Braden Steel Corporation celebrated their first year in the community Sunday with an Open House and Luncheon for employees and their families and guests from the area.

Mr. Bob Lee, Plant manager, said Tuesday that the outlook for Braden Steel in this area was good with future increases in production of the plant depending on a pick-up of the economy.

Mr. Lee also said that during Braden's first year in the community, approximately $250,000 was put into the economy through the company's payroll and, he also said, "the employees have done a fantastic job."

The plant went into production in January of 1975 with 29 employees. They presently have 50 employees manufacturing silencer systems for peak power gas turbines and inlet and exhaust ducting.

During the luncheon Sunday, a film was shown detailing the history of Braden Steel which began in 1923 in Oklahoma.

The Rockcastle Rockets traveled to Mercer County last Friday night for their final game of the season and held Mercer County to a 6-6 tie the first half. However, the Rockets defense was unable to contain the strong Mercer team the second half and went down to defeat 50-4. The Rockets score, coming early in the game, was on a 65-yard romp by sophomore David Owens. In the above photo, David Hunt, No. 00, who has done such an excellent job for the Rockets at center this year, is shown bringing down the ball carrier for Mercer County.

County Agent's Notes

BY: H. LEE DURHAM

THE RUSSIAN GRAIN DEAL AND U.S. FOOD PRICES
Rumor has it that the 1975 Russian grain deal will cause U.S. domestic food prices to rise.

According to Larry Jones, Agricultural Economist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture: "Grain exports do cause U.S. Food prices to rise, but the entire reason for food price increases cannot be blamed on grain exports."

TO THE CITIZENS OF ROCKCASTLE COUNTY

Thank all of you for your good support and vote in the General Election on November 4th, 1975 for re-electing me as Circuit Court Clerk. As always, we will continue to give you good, friendly service.

And, we further thank each and everyone of you for the good support given our Republican ticket, we do appreciate this vote.

AS ALWAYS YOUR FRIEND
MONEY ED CUMMINS

There are many factors, both domestic and international, influencing the rise in our food costs. Currently in the United States, a 45 cent one-pound loaf of white bread has only 5 cents worth of wheat in it. Of the remaining 30 cents, 21 cents goes for labor, transportation and packaging. It follows that increases in labor, transportation and packaging will influence the rise in cost of a loaf of bread far more than similar increases in the price of wheat, Jones points out.

International economic conditions profoundly affect U.S. food prices, he adds. As a consequence, such events as reductions in the anchovy catch off the coast of Peru, increasing population, drought in the midwest, an early frost, and the oil embargo all have an effect on how much we pay for food.

Grain sales to Russia, then, will contribute a very small amount to U.S. food price hikes, he continues. Against this influence must be weighed the necessity of our participation in export markets to maintain our Nation's balance of payments. "The balance of payments problem is as simple as this," Jones says. "If we are to continue to import goods, we must be able to pay for those goods with dollars earned from our own exports, and food exports are essential in maintaining a positive trade balance."

COMMENTS ON THE OCTOBER 1, U.S. CROP REPORT

CORN - Production is forecast at a record 5,737 million bushels as of October 1, up 1 per cent (50 million bushels) from September 1, and 23 per cent above 1975.

FEED GRAINS - Production of corn, sorghum, oats, and barley combines is forecast at 202 million short tons, 23 per cent above last year.

SOYBEANS - Production at 1,474 million bushels is up 2 per cent (31 million bushels) from a month earlier and 19 per cent above last year.

ALL WHEAT - Production is a record 2,138 million bushels, 19 per cent more than last year's crop.

EDA's October crop report confirmed earlier indications that corn and soybean yields are exceeding previous expectations. Therefore, large amounts of both grains will be available for domestic use and exports in the year ahead. Possible changes in the administration grain sale policy to the Soviet Union will be much more important market influence in the next few weeks. Many production and market observers feel current corn and soybean estimates could be somewhat conservative.

GOLD PLATED WITH PLATINUM SEEDS?

What is a farm? You may think your summer shack in the hills where you grow six tomato plants is a farm. Well, it depends. The U.S. Department of Agriculture is now defining a farm like so: "Any establishment from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products is sold or would normally be sold during a year. This differs from the old classification where a farm was anyplace under ten acres with annual sales of $250 or more of agricultural goods, or any place often or more acres selling fifty dollars or more. There are also classes of farms. A primary farm is any farm where the operator spends at least half of his worktime on the farm... or any farm operated by a corporation or multi-established firm which receives at least one-half of its gross business income from farming. A part-time farm is one where the operator spends less than half of his work time on the farm. A business-associated farm is a farm operated by a corporation or multi-established company that receives less than one-half of its gross business income from farming. An abnormal farm refers to those farms operated by institutions such as hospitals or schools, or by Indian reservations or as experimental or research farms. Oh - your six tomato plants may make you qualify as a farmer if the produce at least one thousand dollars' worth of tomatoes. That might make yours an "abnormal farm."

OUR FLAG

Historical Highlights
I PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE
"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

This wording of the pledge varies slightly from the original, which was drawn up in 1892 in the office of "The Youth's Companion" in Boston. It was first used in the public schools in celebration of Columbus Day, October 12, 1892.

The pledge, according to the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve, received official recognition by Congress in an Act of June 22, 1942. The phrase "under God" was added to the pledge by a Congressional Act of June 14, 1954. At that time, President Eisenhower said that "in this way we are reaffirming the transcendence of religious faith in America's heritage and future; in this way we shall constantly strengthen those spiritual weapons which forever will be our country's most powerful resource in peace and war."

The consumer may request distribution of this report or notice of the deletion of an incorrect item to any person that has received employment reports within the past two years and all others who have received a credit report in the last six months.

The Fair Credit Reporting Act further states that the consumer cannot be charged for a review of his credit file if he has been denied credit within the last 30 days because of the credit bureau report or has received notice from a collection agency affiliated with the credit bureau. Over, if you're sorry summer's over, some clever decorating hints can help keep a summer-like atmosphere in your life all winter long, no matter where you live.

Armstrong interior designers put their heads together to dig up some special outdoor feelings for an "indoor world."

Forgotten for a while, but back on the indoor-fashion scene now is wicker - new and hand-made - popular in either natural or painted form.

Bamboo shades, wood strips that create lacia trellis partitions, and plants, all add light, airy touches to a room.

Colors with summer in mind are available in moderately-priced, luxurious new carpet offerings: "Sea Mist Green" and "Sunny Yellow" are found in Natural Touch - a new textured plush. A sculptured shag called Juno comes in "Seashell White" that brings back memories of sandy shores. Two new low profile shags (Magellan and Majority) have "Cantaloupe" and "Marigold" to their summer-color credits. Use your imagination in accessories. Shells you picked up on the beach in July wildflowers you gathered in August and carefully dried... smooth-textured pebbles from that mountain stream... are marvelous decorating items.

Don't forget the greenery-on table-tops... bookshelves... hanging from ceiling beams... on the floor. Wherever used, plants give any room a breath of spring-the "air" of summer. A room is a sensitive thing if you're an outdoors lover, I'll show in your selection of home furnishings as you bring the outdoors into your "indoor world." Make it a "fun" winter project!

THANK YOU

We would like to take this opportunity to express our thanks to everyone for their help during the recent campaign on behalf of Bob Gable and the entire Republican ticket.

A special thanks to each one who worked so diligently and to each voter who expressed their views by casting a ballot.

BOARD MEETING HELD

The Rockcastle County Board of Education met Monday night for their regular monthly meeting and the first item of business on the agenda was to consider approval of the Facilities Survey report.

This report was first made to the Board some time ago and the priorities for capital outlay expenditure listed in the original report was rejected by the Board. The survey went back to Frankfort with the Board's recommendations and was returned with the first priority listed as being the building of a middle school in the Mt. Vernon area to house the 6, 7 and 8th grades from Mt. Vernon Elementary. This survey seemed to meet with the Board's approval but it was felt that since Board member Kenneth Adams was unable to be at the Monday night meeting, because of the illness of his wife, that it would be better to delay action on approving the survey until all board members could be present.

In other action, the board approved the following substitute teachers, subject to certification: James Mullins.

Guest Speaker Told For Upcoming Banquet

Ms. Jackie Winkler, State Outreach Coordinator of the Food Stamp Program from Frankfort has been invited as the guest speaker for the annual Farmers-Businessmen's Banquet to be held at the Rockcastle County High School November 14th.

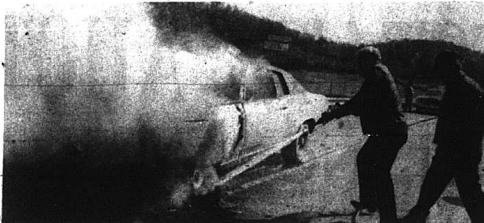

This year's banquet will be the 18th year the county businessmen and farmers have joined together as one group, showing mutual cooperation and respect of each group.

The banquet is sponsored this year by the businessmen who buy tickets for themselves and the farmers (the purchase of tickets is alternate each year). The Mt. Vernon Lions Club is spearheading the promotion and sale of the tickets and arranging for the program.

Edd Hunt, president of the Mt. Vernon Lions Club, states that the program is not complete as of this date but other speakers selected include Bobby Proctor of Brodhead who welcomes the farmers, representing the businessmen and Kenneth Stewart of Wildie, who will respond to the welcome on behalf of the farmers.

Milton Kirby, an employee of Preston Collins, is shown painting the outside of the building at Mt. Vernon Elementary School which was heavily damaged by fire late in September. Mr. Collins was the builder for the repair project, the cost of which was covered by insurance. Work has been going on at the site about two weeks and Mr. Collins said Tuesday that he expected it to take approximately another six weeks to finish.

Fire Chief John Cox is shown extinguishing a blazing auto on Interstate 75 last Thursday. According to occupants of the car, which was borrowed, it caught fire while they were traveling north on the interstate. The blaze was extinguished with the help of Eddie Moore, far right, who brought his water truck to the scene.

2,983 VOTERS CAST BALLOT IN ELECTION

Voter Turn-Out Light In County; Gable Wins Here but Loses Election

Voter turn-out in Rockcastle County for Tuesday's General Election was light as expected with only 2,983 Republicans and Democrats going to the polls out of a total voter registration of 6,037.

As expected, Republican gubernatorial candidate Bob Gable carried the county but not as big a Republican candidate normally carry it - with only a 625 vote margin over his opponent incumbent Governor Julian Carroll (Dem.). And, Gable did not do as well as had been hoped for in Jefferson County where it looks as though Carroll will carry the Democrats will carry the county for the first time in twenty years.

The entire Democratic ticket was swept into office and the two Constitutional Amendments also passed across the state.

Locally, Rep. Harold DeMarcus outpolled his Democratic challenger, Rep. Bill Orlando, 179 to 81 and Rep. John Martin, Route 2, Mt. Vernon, choice, although by a much narrower margin.

Attorney Joe Lambert, a native and resident of Mt. Vernon, was on the state Republican ticket as candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals and though Mr. Lambert ran well in his home county - obtaining a vote margin of 2,000 over his opponent Martha Layne Collins. But, Mrs. Collins won the election state-wide.

There were several unopposed offices up for election in the county. Circuit Court Clerk Money Ed Cummins received 1,648 votes and another six-year term; Fred Lee Hessel and Dennis Ray Chantry were both unopposed for the offices of Constable Phillip Winkler, Somerset received 256 Democratic and 108 Republican votes in his election to Circuit Judge; State Senator John Rogers was unopposed and polled 1,840 votes and Commonwealth Attorney Harold Rogers, also unopposed, got 1,666 votes.

Three City Council races were decided without opposition and the candidates polled votes as follows: Livingston - Bertie Rice, 30; Calvin Webb, 32; Clyde Fordyce, 32; Curtis McFarquar, 28 and Guy Bullock, 34. Brodhead - Bobby Proctor, 55;

Lawson Whitt, 52; David Cash, 50 and Johnny Wilcox, 52. Mt. Vernon Bob Jasper, 115; Conrad Parrett, 112; Oscar Bullock, 118; Dennis Halcomb, 100; Chester

Hellard, 111 and Virgil Alcorn, 109.

The Constitutional amendments received votes as follows: No. 1 - Yes, 415, No. 488, No. 2 - Yes, 421 and No. 423.

FRANKFORT WATCHLINE

As this column is being written, it is three days before the election. As it is being read, it is after the election.

Without presuming to second-guess the voters, there is every sign of a victory for Gov. Julian Carroll, and presuming that, herein find some prediction post-mortem.

Had it not been for busing in Louisville-Jefferson County, Republican Robert Gable would have been left virtually without issues. That fact was strongly evident before the first school buses rolled this year in Kentucky's largest metro area.

The only other specific issue Gable had a handle on was the Red River Dam and Carroll effectively killed that when he decided to oppose it, matching Gable's stand on the issue.

There is some question about the impact of the Red River Dam on voters at any rate. In last year's Senate campaign, both Wendell Ford and Marlow Cook said they didn't think it was of great voter interest beyond the immediate area of the proposed dam and they stood on opposite sides of the issue.

before the election, his campaign workers were hoping to hold the Gable victory margin in Jefferson County to 10,000 or so.

In the final days, though, there was a bit more optimism in the Carroll camp as Democratic party regulars went to work with a vengeance to offset Gable gains.

Spurred on by hopes of a major victory in Jefferson County, Gable went into what was essentially a two-district campaign.

As every Republican candidate for state office is well aware, GOP victories almost always result, in part, from a big Republican margin in the Fifth Congressional District, in Southeast Kentucky.

When Louis Nunn won in 1967, he racked up a 40,000 vote plurality in the Fifth, while he won statewide, including the Fifth, by only 34,000.

If Gable could have matched that performance in the Fifth, and come out of Jefferson County with his hoped for 30,000.

But that left Carroll with a three district campaign. He needed to cut the Gable margin in Jefferson County, perhaps even turn it around. He needed to keep the Gable margin in the Fifth down to a manageable size. He needed to get out the vote in far western Kentucky.

Their success is now a matter of history as this column is being read.

AFTER THE SQUIRREL

Squirrel is one of the finest and most loved of all wild game meats. The rosy-pink to red flesh of young squirrel is tender and has a pleasing flavor. The flesh of older animals is darker red in color and only these require marinating or long cooking for tenderness.

If handled properly after shooting, squirrel meat will have almost no "gamey" flavor. This is the off-flavor that develops quickly in animals that are not quickly dressed, skinned and cooled. It is a good idea to carry a sharp jackknife or "skinning knife and clean cloths and paper towels for immediate cleaning. An insulated cooler and ice or ice packs are handy for immediate cooling.

Use these steps to field dress the squirrel:

1. Bleed the animal immediately.
 2. Remove the entrails and wipe the body cavity with a clean cloth, paper towels, or dry grass.
 3. Let the body heat dissipate by allowing air to circulate in the cavity. Don't stack or put in the pockets of a hunting jacket.
- When you get home, skin and finish dressing the squirrel, removing any shot-damaged parts. A short soaking in a strong salt solution helps remove excessive bloodiness around shot, but is recommended only for this purpose. Store dressed squirrel in the refrigerator (38-40 degrees) until ready to cook or freeze the meat right away.

FREEZING SQUIRREL

heavy duty foil plastic freezer bags, or waxed freezer paper. Freeze immediately and store no longer than four to six months. Always thaw by placing the package in the refrigerator for 12 to 18 hours.

COOKING SQUIRREL

Young, tender squirrels can be prepared like young tender chicken. Larger and older squirrels should be braised, stewed or roasted in a covered pan, since moist heat cooking methods help to tenderize. Ope

Social and Women's News

Mrs. and Mrs. Ambrose Brockman of Livingston will celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary Friday, November 7th. They were married in Rockcastle County November 7, 1925 and have three daughters, Mrs. Geneva Jones and Mrs. Viola Moore, both of Richmond, Indiana and Mrs. Bernice Allen of Conway, three grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

DAR MEETING HELD OCTOBER 25

The DAR met October 25 at the Rockcastle Library recreation room. The ritual was led by regent with Miss Janie Ramsey giving the devotional. After a short business session, Mrs. Mary Walker of Berea introduced the speaker, Mrs. D.C. Churchill of Berea. She mentioned that Mrs. Churchill attended Vassar University, later going to India where she met Mr. Churchill. They came to Berea College to teach, then started Churchill Weavers which has given work to many Rockcastle and Madison people. Mrs. Churchill attended the 84th Continental Congress held at Constitution Hall in Washington, D.C. No woman on T.V. was allowed in the meetings. There were 14 resolutions adopted. Members were thrilled on the first day as the U.S. Marines Band played "Stars and Stripes Forever." The rendition was very impressive, making all proud of our flag. Bishop Sheen said our American dream is becoming a night mare and we are encircled by enemies. The time is serious and we need to hold on to our heritage which belongs to all of us. Some of the high points brought out by other speakers were: Teach India and other poor countries to feed themselves and protect themselves. We must be a part of those who gave lives and fortunes. The U.N. is an ineffectual giant and times like these demand strong hands. We need to be prepared always since being prepared is the best way to keep peace. We are strong enough today but what about tomorrow? We need to have self-discipline, reaffirm our rights and responsibilities. We must come back to God whom we have forgotten. The D.A.R. are proud to be a part of the bi-centennial observances.

ROBERT FIELDS SPEAKS AT WOMAN'S CLUB

Tuesday evening, October 28, the Woman's Club met at the Mt. Vernon Christian Church. The President, Mrs. Carla Hale opened the meeting with Club song and pledge to our flag. The Secretary and treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Alwanda Fain. Mrs. Ethel Griffin had the devotion.

Mrs. Hazel Owens, Chairman of International Affairs Committee, introduced the special speaker, Bobby Fields, former missionary to Israel, who spoke on "Our Relations to Israel." Starting with Israel's history from 135 A.B., Mr. Fields brought it up to the present time. Referring to his map of Israel, he pointed out every minute detail of the progress and downfall of Israel as a Nation. No commentator could have made Israel's history more clear and interesting.

This was guests' night and the guests present were: Mrs. Ruth Johnson, Mrs. Pauline Kincaid, Mrs. Judy Lawless; and the new members, Mrs. Emily Crawford, Mrs. Ora Hale and Mrs. Edna Dawson.

CONSUMER COMMENT

By Ed W. Hancock

Almost all consumers have a credit report on file at one or more credit bureaus. This

One example of how this (Cont. to 12)

Some things you can't do for Others

You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong. You cannot help the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer. You cannot further the brotherhood of man by encouraging class hatred. You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich. You cannot build character and courage to taking away man's initiative and independence. You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves.

Greyhound Lines Features Service for The Handicapped

A special "Helping Hand" service to assist the handicapped in traveling by bus has been announced by Greyhound Lines, Inc., the world's largest bus line.

Key feature of the "Helping Hand" service is a special fare which allows a companion to travel free to assist any handicapped person who needs help in boarding, exiting and traveling on a bus.

James L. Kerrigan, President of Greyhound Lines, said that the special fare will apply to all Greyhound regular rates and special fares such as the unlimited travel Ameritrip. "Handicapped persons frequently have been unable to travel because of the added cost of being with a companion who could minister to their needs," Kerrigan said. "Our new program will make transportation costs no more for a handicapped person than for anyone else and still provide for their special requirement."

To be eligible for the special fare which goes into effect at midnight Sunday October 19, a handicapped person will need a statement from a doctor stating that he or she needs a companion to assist in boarding, exiting and traveling by bus.

The "Helping Hand" service is only a part of an ongoing comprehensive program for the handicapped," Kerrigan said. "In several of our new terminals and those planned for construction or remodeling, we are putting in facilities such as wider doors, ramps, handrails and special restroom features."

"We are studying other programs and services designed to make travel easier for the handicapped."

Both the handicapped person and the companion will travel on a single ticket. The pair must travel together for the complete trip and the companion must be capable of assisting the disabled person in boarding and alighting during the trip.

"Nonmotorized wheelchairs and other aids will be carried as baggage without additional charge," according to Kerrigan. "Greyhound recognizes its responsibilities to all the citizens of this country. Our 100,000 miles of routes throughout the country and Canada represent the best way to see this country up close. This is especially important during the upcoming Bicentennial and Greyhound wants to do its part to make sure no one is deprived of the opportunity to see this great country because of a handicap," Kerrigan said.

"We believe this service is so important that we are asking all other bus companies to join with us in this program," Kerrigan said. "We are also contacting organizations representing the interests of handicapped persons to obtain their support and guidance," he concluded.

JOHN LAIR

Among the first of the county's natural resources to be squandered were the valuable stands of virgin timber. Giant yellow poplars rooted in the rich loam of the covers and valleys grew to tremendous height in reaching for the sunshine above the heads of their neighbors and massive whiteoaks grew on the upland ledges, while mellow-grained chestnut trees flourished along the sandy ridges. Although all varieties of trees common to the area were found here, these three were the most valuable.

Even before it was demonstrated that the timber crop had a cash value, early settlers were converting it to their everyday use with prodigious unconcern. Huge yellow poplars, or tulip trees, were cut down and hollowed out to make "salt logs" for the smokehouse, canoes, watering and feed troughs for stock and even beds for the children. When an early settler needed rails to fence his clearings, his first choice was chestnut. If it was not readily available, he carefully chose whiteoak trees with the straightest grain and after one or two butt cuts had been split into rails, the remainder of the tree was allowed to rot in the woods.

Surrounded by a seemingly endless forest of trees, the pioneer could not conceive of a time when they would not be plentiful. If he gave any thought at all to diminishing natural resources, he found justification for his wastefulness in an old adage he had heard my father quote - "Let him that lives longest carry his wood and water the furthest." I well remember when Burgess and Wade Hysinger and myself spent most of one Sunday in chopping down a giant Poplar to get a squirrel that had taken refuge in a hole near the top of it. We were around twelve years of age and by no means expert axmen, which accounts for the length of time we spent on the job - but there can be no explanation for why we cut such a valuable tree in the first place for so trivial a prize.

I remember having seen in my youth, acres of big trees felled and cut into lengths and rolled together in big log heaps and burned, nearly to clear the ground for crops. If an early settler wanted to build so much as a chicken house or a cow shed, he would cut the finest tree on his farm and have it sawed into lumber for the purpose. It took a choice whiteoak tree indeed to make roof boards to satisfy a farmer who took pride in his outbuildings and I recall that so long as my grandfather Lair lived, he never used anything except white walnut in making his farm gates.

But it was when commercialism came in that Rockcastle County's forests really began to disappear. Small sawmills sprang up in all sections of the county to produce lumber for the local trade while special mills for sawing out wagon and buggy felloes and bucking staves from the biggest and straightest whiteoaks soon made their appearance. Big dimension timbers too big to be handled by local sawmills were hewed out and shipped to distant cities to be used in big buildings, while the building trade in general called for a constant supply of first class lumber after the railroads reached the county to make a wider market available.

The first sawmill of record in Rockcastle County was brought in by Mordecai (Mudkin) Mullins and operated by him and his four sons from 1865 to 1820. It was located about three quarters of a mile up Rockcastle River above the mouth of Parker's Creek, where Daniel Boone and party crossed the Rockcastle on their way to Boonesboro. This mill used the sash type saw and was powered by an undershot or "whirlpool" waterwheel. The second water-powered sawmill in the county was built and operated by James Henry and Gardner Mullins between 1865 and 1875. It was also equipped with burrs for grinding corn and wheat. This mill was located on Roundstone Creek, near Mullins Station. In later years, another water-powered combination saw and grist mill was located further up Roundstone at what was known as Langford Station. It was in operation during my youth and the old log and stone dam was not destroyed until in fairly recent years.

The most important sawmill in the county was the Dillon sawmill and planing mill at Livingston, Kentucky. It, too, was located on Rockcastle River but was operated by steam and the big dam across the river was for the purpose of forming a big catch basin, as well as for backing up the water into the river's Jackson County tributaries so that logs could be floated down to the mill from a greater distance. In the early days, hundreds of a great number of logs were caught in booms along the rivers to be released and floated down to the mill dam, where they were caught up and fed into the big band saws. Poplar logs as much as fifteen feet in diameter would often be cut into narrow weatherboarding for the building trade. This dam, across Rockcastle River, was built entirely without the use of machinery and was of such sturdy construction that it withstood floods and tides for years after the mill was dismantled and abandoned. When it was destroyed and destroyed to allow the river to return to its normal flow.

Timber was one of a new country's first resources to be put to practical use. With it, the Pioneer, built and heated his home, made many of his tools and implements, fenced his fields and built his barn and outbuildings, while the bark from some of these trees tanned his leather, made his baskets and bottomed his chairs, later becoming - next to skins and furs - his first cash crop.

The forest lands of Rockcastle County, as elsewhere in America, served a double purpose. Once cleared, they furnished their owner a valuable farm home while their by-products supported him during the process.

In my boyhood, I witnessed some of the final stages of the timber era in this section. I remember seeing tall, swarthy mountaineers, standing erect on big poplar logs as they came bucking out of Indian Creek into the yellow tide of Rockcastle River, balancing with long peavy pole to preserve their precarious balance. I remember seeing old man John Walton, flitting from log to log, like a yajbird from limb to limb, when one mistep would have been his finish because he couldn't swim a lick. When reminded of what his fate would be if he fell in the water under such conditions, he would always reply that he wasn't planning on falling in. So far as I know, he never did.

When my father bought our homelace on Little Renfro Creek, it took a couple of years to cut the timber on it. He brought in a sawmilling outfit and built shacks of the raw lumber for the mill men and loggers to live in. The men all took their noon meal in a cookshack provided over by one of the sawyers, whose wife did the cooking. His pet name for her was "Daddies." As I recall, she was not much of a cook and her menu was limited, dumplings being a great favorite with her after they had long ceased to be with her boarders. When they came in to eat one day, her husband, on a quick survey of the kitchen, found that dumplings were once again a featured item of the meal. Hoping to influence the hungry boarders with feigned enthusiasm, he went outside where they were washing up at the wash bench, joyfully chanting "Daddies' got dough ballies, Daddies' got dough ballies." One unhappy diner, in scornful disapproval, exclaimed "Daddies' got dough ballies!" and the fight was on. But the time everybody took sides and got into the fray, Daddies' dough ballies had probably gotten cold and reverted to their original state. I didn't see but at the first sign of conflict put for home at my best gait.

I recall the day that one of the loggers in the woods on our place cut his arm when two logs rolling together and suffered a deep bursting laceration from inside the elbow to near the wrist. Being aware of the medical effect of raw tobacco juice, his friends quickly gathered around him and deposited their cuds of chewing tobacco in the trench and wrapped the forearm tight in a couple of red bandanna handkerchiefs. He was then mounted on a mule and started on the three-mile trip to the doctor's office. When he came to the home of a good friend, the pain had grown so intense that he slighted for a stiff drink of whiskey to help alleviate it. His friend, anxious to show his sympathetic spirit, took him for a drink with him until both passed out. Three days later, he was sober enough to continue on to the doctor's office for treatment. Strange to say; the wound healed clean as a hound's tooth but left a broad white scar along his arm.

As further proof of the dangers of logging in those days, I remember that a wagonner by the name of Poynter (brother to Uncle Billy and Uncle Dave Poynter) was driving a four-horse hitch around the hillside back of our house when the loaded wagon turned over, rolling with him and a tangle of horses and harness, down a steep hillside. Fatally injured, he was carried to our house, where he soon died. My sister and I always claimed that the roem in which he died was haunted, but it was probably just the fact that the house grew a tree where his limbs would scrub against the weatherboarding in a light breeze, it was no trouble at all to persuade little visiting friends of the truth of our claims.

The McClain Family

Cum. Homecoming Is November 14th

The Cumberland College Alumni Association will present a big, back-to-back show Friday, November 14, to kick off the 1975 Homecoming festivities. The McClain Family, a nationally famous bluegrass and folk group, will perform from 6 until eight o'clock and they will be followed immediately by Oliver, who recorded "Jean" and "Good Morning Starshine," along with numerous other chart-breaking songs.

Oliver, who is described as one of the few singer-composers-guitarists to ever start out, is a 29 year old North Carolinian who sports an agile tenor voice and an unusual respect and sensitivity for lyrics.

The McClain Family, who were recently spotlighted on the "Today Show" and numerous other television productions, are representative of the great change that has taken place during recent years in the country music industry. They perform a bluegrass-folk music, and most of their work is both original and enjoyable to a wide and varied audience.

The McClains have performed their unusual style of music for the past seven years, and have achieved no small stature in the music world. A group which is unaccustomed lately to receiving bottom billing anywhere, the McClain Family Band is made up of father, Raymond; and children Ruth, age 17; Alice, 19 and 21-year-old Raymond W., who plays both the banjo and the fiddle with expertise. This band nowadays heads second only to entertainment giants such as Oliver.

BROWNOUT: WE HOPE YOUR KIDS NEVER FIND OUT WHAT IT MEANS.

When the demand for electricity is so great the electric company can't meet it, a "brownout" occurs. Line voltage drops; lights dim; appliances don't work properly; motors overheat, work slows down or stops.

Right now this isn't a problem for our customers. We have enough generating capacity to supply your home and job, even during times when everyone uses a lot of electricity. And we want to keep it that way. That's why we must build new generating plants today. To meet increasing electrical demands. To avoid brownouts five or ten years from now.

All of this takes money.

And we have to borrow that money at today's high interest rates. Our construction and operating costs are up like everyone else's. We have to pay more for the fuel we need to make electricity. And we have to prepare for the future. The result is an electric bill that's higher than most people are used to. But for a lot of costly reasons. Reasons we don't like anymore than you do.

Our job is to supply you with the electricity you need... now and ten years from now.
