COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

By: H. Lee Durhan

TIME TO...

1. Fertilize your lawn early in October. In the Bluegrass and Outer Bluegrass regions, apply 1 to 1 1/2 pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 sq. ft. Three to five pounds of ammonium nitrate or urea-form will supply this amount of nitrogen. In the rest of the state, a mixture of 10 to 15 pounds of 10-10-10 mixed fertilizer per 1,000 sq. ft. will supply the needed nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. An early December application of 1/2 to 1 pound of actual nitrogen (1 1/2 to 3 pounds of ammonium nitrate or urea-form) per 1,000 sq. ft. may be beneficial if heavy fall rains and warm weather occurs. Fall fertilization of grass, shrubs and trees will aid overwintering greatly. Wait to fertilize roses until a hard freeze has hardened the wood.

2. Dig up most tender bulbs. However, in much of Kentucky, many are hardy enough to remain in place over the winter, but they need division or separation to prevent crowding and to produce best results. Of these bulbs, gladiolus is probably the most hardy, calla next, and crocus limited to the warmest third of the state. Dahlias should be dug up for best results next season, though they will winter over at times and in favorable locations. 3. Plant hardy spring-flowering bulbs. Consult UK Cooperative Extension Service Leaflet 238, "Spring Flowering Bulbs."

4. Finish fall lawn seeding. How late you can successfully seed will depend on how late it stays warm. 5. Do your fall landscape planting. Fall is usually the best planting time in Kentucky, except for some hard-to-transplant plants such as the flowering dogwood.

6. Control many of the broad-leaved weeds in your lawn from now to early November. Follow the directions in UK Coop. Extension Service Circular 377, "Lawn Weed Control," and Misc. 322-A "1974 Weed Control Recommendations for Established Bird Turf."

7. Put on your tidyhat bug. (Litterbugs are not popular.) City dwellers should put their rubbish where it can be hauled away. Rural dwellers should bury their rubbish deeply if it has no junk value. Put excess leaves in a compost pile, or pit or store them to use for winter protection (if you can keep them from blowing about and from packing too tightly about protected plants). In populated areas, do not burn leaves, prunings or plant tops because of the smog. In rural areas, burn only diseased plant tops, such as peony tops, after removal.

8. Feast your eyes on Kentucky's fall colors, and invite friends from other states to help you enjoy them. **

DOES 'JACK FROST' Really Cause Fall Leaf Colors?

Have you ever wondered why leaves turn color in the fall of the year? The old adage that "Jack Frost has been painting the trees" is usually sufficient explanation for those people who wish only to enjoy the beauty of the fall colors. But for most gardeners this explanation is inadequate because it doesn't tell what is taking place.

Actually, the development of color is the result of a series of nature's chemical reactions; and Frost really plays little part in the process. In fact, in many instances, frost can greatly reduce the amount and brilliance of the color produced.

In an attempt to better understand what is happening, it is necessary to know that there are four broad groups of chemicals in leaves which are responsible for the colors we see. Chlorophylls are the green colors; carotenoids and xanthophylls produce the yellows through reds; and anthocyanins, the blues, purples and reds.

At the end of summer leaves are green because they have large quantities of chlorophyll. The other colors are also present in the leaves at this time but, because of the large amounts of the chlorophylls, the leaves look green to us.

During the bright, clear days of fall, large amounts of sugar are produced in the leaves. However, the nights are dark and cool. These cool night temperatures slow down all the living processes of the tree. Movement of the sugars from the leaf and down to the roots for storage is greatly reduced, leaving large quantities of sugar "trapped" in the leaves. This high concentration of sugars in the leaves results in an increase in the production of anthocyanins.

Also, because of the general slow up of living processes in the plant, chlorophyll is not produced practically any, while others, such as the sumacs, maples and black gum, produce large amounts. For this reason, the leaves on plants will range from clear yellow to clear, bright red.

A heavy frost will actually interfere with fall leaf color by killing leaf tissue, which then turns brown and drops to the ground. For this reason, a dry fall with bright, clear days and cool, crisp nights without heavy frost or storage cold weather, produces the best fall color.

SOMETHING NEW IN SEWING!

Sewing and clothing construction can be more interesting, more pleasure and more professional looking if one tries new sewing aids and new techniques. These can save both time and effort. There can be a great deal of satisfaction in adapting ideas to one's own need and personality. Use such to make sewing more fun and more of YOU. 1. Polyester Rick Rack - it looks just like the cotton rick rack, but it does not shrink, roll up or pucker as some experiences we may have had in other years. You may need to check the amount on the card because some contains 2 1/2 and others, 3 yards.

2. Velcro Dots - are closures which may be used in some instances instead of buttons or snaps or hook and eyes. They are little nylon loops which close by pressing the two layers together. Velcro has been available in inch strips and now the small dots make for easier use and less bulk. Velcro can be purchased by the yard in 3/4-inch width.

3. Soft and Easy Zipper - has a polyester coil applied to a knitted rather than a woven tape. This makes the zipper lighter weight and less bulky and it seems that it will be especially nice for knitted fabrics.

4. Button Togs - are neat little gadgets that allows you to change buttons easily on a garment simply by snapping a new surface in place.

5. Pattern Survey - is available to hold a pattern to the fabric while it is being cut. According to the advertisements, a few squirts is all you need instead of taking time to pin the pattern in place.

6. Stitching Tape - paper-like adhesive tape marked in graduated lines as a guide for stitching. Can also be used to mark fabrics, stabilize stretchy fabrics for stitching, tape hems up to check length, mark buttonholes, guide for top stitching. Some designs to stitch through or stitch along side tape. Tape Stitch and Sewing Tape are brand names. 7. Zipper Tape - A doublefaced transparent tape, when applied to zipper tape then finger pressed to the placket will hold zipper in place without basting for machine application.

8. Reflective Tape - a sew-on reflective fabric for use on jackets, jeans, outerwear for night-time visibility. Packaged in two yard by 1/2-inch, it is washable in water below 130° dry-cleanable.

9. Press-On Designs - motifs are washable or dry-cleanable. Easily applied following directions. Available in variety of designs ranging from initials and flowers to animals and contemporary symbols.

10. Trace-A-Pattern - non-woven, lightweight nylon fabric, strong, durable and drapable for use in making adjustments in patterns. Allows pattern lines and markings to be easily made and clearly show.

11. Tailor Tacker - eliminates needle and thread for marking some fabrics or patterns. Has pattern perforator. Marks both pieces of fabric at same time. When some fabrics will be handled a great deal and where accuracy is a critical point as in tailoring, thread tacks should be used.

12. Seam stick - can be made at home using an unpainted mop handle or use 1 1/2 inch Dowell as for closet rack. Cut this into 24 inch length and saw a flat edge along length to keep it from rolling. Allows pressing to be done exactly on seam with less possibility of marking on right side of garment.

FUSIBLES

Fusible fabrics are either WOVEN or a WOVEN or Sewing Tape are brand names. These may be pressed with steam and heat. Applied between two layers of woven, knitted, or folded fabric, the polymeric resin becomes inflexible and handles like the fabric it is used with and is laundered or dry-cleaned in the same manner. It may be used for interfacing garments, hems and decorating fabrics. The fusibles may not be as satisfactory on the tricotetes, silk and some of the rough textured fabrics. You may wish to try this to hem a garment. Prepare the hem in the usual way for leveling and evening the turn-up. Place the webbing between the two layers of the fabric with the webbing 1/8 inch inside the hem allowance. Hold the three layers together with pins placed as close together as is needed. Steam press the area temporarily in place before fusing permanently. To do this, press lightly with the point of the iron for three or four seconds and remove the pins. Cover the area to be fused with a damp cloth, such as an old tea towel or man's handkerchief. Press for a minimum of ten seconds. Do not slide the iron. Move to the next section, but overlap the previously pressed sections and remove the pins and steam press for an additional ten seconds. Allow the fabric to cool for a few minutes before handling. To test, try lifting one edge. A good bond will not separate. If you find some separation, steam press again.

Fusible fabrics manufactured by different companies may have slightly different instructions. Be sure to follow recommendations for the fabric being used.

Check amount of fusible needed before purchasing. It may be more economical by yard than package.

Poetry Corner A SURE WAY TO A HAPPY DAY

Happiness is something we create in our mind. It's not something you search for and so seldom find it's just waking up and beginning the day. By counting our blessings and kneeling to pray. It's giving up thoughts that breed discontent. And accepting what comes as a "gift from heaven sent"

It's giving up wishing for things we have not. And making the best of what ever we've got. It's knowing that life is determined for us. And pursuing our tasks without fret, fume or fuss. For it's by completing what God gives us to do. That we find real contentment and happiness, too.

50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY
 Fifty years ago wedding bells made Mama and Daddy happy. I know, because God told me so.

This is a long time to love and cherish each other so fine.

Not many marriages last this long, but with the Lord as their leader, nothing can go wrong.

Neighbors and friends call us the ideal family, you see, and that's the way we want to be.

Mama and Daddy are loved by everyone, because they are so much fun.

Their faith in God grows stronger, as the years grow longer.

In their years as husband and wife, there was no trouble or strife.

IV
 Our family is so close together, no matter what the weather.

When burdens seem too hard to bear, God is always there.

They taught us the Christian way to go, years ago.
 No better parents can be found in all the world around.

 When people meet them on the street, they know their friendship can't be beat.

The welcome mat is always out, to anyone who comes about the way.

VI
 Peace and understanding in their lot, and for this they'll never be forgot.

We could never thank them enough for all they have done, as we are their daughters and son.

Nothing is too hard for you to do, to show our love for you.

Good luck, joy and happiness in all you do, you have been so just and true.

God bless you forever and with many more, each one with more blessings than the one

IN MEMORY...

In loving memory of our husband and father, Robert Croucher, who passed away October 3, 1966.

Eight years have passed since that sad day. The one we loved was called away.

The call was sudden, the shock severe. We little thought such grief was near.

Rockets Defeat MMI 20-0

The Rockcastle Rockets excited their way to a four against one loss by soundly defeating MMI Friday night 20-0.

The Rockets' first score came on a run by Kenny Burton, the John Clontz went over for the second one with Tommy Smith making good the extra points and Burton then scored for the third and final touchdown of the game.

The Rockets outplayed MMI all night, gaining seven first downs to their three, getting 170 yards rushing and 16 yards passing. However, they also were penalized 128 yards to MMI's 25.

Even with the help of some big and consecutive penalties, though, MMI could never mount

UNITED STATES SENATOR MARLOW COOK, front row, second from right, brought his re-election campaign to Mt. Vernon last Saturday and met by several supporters on the steps of the County Courthouse. Senator Cook made his first stop in the office of Circuit Court Clerk W. E. Cummins. There he met with Mrs. Buddy Cox and Mrs. Les Harris, who wished to speak with him concerning state or federal funds available for the local ambulance service. Senator Cook then went up Main Street to visit with his constituents.

Fiscal Court Meets...

Mainly routine items of business were before the Rockcastle County Fiscal Court Tuesday. Gatiff Craig, Director of the Cumberland Valley Area Development District, did meet with the Court to discuss with them the county's share of the severance tax collected on coal mined in the county.

Mr. Craig told the Court that Rockcastle's share amounted to a little over $2,400 and that this money would not be paid directly to the county but would instead be paid into the state treasury and be available to the county for projects by a legislative plan. The money is paid out by the state for the county.

Mr. Craig said that the only restriction on the use of the money is that it must go toward industrial or recreational projects and that it must be used within eighteen months of the time the law was implemented - some time in late June of this year.

One plus which this money has over revenue sharing funds is that it can be used for matching money where revenue sharing funds cannot and, with this in mind, Mr. Craig made one suggestion to the Court for its use, that of the industrial park project on Highway 150 near Mt. Vernon. Mr. Craig said that since the County had earlier agreed to match funds for a portion of the project, this might be one use for the money from the severance tax.

Of course, there is nothing preventing filing an application for the money, so the Court decided to wait and take no official action until a later date.

Kenneth Cromer, representing Rockcastle Sanitation, was also before the Court to inquire if there had been any complaints about garbage pickup which needed to be discussed. Since none of the Magistrates were informed of any problem presently in connection with the service, Mr. Cromer presented a list of five pick-up sites which the driver of his collection truck felt needed to be picked up once a week more than now scheduled. The list included the sites at: South Mt. Vernon, Chestnut Ridge, Pine Hill, Bowling Ridge, and the Brindle Ridge and Copper Creek Roads, making a total of five extra pick-ups per week. The Magistrates made a motion to increase the pick-ups as listed and the motion was passed unanimously.

In one other item, the Court decided that it would not be legal to allow private citizens use of county equipment to work on private roads. The question Mrs. Sally Cotton by her husband, Chester Whitaker, who had been asked to bring up the matter at Fiscal Court by some of his constituents.

CITY FIREMEN ANSWER TWO CALLS

Mt. Vernon City Firemen answered two fire calls during the past week, neither of which was serious.

Fire Chief John Cox said the Department was called to the scene of a car fire Friday night at the intersection of Lovell Court and Williams Street. Derrell Roberts of Mt. Vernon, owner of the car, told firemen that his car had run out of gas and backfired after gas was put into the carburetor.

On Monday afternoon firemen were called to the home of Mrs. Sally Cotton in the elderly housing units on Lovell Street. Mrs. Cotton had reportedly put a pot of meat up the stove and then gotten to visit a son. The meat boiled dry and smoke from the burning meat in the pan filled the apartment with smoke.

The campaign proves that the volunteer spirit is alive and well here in Rockcastle County. Mrs. Hurst said. "The generous response of Rockcastle County residents is proof of the increased recognition of the scope and severity of the arthritis problem.

Recipients of the Centennial Award for Excellence in Teaching in Rockcastle County were:

Jan Albright Gentry of Brodhead and Charles E. Parsons of Mt. Vernon.

2 Expelled After Drug Investigation

Two Rockcastle High School students have been expelled for the remainder of the semester and eleven received three-day suspensions following a recent investigation into drug activities at the school by Principal Clenton Saylor and Assistant Principal Kenneth Cornelius.

Mr. Saylor said Tuesday that the two students expelled (one a senior boy and the other a junior girl) admitted to transmitting the drugs (marijuana) to the eleven students who received the three-day suspensions. Mr. Saylor also said that no drugs were confiscated.

According to Supt. Charles Parsons, readmittance of the two students at the end of their term of expulsion will be contingent upon whether or not the school officials feel that their (the students) behavior has improved sufficiently to warrant readmittance.

The expulsions and suspensions were administered under the School Board's recently adopted Drug Policy.

The Policy states in full:

"1. Each school principal is required by law (KRS 198.270) to have presented to his student body on at least two occasions during the school term a thirty-minute appropriate program explaining the scientific, social, and moral aspects of alcohol, drugs, stimulants and narcotics.

This policy requires the principal to go beyond the minimum requirements with the drug education program. Instructions as to the nature of alcohol, narcotics and drugs is to be taught as a part of the school curriculum also.

"2. The principal and his staff are to be continually on the alert for possible drug/alcohol violations. If a staff member suspects a student or other personnel of violations it should be reported to the principal at once.

"3. The principal and/or his designated assistant should investigate all reports of drug/alcohol violations. The principal will keep the superintendent informed of all violations.

"4. Sale, use or possession of illegal drugs or other controlled substances is forbidden on school property including all school sponsored events.

"5. The principal may search student lockers, cars driven by students and other possessions if there is good cause. The principal may seize any controlled substances such as drugs, alcohol or marijuana. Any confiscated substances shall be turned over to law enforcing officials.

"6. Students under the influence of illegal drugs, marijuana, or alcohol shall be removed immediately from contact with other students.

"7. Students under the influence will be suspended or expelled pending further investigation.

"8. Students who possess drugs for the purpose of illegal use or sale will be expelled or suspended pending further investigation.

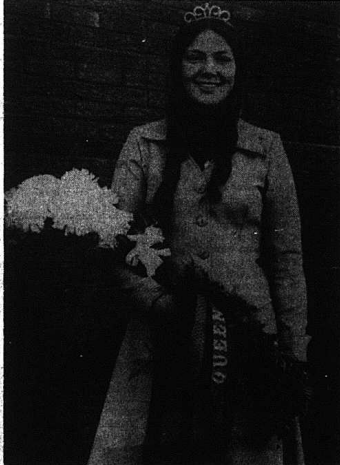

"9. Parents will be notified in all instances.

"10. Law enforcing officials will be notified.

"11. Appropriate referral information will be made available to parents and students.

"12. This policy applies to students while in school, on the way to and from school, on the school grounds and at all school sponsored events."

In other action recently at the high school, Mr. Saylor said five boys were expelled for truancy and the drinking of alcoholic beverages (not at school premises). The term of their expulsion was for one month each. *****

Frankfort Watchline

Few impressions linger more strongly than those we have of tragedy... near tragedy... human suffering... the effects of man's inhumanity to his neighbor.

It's that way with us in the wake of the attempt on the life last week of a state legislator. Liberty Republican Raymond Overstreet wasn't hurt when shotgun blasts blasted his car off a lonely Casey County highway at midnight.

But he didn't come out of his scrape with death totally unscathed. He says he's leaving public life. He says he'll not run for office again. That's a loss, whatever side of politics you're on.

His red-rimmed eyes show the strain of weeks of three-minute calls, long periods of sleeplessness, after telephone threats of violence against him, his wife, their 21-month-old daughter.

In the brief time we've known him, he's been in a soft-spoken man. But as crusader for often hapless causes, Raymond Overstreet will be remembered by his colleagues for the blistering, bedside-delivered agonized outcries and the broad, stern frown on the floor of the House in 1972.

It's better known now as the man who fostered legislation outlawing the broad form deed for a year.

Overstreet's legal services had been used in that Republican legal test of Gov. Wendell Ford's surplus spend.

It's out of that now just days ago, he demanded a legislative inquiry into dairy prices in Kentucky.

There's little doubt Ray Overstreet had high political ambitions. So what? Few of his decisions have been without political overtones.

At this point, there's nothing to suggest what brought about the ambush of the 31-year-old lawmaker last week. It may well have had nothing to do with his public activities.

It could have involved his law practice. He tells us he doesn't know. Police say they don't know. We think both know more than they're saying and it's probably best that way.

But the whole incident, regardless of its motivation, brings close to all of us the mindless kind of menace that hovers over anyone in public life.

It brings in focus attacks on office holders the nation over. John Kennedy, Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King, Jr., George Wallace dead, crippled because of some burning rage... some twisted sense of justice.

Then we heard last week from a third famous Kennedy that he's to be counted out as a presidential possibility in 1976. He cites family problems. There's a son crippled by bone cancer. His wife is under treatment for emotional strain. He's all that's left to take care of immense family holdings and business affairs.

But it occurs to us that another reason for his withdrawal from presidential politics lies beneath the surface... the fear by his loved ones that yet another Rem's secret might choose for Ted Kennedy a fate like his brothers. Why risk it?

We're mindful of never-publicly security scrambles here in our State Capitol Building when threats on the lives of governors were intercepted. It was always a subject that remains secret but it happens, even in Frankfort.

Meantime, it ought to hit us hard that in a nation founded on demands for religious freedom, that nation's leader 200 years later cannot even attend church unless wrapped in tight precautions for his safety. And it's ironic that this kind of thing happens in the most democratic nation on earth while... less desirable places in the world, attacks on political leaders are not as likely.

Maybe Ray Overstreet wasn't cut out to be a crusader. But that's neither here nor there.

A manman at the trigger end of a shotgun should never be allowed to take the place of the voice in the voting booth. That's what's really happening... a public official is being forced to turn his back on the destiny blueprinted for him by a vote of the majority.

It's with a real feeling of loss that we note Ray Overstreet's vow to leave politics... we hope he'll see fit to change his mind.

Five Weeks and Counting... It looks like both sides of the U.S. Senate race... you remember those two fellows, Cook and Ford... are putting a low profile on the Red River Gorge dam issue. Ford because he's letting Mother Nature do all his talking for him and Cook because it's tough to fight a dam in hip-deep water.

Meantime, maybe we'll get some fire and brimstone out of this dead-on-the-vine campaign after all. The Cook folks appear to be planning a zero-in on some of the more colorful goings-on in state government, and the Ford camp doubtly predicts the race "is going to get dirty" from here on in.

And ain't it a shame the way that transit tax issue in Louisville and Jefferson County may be playing a role in the Senate runoff? We're anticipating that County Judge Todd Hollenbach who, with Mayor Harvey Sloan, acquired Ford's backing for permissive tax legislation for mass transit, now sees a slow retreat from that apparently unpopular levy as a vital part of planning a 1975 Democratic governor's primary against Julian Carroll.

Be a shame, wouldn't it, if Ford got kayoed in the big city by voters who don't feel like paying through the nose to provide their neighbors a bus ride?

KENTUCKY STATE FAIR EXTENDS '75 SEASON

By: Anthony Pearce-Batten

Following the success of Kentucky's Bicentennial State Fair, the Kentucky State Fair Board has extended the 1975 season by two days. According to Wyndall Smith, president of the board, next year's Fair will run from August 12th through August 23rd.

Attendance at the 1974 Kentucky State Fair reached an all-time high at 628,246. It was the fifth successive record-year for the Fair, said George Mayer, its producer and promoter.

Mayer attributed the success of the 1974 Fair to such exciting acts as the World Championship Horse Show for five-gaited horses. And for 1975 he promises an exciting array of talent and, for the first time, an air-conditioned Exposition Center.

Fiscal Court Has Last Word in County Road Program-

Carroll County Judge Robert M. Westrick has requested an opinion as to whether or not a magistrate has the right to tell a county road supervisor not to work on a county road even if that road is in great need of repair. The Attorney General's Office states that even though the county may be utilizing the services of a county road supervisor, the fiscal court never loses its ultimate responsibility for the county road program and it has the overall authority over county road work. Whether or not the road in question is to be repaired is a matter for the fiscal court, as a body, to decide. An individual magistrate, acting by himself, does not have the authority to override the decision of the fiscal court or to act in place of the fiscal court.

PLEASE NOTIFY US IMMEDIATELY OF ADDRESS CHANGES

Q. I will be eligible for Medicare soon. I know that Medicare helps pay many medical expenses, but what are some of the things it does not cover?

A. Medicare does not cover preventive medicine, such as routine physical exams. Other non-covered items include prescription drugs and other medicines you buy yourself, eye and hearing examinations, eye glasses, dentures, or routine dental work. Medicare also does not cover custodial care such as help in dressing, bathing and caring for other personal needs. Your Medicare Handbook, which will be mailed to you, lists non-covered items and services.

INFLATION HAMPER'S CONSTRUCTION AT DALE HOLLOW...

Progress on the proposed camping area at Dale Hollow Lake State Park, near Frogue, has been hindered by inflationary construction costs, officials from the Kentucky Department of Parks report.

Approximately half of the $2 million allocated by the 1974 General Assembly for development at Dale Hollow is designated for a 100-site camping area with a central service building and playground.

When construction bids were recently opened, only one bid - at 84 percent over approved costs - was received, said J. E. Owens, deputy commissioner for planning, construction and maintenance.

"As costs are rising for all phases of construction," Owens said, "we're having to go back and review the total design."

Dale Hollow is one of the newest additions to the Kentucky State Parks system. A marina complex with boat slips, docking and service facilities is currently being designed.

At the time of its formation, 1810, there were 168 slaves in Rockcastle County. Just prior to emancipation this number had grown to about four hundred. Most of the slaves who had been sold out of the county. The big slave owners were David Bill Adams, said at one time to have had around one hundred, with General William Smith, second wealthiest man in the county, having the largest number of slaves in his quarters. Peter and Stephen Langford owned, between them, forty at one time, and Jeptha Mullins, of White Oak Branch, around sixty. The wealthy Stigal family, founders of Brodhead, Kentucky, very likely had a goodly number of slaves and the William Peaslie Hiatt of Bendon Valley, had a sufficient investment in slaves to have caused him, it was generally understood, to commit suicide when they were set free. Many other families in the county owned one or two slaves each, a good percentage of which were house servants.

In most instances, slaves in Rockcastle were well treated so much so that at time of emancipation many of the older ones preferred staying with their old masters rather than accepting freedom. In this connection there was the amusing story told of Uncle Aaron, a slave belonging to Jeptha Mullins and who had been his constant attendant for years. When he had begged to be allowed to stay with his master, Mr. Mullins set him up as a tenant, setting aside a cabin and a few acres of ground for him and furnishing him with a team of mules to work. He explained to Uncle Aaron that when the corn was gathered he was to put two thirds of it in his own crib and one third in Mullins' crib. Over the corn had all been gathered and one third in the crib of the landowner and the other two thirds in Uncle Aaron for an explanation. Very apologetically, the old man declared, "Well, suh, de way it wuz, when I tuck out mah two thirds, de wuz'n nary bit lef' foh you." His master took it all good naturedly and told the numerous slaves in his quarters. Peter and Stephen Langford owned, between them, forty at one time, and Jeptha Mullins, of White Oak Branch, around sixty. The wealthy Stigal family, founders of Brodhead, Kentucky, very likely had a goodly number of slaves and the William Peaslie Hiatt of Bendon Valley, had a sufficient investment in slaves to have caused him, it was generally understood, to commit suicide when they were set free. Many other families in the county owned one or two slaves each, a good percentage of which were house servants.

Another old slave who preferred to remain with his master was Uncle Lewis Hiatt, who formerly belonged to the William Peaslie Hiatt previously mentioned. After his master's unfortunate death, he stayed on with the widow and married her daughter at the place. He was the one given to Hiatt's wife at an early age by Devil Bill Adams for patching up things between Devil Bill and his estranged wife. It was also Uncle Lewis who in his old age told my father and his little cousin the old Negro folk tales about 'B' Rabbit and all the animals which later found their way into a book by Joel Chandler Harris as "Uncle Remus" stories.

Another well-beloved old slave was Uncle Horace Newcom, whose many kindly acts toward white and black folks alike were long remembered. It was Uncle Horace who set aside, in later years, when he was free, a parcel of land in Mt. Vernon to serve as a place of burial for ex-slaves and other destitute people. Acquiring from a passing covered wagon train an unwanted Negro baby, he raised her to womanhood and saw her married and settled in her own home. Bill Newcom, another ex-slave who had belonged to a substantial white family which allowed him to work for himself in his spare time and collect wages from his employers, became well fixed in later years. His wife had formerly been owned by Elijah Smith, whose widow became impoverished after the death of her husband. Bill Newcom and his wife took her into their own home, supported her for the rest of her life and at her death buried her in this cemetery.

In my boyhood, these old folks had all passed on, but a few who had known the human bond were yet remaining. Oldest of these was Uncle George Adams, who in spite of his advanced age, still did a lot of work for us on our farm. As we hoed among the long rows of corn, I picked up many bits of philosophy from the kindly old man that I need not repeat at this time. At one time he said about 'B' things to eat, both good and bad, and he concluded with the sage remark, "Ay, law, honey, mek no differ what you eat. After you don get full, you neva know but what it wuz chicken an' pie."

Favorites with all the small fry because they always had, in season, an apple or a handful of persimmons for us, were Uncle Sam and Aunt Molly Smith, who made their home in the remarkable remains of what had once been a big colonial-type white house. In later years we were told that Aunt Molly, who was of lighter complexion, had been the daughter of one of the most-talked-of Kentuckians in the nation. Then there was Uncle Gus and Aunt Diley Jarbeau (pronounced Jarber, locally). Being the principal laundress of Mt. Vernon, Aunt Diley was always up to her elbows in soapsuds. Uncle Gus, with half her size and none of her ambition, was always seen lounging in the shade nearby, with a strip of red cloth around his neck and a little beret-styled cap at a jaunty angle on his head. At least one of their numerous children is yet living. I remember Reverend Crump as the blackest individual I ever saw. He was for many years pastor of the local colored congregation. Among other elderly Negroes in the community were Monk Joe, Uncle Alfred, Uncle Faust Madrell and "Yellowhammer." If he had another name, nobody ever knew it.

All these mentioned, together with several younger Negroes, lived in a settlement just North of Mt. Vernon, known simply as Niggertown. No disrespect or opprobrium was implied in this designation. It was simply a name by which the community was known. This settlement covered several hundred acres of land, with the homes of the people scattered along the county road which ran through it. It was a flourishing community, its inhabitants being honest, hard-working and thoroughly respectable people. They had their own church and school houses, and when closing day exercises were held in the schoolhouse, or protracted meetings in the church, they were largely attended by white people from the neighboring town of Mt. Vernon. They had their own schoolteachers and their own ministers, all well respected and responsible people.

In addition to older folks previously mentioned, there were Joe and Matt Newcom and their numerous brood, every individual of whom I believe it or not, had the middle name of Joe. There was Sadie Joe, there was Willie Joe, Marger Joe, Dan Joe and the youngest Joe, and maybe one or two others. This, however, was no more unusual than a white family in Mt. Vernon with children with the given names of Sunshine, Shady, Cloudy and Rainey. A most praiseworthy family living in the settlement was that of Saunders and Hattie Fish, or Smith, as they were alternately called. Being a good carpenter, and probably the best cabinetmaker in the county, Saunders generally got his pick of the jobs, usually at a slight advance in wages over his competitors. There was a house in Mt. Vernon kept more spotlessly clean than their modest cottage. They raised a family of well-mannered, intelligent children, all of whom did well in life.

Our home farm in Renfro Valley was about three miles from Mt. Vernon, and after I started going to school in town, I walked about half of those miles through Niggertown and learned to know everybody living in it. Most of the way would be taken up with friendly, humorous exchange of greetings with the adults, and playful exchange of rock-throwing activities with the boys of my own age. Nobody was ever hit with one of these rocks and it wasn't intended that they should be. It was simply that I was white and they were black and it seemed that something should be done about it.

In addition to those living in Niggertown, there were many black people in Mt. Vernon who made their home with the families whom they worked. Among these, a colored woman, known only as "Sis" lived, with her young daughter, in the home of Attorney John Brown and his wife, Helen, both of whom were much interested in the welfare of colored people. Sis was sort of somewhat bumpy after and a favorite with the children of the town until they were well into their teens. My wife, the former Virginia Crawford, was among those who held an abiding affection for her over the years.

Sis' daughter, Nettie, was a remarkably talented child, who used to stand under the window of the local music teacher's home and listen to the town children practice, thereby picking up a musical education which she later put to good use. One night in Chicago, killing time while waiting there for a train, I dropped into a popular night club. As I walked in, the pianist started playing "My Old Kentucky Home," just about the best I had ever heard it played. When I was seated at a table, the music ceased, and when I looked up, the tall, statuesque pianist advancing toward me was nobody in the world but little Nettie, whom I had last seen, a long time ago, in my home town. Incidentally, she later married a prominent colored doctor, who built for her a palatial home in Minneapolis, to which they took her mother, Sis, now well along in years but still ambitious enough to enter school and finally do something she had always dreamed of doing - get a high school diploma.

Then there was Mariah Mullins, who always wore a broad smile, not so much to express happiness as to show a big good tooth of which she was very proud. John Frakes and his sons, Willie and Pete, janitors in the Mt. Vernon Grade and High School, were the good-natured victims of the many jokes we could think of to play on them from time to time, which calls to mind the time that one of these pranks misfired. One Halloween night we turned up the big school bell so it would hold water, propping it in that position so it could be tipped over by a pull on the bell rope. For most of the remainder of the night, we struggled up the long stairs, then up a flimsy ladder, carrying water, in a lunch pail, to fill the bell to the brim. Early next morning we were on hand to see which one of the boys tried to ring the bell, with results gleefully pictured. Unfortunately, we were not the only ones coming early to school, that morning. Professor J. S. Irvine, energetic Principal of the School, had decided to get there ahead of time to help the janitor force clean up the usual after-Halloween litter. Allowing them to continue the work in which they were engaged at the moment, he ran upstairs, to the second floor, to ring the bell for them, being immediately washed about halfway back down those same stairs by the impact of several gallons of icy water, falling from the top of the tall bell.

Most of these people are now dead and gone, or moved away. Niggertown has long been abandoned, its public buildings dismantled and its old homes yet remaining inhabited by white families. A few months ago the last member of the original settlement, Sally Joe Newcom, died of old age. Some years prior to her death, the old shack in which she was living, became entirely unsafe for occupancy. Several young men of Mt. Vernon pitched in, bought the material and did the work to erect for her a very substantial home, with modern conveniences. After it was
