stuart became separated on a hunting expedition and Stuart was never seen again. Neely became frightened and set out for home, leaving the Boone brothers to pass the rest of the winter in the Wilderness. In May of that year, Squire went back to the Yadkin, their packhorses loaded with furs and jerked meat, and Daniel was left, as he said, "without bread, salt or sugar, without company of his fellow-creatures, or even a horse or dog." In the latter part of July Squire was back with ammunition and supplies. He made a second trip home, with pack horses loaded with furs, again leaving Daniel alone in the woods, and in December he was back again to spend with Daniel another winter in the Kentucky Wilderness.

During Squire's absences Daniel, with time on his hands, was constantly on the move, exploring the surrounding territory. To keep wandering bands of Indians from locating his camp, he moved it often, generally finding a different sleeping place every night or so. It was during such times that he no doubt visited the area which later formed Rockcastle County, but we do not have to depend on supposition alone to know that he was here at a particular time. He and John Stuart must have been here, in the vicinity of Great Saltpeper Cave, at the time Stuart was killed. Stuart's skeleton was later found in a hollow sycamore tree, around five miles from the cave. Apparently, he had been wounded by Indians and had hidden in this big tree, where he later died. If he was so seriously injured as to bring about his death, it does not seem likely that he would have been able to travel any distance to reach the spot where he died. He, by the way, was the first white man killed by Indians in Kentucky, and so becomes another "first" for Rockcastle County.

The mystery of Stuart's disappearance was not solved until five years later, when Daniel Boone was again in Rockcastle County, this time engaged in cutting out the trail to Boonesboro. Some of his axemen discovered the body of a man in a big sycamore and Boone was called over to see if he could identify it, but he promptly did from the fact that the powder horn found with it had on it the initials of the unfortunate Stuart. One of Boone's encampments, with his crew, was at Boone Springs Cave, but since that cave was generally filled with water it can be assumed that he and his men slept in nearby Great Saltpeper Cave, which was dry and had two entrances and exits, affording a better chance for escape if besieged by Indians. The faint remains of his name, scratched on the wall of the cave with a hunting knife, is yet to be seen in Great Saltpeper Cave but the date is no longer legible. Old-timers claimed that his name was once plain to be seen on a rock outside Boone's Cave Springs but that it was gradually eroded away by the weather and is no longer visible. In 1915 the D.A.R. set up an iron marker near Old Cove Schoolhouse commemorating the fact that the everlasting spring nearby was known as a camping place of Boone and his party of rockcutters.

The year before he was employed by Col. Richard Henderson to lay out the trail to Boonesboro, Boone was again in Rockcastle County, following Skaggs Trace to reach the interior of Kentucky to warn a party of surveyors of impending Indian trouble and to advise them to return to the settlements. On his way in, he and his companion, Michael Stoner, stopped off at a new settlement being begun at Harrodsburg. While there, Boone acquired a lot and thus became a member of what is considered the first settlement in Kentucky, antedating his own at Boonesboro, by about a year.

In the Boone Hollow and Red Hill section of Rockcastle County are to be found many legends concerning Daniel Boone and his presence there, at one time or another. Somewhere in the county is a spoon, made from a buffalo horn and bearing the initials D.B. The old gentleman who owned it when I saw it claimed to be a descendant of Boone himself but did not care for his ownership of the spoon to be known, no doubt fearing attempts at the theft of it. The old gentleman who owned it when I saw it claimed to be a descendant of Boone himself but did not care for his ownership of the spoon to be known, no doubt fearing attempts at the theft of it. The old gentleman who owned it when I saw it claimed to be a descendant of Boone himself but did not care for his ownership of the spoon to be known, no doubt fearing attempts at the theft of it.

The real Daniel Boone did not fare too well at the hands of his fellow-Kentuckians. In the very beginning he was built to advise them to return to the settlements. On his way in, he and his companion, Michael Stoner, stopped off at a new settlement being begun at Harrodsburg. While there, Boone acquired a lot and thus became a member of what is considered the first settlement in Kentucky, antedating his own at Boonesboro, by about a year.

Among his own people in Kentucky he was not so fortunate. He was even suspected by Logan, Callaway and others of disloyalty to the whites and over-friendliness with the Indians and was subject to a court trial, in which his innocence was established. Being of a simple and trusting nature, he was cheated out of most of his vast the child to her mother. We had been needed that way when, for some reason I enquired as to the whereabouts of Jane, our eight-year-old. She simply wasn't there. We turned around once again and headed back to town and home and discovered her at a neighbor's house where she had gone after friends from church had delivered her home and we weren't there. Oh, well, I guess that will end well, but I am ashamed to admit, but I might as well. I completely forgot about the Blood Donor Program which was scheduled for Tuesday at the Mt. Vernon Elementary School. But, from a report I received, I wasn't the only one who forgot about it. It seems that out of the ones who showed up, only eight qualified. Now, this is a good program and gives us a chance to help ourselves and the people in our community. I don't think I fully explained the program last week and I am going to try again. It works this way: Rockcastle County has a quota of 330 pints of blood. This means that if there are 330 many qualified donors, then in case of a natural disaster hitting the county, any resident of the county would be qualified to receive any amount of blood needed without charge. However, if this quota is not reached, then all donors who qualify to give a pint of blood will receive protection for themselves and their families without charge, regardless of the fact that the county's quota was not reached. I hope I have made it clearer and that there will be a better showing at the next blood drawing which is scheduled for Broadhead some time in August.....
