FALL SETTING OF FRUIT TREES...

If you are planning on setting some fruit trees late November or early December is the most nearly ideal time to do it. There are several reasons for this and one of the most pertinent of these is that the mortality rate is almost always lower and the trees will make better growth during their first season in the orchard than spring-set trees.

Through late fall and early winter, the top portions of our common deciduous plants are in a condition known as the "rest period" and the above-ground parts will not grow even though temperature and moisture conditions are satisfactory. On the other hand, the root portions of plants do not have a "rest period" and it is possible for them to grow at any time. Soil temperature and moisture are favorable. Soil temperature changes occur much more slowly than those of the air and also fluctuate much less. Thus, when trees are set in late November and early December, the soil temperature is generally still high enough to permit root growth while the tops of the plants are in a dormant condition.

Because of the conditions mentioned, it is possible for the more deeply rooted plants such as trees to become fairly well established in the soil and thus be in a much better condition to start growth early in the spring than those for which planting is delayed until spring time. It also frequently happens that both weather and soil conditions may be quite unfavorable for setting plants in the spring at the time when they should be in the ground and, because of this, the planting is delayed and the plants are seriously handicapped in forming a satisfactory early spring growth.

The suggestions given are for trees and not for the more shallow-rooted plants such as strawberries and raspberries. Through the winter months in areas this far north, the soil is subjected to alternate freezing and thawing and shallow-rooted plants may be seriously injured by having their roots heaved loose from the soil.

A point of further consideration in favor of all-set trees is that there are no leaves on the trees in late fall and this gives the root system a decided advantage over those of spring-set trees. There is no large evaporating surface on the top which is drawing heavily upon the soil moisture supply, and therefore, the roots are not deprived of the moisture which they need for growth.

Other points in favor of fall plantings are that nurserymen can generally give more prompt attention to fall orders and give the buyer the best stock available. Also, on most farms the "rush period" comes in the spring, and tree planting operations are frequently difficult to handle at this time.

MILLIPEDES DON'T BITE, STING OR EAT - But They Give Homeowners the Shivers - Millipedes are back again - meaning no harm, looking for warm quarters, and not even anything to eat. They won't bite or sting, eat draperies or chew on furniture. But they give homeowners the shivers.

Millipedes are because they are crawling creatures, with a look about them that instantly turns man into their sworn enemy. They have been around a long while.

Control: Spray a band of Sevin insecticide ten feet wide around the house. Start at the foundation and work outward. Spray grass areas around stoops, porches, carparks, garages, driveways, etc. Use two cupsfuls in five gallons of water) of 50 percent wettable powder Sevin.

Millipedes live in grassy areas and wooded areas and garages. Every year, in fall and spring, they migrate to buildings for some reason. We know

Meanwhile, line each egg carton cup with square of foil, letting excess extend up. Place a pear cube in each cup. Spoon in gelatin and chill until firm. Serve as finger snack by fitting out foil cups, or use for making egg-carton lunches.

Note: Any extra gelatin and pears can be refrigerated in a custard cup.

own crude making, long before the first Spaniards led them. They also were using tobacco as a medicine and as a religious ritual.
This plant called tobacco received many different names. In almost every region of the New World, the natives had their own word for tobacco in Brazil, it was called tabaco; in Mexico, poete; in Virginia powwow; in the St. Lawrence, quictas; in Peru, ayuri; in Columbia, yuri; in Trinidad, weti; and the English name was Sovereign Herb. Each cultivated and cherished this plant in their own way.
Exploring the St. Lawrence River in 1535, Jacques Cartier saw Indians carrying small bags of tobacco around their necks, but it "bit our tongues like pepper" they were known to have said.
The most famous tobacco promoter was Sir Walter Raleigh. He was credited with making pipe smoking a fashion at Queen Elizabeth's court.
Father of the American tobacco industry was John Rolfe, husband of the famous Indian princess Pocahontas. He sent the first shipment of tobacco from Jamestown to England. From that time to the present day, growing tobacco and manufacturing

Tobacco History

The history of tobacco began on Oct. 12, 1492, when Columbus reached San Salvador in the West Indies. The natives brought fruit, wooden spears and "certain dried leaves - which gave off a pleasant fragrance". The Spanish sailors in Columbus' crew liked the fruit but threw the dried leaves away not knowing what they were. Three days later a lone Indian was seen in a canoe carrying the same kind of dried leaves and offered them to the white strangers. They wondered why the strange leaves were valued so highly. The following month they found out why The Indians wrapped the dried leaves in palm or maize "in the manner of a musket formed of paper" thus making a cigar. After lighting one they inhaled the smoke through the other end. To keep them glowing, the Indians blew on the puffs. Columbus came to the New World for gold, but tobacco called tobacco.

As later voyages were made, the New World was found to be full of smokers and had been for hundreds of years. Every form of tobacco was used: pipe, cigar, snuff and chew had become an accepted custom, in their

Estill Defeat Rockets

The Rockcastle ROCKETS, with 50 seconds left in the game, blew an 18-12 lead and suffered their second loss of the season last Friday night.

A strong defensive Estill County team kept the Rockets on their toes all night and the big play of the game, a fourth punt return, went to Estill County. Estill County drew first blood in the game; but, quarterback John Clontz countered with a 95-yard run from scrimmage, and the score at the end of the first quarter was all even at 6-6. Estill again scored in the second quarter; but, once again, the Rockets came through with a 20-yard touchdown pass from Clontz to Kenny Burton and the score was again knotted at half-time at 12 and 12. In the third quarter, the Rockets posted the only score with an eight-yard carry by Clontz which had been set up by a pass from Clontz to Ian Ivan Stevens. The score at the end of the third quarter was Rockets 18 and Estill County, 12. Late in the fourth quarter, Estill County penetrated deep into Rockets' territory but was stopped on the game and an 18 to 12 lead, were forced to punt. Billy Baker came out of the pressure situation with a good punt but it was not to be as Estill County took the punt, with the aid of some good blocking, ran the ball all the way in to the six points and a tie game. Estill, after failing on two previous tries for the two-point conversion, decided to take a chance on the one-point conversion and the attempt was good for the final 19 to 18 score. Offensively, the Rockets were led in rushing by Clontz with 153 yards in 19 carries. Tommy Smith picked up 13 yards for the Rockets on 7 carries. In the passing department, Burton caught four passes for 106 yards, Stevens 2 for 29 and David Earl Noe, 1 for 24. Noe also recovered a fumble. The Rockets picked up 6 first downs while Estill County garnered 12.

Inflation hasn't changed the price of ashes.

But it has changed the price of your home. For example, if you bought a $20,000 home in 1968 - today it's worth about $127,000. Don't be left with a costly pile of ashes. States' tobacco-farm population and their seasonal helpers.

From the earliest period of settlement, tobacco has had a powerful influence in shaping the economic and social life of the Blue Grass state.

Tobacco grows from tiny seeds that look like finely ground pepper. The seeds are planted in carefully prepared seedbeds early in the spring. They are covered for several weeks with a canvas to protect them from late frost, heavy rains or strong sunlight. When the plants are about six inches high, they are transplanted to well-fertilized fields. One tablespoon of seed will sow six acres when transplanted. Tobacco leaves grow from the thick, tough stalk to a length of 12 to 42 inches and width of six to 15 inches. The plants are from two to eight feet high. The leaves began to mature in July or August and the plant is ready to cut and house. Curing or drying is the next step. It is the drying process by which all tobacco is prepared for the market. After it is cured, the leaves are plucked from the stalks, graded and tied into hands. Then it is ready for market. It is sold to warehouses by the farmer and packed in large cases called hogsheads. It then undergoes an aging period. After the tobacco is completely aged from one to two years, it is sold at auction to manufacturers and made into cigarettes, cigars and other products. The cigarette has become the leading firm of tobacco today.

The largest loose-leaf tobacco market in the world is at Lexington, Kentucky. Farmers first sold hogsheads of tobacco there in 1825.

By 1774, the first permanent settlement in Kentucky had been made at Harrodsburg (later Harrodsburg). Settlers began to flock in, all eager to work the soil, and plant tobacco. They had brought tobacco seeds - the same varieties as those grown in the colonies from which they had migrated.

After the war of 1812, Kentuckians turned their attention to farming and developing the state's resources. Tobacco production increased rapidly after 1825 by 1865, Kentucky ranked as the leading tobacco producing state and it became Kentucky's leading cash crop.

In no part of the world is more bulky tobacco grown than in Kentucky. For a century and a quarter, it has been a cash crop of the Blue Grass state. The 1960 harvests of burley, grown on Kentucky farms in all but a few of the state's 120 counties, totaled over 320 million pounds.

Production of tobacco in Kentucky is the occupation of nearly 200,000 farm families, about a quarter of the United

Eight Directors were re-elected to the Board of the Rockcastle County Farm Bureau at the annual meeting and banquet of that organization held last Friday night at Brodhead. Elected to serve

Farm Bureau Holds Annual Meeting - Banquet

Approximately one hundred Farm Bureau members attended the annual meeting and banquet held last Friday night at Brodhead School.

Following the meal, Wallace Proctor, president of the local organization, opened the meeting and introduced Board Member Bradley Saylor who gave a summary of the financial condition of the local chapter.

Following Mr. Saylor's report, Harry Harmon, who was recently added to the insurance department, spoke briefly. William K. Bullen, insurance agent, was unable to be at the meeting due to illness.

Wise Noe, tire distributor for Farm Bureau in Rockcastle County, then gave a report on tire sales in the county. Mr. Noe told the group that Rockcastle County was the leading tire distributor in Area 6 with $28,000 in tire sales during the last reporting period.

Director Henry Brown then gave a report from the Resolutions Committee and submitted nine resolutions to be sent to the state Farm Bureau Convention.

These resolutions were as follows: (1) Favor support of 10c head check-off on livestock, also favor higher duty on imported meat. (2) Opposed to allocation system in marketing of tobacco (whereby five or six buyers get together with warehousemen and decide to allocate so many pounds of tobacco between the buyers - cuts out competitive bidding). (3) Opposed to leasing of tobacco bases across county lines. (4) Favor RECF program at same practices as old REAF.

The picture has been brought up to date by the Department of Commerce, through a state-by-state study, just released, giving its estimates of the current voting-age population.

In Rockcastle County, now that persons who are 18 years was given by Wayne Stewart. Pictures and names of directors selected for two-year terms can be found on the front page.

Other interesting facts brought out during the meeting was the fact that Rockcastle County now has 1,518 Farm Bureau members. Mr. Brown urged all members to get their dues in early, especially for those members engaged in farm work since if dues are paid by February 1st, special insurance is written with a portion of the dues money covering farm-related accidents.

The new Chemical Program being set up by the local Farm Bureau Office was also discussed. Mr. Proctor told the group that with this program, Farm Bureau members would be able to buy chemicals through Farm Bureaus at a better price than elsewhere and orders for these chemicals should be placed in November and December.

7,850 Potential Voters In Local Area

Will the events connected with the Nixon administration result in more Rockcastle County voters going to the polls next month because of their increased concern over the political process?

Or will more than the usual number stay away because of a feeling of disenchantment and frustration with politics in general?

No one can be sure what will happen. What is known, fairly accurately, is the number of eligible voters in the local area and in every other community across the country and how many of them have voted, if at all, in other years.

The picture has been brought up to date by the Department of Commerce, through a state-by-state study, just released, giving its estimates of the current voting-age population.

In Rockcastle County, now that persons who are 18 years old and over are eligible, some 7,850 local residents, equivalent to 62.8 percent of the population, may qualify. This compares with 65.6 percent in the United States as a whole and with approximately 65.2 percent in the State of Kentucky.

Contrary to expectations, despite the fact that the 25th Amendment made it possible for over 11 million 18, 19 and 20-year-olds to vote for the first time in 1970, only 5.3 million of them, 48 percent, did so.

What their turnout will be this year, for a non-presidential election, is anyone's guess.

As for the entire electorate, young and old, the Commerce Department states it has reached 145 million, an increase of 20 million since 1970, the last comparable election year.

Since 1962, it finds, there has been an overall decline in voter participation in non-presidential elections. In the South, however, a growing percentage of the population has been voting.

How much fence-jumping, from one political party to another, will there be this year? While there is no sure guide to what will happen, especially this year, some important light was shed on that subject in a study conducted some time ago by the University of Michigan's Survey Research Center.

It found that once a voter makes his choice of a political party, usually before age 30, he generally sticks to it for life. Only one out of five switches thereafter.

Armed Robbery At Local Service Station

An armed robbery at the Vanzant Arco Station at Burr early Monday evening netted two hold-up men $100.00 in cash and the keys to the business.

According to Delmer Vanzant, owner of the station, about 6 p.m. Monday night, a 1968 or 69 light-colored Chevrolet station wagon pulled into the station and two men got out. They came into the station where the attendant, William Vanwinkle of Brush Creek, was reading and asked for the key to the men's room. When they came out, one of them pulled a .38 caliber pistol out and told Mr. Vanwinkle to hand over the money. While this was going on, the other man, who was carrying a smaller caliber weapon, cut the telephone wires. They then tied Mr.

Vanwinkle up, taped his mouth, and put him in the rear part of the office, turned the lights out and left, taking the keys to the station with them. Vanwinkle also said that while the holdup was in progress, the men sold gas to at least two customers at the station. He also reported that there were other men in the station wagon.

About fifteen minutes after the men left, friends of Mr. Vanwinkle were passing the station and observed the lights out. Realizing that it was too early for the station to be closed, the men investigated and found Mr. Vanwinkle, whom they released.

Mr. Vanzant said that in the one year and seven months since he opened the station, this was the seventh time it had been hit by thieves.

New Rates Approved For Kentucky Telephone

Monthly bills to Kentucky Telephone Company customers in December will reflect an adjustment in charges as authorized in a recent rate order by the State Public Service Commission.

The new schedule of rates covers various service and equipment offerings. Charges applicable to the individual customer are noted on his bill under the heading "Local Service" or "Other Charges and Credits."

The new rates cover installation service, extension service, and charges for PBX, key sets, and other miscellaneous equipment and services.

Information on specific increases is available from the local Kentucky Telephone Company Business Office.

Food Stamp Program Pays Off In County

The Food Stamp Program, replacing the old food commodities program throughout the United States, is paying off for businesses and recipients as well in Rockcastle County. The program has been in operation for about seven years.

During a recent month, the 917 participating Rockcastle County households paid $31,066.50 for $122,686 worth of food stamps. The difference, $91,619.50, is extra income brought into the county and probably spent locally.

"Families with limited incomes and resources and the unemployed people having real trouble making ends meet are eligible for food stamps," said Jack Waddell of the Bureau for Social Insurance, Kentucky Department for Human Resources (DHR), which operates the federally funded Food Stamp program.

Persons who think they might be eligible for food stamps should check with the Social Insurance Office in Mt. Vernon, 252-2461.

Individuals should bring these items to the office when applying: Social Security card; Names and occupations of family members and others in the home; Record of income being received now, including Social Security Income or Veterans'

Administration checks, if applicable; and Receipts for medical bills, rent or mortgage and utilities for deduction purposes.

If the individual brings these items and meets the requirements, he may receive

Cook - Ford Set To Do Battle In November General Election

Frankfort Watchline

If doubters need proof, the 1974 Senate race demonstrates that politics are, indeed, the damndest in Kentucky.

Where else would an attractive, highly visible, influential incumbent United States senator go all the way through his race for re-election as the underdog?

And there wasn't much good campaigning. Wendell Ford, riding high on an image generally kept well-polished as governor, put a low profile on his election effort.

Behind the shield of having to be governor and campaigner at the same time, Ford hit the hustings only on pick-and-choose occasions. Lots of that activity was in Louisville and Jefferson County. But Ford wasn't the only one with a briefcase full of work.

You'll recall all business took Cook back to Washington.

Meantime, Ford people say they'll win Louisville and maybe all of Jefferson County. They want, at least, to keep Cook's vestiges down to 20 thousand votes out in the county.

"If Cook does better than that," one Democrat strategist talked of election night, "it'll be over in thirty minutes."

The Ford people will not concede that the Red River George dam their man supports is a major issue. They shout, instead, that inflation and Cook's tourist attitude toward Kentucky are the pivotal campaign points.

Maybe... at least on the inflation argument. But they must be finding it tough to Ford blame a lot of the cost of living increase on a minority member of a Democrat-controlled Congress... Richard Nixon or not.

Cook is criticized for never being in Kentucky to learn the needs of his constituents. How can you be an effective U.S. Senator, if you're not in Washington doing Senate work?

We believe Cook is going to make some inroads on the environmental issue. The Red River dam... the Cumberland chairlift. These are examples.

We believe that he's got more ammunition on the integrity issue than Ford. We believe that one reason the governor will not debate the senator... it might be tough having to explain some of the Frankfort carry-overs, whether it was at Ford's order or some of his subordinates.

We concede Ford a good point when he says he doesn't want to draw a crowd for Cook.

But we also think state-wide debate would have hurt Ford. But we don't believe anything about this campaign is going to draw a crowd.

A million Kentuckians voted in the Senate race. It was, we know, a presidential election. Even though... more than 700 thousand this time will surprise us... Democrat planners are saying well upwards of 800 thousand votes will be cast.

People are turned off politics... and Democrats are saying well upwards of 800 thousand votes will be cast.

People are turned off politics... and Democrats are saying well upwards of 800 thousand votes will be cast.

People are turned off politics... and Democrats are saying well upwards of 800 thousand votes will be cast.

bered in the registrations by two to one.

Yes, it's been a crazy, non-stop sort of an election campaign. It began on a weird note with Cook failing to properly declare his treasurer and having to carry that boo-boo ball and chisel all the way to the Court of Appeals.

But the senator never seemed well-organized. There were laws in the press releases... people quit... people hired never came to work... there weren't always crowds where Cook thought there would be.

Some of Cook's accusations made against Ford boggle the mind. How about the implications that somehow the governor had something to do with the Franklin Circuit Court's recent decision on property's fair cash value.

The Ford Administration could have had no role in it. The judge is a Republican... the Ford people were the defendants in the case.

Ford's said some silly things, too, like taking credit for lifting the sales tax from farm machinery and prescription drugs. Now, that was in 1970.

Republican Louie Nunn was governor. Ford was Lt. Gov. That would be the sort of like giving House Republican Floor Leader Harold DeMarcus credit for writing the 74-76 budget.

But we're not so sure DeMarcus would accept credit for that.

Now, Ford wants the broadcast media in the state to drop their... Republican advertising which deals with some rather colorful activities in Frankfort during the Ford years here. Why?

Just the other day the governor told us that no matter what direction the Cook campaign takes during these last days, "I'll just stay so high above it that the mud won't splatter."

You've got to expect some of this campaign intensifying at this point and if the Democrats are in the good shape they say they are, why don't they laugh it off? To complain loudly implies that it hurts. Does it?

You know, we said a long time ago that the campaign would get a little grimy in its waning hours.

It's hard to understand what kind of damage these GOP could do, but the Democrats know best about how far out in front they're supposed to be.

Poetry Corner

Mrs. Murphy Martin, Jr. has sent us the following "Golden Nuggets" from the Tenth Anniversary Edition of "The National Home Family Album."

"Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day which must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and forced to do your best will breed in you temperance and self-control, diligence and strength of will, cheerfulness and content, and a hundred virtues which the idle never know.

The best thing to give your enemy is forgiveness; to an opponent, tolerance; to a friend, your heart; to your child, a good example; to a father, deference; to your mother, conduct that will make her proud of you; to yourself, respect; to all men, charity.

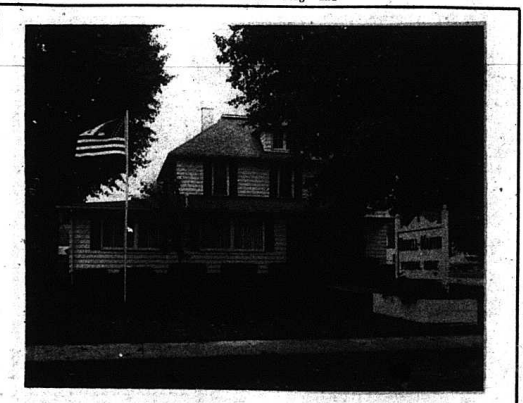

If you aren't as close to God as you once were, you can be certain as to which one of you has moved.

People are like stained glass windows. They glow and sparkle when it is sunny and bright, but when the sun goes down, their true beauty is revealed only if there is a light from within."

SWITZER COVERED BRIDGE in Franklin County recently was added to the National Register of Historic Places. According to Senate Bill 290, enacted earlier this year in General Assembly, it is one of sixteen covered bridges eligible to be designated as a state shrine. Switzer Covered Bridge was constructed around 1855 by George Hockensmith. Over 400 covered bridges existed at one time in Kentucky. Now there are sixteen and only ten are in use. Switzer was closed to traffic in 1954. The bridge is owned by Judge Henry Meigs of Franklin County.

Lear-Bailey

Miss Millicent Jo Lear, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Lear of Route 3, Broadhead, and William Burch Bailey, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Burch Bailey, Sr. of Mt. Vernon, were united in holy wedlock Sunday, September 1 at the First Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon.

Rev. Jack Burt performed the double-ring candlelit ceremony and the church was decorated by Mrs. Edna Fain. Blue and white were the colors used throughout the decorations with baskets of carnations and gladioli flanking each side of the bridal arch which was backed by wrought-iron candelabras with white candles.

Mrs. Lee Durham was director of the musical portion of the ceremony with Laura Lee Durham, cousin of the groom, presenting a selection of traditional wedding music on the organ. John Casey Carroll sang "We've Only Just Begun," "Because," and "Wedding Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional floor-length gown of delicate dove-tone satin crepe. The high-sculptured collar was defined with venise lace and the sleeves were deeplyuffed with matching lace. The cathedral length train was of the same dove-tone satin crepe and her bouffant veil of sheer english tulle net drifted waist-length. The crown consisted of babies' breath and the traditional wedding arid, surrounded by lace satin ribbons.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, babies' breath and miniature white carnations and a white Bible covered with white venise lace with streamers of Lily of the Valley and white and blue lace, a present of her parents.

The groom wore a white formal tuxedo with white and blue matching accessories and his attendants were attired in dark blue tuxedos with matching accessories and buttonets of white carnations.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Lear chose a formal floor-length gown of light blue satin polyester crepe and wore a corsage of white roses.

The groom's mother was attired in a formal floor-length gown of pink floral satin and wore a corsage of white roses. Grandmothers of the bride and groom also wore corsages of white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, reception was held in the church fellowship hall where guests were entertained by a replay of the wedding ceremony on television by Paul Bevlins and Bill Bailey.

The bride's table was covered with a cloth of imported lace, used on request of Mrs. Laura Ruth Durham, with a centerpiece of white and blue carnations flanked on each side with candelabras.

The three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a bride and groom, was decorated with white and blue roses and love doves. The punch bowl was cutglass, trimmed in gold, and had been used in the wedding of the bride's sister. It belongs to Mrs. Lewis Clifford, grandmother of the best man.

"Food Stamps"

food stamps within two weeks. "By law, he must receive them within thirty days of application," said Waddell.

One of the problems in recruiting people for food stamps is the notion that food stamps have to be paid for and therefore are not worth it.

However, payments increase on a graduated scale and are determined by income, resources, deductions and size of household. No two situations are identical. For example, two four member households with equal gross incomes may not pay the same amount for $150 worth of stamps. The amount of food stamps purchased is the same for a set size of household, but the cost per family is rarely the same.

A four-member family can purchase $150 worth of food stamps. With a net monthly income of under $20, there is no charge; net income of $150 to $170, the price is $41. If the net income is $500 or over, the household is not eligible.

The recipients are not the only ones to profit from food stamps. Business and the county benefit, also. In Stanford, Lincoln County, for instance, spokesmen for three of the grocery stores attribute part of their increased business to the food stamp program.

Rockcastle Recollections

© John Lair

As has been previously noted, the first white man to visit what is now Rockcastle County was Dr. Thomas Walker. Last week my wife and I returned the visit when we went to his old home in Albemarle County, Virginia. The doctor, of course, had long been gone but his old home, which had been owned and lived in by members of his family up until 1947, was still there, much as he had left it, after having raised a family of twelve sons and daughters there before his death, in 1794. A granddaughter had, in 1824, built a much larger addition to the home, known as castle Hill, but the work had been done in such a way that the old house remains intact, joined back to back with the latter structure.

Sixteen miles away was the home of his close neighbor, as distance then viewed, Thomas Jefferson, designer and builder of palatial Monticello. His father, Peter Jefferson, had established his plantation still nearer to Dr. Walker's Castle Hill, and was living there at the time of his death, when his son, Thomas, had been left by him under the guardianship of his neighbor and lifelong friend, Dr. Walker. Not too far removed was the homeplace of George Rogers Clark, who was himself to play such an important part in the settlement of this faraway Kentucky Wilderness which Walker was first to explore and report on. Presidents Madison and Monroe, after leaving office, also settled in Albemarle County, within easy visiting distance and, with Jefferson, were the third, fourth and fifth ex-presidents: close personal friends, who with Washington made it four out of five of the first presidents of the United States who were frequent callers at Castle Hill. When it is remembered that both Dr. Walker's first and second wives were cousins of President Washington, it may be supposed that he was a frequent visitor in the Walker home.

Castle Hill, fully and faithfully restored and under the careful supervision of Edward Preston enjoys the status of a Historical Landmark of Virginia and the surrounding grounds are no less interesting than the old home itself. Quarters to house Dr. Walker's forty-five slaves, along with the loom house, stables and other outbuildings associated with the operation of such a plantation in Colonial days, are well arranged and laid out and the grounds themselves, including the formal garden, bespeak a taste for life long since departed. Huge trees, many of them perhaps there from the beginning, lend an air of age to the scene that could scarcely be equalled in any other way. Probably the tallest and oldest oak hedges growing in America are seen here, many of which may have been started by Dr. Walker's own hands.

Castle Hill is now open to the public and all visitors receive careful and considerate attention. If you are from Kentucky and especially from Rockcastle County, Kentucky - a visit to house Dr. Walker must impress you with the character of the man who would give up such surroundings and such a way of life to spend four long months of constant toil and danger in an unknown wilderness, terminating his journey of exploration in the tangled wilds of what would later be Rockcastle County, from which point he would return home to carry the first written account of the new frontier of Kentucky. While Dr. Walker did not actually build Castle Hill until after his return from the Kentucky expedition, it must have been from somewhat similar surroundings that he set forth on his epochal journey in 1750.

While we were in that area we visited, for our first time, Thomas Jefferson's Monticello, certainly one of the most unique and interesting homes of early America. From all pictures I had ever seen of Monticello I had formed the idea that it was situated on a level plain. Among the wide acres of Virginia's lowland plantation country, it was a surprise to find it located on top of a high mountain, many acres of which had been leveled off by slave labor over a period of years to afford a proper setting for the mansions and its surrounding buildings. Two extensive terraces had also been created by hand labor down the mountain sides to allow for a series of plantation buildings and acres of flower and vegetable gardens. The gardens, however, do not equal in interest those surrounding Dr. Walker's Castle Hill.

Since our trip had been undertaken largely to learn, at first hand, more about the two men I have long considered the most important in the early development of Kentucky, we made it a point to visit also the scenes which produced Richard Henderson, concerning whom so little is known by residents of the state he was so instrumental in settling and bringing into being.

It must be remembered that for almost twenty-five years after Dr. Walker's exploration of Kentucky there was little concerted effort to settle it. For the next few years it was visited largely by such nomadic people as the Long Hunters, Indian traders and small groups of surveyors and explorers, always ready to turn back when threatened by Indian hostilities. The conflict known as the French and Indian Wars also occurred during this period, which made it still more hazardous to venture into the Great Unknown. The first attempt of any importance toward settlement was when James Harrod and party built a few cabins in the Harrodsburg area. This, in the opinion of most historians, entitled Harrod to lay claim to establishing the first permanent settlement in Kentucky, although actually, the group of cabins were abandoned soon thereafter and not again occupied until the following year.

In 1775 Richard Henderson came prominently upon the scene and in a most determined and business-like fashion set about the settlement of the Kentucky Wilderness. To remove the danger of Indian resistance he proposed to buy the land, outright, from them and extinguish their claim to it by purchase rather than by force. He planned to send in a party numerous enough to protect themselves from attack by their wandering tribes and to immediately build a fort for their protection in their attempt to hold the land.

To do this took a lot of money, since he had agreed with Indian leaders to give them fifty thousand dollars worth of trade goods for the property, to be divided among them as said leaders saw fit. He went at it in a business like way, taking into his company his cousin, John Williams, and another well-fixed relative, Leonard Henley Bullock. Then there were the three Hart Brothers, Nathaniel, Thomas and David, James Hogg, John Luttrell and William Johnson. Henderson, Williams and Bullock were residents of Williamsboro, North Carolina, now faded into an insignificant crossroads settlement, but then one of the more important communities in the State and as lively as any. We visited there a handsomely restored church, built by the Lewis family in the 1750's and regularly attended over the years by Henderson, Williams and Bullock, before and after their Transylvania activities.

I had been led to make this trip by the report that Richard Henderson had died on his farm nearby, to which he had retired after his land ventures, and was buried in an unmarked grave on that farm. I had previously called sources in North Carolina concerning this but had been unable to get the required information, so thought it necessary to go see for myself. It was my feeling that in this bi-centennial year of the state of Kentucky some official attention should be bestowed upon the man who was of such importance in its beginning. I soon learned that although his grave had remained unmarked and unnoticed for more than 150 years, a marker had finally been erected over it, which was later damaged and partly despoiled by visiting tourist but has since been repaired. The grave of his wife, beside his remains unmarked.

Years afterward the house in which he was living at the time of his death had been removed to Williamsboro and set up as a sort of memorial to him, but has now fallen into almost complete ruin and decay. There is, however, a project well in hand for the complete restoration of a splendid old home near his gravesite which was owned and occupied by Samuel Henderson, supposedly his father. Both Richard Henderson's father and a brother were named Samuel and it is not exactly clear in my mind which was the builder of this fine example of an early colonial home. If Samuel Henderson, senior, then it might well have been the childhood home of Richard, himself, who came with his father and family to North Carolina in 1756. The old home is now owned by a group of energetic young business men, Hendersons of North Carolina, who very well know what they are about and will eventually make it one of the show places of the state and a spot well worth visiting.

All of this, of course, with many other facts picked up concerning both Dr. Walker and Richard Henderson, cannot be given space in our county history, but is included in this week's column for the information of our readers who have expressed an interest in knowing more about the early history of Kentucky as related to that of our own county, which marked the end of Dr. Walker's expedition and the beginning of the new trail which Richard Henderson paid Daniel Boone and his axmen to cut to the settlement he was establishing under the name of Boonesborough.

We travelled across the Daniel Boone country along the Yadkin River, in North Carolina, but did not have sufficient time to stop and explore. Anyway, we felt that Boone's story was much more widely known than that of either of the two men who contributed so much to the beginning of Kentucky.

Down On The Farm

By Roy G. Brown
Assistant Vice President
Cumberland Production
Credit Association

Farmers are closing a very unusual year for them in many ways. As usual, the weather and prices are the most important factors in the farmers' outcome at the end of the year.

This year both the weather and prices have been observed very much. We've had a lot of wet weather at harvest time on many crops such as hay, silage and tobacco - which caused delayed harvest and then the early freeze damaged many crops severely.

Prices for livestock have been far too low, causing many farmers to lose money on cattle they had bought.

The farmers say the only people who take their products to market and have to take what the buyer is willing to pay and then go to the market and pay what the seller asks. That has been the farmers' biggest downfall through the years, and this year has been exceptionally bad in that livestock prices have been coming down and prices of the items we need to produce have increased to unreasonable prices. A few examples are wire, nails, baler twine, fuel, machinery and parts.

These are only a few things we face "Down on the Farm."

People can call, write, or visit any social security office for information about the retirement, disability, survivors, Medicare, and supplemental security income programs, the spokesman said.

The energy situation

What is its effect on KU's capacity to supply its customers' needs?

The electric industry is not a basic energy industry. It simply converts the basic energies, primarily coal, oil, and natural gas, into a more portable and flexible form of energy, electricity. Up to now the electrical energy shortage is confined chiefly to those companies dependent on oil or gas.

The source of 98 per cent of KU's electric energy is coal. KU has ample generating capability, and plans and hopes to increase its supply of electricity to its customers' needs dependent upon an adequate supply of coal.

These needs have kept growing. Kentucky's expanding industrial and commercial development, the thousands of new homes for which electricity is the best remaining alternative source of heat, and increasing residential use are demanding more and more electric energy.

KU engineers have anticipated these demands, and KU has built facilities as they were needed. It has successfully kept pace with current requirements even when electrical use increased far beyond previous records.

This is not a justification for "business as usual." While KU can, today, supply its customers' requirements, it has for many months urged its customers to observe sound electricity- and resource-saving measures.

Summing up... there is no shortage of generating capability in our service area. We shall continue to do our best to make sure none develops... and do our best to acquire fuel for generation to supply your electrical needs. You can help preserve our natural resources by using electricity wisely.

It's wise to use electricity... use it wisely!

Wilderness Trail Homemakers Meet

The Rockcastle County Homemakers Association was met with the county members attending the Area Meeting held October 17th in Williamsburg. Those attending were: Quail Homemakers - Mrs. Christine Taylor, Mrs. Dolores Albright, Mrs. Hattie Owens, Mrs. Charlotte Bullock, Mrs. Joyce Craig and Mrs. Virginia Hanel. Broodhead - Williams Workers Club - Mrs. Lorraine Newland, Mrs. Elzora Gray, Mrs. Elizabeth Mullins, Mrs. Emily Crawford, Mrs. Margie Shively and Mrs. Ella Martin; Mt. Included in the Agenda was a Style Show under the direction of Mrs. Margie Shively and Mrs. Iris Young. Model outfits were Mrs. Emily Crawford and Mrs. Charlotte Bullock.

Guest speaker for the event was Mrs. Adron Doran, Institute Director for Personal Development at Morehead State University. The main theme of her talk dealt with "Personal Development Through Volunteerism - What To - How To." Mrs. Doran stressed that "We were born to be needed, but to be contributors." We become more generous contributors through self-improvement. Mrs. Doran also stressed very simple techniques involved in self improvement. A few points for SAFETY HINTS FOR HALLOWEEN:

As the ghosts and goblins of the Halloween season appear again, they bring excitement and anticipation for the youngsters, but anxiety for the parents.

The Kentucky Optometric Association has a few hints which should make this Halloween less worrisome for parents and children. As the youngsters move through the dusk of this last October night.

Highly reflective materials are recommended for costume decoration since they are clearly visible even from an auto speeding at 80 miles per hour. Also, parents should encourage their children to wear nonallergenic face makeup instead of masks, allowing them an unobstructed view of oncoming cars or other objects in their path.

There is some advice for home owners, too. Turn on all porch and yard lights. Be sure the steps are well lit and that all toys and garden tools are put away.

Members of the vision-care profession hope that these safety hints will help reduce accidents and make Halloween a safer night this year.

a perfect day; strengthen the mind by reading a few pages in a good book, do a good turn and, not be found out, dress becomingly, be relaxed, think of God, be unafraid and, in turn, you will be loved!

At a later date Mrs. Doran will teach a series on personal development on the KET-TV series. Watch your Homemaker Newsletter and local papers for more information.

If you wish to seek improvement in yourself, your home, family and community, join the Rockcastle County Homemakers. Be a better contributor. Contact the County Extension Office, 256-2400 for more information on the homemaker clubs in your county.

by: perlina m. anderkin

If there is any truth to the saying, I have often heard that goes, "Blessed is he who goes in circles for they shall be called wheels," then you are reading an article by the biggest wheel of all times. Thank goodness, the cooler weather gave me back some of the energy I have been missing all summer or I don't think I could have made it. Nothing big has come up, you understand, just an accumulation of little things that would break any camel's back. To top it all off, I woke Sunday morning to find my jaw swollen to about three times its normal size (No, Jim didn't take a punt at starting the night. I don't think) because of a tooth that had decided it was time to abscise. Fortunately, there was almost no pain involved with it - if you don't count the shot I had to get to combat it. And, by Tuesday I could once again walk the streets of Mt. Vernon with my looks as whippersnappers behind my back. The odd looks and whispers I can stand; it's the trip to the dentist that is going to call for that makes my knees turn to jelly when I think of it.

If my children read this, I am dead, because I have dragged them to dentists for years and constantly given out their admonition of "Don't be silly, it doesn't hurt at all."knowing full well that I was telling a story but that also, if worse came to worse, I could help hold the child in the chair. I had a bad experience with a dentist when I was a child, however, that has carried over to now. And that, combined with what having several children does to your dental work, has made me finally wind up in pretty bad shape - and please, remember I'm talking strictly about my teeth with that statement. Of course, it has been an advantage to some extent because when the children give me trouble about taking care of their teeth, I can always open my mouth wide and easily and clearly show them what will happen if they don't take care of them.

But, enough about my teeth except does anyone know how much it costs to get up to sleep for removal of teeth?.....

I have been cautioned by my husband to be safe and mention the fact that even though our time changes Sunday, October 27th - it actually doesn't. Make sense? The only thing, and a pretty important one in most households, including ours, that the change from Central Daylight Savings Time to Eastern Standard Time, which we will undergo, will affect will be the television schedules and I, for one, am glad of it. Now, mind you, I don't get to dawdle that much in front of the television set, but when you have been used to years of making the end of the 11 p.m. news your bedtime, the 10 p.m. news with the filler shows - some pretty good - can play havoc with your schedule. Anyway, this Sunday we go back to normal, if there is such a thing anymore.....

I understand that a new industry for Rockcastle County is an assured thing but that as of yet, no official announcement has been made from the powers that be. I have been told by one of the local people involved that a news release will be forthcoming within the near future and I will, of course, immediately pass it on.....

The 104th Annual Session of the Rockcastle Baptist Association was held Tuesday and Wednesday at the First Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon with E. K. Cook, Moderator, presiding. Officers for the association were elected Tuesday morning. They are, seated, from left: Rev. Jack Bruce, assistant moderator; Mrs. William Ellis of Shelbyville, president of the Kentucky W.M.U.; George Coldiron of Crab Orchard, association clerk; Rev. Henry Parrett, Director of Missions for the Rockcastle-Tates Creek Association and Bro. E. K. Cook of Somerset, Moderator. Back row: Rev. T. Hicks Shelton of Middletown, Director of Evangelism for the Kentucky Baptist Convention; Rev. R. C. Flynn, Director of Sunday Schools for the Rockcastle Association; Raymond McKinney, Association Treasurer and Robert Snodgrass, Assistant Clerk.

Baptist Assn. Holds 104th Annual Session

The Rockcastle Baptist Association opened its 104th Annual Session at the First Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon Tuesday with Bro. E. K. Cook of Somerset as Moderator.

Reprinted below are Bro. Cook's opening remarks to the assembly.

"This is a very happy privilege we have to call to order this 104th Annual Session of our Rockcastle Missionary Baptist Association.

"We are convening here today in response to the cordial invitation and the gracious welcome of this our host church.

"We assemble, as you know in Christian fellowship for the express purpose of meeting and greeting those who will be gathering here on this occasion.

"We anticipate the pleasure of seating all messengers, then adopting a suitable and acceptable program and then recognizing and extending a cordial welcome to all who are present—especially to those visitors and other folk who may be bringing for our edification and inspiration, such reports and messages as are customarily received and discussed on occasions such as this.

"Baptist churches and their associated affiliations are recognized generally as ranking foremost among the more ancient and honorable institutions of this Commonwealth. This is doubtless because of the friendships developed, the fellowship fostered, the leadership furnished by our pastors and the fellowship practiced among the loyal and faithful members of our congregations, which prompts their mutual love for each other, their divine love for God, their neighborly deeds and practical services rendered to all.

"On our library shelf stands a book that tells the biographical history of many of the early Baptist ministers; and the Baptist associations and churches they served and helped organize. For me to do justice to them during this five-minute message is impossible. It may be desirable for me to here name from among these pioneer the following: Rev. Benjamin Cave organized Laurel Baptist Church in 1803. Among his friends and those who followed him may we name Rev. James W. Anderson, born at Conklyn in Owsley County and died at Irvine in Estill County, three Gilbert brothers, John, J. J. and Taylor Gilbert, citizens of Owsley and Clay County, Rev. Pleasant Burger, born in Estill County preached in Baptist churches, moved to Missouri, died there, Rev. George Seale, born in Owsley Co. and died at Irvine in Estill County, Rev. Ky. died at Booneville, Ky. in 1917, Rev. Nathan Culton a brilliant lawyer, spiritual Baptist born in Madison Co. died at Richmond, Ky. These are only a few of the faithful pioneer God-called and spirit filled Baptist messengers and ministers who rode horse back from church to church and from cities to counties to convert sinners, console grief stricken and help bury their dead. From among the many Baptist associations organized and functioning in pioneer days the following should be mentioned: The Third Baptist Association formed in Ky. in 1798, was called the old South Association number one. In 1798 the Tates Creek Association was organized as the Fourth Baptist Association in Ky. This Tates Creek

Association was composed of only five churches which had come from that old South Kentucky Association of Baptists designated as number one. In 1809 six Baptist churches, which were dismissed from Tates Creek Association organized themselves to form or constitute the Old Cumberland Association now extinct. Then about 82 years later in the year 1871 on October 17 of that year

1871 thirteen Baptist churches came out of that old Cumberland Association which is now extinct to organize and form our present Rockcastle Association of Missionary Baptist Churches. From that day till this that association of Missionary Baptist Churches has never been extinct or inactive but has been very alive and functioning well both physically and spiritually."

Perhaps it's a sign of the times -- or a sign of time passing all too quickly -- but it seems there are too many unnecessary problems in our lives today.

A case in point is the farmer who wants to welcome visitors to his farm -- hunters, fishermen, campers -- but finds such visitors are adding to his daily burden of unavoidable farming problems and thus creating unnecessary aggravation in his life.

And for the most part, such a farmer is typical. Most have no objections to visitors hunting, fishing, camping, hiking or nature watching on their land. That is, they have no objections to those who conduct themselves in a proper and courteous manner while they use the country's open spaces.

However, when the visitors add problems to the farmer's already large list of day-to-day troubles with rain that falls too much or not at all; weeds that grow too fast in the wrong places; crops that must all be harvested at the same time; livestock that must be cared for, etc., the unnecessary problem is almost more than he can cope with.

When this happens the farmer often feels the only solution is to POST ALL THE LAND TO ALL THE TRESPASSERS. This is a solution that most farmers resist, but it is being resorted to at an alarming rate and the trend can only be reversed in one way: If outdoor minded individuals are to continue to enjoy the privilege of entering the land of another to enjoy their favorite sports, then each and every one must realize that they have certain responsibilities to the landowner and they must fulfill them.

The visitor must respect not only the farmer's property but the farmer's work as well. It simply isn't fair that a man must spend his precious time chasing down a hunter or fisherman who has parked his car or truck in the middle of a farm road or blocked a gate so that the farmer cannot go about his business.

And a gate that has been left open can mean more than lost time to a farmer. Livestock can wander onto an open highway or into a field where crops can be damaged or can scatter over the entire farm or onto the farm of another person.

Too many farmers have let hunters onto their land only to find fences were cut to allow hunting dogs complete freedom during the chase or to make a shortcut for campers or trucks. And one farmer I know narrowly escaped losing a barn from fire when he found deer hunters had camped there and, ignoring the fact it was full of hay, had smoked and thrown the cigarette butts and matches on the floor.

Farm pond banks and stream banks often are littered with cans, bottles and other debris which can, and sometimes do, injure livestock or damage farm machinery tires. Even domestic ducks and geese that some farmers set so much store by have been known to be killed by eating bits of bait left on discarded fish hooks. So if an outdoorsman litters his land, the farmer is lucky if he loses only the time it takes to clean up the mess.

These are but a few of the problems many farmers face when they open their land to visitors. Most outdoorsmen are not the slobs we've talked about here, but the farmer must protect himself and his property against the few who are and the gentleman-outdoorsman suffers in the process.

We can help the farmer and ourselves by understanding what he's up against. We can pick up litter others have left behind, take care that our own behavior is beyond reproach and we can get on our soap boxes and "preach" good manners and good sportsmanship.

If we want to get those "posted" signs down, we really don't have any choice, do we? *****

OPINIONS FROM OFFICE OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Among opinions released last week from the office of Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock were the following:

Silent Sirens and Safety—Ralph C. Robke, legal counsel of the Department of Insurance, requested a clarification on the status of an ambulance with a silent siren transporting a heart patient. An earlier opinion had stated that an ambulance still was an emergency vehicle even if it was not using its siren, but it would have to exercise due care in crossing an intersection on a red light. The Office of the Attorney General (OAG) modified the earlier opinion, noting that the use of an ambulance with a silent siren should observe all traffic signals in the same manner as a non-emergency vehicle.

You can save money with washers!

The third greatest energy use in most homes is the heating of water. So here are some simple facts about saving: oversized water heaters waste energy by heating unneeded water.

Dripping faucets waste hundreds of gallons of hot water in a year's time, and this often can be corrected just by replacing faulty washers.

Showers use less hot water than baths. And washing clothes in warm or cold water costs less than when hot water is used. It all adds up... to waste, or to saving.

Electricity is too good to waste!

OVER ONE MILLION VEHICLES INSPECTED

A total of 1,368,127 vehicles have been inspected under the state's annual safety inspection program through September 30th this year. Transportation officials say those vehicles have received a total of 157,130 rejections - given to faulty items of equipment which must be fixed or replaced before the inspection can be passed and the annual sticker awarded.

Defects in exhaust systems and turn signals were the first and second leading causes of rejections during September - as they have been in each previous month of 1974.

Exhaust system defects accounted for 2,952 of September's 15,057 rejections and have accounted for 29,623 rejections so far this year.

Faulty turn signals accounted for 2,303 rejections in September and have added 23,788 rejections to the total through September 30th.

Other major sources of vehicle rejection are bad tires, faulty tail lights and stop lights.

Inspection officials have noted that if a person gets his vehicle's rejection corrected within five days and returns to the same inspection station, there is no additional charge for the reinspection.

Black Lung Payments To Be Increased

Black lung payments to coal miners and their families will increase beginning with checks mailed in early November, according to LaFawn Horn, social security manager in Richmond.

Black lung - benefits are pegged to the pay of Federal Government employees, who received a 5.52 percent raise in October.

The monthly payment in November to a coal miner or survivor with one dependent will get $281.10 a month beginning in November - and with two dependents, $328.00 monthly.

Payment of most black lung benefits under the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act, is administered by the Social Security Administration. The U.S. Department of Labor, however, began on July 1, 1973 to administer new claims filed by miners.

LOCAL FAMILY DOCTOR ATTENDS MEETING IN LOS ANGELES...

Dr. George H. Griffith of Mt. Vernon recently attended the Annual Scientific Assembly of the American Academy of Family Physicians in Los Angeles. The medical meeting began October 14th and ran through the 17th. More than 4,000 family doctors participated in the one-year continuing education convale.

Dr. Griffith, who is a member of the Academy, heard nationally-known speakers discuss up-to-the-minute health care topics. He also had the opportunity to attend his choice of clinical seminars on forty different topics and visit more than 110 scientific and 280 technical exhibits.

Subjects covered in the four-day scientific session were of immediate interest to family doctors both in their everyday practices and in their continual endeavors to keep abreast of the latest advances in medicine. This year, topics included hyper-tenion diagnosis and management, management of pain, synovectomy in rheumatoid arthritis, and the minimal brain-damaged child. The Academy, headquartered in Kansas City, Missouri, is the nation's second largest medical association and the only national medical organization that requires its more than 36,000 members to keep "going back to school." All AAFP members must complete 150 hours of continuing education every three years.

While attending the meeting, Dr. Griffith was awarded a fellowship to American Academy of Family Practice. *****

Immunization Action Month

When virtually every professional group in a field becomes alarmed at a developing situation, it's time for the rest of us to be concerned also. This is what is happening among health-oriented groups. The American Medical Association, Kentucky Medical Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics and its Kentucky arm, the Conference of City and County Health Officers, American School Health Association, nursed groups the Kentucky Department for Human Resources and our own Rockcastle Health Department are among the many organizations and firms participating in Immunization Action Month.

For the second year, October has been designated as Immunization Action Month - a time to check to see that every child is fully protected against preventable diseases. National and state statistics indicate that the percentage of fully immunized children is less now than it was just a few years ago. Outbreaks of measles, polio and other diseases have already occurred, and the threat of widespread epidemics exists because too many children have not completed their immunizations.

Being needlessly sick shouldn't be a part of growing up. The Department of Human Resources recommends that children be fully immunized against polio, measles, rubella or German measles, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough by the time they're two years old. But 16 percent of Kentucky's two-year-olds are not adequately protected against the diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough, 20 percent have not been immunized against measles and 22 percent have not completed their polio vaccine series, or have not had rubella vaccine.

If your children haven't completed their series, or if you're not sure about this important health record, please - see your doctor or the County Health Department right away. Don't let your children run the risk of getting sick. *****

Indigent Defendants Create Question - Warren County Attorney Henry J. Potter, Jr. said that two indigent defendants, convicted in circuit court and sentenced to the penitentiary, were allowed to proceed in forma pauperis. On February 1, an order was entered that the court reporter furnish for an appeal a transcript of the evidence from the previous trial. On August 22nd, the Warren County Fiscal Court received a bill for $778.00 for the transcript. Does the county have to pay? According to the Attorney General's Office, before June 21, 1974, there was no statutory provision for the payment of any fees to a circuit court reporter in a second class city. On June 21, H.B. 483 was established which stated that the county would pay in in forma pauperis case. But, since H.B. 483 isn't retroactive, the older law would govern and no one would have to pay.

TONY HOPKINS, Local Sanitarian, inspects the new restrooms completed this summer at the Blue Springs School as a community projects by residents of the area. They supplied materials and labor for the addition which replaces four pit privies used previously. A chlorinator, to protect the water supply from bacteria contamination, was also installed. Another project of the residents, in the past, was the reading room addition to the school, shown in the bottom photo. On both projects, most of the materials and some labor were furnished by local residents with workers from the BEA program furnishing labor and the school board providing materials not supplied by residents. Students at the school told us Tuesday, when these pictures were made, that they hoped the next project would be a utility room for storage of articles now being stored in the classroom.
