

Sue Bennett College Festival March 31-April 3

The third Sue Bennett Folk Festival plans have been completed and will again be a part of the Kentucky Bicentennial celebrations. The festival chairman Mrs. Don Chesnut of 110 Skyline Drive, London, Ky.

The major activity of the third festival will be an arts and crafts show together with a variety of entertainment. The dates for the event are Wednesday, March 31 through Saturday, April 3.

Included as part of special features will be singer-composer Billy Edd Wheeler, the Roadside Theatre from Appaloosa, musician John McCuehon from Clinch Valley College and Mike Mullins of the oral history faculty from Alice Lloyd College at Pippa Passes.

All artists and craftsmen interested in exhibiting and demonstrating during the festival should contact Mrs.

Chestnut. Some rooms for women will be available in the girls' dormitory on a first come, first served basis.

Exhibitors are invited to eat lunch and dinner in the Sue Bennett College dining room as guests of the college.

Artists and artisans might want to do some exploring on their own while in the area, as visitors might want to do family research this bicentennial year.

Daniel Davidson, who was born in 1752, served in the Revolutionary War and moved to Clay County and was a figure in Laurel County, as was Phillip Wilson, born about 1763 and who served in the war from North Carolina.

Mrs. G. W. McMichael of Oklahoma City, Okla. researched history of the Taylors of Laurel County. Among marriages she found these: Feb. 11, 1853, Catherine Taylor, 22, and Felix Griffen, 22, July 28, 1854, Lucy Taylor, 20, and William Minks, 19; Oct. 29, 1855, Speed Taylor, 19 and Eleanor Yaden, 21; July 16, 1857, William Taylor, 22, and Talletha Wooten; Dec. 6, 1859, Rhoda Taylor, 15, and Garden Tucker, 20; April 18, 1861, Manda Taylor, 17, and J. W. Goff, 20.

On June 15, 1852, Martha Taylor, 34, died of dropsy. Martha was born in York District, S. C., daughter of John and Jean Bell of Knox County.

In June 1856, a taxpayers' list for Laurel County included these in the Taylor family: Thoda Taylor, 2 horses, $125.00; mule, $50; 6 cows, $65; 100 bushels corn, and 20 bushels of wheat.

William Taylor had 38 acres on Robinson Creek, $50; 1 cow, 2 dogs, 100 bushels corn and 15 bushels wheat. Another William Taylor (Sr.) had 5 cows and 5 children, 3 tons hay, 300 bushels corn and 10 bushels wheat.

There are parks to visit in the London area, and spring will be a time to enjoy early blooming flowers and scenery.

But first, plan to take in the festival. Some outstanding artists have been invited and will paint on the spot. Craftsmen will also make articles so everyone can see how it is done.

"We will try to provide space for all exhibitors, and students and those of us working with the festival will help unload," said the chairman, Mrs. Chesnut added. "There is no charge to exhibit or to the public for admission. We want everyone to attend and have a good time."

APRIL has been proclaimed "Alcohol Information Month" and for the sixth consecutive year, the month is being honored by the Cumberland River Comprehensive Care Center. County Judge Hubert Thacker, center, is shown signing the proclamation while County Attorney James W. Lambert, left, and David Purcell, staff member, look on.

APRIL IS "ALCOHOL INFORMATION MONTH"

For the sixth consecutive year the Cumberland River Comprehensive Care Center is sponsoring April as "Alcohol Information Month" for Southeastern Kentucky.

This year special emphasis is being placed on information about female alcoholism. The female alcoholic faces many problems specifically related to their femininity. The female alcoholic has often been referred to as the "hidden drinker" because of their fear of exposure to social intimations. However, more and more women are seeking the services that are available to them.

Since the alcoholism program of the Comprehensive Care Center has opened up services to the female alcoholic, we have seen the utilization of services steadily grow to the point where we see many special needs such as a halfway house for women, that have come to light.

In these times when we talk of women's equality and the rights of women, the need exists for us to come to the aid of those who suffer and to help them out of the shadows.

For more information, contact your Comprehensive Care Center.

patient care is expected to do the best job possible, with the best possible facilities, and with up-to-date knowledge.

According to Mr. Hoskins, Rockcastle County Hospital sought accreditation by application to the Joint

And they refer to services for meeting patients' needs, such as nursing, dietetic, pharmaceutical, laboratory, radiology, emergency, and social services.

The standards also require a qualified medical staff, which is responsible for the care given to patients, and is composed of individuals who meet the highest professional, legal and ethical standards, a governing body composed of individuals responsible to the patients in the hospital and to the community it serves, a chief executive officer administrator skilled in the affairs of the facility, and qualified by education or experience to direct the facility's day to day activities, and an accurate and complete medical record for every patient, to ensure continuity of care and follow up care should the patient be admitted to the hospital or referred to another health facility.

Mr. Hoskins emphasized that accreditation of a hospital by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals means that it has voluntarily chosen to strive for high standards for providing care and delivering services, standards above the legal minimum requirements the hospital has been required by the Joint Commission, and has voluntarily accepted the standards set by the Joint Commission, it offers each patient an environment conducive to care and services of high quality, and staff and personnel well qualified to provide such care, and it has responded to its obligation of accountability to the community for providing the best possible care and services.

Also, the accreditation process assists in raising the level of professional performance in the hospital, and encourages continuing professional education, provides incentives for the continual upgrading of the quality of care rendered by the hospital, and provides that the hospital increases the ethics and dignity of each person who enters.

Recruiting Day For High School Seniors

Saturday, April 10th the U.S. Army Louisville District Recruiting Command has scheduled a special day for high school seniors to process for enlistment into the Army.

According to Lieutenant Colonel Franklin Scherer, commander of the Louisville Recruiting Command, this day was arranged especially to give high school seniors who want to enter the Army after graduation a chance to take their qualifying physical exams. At the same time they can reserve their training slot in their chosen Army school. Training slots in Army schools can be reserved up to nine months in advance. He explained that the Saturday testing date is a convenience to students who would otherwise have to take off from school or wait for a week day holiday in order to process. By that time many of the more popular Army job training slots could already be taken.

Any high school senior who is interested in the Army and wishes to process on that date should contact his local Army recruiter immediately so that he can make necessary arrangements (call 608-623-1270). Each applicant must take his mental test sometime prior to coming to Louisville for the physical exam.

To further facilitate the student in this requirement, a special mental test will be scheduled in Lexington at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, April 3rd.

Kentucky Ready For Mass Immunization

Kentucky will be able "to do the job" if a mass immunization program against swine influenza goes into effect, says Dr. William P. McElwain, commissioner of the Bureau for Health Services in the Department for Human Resources. Because every county has a local health department and public health nurses, it will be "fairly easy" to distribute and administer the vaccine, according to McElwain.

"The problem will be in obtaining the vaccine. It's a question of whether or not enough vaccine can be produced in the available time," he explains.

The proposed mass inoculation program is "totally unprecedented—we've never done anything like this before, but we do have the experience of the polio campaigns to draw upon," McElwain continues. He suggests that Human Resources would distribute the vaccine, and each county health department would decide on how best to handle the actual immunizations for their area.

McElwain says that if most of the inoculations are administered by September or October, "We'll be all right."

right-but we'd like to see children immunized before school starts," he explains that in this state, the flu season usually begins about December, but that if a vaccine is to be effective, it must be administered several weeks before exposure to the disease is likely to occur.

Dr. McElwain and a representative of the Kentucky Medical Association will attend a briefing on the flu immunization program to be held in Atlanta on April 2.

THE ENGLISHMAN AND THE COFFEE TREE

By Helen Price Stacy

It might not have been a tree similar to the Kentucky coffee tree, but a coffee tree figured in the banishment of an Englishman from his native country.

England's loss was America's gain, however, and ultimately that of the Commonwealth of Kentucky. The story, as told from one generation to another in the families involved, said the son of the banished man fought in the Continental Line in the Revolutionary War and became ancestor to many Eastern Kentuckians.

In England, Peter Sullivan was a tenant farmer. His master was a man of title. The estate was a large one with much work to be done. Sullivan's tasks often were menial and difficult, but there were times when he took great pleasure in his work, especially those days when he was asked to ride over the land to inspect crops and property.

Sullivan was a family man and happy that he had work that provided a good life for his loved ones. He would find out that his taskmaster sometimes ruled with a cold heart.

He had been ordered to ride over the estate one day, then to make his report. Things had not gone well and there was not enough time it seemed to get the job done. His horse was lazy, or perhaps in his frustration he (Sullivan) was too impatient.

He needed a crop to spur the horse to a faster gait and so, hesitating alongside the path, he broke a withe from a tree. He did not stop to consider that the withe had been snapped from his master's prize tree, an imported coffee tree.

Sullivan was brought before the noble one. His sentence for committing the deed was "exile to America." Fortunately, he was ordered to take with him his family and any personal possessions he wished.

They packed what they thought they could manage on the sailship, including china that some descendants think might have been given the couple by the titled family.

Sullivan was known of the intervening years, but in 1782 in Lincoln County, N.C., a son of the couple, also named Peter, was married to Catherine Ayrehart.

His daughter, Susanna, became the second wife of Eastern Kentucky Pioneer John Sellards, son of Hezekiah Sellards who came to the New World from Ireland in 1732. John's sisters were Virginia (Jenny) and Elizabeth and there was a brother, Sam, and a younger brother.

Sellards also served in the Revolutionary War while in his twenties and later scouted along the Big Sandy River. He, as much as anyone, took part in the search for his sister after Jenny had been taken captive by Indians.

His sister Jenny had married Thomas Wiley and Elizabeth had married an English soldier John Borders. John's younger brother was with their sister, Jenny, when Indians attacked the Wiley cabin on Walker's Creek, Va. The younger brother and three of Jenny's four children were killed.

According to historian Henry Scalf of Stanville, Kentucky, it was Susanna Sullivan Sellards who remembered many details of the captivity of her sister-in-law.

John Sellards had established Sellards Settlement on Buffalo Creek in about 1794. Scalf said, and later with his second wife, Susanna, a younger woman, made his home at level in Floyd County where in 1838 at age 73 he died and was buried. Susanna lived until she was 90. She died at the home of a son-in-law, Christopher Goble, on Buffalo Creek and is buried there.

It is not known if the first Peter Sullivan, along with the fine china might have tucked in a few seeds from the coffee tree. The china, however, survived many generations and some pieces yet are treasured heirlooms in the family of a descendant.

KENTUCKY AFIELD

Kentucky's crappie runs are just around the corner. We've had a pretty early spring this year so it's time to start watching water temperatures and lake conditions, and time to have the boat, motor and tackle ready to go.

While water temperatures are now in the low 50s, the lakes should start warming up quickly, provided we don't have a long cold spell. As the temperatures approach 60 degrees, depending on the weather, to make it into the shallows to spawn, and the "runs" will be underway.

A water temperature of 62 degrees is optimum. Traditionally, this magic mark falls right around the time of the Kentucky Derby (the first weekend in May), but it does vary enough, depending on the weather, to make this traditional time just a rough estimate.

The key to successful crappie fishing during the spawning runs is to locate the places where the fish are spawning. Crappie's eggs have an adhesive surface and stick to underwater brush, submerged treetops and so on.

So if you're fishing in open water, you're in the wrong place. If you don't get your hook snagged on underwater brush occasionally, you're most likely wasting your time. To catch crappie, you have to get right in where they are spawning.

In Kentucky and Barkley Lakes, the favorite crappie fishing areas are around the shoreline brush (back brush, as it's called locally). Since the lakes are usually high in the spring, look for flooded areas containing blackberry brambles, cockleburs and similar cover.

Submerged stump beds, the tops of trees which have fallen into the lake, sunken logs and willow bushes are other favorite crappie spawning sites. In fact, just about any shallow water area which contains underwater cover has the potential of being a crappie hot spot.

The most effective crappie rig is a cane pole with a small, sensitive float and an Aberdeen hook. Use a fairly heavy monofilament line, a small split-shot sinker and a 3/16" with a lively minnow.

NOTE: On Thursday, April 15, 1976 at 10 a.m., I will sell the following described automobile for repair bills, at my residence. A 1970 Opel, Serial #91929285, James Brown, P.O. Box 4, Livingston, Ky. 40445. 30x3p

Even anglers with several hundred dollars worth of rods and reels will choose this set-up for their serious crappie fishing. With the cane pole, the bait can be lowered down through underwater obstructions and the fish can be pulled straight out. Casting into a typical crappie spawning area, on the other hand, almost always leads to a snagged hook or lure.

The Aberdeen hook is made of light wire and bends easily. So when a snag occurs, a tug on the line will straighten the hook, freeing it from whatever it was hung on. The fisherman can then bend the hook back to its original shape and continue fishing.

But if you just don't like cane pole fishing, a lot of crappie are caught each spring on de-jigs—small dolly type lures. These can either be cast along the shoreline or jigged vertically through treetops or other brush. The upturned hook on these lures makes them comparatively weedless, but be sure to have a good supply in your tackle box when fishing in heavy cover, because you're bound to lose a few.

RADIO AUCTION DATE SET

The Mt. Vernon Recreation Council decided, at its Monday night meeting, to hold their annual Radio Auction over WRVK April 11th through the 14th. The Rockcastle County Jaycees will be soliciting businesses for items to sell and cash contributions. Also at the meeting, the Council decided to forgo hiring a playground director at present and to readvertise for applications.

MORE JURORS SUMMONED

Thirty more jurors were summoned Monday in order that trials could be held in Rockcastle Circuit Court. Sheriff Shepherd said that sickness had decimated the jurors empaneled originally to the point that the additional summons were required.

ALL-STATE STEPHENS HAS LOCAL CONNECTIONS

Even though Rockcastle did not make it to the State Basketball Tournament this year, one local family had a personal interest nonetheless.

Tim Stephens, star basketball player for McCreary County for the past four years, is the nephew of Harold Jones, owner of Mt. Vernon Bargain Store, and is related to Mrs. Jones on his father's side.

Young Stephens received the Ted Sanford Award given each year at the state tournament to a player in recognition of his basketball playing ability, his academic ability, citizenship and sportsmanship. Stephens was also selected for inclusion in the All-State Tournament Team.

In addition, Stephens was named to the Kentucky All-Star team which annually plays the Indiana All-Stars and, to cap it all off, it was announced Monday that Stephens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Stephens of Revello, near Whitley City, had been signed to play basketball at the University of Kentucky.

The Stephens' family is a basketball-oriented one. Their older son, Jerry, is coach of the Monticello girls' team, a team which has appeared in the girls' state tournament for the past two years.

SEVERAL THEFTS REPORTED

According to Sheriff Manuel Shepherd, two barns in the county were broken into last week and several items taken from each.

On Tuesday night, March 23rd, Johnny Eaton reported that a barn on his farm at Conway was entered and four rolls of woven wire fencing and a fertilizer spreader were taken.

On Thursday night, March 25th, Gene Gray of Bisputana also reported that a manure spreader, corn planter and all his small tools were taken from his barn.

Kentucky To Get State - Wide Weather Radio System Soon

Thanks to the efforts of Kentucky Sen. Walter D. Huddleston and Gov. Julian Carroll, Kentucky will soon have the only state-wide weather radio system in the nation.

An agreement was signed earlier this week between the Commonwealth of Kentucky and the National Weather Service to create a system which will enable all Kentuckians to receive weather warnings much earlier than ever before.

"These contracts insure the installation of a system that will be of immeasurable help to Kentucky residents," Gov. Carroll said. "We expect the system to be operational by May First."

Gov. Carroll added that Sen. Huddleston and his staff, along with officials of the Kentucky Division of Disaster and Emergency Services, have worked for several months to assure Kentucky's participation in this experimental program, which will be set up and operated with both Federal and state funds.

According to Robert L. McFerren, deputy director of the Kentucky DES Division, the system could easily save lives and prevent injury by giving the public the earliest possible severe weather warnings.

"Considering the enormity of the April 27th, tornadoes and the massive damage they caused, we in Kentucky and surrounding states were extremely fortunate that more citizens were not killed and injured," Gov. Carroll pointed out.

"Studies show," he continued, "that sufficient and timely information about severe weather will save lives. I am confident and join with Senator Huddleston in seeing to it that we in Kentucky do all we can to minimize the efforts of dangerous weather on people and property."

Nine transmitter sites, including eight in Kentucky, will be used to provide around-the-clock weather information over the network that will be established. Receivers will be available to schools, hospitals, businesses, other points where large numbers of people are gathered and in homes.

James L. Mathews, DES communications director, indicates that the receivers can be fully installed at a very normal cost beginning at about $11. Each of the nine transmitters on the network will have a range of from 40 to 60 miles, points out Paul Warnecke, coordinator of the Kentucky Early Warning System, on which planning began early in 1975. The Kentucky wide weather alert system will complement the planned KEWS system.

REVIVAL AT BRODHEAD BAPTIST

A revival meeting will begin at the Brodhead Baptist Church on Monday, April 5th and will continue through Sunday, April 11th.

Bro. Fountain Jones, pastor of West London Baptist Church will be the evangelist.

Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. each evening and a nursery will be provided for small children.

Hugh Cameron Critically Injured

Hugh Cameron, 34, of Mt. Vernon was critically injured Sunday morning about 10:30 a. m. in a motorcycle-car collision on U. S. 25 just south of Mt. Vernon.

According to State Trooper Jack Lawless who investigated the accident, Mr. Cameron was traveling south on U. S. 25 when he collided with a car, driven by Everett Higgins of Mt. Vernon. The Higgins car was pulling out of the Super Test Service Station.

Relatives of Mr. Cameron report that he is in the intensive care section of the Central Baptist Hospital in Lexington with his back broken in three places and a crushed left foot.

Michael Southard, 25 Dies In One-Car Accident

Michael Southard, 25, of Hamilton, Ohio was killed instantly Tuesday when the car which he was driving left U. S. 150 at Mt. Vernon, turned into a ditch, struck a culvert and flipped over twice. The one-car accident occurred at 12:35 p. m.

According to State Trooper Roy Wheat who investigated the accident, an eyewitness said Mr. Southard lost control of his car as he came around the curve near the quarry, heading east towards Mt. Vernon. Deputy Coroner Roy Martin said that Mr. Southard died of massive internal injuries.

Mrs. Southard was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Southard of Route 2, Mt. Vernon and is also survived by his wife, Sharon, and one child, both of Hamilton, Ohio. He was reportedly here visiting his parents and was driving a car belonging to his father.

The body is at the Dowell and Darlin Funeral Home where arrangements are incomplete.

County Selected For Judicial Article Study

Rockcastle County has been selected as a participant in a staffing study being conducted in conjunction with the implementation of the judicial article, passed by the voters in last November's General Election.

The study is being conducted by the Office of Judicial Planning, assisted by Arthur Young & Company, a management consulting and accounting firm which has conducted similar studies in other states. Selected along with Rockcastle for the study were the counties of Jefferson, Fayette, Kenton, Boyd, Barren, Mercer, Knox, Henderson and Clark.

The outfield will have Doug Proctor, Bobby Abrams, James Miller, Billy Hackworth, Bobby Bell, Earl Hammons, David Pensol and Jeff Taylor trying for positions.

The pitching staff will be composed of Gary Houston, David Stokes, Mark Cummins, Brian Stokes, Robert Hopkins and Mark Bishop.

The Home Baseball games will start at 4:15 at the Mt. Vernon Elementary School.

During April, caseload information and details concerning specific activities performed by each court employee will be reported by non-judicial employees in the circuit and lower (district) courts and judicial employees in the lower (district) courts.

Members of the project team met with the county judge, police court judges, magistrates and Circuit Court Clerk recently for an orientation meeting to explain the project to everyone involved and to provide detailed instructions for data recording and collection.

Hookins, administrator, and Bill Bailey. Not shown in the picture are Wayne Stewart, board member, and Dr. G. W. Griffith. The hospital recently installed a Central Oxygen Supply System which does away with the individual bottles of oxygen which were inconvenient and more dangerous.

On the basis of their first Joint Commission Survey recently, the Rockcastle County Hospital, Inc., was given Accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

By being accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, the Rockcastle County Hospital received a Certificate of Accreditation signifying its achievement. The award of accreditation indicated that the hospital voluntarily adhered to and substantially met the standards set by the Joint Commission. The Certificate is the symbol of the hospital's striving for excellence in promoting high standards of care.

In an accredited hospital, the welfare of those receiving services has been entrusted to competent and dedicated people who will continue to try to provide the best possible and highest quality of care.

The Administration, Mr. M. H. Hookins stated that through the Joint Commission's voluntary programs of accreditation, the consumer is protected by identification of facilities of high quality; the well-being of the patient is enhanced by the encouragement given to facilities to maintain high levels of service; and accreditation enables the facility to demonstrate that it has accepted its obligation of accountability to those whom it serves.

The story of the voluntary accreditation of health care facilities is really the story of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH). Formed in 1951, the Joint Commission is a not-for-profit, non-governmental organization sponsored by four major hospital and medical organizations - the American College of Physicians, the American College of Surgeons, the American Hospital Association, and the American Medical Association.

The purpose of the Joint Commission is to establish standards for the operation of hospitals and other health-related facilities and services and to conduct accreditation programs which will encourage the voluntary attainment of high standards of care and services rendered in such facilities.

Until 1965, the Joint Commission had established standards and an accreditation program only for hospitals; but in 1966, 1969 and in 1970 the Joint Commission developed separate standards and accreditation programs for long-term care facilities, facilities for the mentally retarded, and psychiatric facilities. Each of these three programs is directed by an accreditation council of the Joint Commission. These councils are composed of representatives from nationally recognized medical, health-related, and consumer organizations; together with the Hospital Accreditation Program, they are working to promote care and services of high quality.

Today, the Joint Commission continues to revise and improve its standards so that the award of accreditation to a health care facility will remain meaningful and serve as a sign of that facility's willingness to improve itself and to strive for excellence - all in the best interest of those whom it serves.

The unique feature of all of the Joint Commission's accreditation programs is that they are voluntary, not compulsory. There is no law that requires any type of health care facility to become accredited. It is a decision made by the facility itself.

Not all hospitals are accredited. The accreditation of a hospital is an indication of its dedication to the principles and standards of excellence for the care and services rendered to patients.

Nearly every health and health-related professional is in some way responsible for the kind of care a person will receive in an accredited hospital. That goes for the nurses, medical record personnel, therapists, dietitians, pharmacists, technicians, doctors, the administrative staff and the governing body. And other people who are not health professionals, who keep the hospital clean and safe and running smoothly - they, too, help maintain an environment that will offer the best conditions for the best possible care. In an accredited hospital, everyone who is responsible for

FRANKFORT WATCHLINE

In light of last week's observations about legislative independence, or the lack of it, in the 1976 General Assembly, there are some differing viewpoints, namely from Gov. Julian Carroll.

Carroll claims that contrary to some voored opinions that the legislature was more than usually acquiescent, he encouraged more legislative input into his program than any governor ever has.

He maintains that he was in constant communication with the legislators, even on a one-to-one basis, and that the success of his program resulted from that open communication and exchange of ideas.

"If the legislature had raised hell constantly, if we'd had a bunch of fights on the floor of the House and the Senate, and they had beaten the governor two or three times a day on something he had recommended, then would it have been a successful General Assembly, a showing of legislative independence?"

Carroll has some complaints about how he had been treated by the media on a couple of other subjects, his consumer package and his decision not to support a mine safety amendment that left the author of that amendment in tears on the floor of the House.

While he views his consumer package as a record success for a General Assembly, he said he has been hurt by the pick-picking by the press and consumer groups over what wasn't done.

"I think we passed programs this year they've been trying for years to get through the General Assembly," Carroll said, noting that there is only so much one can do in a single session.

As for the incident on the mine safety amendment that left Rep. Glenn Freeman, D-Hartan, unable to speak in the House, orchestrated by the administration, voted his amendment down, Carroll said he believes Freeman's emotional show was more because he had lost personal friends in the Scotia mine disaster rather than because of Carroll.

The governor claims that he talked over his position with Freeman and thought he had Freeman's agreement. Freeman's amendment would have placed resident safety inspectors, chosen by the mine workers, in the mines with the power to shut down a mine in the event of unsafe conditions.

While Carroll agreed in general with Freeman's concept, the governor said he wanted to hold off on implementing it until the special session after this year.

By stretching the time lag between the special session that took place this month and the time for consideration of

Have You Lost Your Social Security Card?

Lost your social security card? You can get a duplicate by notifying any social security office, according to social security officials here.

"You can usually get a duplicate card faster if you've kept a record of your social security number and give it to us when you report your loss," a spokesman said.

"Your duplicate card will have the same social security number on it," he said. "Your social security number is yours alone and remains the same for life."

A social security card is issued with two parts, perforated so the card itself - the number - can be cut out and carried in purse or wallet.

"The card you carry is the part you show to an employer to be sure he correctly copies your name and social security number into his records," the spokesman said.

"The remaining larger part should be kept in a safe place as a permanent record of your social security number," he said.

People's earnings from jobs covered by social security are credited to their social security number - to build retirement, disability, survivors and Medicare protection for themselves and their families.

People should apply for a social security card several weeks before they need the number for a job, according to the spokesman.

The Social Security Administration is an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

IT'S TOO EARLY TO BUY RECEIVERS

It's too early to buy receivers to pick up broadcasts on the state's new weather radio warning system, according to James L. Mathews, director of communications for the State Division of Disaster and Emergency Services.

Mathews made the comment in response to many inquiries about the equipment.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) can't give us the exact frequencies until April 21," he explained, "and any crystal controlled equipment purchased now might prove useless."

The radio network, which will cover the state from nine transmitters, is scheduled to begin operation May 1 and expand as equipment is installed.

The system will be the first in the nation to offer state-wide coverage and is a result of a two-year effort by Kentucky Sen. Walker, Huddleston and Gov. Julian Carroll.

When the system is fully operational, state officials hope that every school, hospital, and public building will have a receiver. The low-cost receivers will also be available to the public through commercial vendors.

As soon as we've got accurate details about the receivers, we'll use every available means to get the information to the public," Mathews said.

ROCKCASTLE CHAPTER DAR MEET MARCH 27

The Rockcastle Chapter DAR met Saturday, March 27th at the home of Mrs. Joe Young in Mount Vernon, with Regent, Mrs. Lale Owens, presiding.

The message of the President General was read by Miss Janie Ramsey and the National Defense message was read by Mrs. V.G. Walker.

Mrs. Billy Gregory had the program for the day speaking on "Women of the Revolution." She brought out the fact that many wives of Revolutionary soldiers traveled with their husbands from one battlefield to another, and actively assisted in the campaigns.

Some acted as water carriers as did Mary Fitcher whose real name was Mary Hayes. Others made bullets and fought by their husbands loading his guns during battle. Others acted as nurses on the battlefield and in field hospitals. Martha Washington traveled with her husband and his army and spent the winter with him at Valley Forge.

Mrs. Gregory's mother, doing research on the Shell family, had found an account given during the mid 1800's evidently by a neighbor of Mary Inglis who was captured by the Indians and held in captivity for a period of five and a half months. In this account the name of the old Dutch woman who was also a captive and escaped with Mary Inglis, was given as Mrs. Brigan.

Mrs. Gregory spoke of the hardships of the pioneer women and of the importance of the winning of the battles for Kentucky during the Revolution.

The members present voted to attend the Bicentennial Tea to be given by the Jemima Boone Chapter in the Woman's Club Auditorium in Richmond on April 10th at 2 p.m. At the conclusion of the tea the Rockcastle Chapter will hold a short business meeting.

With the Legislature In Frankfort

By Rep. Harold DeMarcus

The work of the 1976 session of the Kentucky General Assembly officially ended on Saturday, March 20. After 75 days of constant work, the General Assembly had acted upon the legislation which it felt was important and necessary, and which would become the law of the Commonwealth. Not for another two years would Kentucky's lawmakers come together to consider and act upon legislation. However, there was one very important area which was not dealt with, at least not in any significant way—the implementation of the newly enacted Judicial Article to our State's Constitution. At the suggestion of the governor, the 1976 Regular Session of the General Assembly did not attempt to draft and implement legislation concerning the major portions of the new Judicial Article. This request was honored by the General Assembly with the expectation that Gov. Carroll would call a "Special Session" to deal specifically with the new Court System.

Kentucky had been under the "old" judicial system since 1891. During the years from its implementation until recently, the "old" system had functioned successfully.

But, as time changed, problems arose in the old system which required the state to regulate the court system more rigidly. But even state regulation did not solve the problems which hindered "the effective administration of justice for all."

The backlog of cases grew rapidly as the population of our state grew. As the automobile became more in use, the number of accidents increased with a corresponding increase in lawsuits. As Kentucky's highway system expanded to meet the needs of its residents, the use of eminent domain proceedings to acquire land became prevalent. As the divorce laws became less complicated, domestic relations matters began to take up more and more of the courts' time.

And, when you add on top of this newly enacted laws requiring court enforcement, and then consider the growing crime rate, one can easily get a picture of the problems facing our state court system and the judges.

Finally, in 1975, our voters were convinced that a change was needed—a change which would hopefully restore efficiency, fairness, and sanity to our court systems. In November of last year, we approved a state constitutional amendment to replace our "old" judicial system.

This newly adopted system would make several significant changes. First of all, a new level of courts would be established. The setup of the new system can best be understood by comparing it with the "old" system: Old System, 1. Court of Appeals, 2. Circuit Court, and 3. Lower Courts (County, Quarterly, Police and Magistrate); New System, 1. Supreme Court, 2. Court of Appeals, 3. Circuit Court, and 4. District Court.

Secondly, several new judgeships would be created—with the provision that they would all be elected on a non-partisan basis by Kentucky's voters. Once again, the composition of the new systems will be explanatory: Old System, 1. Court of Appeals (7 Justices),

One can easily see why the governor requested the 1976 General Assembly to limit their consideration of the new system during the Regular Session. If the legislature had attempted to tackle these questions during the past three months, there would have been no time to consider the other important areas of concern to Kentuckians.

Therefore, the governor is expected to call a Special Session prior to January 31, 1977 to consider legislation relating to the new court system.

I believe that the decision by the governor and the General Assembly was wise—it will permit the state agencies working on the new court system to complete their studies and make their recommendations to the members of the General Assembly prior to the Special Session and it will permit the legislators to study and act upon the problems thoroughly without the distractions of a regular legislative session.

The whole purpose behind the new Kentucky Court System is to protect the citizens and taxpayers of Kentucky with a judicial system which will meet their needs and which will provide "the efficient administration of justice for all." I feel confident that this goal will be achieved in the days to come.

Historymobile to Visit BES

The Kentucky History mobile's current program is designed to communicate the story of the first decade of the conquest and settlement of the Kentuckiana area. The theme blends well with the national bi-centennial celebration since Kentucky played a vital role in the Revolution and the following westward expansion. Three parts of the exhibit will help the visitor probe the cultural roots and the wilderness struggle of the white settlers.

Upon entering the exhibit, the visitor will be greeted by the driver-historian and then will be guided by a taped audio-commentary to a series of five panels complete with miniature dioramas designed to show part of the history of the decade. The series of panels begins with a map showing the routes of migration and ends with a panel depicting the beginning of a more structured society.

After the initial commentary, the visitor will review a multi-image slide show concerning the typical Kentucky settlement culture. Scenes of the Kentucky pioneer at work and at play, both as an individual and with his neighbors, will reveal the peculiar nature of the way of life in the early Kentucky settlement.

Following the slide show, the visitor will be encouraged to visit the replica of an early cabin interior constructed in the rear of the trailer. The cabin is furnished with some genuine artifacts of this early period, as well as with reproductions of crude homemade furniture. If, at this time, the visitor has any questions concerning the artifacts, their use, or the materials on the panels, the driver-historian will be happy to answer them.

This three-pronged audio-visual approach will offer the visitor a glimpse of the life and times of the earliest settlers who carved from the wilderness of the Kentucky River area the foundations of the first State west of the Appalachians Mountains.

Every day you rely on electricity. But you probably never think about it. Because over the years you've gotten used to good electric service.

You've also gotten used to getting an electric bill. But now your bill is higher than it was a couple of years ago.

It's easy to understand why. We are suffering from the same inflation you are, paying more for the materials we use to make electricity, more for labor and environmental controls. And in order to expand to meet future needs, we must borrow money at today's high interest rates. All that must add up to a higher electric bill. But it also adds up to the same good electric service you're used to. And that's our job. Now and ten years from now.

County Agent's Notes

BY H. LEE DURHAM
Select Healthy Plants

Young plants are more susceptible to harm in the first seven days after transplanting into the garden than at any other time of their development. Tender plants, such as tomatoes, peppers, petunias, impatiens, and begonias can be planted now. Planting too early is probably the biggest cause of loss among bedding plants.

Animals and insect pests can be controlled by a range of packaged products available through local garden supply centers. Vegetable dusts can work effectively against rabbits and insects, while pellets are a good deterrent against slug damage.

Just as there are good and poor quality seeds, it's possible to have good and poor quality transplants. Here are some ways to recognize a top quality transplant: (1) Avoid long, lanky specimens that have to be stretched towards the light, or have produced a spindly growth owing to overcrowding of roots. A dwarf, compact, bushy plant with some side shoots forming is better than a tall, thin, straggly specimen. (2) Look for healthy dark green color in marigolds, salvia, petunias, tomatoes and most other popular bedding plants. Plants with shriveled leaves, yellow leaves or wilted leaves should be avoided. (3) When you buy plants in peat pots gently tear off the bottom of the pot and release the roots. Although roots will penetrate through the peat, and the peat eventually decomposes, a dry period could keep roots pound and hinder good development. To ensure a healthy plant gently remove the bottom or sides without tearing roots.

Immediately after transplanting water all plants thoroughly.

Man's Transition From Savagery Began with the Taming of Cattle

Cattle breeding, although often fraught with difficulties, is an old and honorable art, so ancient that it is often said the domestication of cattle marked the beginning of man's transition from savagery to civilization. As a matter of historical fact, the herding of cattle was once an indication of the superiority of one group or tribe of people over another.

According to W. P. Garrigus, chairman of the Department of Animal Sciences at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, cattle domestication for milk, meat, motive power, and clothing first took place in the dim regions of the Neolithic Age some 20,000 years B. C. What is more curious, perhaps, is that while new breeds have been developed, no new important species has been added to those domesticated in this period. But what an improvement in types! Thanks to the efforts of breeders and animal scientists, we now have cattle for various purposes and, in terms of utility to man, Garrigus says, they probably rank first among all animals both past and present.

An interesting story on early cattle breeding is to be found in the thirtieth chapter of Genesis and is one indication that this science is likewise of ancient origin. In this story, the herdman, Jacob, who was to receive his salary in the form of abnormally-colored speckled cattle that appeared in the flocks of his father-in-law, took action that marks him as an eager and crafty cattle breeder.

To be sure that oil-colored specimens appeared, Jacob took green poles of poplar, hazel, and chestnut, peeled white rings and strips around them, and set them around the watering trough. When the young heifers came to drink and breed, these striped poles supposedly had a prenatal influence on their offspring and thus Jacob's herd was "increased and multiplied."

Cattle breeders now use more scientific and reliable methods of securing improved types for the varied uses desired, but Jacob's story tends to show that the practice goes back a long, long way. It is also interesting to note that in this method of breeding different types, he selected the "stronger" members of the herd for this purpose.

Authorities on cattle and their origins say the first domesticated varieties were Devons from North America in the year 1,000 by the Norsemen. Columbus also brought some cows with him on his second voyage in 1493 and, in 1607, the early colonists introduced them into what is now Virginia.

The first cattle to reach New England were Devons from England imported by Edward Winslow in 1624. In North America, as in the days of prehistory, cattle raising ran true to color and in the same historical sequence. During the early days in this nation, the cattle breeder followed the hunter and, as settlements became permanent, so did cattle raising.

By 1800, the cattle industry was well established in Kentucky and, by 1870, cattle were generally distributed over the entire country. In 1973, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reported 122 million head in the United States, making this nation second only to India in cattle population. In India, however, religious beliefs prohibit cattle slaughter and the people derive little nutritional benefits from them.

Since the very beginning, the story of cattle in America is filled with interest and romantic legend. With the possible exception of India, the number of cattle has always reflected the living standards and the prosperity of a tribe or a country. Usually these factors are in direct proportion to each other—something which makes cattle very important animals and the cattle breeder a very important citizen.

Thus it could also be said that civilization rode in on the back of a cow.

Immediate Aid Available For Scotia Mine Families

Families of the 11 Scotia mine disaster victims still in the mine will be able to get immediate aid as a result of an emergency amendment to Kentucky law signed Thursday by Gov. Julian Carroll. The amendment, originally suggested by the governor by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Stephens and Asst. Gen. Armstrong, was approved by the House of Representatives on March 18.

The law, KRS Chapter 213, required an examination of the body by a coroner before a death certificate could be issued. "Gov. Carroll said, "and that certificate is necessary for surviving families to apply for Social Security, workmen's compensation and other death-related benefits. Although we know this won't ease their anguish at the loss of their loved ones, we hope it will make their day-to-day lives a little easier."

The amendment states, "Whereas, a mine disaster has occurred during this session of the General Assembly and

EASTER BUNNY CAKE

Instructions:
1. Only one layer of white cake is needed. Use white cake recipe or favorite white layer cake recipe and bake 1 round layer in 8 or 9 inch pan. If recipe makes two layers, refrigerate extra batter.
2. Cut cake in half and stick together with white icing. Cut the cooled round layer in half. Fasten together with a fluffy white icing or whipped cream. Stand cake on flat cut edge. Cut out small wedge to indicate rabbit's head. Use cut out piece for tail. Fasten on with Toothpick.

Frost cake with white icing and cover with coconut. Frost cake completely with white icing. Cover generously with coconut. Cut ears from folded white paper. (Tint inside of ears pink, if desired.) Use well drained red maraschino cherries (or jelly beans cut in half lengthwise) for eyes and mouth. If using maraschino cherries, pat cherries extra dry with paper towels so they won't tint the cake. Apply a bit of frosting to secure jelly beans or cherries in place.

For the rest, color coconut green by adding one tablespoon of water to several drops of food coloring before mixing with coconut. Blot colored coconut on paper towels to remove excess moisture and allow to dry several minutes.

Surround Bunny Cake on platter with the tinted coconut and decorate with Easter eggs, if desired.

EASTER BASKET CAKE

1. Use an angel cake, made in a straight 10-inch tube pan. Hollow out nest in top of cooled cake, no more than one-half inch deep in the center. Use a sharp knife to slice out the nest.

2. Use cut pieces of cake to fill hole in center of cake caused by tube.

3. Frost sides of cake with pale yellow icing (soft type frosting tinted yellow with food coloring). Lightly frost top of cake. Use the tongs of a fork to make a basket weave pattern on both sides of cake by drawing 1-inch long horizontal and vertical lines.

4. Cover top of basket with green tinted coconut.

For the basket handle use pipe cleaners, wound together, wrapped in strips of aluminum foil, covered with ribbon. Secure bow on handle with clear tape. Press handle in top of cake until firm. Fill nest with decorated or plain candy Easter eggs.

SMILING BUNNY CAKE

Needed:
1 baked 9-inch round cake-layers-cooled
1/3 cup flake coconut
5 1/3 cups seven minute frosting or your favorite frosting
Red food coloring
Small pastel-colored gumdrops
red and black licorice laces

Easter Seal Programs Provides Many Services

Millions of Americans have speech or hearing problems, or both, and "by no means all of them" are receiving the professional help they need. Bert Combs, chairman of the Kentucky Easter Seal campaign, said today.

"Lack of proper speech or hearing deprives a child or primary means of communications - vital links in the chain of learning," he explained. "Adults with these problems are barred from certain employment categories and suffer social discomfort."

"Speech therapists and audiologists have the means to help patients overcome these handicaps. The Kentucky Easter Seal Society has been helping people with communication problems since 1948," Combs said.

"Today the Kentucky Society provides this service in five centers and employs more than 20 people in this professional field."

The Easter Seal centers which provide this service include the Hearing and Speech Center, Louisville; Geiger Easter Seal Center, Ashland; Cardinal Hill Hospital, Lexington; the West

CONSUMER COMMENTS

By Robert F. Stephens, Attorney General

Each week, at the end of "Consumer Comments" it is suggested that you contact the Attorney General's Office if you have a consumer complaint. Have you ever wondered about the number and nature of complaints received by this office?

1. The Consumer Protection Division processed 3,900 written consumer complaints during 1975. Only about three percent of the complaints involved consumer fraud. The other 97 per cent of the complaints resulted from breakdowns in communications between buyers and sellers of goods and services or a misunderstanding, or lack of Kentucky Easter Seal Center, Paducah and the Northern Kentucky Easter Seal Center, Covington, Combs reported.

In 1975 these centers provided assistance to 5600 Kentuckians, most of them children, he said. In addition, 3550 other people received hearing-screening tests from a mobile unit located at the state and county fairs, he continued.

A variety of techniques are used. Group therapy, where several children with similar problems are placed together. For others, recreational or play therapy may be used in conjunction with individual instruction. Books, toys and other objects are used to hold a child's interest while he learns to form words.

For information about services, Combs said interested persons may contact the Easter Seal Center in their locale or may write the Kentucky Society at Post Office Box 1170, Louisville, Kentucky 40201.

The society's programs are financed by donations to the Easter Seal campaign now underway and continuing through April 18, Easter Sunday.

information about the consumers' and businessmen's respective rights and responsibilities.

Major areas of complaint were motor vehicles, home furnishings, mail order sales, credit problems, mobile homes and house repairs.

Problems with cars and trucks most often involved repair work done under warranty and discrepancies between estimates and cost of repair work. Complaints about home furnishings ranged from defective appliances to furniture which did not wear well. Non-delivery of pre-paid merchandise caused the major problem with mail order businesses, while home repair complaints were often the result of fraudulent fly-by-night companies being paid and doing poor jobs, or not doing any work at all.

Our records show that Kentucky consumers are becoming more aware of their rights and responsibilities in the marketplace. Written complaints alone increased by 25 per cent over 1974.

Our office encourages consumers to examine the facts and make wise consumer decisions. "If problem arise, first complain to the business yourself. Then, if your complaint is not resolved, contact the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, Room 34, Capitol, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601."

The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the consumer hotline. That number is 1-800-372-2960.

Rockcastle Recollections

By John Lahr

Rockcastle County's oldest known stream still carrying its original name is the Skaggs Creek, discovered in 1783 by log hunter Henry Skaggs. Since the earliest known trail across this part of the country was Skaggs Trace, which led along the shores of this creek, many of the earliest claims were located along it, some of which we have found dated in the late seventeenth century. East and West forks of Skaggs Creek were widely separated, but both fell within the later confines of Rockcastle county. Where Skaggs Creek and later-named Negro Creek came together, Skaggs trace turned off to follow Negro Creek to its confluence with Dick's River, following along the river until it veered over toward Crab Orchard and Logan's fort, now Stanford.

At least two bloody Indian attacks on immigrants coming into Kentucky took place on Skaggs Creek, the Baughman party having been fired on in camp near the intersection of Skaggs and Negro Creeks. McClure's Dusters also occurred along this early pathway and the famous circuit-riding preacher, Peter Cartwright, told of another of some magnitude in 1803. In 1803, the Rockcastle County to make it their future home, Col. James Dycart and Valentine Harmon, prominent members of the Long Hunters, settled near each other on Skaggs Creek, a short distance out of what is now Mt. Vernon, Kentucky. Rueben C. Pew, Revolutionary War veteran from North Carolina, came to Rockcastle in 1803 and settled near them. A part of his original log house still stands.

D. Graves, who is descended from early comers to Kentucky, lives in the Skaggs Creek area and has devoted many years to developing the history of the Skaggs Creek country and its early settlers as has Chester Whitaker, who now owns and farms the original grant made to Col. James Dycart. When I once remarked that Whitaker knew a lot about the Skaggs Creek country, a bystander replied, "He ought to, he owns most of it." Later inquiries developed the fact that he owns each farm, on both sides of the creek, for a stretch of thirty miles, making him, although a comparatively young man, the biggest individual landowner in Rockcastle County.

Roundstone Creek, which heads up north of the Rockcastle-Madison County line, slips quietly through Boone's Gap as little more than a spring branch. The rest of its course lies wholly within Rockcastle, and before it mingles its current with that of Rockcastle River it has become the largest creek in the county. At Sinks, Kentucky, it goes under ground, coming up some miles down stream as "The Boils" at the pumpkins spring. In 1891, the KY RR Railroad at Livingston, Kentucky. No one to date has fully explored this subterranean passage, although small boys have often ventured within its mouth as far as daylight reaches to try their luck at fishing underground. I do not recall having heard of any notable success in such ventures but well remember many years ago how, in my own boyhood, we would anchor a flat-bottomed boat where we could just reach the edge of "The Boils" with a long case pole and catch some nice strings of redeyes (rock bass) that seemed always to be hungry.

Roundstone Creek was known by that name to Daniel Boone and his road-cutters as early as 1775 when he was making out the path to Booneborough. It was also sometimes called Rounny, Jones Lick Creek, according to Joseph Kennedy, who said he frequently hunted along this stream. Early pioneers report that there were several salt licks, or springs along Roundstone with the principle one inside Rockcastle County, a short distance south of Boone's Gap.

I had always heard that the creek derived its name from numerous round stones that used to be found in shallow places along its bed. These stones were elliptical in shape, ranging from the diameter of a dinner plate to that of a dishpan, about the texture of freestone and of a reddish-brown color. When I walked these stones were often used as yard ornaments. It was customary to paint them with red wagon paint and lay them on stumps or sawed off fence posts. As a boy these stones were often used as ball bearings in the old days at Boone's Trace, heading up at the Gustafson Cave on the Old Wilderness Road across the head of the valley. Both the Wilderness road and Boone's Trace cross Renfro Valley - one across the head of the Valley, the other near its mouth where it runs into Roundstone. The name Shawnee Run are usually cold, being a little uncomfortable for swimmers even in the middle of summer. It is one of the very few streams in Kentucky cold enough for trout and has been stocked several times by the Kentucky Fish and Game Department. It is also known as one of the best "trout" streams in this area, this is the first creek on which Boone and his road cutters camped after crossing Rockcastle River.

Brush Creek, which runs into Roundstone at Orlando, waters a fertile valley draining down from the Big Hill Divide. At the time of the coming of early settlers into Kentucky this area was so obstructed by blown down trees and dead brush that it was necessary for them to cut through a large acreage and detour around a still larger one. This condition accounts for the name given this stream.

Another tributary to Roundstone Creek, draining another fertile valley is Renfro Creek. My boyhood home was at the junction of Big and Little Renfro Creeks, some two or three miles above the Renfro Valley Settlement. The west fork, Little Renfro, was generally known in the old days as Shawnee Run, heading up at the Gustafson Cave on the Old Wilderness Road across the head of the valley. Both the Wilderness road and Boone's Trace cross Renfro Valley - one across the head of the Valley, the other near its mouth where it runs into Roundstone. The name Shawnee Run was said to have come from a pitched battle between Shawnee and Cherokee Indians in the early days before the coming of white men to Kentucky.

Copper Creek, which cuts across the northeast corner of Rockcastle County, also drains rich and productive farm lands. Its name was given it on account of the great numbers of copperhead snakes found along its course by early settlers.

Rockcastle River's most northern tributary on the Rockcastle County side is Horse Lick Creek. This is probably the stream to which Dr. Walker in 1850 gave the name of Hughes River, named for John Hughes, a member of his exploring party. In describing the stream so named, J. Stiddard Johnson in his "First Explorations of Kentucky", Pg. 60, calls it "the principle fork of Rockcastle River, which here runs nearly west." Although not entirely correct as to direction, it is apparent that Mr. Johnson meant to designate Horse Lick Creek as Dr. Walker's Hughes River. If he is correct in this it serves to add further weight to my contention that he was not correct in assuming that Dr. Walker never crossed Rockcastle River in his journey of exploration in 1780.

The eastern hemlock is the most shade-tolerant conifer. It is capable of growing under the canopy of any other upland tree.
