NEARING COMPLETION - In an effort to meet the State and Federal Air Quality Standards, more than $2.5 million is currently being spent to equip the William C. Dale Power Station at Ford, Kentucky with devices to eliminate flyash from release into the air. The Dale Plant is maintained by East Kentucky Power Cooperative and is one of two generating stations serving electricity to the Jackson County Rural Electric system.

Sanitary sewers or a septic tank should be checked for adequacy, proper functioning and compliance with local regulations.

The electric system should be well insulated and of sufficient capacity and safety to bear the load of all the appliances which will be attached to it. Particularly in old houses the wiring can be unsafe for today's uses.

Both heating and cooling systems need checking for proper performance, regardless of season.

Termite infestation, either past or present, can sometimes be detected, but can also be hidden from view, even when a flashlight is used. Their little mud tunnels are usually the tip off.

The age of the roof should be ascertained by both inspection and inquiry. The average composition roof lasts from fifteen to twenty years.

These are only a few of the many items the buyer of a home should consider before even making an offer, since the offer becomes a binding contract when accepted.

For answers or suggestions to air their consumer problems, Kentucky residents may call on the toll-free Consumer Hotline, 1-800-372-2960, or write the Attorney General's Div. of Consumer Protection, Room 34, Capitol Building, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Vocational School Construction Underway at Eddyville

By: Herb Brock Construction now is underway inside the Kentucky State Penitentiary at Eddyville on a new $500,000 vocational education school.

State Corrections Commissioner Charles J. Holmes said in a recent interview that the new facility should be completed for occupancy by August 1, 1975. The school will accommodate one hundred men.

Holmes said that B. H. Green and Son Contractors, a Paducah-based construction firm, submitted a low construction bid of $334,000, which earlier had been found acceptable by the state Department of Finance and Administration.

An additional $168,000 also has been budgeted to pay for school equipment and supplies. Funds for the project came from the state's budget for 1973-74.

The contractor has 360 days to complete the construction building. It will be located in the heavily fenced part of the 88-year old prison's "security area."

"The main purpose for building the school is to reduce inmate idleness and teach these men skills they can use when they're released," said Holmes.

A report by the 1973 Legislative Research Commission (LRC) said that fully 20 percent of Eddyville's population was idle or stuck in "less than constructive jobs."

Holmes not only forecasts a sharp cutback in the number of idle inmates, but also contends that the new facility will result in increased job opportunities for released inmates.

The school is sponsored jointly by the Bureau of Corrections, Bureau of Vocational Education and the Bureau of Rehabilitative Services. The latter two agencies are part of the Kentucky Department of Education.

Holmes said the Bureau of Rehabilitation will provide $400,000 of the project's total cost and furnish the case workers and evaluatory services. Vocational Education will supply the teaching staff.

part Arthur Reynolds, director of education for Corrections, said the new facility will enable Eddyville to expand its vocational education course-work from four to at least eight courses.

Reynolds said the additional courses will include metal cutting, radio and television repair, plumbing and masonry. Those courses already offered are auto body work, welding, and furnish the case workers and evaluatory services. Vocational Education will supply the teaching staff.

Construction of a new vocational school at Eddyville is part of a continuing effort by the three state agencies called "Operation Restore," begun eight years ago.

The best way to handle catfish is a method long used by Mercury's fishing experts. Slide your hand along the fish's back, feeling for the tail and moving forward. Press your hand against the pectoral and the dorsal fins and push them forward. Hold them in this position long enough to extract the hook, and then release the fish or place it on your stringer.

Checking A House And Lot Before Buying.....

Last week we considered the home buyer's need to make certain he acquires a safe title to his new property. Now we will consider some of the aspects of the house and lot which should be checked.

First, the prospective purchaser should determine that the land is not subject to flooding and has satisfactory drainage in wet seasons. This may require some inquiry in the community. In addition to a physical inspection, if a sump pump is used to offset any surface water problems in the basement, he should make sure that it does the job. Evidence to the contrary will sometimes be visible.

JOHN NICHOLS'

Frankfort Watchline

As one politician said privately the other day, "Wendell ain't doing so hot, but Julian's boys will put him over."

Translated, that means Gov. Wendell Ford is having a bit of trouble as the Democratic nominee for U.S. Senate against Republican incumbent Marlow Cook, but that Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll's supporters will vote en masse for Ford - to get him out of Kentucky, to clear the way for Carroll as governor, because they want Ford or for a combination of all three motives.

It's ironic, assuming the situation to be true, that Ford's political future this time depends not on former state chairman J. R. Miller, his usual benefactor, but on a man heartily disliked by Miller and not at all intimate with Ford.

Yes, we think the margin of victory for Ford rests with the Carroll following, though we don't know about the alleged stumbling in the Ford campaign.

We do perceive that in three recent rallies in large cities, the governor's turnout was possibly less than hoped for - maybe far less, though we can't hear the public relations boys at campaign headquarters gnashing their teeth at this guess.

And that is not to say that Cook is in any enviable position. Far from it. He's got the Nixon albatross firmly around his neck and there is discussion in his party in Kentucky.

In fact, as Cook readily admits, at the height of the campaign he may be spending his days in Washington in impeachment waters instead of traveling around this state.

Ah, me, says Cook, that will hurt indeed. Ah so, say we, it raises an interesting possibility.

Picture this scenario: Wendell charges around the state in the fall, denouncing Cook and the GOP, while Marlow is summoned to Washington to carry out his duties as a senator on a most vital and delicate matter.

Cook issues a statement - let's say, a television address - in which he declares he must stop campaigning because that is secondary to the nation's welfare and his constitutional responsibility. He realizes the risks, he adds, but there are higher things than re-election, and so on.

Meantime, back at the Ford ranch, what next for him? Does he keep hopping around the state carrying on politics while our dedicated senator is hamstringing and silent because of the Watergate legacy?

What would the voters think if Wendell kept firing away like a tireless campaigner that he is while Marlow sat in disciplined splendor in Washington, concerned with greater things?

Don't ask us what the voters might think. We're just setting up a hypothetical situation that is not so far from reality as one might think at the moment.

Yes, Cook is having his troubles and Ford looks like the favorite, if only because there are so many more Democrats than Republicans.

But remember that poll during the 1974 legislative session - we understand it was a state administration version - that indicated Ford was the only man who could beat Cook and wouldn't win heavily anyway. Maybe that's really why Ford ran, especially since Carroll wasn't about to be pushed into the Senate grinder.

Step - Go - Did you know that one of the many new state laws allows you to make a right turn at a red light unless prohibited by a sign from doing so?

Watch next time if you can how many motorists are doing so. The law has not been widely publicized.

Our eyeball poll shows men drivers are much more aware than women of the change.

Up - Down - Another new law requires Kentuckians to register their elevators - an estimated 12,000 - with the state Labor Department.

One of a week ago, absolutely nobody had complied. We understand one story went out quoting a state official as saying he guessed the elevators don't realize they have to be registered.

To which one wag commented - prepare yourself for an awful pun - "I guess they're dumbwaiters."

Who makes house calls anymore?

"Why bother?" some people ask. In an age when the house call has almost disappeared from American life, why do we bother to make them? The answer is simple. More people depend on the telephone today for more things than ever before. We simply can't afford to let it break down. That's why if your telephone ever does break down, no matter what the reason, we'll come fix it free. We know what a serious inconvenience an out-of-service telephone can be, and that's why we bother. Because it matters, to us and to you.

I'm beginning to think there must be a little vampire blood in me this summer since ever since hot weather got here I haven't been a bit of use to anyone, including myself, most of the time. I suppose I could honestly lay it off to just plain laziness, but I don't really think so -- I think I have just felt hot weather, which I used to love dearly, get the best of me this year. The vampire blood thought comes in because I have noticed that as the sun sinks in the sky, my energy takes a like upward surge -- so, I don't know but I guess I'll make it.

This feeling could have something to do with the fact that for the first time in my "short" span of years, I have begun to have a weight problem that is bothering me. My mother is about five feet tall and when I was a child, she weighed somewhere in the neighborhood

Drips waste money!

A leaky water faucet that drips one drop per second can drip as much as 650 gallons in a year's time... money down the drain.

The heating of water is the third greatest energy user in your home. So drips waste water, energy and money.

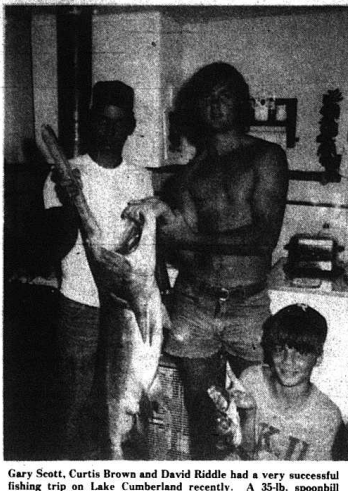

The really silly part of such waste is that the problem of dripping faucets is often corrected by simply replacing a washer.

Electricity is too good to waste!

Opinions From The Office Of The Attorney General

Among opinions released last week from the office of Atty. Gen Ed W. Hancock were the following:

Teacher Retirement at 65 - In response to a question from lawyer Sam T. Jarvis of Muenberg, Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock said that school boards do not have to employ teachers over the age of 65. Between the ages of 65 and 70 a teacher can have only a limited contract, Hancock said, but if the board does not want to re-employ the teacher, it must give notice before May 15.

Ginger Cites Need For Girls' Athletic Plans

"Girls' basketball in Kentucky will cost more than $5 million," Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, state superintendent of public instruction, told the National Federation of State High School Associations meeting recently.

He said that one legislator who promoted the girls' basketball bill, passed by the 1974 Kentucky General Assembly, said that all it would cost would be the price of ten additional uniforms.

Disagreeing, Dr. Ginger listed some of the extra expenses caused by girls' basketball, including salaries for extra coaches, chaperones for girls on trips, additional facilities, equipment, and transportation.

"I'm not opposed to girls' basketball," Dr. Ginger said. "I'm for it, but I think we're shortsighted if we fail to plan accurately and completely for the total cost of all of these programs. I think it's worth it."

Dr. Ginger said that according to information he has, more than three million boys and about a quarter of a million girls are presently participating in interscholastic sports.

Adding that trends indicate that more girls will be competing in the future, he said, "It's time that we, in the schools, start planning to take care of those needs and athletic associations start planning for them in such a way that they can provide for them in the rules and regulations."

He charged educators with providing supervision and leadership in making future decisions concerning whether or not girls will play on the same teams as boys, in which sports they will be competing and other issues.

Concerning facilities, he said, "We should build huge physical plants to take care of this type of program - and I am not just talking about a big arena where we seat thousands of people to see people play. I am talking about plants that offer opportunities for both boys and girls for bowling, swimming, basketball, volleyball, gymnastics and all the rest. I'm talking about investing our money in such a way that it provides 12-months-a-year service to the total community."

Dr. Ginger said he would also like to see funding of interscholastic programs built into the budget and paid for by taxes.

"I think we should not depend upon booster clubs and promotion clubs and the outsiders and the quarterback club and whatever you have to support them.

"I'm suggesting in our state, to every superintendent, when we have a chance to discuss it, that we make (interscholastic athletics) a part of the educational program and we operate it just the way we do math and science and social studies and English....

"Sure, we have gate receipts, sure we have people who are willing to pay for the spectator sports, but we have a lot of sports that are not spectator sports. It seems to me that if we put our money back in the general fund and we budget it through the total program, we are on a sounder basis financially."

...THE COMING OF THE AUTOMOBILE...
By Logan Bryant

One of the great problems of our Rockcastle County settlers was transportation. The Old Wilderness Road certainly was no 1-75. Many of our emigrants, no doubt, came on foot, cutting and hacking their way along old animal trails, through the wilderness and over or around the hills and mountains. Most of their supplies as well as some of those less able to walk came on horseback, in wagons and ox-carts.

Having once settled in Rockcastle their transportation needs were not so great. They became a somewhat isolated and self-sufficient people, growing much of their own food and drawing heavily on the bountiful supply of fish and wild game for additional food and clothes.

Slowly crude highways began to spread in different directions over the county, making it possible for food, coal, building materials, etc. to be transported on sleds, ox-carts and wagons.

Transportation did not show much improvement nor increase until the Civil War. Since Kentucky was somewhat of a highly contested "No-Man's Land" between the North and the South, there was much activity and travel and movement of war supplies and troops through the county, depending upon the fortunes of war. Much effort was spent in keeping the highways passable.

One of the greatest boom and boon to transportation came with the completion of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad when freight and passenger service was established on November 25, 1869. Since this subject was well covered in a previous article, I will not now dwell on it.

Around the turn of the century there came rumors and stories and reports of a new type of transportation that would surpass anything that Rockcastle County or the World had ever known - The coming of the Automobile. We were skeptical but we did have hopes.

Our county is hilly and the roads then were rough and rugged. The material from which these roads were made depended upon just particular strata of old Mother Earth you happened to be passing through. Within a few miles you might travel over a road of blue-clay, shale, red-clay, limestone, and sand and sandstone. On the hills you would often find deep gullies down the road. "Nigger-head" rocks were used freely but not too smoothly to fill the worst mudholes on the more level stretches. One of the favorite places for locating a road was down a creek-bed.

The combination of bad roads with the crude undeveloped cars of that day did not make for pleasant economical transportation, even though gas was 8c per gallon.

With roads and cars as they were, it took a brave soul to travel through Rockcastle. Our neighboring counties to the south had roads just as bad. There were no bridges. The river ford at Livingston was deep and dangerous but this hazard was overcome for a time by driving over the railroad bridge, bumping over the ties and trusting a train wouldn't beat you across. The L & N eventually stopped this practice.

It was against this background that my two brothers and I pooled our money and our credit, in 1910, to buy a new Model T Ford. We did this with some misgivings of our own and against the sound advice of our friends and especially, the banker. Rockcastle County at that time was not a fit home for a car.

A new Model T touring car then sold for $375.00, delivered, and since we had become dealers we got a discount.

We boarded Train No. 24 early one morning for Louisville to get the car. I was to be the chauffeur. I had never been in a city and had never driven a car. However, I had studied the Ford Manual, that told how to drive and care for the car, from cover to cover and practically knew it by heart. But theory alone doesn't make a good driver.

One of the Ford Factory men drove us through the heavy city traffic, set me under the wheel, got us in high gear and jumped off the car, leaving us on our own. Many things happened that day, but to make a long story short, we got to Bardstown by dark and put up there for the night. The next day we were able to reach home - thanks to good weather and good luck.

Roads were not good, even in the more prosperous sections of the state. Near many of the worst curves were horn advertisements telling the driver to sound "Klaxon", a horn which the modest Model T could not afford. There was practically no road signs or markers to guide the stranger on his way and many enquiries had to be made.

Selling Model T's here at that particular time was not a profitable venture. Luckily, my brothers had railroad jobs and I was just out of school. The first car was sold to Mr. R. H. (Teed) Hamm of Brodhead. The road to Brodhead was so bad that I found it necessary to walk the distance down the railroad to complete the sale and catch Train No. 23 back home. My best business came from a small garage and a home-made gas pump; there was no competition.

It was about this time that many of our own citizens began to realize the need for better roads. We were getting tired of being hemmed in. A strong movement took shape to secure them. This movement was spearheaded by Col. James Marx and his Mt. Vernon Commercial Club. Few people ever worked harder and

Insulation: the key to the economy of Electric Heat

Let the facts speak for themselves:

- Home built: 1968
- Living area: 1460 square feet
- Heat: electric ceiling cable
- Computed heating cost: $183 annual average
- Maintenance cost: 5 years, $15

Homes with cost figures like these are normal examples of electric heating costs. We have thousands more. The key to that economy is proper insulation. This home had ceiling R-32 walls, R-16 floor, R-13. That's where we come in. If you or your contractor calls us we can help you plan the most economical installation.

It's wise to use electricity...use it wisely!

more persistently for good roads than did he; and due credit has since been given him, on a state and national level.

It took money to build roads, especially in Rockcastle County. There was no state or federal aid. The County had to do it all. This being the case, it is not surprising that fierce opposition developed. An election was called to vote on a $100,000 bond issue to build a county road system and intense interest was centered around this election. The bond issue carried but the election was hotly contested.

Because of the bitterness caused by this election as well as the "status quo" position taken by many citizens, the issue of Horse Against Car became pronounced. For awhile the horse became king of the highway, oftentimes taking the better side of the road. Whether right or left, looking perhaps with disdain at a stuck-in-the-mud flivver. Old Dobbin oftentimes was very temperamental, too, and had to be led by the car by an apologetic driver - not always with kindly remarks from Dobbin's boss.

$100,000 was a lot of money back then, but it wasn't nearly enough to give us an adequate road system. But it was a good starter and every dollar was stretched to the limit even though we knew little about road building. Before this money was used up a fair grade, according to the standards of that day, was secured to the Lincoln line and part way to Berea and Livingston, but they were not surfaced and motoring was still dependent upon the whims of the weather.

The County had gone its limit. But where there's a will, there's a way. Work days were being periodically held on the road to Berea and business and college men from Berea would meet with their folks from Mt. Vernon and the farmers along the way with their teams. The ladies furnished the dinners. A lot of good work was done.

The Chambers of Commerce from Ashville, Knoxville, and Cincinnati, as well as the AAA, came to our aid. The state got where they would furnish prisoners to help as well as a limited amount of equipment and eventually direct state aid became available.

It was about this time that the main North-South road from Cincinnati south through Mt. Vernon became known as the "Dixie Highway" and some years later was assigned a preferred route number of US-25. Several years later another important highway from Mt. Vernon through Louisville and on North was given the Route Number of US-150. And now we have I-75, the heaviest travelled highway, no doubt, in Kentucky. Good black-top roads fan out in most every direction over our County, adding to a system that has cost millions of dollars to build and maintain, a system that is still being improved and added to.

Today the great bulk of our travel and freight service is by cars, buses and trucks. Our mail comes over the highways and even our school children are transported to and from school by bus.

Of course, we old timers miss the horse and buggy and the old freight locals and passenger trains that served us so faithfully and well in their day. But time and progress have marched on to a new day in transportation. Now just about every person in Rockcastle County either owns a car or has access to a car or truck or bus that will take him most anywhere he wants to go within our county or state or nation on short notice, quickly, comfortably, economically. This is competition that old Dobbin and the Choo Choo trains just couldn't meet.

"RAMBLINGS"

of 150 pounds. I always felt very smug and superior to her because, after all, I was 10 inches taller and very thin. Getting tired of my lording it over her one day, she remarked then, "You had better enjoy it now because I imagine that when you begin to reach the age I am now you might not be so thin yourself." Of course, at that time, Mother must have been all of 45 or so and I can remember thinking at the time - "I'll never get that old." Well, I'm not yet but the weight has begun arriving. It's really a problem because if you don't have any willpower, as I sadly lack, then you just keep adding the weight, a few pounds at a time or more. Jim has always talked down my feeling that I might be picking up a few pounds until our last vacation when I mentioned that it was hard to run around with the pool taking care of children with your stomach sucked in all the time - of course, waiting expectantly for his quick denial that I had gained an ounce. If I had that it looked perfectly fine. No such denial was forthcoming, instead he said "Yes, I know what you mean but when you hit a certain age, the pounds just seem to come on their own." If he had been standing closer to the edge of the pool, I swear I would have pushed him in. I have decided not to worry about it, though, because it seems that when I do it only makes the sight of food more tempting. Besides the hot weather bothering me, this is also the time of year when I wish I hadn't insisted quite so strongly that Jim put out the great big garden he did. I imagine this winter I will once again be thankful that he did but right now - I don't know. It seems that I never get to sit down and just watch television anymore; I have to break beans simultaneously and my stove never looks clean anymore on top because the canner seems to always be going and keeping it messed up. It's quite a job but I will have to admit that Jim is quite helpful. He has helped can beans, peaches, pickles, jam, jelly, apple butter, etc. and not made too many remarks about "having to put it out and harvest it, too." Of course, you other men might help more if your wife was given to lying down in the kitchen floor and crying at the sight of you bringing in another bushel of green beans to do something with. It's almost to the point that the joy is gone from being able to get in a group of women and say, "I have put up fifty quarts of green beans already." They are kinda inclined to give you a "so what" look at this time of year, too.....

FRUITS AND BERRIES:
 Most fruits are suitable for freezing in some form. Some may be frozen whole, requiring only to be properly ripened and washed. Certain fruits must be peeled and sliced; others may be made into puree; the juice of some may be frozen. Most fruits should be fully prepared and sweetened for serving or cooking before being packaged and frozen.

Selection - Select a variety of fruit for freezing that is recommended for eating fresh or a newer variety which has been found to be especially suitable for freezing. As a rule, fruits which have appealing color and pronounced flavor... evenly ripened and uniform in size and shape... are best for freezing.

Proper selection is very important. Immature or overripe fruits should not be frozen. Harvest or choose fruits when they are fully developed and well colored, but before they become soft.

Practically all fruits are improved for freezing if they are spread out in a clean place and allowed to mellow and ripen thoroughly. Peaches, plums, figs, and most berries are improved by storing overnight. Apples, pears and some peaches require storing several days. However, when final preparation for freezing is begun, it should be completed as quickly as possible; usually, within an hour. For this reason, large quantities of fruits should not be prepared at one time. For best results, freeze only fruit that is ripe or just right for eating out of hand.

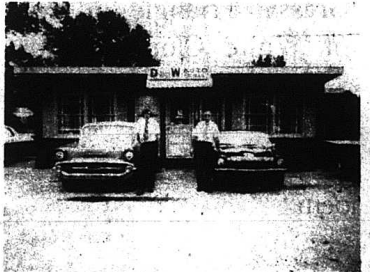

Utensils - Since iron causes many fruits to darken, knives, mixing bowls, pans, and other containers should be of stainless steel or other non-corrosive material.

Packaging - Since practically all fruits are packed with sugar or syrup, special precautions should be taken to see that the packages do not leak. For this reason only rigid containers are recommended, such as the Ball Can-or-Freeze jars and Ball plastic Freezer

Many of the pro summer anglers find it not too difficult to harvest game fish from Kentucky's abundant waters. Many choose to cast for black bass during nights of ample moonlight, while others choose to cast the jumps for both black and white bass especially in the calm waters of the major lakes in the early mornings and late evenings.

Of course, there are also those who choose to troll or use live bait to harvest their choice fish.

However, the average angler finds summer fishing most difficult due not only to their lack of knowledge about the habits of fish during this time but also because of the excess of other water activities, such as swimming, boating and water skiing.

During the summer, many successful fishermen avoid the large lakes and concentrate on other less crowded areas which are known summertime producers.

One such area is the tailwaters below the major lakes. The water released from the dam is generally cool and well-oxygenated, and bait fish are abundant. For example, the tailwaters of both Barkley and Kentucky lakes offer excellent summer fishing for catfish, crappie and white bass. Also, as only a few fishermen know, black bass casting along the river bank shore line is outstanding, and even a limit string would not be too difficult to accomplish for those who give it a try.

Still other tailwaters, such as that below the dam of Cumberland Lake, are hot spots for rainbow trout, especially during those periods of low flow. Then, at times both crappie and white bass are also put in the cooler box in limit numbers from this same area.

In fact, the majority of tailwaters throughout the state will afford some excellent opportunities for mixed strings of both game and rough fish, including excellent catfish harvests.

These not wishing to travel too far from home have found that float fishing or wading smaller streams afford good fishing with both live and artificial bait.

For a few hours of fishing in many sections of the Commonwealth, the state-owned lakes are fine for black bass, crappie, bluegill and channel catfish.

For those who want to take fish during this hot weather period, a good tip to remember is to fish in the early mornings and late evenings and if you are knowledgeable, then try night casting for black bass.

juice) until the solution is clear. Use just enough cold syrup to cover the prepared fruit after it has been settled by jarring the container.

2. Sugar Pack: Very soft sliced fruits, such as peaches, strawberries, figs, de-seeded grapes, plums, and cherries will yield sufficient syrup for covering if the fruit is layered with sugar and allowed to stand ten to fifteen minutes. Mix ascorbic acid with the sugar (if needed). Some whole fruits may be coated with sugar and frozen.

3. "No-sugar" Pack: Fruits such as raspberries, cranberries, blueberries, scalded apples, and rhubarb freeze successfully without the addition of sugar. No head space is left in this pack.

4. Non-calorie Sweetener Pack: Sugar substitutes are used for people on special diets. Consult your physician to be sure you are using the right kind. Most manufacturers have directions for using their product. Write them for information.

Preventing Discoloration: Light-colored fruits such as peaches, apples, and pears darken on exposure to air. To prevent this discoloration these fruits may be pre-treated.

Dissolve one teaspoon of ascorbic acid and one tablespoon of citric acid in one gallon of cold water. As soon as the fruit is peeled, drop it into this solution before it is prepared for freezing. (If using an ascorbic acid mixture, follow manufacturer's recommendations as to amounts.)

To further reduce discoloration, you may: To Syrup Pack: Add one-half teaspoon ascorbic acid to each quart of syrup or four one hundred milligram Vitamin C tablets, or three tablespoons of lemon juice.

To Sugar Pack: Thoroughly mix one-half teaspoon ascorbic acid to each pound of sugar before mixing it with the prepared fruit.

Tip: To keep fruit under syrup, crumple a piece of freezer wrap and place it in top of the container. This prevents discoloration by keeping fruit under the syrup.

Preparation: Once preparation begins, work with small quantities and work rapidly.

Gently wash the fruit in several changes of cold water and drain. Prepare as for fresh. Use your favorite pack.

Filling Containers: Fill the container so as to leave no air pockets. For dry pack, fill the container full. For syrup pack, leave one-half inch head space in quart containers and one-fourth inch head space in pint containers. Ball plastic freezer boxes have the fill line marked for you. Wipe mouth of container with a clean wet cloth.

Seal: Remove all air and seal container so it is air-tight. Label: With name of product, date and any other information needed.

Quick Freeze: Place sealed packages in food freezer in single layers, leaving one inch space between each package. They should freeze solid in less than twenty-four hours.

Store: Stack frozen containers compactly and keep stored at 0° F. or lower until ready to use.

Also, let's try to keep our county, state and nation clean and beautiful. We see so many ugly sights. Rockcastle and other counties have now provided trash containers placed on roadsides but some people don't even put their trash inside. They throw it outside and make such a mess. The one we have on Scaffold Cane in the Rockford vicinity is a "Disgrace." Come on, let's try to do better. Thank you.

4-H HORSE SHOW - WILDERNESS TRAIL AREA

The 4-H Horse Show and Camp will be held on July 19-20 at the J. M. Feltner Memorial 4-H Camp. Registration fee for each person attending the camp, both youth and adults, will be $4.00 each. This fee will include the evening and breakfast meal and a place to sleep. Persons attending the 4-H camp may register on Friday, July 19th, after 2 p.m. The evening meal will be served at 6 p.m.

4-H Ring Classes will be based upon the 4-H State Fair rings. We will determine what classes will be necessary for the Show on Saturday morning following registration. The horse show will take place at the Golden Eagle Ranch show ring, adjoining the J. M. Feltner 4-H Camp grounds. We have permission to use a few stalls at the Eagle Ranch if some of the members have some horses that need this type of overnight facilities.

Serving on the Area Horse Show Committee in plans for this year's show were: Seldon Hall, Hubert Allen, Kennan Turner and myself. Dr. Monty Johnson met with us on June 17th to discuss the show and said he would arrange for judges for this event.

The following information will be of interest to your 4-H club members. Seldon Hall has some friends of 4-H that have given a one-year old unregistered quarter horse which will be given to a 4-H member that has registered at the Camp and Show. The lucky 4-H'er, to be eligible to receive the quarter horse, must register on Friday with his horse and be present and participate in the show on Saturday, July 20th. The animal will be given away based on a drawing rather than on a point system.

REDUCE PINKEYE PROBLEMS IN YOUR BEEF CATTLE HERD

Pinkeye is a serious problem in some beef cattle herds in Kentucky. There is no single cause for pinkeye, but there are several practices which you can follow to help reduce pinkeye problems, according to Russell Breidahl, extension beef cattle specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

One practice which Breidahl recommends is clipping pastures before seedheads develop on the grass. These seedheads may irritate the eyes of the cattle and increase the chances of pinkeye infection.

Flees sprain certain kinds of pinkeye. Breidahl recommends repeated spraying of the faces of cattle with Ciodrin insecticide to control face flies. Dust bags, face wipers and backrubbers also help in controlling flies, and these should be located near or on the salt box, on the way to water, or in shaded, loafing areas.

An adequate amount of Vitamin A helps keep eye healthy. Cattle on good pastures should be getting enough Vitamin A. However, if drought sets in and your pastures turn brown, you should provide supplementary Vitamin A to your cattle.

Breidahl says animals which have pinkeye should be separated from the herd and the infected eyes should be treated with antibiotic ointment.

Covering these eyes will protect them from light and foreign matter and will speed recovery. A simple patch made of burlap and held in place with rubber cement seems to be effective, and commercial patches are also available.

If this treatment does not bring about improvement in animals with pinkeye, you should consult your veterinarian. Viral diseases such as IBR may be the cause of pinkeye. Your veterinarian can recommend a vaccination program for controlling such diseases.

A recent study at UK's West Kentucky Substation at Princeton showed that calves with pinkeye weighed considerably less at weaning time and as yearlings when compared to calves the same age without pinkeye. This would indicate that your efforts to control the disease will be well-rewarded when you pick up the check from the sale of your calves.

Letters To The Editor

A Republican, A Kentuckian, A Korean Veteran, A Believer in and supporter of Richard M. Nixon our President.

I've heard Watergate, Impachment and the President being downgraded, talked about by both Democrat and Republican officials until this morning, or boy has become sick. According to our Constitution and the law, a person is innocent until proven guilty. Yet, the President has been guilty from the start and has never been tried. Now they have started on the Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. There has never been two men equal to these two. The President has to be an extraordinary human being, to do what he has done for the Country and not receive anything but ridicule and damnation.

Are American soldiers dying anywhere in the world in some stupid war. "No." This is the first time in a great number of years that the U.S.A. is at peace with the world. People are living better, making more money here in the United States than any country on Earth. There's only one President who has brought this about, Richard Nixon. Johnson didn't do it; Kennedy didn't do it; he brought us the longest and costliest war in US History. Nixon stopped it.

Eisenhower, a Republican, stopped the one Truman, a Democrat, started. I was in the one. How many Democrat Presidents started a war, and how many Republican Presidents stopped what they started. I am a Republican and not against the Democrat party. I have a lot of good friends who don't admit and respect who are Democrats. My old greyheaded grandfather, a Spanish War Vet, was a statesman and a great man.

My father, an old Kentucky mountain man, was a Republican. From them I learned very much. On a day he had frozen him in Korea, eating a can of cold pork and beans, my grandfather (the Democrat) was a Republican, who was going to be President who would bring us boys home. Dwight D. Eisenhower did just that!

Now, these Democrat and Republican bigwigs who are heaping so much dirt upon the President are only doing this trying to make their own name and make a name for themselves. Or, they are all communist trying to turn the people into a two party system so that they will quit going to the polls and voting, then a few in power meatheds will appoint a President, and then we will be under a dictator.

Why don't these Democrat and Republican Senators who have created the Watergate investigating committee clean out their own closets. I never heard of any carried on the Watergate affair got blown up on television. It reminds me of an old Kentucky toadfrog waiting for a fly to come along so he can flip his tongue out and catch it. Lowell Wyker, a pretty boy no one will notice trying to get attention, and all the rest, what would happen if someone started investigating them and their dirty work. They would probably dig a hole and crawl in it, trying to escape the party.

The President and his men may have done things that were not right. But they probably would have done the same thing handed down from past Administrations. A lot of good men have been destroyed for nothing. Why don't they start checking the people who worked with Johnson and Kennedy.

How much fuss was ever raised over the contributions that were made to the other Presidents. John Kennedy was a rich and good-looking boy. Money is what put him in the White House. Lyndon Johnson came from Texas with nothing, yet he was a wealthy man - how did he get it? If I had a Million Dollars and wanted to give it to the President, that is my business, or it would have been when this was a free country.

The murder of a President was over with, or hushed up, more conveniently than this little Watergate caper. Some time in the future the truth will come out. Oswald shot the President; then like a gangster movie, Jack Ruby shot Oswald on Television for all the world to see. Then Ruby was supposed to have died from natural causes; yet all of this dirty work was hushed up very quickly.

But how many thousand boys did Richard Nixon bring back across the big pond, and there was not a one complained of getting his feet wet. Even the drowning of a young girl by a United States Senator can be quietly downed on the Democrat Headquarters.

Why don't the people get behind the President with their prayers and support. We should care a liveness of him and put it on top of the Empire State Building or put it on an satellite so the world could see him every day.

Most of the world has seen him. What other President ever went behind the Iron Curtain, or to Red China - now to the Middle East?

Richard Nixon has - and to Russia again.

Mr. President, stay in the office that we, the people, elected you for. Don't let the snobs who are jealous of you put you out.

I am behind you all the way with my support and prayers: Even myself, if you need me.
