USDA INVITES COMMENT ON PROPOSED SCHOOL LUNCH REGULATIONS -

Atlanta, Ga. - The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has invited public comment on proposed changes in regulations governing the National School Lunch Program. The proposed changes bring these regulations in line with the requirements for federal grants to state and local government outlined in Federal Management Circular 74-7.

Federal Management Circular 74-7 is the result of a Presidential order to simplify, standardize, decentralize, and modernize the federal grant machinery, and place greater reliance on state and local governments. The proposed changes leave specific details of program administration to state discretion, and place USDA in the position of providing guidance rather than dictating procedures. The changes are: -State agencies will be responsible for prescribing the accounting records relating to the states' use of federal grants. -The restriction on advancing funds to schools in April will be dropped. The requirement remains that the amount of advance is to be based on the reimbursement needed for one month's operations. -State agencies will specify the data items on the application form and the payment voucher used to reimburse schools. -State agencies will include provisions for monitoring program performance and measuring progress toward achieving program goals and for audits of state agencies and schools at least once every two years. -State agencies can maintain records in their original form or on microfilm. -State agencies can use their own procedures for disallowing claims and recovering overpayments. -In the use of federal grant funds, state agencies will have to follow procurement standards prescribed by the Food and Nutrition Service. -Another proposed regulation changes Governors the opportunity to review and comment on state plans of child nutrition operations. -Public comments are invited on the proposed regulations, scheduled to appear in the Federal Register of Wednesday, January 22.

"KENTUCKY AFTED" (Cont. From 8) mouths of the larger tributaries in those lakes in which rockfish have been stocked. Be sure to use heavy tackle - the state record rockfish is 44 pounds 4 ounces, and there are probably some bigger ones than that in Kentucky. The good fishing of March, April, and May is 1 guest, providence's way of apologizing to the fisherman for February. So start sharpening up your hooks, tuning up your outboard motor, and making your plans. Winter won't last forever.

Another proposed regulation changes Governors the opportunity to review and comment on state plans of child nutrition operations.

Public comments are invited on the proposed regulations, scheduled to appear in the Federal Register of Wednesday, January 22.

Hospital-Owned Pharmacies Not To Dispense To Public - Nat Ryan Hughes, a Murray attorney, inquired if it were valid for the Murray - Calloway County Hospital to operate a pharmacy located in a medical arts building owned by the hospital. The pharmacy would dispense medicines, drugs, appliances and accessories to the public and would be run by the hospital or an out-patient basis. It is the opinion of the Office of the Attorney General that the hospital does not have the authority to own and operate a pharmacy which serves the public at large rather than just persons confined to the hospital. Such a pharmacy would be in competition with, and be providing services available from, other private pharmacies in the area. **

In memory of our father, Tip Hard, who departed this life 45 years ago.

January brings sad memories of our Dad. But he will never be forgotten by his children who loved him so. May we find these words of comfort in Revelations 21 and 4 "And God shall wipe all these tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow or crying, neither shall there be any more pain for the former things are passed away. Kentucky's older citizens are caught in the crunch of inflation and a fixed, rarely flexible income. This was revealed in a special study of the effects of inflation on the aged in Kentucky made for the Department for Human Resources' Institute for Aging, by the Bureau for Administration and Operations' Div. for Research and Special Projects.

The study revealed: "Income of the older person is inadequate. Benefit levels for retirement, pension and income supplements are low. Social security benefits have been raised more than 52 percent (cumulative) between 1970 and 1974. Despite these increases, the average annual benefit is $2,330. This is below the poverty level for single retired workers and aged widows, and near the poverty level for older couples who receive $2,600."

Under Social Security, individuals are allowed to earn up to $2,400 before benefits are withheld ($1 for each $2 earned). This raises the potential annual income for a typical retired worker to $4,572. However, the study points out that this figure is illusory in that it assumes that employment opportunities are available. In an inflationary period, where unemployment is high, the older worker has difficulty obtaining even part-time employment in an increasingly competitive labor market.

According to present Social Security guidelines, a retired couple could increase their income potential to $6,120 annually. The study reveals that less than a quarter of the total number of men over 65 years of age are in the labor force today, whereas at the turn of the century, they represented two-thirds of the total.

The aged would could increase her annual salary to $4,534. However, older women, starting in the general movement of women into the labor force, have increased their labor participation only slightly, from 1970 to 1974. In addition, the approximately one million older women who are working or actively seeking jobs are disadvantaged by representation in the lower paid fields of employment.

The main purpose of the study is to provide an analysis of economic data, to calculate the shrinkage of real income and to arrive at a statistical profile of the situation of the elderly poor in Kentucky as of January, 1975.

rate has jumped 0.6 percent since December, but still remains one percent below the national level. The Kentucky rate for December was 6.1 percent.

In December, 84,000 people were unemployed as contrasted to December, 1973 when there were only 60,400 unemployed," says Robert MacDonald, head statistician for the Bureau for Manpower Services, Department for Human Resources (DHR).

"This means we have lost 14,400 manufacturing jobs since last December," MacDonald continued.

Frankfort Watchline

Todd Hollenbach has warmed up what promised to have been a tepid Democratic primary for governor when he entered the race last week against Gov. Julian Carroll, and, of course, State Auditor Mary Louise Faust.

He was being facetious, he said, but a broadcast newsman may have adequately assessed Hollenbach's chances by noting that he would probably take some votes away from Miss Faust.

Hollenbach's campaign, though, will not be that of a lightweight or an amateur. The judge is young but experienced and he is going to try something that hasn't been used very extensively or very effectively in this state.

That is professional campaign management. The really good managers have gained a reputation in recent years of pulling some nifty tricks out of the bag to get the vote out for their man.

As Jefferson County judge, and going in without anything to speak of in the way of traditional support in his own county, Hollenbach will need a bagful of tricks to draw from.

He is also going with something called "the new politics." You've no doubt heard that phrase before. His image will be that of friend of the minorities, the disenfranchised, the young, even the taxpayers.

This method of attack is generally shrugged off by the old-time party regulars, but George McGovern used it effectively to knock off some party heavyweights a few years ago in the Presidential primaries.

And it is highly unlikely that party regulars will easily forget how McGovern managed to grab off enough of the party to win the nomination through getting involved just those people the traditionalists didn't think mattered.

Carroll may be licking his chops at the idea of a primary run against young Todd, but one thing is for certain - the Carroll campaign machine won't take Hollenbach or anyone else lightly, no matter what they say publicly.

As was pointed out here a few weeks ago, the campaign headquarters Carroll's man Bill Cox is running is ready for - anything and everything, if necessary, to a really serious threat at a moment's notice.

Regardless of the consequences to Hollenbach, if he stays in the race as he says he will, instead of making a last minute shift to the lieutenant governor's race, he stands to gain some very important statewide name recognition.

That never hurts if he intends to stay in the arena five years hence.

It's that recognition factor that Secretary of State Thelma Stovall is banking on in her race for lieutenant governor, in a field that seems to be adding a candidate a week here, recently.

Mrs. Stovall has been on the ballot so many times she seems like an institution to many voters, and over the years she has accumulated quite a number of chips to call in when she needs them - not the least among these the labor vote.

Carroll's first pick for the second spot, W. Terry McBrayer, is almost surely out of the race for good now; and without McBrayer, it appears the Carroll team is becoming more and more firm in its announced plan to just let the candidates slug it out.

And if they do stay out, Thelma Stovall emerges as an almost inevitable winner.

In that event, Carroll's ideas about strengthening the office of lieutenant governor, making the office a strong executive partner of the governor's office, will probably fall by the wayside.

Confrontation - Hollenbach has been open to the view that he certainly would like to debate Carroll head to head. But on the first opportunity for a face-to-face confrontation, the initial meeting of the Kentucky Association of County Officials, Hollenbach decided to stay home till Carroll left.

ASK YOUR TAX MAN BY SAUL SILBERT

DEAR MR. TAX MAN:
My boss owns an auto body shop. My salary is $150 a week except that he couldn't pay me for the last three weeks. Instead of money he transferred four rebuilt cars to me. Is this income, and if it is, how do I report it?

DEAR FINISHER:
You have received payment in the form of property which you are supposed to include in your reported income at its fair market value. When you sell the cars, the difference between the sales price and the fair market value may create a capital gain or loss which you report in the year in which you sell them.

DEAR MR. TAX MAN:
I don't see why I have to put myself in the category of "married filing separately." My husband left me 10 years ago and I've been maintaining a home and supporting our two kids ever since. I think I deserve a tax break, or something.

DEAR IRATE:
The situation you describe places you squarely in the "head-of-household" classification. Quick, file amended Federal and state returns for the past three years. You can probably use the refund.

DEAR MR. TAX MAN:
Easy. File a return and claim your personal exemption. You CAN get a refund, even though you may be dependent of another taxpayer.

GET BEEF COWS READY FOR SPRING CALVING SEASON...

Now is the time to get your beef cow herd ready for the spring calving season. That reminder comes from Russell Bredahl, Extension beef cattle specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Cows should be fed to gain slightly during the last sixty days before calving, says Bredahl. Supplemental vitamin A should be fed during the winter, and low-level feeding of magnesium oxide is advisable in Kentucky as protection against grass tetany.

Bredahl points out that a clean grass pasture is an ideal place for a calf to be born. "Kentucky winter weather is seldom severe enough to be harmful to even newborn calves," he says. "Filthy barns and lots with high concentrations of cattle are responsible for far more calf losses than cold weather."

Keep the concentration of cattle on the calving pasture as low as possible by separating cows that will calve in the spring from fall-calving cows and stocker cattle, advises the UK specialist. Ideally, the calving pasture should be located close to shelter and restraint facilities, in case some cows require assistance at calving, he adds.

Selling of land prohibited
Hiram M. Brock, Jr., a Harlan attorney, stated that his city wishes to purchase land that has been considered low class housing. Half of the area is owned by a member of this land from the councilman would create a conflict of interest. It is the opinion of the Attorney General's Office that a member of the City Council is prohibited from being directly or indirectly interested in any contract with the city. If the city desires to acquire this land by condemnation of the property, the councilman in question should refrain from voting on the measure.

Garlan Vanhook, who played probably his best game of the season, goes for a lay-up in last Friday night's game against Madison Purples. The Purples are the 9th ranked team in the state and were almost upset by the ROCKETS - winning by only one point 37-36. Vanhook, the leading scorer in the game, got 23. Ready to help if needed are Dwight Griffin, No. 40, and John Clontz, No. 32.

Dale Whitaker, who was held to two points in the game, tries for an outside shot in last Friday night's game against the Madison Purples. Whitaker showed the crowd some good ball handling techniques against the highly-touted Purples.

Rockets Almost Pull Upset Over Madison

The ROCKETS almost pulled a big upset last Friday night when they clashed head-on with the number nine team in the state, Madison High.

The ROCKETS came to play ball, there was no question about that, as they kept the Purples on shaky ground throughout the game. In the first quarter, the ROCKETS came back from a 10-4 deficit with six straight points and had the lead.

At the end of the quarter 12-10.

Halftime saw the Rockets behind by one 28-27, but ahead at the end of the third quarter of play 41 to 36.

With less than a minute to go in the game and trailing by one point, the Rockets got the ball with about 22 seconds to go in the game. Vanhook put a short shot up and the Rockets were ahead by one point.

However, by the time the Purples got a timeout called they had 12 seconds to work for the shot and they cut one loose almost immediately. It missed but the Purples' big 6 foot, 6 inch center was there for the tip-in and the Purples had come out on top.

Leading the scoring for the Rockets was Vanhook with 23; Clontz got 17; Whitaker 2 and Griffin, 14.

Saturday night, the Rockets traveled to Somerset and came away with a decisive 66 to 59 win. The score at the end of the first quarter was tied, 14 all but the Rockets took the lead in the second quarter to stay ahead for the win.

Clontz and Vanhook shared scoring honors with 17 each; Griffin got 15; Hammonds 9; Whitaker 7 and Arvin 1.

Tuesday night, the Rockets, plagued by loss of starters from injuries and foul trouble, bowed to a good Pulaski County team 75 to 69.

Whitaker, bothered again by an infected foot, didn't dress for the game; Vanhook saw only limited action since he was suffering with a cold and Hammonds picked up three fouls in the first quarter which naturally hindered his usually aggressive defensive play.

However, the Rockets still made a run at Pulaski in the fourth quarter when they outscored them by six points but it was to a losing cause as Pulaski held on for the win.

In spite of everything, Vanhook was still high point man with 16; Clontz got 15; Laswell 13; Griffin and Hammonds, 10 each; Arvin 4 and Henderson 1.

The ROCKETS are off this weekend, and will see action again next Tuesday night when they host McCreary County at home for an A & B game. On Friday night, February 7th, the ROCKETS will host Monticello for an A & B game.

John Clontz, No. 32, shoots over the outstretched arms of a Madison Purple defender for two points. Clontz scored 17 points in the game and showed some lightning-quick offensive moves for the Rockets.

FABRICATED FOODS What Are They?

Fabricated foods - often referred to as "formulated" or "engineered" foods - are foods that have been literally taken apart and put together in a new form. They are foods that have been engineered, or formulated from ingredients that may or may not include additives, vitamins, and minerals.

Some fabricated foods are presently in use or are being submitted for possible acceptance into the USDA feeding programs. Fabricated items include snacks, cookies and crackers, soft drinks, dairy substitutes, prepared cereals, salad dressing, cake and roll mixes, beverages other than soft drinks, vegetable protein products and many others.

Other examples of fabricated foods include breakfast pop tarts and formulated milk-based drinks that have special application as body builders. Some may be old standby foods that have had new ingredients or nutrients added to them.

Why "fabricate" foods? Why should anyone want to take a perfectly good egg out of its natural shell container, add something to it, subtract something from it, process it, and put it in a new form - then, repackage it, freeze it, and market it as a fabricated product? There are reasons!

1/ Cost: Meat costs can be lowered in some instances. For school lunch, the use of "enriched macaroni with fortified protein" lowers meat costs although its price per pound is about the same or slightly higher than regular macaroni. This product receives credit as a meat alternate and must be used in the same dish with meat, fish or cheese. It provides about the same nutrition and costs less than an meat entrée - and satiates.

2/ The nutrition of a meal may be enhanced by using juices enriched with vitamin C, as used in USDA family feeding program. Margarine is enriched with vitamin A.

3/ Convenience: "CN Pizza," a newly-formulated product designed for schools, combines bread, margarine, meat and/or cheese, and perhaps vegetable in one frozen, prepared, fabricated food.

Fabricated foods can fill special needs, improve the balance of a meal, improve palatability - and finally, can provide satiety.

However, some of the problem areas must also be considered. The market for these foods must be identified as well as ingredients and what foods they replace. The products themselves need to be identified - standards of compositions, names or labels. A satisfactory texture - the taste, appearance and nutrition of the product, as well as the product image needs to be explored. Nutritional labeling must also be solved. Fabricated Food Terminology lected nutrients to a food to restore nutrients lost through processing. If enough Vitamin C were added to a frozen apple pie to bring the vitamin C back to the original level of vitamin C in the apples, it could be called a restored food.

Enrichment is adding selected nutrients not normally present in that particular food. If protein were added to tea and the pie mentioned above, protein not being a natural nutrient to this food, this would be called fortification. Another example is adding Vitamin D to milk.

Enrichment is adding nutrients to a food so as to make it "fit" the nutrient above, special standard for that food. Vitamins and minerals added to an ordinary flour to achieve the standard for enriched flour constitute flour enrichment.

Nutrition enhancement is adding nutrients to a food by fortification, enrichment, or restoration. Nutritionification is the same as nutritional enhancement.

Nutritionally-modified foods have had nutrients added to them so that they contain food values at least equal to the natural foods they may replace in the diet. An example is textured vegetable protein made from soy with minerals and vitamins added so that it is similar to the nutrients of the meat it replaces in the diet. Simulated foods are designed to completely replace some other food. They are made to look, taste, and feel like the food they replace. Meat analogs, made from plant proteins, are similar to the real meats they replace. Soy milk is designed to replace cow's milk. Synthetic foods are those made from materials generally thought of as non-food sources. An imaginary example might be a product made from cornstarch, with minerals and vitamins added for nutrition, and sweetened to taste acceptance. Synthetically sweetened soft drinks and fruit drinks bear little relation to real fruit juices.

Down On

The Farm

By Roy G. Brown Assistant Vice President CUMBERLAND PCA

Well, we have written about times of old - how living was back then and there's lots more to be said about it....

How many can remember just about everything and many things to wear. About all the farmer bought at the country store was sugar, coffee, salt, spices - for eating goods. We had to also buy coal oil (kerosene) for oil lamps and lanterns we used with kerosene. Light bulbs didn't come and after dark. Most of those things were purchased with eggs, hens, hams and walnut kernels. If we had more than we needed to buy, we would receive a die which could be used later.

Most all farmers took white corn to grind mills and had corn meal ground...and wheat was deposited at the flour mill for flour. Light bulbs didn't come and after dark. Most of those things were purchased with eggs, hens, hams and walnut kernels. If we had more than we needed to buy, we would receive a die which could be used later.

We never got to go to town but a very few times within a year - and then it took all day in a wagon or on horseback on dirt roads that were hardly useable during the winter.

People didn't have too much money then, but it didn't take very much to get by. If you were in debt, it was almost a disgrace to owe a very big debt. Remember the bean hulling, cane stripping, apple cutting, quilting parties...that's where a lot of the young folks did most of their courting...then, DOWN ON THE FARM.

HOOK: There is a tradition that the progenitors of the Hook family in America were four brothers who came from Hull, Pennsylvania in 1738. One of these, George, is believed to have been the father of Nicholas Hook, the first of the name to reach Rockcastle County. Nicholas was born in Pennsylvania in 1740. He later went to North Carolina and in 1772 was married, in Lincoln County, North Carolina, to Sarah Mather. They came first to Washington County, Kentucky, where they lived on a farm of one hundred acres, purchased in 1814, which they sold for thirty dollars in 1819, upon moving to Rockcastle County. They had eight children, of only five of whom we have any record.

One of the five was Frederick, who was born in Lincoln County, North Carolina, in 1774 and died, presumably in 1870. He had four sisters: Polly, who married Conroy Adams; Betsy, who married Joseph Hubbards; Sally, who married William Roberts; and Catherine, who married Richeson Roberts, all while living in Washington County.

Frederick was married in 1800 in Burke County, North Carolina, to Elizabeth Reden, who died in 1849 and is buried in the Renfro Valley Cemetery. The farm where Oliver and Elizabeth Dowell now live was the old Frederick Hook place. He operated there for many years the first horse-powered grist mill in the county. Children of Frederick and Elizabeth Hook were: George, born in North Carolina, 1801; He and his wife, Anna, had the following children: William, 1822; Grant, 1826; Albert, 1829; Green B., 1831; Lorena, 1834; Amanda, 1838. All were born in Kentucky. Joseph, another son of Frederick Hook, 1808-1863, married Sarah Roberts, Joseph and Sarah had the following children: Evalina, 1835; Hiram, born Rockcastle County, 1836; Married Mahala Hayes. Their children were William, Hiram M., Carrie J., Martha and Nora. The family moved to Illinois, but after Mahala's death, Hiram came back to Rockcastle County and married again, then returned to Illinois. Ann, daughter of Joseph Hook, married Joseph J. Smith, son of Levi and Charity Hook Smith. Both are buried at Oak Hill, Kentucky, in the Mt. Zion Cemetery; William Hook moved to Illinois and died at Arcola, in that state; John and Charles, both born in Kentucky and both buried in Illinois; Sonny Hook, born in North Carolina in 1804, died in Rockcastle County, Kentucky, 1890. She married Levi Smith, 1795-1890. Their son, Joseph, married Ann Hook, daughter of Joseph Hook, who was a brother of Charity Hook. Their sons were Amos and Kenneth J. Smith. Kenneth married Wylkie Coffey. They were parents of Annabelle, Charles and Cecil Smith; Sarah, daughter of Frederick Hook, married a Bryant. Her sister, Fannie, married a Haley. Her sister Catherine, also married a Haley. Frederick's son, Alfred, 1813, married Sarah Riggs, born in Kentucky in 1815.

Children of Alfred and Sarah Riggs Hook were: Calvin, born in Rockcastle County in 1835 and a Sergeant in the Civil War, enlisted by Captain Peter James Hitt in Rockcastle County in 1861. Elizabeth, who died in Rockcastle in 1898, she was first married to Lt. James M. Hayes, who lost his life at the Battle of Mill Springs. She later married Lt. Mason Compton Miller, who discovered her husband's body on the battlefield and brought it back to her, for burial in Renfro Valley Cemetery. Elizabeth and Mary Hayes Hook are both buried at Renfro. William Hayes and Jane Rucker, parents of Mary Hayes Hook, were buried there with them. William, a pensioner of the War of 1812, was a son of George Hook, Revolutionary War veteran, and his wife's father, Colby Rucker, also served during the Revolution.

Campbell Hook, born in Rockcastle County in 1842, died in 1919, married Sarah E. Albright and they are buried in Mareburg.

Cemetery. They had three children: Catharine, 1866 and Mary E., 1876, neither of which were married, and William Steven, 1899, who married Barbara Brown. Their children were Clarice, 1898, who married Charles Chandler. Their children were Terrill, Ina and Charles, Jr. She next married Hugh McElwee and they were parents of Hugh, Jr., James, Eugene and Barbara. Leon M., 1901, who married Catherine Holby... They were the parents of Jack, Bill, Jerry and Diane.

James F., another son of Frederick and Elizabeth Hook, was born in Rockcastle County in 1821 and died here in 1902. His first wife, Mary Hayes Hook, is buried in Renfro Valley Cemetery beside their son, Tilman. James is buried in Mareburg Cemetery beside his second wife, Matilda Payne. Children of James F. and Mary Hook were: Sarah, 1840; who married Joseph B. Pucell and had two children, Sallie and Wade. Sallie married George Hardin and went to Louisville, Kentucky. Wade married Lou Griffin. Their son, Fred, went to St. Louis. Elizabeth, another daughter of James F. and Mary Hook, 1845-1889, married Albert F. Butner in 1862, in Rockcastle County. Both are buried in the Baptist Cemetery in Brodhead, Kentucky. Their children were: Theophilus, 1863-1887 and Ollie, 1869-1932. Ollie married J. R. Cass in 1885. Their children were Clyde, Urban, Katie, Owen, Anna, Robert and William. In 1971 Owen was owner of Wilderness Trail Motel, Berea, Kentucky, and William was president of Citizens Bank in Brodhead, Kentucky. Kate married Henry L. Tharp in 1866 had three children: Elizabeth, Margarette and Gravelly. Leroy M. Hook, 1850-1899, son of James and Mary Hook, married Rebecca Crawford, daughter of James and Mary Hitt Crawford in 1872. They had the following children: John and William, who died in Marion County, Indiana; James E., who died in Tennessee; Elmer, who died in Pennsylvania; Bessie, who married Robert Cox, a merchant in Mt. Vernon, Kentucky; Burdette; Mary; Allie Lee, who married Wiley Smith and went to Evansville, Indiana. Robert and Bessie Hook Cox were parents of Vernon, Lillian, Nell, Nina, Robert, Charles and Jane. James F. Hook, by his second wife had one daughter, Nancy, who married John S. Albright. They had two children: E. S. and W. G. Albright.

Serelda, a daughter of Frederick and Elizabeth Reden Hook, married Green B. Parsons.

Andrew K. Hook, Sr., of Jamestown, Indiana, has prepared a Hook Family Tree, which I have consulted and which extends far beyond the information contained in this article. Being unable to accommodate it within the space allowed in this book, I have used mostly the names connected with this county and the earlier generations of the Hooks. The Hook name pops up in a very great number of Rockcastle family histories and nowhere to the discredit of any associated family. The old Hook homestead, in the Green Hill section of the county, was once surrounded with farms owned by descendants and relatives. The Hooks and the Lees, with whom the intermarriage, once owned many acres of land, surrounded by and intermingled with holdings of the Hayes, Parsons, Coffey, Burdette and Byrnes families, all related by marriage. In later years, there was quite a settlement of Hooks in and around Mareburg, Kentucky and many of them sleep their last long sleep in the well-kept Mareburg Cemetery. Many of the names went from Rockcastle County to Indiana and Illinois where they established attractive homes and prosperous businesses.

James F. Hook, 1821-1902, son of Frederick and Elizabeth Hook, was prominent in the early history of our county. He was elected sheriff in 1870, holding that office until 1878, at which time he was elected jailer, serving as such until 1886.

Food prices are really more than most can stomach.

By John Wilson - Guest Writer

February is generally a rather gloomy month for Kentucky's outdoorsmen. It's too cold for much fishing, and the hunting seasons have closed. But there is one bright spot this year, particularly if you're an avid quail or rabbit hunter. The season for these two species, as well as for the furbearers, has been extended through February 28th of this year. As in the past, grouse hunting also will be permitted through the end of February. Duck and Goose hunting ended January 20th and the squirrel and archery deer seasons closed December 31.

Game biologists at the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources do not expect that there will be heavy hunting pressure during the extended quail and rabbit seasons, but for those who can't seem to get in enough hunting each year, the extra month will afford an opportunity for an extra trip or two. Many experienced hunters prefer late-season hunting. They know that the opening weekend and the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays are the most crowded and that after the first of the year they have the best of the season.

But maybe you can whet your appetite a little talking about things to come. Since fishing depends largely on the weather, it's impossible to give an exact timetable of events, but roughly, this is what will happen. With the first warm spell, fishermen will start picking up a few small white bass, and then, usually sometime in March or early April, the spawning runs will be in full swing.

About the same time, crappie fishermen will start exploring shoreline cover areas, looking for spawning concentrations of this fish. A little later, when the surface temperature is approaching 70 degrees, the bass will start moving into the shallows. This is the best time of the year for fishing surface hoppers and bass fishing can be experienced at its exciting best. Bluegill fishing is also at its best in the spring, either with live bait such as worms and crickets or with popping bugs fished with a fly rod. Generally, the main bluegill activity occurs shortly after the bass have spawned. Or for something different this spring, try trolling an extra-large lure around the

DON'T PUT TOO MUCH NITROGEN ON WHEAT

Some farmers apply more nitrogen to their winter wheat than the crop actually needs. In doing so, they are putting into their profits on the crop, notes Lloyd Murdock, Extension soils specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"A lot of tests have been run on wheat to determine its nitrogen needs," says Murdock. "These tests have shown that an application of 30 pounds of nitrogen per acre in the fall and 40 pounds in the spring will usually result in good yields."

"It is not usually economically feasible to apply more than 40 pounds of nitrogen per acre in the fall and 40 pounds in the spring to wheat," the UK specialist continues. "But many farmers use more than this."

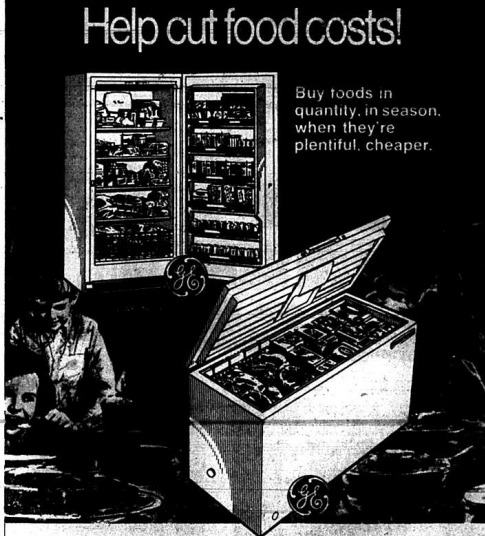

Murdock says it is a good idea to be conservative with nitrogen applications this year in view of the fact that nitrogen supplies are tight and prices are generally higher than last year. "Even if you didn't get any nitrogen on your wheat last fall, you won't need to apply more than 40 pounds per acre this spring," he points out. "In most cases, 50 pounds per acre will be enough to provide top wheat yields."

Nitrogen should be applied to wheat in the spring as soon as tillering is well underway, according to the UK specialist. This will usually be during the first week in February or the first week in March. When nitrogen is applied earlier than this, losses from leaching may occur. It is still profitable to apply nitrogen to wheat—late as April 1, but yields may be somewhat lower than if it is applied earlier.

Joseph Kurtz, Candidates Must Be Notified When Certified to Run—As a result of a lawsuit filed by former U.S. Sen. Marlow Cook against Secretary of State Thelma Stoval, the Interim Committee on Elections and Constitutional Amendments of the Kentucky General Assembly has approved for prefilting before the next legislative session a bill that would require that candidates be notified when they have been certified to run for public office. If the candidate's filing papers contain an error, the bill would also require the secretary or clerk to notify the candidate within twenty-four hours, after which he would have three days to correct the error.

County Agent's Notes

By: H. Lee Durham

Kentucky farmers are likely to find 25-30 percent less nitrogen available this spring as compared to last spring according to reports from the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Dr. John Ragland, Associate Director of the UK Cooperative Extension Service, indicated that Kentucky farmers face such prospects unless natural gas supplies can be made available which soon to nitrogen plants which have been closed or cut back due to natural gas shortages. Estimates from UK's Agronomy Department indicate that such shortages to Kentucky could be between 28 and 34 million pounds of actual nitrogen. Soil specialists in that department say this shortage would represent enough nitrogen to supply 100 lbs. N per acre to 250-335 thousand acres of corn, or enough needed to apply 150-180 lbs. N per acre on all the state's tobacco acreage.

Dr. Ragland points out that Kentucky farm leadership and congressional delegation are working on this problem but unless a solution to the problem is soon found, many Kentucky farmers may have to shift production plans.

Supplies of High-Quality Seed Corn Are Tight:

If you plan to grow corn in 1975, select a hybrid and line up your supply of seed as soon as possible. Supplies of high quality seed corn are tight, says Morris J. Bitzer, Extension grain crops specialist at the UK College of Agriculture. Bitzer says drought and frost damage affected many fields used for growing seed corn in the Midwest during the past year. The supply of seed will probably be 25-30 percent less than had been anticipated earlier, and some of the seed offered for sale will be low in germination," he points out.

Bitzer says drought and frost damage affected many fields used for growing seed corn in the Midwest during the past year. "The supply of seed will probably be 25-30 percent less than had been anticipated earlier, and some of the seed offered for sale will be low in germination," he points out.

Bitzer says some small seed companies are already sold out of some hybrids, including some of the hybrids which performed well in the 1974 KY Hybrid Corn Performance Tests conducted by UK's Agricultural Experiment Station.

The seed supply problems come at a time when the demand for seed is likely to be at a record level because of prospects for strong prices for the 1975 corn crop.

The lack of seed quality, also caused by the adverse weather conditions, compounds the seed supply problem. In most years, almost all the seed corn offered for sale has a germination of 95 percent or above. However, much of the seed being sold this year is lower in germination, some as low as 50 percent, Bitzer says. "Many farmers will have to decide whether to buy their first choice hybrid or a less desirable hybrid which has a better germination," Bitzer explains.

When low-germination seed is planted, says the UK specialist, the planting rate should be adjusted to compensate for the reduced germination. However, even with adjustments in planting rates, spotty stands may show up where seed of very low germination is used, he adds.

Seed corn prices are up this year compared to last year, Bitzer says prices should be compared on the number of viable seeds per bag. Bags of seed corn which are equal in weight will vary in the number of seeds they contain with the number depending on seed size.

Both the number of seeds in the bag and the germination percentage are printed on the bag or bag label and thus a little arithmetic is useful in comparing seed prices.

The results of the Kentucky Hybrid Corn Performance Tests conducted in 1974 at nine different locations around the state are available from local County Extension Offices.
