good as their haul included thirty-seven King Mackerel and one Benita. The party caught the most fish caught on any run for the first part of the fishing season in Panama.

It's Barbecue Time - "Outdoor Season" and Picnic Time

If you're planning a picnic, you'll want to use a good well-insulated cooler. The old one with the broken lid may not be a safe one for keeping cold foods cool. Use plenty of ice (but not dry ice) and do not open the cooler unnecessarily. Leave it in a shady spot to help keep the ice from melting too fast. Making a salad: Preparing chicken for frying? Don't use the same cutting board unless you clean all work surfaces with soap and hot water. Never place cooked, ready-to-serve meat or poultry on the same surface or in a utensil used for the raw product (unless you clean all work surfaces with soap and hot water. Never place cooked, ready-to-serve meat or poultry on the same surface or in a utensil used for the raw product (unless you have completely sanitized that surface). Wash your hands often during preparation of foods and when cooking outdoors. Use disposable wash cloths, plates and utensils, if practical. Salmonella and Clostridium perfringens may not leave any tell-tale signs that they are around. Avoid them. Remember keep cold foods cold and hot foods hot - an individual point to know.

Card of Thanks

We, the family of Grace Mae Jones, would like to thank all of our friends and neighbors who were so kind to us during the sickness and death of our beloved wife and mother. Thanks to everyone who sent flowers, food, cards and any other acts of kindness that were shown.

eggs - the oven method. Put egg in custard cup in shallow baking dish with a tablespoon milk and beat with butter or margarine. Bake at 325° until firm as desired.

Alternates for meat? Consider dry beans, eggs, dry peas or lentils - or peanut butter.
Some fruits and vegetables do not generally make satisfactory products when frozen. They include green onions, lettuce and other salad greens, radishes, tomatoes (except as juice or cooked).

Yes, you can freeze celery. Select crisp, tender stalks, free from coarse strings and pithiness. Clean thoroughly, trim and cut. Heat three minutes in boiling water. Cool and drain. Pack in containers, seal and freeze. (Leave head space of 1/2 inch).

You may safely refreeze most frozen foods that have thawed if they still contain ice crystals or if they are still about 40° F.

Stewed tomatoes are ideal for freezing. I just assured him that there was nothing to worry about because I had the situation well under control, when I had just assured him that the ramp leading into the lake and went completely under.

By Pertina M. Anderskin
The only thing wrong with vacation time is that it draws to an end much too quickly and I suppose that is true whether it's a three-day trip such as ours or a ten-day trip as we had originally planned. The pressure of work forced us to return on Sunday but the time spent at Kenlake State Park was perfect. The weather there cooperated beautifully. our old son was nearby and able to get to her quickly and hang on until I could get there and haul her in. Besides to say, the look I did received from Jim spelled out "I told you so" better than any words could. I really don't know what people who vacation without children do with their time, but I intend to find out one of these days. Of course, by that time, I will probably be so old that I just might assure him that state parks provided at most three racks so.....

That was about the only incident that in any way marred our trip though. If you discount the time that we were playing shuffleboard and Rick, our son, was trying desperately to knock I did off the "10 off" portion of the perfect. The weather there cooperated beautifully. our (Cont. to 10) accommodations were ideal, and the children were on their best behavior for a change.

When we first arrived, an incident occurred which gave me cold chills because I thought it might be an omen of things to come but happily it wasn't. You see, our cabin sat right on Kenlake and there was a foot ramp leading into the lake. We had put our boat in at the dock and brought it around to the shore just below our cabin and my husband and I were standing there discussing the relative merits of whether the children should be allowed to stand on shore and skip stones into the lake or whether they should be kept strictly off the shore because, as Jim put it, "You don't know, they could step off and sink into water twenty feet deep. I had just assured him that there was nothing to worry about because I had the situation well under control, when I had just assured him that the ramp leading into the lake and went completely under.

Luckily, my twelve-year-old son was nearby and able to get to her quickly and hang on until I could get there and haul her in. Besides to say, the look I did received from Jim spelled out "I told you so" better than any words could. I really don't know what people who vacation without children do with their time, but I intend to find out one of these days. Down On The Farm

By: Roy G. Brown Assistant Vice President Cumberland Production PCA

Today we are "Down on the Farm" of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Norton in the Ottawa Community of Rockcastle County. They farm 191 acres of good production land.

Bill was cutting red clover and timothy hay with his new Hesston haybine you see in the above picture. Their livestock consists of about one hundred head of beef cattle and, of course, everyone knows of their riding horses of which they have nine. Bill has been President of the Rockcastle County Saddle

Club ever since it was organized.

Their crops consist of about 13,000 lbs. of tobacco, 14 acres of corn, 10 acres of oats and their hay and pasture.

Bill is also manager of the Armour Milk Plant in Mt. Vernon which serves Rockcastle and adjoining counties. They also own the Norton Insurance Agency. Bill has been an Agriculture teacher in the county and a promoter of Agriculture and industry here.

They purchased the farm where they are now residing last year. They have done an excellent job of getting a very good farming program started. They need to have much recognition for such a good job "Down on the Farm."

on there, and hit the disc with such force that the last time we saw it, it was turned on its edge heading straight for the lake - which is all downhill from the shuffleboard court. That was a funny incident though, except for the State Park people who own the discs. With the new Cumberland Parkway the trip only took five hours, even at the 55 mph limit which beats the old eight-hour trip at 70 mph all to pieces. But, we're back home and will probably remain here for the rest of the summer except for perhaps one more short excursion.

Sorry about that, neighbors.....

Keeping Cool This Summer - Don't over-cool. A five-degree change in your thermostat setting can mean a substantial decrease in your operating costs. Raise your setting to 76 degrees or 78 degrees, as recommended by most air conditioning specialists. For maximum comfort, don't try to keep the inside temperature more than 15 degrees cooler than the outside temperature.

Garbage System is Main Topic Of Fiscal Court Session

Magistrate Ernest Mason had a few questions ready for Tuesday's meeting of the Rockcastle County Fiscal Court.

Foremost of Mr. Mason's questions concerned the garbage collection system, presently being financed by the County with Revenue Sharing funds. Mr. Mason told the Court that according to the contract signed with Kenneth Cromer and Guy C. Martin in March of 1973, the garbage was to be collected at the thirty-three different pick-up points in the county for a total of $13,975.00 yearly.

However, Mr. Mason said that in the fourteen months the system has been in operation, over $25,000 has been paid to Mr. Cromer and Mr. Martin.

This question touched off quite a long discussion with County Clerk Clifford Hales being asked to produce the original bid specification and proposal by the two men awarded the bid. The bid proposal set the total of the bid at $13,957.00 per year for pick-up once a week at thirty-three pick-up points and a fee of $22.00 per month for each container added to the original thirty-three.

Mr. Cromer told the Court that since the system's inception, seven barrels had been added to the original amount and that there were at least two hundred extra pick-ups per month for which they charged $5 per pick-up, over and above the regular one-a-week collection which was included in the original bid price.

Mr. Martin also told the Court that at two points near Mt. Vernon, the containers were emptied daily, seven days a week and that at all but four sites, collection was made at least twice a week.

However, Mr. Mason still said that he felt something should be worked out, whereby the cost to the county for the garbage collection system would not be so out of line with the original bid price. The men were asked to continue garbage collection for another month under the present system and the matter would be taken up again at the August meeting.

Mr. Mason also brought up the question of the Recreation Center at the Library. He said that it was his understanding that the Center was presently closed and thought it would be a good idea if the county would consider leasing the premises out to an individual to run it as a Recreation Center and restaurant. However, the other magistrates were disinclined to make a definite decision on the Center at the meeting and the matter was held over until the August meeting.

In other business, the Court hired Delno Mink as Dog Warden to replace Curt Roberts who resigned that post recently and stipulated that Mr. Mink was to make a report once a month to the Fiscal Court concerning the operation of his office. Mr. Mink may be reached by calling 256-2588. The Court also voted to borrow $30,000 from Citizens Bank in Brodhead and deposit it in the Bank of Mt. Vernon to pay operating expenses of the county until tax money is received later in the year and also named Citizens Bank as depository for the County's Revenue Sharing funds and the Bank of Mt. Vernon as depository for the county's General Funds.

The county also entered into an agreement with K Service Company of Lexington to overhaul the air conditioner compressor and to check out the fan coil units in all the offices in the Courthouse for a total of $2,730 plus any parts needed to repair the fan coil units.

office and to the Magistrates. Of course, the amount that may be made by County officials was also raised from $12,600 to $14,200, including salaries and fees.

The salary schedule set-up is as follows:

- County Judge - $9,600 salary, plus fees not to exceed $14,300; County Attorney - $600 salary per year, plus fees not to exceed $14,300; County Clerk - $600 salary per year, plus fees not to exceed $14,300; County Clerk Deputy Hire - $12,000 to be paid from fees collected by County Clerk; Sheriff's Deputy Hire - $12,000 to be paid from sheriff's fees; Janitor - $250 per month; Treasurer - $175.00 per month; Magistrates - $260.00 per month (a motion on which Magistrates Wren and Mason voted no); Circuit Court Clerk - $600 salary per year plus fees not to exceed $14,300 and the Coroner - $150 per month.

ENTERTAINERS INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Five local entertainers were injured late Sunday night when their car left the highway at Charleston, West Virginia.

Ferry Behrens, driver of the car, reportedly said he reached for a cigarette and lost control of the car which left the road and went into a ditch. Mr. Behrens is still hospitalized in Charleston.

Treated and released after the accident were: Joe Clark, his fifteen-year-old son Terry, Tim Behrens, 15, and Chris Robbins.

The entertainers were returning from a weekend engagement in Washington, Pennsylvania.

Miss Susan Dehoner of Taylorsville, State Dairy Princess, is shown crowning Teresa Gail Lawrence, 1974 Rockcastle County Dairy Princess, while Wayne Stewart, Master of Ceremonies, looks on. Miss Lawrence is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lawrence of Route 1, Brodhead. Janet Sue Burton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Burton, was named alternate County Dairy Princess. The outstanding dairy family award this year went to the Billy Lawrence family of Route 1, Brodhead and winner of the dairy heifer, donated annually by the Bank of Mt. Vernon, was Mrs. Marie Burton of Route 1, Brodhead.

daughters, Mrs. Beulah Renner of Indianapolis, Indiana, Mrs. Laura Shepherd of Mt. Vernon and Mrs. Mattie Grace Ponder of Hamilton, Ohio; three brothers, Roy and George of Morehead, and Ray of Atlanta, Georgia; three sisters, Mrs. Clara Bustle of Mt. Vernon, Mrs. Pearl Hasty of Brodhead, and

Mrs. Ruth Fogel of Cincinnati, Ohio; forty-one grandchildren and thirty-six great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 2, 1974 at the Dowell and Martin Funeral Home with Bro. Charles Shivel officiating. Interment was in the Bustle Cemetery.

A CROWS [estimated at over 5,000 persons] was on hand Saturday to take part in the Dairy Day activities. After raining almost all day Friday, the weather cooperated beautifully and the crowd responded in kind with the largest attendance ever.

"This Old Lady Knew What To Do" was the theme of the winning float entered by Norton Insurance Agency. One hundred eleven horses, three two-horse teams, one pony and wagon, the Cox Funeral Home horse and fifteen decorated bicycles also participated in the parade.

George William Griffith, M.D., recently affiliated with Roanoke Memorial Hospital in Roanoke, Virginia, will begin practice on July 15th at Mt. Vernon. Dr. Griffith will be on the staff at the Rockcastle County Hospital and his office will be located in the same office as Dr. George H. Griffith. Dr. Griffith completed his medical training at the University of Louisville Medical School and under graduate work at the University of Kentucky. Dr. Griffith is married to the former Bekki Madras of Mt. Vernon.

JOHN NICHOLS'

Frankfort Watchline

It's nice to know that the state has earned its first $1 million in interest from its overnight investment of state funds.

What's not so nice is the realization that the state could have been earning this kind of money for a heck of a lot longer period than is the case. But it didn't. The bankers -- and we'll name no names -- earned it instead while paying the state a pittance in interest for tens of millions of dollars in idle funds.

We know that the governor has repeatedly defended the methods by which state surpluses are deposited. He's got to defend it, since he's the guy that calls the shots. One of the other bank-deposit polymers, Finance and Administration Chief Charles Pryor, has said more than once "all things being equal, we'll select our friends" when searching for folks with whom to do the state's business.

But the really irksome feature of this issue is that the Ford Administration refused to support a legislative effort to have Kentucky do as Illinois does with inactive state funds: put the deposits up for competitive bidding and allow those willing to pay decent interest have the money.

That proposed bill withered on the vine, literally ignored to death by the House State Government Committee. That panel's excuse, we'd guess, is that the measure wasn't introduced until March 7th.

Last winter the state began investing part of its operating cash balance overnight and during weekends in short-term U.S. Treasury notes. In these days when so many firms are grabbing for money, the ones with the money can charge top interest even for short periods.

Anyway, we learn now of the first $1 million from a state public information handout which says Ford and Treasurer Drezel Davis cite it as "another reason that Kentuckians can be confident that their funds are being invested safely, efficiently and responsibly."

Well, we're not so confident. Are you? What about the shamefully low interest rates that the state was getting from banks for upwards of $60 million.

Why can't Davis, Ford and Pryor do with these funds what's been done for two years with revenue sharing money? An inquiry there shows that for the investment in Treasury notes and the like of more than $86 million -- with more to come -- a return of more than $10 million will have been earned by next June.

We're not especially picking on the Ford administration for laxity in the public interest or for catering to the bankers. These guys just happen to be in office now. Other administrations have done so poorly ... or worse.

We're saying that there isn't that much to crow about, now that the state is finally getting some return from its surplus wealth -- wealth that only the banks have been cashing in on up to now.

Wait and Waste -- Learned the other day that when the U.S. Parks Service was scanning plans for the $2 million renovation of the Old Capitol Building there -- before bestowing a $200,000 grant -- so much time was consumed by the delay that the cost of the project increased by $300,000. Now that's deficit financing -- you lose a hundred grand to get $200,000.

By the way, the $2 million project for which the 1972 Legislature made allocation is now estimated at $3 million.

Ab, Yesterday -- It wasn't so long ago that friends of Parks Commissioner Ewart Johnson called him "governor" and wondered grinningly when he'd announce for Lt. Gov. with Ford's blessing.

But things may have changed. Johnson's had some recent fits with chairlifts and political boat dock landings. However, he sees no change in any status he may have enjoyed months ago and says he'll wait November to test the partisan winds.

Meantime, Jim Gray, the former Transportation Secretary, can be making some broads as the administrator of the fair-haired boy for lieutenant governor. It might be a way to saddle Julian Carroll with a running mate he doesn't want.

Of course, nothing's been said in public, but Gray's appointment as Ford's Senate campaign co-chairman puts him in a unique spot for organizing his own campaign organization for the future.

Meantime, Johnson's still adamant about the benefits of the chairlift now canceled for Cumberland Falls State Park. We tend to agree. The only thing wrong with the project was that someone tried to sneak by with it. Further, Johnson says his agency is not an ecology crusader ... he says that's for others.

Johnson cannot have been helped by the recent controversy, while Gray has had on his what lately just before leaving his Transportation job having become a crusader against overweight trucks and the like. *****

Rockcastle Recollections

Getting away from the more lurid details of the early days of the roads in Rockcastle County set forth in last week's installment, we take up some of the very real practical benefits which followed the coming of the rails. Of prime importance to the county was the fact that James Maret, later to be perhaps the county's all-time outstanding citizen, made his first appearance here as telegrapher and station agent for the L&N.

With the coming of the railroad coal mines were opened, the lumber industry boomed, stove mills were set up, railroad cars were established, iron production greatly increased, now that the market was not limited to the surrounding community. There were indications of a growing demand for crushed stone, used not only in railroad construction but later on in highway development. Cash Crook and Associates worked a vein of coal near Pine Hill equal in quality, it was said, to anything produced by Pennsylvania coal mines; Jacob Sambrook, at Livingston, opened highly productive mines there and another company was busy loading coal at Pleasant Valley, later known as Cove. In an average day twelve carloads of tanbark was being shipped out and Nesbitt was shipping hundreds of thousands of barrel staves, some going into foreign countries.

Along with the increase in outgoing products, the new railroad was bringing in a corresponding increase in incoming merchandise, to the great benefit of merchants and business men. No longer did the stores carry stocks limited by the expense of bringing them in in small quantities, for horse and wagon. It is hard for us to understand at this day just what a difference the railroads brought about in the daily lives of Rockcastle citizens.

D. N. Williams, one of Mt. Vernon's earlier settlers, has gone on record as saying that Mt. Vernon was the only town in Rockcastle County until 1868, when the railroad came through. Soon the village of Gum Sulphur came into being, named for its sulphur water wells. The settlement surrounding Boone's Fork moved down to trackside, where a railway station had been built, named for a Mister Brodhead, one of the road contractors; A station first called Mt. Guthrie, taking its name from the church there, felt the need of another name, since it was located next to Mt. Vernon and it was felt there might be some confusion due to the similarity of names. It was planned to change the station name to McCall, in honor of a local family, but at about that time James Maret, telegrapher at Mt. Vernon, by his alertness prevented a serious train wreck at Mt. Guthrie and it was decided to call the station Maretburg in his honor; the next station South of Mt. Vernon was named Pine Hill, from the pine-clad hill surrounding it, and the settlement there soon succeeded Mt. Vernon in industry and population; Fish Point, selected as the temporary end-of-line had the most rapid growth of all the railroad towns in the county, being both the terminus town and the center of the coal industry. Its name was changed to Livingston, and it settled down to its rapidly increasing industry, further enhanced by the big logging operation carried on there by the Dillon Brothers. It was named for a favorite early minister, known affectionately as "Old Brother Livingston."

In the meantime the Kentucky Central Railroad had reached Sinks, in 1888, going on to Livingston in the following year, where it established a junction with the L&N. The building of this line brought into existence the village of Conway; Wildie (named for Will and Dee Albright, by their grandfather, D. N. Williams); Mullins Station, named for the numerous family of that name; Sinks, so called because it was located at the spot where Roundstone Creek goes underground, to emerge four miles downstream in the "boils," at Livingston.

Whistle stops, instituted mostly as an inducement to land owners in dealing for right-of-way concessions, where trains would stop on signal to pick up passengers but where no stations were erected, included Cummins, Between Brodhead and Mt. Vernon, Cove, between Mt. Vernon and Pleasant Valley, and Quarry, similarly located; Langford's Station, Snyder, Withers and others.

During 1907 work was begun on double-tracking between Corbin and Livingston, which was completed July 1st, 1908. Additional double track was laid between Richmond and Sinks, completed in 1928. In the heyday of railroading several freight trains per day rolled through Rockcastle County and two passenger trains to the south and two to the north were scheduled daily. At that time it would have been hard to make anyone believe that the time would come when the railroads would lose their position of power an affluence, and be forced to curtail, or cancel, their passenger service, depending for their very existence on their freight service. To my mind the railroads of America have gotten a rather shabby deal. They have been forced to build and maintain their own right-of-way, while their rivals, trucking and bus companies, have run on and helped wear out road ways, furnished by the taxpayers' money. Without the railroads which opened the West, the western boundary of our country might well have been established at the Mississippi.

Bringing it closer home, how would Rockcastle County have fared in the earlier days without the Iron Horse? We would have been forced to wait for advancement-until trucks and automobiles came in, which was many years later. Railroads were the salvation of our country in other ways, as well. Furnishing crushed stone to the railroads gave us our most important local industry over the years, while sale of crossties made a living for some residents of areas less suited to agriculture than others. It is not to be forgotten that the huge tax paid into the county treasury by the L&N and associated lines was all that kept Rockcastle from being a pauper county, and largely supported our schools.

In a minor way, passenger trains coming through Mt. Vernon contributed largely to the social life of the town, and the same was true of all railway towns along the line. The evening train brought about the most important and best-attended event of the day. Most of the town, especially the younger folks, gathered at the depot to watch the trains come in and to see who got off and who got on. After the train pulled out the folks proceeded at a leisurely pace down to the post office to wait for the mail train had carried to be put up, following which many of them moved on to the local drugstore for a social hour at the soda fountain, thence home, and the day was satisfactorily concluded. More daring young men, inclined toward night life, met the midnight passenger train, making frequent allusions the following day at the late hour at which they had gotten to bed.

Recent attempts to revive interest in passenger service via rails has not met with much success and we must regretfully conclude that an era is ending - an era of much prosperity and advancement, due in large measure to the mighty locomotives whose lonesome wails once resounded through our hills as if in premonition of the doom which was soon to overtake them.

Insulation is one of the savest places!

Your best chance to save energy and money is through improved insulation.

Insulation keeps your home warmer in winter and cooler in summer. So insulation cuts down on the amount of energy used, the cost of heating and cooling, and probably the cost of repairs since your equipment doesn't have to work as hard or as long.

When you put your money in insulation, you are investing... not spending!

Electricity is too good to waste!
