an experienced woodsman, named Crabtree, came along Boone's Trace soon after it was located and told him that it was a rather crooked route and that he could straighten it somewhat. At Boone's request that he do so, Crabtree split of from the trace near the headwaters of Roundstone Creek and made certain changed which were incorporated into the road, but at points now

Colonel Richard Henderson and party following Boone along this new-cut trail only a few days later was able to make much better time, as indicated by the journal kept by William Calk, a member of another party which joined them along the trail and traveled with them all the way to Boonesboro. Also falling in with Henderson's group on its way through Powell's Valley and traveling with them as far as The Hazel Patch, were Benjamin Logan and William Gillesgie who, with their slaves, were on their way to locate land for a settlement on the Kentucky frontier. Not being willing to go on to Boonesboro and take up land under Henderson's plan, they continued along the old trail — the Hunter's Path-and Skaggs Trace — to what is now STanford, Kentucky.

Renucky.

Regardless of who gets the engineering credit, Boone or the Buffalo, later road-making activities have proven the wisdom of Rockeastle County being chosen as the corridor for North-South hiphways. I will recall that in 1937, while we were still broadcasting from the completed and ready to move to, we became greatly alarmed over rumors to the effect that the new super highway to be built running south from Cincinnati, wholl leave; the highway then in use, near Richmond or Berea, traveling out Big Hill Country and coming back into the highway at or near London. This would have left Renfor Valley many miles off the new highway and would have completely killed our plans. At about this time, King George and Queen Elizabeth of England, came to America to visit President and Max. Rossevell, As part of most of the state of

Prior to this time, I had become acquainted with a very personable young man who headed one of the many Government projects of that time, with headquarters in Cincinnati. He went along with us to Washington, and when I learned that he was a personal friend of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, I lost no time in a bright connections, he could get to the proper control of the property o

What they were planning for apparently, looking years into the future, was a super-highway North and South, with limited access that could be completely loosed to civilian traffic in case of wartime emergency. Years of planning went into the project. Everything that science and engineering skill money and rissearch could do, was done, and that road, 175, is now a reality, following a median across Bocketale County between old Skarges Trace and the road Daniel Boone cut across an unknown wilderness two hundred years ago, and nowhere is it very far from either.

Maybe the buffalo, Henry Skaggs and old Daniel Boone knew something about laying out roads, after all.

Feed Production and Utilization Suggestions...

Farmers. who do not find feeder call prices acceptable this fall, may want to hold their fall, may want to hold their fall, may want to heavier weights. Many who do this will need more feed. Here more feed for anyone interested in getting higher production and better utilization of feed crops.

1. Some plant species lose quality rapidly after frost and therefore should be grazed or otherwise harvested before frost. These are: cut was been made and by the forex each graze and graze fields can be grazed or mowed about September 10. They should be grazed off again after they freeze down, say about November 1st.

3. Cover crops should be seeded on all two crops fields as early as possible to get maximum spectation with the growth during the fall, winter and early spring than any of the other small grains,

4. Many farmers have striplanted their tobacco for the last few years. Don't forget the feed on these sod strips between tobacco strips.

5. Corn and soybean residues can be either gleaned out of the field with cattle or put into big bales or stacks. If bales or stacks are made from corn stalks, cattle or hors should be used to glean out shattered grain and dropped ears. Young while after being turned into fields from which corn has been picked. Feeding hig bales or stacks can result in feeding losses of up to 50%. Some kind of feeding rack around the bales or stacks will hold losses to a maximum. When no racks are used, enough bales should be before the cattle to provide only one foot of periphery for each rature animal. The settling of Kentucky was not as simple and romantic as we at this distance are want to believe. It was not the gradual invasion of a few daring pioneer families, encroaching upon the dark and forbidding wilderness to establish homes. Back of it all were groups of well organized, well financed businessmen, who envisioned nothing more romantic than ample profits from real estate transactions. One such group was the Loval Land Company, which sent Dr. Walker on the first land hunting expedition into Kentucky in 1750. The Ohio Company is of which Filson's "Kentucke and the Adventures of Col. Daniel Boone," right philosed in 1844, which made Boone's name synonymus, with that of Kentucky.

Boone, however, was not without his detractors: Nathaniel Hart, son of Captaia Nathaniel Hart, a member of the Transvlvania Company, killed by indians near Boonesbrough in 1782, laughed at the idea of Boone as The Great Pathfinder and expressed his opinion that Boone did not cut a bush between Cumberland Gap and Boonesboro, following buffalo paths all the way. William Bush, an early traveller on Boone's Trace, said that the first time he followed it. in 1773, it was a big buffalo road up Roundstone Creek. Unquestionably, Boone took full advantage of road-cutter was by no means an easy one. Felix Walker, who road-cutter was by no means an easy one. Felix Walker, who read-cutter was by no means an easy one. Felix Walker, who traveled with Boone's road-cutting crew, reported that after leaving Rockeastle River, they were forced to cut their way through twenty miles of dead brush (probably blow-downs, such as the downed trees Dr. Walker wrote about on the south side of the river twenty-five vears earlier and similar to those resulting from a torando in the same vicinity in the Spring of 1974). The area indicated by Felix Walker in his journal included Brush area indicated by Felix Walker in his journal included Brush area indicated by Felix Walker in his journal included Brush area indicated by Felix Walker in his journal included Brush area indicated by Felix Walker in his journal included Brush area indicated by Felix Walker in his journal included Brush area indicated by Felix Walker in his journal included Brush area indicated by Felix Walker in his journal included Brush area indicated by Felix Walker in his journal included Brush meetined cutting through thirty miles of thick cane, but that was as no picine and Nathaniel Hart's aspersions on Boone's felorts along that line seem scarcely justified.

Being in the dead brush country previously referred to, their progress was slow as they went down Crooked Creek to its inuction with Roundstone and up that creek to an encampment on Cove Branch, where, near the old Cove Schoolhouse, in 1915, the DAR erected a bronze marker by the spring where the party, at least a part of them, spent the night, Since no trouble was anticipated from the indians, and since the road crew generally consisted of thirty or more men, they often broke up into smaller groups for convenience in camping.

David Singleton, for many years one of our most diligent local historical researchers, believes that after leaving Cove Valley, the Boone party rossed over Buckeye Ridge, coming down to Renfro Creek at a spot near the Old Buckeye Church house, then across the creek and up and over Green Hill, then back down to Roundstone Creek and up that stream to Boone's Gap, on the present line between Rockeastle and Madison Counties, where we leave them to continue their journey to Boonebrough. Others contend that after reaching Roundstone Creek, Boone never left it until he reached its headwaters, which took him through Boone's Gap. The Green Hill cut-off saved a little distance, but the Roundstone route seemed much the more logical and easier to

We do not know who gave Roundstone Creek its name, but it was fairly obvious why that name was chosen. At one time, a number of eliptical-shaped stones could be found along the edge of the stream or on its shoals. These were a pale reddish-brown in color, varying in circumference between the size of a dinner plat to that of a dishpan. When I was a boy, it was a fad among the women and girls in a farm family to have one or more of these odd-shaped stones visible in the front yard as ornaments. They were generally treated with a coat of red wagon paint and were considered to the control of the stones with the control of the deep control of the trunch of

There were several licks along Roundstone Creek, which, no doubt, accounted for the well-worn buffalo trail along it when Boone and his party first appeared on the seene. Probably the principal oner, known as Roundstone Lick; was situated near the head of the stream, and is a call point in the survey separating Rockcastle and Madison Counties. OLD FASHIONED?

SOMETIMES ... When we hear or read about all the bad things happening in the world today, we tend to forget the good. But the good things - old-fashioned to some perhaps - will always be with us. Things like perhaps – will always be with us. Things like kindness, courtesy, compassion, honesty, understanding and a willingness to help. These are the things to which the staff at the Cox Funeral Home are dedicated to groviding. In that – they never fail.

Blood Transfusion: A Medical Act – In response to Doris McDowell, a Louisville nurse, the Attorney General's office says that a registered nurse who has adequate instruction and experience in such procedures may administer blood transfusion under the direct substitution of a licensed physician.

Likewise, a certified nurse anesthetist could ad-minister an anesthetic, under the supervision of a licensed dentist. The decision to administer a blood transfusion administer a blood transfusion would be a medical act since this is part of the diagnosis of the treatment. The nurse perform-ing the administration of a blood transfusion under the careful yeo of a physician is merely the extension of the hands of the physician.

CANNING LATE SUMMER VEGETABLES...

If you have hesitated to can vagetables because of fear of such as the content of the conte

Spanish Sauce
Use firm, sound, red-ripe tomatoes. Do not use the so-called lowacid tomatoes between they are short on flavor. To fill three or four half-pint jars, use:

2 quarts prepared tomatoes 1 medium-sized green sweet 1 medium-sized green sweet pepper
1 small red sweet pepper
1/a cup chopped onion
1/a cup sliced-celery
1 clove garlic - mines or put through garlic press
1/a tsp. dried basil
2 tsp. salt or amount to guit
taste

Wash, rinse and drain vegetables. Scald, core, skin, chop and measure tomatoes. Remove stem and blossom ends from pepper. Discard seeds and cut pepper into small pieces. Combine all ingredients; boil ten
