

Rockcastle Recollections

John Lair

Since for the past several weeks we have been devoting this space to family histories, there seems to have been an increase in those interested in tracing their family origins in learning more about the various ways in which this can be accomplished.

Anyone who has already done some work along this line knows how difficult it is to straighten out and properly list their findings. I have seen but few family histories without mistakes, even though they were prepared by actual members of that family, so you can readily understand how impossible it would be for me or any other individual to keep up with thirty or forty families. One thing that adds greatly to the confusion is the fact that there are such frequent recurrences of the same name running through each generation. By the time you run across the name Jim Smith for the fifth or sixth time you find it hard to figure out which is which.

At a meeting of the local D.A.R. last Saturday, the occasion being their annual work session, I had been asked to speak on the subject "How to trace your ancestry." I had not had time to give much thought to the subject until almost time to take the floor, when it suddenly occurred to me that I would have a mighty difficult audience, because they all knew more about the subject than I did and had more experience than I had. It was not worthwhile for me to go over a lot of things members of the D.A.R. already knew, so I had to fall back on a list of suggestions for what to do when you came to end of your search and still hadn't learned all you needed to know.

Since we can assume that many people who read this article don't know as much on the subject as the D.A.R. members do, maybe I could give these readers, mostly beginners in the field of genealogy, some helpful hints on how to proceed.

In the first place, let me say that most of us had already missed the boat before we first got interested. If when we were much younger we had asked our parents and grandparents a few questions they could have given us all the answers we are searching for. Or, if we had paid any attention to things they told us, even without solicitation, we would have known things about our ancestors we may never know now. If you have older relatives still living, query them before it is too late.

In most cases everybody who lives a reasonable length of time will know his name and where he came from. Even if the people you are looking for were born well before the period when we started recording births in this country, or before there was a public school system that listed students in each district, there is still a good chance that your ancestor's name appears on a land grant, a deed, a will, a lawsuit, a marriage list, a census, a tax list, or the military records in at least one of the many wars in which America has been engaged. If you suspect an ancestor was a Revolutionary War soldier, ask your local D.A.R. to show you how to send in an inquiry to the proper government agency to see if his name is on a pension list. If he is, you won't find him mentioned as enlisted from Rockcastle County. There was no Rockcastle County then. Find out, as you will from his war record, the name of the country in which he did enlist and try to trace his record from there. Often you can trace a family all the way back to their arrival in America by contacting the port of embarkation in New York. So very many of our people first entered America there - and the office has kept records of all of them in many cases, the name of the ship on which they arrived and the name of the ship's master. There are other ports to contact, but I have found that most of our people came through the Port of New York, with succeeding generations moving down through New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia and North Carolina and through Cumberland Gap into Kentucky. Maybe it would take many years and many generations of a family to completely trace, but you'd be surprised at how many came that route.

As I have said, most everybody gets their name on some kind of a list during their lifetime. Finding that particular list may take a long time, but tracing ancestry is a slow business, and once you get interested in it, you'll spend the rest of your life at it anyway. Where court records are available the task is much easier. In the case of Rockcastle County and twenty other counties like it in Kentucky, where all court records were completely destroyed by fire, you face a monumental task.

In the case of my own ancestry, I have had a list of six names which I have kept constantly in mind for the last thirty years. Whenever I have gone into a new city I have checked telephone directories to see if I find anyone of the name listed. Since my list is made up of short and fairly uncommon names that has been easy to do and has, on occasion, been rewarding. If you're interested in a name like Smith, or Jones or Brown, where a directory might contain pages of the name, it isn't practical.

Check all old cemeteries and old Bibles, remembering, however, that they are not always accurate. I have found in Rockcastle County instances - some in my own family - where there have been discrepancies of from two to eight years between Bible and tombstone dates of the same person. Every time I am in a bookstore I pick up every new history or non-fiction book I see and skim through the index to see if it contains any of the family names for which I am searching. Often I have turned up a helpful connection to be followed out.

Census records, only recently made available to many Kentucky counties, have been of untold value in tracing and placing ancestors, but these, too, are not one hundred percent accurate. I have acquired records for 1790, 1800, 1810, 1820, 1830, 1840, and 1850, the latter two being so dim as to be almost illegible. I have access to 1840 and 1850 but they also are too dim to be useful. Other names of residents in a more remote section of the county have been left out either through oversight or the laziness of the census-taker who didn't take the trouble to cover such sections carefully. I have found several such errors in Rockcastle records. In one instance the name of a certain man does not show up on the census until 1830, when I have actual old delinquent tax bills showing that he was living here in 1818.

As mentioned in a recent article, I have long tried to get additional information on Will French, my grandmother Lair's father, but have always run against a stone wall. Now through Mrs. W.L. Coffey, another of his descendants, I might be striking pay dirt. She has an old picture of a man that her mother, Effie French Jones, says was Will French. My grandmother had said that her father's name was Will French his father's name was Will French and that was also the name of his grandfather. The Will French I'm searching for had a son named Will. So this picture must be one of the four Will Frenches. The younger one, born in 1817, can be ruled out. I remember seeing a picture of him in my grandmother's album and they look nothing alike. The picture now under consideration is a tintype. It shows a man apparently between 50 and 60 years of age. Now all I have to do is get to a library somewhere that contains a good history, or photography and find how early tintypes were being made. If anyone around Civil War time (and I believe it was) then this is the Will French I am tracing, since he is the only one of the four that could have been around the right age to have posed for this picture.

By a somewhat similar process of deduction, I believe I have been able to authenticate a picture of Devil Bill Adams concerning which we have had some doubt. It was given to me several years ago by an actual grandson of Devil Bill, but some doubt had been cast on its authenticity of the fact that we had understood that photography originated with the invention of the Daguerreotype process, which did not come into existence until around 1844, in which year Devil Bill was buried and it was assumed that he did not get into American cities smaller than New York and Philadelphia until some time later. Recently, quite unexpectedly, I came across an advertisement in an old Lexington paper telling of the opening there of a photograph gallery which had just installed the marvelous new invention, the Daguerreotype, and was fully prepared to make pictures by that method. This newspaper was dated in 1839. This would have put the process closer to Devil Bill about five years before his death and make it altogether possible for him to have this photograph made. Being born in 1776, he would have been around sixty three when the picture was taken, as he seems to be in this photograph. Just another proof that it pays to keep looking. You never know when you'll run into something that will prove useful.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM THE ROCKCASTLE COUNTY LIBRARY

Keep this in mind during hot, 90-degree weather: exercise may be dangerous for young girls, ages nine to eleven. That's what researchers say at the laboratory for human performance research at Pennsylvania State University. They said that at 90 degrees there were all the signs of heat distress, including abdominal discomfort and nausea, as well as dizziness and a high heart rate. Why not keep these young girls as well as anyone else still in this weather by visiting the library and getting a good book to read. Among the new ones received are:

was a sad time for us all. Mom stayed here with me for awhile but it was too lonely for her and she can't see well you know, so she moved closer to town. Oh, she comes back often to see about me. She has the grass cut, washes my doors and sets more mouse traps. After awhile, she locks my doors and goes sadly away again. I am then alone again with my memories of sad and happy times with my family, and I wish someone would come and live with me again. I can't go on waiting forever. Soon my roof will be falling in and my boards cracking, if not painted soon. My doors are sagging and my windows rattle when the wind blows. I badly need some fresh air in here. I can hardly breathe.

Most of all, I need some live people about, shots are no fun to live with. They think they scare people with their silly sounds but I know them all very well.

My biggest nightmare is my fear of termites. I heard through the wind the moans of my neighbor as they ate away at her foundation. I sure don't want that to happen to me.

Hark! I hear a car down the road, now I see it far down the lane. It's a big truck. Hot dog! It's "Big Ed" coming home. Now things will begin to jump around here. I remember his hammer when he was a kid. It still have the scars to prove I brought him up. He'll fix me up. Oh! I'm so excited I'm shaking. I must get a grip on myself, can't cave in at this point. I've got to hang on a little longer for my face lift, then watch me sparkle and smile at the sun. I'll be here a long time yet waiting.

CVADD BOARD HEARS ABOUT FUEL SURCHARGE

The Cumberland Valley Area Development District Executive Committee Meeting at Mount Air Motel at Harlan May 14 had its speaker the General Manager of Jackson County R.E.C.C., Lee Roy Cole. Mr. Cole was invited by the Committee to speak on the increased cost of electricity and that this has recently been going down.

"It was not until early last year that the fuel charge became a large factor. At that time, most electric utilities found it necessary to go to the Public Service Commission and obtain permission to pass on a part of this extra cost as a fuel charge to the users of electricity," according to Mr. Cole.

"As the cost of coal increased to more than $30.00 per ton during 1974; the surcharge went up to $10.70 for 1000 KWH and then began to come down in 1975; the fuel charge for May is down to $6.40. What will happen to the price of coal and its resultant effect on the cost of electricity to members, Mr. Cole said, is a thing of the future."

In another action, James Baker, Board member from Middleboro moved that a resolution be drafted and sent to all the Legislators and professional schools, "expressing the philosophy that Kentucky students be given priority at State Institutions providing they can meet the qualifications." The resolution was approved with the comment that this may help solve the doctor shortage problem.

DOWN ON THE FARM

By: Roy G. Brown
Assistant Vice President
Cumberland PCA

Today, with the extremely low price of beef cattle, it is a must we produce them at the lowest cost possible. There are several things as farmers we can do to help lower the cost.

First we need good grass and legume, mixed pasture and with proper management. Rotate grazing and clipping. Pasture will about double the yield. Make sure your cattle have access to plenty good fresh water, and don't forget the minerals that are very essential.

Manage a good breeding program so that cows will calve in about 30 to 45 days. This will give a uniform group of calves and shorten time for close watch on herd at calving time.

Only keep cows that breed and produce heavy calves at weaning time.

Buy a good bull that produces fast gaining calves. Watch your marketing because marketing at the right time and place can get you a few extra dollars which is needed "Down on the Farm".

County Committee For Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Meets

An organizational meeting was held Wednesday afternoon at the county superintendent's office for the purpose of forming a Rockcastle County Committee for Juvenile Delinquency Prevention.

Those members of the committee present were as follows:

Biige Towery, BES principal, Chairman; Charles B. Parsons, Supt. of Schools; Preston Parrett, LES Coach and County Elementary Athletic Director; Juanita Norris, 8th grade teacher; BES; Jean Gentry, RCHS guidance counselor;

Nancy Williams, Director of Pupil Personnel; Nell Craig, RES 1st grade teacher; Jennifer Hansel, RCHS student representative; Florida Eukerhofer, Mental Health Center; David Hansel, MVES 7th and 8th grade teacher; Willard Whitaker, Social Worker; Sue Hamm, Elementary guidance counselor; Norma Lyons, County Health Dept.; John E. Holbrook, Dept. of Human Resources and Douglas Hammett, Supervisor Rockcastle County Schools.

The Kentucky Department of Education in Frankfort has organized an "Office of Juvenile Delinquency Prevention" and has invited each school system (on a voluntary basis) to organize local advisory committees to assist in establishing means of preventing or curtailing the perplexing problem of juvenile delinquency.

With the realization that no factor correlates so closely with delinquency as school-related problems - truancy, dropouts, underachievers, disruptive behavior, vandalism - the office of Delinquency Prevention feels that schools must become actively involved in this prevention program.

Ms. Helen Worthington, social work consultant from the state office, met with the county committee on April 30th and presented a brief explanation of the origin and goals of the state office and presented challenges to the local committee. She informed the committee that they were among the first school systems in the state to become actively involved in this project.

The committee discussed at length some local concerns and scheduled a further meeting for the purpose of assessing local needs and establishing priority concerns in the area of juvenile delinquency prevention. The committee's work will be centered around efforts to establish some specific objectives and programs that will aid in preventing delinquency.

"TORNADO MTP"

University offers some free assistance to Commonwealth citizens.

The EKU Geographical Statistics and Research Center has prepared a tornado/severe weather plotting map which is available free of charge upon request. This publication presents a two-color spread-drawn map of the Commonwealth on which can be plotted the path of severe weather. Also included are specific instructions as to how the map should be used.

In addition to the plotting map, there are printed definitions used by the National Weather Service in reporting severe weather. For instance, the definitions to the terms "tornado watch" and "tornado warning" are clearly indicated. Also included are the four most important aspects of tornado safety, with special attention given to shelter areas and how they should be used.

This free tornado/severe weather plotting map, which is suitable for posting on an office or home bulletin board, is available at many locations in the greater Richmond-Lexington area. They are also available through the mail and requests should be addressed to "Weather Watch Map," WEKU-FM Radio Station, Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, Kentucky, 40475.

Telephone requests may be made Monday through Friday, 9:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. the number is Area Code 606-622-2474. This map is offered to Kentucky citizens as a public service from Eastern Kentucky University.

Life's bound to change, techniques have changed. Priorities have changed. People, however, are much the same as they were and have always been.

The hurts, the happiness, the fears and the hopes inside people go on and on as the landscape changes. # Information On 4-H Camp

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kirby, left, and Mrs. Mary Lawrence prepare hot dogs for the hungry walkers who participated in Saturday's March of Dimes Walkathon. Mr. Kirby and Mrs. Lawrence are both employees of the vocational school and both have always worked with the Walkathon.

As can be seen from the above photo, the rains came during Saturday's March of Dimes Walkathon. It dampened the spirits of only a few walkers. They were compensated somewhat by the refreshments that were served after the walk. At one of the rest stops, the walkers were treated to Orangettes donated by Southern Belle Theatre in Summers.

COME TO 4-H CAMP!
Most 4-H'ers in Rockcastle County know about 4-H Camp. But I'm sure there are some 4-H'ers and parents who want to know more about 4-H Camp. Here's some questions I'll answer.

WHAT'S HAPPENING AT CAMP? 4-H Camp offers a variety of education, fun and exciting activities. Some of the things you can do at 4-H camp are swimming and boating, archery, hiking, sports, crafts, folk games, nature and conservation studies, vendors and campfires.

WHERE IS 4-H CAMP? - The 4-H'ers from Rockcastle County attend the J.M. Felner Memorial 4-H Camp near Levi Jackson State Park at London.

WHEN IS 4-H CAMP? - The regular camping session will begin at noon on Monday, July 21, 1975 and continue until Friday afternoon, July 25, 1975. Fourth graders have a special camp beginning on Tuesday, June 10, 1975 until Friday, June 13, 1975. There will be only nine and ten-year olds at this camping session.

WHO WILL BE AT THE CAMP? - The 4-H Camp has a permanent staff consisting of a manager and instructors for the entire summer. 4-H agents from the counties attending the camp and teen councilors and club leaders will also be on hand to keep order.

WHILE AT CAMP? There are eight cabins for boys and eight for girls with twelve to fourteen in each cabin. Your cabin mates will be about your age and from Rockcastle County. An advisor will stay in each cabin. Each camper brings his or her own sheets, blanket and pillow as well as towel, washcloth, soap, etc. 4-H'ers will be able to live in a cabin with their friends as well as new friends from this county. There will be plenty of opportunities to meet youth from other counties. Learning citizenship and getting along with other people is an important part of 4-H camp.

WHAT DOES IT COST TO GO TO CAMP? - The registration fee for 4-H camp is $20.00. This includes three good meals a day from noon Monday through noon Friday and snacks to keep you going between times. Also included in the fee is lodging, transportation, insurance, swimming fees and use of camp equipment. The craft items and souvenirs are purchased. The 4th grade camp fee is $15.00 since they are at camp one day less than the older campers.

HOW DO YOU GET TO CAMP? - The 4-H Council of Rockcastle County and the Mt. Vernon Lions Club help provide transportation to and from the camp. Parents are welcome to bring their 4-H'ers to camp and to visit the camp on parent's night (Thursday nights) at the camp.

WHO CAN GO TO CAMP? - Any 4-H'er who wishes can attend 4-H camp. The ages for regular camp are for 5th to 8th graders. Fourth graders can attend the special fourth grade camp or can attend the regular camp with a brother or sister in 4-H.

WHEN DO YOU HAVE TO REGISTER? - The registration form and the camp registration fee of $20.00 can be given to the 4-H leader before the end of the school. Or, it can be brought or sent to the County Extension Office before July 1, 1975 (June 1, 1975 for 4th grade camp). Registration forms and more information can be obtained from Cheryl Witt, County Extension Office, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky. Scholarships will be available to assist families who need them.

Plan now to attend 4-H Camp - Don't miss out on the fun!

53 Democrats Vie For State Nomination

It's practically a Democratic Primary all the way with candidates galore for all the major state offices including eleven for Lieutenant Governor. Rockcastle Countians have almost nothing of local interest except a State Senators race with four candidates and a couple of constable races.

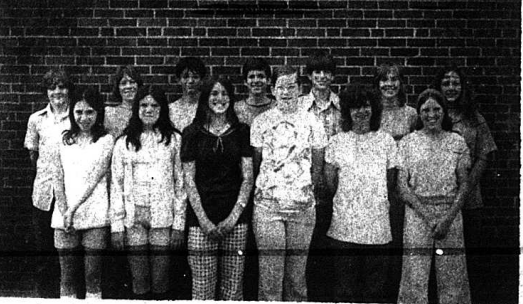

Rockcastle Countians will have the choice of George V. Carmiche, John D. Rogers, Leonard Hislop and William Ray Vanhook as candidates for Rockcastle's 15th Senatorial Seat, in the second district. Dennis Ray Chaney and Delno McClure are both in the race for Constable and in the fourth district, the opponents are Buram Byrd and C.L. York for Constable.

As has already been pointed out, the Democrats have more to choose from with four candidates for the governor's nomination: Gov. Julian M. Carroll, Mary Louise Foust, Todd Hollenbach and Robert McCreary Johnson and eight for the Lieutenant Governor nomination. Ewart W. Johnson, Wayne T. Rutherford, Thelma L. Stovall, William L. Sullivan, Rev. Charles A. Sweeney, Sr., Thomas M. Ward, Lyle L. Willis, Ronald E. Butler, James O. Day, Louis S. Grace and Ed W. Hancock.

Rockcastle County also has a candidate for state office. Joseph (Joel) Lambert, local attorney, is a candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals on the Republican ticket. Since he is unopposed in the Primary, his name will not appear on the Primary ballot.

All in all, there are fifty-three candidates for the Democrats to pick and choose from as opposed to ten for the

Rockcastle DAR Chapter Holds Genealogical Workshop

The members of Rockcastle Chapter DAR were hostesses for a Genealogical Workshop held at the Roundstone School, Saturday, May 17, 1975 with the chapter. Regan, Mrs. Lala Owens presiding. Following the Pledge of Allegiance, the National Anthem was led by Miss Janie Ramsey, Mrs. V. Gordon Walker spoke briefly on the use of Census Records and old handwriting. Mrs. Walker then introduced Mrs. Wilbur

A. Walker of Lexington, member of Bryan Station Chapter and presently Chairman of Publication of Kentucky Records, who spoke on "The Westward Migration." Prior to 1793, the American Colonists had been hindered in their movement Westward and had confined their travels to the Kings Road which ran parallel to the Atlantic Coast and linked the capitals of the original thirteen colonies. The French and Indians in the Northwest, the Ohio and Mississippi Valley prohibited the colonists from expanding Westward. It finally became apparent that the English Colonists would have to deal with the French and Indians. Fort Duquesne near the present site of Pittsburgh seemed to be the key position in the French line and it soon became apparent that the hold of the French on this section would have to be broken.

Governor Dinwiddie sent George Washington to tell the French they must release their hold on this territory. Washington was rebuffed which led Governor Dinwiddie to seek aid from the British who sent General Braddock to fight with its artillery. It was necessary to build a road. Braddock was defeated before he reached Fort Duquesne and his officers, George Washington and his drivers, George Washington had shown great leadership qualities and Governor Dinwiddie sent troops under his command to deal with the French. After several months and some good fortune, they found the French had all but abandoned Ft. Duquesne. The Colonial forces captured Ft. Duquesne. With the American Forces in command of Ft. Duquesne, the power of the French and Indians in the northwest was greatly demin-ished. This allowed the Colonists to push Westward down the Ohio River to colonize Kentucky and later the Northwest. In the meantime, the Colonists were traveling a fairly accessible road down through the Shenandoah Valley following Brinker's trace through Cumberland Gap into Tennessee and Kentucky. From this branch of the road down the Shenandoah Valley, Colonists were able to link back the upper reaches of the Tennessee River which was manageable well above the present city of Knoxville. Using this route, they were able to colonize territory along the Tennessee River through Western Tennessee and Western Kentucky. The settling of Kentucky proved an easy access to the settling of the Northwest and to some extent the Southwest. Following this talk, Mrs. Elbert Evershed presided. (Cont. to 6)

PUTTING FOOD AWAY - WORKSHOP

Home Canning, Freezing, and other methods in home food preservation is on the upswing. Many homemakers have been preserving food for years. However, in recent years, research has developed newer, faster, and safer methods which produce a better product.

The demonstration will be presented Monday, June 2nd at the County Library in Mt. Vernon, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. This demonstration will be presented by Cheryl Witt, County Extension Agent for Home Economics. There will be no fee. Each one attending is asked to bring a sandwich. Drinks will be provided. Recipes and bulletins will be given those attending. If some are interested in a night demonstration, let us know.

Frankfort Watchline

Coming down to the wire, is no longer so clear-cut as it once was that Secretary of State Thelma Stovall will win the Democratic primary for lieutenant governor.

If not her, then who? State Sen. Bill Sullivan has run a vigorous but relatively quiet campaign and now at the last minute has begun what has the makings of a heavy advertising blitz that runs the gamut from Time and Sports illustrated to broadcast with his own jingle.

A seasoned veteran of the political jungle, Sullivan, with more limited resources than Pike County Judge Wayne Rutherford, has held his ad campaign for the most strategic moment.

Rutherford, out of necessity, brought out the big guns early, from professional campaign management to heavy media advertising, with no little success. Only a few months ago this column rated him the weakest of the first six contenders. Certainly that is far from true now.

State Sen. Tom Ward, also then rated one notch above Rutherford, has to have picked up as well. He has orchestrated an issue-oriented media campaign and it will be interesting to see if the people respond. The guess from here is that while Ward is a long way from being ahead, he will surprise a few political observers.

Mrs. Stovall, hoping to ride home on her name recognition and her experience, seems almost to be taking the campaign casually. Relying on a broad-based statewide band of followers may work again this time and it may not.

Is she faltering, and th... is a big if, Bill Sullivan will probably be standing in the wings ready to cash in.

Thus far, as promised, Gov. Julian Carroll has kept hands off the lieutenant governor's race, and that is the key factor that is keeping the race wide open.

Even though the race for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor has been inordinately heated, voter interest in this year's state races is at very low ebb, at least in most areas of the state.

The size of the ballot, alone, is enough to bring even the most conscientious voter to tears.

Couple disinterest and the difficult ballot and it is very likely the lesser races, even the lieutenant governor's race, will suffer from neglect.

Can a candidate for lieutenant governor go into the Fall campaign with a 20 per cent mandate from the people?

Can a candidate for the important race for attorney general win with only 40,000 votes?

Can Louisville and Jefferson County, where there is some voter interest in this year's campaigns, turn out 35 per cent of the total statewide vote or even more?

A lackluster gubernatorial campaign has contributed a great deal to this apathy in most areas of the state. It has not been a substantial campaign on the issues and once again the public has been denied a face-to-face confrontation of the leading candidates. And why, indeed, should Carroll accept Todd Hollenbach's challenge and end up spending five or ten minutes apiece talking to a camera?

Despite Todd Hollenbach's confidence and his call for a new politics, his campaign has been as issueless as the governor's has.

On the lighter side, Jefferson Davis' statue in the rotunda of the Capitol Building has a pair of plaques illuminating the career of this famous Kentuckian.

The second, larger and more detailed plaque... on a few days ago and it was only then that the question of the origin of the first plaque came up, and it took three days for state officials and press to find out.

At any rate, now Capitol visitors can read his birth and death dates twice and learn twice that he was the president of the confederacy.

(As Printed By Courier - Journal March 24, 1974)

In every General Assembly session, a dozen or so "key" votes determine the fate of major legislation. The following 14 House roll-call votes were chosen because they show how the representatives voted on a variety of key issues. The votes are reproduced from official records. A BLANK SPACE INDICATES THAT THE REPRESENTATIVE DIDN'T VOTE OR WAS ABSENT.

Most State Representatives voted on all 14 key roll-call votes, however, Leonard Hishop's record is reproduced below:

What Is Depression?

Depression is highly complex. Here are two definitions: "Depression is an emotional state of dejection and sadness, ranging from mild discouragement and downheartedness to feeling of utter hopelessness and despair." National Association for Mental Health.

"Depression is exaggerated sadness coupled with pessimism, and pessimism is the essential component that distinguishes depression from the ordinary 'low' feelings that we all experience from time to time. The depressed person is not simply sad; he has the impression that his sadness will persist indefinitely regardless of what he does about it. This is depression as a psychiatric symptom." - Dr. Hugh A. Storrer, Professor of Psychiatry, University of Kentucky College of Medicine.

To most experts, sadness is but a passing mood, whereas depression is a serious condition that may end in self-destruction. Virtually all psychiatrists believe a depression is brought on by a loss, such as the death or rejection of a loved person, or the loss of a cherished possession. Some scientists consider the mental illness of depression to be genetic (inborn) in origin.

There can be no consensus on whether depression is merely an aggravated degree of the "blues," stems from a deeply rooted psychological condition, or has a biochemical origin in the body; sometimes one element may predominate, or all three may be involved. In practice, the condition tends to be defined by its symptoms: feelings of worthlessness and anxiety, an inability to find pleasure in normal activities, fatigue, early morning sleeplessness, contemplation of suicide. When a person's feelings do not seem to be justified by his actual circumstances, and when these feelings interfere with his functioning, he is regarded as sick.

Thus, the term "depression" has been used to describe a mood, a psychiatric symptom, a psychiatric syndrome (group of symptoms), and a specific disease. Depressions differ in depth, duration, and degree. They vary from individual to individual, and reflect the extent to which people color their view of life with gloom.

Next we'll look at depression in infancy and young children. Future articles will be concerned with depression in teenagers, young adults, middle age, the aged, the incapacitated and others and how it can be treated.

ROT WEATHER ACCENTS NEED FOR PROPER FOOD CARE

"Safe food must be planned - not left to chance, and the advent of hot weather accents the need for more careful planning."

"Shop for meat and poultry and other perishable foods just before you check out. Unless you make this a consistent practice, you may be tied up in store traffic or diverted by bargain hunting longer than you expect and thus risk contamination of the perishables in your basket."

Another shopping rule: Make sure frozen foods are hard-frozen and have been kept below the frostline in the supermarket freezer. You can tell when frozen foods have not been properly handled by these signals. "One is softness. When you pick up frozen food that feels soft, you know it has not been kept at zero F. or below."

Also, another signal - an ice coating on the outside of the package. "This is a good indication that there has been some previous thawing and refreezing."

When buying refrigerated foods, check the food to make sure it is cold-not just room temperature. The temperature of the refrigerator case should be 40 degrees F. or below.

When you're checking out, ask the clerk to bag cold foods together for they remain cooler longer when so packaged.

Frozen or refrigerated foods interspersed with room temperature foods may warm up more quickly, especially if you are a half-hour or more

THE HOMESTEAD

"Never, never be tempted to do any shopping after you have loaded your car with frozen or refrigerated foods." Head them home and unload these perishable foods first. Store them in the proper place.

Remember, food may not be safe to eat if held more than two hours at temperature between 40 and 140 degrees. This includes all of the time of burning, starting, preparation, and serving.

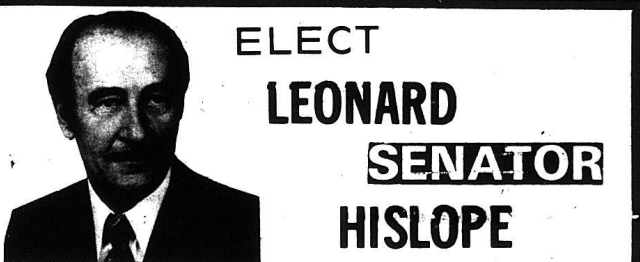

Chances of maintaining the good quality of the food you buy depends on your buying good food and handling it properly.

(Ed's Note - Mrs. Ethel W. Reed, a former resident of Rockcastle County and teacher here, sent us the following short story which she wrote while at the University of Kentucky. The story is about Mrs. Reed's homeplace at Orlando and she is proud of it in memory of her father, Julius Sams, who died in May of 1962.)

It's a beautiful day, the sun is up, I can see it just peeping over the mountain. The warmth of the sun is just beginning to reach my tired hands to melt the cold dew which settled there over the long chilly night. The water sparkles in the creek down below the meadow and the big maple trees glisten with frost as the sun's rays bounce off.

Spring is not far away when it is this nice. It sure would be a big thrill if someone would return. I'm so tired of being here alone with the birds and mice, they don't care about me except for the shelter I provide for them. I am so lonely. I remember when the Master was here. He took such good care of me. Those were good busy days when all the family was here. Later, the little grandchildren ran through me slapping my cheeks and making shrill noises but I enjoyed it all and tried to give loving shelter and hang together. The Master has been gone many years now, but sure

ELECT LEONARD SENATOR HISLOPE

Leonard Hislope Takes A Stand On The Issue That Relates To The Peoples Interest.

I wrote, introduced and caused to be passed in the House of Representatives the following Resolution, which was the first official criticism of the Supreme Court after its decision to ban reading of The Bible and Praying in Public Schools.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. Leonard Hislope introduced the following resolution, which was ordered to be printed. A RESOLUTION relating to the Supreme Court's ruling barring Bible reading and recitation of the Lord's Prayer in public schools.

WHEREAS, the Supreme Court decision barring the reading of the Bible and saying the Lord's Prayer in public schools has gone beyond the intent of the Federal Constitution, and is in disregard of the laws of 37 states of the Union, including the sovereign state of Kentucky; and

WHEREAS, the decision of the highest court of the land infers that the more recognition of Almighty God, is in itself, a violation of religious liberty and the reading of the Holy Word is in violation of the law of the land; and

WHEREAS, many millions of Americans join in the opinion of dissent to the high court's opinion; and

WHEREAS, the majority of the Supreme Court, Earl Warren always included, is soft on Communism and hard on religion;

WHEREAS, the reading of the Bible does not establish a church and the recognition of Almighty God, by an employee of a state does not tend to unite church and state and therefore is not at variance with the first amendment to the United States Constitution; and

WHEREAS, state legislatures and the U.S. Congress say prayers to the great Master but school personnel are not permitted to call on His name; and

WHEREAS, it is now feared by many of His Elect that all religious aspects of governmental procedures will be banished and the following may soon come to pass:

1. Coins, bearing the inscription, "IN GOD WE TRUST," will be called in by U.S. Treasury and will no longer be legal tender in U.S.A.
2. All public documents containing any word, phrase, or reference to God, and all such documents on file in all counties, states, and the U.S. shall be pulled and the word God obliterated, marked out or otherwise destroyed.
3. No instrument which must be recorded shall mention the name of the Lord, no testamentary document will be effective which refers to the name of the Most High and no deed of conveyance will be valid which refers to His Holy Name.
4. In the year of our Lord will no longer be referred to and B.C. and A.D. will no longer be used in the calculation of time.
5. Inscriptions on public shrines and monuments shall be removed if reference is made to the Deity. This includes the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington National Cemetery and all tombstones in all government cemeteries.
6. No longer will chaplains serve in the Army of the United States or religious service be permitted where U.S. soldiers are stationed.

WHEREAS, certain decisions of the Supreme Court are alien to and inimical to the well being and spiritual growth of the United States of America; Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

That the House go on record opposed to the decisions of the Supreme Court relating to Bible reading and recitation of the Lord's Prayer in public schools in the cases of School District of Abington Township v. Schempp et al., and Murray et al. v. Curlett, et al.

When the interest of the people is involved Leonard Hislope will always take a stand.

Your help and your vote will be greatly appreciated and I'll ever be grateful for your support.

I am sure readers of this weeks paper will know that there is an election scheduled for next Tuesday. This being the last issue prior to the primary election, there will doubtless be several political advertisements giving reasons why your vote should be cast for this or that candidate. The majority of the voters will not be who I vote for, but whether or not they will even get out to vote.

This election seems to be relatively unnoticed or at least very little interest is being shown by the man on the street. Other than the handful of candidates who have been around town, no one seems to be talking about this election. The lack of interest is understandable since traditionally interest seems to be generated in proportion to the availability of the candidates.

Everyone agrees that the right to make a free choice is important yet when it comes to taking the time to exercise this right many of us seem to put it aside for various petty reasons. I am acquainted with some people who, even though not politically inclined, will vote in an election for which they are eligible. On the other hand I know people who will gripe about government continually and then admit they don't even remember the last time they bothered to vote.

Admittedly there are many valid excuses why you cannot get to vote in an election. Most are a good but election comes along there are remarkably few people who have to have an excuse since they do find some way to get to the polls.

Some people feel they have to be asked to go vote and if they aren't asked they don't go. This might have some validity in an election where only a few people are going to vote such as in organizations where officers are elected, but it is impractical when you are dealing with thousands of people. Come to think of it, I don't know of any president who has not been elected validly in an election where only a few people are going to vote. This has never had any bearing on my voting or not voting for a president.

Some people think that their one vote would not make any difference so why vote. The fallacy of this thinking is becoming increasingly apparent when you note that many important races have been very close. Many so close that only one or two votes have made the difference. Some day I would like to think that I had voted for someone and they only won by one vote. I would figure that they could not have won without my vote therefore my one small vote was the one that elected the person. I would like to think that I did not vote and a person I was for lost by only one vote.

This article is not trying to endorse any one candidate or any party but merely is trying to point out that this Tuesday we have a right, a duty, and a privilege to exercise. We can do freely what many people wish they could do - we can vote if we only will take the time to do so.

Experts Judging Gladding Fishing Tall Tales Contest; Entry Deadline June 1

Tennessee Ernie Ford and other "fishing story experts" will judge the 1975 Gladding Fishing Tall Tales Contest. Entries must be postmarked not later than June 1 to be considered for the top prize, a fishing trip to Ireland, or for one of the runner-up awards.

While Tennessee Ernie usually spins his yarns verbally before nationwide TV audiences, most of the other judges, such as C. Boyd Pfeiffer, Washington Post Outdoor Editor and author of the book "Tackle Craft"; Chet Fish, Outdoor Life Editor; Jerry Gibbs, Outdoor Life Fishing Editor; and Tom McNally, Chicago Tribune Outdoor Editor; dare to put theirs in writing. They'll be joined by a lawyer and a biologist, Attorney Arthur B. Hooker, and Professor Leonard B. Clark, who'll bring legal and scientific reasoning to the judging panel.

The latter two judges are trustees of the non-profit Gladding International Sport Fishing Museum, South Otselic, N.Y. The museum trustees annually sponsor the contest to emphasize the fun of angling in order to support conservation efforts. The museum is financially supported by the 159-year-old Gladding Corporation, America's oldest fishing tackle manufacturer.

The best storyteller won the round trip to Ireland via Aer Lingus (Irish Airlines) and a week's stay at the Waterville Lake Hotel in Kerry. The winner will be able to fish lakes, rivers, and the ocean in this unique region. He'll also win a Gladding-South Bend fly rod, a Gladding gear fly reel, a Gladding inflatable motorboat, Gladding Aqua-Search fish/depth finder, and an assortment of Glen L. Evans lures and flies.

The runner-up will receive a Gladding-South Bend Aqua-Search portable fish/depth finder. The third, fourth, and fifth prizes are Gladding-South Bend Classic 930 spinning reels. All contestants will receive "Gladding Fishing Tall Tales Club" membership cards.

There's a separate contest with the same prizes for professional writers, who must indicate their status on their entries.

No formal entry blanks. Just send your entry on a plain sheet of paper to Gladding Fishing Tall Tales Contest, P.O. Box 586, Black Bay Annex, Boston, Massachusetts 02117.

The 1974 judges were amazed at the variety of carp and catfish yarns submitted. For example, contestant Rolie Christian, of Rogers, Minn., tells of a carp so big that his father battled it all day before finally pulling it to the bank. Then, Rolie says, there weren't any scales big enough to weigh it. However, it was so huge that he and his dad shingled the barn, chicken coop, outhouse, and half of their home with the fish scales.

John R. Smith, of Cotuit, Mass. informs us of a Montana person who hooked onto a catfish so big that it pulled him all the way down the Mississippi River to New Orleans. "It took all the donations the church took in that month to pay the way home for the person and his fish," John relates, "but the church sold fish chowder and had fried fish dinners for a whole year with great profit."

L.D. Tenenbaum, of Phoenix, Ariz., had a different problem while on a Canadian fishing trip. He claims the trout were so active that they were taking his Walleye lures before the lures could sink far enough for the bigger fish to see them. So he knocked out both ends of a barrel and had a friend hold it down in the water so he could drop his line past the hungry trout. "The idea worked fine," he reports, "except the Walleye I hooked was too big to get through the barrel."

Fort Wayne, Indiana, outdoor writer Karl A. Christ called it a day after fighting a fish for seven hours and finally feeling it begin to tire.

"Suddenly I saw a huge eye on one side of my boat. I drew back and glanced on the other side. I saw another huge eye looking at me from there. So I cut the line and took off," the columnist attests.

I believe that the philosophy and principles, on which this country was founded, are sound and enduring.

I believe that the Bible and Prayer should have been left in our schools, and that the revolutionaries and communist should not be permitted to speak and teach in our Colleges and Universities.

I believe that textbooks containing filth, vulgarity, obscenity, and sex should not be used in our elementary and secondary schools.

I believe, by working together, we can change things.

I want to be your State Senator. The 15th Senatorial District is a large area;

26 UTILITIES ARE HELPING EACH OTHER TO HELP YOU.

From coast to coast, 15 regional reliability networks across the U.S. protect millions of electric customers from critical widespread service interruptions. So interconnected are the electric utilities within each network, and the networks themselves, that problems which might be insurmountable to a single, isolated electric system are solved in seconds by network equipment.

We are part of ECAR—East Central Area Reliability. ECAR is made up of the electric companies serving an 8-state area that have joined together to safeguard the reliability of your electric service. Through ECAR each system coordinates its planning, construction and operation to assure this reliability. And through ECAR interconnections all of us can obtain and transmit power to help solve problems anywhere in the ECAR network. ECAR has as its only objective the most reliable network of electric service that engineers and computers can devise.

We are part of KIP—the Kentucky-Indiana Pool. KIP is made up of electric utilities in the two states who have pooled resources to build larger and more efficient generating and transmission facilities to achieve economies of size. Their interconnected systems and coordinated operations produce and deliver electricity to you for less than any one of them could singly.

ECAR for reliability. KIP for economy. They work.

A DAY AT A TIME—Joseph Mitchell had planned to travel after retirement, but now he lives each day at a time. He has suffered kidney failure due to untreated high blood pressure. Mitchell, 64, is one of eight patients receiving dialysis treatments in Lexington three times each week. Each treatment requires five to six hours. Mitchell might have realized his retirement dream had he had regular blood pressure checks and been under the care of a physician. Special emphasis is being placed on this health problem during the month of May, through the Bureau of Health Services of the Department for Human Resources. Blood pressure checks take only half a minute and are available at local health departments.

High Blood Pressure Can Disable

By Diana Peters
There are many serious, disabling handicaps that interrupt or change the total pattern of a person's life. Adjustments must limit many activities to these abrupt changes are never easy, especially for an active person like Joseph Mitchell, who discovered over four years ago that he had a serious kidney disease.

Mitchell, 64, who just recently moved to Lexington, is one of eight patients who currently receive dialysis treatments three times a week at the dialysis clinic on Leestown Road.

Dialysis patients must spend from five to six hours with the machine, which acts as an artificial kidney. The word "dialysis" means to pass through or filter out accumulated wastes and excess body fluids as the diseased kidneys can no longer perform this function.

"I've learned never to plan more than one day at a time," says Mitchell. During the 25 years he worked as an engineer and fireman in the boiler room of a paint factory in Cleveland, Ohio, Mitchell enjoyed good health. "I know that I had high blood pressure, but it just didn't give me any problems."

Mitchell and his wife will only be able to travel where dialysis treatments are available, but they are learning to accept and live with Mitchell's condition.

While the patients receive treatment at the clinic, they are able to watch television, play cards, assemble puzzles or do any activity which requires using only one hand. Many of them read magazines or newspapers and some of them find a time "to catch up on gossip."

Usually the treatment is not associated with any symptoms, but occasionally nausea and weakness occur. These symptoms don't last long. Patients are checked frequently during treatment and not allowed to leave the clinic until they are able to resume their regular activities.

Although dialysis patients must limit many activities because of the time-consuming treatment, this does not mean that they cannot enjoy sports or other physical activities. One of the clinic patients, in her early 20s, works as a respiratory therapist at the University of Kentucky Medical Center on the days she is not taking treatments. After a full work day, she plays one or two games of tennis.

Mitchell helps his wife with the cooking, drives his own car and mows his own lawn. He also does minor repair jobs, plants a garden and rides a bicycle.

"Hypertension occurs in all races, but for unknown reasons it is more frequent among black people and develops earlier in life," according to Dr. Robert G. Luke, director of the University of Kentucky's Renal Unit. Dr. Luke also says that hypertension is the cause of end-stage kidney disease in many people over 40 years of age.

Joseph Mitchell is one of 23 million Americans who have high blood pressure. He is one of the majority who do nothing about hypertension because there are no obvious symptoms. May is Hypertension Month in Kentucky. The Department for Human Resources (DHR) provides supplemental funding for the treatment of patients with end-stage kidney disease. DHR recommends that all Kentuckians have their blood pressure checked. It is a free service offered at most local health departments.

ANNOUNCING EKU FARM TRAINING PROGRAM

Eastern Kentucky University announces a program in cooperation with the Kentucky Bureau of Manpower Resources, Department of Human Resources, to train and prepare college age persons for summer employment on farms.

The training period commences May 27, 1975 and ends June 6, 1975. Trainees will receive 80 hours of work training - 10 eight-hour days.

Students will be paid $2.10 per hour (not to exceed 80 hours), plus $5.00 a day subsistence (toward board and travel pay at the rate of $1.00 per mile for one trip from the student's home to the University and return.

To apply, students should call 606/611-1031, Dr. William A. Householder, Chairman of the Department of Agriculture and Project Director, and applications will be taken by telephone or may be picked up from Dr. Householder at the Carter Building, Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, Kentucky. Applications will be accepted until May 22, 1975. Those selected will be notified by telephone.

Both men and women who are Kentucky residents, who have graduated from high school, who may still be in college, or recently graduated from college are eligible. Preference will be given to those individuals with no prior farm experience and who are earnestly seeking summer farm employment. Veterans are encouraged to apply.

The program will provide inexperienced persons with skill and concept training related to farm work. This will include farm safety, proper use of common hand tools, tractor driving and hitching, use of farm machinery, daily servicing of farm equipment, handling and feeding of livestock (dairy and beef cattle), crop production, learning to recognize legumes and grasses and studying soil conservation practices. Training will be given in a real outdoor situation on the Eastern Kentucky University farms. Students will live in Eastern's dormitories or they may commute to their homes. Meals will be taken at the University cafeteria.

Trainees will receive wages and subsistence allowance at the end of the training period. They will need to provide their own money for personal expenses during the training period and appropriate work clothing, shoes and gloves. Students who prove to have poor attitudes or to be a poor employment risk may expect to be dismissed.

County Agent's Notes

By: H. Lee Durban

MANAGING ALFALFA AND RED CLOVER FOR HAY OR SILAGE

You should be concerned about 3 things as you decide how to manage your alfalfa and red clover hay fields: (1) quantity of hay harvested - you probably want all you can get; (2) quality of hay harvested - don't plant to make poor quality hay. You will get enough of that kind because of factors such as weather which you can't control; and (3) stand persistence - this sometimes requires a compromise between quantity and quality. If you cut often enough to get the highest quality possible, you will reduce yields and/or kill the alfalfa or clover.

Three questions need to be answered when deciding on the proper cutting schedule for alfalfa and red clover: (1) when should the first be made? (2) when should the last cut be made? and (3) how many cuttings should be made in-between?

The management systems suggested here are designed to get highest quality consistent with reasonable yields and stand life. No cutting management will work unless soil fertility and insect control are adequate. You don't need and should not use nitrogen fertilizer on well nodulated legumes. But you must supply the needed lime, phosphate, and potassium. A soil test is the best guide as to how much is needed.

ALFALFA

Cutting management for alfalfa depends on whether it was seeded this spring, last fall (or late summer), or a year or more ago. In all cases alfalfa should be cut as close to the ground as the mower permits. This will damage weeds and grasses more than the alfalfa.

CUTTING ALFALFA SEED-ED THIS SPRING

Spring seedings may be harvested during late June or early July depending on the time of seeding and spring growing conditions. The plants normally need at least 65-80 days between germination and the first cutting. Generally the first cutting can be made about July 4. The second harvest can be made at near Labor Day, or 30 days after the first. After about the first of November, growth can be grazed off or cut again.

CUTTING ALFALFA SEED-ED LAST FALL OR LATE SUMMER

Alfalfa seeded last August or September should not have been cut until after freezes occurred in early winter. It could have been cut or grazed after about November 1 last year. This year these plants need a management system which will permit them to become well-established. The first cutting should be about June 1, the second about July 15 and the third about September 1. Again, a harvesting or grazing can be made after "freeze-down", usually about November 1.

CUTTING ESTABLISHED ALFALFA STANDS THAT ARE 1-YEAR OLD OR OLDER

Under a rigid cutting schedule, most alfalfa varieties that are adapted to Kentucky conditions may be cut 4 times during the growing season plus a "freeze-down" harvest. Under this system the first cutting may be made at early bloom and the 3 succeeding cuts at about 5 week intervals. The "freeze-down" harvest can usually be made about November 1.

RED CLOVER

Red clover is a short-lived perennial crop. Production during the second year is generally higher than during either the first or third years. Growth and effects of cutting on the plants are much more related to the weather than they are with the deeper-rooted alfalfa. Thus a cutting schedule cannot be set as definitely as with alfalfa. However, generally, farmers do not utilize red clover as intensively as they should for maximum yields of high-quality feed.

It seems critical that the last cutting of red clover be made not later than September 15 at Lexington, probably about September 5-10 in Northern and Eastern Kentucky and September 20-25 in the Western and Southern parts of the state. The plants need about 45 days to store carbohydrates before a hard freeze occurs. After "freeze-down", growth can be removed. Leaving very heavy growth on a field during fall and winter can kill an entire stand.

If summer weather is hot and dry, clover growth may almost stop and sometimes very short plants will start to bloom. Grazing may be desirable in this case as cutting these short plants for hay may be impractical and you may need pasture during this weather anyway. If the summer rainfall is good, you may cut about every 35-42 days or each time plants reach about 1/10 bloom. In all cases it is important to give the plants about 45 days between the last cutting and "freeze-down" (which usually occurs near the first of November).

CUTTING RED CLOVER SEED-ED THIS SPRING

Red clover fields seeded in late winter or early spring by the renovation method should be grazed to control grass growth until animals begin to bite off red clover seedlings. Once animals are eating the clover plants, they should be removed from the field in order to permit the clover to become established.

James Claxton, director, Division of Equipment, Kentucky Bureau of Highways looks over inventory of worn tires marked for retreading under new state program. Claxton says as much as $120,000 in savings will be realized annually.

The first cutting should be taken when clover plants are at about 1/10 bloom. This should occur about June 1-15, depending on when seedings was done and the location of your farm. You should try to get two more cuttings, with the last one coming off around the September dates previously mentioned.

If red clover is seeded in small grain, it is best to remove the small grain straw before it starts to smother out the clover. Clover can be cut each time it reaches about 1/10 bloom. Time the cuttings, in-so far as possible, to provide 35-42 days between cuts and to get the last off by September 5-25 depending on where you live in the state.

CUTTING RED CLOVER THAT IS ONE YEAR OLD OR OLDER

Red clover stands that are one year old or older should be cut four times at 35-42 day intervals between early May and September. A fifth harvest (or grazing) can be made after "freeze-down" about November 1.
