DOG TICKS

Dogs that run in wooded areas this time of the year frequently come home loaded with ticks. This is a true source of trouble if you are concerned about your dog. I would suggest you treat him or her once a week with Sevin 5 per cent dust. If ticks are found attached to the skin of man or beast, they should be touched with a few drops of chloroform, gasoline, or kerosene, or a hard brush scrubbed. The ticks are usually found on the neck, chest, or between the toes of the feet. You can often remove them by merely grasping them firmly with tweezers, and pulling and gently pulling on them so as not to break the mouth parts off in the skin. The point of attachment should be carefully sterilized by dipping the point of a round toothpick in carbolic acid, silver nitrate, or tincture of iodine and drilling it into the hole made by the mouth parts.

CHIGGERS

If you're a camper, hiker, berry picker or naturalist, you're just what the chigger is waiting and looking for - so beware. Chiggers may be found where there is tall grass, dead leaves, or decaying twigs and in semi-swamp areas and places where grass is lush. These things would include berry patches, orchards, woodlands, margins of lakes and rivers, parks, and golf courses. Try to look at a location and really tell if chiggers are present. You might try this: Place a piece of black board edge paper on the ground in areas where you think chiggers might be. Chiggers usually climb up the warm cardboard and gather on the top edge. This is a simple operation and can be done quickly in several different areas. If you find chiggers (they'll look like little specks crawling around), you can at least be prepared for them. Repellents such as Offit, 612, or 822 will give you some protection. Pour the liquid repellent on your hands, rub them together, and then rub legs, arms, and face. The repellent would be very wise to take a good, hot, soapy bath as soon as you return home from an outing; this will usually wash the chiggers off before they infect their mouth parts in your skin.

FRIED TERMITES?

Would you eat fried termites for breakfast in place of a couple of "sunrise up?" According to an article in the Farmers News at Stanford has suggested this as an alternative to be considered by Americans as a way to become less indulgent in their appetites for out-of-season foods. This can't help but wonder if some future generations will insect an old adage that "A bug a day keeps the doctor away." Termites are high in protein.

TOBACCO BEDS NEED WATER

BE CAREFUL DURING DRY WEATHER

Tobacco beds need to be watered regularly if a period of dry weather occurs after the beds are seeded. That reminder comes from J.H. Smiley, Extension tobacco specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Amount of water is especially important when seeds are germinating and immediately after. As they come up, says Smiley, when beds are not watered during dry, poor stands are likely to occur.

The weather is often windy at plant bed seeding time, notes Smiley, and winds helps form a crust on the surface of the bed. When this occurs, plant beds may need frequent watering even though fields are too wet to plow.

Smiley recommends keeping the surface of the soil moist until the seedlings become established. If the soil surface is too dry, water every 50 to 100 square yards will moisten it adequately, says Smiley.

After the plants in the bed become established, 300 to 500 gallons of water per 100 square yards of bed may be needed each week during dry weather.

Watering also helps prevent fertilizer injury. Smiley points out, fertilizer injury is caused by the application of too much fertilizer to the bed. Plants hit by fertilizer injury often turn yellow and die or break off at the surface of the ground when touched. Usually, the area in the bed where this occurs has a greasy substance, made up of salts carried to the surface by evaporating water, covering the soil particles.

SCS OBSERVES 40th BIRTHDAY

Back in the 1930's, the U.S.
Soil Conservation Service (SCS) learned that democracy was the only effective way to heal the scarred landscape. Ever since, SCS has aided landowners, "Have it your way."

As SCS observes its 40th birthday on April 27, 1975, the agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture still fills consensation orders according to customer wishes.

The agency's leader, Administrator Kenneth Grant, said SCS learned in its early days you could not make decisions for landowners. Grant reminded all SCS workers in the county that SCS, in its early years, worked primarily with farmers. SCS people learned if they "oversold" recommended conservational practices, farmers referred to work as "those SCS terraces" or "the government's grassed waterways."

Grant emphasized that, in most cases, "It is not the business of SCS to tell people how to use their land."
By the time the 1940's rolled around, local people all over the United States began organizing conservation districts. Today, Kentucky has 121 conservation districts that form the conservation programs for each county. SCS State Conservationist Glen Murray said in Lexington this week that his agency "will continue to provide conservation plans according to the expressed wishes of Kentuckians who know their own land better than anyone else." He said, "It's our job to provide the land user with the necessary environmental facts and offer the various alternatives. Each land user, whether private or public, develops the land to suit his needs.
Conservation plans are made to fit each situation."

Grant pointed to the SCS scientific soil survey as a case in point. If an individual is interested in a homestead, the survey merely points out there are severe limitations on building homes on a particular spot. Grant said, "It would be quite another thing to say that people should never build there.

If the latter course were taken,
it would be the job of locally elected representatives of the people."

The SCS leader added that a number of our leading American cities would not be thriving today if they had refused to build because of poor soil conditions. He said the people who built such cities as New Orleans, San Francisco, or Chicago obviously were willing to pay the price of a wet or unstable soil to take advantage of the geographic location. Since these cities have paid the price and are prospering, the lesson of "have it your way" is driven home once again.

Rockcastle Recollections

John Lair

Members of the Ramsey family in Rockcastle County are mostly descendants of two brothers, Francis Alexander Ramsey and Thomas Ramsey, Sr. Both served in the Revolution. The older of the two, Thomas, Sr., was born in 1762 and died in 1844. The family name of his wife, Martha, is unknown. He lived and died in Garrard County but three of his sons came to Rockcastle County.

Francis Alexander Ramsey was born in Virginia in 1764. He died in Rockcastle County the day after Christmas in 1842. In May of 1878, he married Martha (Patsy) Allen, daughter of Colonel Richard Allen of Cumberland County, Virginia who survived him until 1860. They are believed to be buried in the Kenfro Valley Cemetery in an area of unmarked graves.

Francis A. and Martha Allen Ramsey were the parents of thirteen children: James, 1789-1855; Elizabeth, 1790-1807; Richard, 1792-7; Daniel F., 1794-1860; Sally (his twin) 1794-1816, married a Parsons; Harriett, 1796-7; Nancy, 1803-1827, married a Rodgers and had two children; Francis, Jr., 1803-1847; William, 1805-7; Susan, 1807-1808 and Allen, 1809-1951.

Allen Ramsey's wife, Harriett?, was born in Tennessee in 1808. He received a grant of land on Clear Creek near Wildie, Kentucky a part of which is still in the possession of descendants. He died in 1851, leaving three sons, Simeon, Charles and Josiah. Both Charles and Josiah married Ramseys and many of their descendants moved to Illinois following the death of Josiah around 1820. Josiah and family were being harassed by members of the Klu Klux Klan and he became very despondent. He disappeared from home and several days later was found in the woods, hanged by a grapevine. It was believed at the time that he had hanged himself. Following this tragedy, his family packed and moved to Illinois. Simeon was the only one of the three boys to remain in Rockcastle County where he married Rachael Bryant and they had 7 children. He was on the roll of the State Militia in 1875.

Thomas Ramsey, Sr., lived out his life in neighboring Garrard County but three of his five sons settled in Rockcastle County. One, Obediah, born 1774, in Cumberland County, Virginia, married Naomi Black of Pulaski County. There is no record of offspring. Alexander, born in Virginia in 1788, married Mary?. Both are buried in the Lancaster Cemetery. They had four children: James, Elizabeth, Polly and Alexander. Thomas, Jr., was born in Virginia. He was married twice. The name of his first wife is not known. His second wife, whom he married in Lincoln County, Kentucky in 1839 was the widow of Stephen Bradford Lair, the former Rhoda Lavender. They had three children: Joseph, Margaret and Harriett. Joseph married Martha Bryant and their children were: Ella and Gatie. Ella married first a Baker and then a Hiatt. She had one daughter, Mattie Baker. Gatie married Arthur Coffey. Their children were Ella, William, Ann, Earl, Hiatt, Robert, Given, Bradford and three who died in infancy. Margaret married James Taylor. They had one son, John Taylor, who married Sally Ramsey. Their children were Grace, Susan and Harriett. Grace never married. Harriett married August Krueger and their children were William, Henrietta, Marie and Christine. Harriett, one of the original members of the Rockcastle Female Seminary, was a teacher. Ridgerunners, married and raised a family in Chicago. The third child of Thomas, Sr. and Rhoda Lair Ramsey was Harriett. She married John Proctor. There were no children.

Francis II son of Thomas, Sr. was born in 1791 in North Carolina. His wife's name was Harriett, maiden name unknown. They had five children, Madison, Pleasant, Martha, Nancy and Goldman. No information on Pleasant is now available. Madison, born 1814, married twice. His first wife was Sarah Burdette and they had seven children. They were George, Martha, Jemima, Goldman, William, Morgan and Damer. Madison's second wife was Elizabeth Taylor. Their children were: Pleasant, who married Elizabeth and their children were Lewis, Ulys, Fred, Matt, Audrey and Berna. Mattie Ramsey married first a Hays then a Clark and there were no children. Ellen married John of Woodrow Wolfe and next a son of Clayton Evans. Martha (Patsy) married H. Thomas Lair. Three children, Frank, Fred and Mollie, died in infancy. Harriett married Tom Mink. Nancy married Jim Taylor. Nothing is known Martha and Rhoda never married.

The fourth child of Francis II and Harriett Ramsey was Nancy who married a Bryant and had two children. The fifth child of Francis II and Harriett was Goldman Ramsey, who married Sylvia Green, daughter of John and Orpha Green. Besides twins, who died in infancy, they had eight other children: Mary Susan, who married Coleman Burdette. Children were Ida, Coleman, John and Carrie; John Green; Orpha Jane, who married William Hiatt and there were no children. He later married his brother's widow, Tabitha Coloni Goldman who married Ollie Coffey; Sally married John Taylor; Harrison who died young; Oscar; Patsy; Elizabeth, who married Pleasant; Ransom; James, who married Sylvia Green; Orpha Jane; Ollie, who married Julia Owens; Rastie, who died in infancy; Bradley, who married Julia Reynolds. Their children were Oneta and Rudolph. Addie Susan, who married Elijah Aaron Cummins and Zula, who married James Adams.

Thomas Burke Ramsey married Elizabeth Harrell and they had two sons, Arthur Dee, who married Maggie Adams and they had three children. Elsie, who married Chester Cress; Rissie, who married Val Wright and Ima, who married Lewis Carter and later married Betty Lake. John Huston Ramsey, who married Lucy Adams, daughter of Dr. Allenworth Adams and Eleanor Jane Mink Adams. Their children were: Cecil who married Sarah Hansel, William Russell, who married Sadie Farrett; Ella, who married V. D. Dwyer; John, who married Christa Purcell; Jones Demsey, who married Kate Gentry and later Alice Cummins and Bertha, who died in infancy. John Aden and Jones Demsey were twins.

John Huston Ramsey, who lived to a very advanced age, was a self-taught mason, architect and engineer. For many years, he did the stone and brick work on most of the older buildings in Mt. Vernon and much of the county, including the Kenfro Valley Settlement. His sons, Cecil, Russell and Demsey, all became bricklayers. Russell retired in 1971, on account of a heart condition, after following his trade very actively for 45 years. His son, Ben, began bricklaying in 1847 and Ben's son, Don, is now a bricklayer. The family is counting out the fourth generation in the family. Together, this family has worked on all the hospitals in Lexington, many of the large public buildings in that city and on several University of Kentucky, Berea College and Eastern Kentucky University buildings. In 1962, Russell Ramsey placed the mural on the front of the Medical Center in Lexington. This was a huge 4 panel, 3 dimensional depiction in stone of the history of medicine. Eight years later, when it was necessary to remove it to allow for an addition to the building, the work was done by his son, Ben Ramsey. Eventually, it will be re-installed on the Medical Center Lawn.

After the death of his first wife, some years ago, John Huston Ramsey was married to Florence Purcell, widow of John Sam Purcell, who preceded him in death.

A few of the more wealthy "old-time" settlers to Kentucky attempted to keep up with the style of the Eastern colonies where the fashion was dictated by the dross of England and France. They had to import the silks, brocades, velvets and laces to try to copy these styles. These fashions and fabrics were quite unsuited for most of Kentucky frontier life, however, where the work was hard, the materials scarce and the time even shorter. As a result, most of the pioneers made do with what was at hand - furs, leather, homespun cloth and scraps of fabric sewn together.

Listening to wonderful stories retold. Beccalatreute services and honoring of students. Banquets with speakers of renown; Ladies Missionary meetings and their quiltings. Christian Endeavor and other conventions in town. Many programs from infants to grown-ups. Aiding them in life's many tests. Aid at the end of life's journey. The place of comfort for families of those laid to rest.

Frankfort Watchline

Someone has finally raised the issue of health in the race for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Ewart Johnson, the former parks commissioner, has called for all his opponents to submit to medical exams and be declared fit to serve.

While his press secretary, John Davidson, emphasizes the challenge goes to all the opponents, there is little doubt it was directed to Secretary of State Thelma Stovall.

The issue of Mrs. Stovall's health, if it is an issue at all more than two years after she suffered and recovered from a stroke, has been lingering over the campaign like a black cloud that could spin into a tempest at any moment.

Yet, Johnson's call for physical examinations merely raises the issue without pressing it.

Mrs. Stovall announced, when she announced her candidacy, that she had been examined by a doctor and found to be fit to run and serve.

That is exactly the same thing Johnson has had done for himself. He says his doctor says he is in good health. She says her doctor says she is in good health.

Who is to say differently in either case? Must we rely on the word of the politicians?

Gov. George Wallace, a potential presidential candidate who must run virtually confined to a wheelchair if he runs at all, declares himself to have been examined and doing fine. Yet, there are constant rumors and reports that Wallace's health is not doing well at all.

He has precedent, of course, in President Franklin Roosevelt, who served from a wheelchair.

Then there is Sen. Wendell Ford, who, by his own admission, had the good fortune to injure his back, which forced an extensive examination that turned up a potentially fatal ballooning of an artery in his heart.

Neither he, nor his supporters, nor his opponents would have suspected such a problem, now fully corrected, in such a vital, healthy-looking, relatively young man who had won a reputation as one of the most strenuous campaigners in the state.

Then there is W. Terry McBrayer, generally conceded to be the frontrunner for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, who, at 37, pulled out of the race because of a blood pressure problem his doctors said could worsen in a strenuous campaign.

The entire problem of the health of our elected officials is one which probably has no workable solution.

What the voters are left with is the word of each candidate that they believe themselves healthy enough for the task at hand.

No doubt there are political types who would sacrifice their own health, and lie about it to the voters, for another four years in office, but it is difficult to imagine too many of these around.

Barring at some future date a legal requirement that all candidates submit to "impartial" examinations in order to run for office, the key must be for the voters to put the same trust in a candidate's pronouncement of good health that one places in a candidate's promises.

It should all be taken with a grain of salt and weighed in the balance of each voter's reasoning.

State workers have provided the foundation for a $1.6 million fund sitting in a state agency that forwards their state security withholdings to the federal government.

The money was earned by investing the money in short-term notes before sending it off to Washington, a sound fiscal practice. However, since the legislature has enacted no law concerning the fund, and since the Department for Human Resources has not requested legislation, the money can't be used for any purpose except the few thousand dollars needed to manage the fund.

ramblings...

By: Perlina M. Anderkin

This beautiful weather we have been experiencing has done a lot toward lifting my spirits. The constant aggravation of cold, rainy weather was about to do me in. Of course, my spirits took a considerable downing just the other day when I discovered that my husband and I had inadvertently thrown out my good iron, thinking it was my old torn up one, while we were cleaning out some kitchen cabinets. But, that's the breaks...

I don't know why I have been looking forward to warm weather so much though, to date I have managed to do one thing toward our garden which we expanded considerably this year. I suppose I was honest about it. I would say that I haven't managed to get Jim to do anything about my garden yet but I am getting awfully tired of walking around the 100 lb. of seed potatoes we bought two months ago and which have been rotting in my small kitchen awaiting the time to get them underground. You realize that when I grip about the 100 lb. of seed potatoes it is not so much them as it is the bag of garbage which I can't seem to entire my 13-year-old son on anything less than the threat of death to carry out to the truck for hauling away. Maybe I'll lead a basketball on top of each sack I could keep his attention long enough for the 80 yard trek from the kitchen to the truck outside. Actually, I shouldn't fuss too much about him. I do manage to get much more help. I am told by him, than the mothers of his friends get from their offspring. But, if that is the case, I really pity these mothers. One lady friend remarked recently that she thought it was terrible the way some parents expected children to do housework, even boys, and spoiled their childhood. After I recovered from shock I spent the next thirty-minutes lecturing the lady about why it built character and all those other good things - besides giving me a little break - for children to help with a share of the burden of running a household for eight people, including a grandfather. It certainly isn't good for them and I'd for one intend to see to it that they do pull at least a share of their own weight. If that sentence doesn't make me sound like a Simon Legree, I'm bad fooled.

Mrs. Raymond Lavigne of Calloway was in the office Wednesday and during the course of conversation the subject of nothing for children to do in the county was brought up. Mrs. Lavigne expressed her concern over this fact, mainly because she said there was no one to do in this county 20 or 25 years ago than there is now. Of course, she was referring to the skating rink at Brodhead and the several theatres scattered around the county not to mention the restaurant hangouts that were available to the kids. She's right of course. I have just simply gotten so used to driving my children and their friends to Berea for skating and to Lexington for an occasional movie that I hadn't thought anything of it. I will probably think more about it as my children get older and it is something that needs the attention of parents in this county. I don't know the answer because as well as anyone else I realize that economics control these situations and that most businessmen in the county think there wouldn't be enough customers to justify the expense. This may be true but it is still aggravating to have to drive out of the county everytime you want to entertain your children...

THE COMPREHENSIVE CARE CENTER ON SOME SPECIAL PROBLEMS OF CHILDREN

WHEN A CHILD HURTS OTHER CHILDREN

Although hurting may be unintentional, persistent or deliberate hurting is a distress signal that the child needs help. He may be expressing anger based on an uncertainty about how to deal with the world. Punishing him only confirms his feelings of rejection. Try to teach him gradually what conduct is socially acceptable and what is not, and search for ways to make him feel he is an accepted child.

WHEN A CHILD IS DESTRUCTIVE

Look for the reasons for the destructiveness - it may be purely accidental from the child's standpoint. This is best avoided by anticipating problem areas. When a child is intentionally destructive, it may be due to jealousy, frustration, difficulty in making friends, boredom. He may be seeking attention, even punishment. Try to find and deal with the real reason rather than the destructive act. Be kind but persistent in teaching him necessary limits.

WHEN A CHILD USES BAD LANGUAGE

Small children pick up vulgar, dirty, or taboo words from many sources and often have no real idea of their meaning but recognize that "things happen" when they use them. No one method will cure this universal behavior; but being relaxed and avoiding being shocked is 90 percent of the battle. Distraction, suggestion, work-and-sound-play, non-participation are among the tools a parent or teacher may use.

WHEN A CHILD WON'T SHARE

Understanding and practicing unselfishness is a difficult, complex process that takes years of living to learn. Steps along the way include awareness of "mine" and "not mine," the idea of taking turns, learning to play with children; eventually even owning grows into sharing.

WHEN A CHILD STILL SUCKS HIS THUMB

Thumbucking is in itself

generally harmless, and is normal to the small baby. When an older child sucks his thumb he is missing something-attention, perhaps, or love; not necessarily food. Punishment or restraint should always be avoided; try to understand see that he has as many as possible of the essential for a full, secure life.

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Kentucky exists in portions of the eastern part of the state, mostly in the Daniel Boone National Forest and at points between the Lakes (L.B.L.) in Western Kentucky. Although L.B.L. receives heavy recreational use, it is a human-free area concentrated around the shorelines of Kentucky and Barkley lakes, leaving large tracts where the turkey lives undisturbed.

Although Eastern Kentucky's turkey population is holding steady, game biologists would like to see it increase. Therefore, the season this year has been reduced from the nine days of past years to four days - April 15, 16, 25 and May 3 and 4, for turkey gobblers with visible beards only.

Hunting is permitted in Pulaski except the Better Creek Wildlife Area. Gray, Leslie, Jackson, Owsley, Wolfe, Beth, Menifee, Powell, Laurel, Rockcastle, Lee, and Rowan counties in addition, the portions of McCreary County east of US 27 and north of KY 92, and the portions of Whitley County north of the Powell River as well as parts of Breathitt, Knott and Perry counties not in the Robinson Forest Wildlife Management Area which is closed to all hunting.

The turkey season in Land between the Lakes is April 17, 18, 19, 24, 25, and May 1, 2, 3. Hunting hours are from daylight until noon, prevailing time, except at lbi, where hunters must check out by 11:00 a.m.

In Eastern Kentucky's open areas, both shotguns from 12 to 20 gauge and rifles are legal for turkey hunting. Shotgun slugs are prohibited, as are handguns except for muzzle-loading pistols on the Pioneer Weapons area in Bath and Menifee counties. L.B.L. has its own special regulations which hunters should check in advance of their hunt.

Turkeys may also be taken by archery, using broadheads at least 7/8 inch wide. Crossbows are permitted only on the Pioneer Weapons area, and must be of 80-pound pull with broadheads at least 7/89 inch wide. Contact your local conservation officer or write the Department of Fish and Wildlife, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 for complete regulations.

Hunting the elusive and wary wild turkey takes knowledge, skill, and practice. The successful hunter usually wears complete camouflage and is proficient with at least one of the many turkey calls on the market. The best bet for the beginner is to team up with an old hand at the sport and learn as much as possible from him.

throughout the practice development and cost-sharing approval process. Authority to develop practices needed to solve conservation problems is being delegated to each farmer-selected county ASC committee in consultation with the County Program Development Group to be reviewed by the State Program Development Group and approved by the State committee.

The following guidelines will be used for county committees to develop conservation practices:

A. All approved practices in effect under the 1970 Agricultural Conservation Program.

B. All 1974 RECP practices or modifications thereof.

C. Additional practices needed to solve a local conservation problem which would not be solved under A or B.

County committees are responsible for investing programs funds in practices which will provide maximum conservation and environmental benefits in the public interest. All requests will be considered on the basis of merit and equity of treatment.

As announced earlier, $190 million has been funded for the 1975 ACP - the level authorized by Congress which included funds to finance the Long Term Agreements (LTAs) signed under the 1974 conservation program. Kentucky's share will be $4,731,501 of which $1,082,901 will be to cover the remaining obligations on contracts signed under the 1974 LTA.

Individuals interested in further information concerning the 1975 ACP should contact their local county ASCS office. The Rockcastle County ASCS office is located in the Courthouse, Mt. Vernon, Ky. Phone 256-2325.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM THE ROCKCASTLE COUNTY PUBLIC LIBRARY

Everywhere you look, you find something good in your public library. You can find the best on sports, health, child care, family relations, family finances, cooking, home remodeling, interior decorating, job preparation, sewing arts and crafts, rug making, gardening, car repairs and antiques. These are books on many subjects at the public library just waiting for someone to check them out and read for pleasure or information.

Among the new books received at the Rockcastle County Public Library include:

HONEYMAKER'S SON, by Roy Hegan. This action-packed western is about a vicious range war, and a young man pitted against his father's enemies in a bitter battle for survival.

A GUIDE TO STORY TELLING, by Arthur Bullell. This book is not written for the expert, or for the scholar, or for the academy; but rather for the workaday teacher, the father, the mother, or elder sister, who is willing to take some pains and can get at a library or at a friend's collection of books.

GENTLE LIKE A CY' CLONE, by Phyllis Radd Fensler. This is a story of horses and their riders.

NEXT OF KIN, by Gladys Hasty Carroll. This is a story of an elderly man and a hippie couple; thus the last of the Crowley's and the latter-day Surety's confront each other.

THE CHINESE BUG, by Byrd Schweitzer. This is a story of Wally, a little boy who lives in a city in a building twelve stories high, and he wants to dig down through the ground to China. He finds it hard to find a place to dig in the city, but finally does and through a series of mishaps makes his dream come true.

FIRE IN THE STONE, by Colin Thiele. Ernie Ryan lied in one of the world's harshest and most lawless areas, the opal fields of inland Australia. This is an enthralling blend of action, character and the rugged Australian background. The boys identified the thief, the opal cargo and traded him to the mine where all too late they realized the thief had protected his cache with a deadly booby trap.

THE THING AT THE DOOR, by Henry Slesar.

MALAYSIAN TO MALAPISGA, by Evelyn Anthony.

DILLMAN CONVICTED

Eugene B. Siler, Jr., United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky, disclosed today the following convictions in federal court in London pursuant to guilty pleas by the defendants on April 14-15, 1975:

William Noble Dillman, 49, of Wallins Creek, was convicted for the possession of 70 firearms after having been convicted of a felony. On July 24, 1974, Dillman was involved in a high speed car chase with Mt. Vernon policeman Roy Lucas. When his car was wrecked, Lucas, Rockcastle County Sheriff, named Siler as the man who took the weapons from the store in Livingston.

Judge Moynahan fined Brockman in the amount of $100 plus court costs of $36. Siler said that the U.S. Department of Agriculture would probably suspend the store from further accepting food stamps for a period of time.

For information about special problems of children, contact the Children's Services of the Cumberland River Comprehensive Care Center, Phone 256-5129.

INFLATION - WOES OF YOUNG FAMILIES

The young family may be the worst off in this period of inflation and recession both psychologically and financially. Having grown up in periods of plenty and with a feeling of affluence, a recession comes as a shock. Many are not equipped in terms of money "know-how" to meet the pinch, scarcity, declining economy and other problems of continuing inflation according to a recent report by Daniel Yankelevich, a research analyst.

Since these younger families are a primary target group for equipment, gadgets and services, the total economy can be affected. The problems affect all ages but may be less so for those who experienced the great depression or at least remember some of the aftermath.

The shrinking dollar as measured by how much the consumer's dollar will buy, looks something like the following in terms of 1946:

YEAR $ VALUE
1966 $ 80
Present $ 38

By the year 2000 if prices rise 3 per cent a year the dollar value will be $18; if prices rise 6 per cent the dollar value will be $9 based on the 1946 value.

Economists report that Americans can look ahead for boosts in incomes and living conditions but gains will be less dramatic. Families in general may find living standards improving but less perceptible than in the more recent past. Market expansion will depend primarily on those customers whose incomes rise in amounts to offset inflation.

However, those living on fixed incomes will continue to have financial problems in wrestling with inflation. The replacement of appliances, home maintenance, health care, transportation and many other goods and services may have to be eliminated or greatly reduced. Care in budgeting or even part-time jobs for some may be a necessity.

CREDIT MAY HIT HARD!
Unemployment, rising prices along with high installment payments can cause financial problems, particularly with credit. Loss of goods and even bankruptcy may be the only way out.

DANGER SIGNALS

An answer of yes to any one of the following questions is an indication the family should take a second look at their financial situation and check their spending habits. Some spending cuts may be a must.

1. Are you starting to fight with your spouse or children over money?
2. Are you starting to pay the minimum amount each month on your credit cards?
3. Are you starting to hold back payments of bills that you normally pay on time?
4. Are you dipping into your savings to pay everyday expenses?

This fervent prayer... May the people of all nations be united in their care... For earth's peace and man's safety... can come only by Thy grace... And not through bombs and missiles... and our quest for outer space... For until all men recognize that "The Battle is The Lord's"... And peace on earth cannot be won with strategy and swords... We pray on vainly till we are woe have in our sight... Finding only empty victories and a peace that cannot last... But we are so rich and mighty... and so arrogant in strength... We no longer ask in humbleness... "God, show us where we're wrong"... We have come to trust completely in the power of man-made things... unmindful of God's mighty power... and that He is "King of Kings"... We have turned our eyes away from Him to look for our selfish ways... And money, power, and pleasure are the gods we serve today... And the good we seek... God gave us to peacefully enjoy... Through greed and fear and hatred we are seeking to destroy... Oh, Father, up in heaven... air and wake our sleeping souls... Renew our faith and lift us up and give us higher goals... And grant us heavenly guidance... as we threaten us again... For, more than guided missiles, all the world needs Guided Men.

FRONTIER DRESS EMPHASIZED USEFULNESS

By David Kenamer

Just a few hundred miles from a colonial world dressed in brocades, hoop skirts, waists coats, powdered wigs, corsets and ruffles, the early Kentucky pioneers went about their business of taming the wilderness in leather shirts and linsey-woolsey.

Clothing can be fashionable or plain, decorative or utilitarian, but to Kentucky's first settlers some 200 years ago, it was primarily designed for usefulness and was made of whatever was available, usually homespun cloth and animal skins.

Men's wear on the frontier was a classic example of clothing shaped by the environment. Designed to give as much protection and freedom of movement as possible, it was primarily an adaptation of Indian dress.

The main garment was the hunting shirt or "wanus," a loose tunic draped over the head with the neck opening often laced together with buckskin thongs.

The shirt, which was usually cut to just above the knees, had a broad cape or collar and close fitting sleeves. The seams of the sleeves and the bottom edges of the shirt were often decorated with leather fringe. These decorations were usually fairly short, again to facilitate movement. The shirt was belted and tied in the back. Mittens, holles bag, foot, tomahawk, knife and other items may have been hung from the belt, all within easy reach, leaving both arms and hands free.

The hunting shirt was probably made from linsey, a rough homespun linen, or from carefully tanned buckskin. The linsey shirts were often dyed blue and sewn with a yellow fringe. A leather shirt of white elkskin was considered the height of fashion on the frontier.

Men's leggings were usually copied from those worn by the Indians. They were made of leather, often fringed and were tied below the knee so that they could not hamper the wearer's movement. For summer, Indian moccasins were usually worn.

The frontier woman's dress copied the basic style of the popular colonial gown of the period. However, the frontier costume lacked the hoops, fine fabrics, laces and trains of the ladies of the East.

Necklines were usually full deep and skirts, fully cut but not wasteful of scarce fabric, fell in very straight folds to the ankles.

Frontier skirts were shorter than those worn in settled areas because of the more active life on the frontier. Sleeves were usually elbow length and slit at the bottom seam to allow freedom of movement.

Women seldom wore hats; in bad weather a hood or shawl protected the head. The women carried their sun umbrellas and "wool moccasins or square-bottom shoes in cold weather. For accessories, a few strings of
