

Kentucky Afield

[This week article is written by John Wilson, Guest Writer]

Kentucky-style jigging for black bass doesn't require a lot of fancy or expensive tackle, but it is one of the most effective ways of taking fish during the winter months and is particularly well in muddy water.

In fact, it was the muddy waters of late winter that inspired jigging in the first place. Back in the mid-twenties, a group of fishermen at Harrington Lake, Kentucky's first major impoundment, discovered that they could catch bass even when the water was almost thick enough to plow by dangling a gob of live nightcrawlers just below the surface around shoreline cover.

As other lakes were built, the technique grew in popularity and developed refinements, but the basic system remains the same—a stiff cane or fiberglass pole mounted to a long line similar to the outfit used for murky water. Doolittles, small artificial nightcrawlers or pork rind strips are favorites among jig fishermen.

Like all other types of fishing, successful jigging depends first of all on locating the fish. In winter, the bass will generally be near the surface where the water is warmest. The muddier the water, the closer to the top the fish will be—probably due to the increased light penetration in the water, which allows the bass to find the low illumination levels they seem to prefer. As the water color changes to murky or clear, the fish will be progressively deeper.

Another thing jig fishermen should remember is that bass tend to be sluggish in cold water. Both their activity and their food intake decreases with the temperature. Hence, small baits, both live and artificial, are usually more effective than larger ones, and whatever bait is used, it should be fished slowly.

So, if you haven't tried Kentucky jigging, now is a good time to get started. It's often the ticket for some hot fishing in cold weather.

clear water, slightly different techniques, employing a little more finesse, are required. For lighter line (about 20 pound test) is commonly used and the line length is adjusted so that it is about a foot shorter than the pole. The stationary float is replaced by a slip cork and the bait is usually a minnow—is fished much deeper, sometimes eight to ten feet deep.

For clear-water jigging, artificial bait will sometimes prove effective when used with the long line similar to the outfit used for murky water. Doolittles, small artificial nightcrawlers or pork rind strips are favorites among jig fishermen.

Are funeral directing firms really all the same?

The International Order of the Golden Rule doesn't think so.

The Order believes that some funeral directing firms are special. More concerned about professional ethics and about the needs of families they serve. More worthy of the trust people place in them.

And the Order selects only these special firms for membership.

It's with considerable pride, then, that we announce our reaffiliation with this organization for another year.

The Rockcastle River Runs Wild

By Jenny Pulliam

Frankfort, Ky. — A Journey down the Rockcastle River through a shadowy forest which retains the unexplored atmosphere of hundreds of years is an experience of the senses. The slow-moving, gently flowing surface of the stream, occasionally erupting into turbulence, and the surrounding wooded beauty works like a time machine taking one back two hundred years.

According to Wendell Van Hoose, associate director of the division of special programs of the Ky. Dept. for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, the Rockcastle is considered one of the most beautiful streams in the eastern United States.

1972, meanders through Rockcastle, Laurel and Pulaski Counties into Lake Cumberland. The portion of the river covered by the Act extends from the Kentucky 60 bridge to the backwater of Lake Cumberland. "Because of its rugged terrain—the steep cliffs and deep coves—and its remoteness," explained Van Hoose, "this portion of the river has long remained wild. This free-flowing stream on whose shores Kentucky plants and wildlife thrive is free from the evidence of the works of man."

Through the mixed pine and hardwood forest of Laurel County along the Rockcastle river, the wildlife feed. Deer, squirrels, rabbits, quail and dove sometimes frequent the area.

City Council Votes To Build Addition

Council Follows Fire Chief's Recommendation and Increases Size

Mt. Vernon Fire Chief John Cox met with the Mt. Vernon City Council Monday night in their called meeting to discuss with the Council the possibility of enlarging the proposed addition to City Hall which will house the fire trucks.

Chief Cox told the Council that the 30x40' proposed addition would only house the two trucks the City now has and that this did not take into consideration a utility truck which was needed by the Department to carry equipment or the fact that by 1980, the City would have to purchase a new fire-truck which would also have to be housed in the addition.

Mr. Cox proposed an alternate plan to the Council whereby the size of the addition would be increased to 40x46' allowing for space for all the Fire Department's vehicles.

After some discussion, the Council decided it would be the wiser course to increase the size of the addition now rather than have to come up with something else when the number of the Fire Department's trucks were increased at a later date.

The increase in the size of the addition would cost approximately $1,000 more onto the present $20,000 already estimated as the cost of the project.

Before a motion was made on whether or not to go ahead with the addition and remodeling, Councilman Chester Hellard brought up the subject of whether or not it was strictly legal for the City to use funds received from the sale of the old Lake property to finance the project. Mr. Hellard said that there were the slightest legal question as to using these funds, he would rather finance the project out of revenue sharing funds over a two-year period.

Mayor Roland Mullins said that from information he had received there would be no problem in using money received from the sale of the old Lake property, but that he would request that City Attorney Carl Clontz query EDA for their approval of the use of these funds.

A motion was then made by Councilman Conrad Parrett to accept the architect's plans for the addition and remodeling, with the change in size as proposed by Chief John Cox and pending approval of EDA to use money for the project from the sale of the old Lake property. Councilman Bob Jasper seconded the motion and the vote was unanimous.

The Council then voted to officially hire Phillip Gilbert as architect for the project at a fee not to exceed 4% of the total cost of the project.

In other action at the called meeting, the Council, following a

Livingston Lions Make Further Donation to Athletic Club

At the last meeting of the Livingston Lions Club, the members voted to donate an additional $300, which the Club had received from the Thanksgiving Tournament held at the High School, to the Rockcastle County Athletic Boosters Club.

This contribution brings the total — donations from the Livingston Lions to $1,200. The Athletic Boosters Club will use this money toward the cost of installing lights on the football field at the high school.

It is estimated that the cost of lighting the field will be around $15,000. Since the Board of Education did not have sufficient funds to finance the project in the near future, the Boosters Club is attempting to raise $12,000 toward the project with the Board of Education attempting to finance the balance and to install seating on the field this summer.

To date, the Boosters Club has raised a total of $4,593.00 toward the project. The Brothead Lions Club is sponsoring a Country Music Show on Friday night, January 31st and the proceeds will go to the Boosters Club for this project.

The Mt. Vernon Lions Club is also making a fund drive for this purpose in the early spring. Persons or businesses desiring to contribute to lighting the field may do so through any of the Lion Clubs or your contribution may be given directly to Jim Earl Hammons, president of the Club or Preston Parrett, secretary-treasurer.

Other contributions received since the last report in the Signal include: Rockcastle Jaycees, $100; Ernie Tolle, $25; Bill and Betty Lester, $25; and Auction, $100; Mt. Vernon Lions Club, $300; and Robert Cromer, $200.

A $130,000 civil suit has been filed in Rockcastle Circuit Court by Edith Smith, Administratrix of the Estate of Glen Allen "Skip" Smith, who was found dead early Saturday morning, September 21st in a smoke-filled cell at the Rockcastle County Jail.

Mr. Smith had been lodged in jail two days earlier on a charge of public drunkenness.

A Coroner's Jury, convened last night to reach a verdict as to cause of death and recommended it be turned over to the Rockcastle County Grand Jury for investigation.

The suit alleges in part that "on or about 7:30 a.m. on the 21st day of September, 1974, there was a fire in the cell in which Glen Allen Smith was confined in the Rockcastle County Jail, and that such fire was confined to an improper and impermissible mattress covering and mattress in such jail...."

That as a direct and proximate result of the negligence of the Rockcastle County Fiscal Court and Rockcastle County Jailor, Ivory Anglin, to supply the Rockcastle County Jail with fireproof material, and other suitable fire extinguishing material, said fire in Glen Allen Smith's cell would not have occurred and Glen Allen Smith would not have died as a result of such fire."

The suit also states "That as a direct and proximate result of the negligence of Ivory Anglin, individually, and Ivory Anglin as Jailor of Rockcastle County, to adequately maintain supervision, care, custody and control of said Rockcastle County Jail, Glen Allen Smith became intoxicated with alcoholic beverages in violation of the statutes of the laws of the Commonwealth of Kentucky and that subsequent to such intoxication, the Defendant, Ivory Anglin, individually and Ivory Anglin, Jailor of Rockcastle County, did fail to take necessary remedial steps so as to prevent harm coming to said Glen Allen Smith, and that as a result of the failure of the Defendant, Ivory Anglin, to so act, Glen Allen Smith died as a result of interstitial hemorrhage involving the lungs."

The suit names as defendants Ivory Anglin, Individually, and Ivory Anglin, Jailor, Rockcastle County and County of Rockcastle, by and through Judge Hubert Thacker, County Judge, et al.

Homestead Exemption Is Increased.....

Persons sixty-five and older, or who will reach that age this year, have one opportunity to keep up with inflation, thanks to the 1974 legislature. They can secure a $7,700 tax exemption on a residence they own.

But applications must be made by March 1. An eligible person must apply with the county property evaluation administrator and maintain the property for which the exemption is sought as his personal residence.

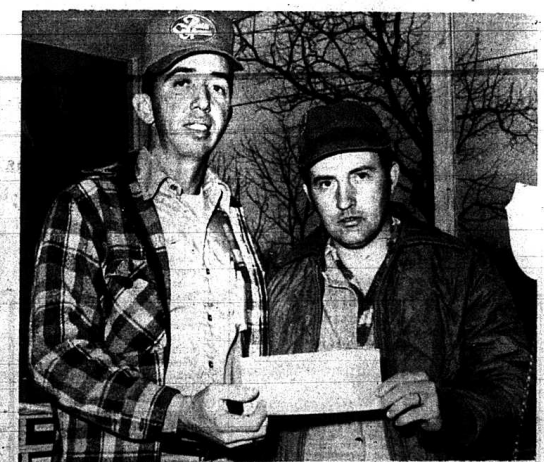

Homestead exemptions are not automatic. Only one exemption per homestead is allowed, regardless of the number of sixty-five year olds residing there.

House Bill 436, which provided for the exemption, specified the amount as $6,500, but further stipulated that "this be construed in terms of the purchasing power of the dollar in 1972." It also provided for adjustment every two years thereafter. "If the cost of living index of the United States Department of Labor has changed as much as one percent, the maximum exemption shall be adjusted accordingly."

This has made possible the raising of the exemption by $1,200 as a result of an 18 percent increase.

Under terms of the Homestead Exemption Amendment to the Constitution of Kentucky, ratified in the general election, November 10, 1970, properties exempted from taxation were those which were used as public places, used for religious worship, places of burial, institutions of purely public charity, institutions of non-profit education, public libraries and single-unit residences occupied by persons sixty-five years of age or older. It stipulated single-unit tax exemption of up to the assessed valuation of $6,500 on each residence.

Owners of a duplex may apply if the duplex is owned jointly by two persons and each is sixty-five years or older or if either owner has a spouse sixty-five years or older. Each eligible owner must live in a separate unit of the duplex. The exemption may apply to both of them as if they owned a single homestead.

Paul Hamel, Director of the Tri-City and Rockcastle County Rescue Squad, and Eddie Moore, Chief of Land Rescue Operations, are shown with the $125 donation recently made to the squad by the Rockcastle County Stone Company. The donation was forthcoming in appreciation of the Squad's efforts on behalf of a Kentucky Stone Company employee who was trapped by his bulldozer. The money will be used toward the purchase of more and better equipment for the Squad.

Frankfort Watchline

Frankfort, Ky.: Kentucky's Republicans are surely moving toward the May primary with no standout candidate on tap to oppose the sure candidate, Gov. Julian Carroll.

The question seems to be whether they want to put up a strong candidate in the face of Carroll's entrenched power and popularity or whether they want a sacrificial lamb to carry to the altar of the public polling places.

State Sen. Joe Graves, R. Lexington, sparked a hot, if short-lived, controversy earlier this month in a top level GOP meeting when he suggested that unless a strong candidate can be found, the party might be better advised to forget the governor's race and concentrate on the lieutenant governor.

Amid screams and disclaimers from his fellow Republicans on the state central committee, the bold move was quickly brushed through.

But the Republicans will have none of it. It is just impossible, they believe, to give up that easily, to admit the likelihood of defeat before the fact.

So a candidate must be found, a genuine candidate willing to face off against Carroll.

It wouldn't be particularly damaging for a Republican to use a race against Carroll. Few would have expected him to win anyway.

In fact, it would probably boost the chances of that same candidate in a future race by giving some relatively unknown but rising young star the massive dose of public exposure he would need five years hence. The Republicans are apparently in no great hurry to establish a candidate. There are advantages to waiting right now.

First of all, their search committee can get a great deal of publicity at little cost, and in the second, but maybe the most important sense, the longer they wait the less the campaign will cost. Fund raising for a Republican gubernatorial candidate this year will not be easy to come by.

General Assembly leadership is flexing its muscles, not particularly surprising when one remembers that the leadership is Ford leadership.

If those muscles develop enough strength, however, it could lead to some problems for Carroll during the next few months.

While Carroll will not, in all probability, have to face a session of the legislature with a potentially hostile leadership, there can be interim inighting.

Due largely to the efforts of Carroll while he was lieutenant governor, the Legislative Research Commission is now free of direct executive control and House Speaker Norbert Blume and Senate President Pro-Tem William Sullivan have quickly grabbed the new found powers.

But their power is, at best, a temporal thing.

Come December, even if both were to return to their respective legislative bodies, it is unlikely that they would return to their former leadership positions.

It is only logical to assume that when December's pre-legislative conference rolls around, Julian Carroll's views on legislative independence will be forgotten, at least temporarily.

No governor is going to be the least bit interested in seeing a legislature from itself without regard to the wishes of the governor. It has never happened before, and it won't happen this time.

As one top Carroll aide put it, "Julian Carroll has to have a legislature he can work with if he is going to accomplish what he wants to accomplish."

He may have to wait a few months while the current leadership jockeys for position.

by: perlina m. anderkin

Jim and I acted as chaperones last Friday night, along with four other adults, to forty-nine teenagers at all-night teenaging party in Danville. Need I say more? Actually, the children were a very well-behaved group of youngsters - that wasn't the problem. The problem was that as much as I love bowling it gets to be a drag after 2 a.m. in the morning. I think the real drag, though was in realizing that, as the old saying goes, I just can't cut it anymore. The only way in which the kids were discourteous at all was in having boundless amounts of energy right on through the night, from the 4:30 a.m. to 5 a.m. quitting time - it was disgusting. Now, don't think that I am inferring that age had a thing to do with it. It was merely a situation where I had been out all day Friday busily while no doubt the majority of these kids had been bouncing around the house all day eating their parents out of house and home; and, therefore, they should have more energy - right? It was actually a lot of fun and I think the kids enjoyed themselves immensely...

LADIES! Don't forget the meeting of the Progressive Women's League this Thursday night, January 23rd at the Rockcastle County Library at 7:30 p.m. The first meeting, several exercises to help us attain slimmness will be shown and tried out by the group and the Club has plans to sponsor several community projects in addition to just plain enjoying themselves. I certainly don't want to miss this first meeting because when you have just discovered a couple of muscles just above the waistline that you never knew you had before - it's time to try and attain slimmness. It's a plain fact that with me you could put all my willpower on the head of a pin along with the Gettysburg Address and still have room left over so it looks as though I am fighting a losing battle. Maybe not, though. If the present economic situation doesn't soon stabilize, it will help to keep us all slimmer since the price of groceries will be so high that our tables will not be piled quite so high with good things to eat, especially sweet good things...

Energy Conservation Tip

If you choose to open a bedroom window at night, close your bedroom door so that the cold air does not hit the thermostat and cause the rest of the house to overheat. If your bedroom has its own thermostat, it should be dropped considerably if you elect to open a window.

School Sessions Now Extend To June In Several Counties

Frankfort, Ky. - The recent snow that blanketed Eastern Kentucky forced widespread school closings, although no financial loss to the systems was incurred since the students will make up, in June, those days spent sledding and building snowmen.

In fact, Fred Johnson of the state Education Department's Finance Division noted that some districts might come out slightly ahead financially. He explained that pupils are more likely to attend school in the warmer months and that the institutions also could save on heating bills by turning thermostats down lower than they normally would if classes were in session. And, many local boards are now paying roughly three hundred percent more for coal, as well as a one hundred percent increase for electricity. Supt. Eugene Sebastian of Breathitt County noted that, his school county noted that an entire week, adding that the snowfall was the heaviest experienced by the area in several years. "January and February are bad months in which to have school since the weather is unpredictable and so many children have to be bused across rough terrain," he said.

Supt. Earl Clemens of Jackson County said his system also was closed the entire week, but added that widespread reports of flu might have forced the shutdown in spite of the weather. Nevertheless, Che-

MILK SUPPORT PRICE INCREASED
By: Harold Ballinger

Secretary of Agriculture, Earl L. Butts has announced that the support price for manufacturing milk will be increased from $6.57 to $7.24 per hundred weight. The increase will remain in effect until March 31, 1976. The new level of support is 86% of parity, based on the most current parity data, compiled as of December 15, 1974.

Secretary Butts said this action is necessary because arm milk prices have declined while costs have remained at high levels. The price farmers received for milk were substantially lower in December than in November.

Without this action prices would have dropped even further in the next month or two, the very time when producers must feed greater quantities of grain and high priced concentrate feeds.

Under these conditions, many producers would have left dairying and the future production of milk and dairy products would have declined.

in Logan County, Kentucky. He was 24 years of age at the time and had had some legal training. Since William Pearlie Hiett held the holdings of the Bailey heirs around 1820 or 24, it is possible that they had moved to Logan County and Peter James had grown up there and received what schooling he had when he left for Texas in 1838. Considerable credence is given to the report that he was a brother of Sarah and Cecilia Hiett by the fact that one of them named a son for him, the name being unfamiliar enough to attract attention.

In my research in the records of Logan County, the only Bailey I was able to find was a Thomas Bailey, born in 1804, formerly of Lincoln County, in the part that is now Rockcastle County. His wife, the former Alenore Moore, born 1805.

The above brief account of what is known of the Bailey family in Rockcastle is published here in the hope that some reader of this column may know more about the family and will volunteer such information as they are able to give.

and bluebells poke from rocks and cranies in rockwells and cliffs.

The river banks along the wild river section of this stream are heavily forested with practically no agricultural activities, noted Van Hoose.

According to the law, all designated wild rivers must exist in their primitive state. However, wilderness recreation such as fishing, hunting, canoeing, camping, hiking and exploring is allowed.

According to Van Hoose, the Rockcastle is ideally suited for the beginning canoeist. It is a slow-running stream through most of its wild river section, although, toward its end, a place known as the narrows is rather treacherous.

The U.S. Forest Service, said Van Hoose, has a small park at the lower end of the wild river section, with a foot trail running up the river approximately five miles.

They are developing a protection and management plan that may include the extension of this trail along the entire length of the Rockcastle.

Security Guards Have Authority - Off Campus - Haywood H. Ward, Jr., director of public safety for Northern Kentucky State College, asked whether the authority of a campus security officer extends to violators pursued off campus and whether or not an officer has the authority to arrest any passengers in a car so pursued if they interfere with the issuing of a citation. The Office of the Attorney General's opinion is that the authority of security guards does extend off campus. Furthermore, such officers may arrest any passenger guilty of preventing the arrest or citing of another.

Harry Middleton Miller died at twenty-five years of age. Their only child was a son, Walter Harry, who married Ann Elizabeth Tate, daughter of Henry Lee and Alice Wallen Tate. Walter Harry and Ann Tate Miller were parents of Dorothy Lee and Shirley Evans Miller. Milton Miller, generally known as "Milt" Miller, married Susie Brown. They had two sons, Robert Harry, who married Marguerite Miller, daughter of Dr. Aden G. Lovell and wife. They had no children. Floyd, who married Daisy Fair, daughter of Jones and Ella Maree Fair. Floyd and Daisy were the parents of Cecilia, Julia Floyd and Betty.

Mason C. Miller, who married Eliza Jane Stigall, decided some time before the War Between the States to take some of her slaves to the Southern market and sell them. She was decidedly opposed to this, but he took a coffee of seven of them and headed south. Later one of them, known as Uncle Moses, escaped and came back to Rockcastle County. He reported that Miller had died of yellow fever and had been buried down South. Later on the story gained credence that he had not died, but had sold the slaves and invested the money in a plantation, on which he had become wealthy. After the report of his death, his wife had married Marshal R. Moore. Their children were: Sarah Walker (grandmother of Lella Mae and Marguerite Lovell); Kate Wilkerson, who never married. She was the "Aunt Kate" of local candy store fame; Jack and Tom Moore. These brothers were killed in July of 1866, by James Carter, a son, by a previous marriage of the James Carter who married Mary Ann Miller. The slayer of the Moore brothers was himself killed on Christmas Eve of the same year. **

BAILEY: Although they were among the first settlers in Rockcastle and Renfro Valley, the Bailey family history has been hard to acquire. There seems to have been several men of that name, many of them showing up on the various company rosters of Rockcastle County troops in the War of 1812. The oldest land grant in the name of any of them seems to have been issued by Virginia in the early 1780's.

In 1815 one family of them was living in the house built by Johnnie Renfro, the first settler in Renfro Valley. In that year William Peaslie Hat married Sarah Bailey in this home. Sometime around the same date his brother Bennett married her sister Cecilia. Sarah Bailey was born around 1797. Sometime around the same date his brother, Bennett, married her sister, Cecilia. Sarah Bailey was born around 1797.

Peter James Bailey, born around 1811, is said to have been a brother to Sarah and Cecilia. He died in the Alamo in 1836 and it has always been believed that he went to Texas direct from Renfro Valley. Research indicates he was born from Springfield, (Cont. to 6)

MILLER: Mason C. Miller was born in Jessamine County, in the year 1800 and came to Rockcastle County June 5, 1823. He married Eliza Jane Stigall June 21, 1824. She was a member of the wealthy Stigall family that came from Green County, Virginia, to settle at an early date in this county. It is believed that Mason C. Miller was a son of Francis Miller, a well-known educator born in Virginia in 1748, who settled in Jessamine County soon after the close of the Revolutionary War, of which he was a veteran. His name appears on the tax rolls of that county for August 29, 1800.

Mason C. and Eliza Jane Miller had the following children: James Franklin, 1825; Milton Jefferson, 1827; Mary Ann, 1829; Elizabeth Frances, 1836; Nancy Eliza Jane, 1837-1838; a son born 1839, lived ten days; Sarah Elizabeth, 1861; Thomas, moved to Texas, no information; Sally, 1862-1876; Harry Middleton, 1866-1890; Mae, 1874-1915; Hugh, 1880-1924; Jennie, 1876-1877; Milton, 1868.

Elizabeth Frances and Jake Williams were parents of: Matt, who married Leonard Bethurum and had no children; Frances, married Capt. Jack Adams, no children; Zula, who married W. J. Sparks; their children were Pa, Ben and Martha; Lella married Judge E. J. Bethurum. She was the mother of General Jake Williams, who was born after her divorce from her first husband and named for his grandfather, Georgia, who married a Mr. Jones and lived in Middleboro; John - no information; Mary Ann Miller married James Carter. There were no children. Georgia Anne married Dr. Frazer, the first from Rockcastle County to volunteer for service in the Northern Army, where he became a Captain. After his death his wife married a Coyle, the father of Molly Coyle, who later married Hugh Miller. They were the parents of Lewis, Annie Mae, Jennie Morrow, Wilburn and Julian Miller. Tom O'Mara was a grandson of Dr. Frazer and Georgia Anne Miller. Harry Middleton Miller married Anne Evans, daughter of Capt. Alfred Harrison Evans, and his wife, the former Jane Ellen Van Fossen, whose parents came from Holland. Capt. Evans was an attorney by profession; and after the war, came here to manage a large tract of land belonging to an uncle. His father was a distinguished judge from Cambridge, Ohio and served two terms in Congress.

County Agent's Notes

By: H. Lee Durhan

A MIDWINTER NIGHT'S DREAM.....

As you sit, on a quiet winter's evening, listening to the pitter-patter of rain falling to the ground, think about spring and the vegetables you will grow. Now is the time to look through seed catalogues and stimulate that part of your imagination that's not snoozing. It's a good idea, by the way, to buy seeds rather than depend on the seeds you grow yourself. If you plant your own home grown seeds, the horticulturists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture say you may be wasting a lot of effort. Some vegetables are entirely or readily cross-pollinating among themselves, and you may not get what you think you planted. The cross-pollinating plants include corn, melons, pumpkins, squash, brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, collards, kale, kohlrabi, spinach, onion, radish, beet and turnip. Those that are self-pollinating, but still cross, include eggplant, pepper, tomato, carrot and celery. And when buying seeds look for disease-resistant strains and varieties of many important vegetables. Gardening is really too much work to risk the loss of a crop because of poor seed selection.

BEEF COWS NEED VITAMINS, MINERALS DURING WINTER -

Make sure the cows in your herd are getting their vitamins and minerals they need during the winter. This reminder comes from Russell Brodhag, Extension Agent and Specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The minerals which cows in Kentucky are most likely to be short of are calcium, phosphorus, magnesium and salt, says Brodhag. The vitamin most often missing in the diet is vitamin A.

The UK specialist says dry cows have relatively low nutrient requirements, but they are allowed to eat enough hay or silage to meet their needs. However, their calcium and phosphorus need will also be met. He says they should get a loose vitamin-mineral mixture on a free-choice basis. This mixture is available in 40 percent plain salt, 10 percent magnesium oxide, 10 percent trace mineral salt, and 10 percent vitamin A premix (100,000 IU per gram).

Brodhag points out that some care is needed to keep this mixture from caking and the animals from eating it. You should protect the mixture

QUOTABLE QUOTE

The Sewer Empties Into the Living Room

The real ecological crisis in America is not filled with stagnant rivers filled with chemicals or soot coated with smoke and pollutants that it is not fit to breathe. The greatest pollution problem we face is the moral contamination that pours into our homes through our television sets. Today the sewer empties into the living room.

I was made aware of that last week. ABC-TV showed "The Last Picture Show" to a nationwide audience. That decadent, sexualized movie carried an "R" rating in the theater. It was cut slightly for home viewing, but not much. Into millions of living rooms came this dirty, depraved, and decadent. The weak warnings sounded from time to time that the movie contained "adult material and may be unsuitable for children" were totally inadequate to protect children whose parents wrongly believed that the children were safe at home.

Now comes a new pollutant to our moral environment. In an article, written by Marilyn Beck, syndicated columnist writing from Hollywood, entitled "Violence on TV Heads to Peak in 'Godfather,'" Miss Beck warns that we've not seen anything yet! She says:

"According to director Coppola's camp, left untouched are most of the shootouts and murders that comprise the bulk of the 'Godfather' action in the original film. The editing treatment accorded 'The Godfather' follows the trend that has marked television 74—a trend that has already resulted in howls of protest from viewers who object to the steady video stream of blood 'n' guts. CBS has given us an 'Hawaii Five O' featuring a double homicide, a kidnapping, a rape, a robbery, and a suicide. Molestation and rape of teenage girls and boys, point-blank shootings, torture, mutilation, mayhem—such is the stuff with which television is attempting to win viewers by portraying sick, twisted behavior."

"Over 100,000,000 viewers are expected to see the movie on TV, and one can only guess how many of these will be children—left at home by parents who assume their youngsters will be safe while they go out for an evening."

"Television 74 might well go down in history books as the season the industry reached a new high in tastelessness—and a new low in its level of responsibility toward the public it is commissioned to serve."

There's only one way to stop this pollution and that's to protest. Christian people are going to have to protest loud and long before any changes are going to be made by the pagan controllers of national television.

We should deluge the Federal Communication Commission with letters of protest over what is happening on national television. (Federal Communication Commission's address is 1919 M St. NW, Washington, D.C. 20554.)

Millions of young children will be exposed to this moral pollution unless we do something about it. At a time of soaring crime rates, skyrocketing illegitimacy, and epidemic violence we need to understand that the reason our national life is polluted is because of that vile thing called national television.

E. Richard Cravens, senior minister, First Christian Church, Canton, Ohio, in "The Canton Christian."

Assistant Vice President
CUMBERLAND PCA

Well, we are beginning another week with snow and winter weather. How many can remember winters without electric and houses without insulation, storm doors and windows. We would have to coat or rugs at the door to keep snow and cold from getting in as there were cracks in ceilings and walls.

We would have to bring water buckets, milk and other things that would freeze from the kitchen into the living room by the wood or coal stove; and the bedroom - how cold the bed would! We would heat flat irons and wrap them and put in bed to warm our feet.

Winters were colder and lasted longer than they do now.....

Well, look like President Ford has come up with a tax cut on one hand - and a tax increase on the other hand. Usually when money goes through Washington, we lose about ninety percent to the dollar of it. The tax increase or increase in cost of gas he has requested will mean the price for gas and fuel oil will increase about seven to ten cents per gallon. This means higher cost to the farmers.....who already are burdened down with high production costs.

Mr. Farmer, if you don't want this increased cost, write to your senators and Congressmen that you are opposed to higher gas and fuel oil costs. They want to reduce the use of gasoline and fuel oil by increasing the price, thereby making everything the farmer buys higher, without raising the price of farm products.

It would be much better to ration gasoline and fuel oil as this would accomplish the same thing as far as saving energy is concerned.

If Congress approves the President's plan, we will be paying out more than the little tax we would get back.

So, let your Senators and Congressmen know what you

THE RISING COST OF SUGAR

The primary cause is the fact that THE WORLD DEMAND FOR SUGAR HAS RISEN FASTER THAN WORLD PRODUCTION. Other factors are the uncertainty of U.S. purchasing policies because of the end of the U.S. Sugar Act, speculation on the world market by the Mid-East countries, poor weather conditions, some national governments subsidizing the price of refined sugar sold to consumers.

Price has affected more than the bag of sugar on the grocer's shelves. Price is borne by all baked goods, presweetened cereals, confections, canned vegetables and fruits, with sugar and soft drinks.

Consider the Alternatives -

Consider agricultural sweeteners and foods containing natural sugar as substitutes for sweetened products. Not all sugar comes in boxes and bags. According to FDA, the only artificial sweetener available is saccharin, in powder, pill or liquid forms.

Sweetener naturally... the banana has natural sugar to call upon for delicious, easy desserts, for sugar reduced baking or a sweet snack. Bananas have several kinds of sugar for quick and sustained energy, quickly absorbed simple sugars, glucose and fructose; and slower acting sugars and starches. The following fruits and vegetables have a high percentage of sugar: peaches, pineapples, oranges, bananas, watermelon, mangoes, honeydew melons, apricots, tangerines, sweet potatoes and peas.

The cost of some sugar substitutes may be more expensive than the use of sugar, and the price of some dessert mixes may be less expensive than making from "scratch."

Eight Ways to Conserve Sugar -

Serve less sweet desserts.

Bananas have several kinds of sugar for quick and sustained energy, quickly absorbed simple sugars, glucose and fructose; and slower acting sugars and starches. The following fruits and vegetables have a high percentage of sugar: peaches, pineapples, oranges, bananas, watermelon, mangoes, honeydew melons, apricots, tangerines, sweet potatoes and peas.
