THE FARM CONSERVATION PLAN

By Greg Stephens
Soil Conservation Service

What's a farm conservation plan? That's the question shot back at me most when I mention the idea to a landowner. So I'd like to talk a minute or two about what a farm conservation plan is.

Basically, a farm conservation plan is a field by field examination of a farm. Then land management practices are suggested to get the most "production" from the land without degrading it. This gives a high level of production that can be maintained indefinitely. Now "production" means different things to different people. To one person "production" could mean crop production, to another forage production, wildlife, timber, beauty, etc. So each farm conservation plan is developed with the individual landowners' objectives in mind. Farm conservation plans are prepared through the Soil Conservation Service by an individual who is educated, trained and experienced in the field of land management. In many cases, the present land use is the best use of the land. Often, though, the farm planner can offer suggestions to the landowner on how to increase production through land treatments or alternative land uses. This is the idea behind a farm plan. So how is it presented to the landowner so he can use it? What are the separate parts of a farm conservation plan?

The parts of the plan that offer the most to the landowner are the maps. With each plan that is prepared, there is a soil map of the farm showing the location and types of soils present. To go along with this there is a soils legend describing the nature and productive potential of each Almost a year old now are the triplets of Mr. and Mrs. Don Elrod of Greenville, S.C. Mrs. Elrod is the former Gail Moore, a 1967 graduate of MVHS. The triplets are, from left, Lorie, Johnathon and Kevin. Grandparents are Rev. and Mrs. Jack Moore. Rev. Moore is past pastor of the Mareburg, Northside and Pine Hill Baptist Churches. soil. There is also an aerial photo showing the farm boundaries, fences, fields numbered with approximate acres posted and land use.

These maps are extremely useful to any landowner. Along with the maps is a conservation write-up. This is a written statement which suggests ways to protect the land and increase its production. When you put all these parts together, you have a farm conservation plan.

The Soil Conservation Service offers this service free to any interested landowner. Our office is in Mt. Vernon on the 2nd floor of the Court House; the phone number is 256-2541. Give us a call or stop by and visit; we'll be glad to do anything we can to develop a plan on YOUR farm. *****

FUTURE OF FARMING BRIGHT
USDA OFFICIAL SAYS

"With the growing world population and the desire for better diets, new market opportunities are continuously developing for agricultural products," Kenneth E. Frick, head of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), said. "Activities in transportation, processing and export are growing," Frick said.

the turn of the century as we have today. Part of the way in which the world will be able to handle this is through a transfer of our technology to other nations. And this means more agriculturally-trained people. So young people have the opportunity to participate in this if they train themselves well for the job ahead," the USDA official said.

Commenting on the outlook for agriculture from a consumer viewpoint, Frick said that the consumer wishes to be, should be, and is in a position to expect a variety of foods of the highest standards. "I think these standards will continue to be improved as time goes on. The variety will even be increased and every U.S. consumer can look forward to getting his groceries far cheaper than anyone else in the world."

With a nation so able to export, this means that the domestic consumer is able to get the best quality and the best price for these commodities. "It is important that our farmers stay in competitive in the world, and we as consumers are assured of the best buy and finest food that is available anywhere in the world," Frick said. *****

KSP Initiate TOP Program; To Crackdown on Speeders

By: Roger Coldren

The Kentucky State Police have recently been allocated funds from the federal government for the purpose of enforcing the 55 mph speed limit in Kentucky. The State Police were recently in danger of losing all federal monies because of the lack of enforcement and the great number of motorists exceeding the speed limit in the state.

Constantly rising auto casualties and fatalities on Interstate 75 and 64 have prompted the initiation of a new program called TOP for Troopers on Patrol. The program is solely for the purpose of enforcing the speed limit and more constant traffic surveillance. Funds from state deficit government will be used to purchase additional radar equipment and to pay troopers for overtime work.

Secondary roads will also be patrolled more often under the TOP program, on an as-needed basis.

A total of 18 counties will experience added police patrol. Those TOP troopers on secondary roads will primarily concern with drinking drivers. Where DWI problems obviously exist, conspicuous control will be utilized.

Statistics which prompted the new program were compiled from the past 4 years. The totals from July 1, 1972 to December, 1975 showed 11,850 auto crashes, 7,935 injury accidents and 688 traffic fatalities. Special attention will be given the drinking driver because 40% of the fatalities were due to these drivers. The intoxicated driver accounted for 50% of the total crashes.

So, if you're considering driving a little over the speed limit to get there faster - forget it. KSP may be on TOP of you.

New Approach to Aid to Families Program Begins This Month

Aid to Families with Dependent Children, a new approach to eliminating fraud in Kentucky's public assistance program, begins this month, according to Commissioner Gail S. Huecker of the Bureau of Social Insurance, Department of Human Resources.

"All cases suspected of intentional misrepresentation will be referred to local county attorneys who will be responsible for starting court action," Commissioner Huecker said.

The bureau's income maintenance supervisors will work with county attorneys and testify in court proceedings when necessary.

"This is part of our ongoing efforts to make sure all people receiving assistance are, in fact, eligible," said Commissioner Huecker.

Since last year, state law requires that public assistance recipients over age 18 have social security cards. Using the social security number, income reported by the client is compared to records kept by the bureau's unemployment insurance office, explained the Commissioner.

This system is already used by many states. Some states, including Kentucky, also use a computer program which compares social security benefits reported by clients to records kept by the federal Social Security Administration.

In the future, wage records will be compared to reported income by computer process for all Kentucky counties.

"In most instances we find that clients have reported their income correctly if they have any at all," Commissioner Huecker said.

The U.S. Department HEW provides about 70 percent of the funds for the state's Aid to Families with Dependent Children Program. It is estimated that less than five percent of the total being paid to assistance families in Kentucky is to clients suspected of misrepresentation.

Referrals to the Jefferson County attorney will be delayed since there are approximately 150 cases of probable misrepresentation to be prepared.

PAYNE AGENCY APPROVED FOR DEALERSHIP

FRANKFORT WATCHLINE

By Ferrell Wellman

There may be enough Democrats in Western Kentucky this weekend to dump the entire Purchase area into the Mississippi River. This is the weekend for the annual Fancy Farm picnic in Graves County.

The picnic traditionally is the kick off for the fall political war in Kentucky. "War" may be too strong a word to use this year. "Skirmish" is more appropriate since the incumbents in the Congressional races, will face little trouble in winning another two year stay in Washington.

Originally, the picnic was bipartisan. Republicans still show up, but they are as rare in Western Kentucky as fans at a Colonel's game. . . and we know what happened to the Colonels. Republicans are outnumbered more than fifty-to-one in the precinct where the picnic is held. This summer, like in 1975 when George Wallace stole the show, it will be the Democrats getting all the attention.

The picnic in front of the old school is expected to be little more than a rally for First District Representative Carroll Hubbard. Hubbard is simultaneously running for re-election to Congress this year and election as Governor in 1979.

Governor Julian Carroll, who is in from Paducah which is just up the road from Fancy Farm, will be a featured speaker. It's unlikely Carroll will say anything bad about Hubbard, but it's not likely he'll say anything good about him, either. With Carroll backing Terry McBrayer for the top slot in three years, his remarks at the Fancy Farm could trigger the start of an interesting race for Governor.

"Good afternoon, Governor Carroll's office." Seven hundred times a day the telephone rings in the basement of the state Capitol. The switchboard operators listen patiently and then channel the calls to the appropriate aides in the Governor's Office. Few calls reach the man himself.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

It has been said Life is a game. And indeed it is. Everybody in the world MUST play it. But it can only be played in a solitary manner. You have to play it by yourself. No one else can play your game for you.

As in all games, you have a choice in how to play it. You can play it honestly or dishonestly. With optimism or fear. With confidence or doubt. With faith or infidelity.

When you look at it this way, life can be a simple game to play. Look around. See how other people play the game. When you do this, you will always see how honesty, optimism, confidence and faith remove hazards from the game. You will also see how dishonesty, fear, doubt and infidelity create obstacles to deny people a winning ticket of achievement, satisfaction, contentment and happiness. Invariably the big winners are those who play by the "Book" of rules.

Miss Mullins comes to Southeastern from Kilgore (Texas) College, where she was a member of the "Rangerettes". Miss Mullins was one of 45 dancers selected for a tour of Hong Kong and one of 16 who represented the group in New York City.

While a student at Richmond High School, Miss Mullins was an officer in the Devilleettes, the school's dance team. As a member of the team, she performed in Pasadena, Calif. at the annual Tournament of Roses parade. The Richmond band and dance team was ranked first in Indiana in 1974 while Miss Mullins was a member of the group.

For the past two summers, she has worked with a high school band and drill team and choreographed routines for them.

Miss Mullins recently graduated from Kilgore College with an Associate of Science degree. She graduated in the top one-third of her class of 675.

FlatTop

A WHOLE NEW SHAPE IN HOME AIR CONDITIONING

A Major Breakthrough!

We call it FlatTop. Because that's what it is, the first complete line of home air conditioning cooling coils with flat tops. It's the part of the system that goes on your furnace to cool and dehumidify the air.

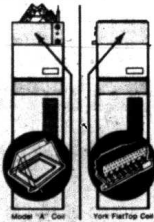

The FlatTop is only 7 1/2 inches high about half the height of ordinary "A" shaped cooling coils for a regular, easier installation, even in confined basements.

Under every "A" coil there's a square or rectangular pan to catch the humidity or condensate the coil removes. These pans often distort airflow, requiring more blower speed and power usage or creating more noise inside your home. These drain pans may also serve as pans of standing water, collecting odors, algae or other growths.

York's FlatTop ends all these problems with a new patented system of narrow, sloped troughs to drain away the condensate.

An engineering analysis and temperature test revealed that the FlatTop may extend furnace heat exchanger life and even result in heating fuel savings.

See For Yourself

York FlatTop. Half as high yet does the same cooling job. Condensate drained away by patented, sloped troughs.

Upward Bound Director Visits Berea College

The national Upward Bound director made his first visit to Berea College's program this week and gives it high praise as "an important and meaningful experience" for the 70 students from eight South Central Kentucky counties.

David Johnson, national director of student special services in Washington for the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, cited particularly its emphasis on the student learning to work with his hands.

"He is learning to do usable things and come to grips with what he is," Johnson said. Such curriculum and project activities as tomato-growing

"may not be conventional but they are meaningful." Four students and a counselor have raised 3000 tomato plants. The self-financing activity not only earns money but teaches biology by actual experience with plant propagation and culture, insects and diseases. They also learn bookkeeping and marketing, and in earlier years the Upward Bound students were a key factor in the formation of the farm cooperative through which they sell.

Johnson also praised the project's use of local resources. "They see everything as having a use, and learn about its relationship to the environment."

Material used in woodworking classes for the past six years was salvaged from a college dormitory torn down in 1971; it has gone into toys and musical instruments made for sale, and construction projects for the students' use.

Originated 11 years ago by Dr. Bill Best of the Berea faculty, the project is one year older than the national program which now numbers 450 projects.

Upward Bound is planned for high school students, with ability who do not respond to the usual classroom methods. Instead of covering subject matter in conventional ways, the Berea classes are concerned with the skills by which students learn, think, create and become aware of their potentialities. They spend eight weeks on the Berea campus during the summer and continue with regular meetings at Berea and in their home counties during the academic year. The group comes from Madison, Rockcastle, Laurel, Clinton, Wayne, McCreary, Whitley and Putnam counties.

"HOME LINE"

Choose sunglasses with your life-style in mind. For example, lifeguards, fishermen and boaters are exposed to intense light and reflected glare. So, they should wear lenses with a gradient-density coating. This coating has a mirror-like look that's dense at the top and bottom, and gradually fades to zero in the center.

Because they completely eliminate glare from flat surfaces like water, carhoods and highways, polarized lenses are another good choice for water buffs and automobile drivers. Kalichrome yellow lenses sharpen contrast and detail on hazy days, so they are ideal for hunters. But these lenses transmit 77 percent of the light, so don't wear them on sunny days or as everyday protectors.

BEREA UNION MEMBERS ATTEND CONVENTION

Union delegates of Local 70 of the Parker Seal Company, Berea, have returned from the 29th Convention of the International Brotherhood of the Firemen and Oilers, AFI-CIO.

Attending the convention at the Americana Hotel, Miami, Florida, July 12-16 were Local 70 delegate James F. McClure, Berea, President; William B. Middleton, Jr., Brodhead, Vice-President; Everett Bradley, Brodhead, Chief Union Steward; John T. Hopkins, Mt. Vernon, Trustee; Gladys K. Foster, Berea, Financial Secretary-Treasurer and Jerome Eaton, Berea, member.

While attending the convention James F. McClure served on the Constitution Committee, John T. Hopkins was appointed to serve on the Memorial Committee and Gladys K. Foster, served on the Rules Committee.

NEW CHURCH BEING BUILT IN HAMILTON, OHIO

months, he said.

The Rev. Mr. Carter, former pastor of the Pentecostal Highway of Holiness Church and a frequent visitor to this county to hold revivals, said the building will be 50 feet by 125 feet with a full basement where classrooms and a recreation room will be located.

August and summer is moving on, getting closer to fall.

We have the best corn crop in history so far, and also reports for a bumper corn crop in the corn belt. The tobacco crop has been rather uneven and blooming very low. But with the good rains it should grow out and make a very good crop.

Most early hay was short due to a dry and cool spring but late hay is doing very good and we should cut and take care of all hay possibly, in order to have plenty of feed for the winter months; also to provide extra feed this winter and early spring sowing small grain on all land that has been cultivated this summer. Even some pasture land could be seeded to grain to have extra grazing.

And it is not too late to control flies on our cattle because they can spread disease, cause pinkeys, and cattle will not gain weight when they have to run and hide from the pesky flies. These are just a few things we can do to increase our income. DOWN ON THE FARM.

Rockcastle Recollections

By John Lair

Just when I had about dispensed of getting information on any of the more numerous families in Rockcastle which I have been forced to leave out for lack of some information, I am in receipt of a voluminous and detailed account of the Cummins family. My previous search for such information had been hampered by the fact that there seemed to be two or three separate sets of Cummins in three or four different sections of the county. Now, thanks to Mrs. W. A. (Isabella) Peters, of Louisville, Kentucky, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Funk, Upper Marlboro, Maryland, they seem to have all been brought together in proper order, being brought down from the original immigrants through the present generation. Due to lack of space in our proposed history we will be unable to give complete genealogies of any family but will endeavor to cover the foundation lines.

In the case of the Cummins' family, its origin traces back to England and Scotland. It first assumes historical prominence with the killing of John Cummins by Robert Bruce of Scotland during his struggle with Edward I of England. Before that the name had been DeComyn, Robert DeComyn, half brother of William the Conqueror, had accompanied him on his invasion of England in 1066.

Earliest of the family name in Kentucky were Moses and his four oldest children, Daniel, Stephen, Moses, Jr., and Elizabeth. The latter three appear in the records of Garrard County in marriage records for 1796, 1799 and 1801.

Of the children of the original Moses

Daniel married a woman from Lincoln County (name unknown) and in 1808 sold most of his land in Garrard County and moved to Brush Creek, in Rockcastle County and in 1842 owned a farm on Negro Creek where he probably died around 1844.

Moses son, Stephen, married Clay Derman in 1801. He probably moved to Rockcastle at about the same time as Daniel. Census records for 1810 show Moses, Daniel and Stephen as residents of the county. He lived first on Brush Creek, then Skeggs Creek, then Negro Creek. Moses son, Moses, Jr., married Betsy Garrett in Garrard County in 1799 and moved to Rockcastle County in 1807 and by 1811 was living on Brush Creek. He became very prosperous, eventually owning 1,000 acres of land and several slaves.

Moses' daughter, Elizabeth, married Henry Sward in 1796. They made their home in Rockcastle County. Nothing is presently known of the other children of the original Moses.

Going into the third generation, Daniel had at least 8 children, of whom only three have been identified. Daniel, Jr., born 1796; James, born 1797 and John, born 1798.

Stephen had at least 5 children. Only one identified was Stephen, Jr., born 1814.

Moses, Jr. had 8 children. The two of record are Moses, Jr., born 1824 and James, born 1823. It is from this James that succeeding generations of the Cummins family in Rockcastle County trace. He had 10 children. Bluford Henry Cummins, Mary Francis Mullins, John Cummins died as a result of wounds in the War Between the States. Richard Cummins, Nancy Hicks (Livingston, Ky.), Granville M. Cummins m. Nancy Ann Jennings, Mathew A. Cummins m. Rebecca J. Cash, Cassius Marellus Cummins m. Sarah Francis Mullins, James Cummins m. Nannie Brown (He was a minister). Sarah E. Cummins m. Moses Payne, Mary P. Cummins m. Joseph Cummins (Not related so far as known) George W. Cummins m. Rena Payne.

During the War Between the States James Cummins, a son of Moses (III) and two of his sons, Bluford and John Cummins enlisted on the same day (July 30, 1861) in Company I, 3rd Kentucky Volunteer Infantry Regiment. All three were mustered into the United States Army at Camp Dick Robinson, Kentucky, October 8, 1861, and mustered out at Louisville, October 13, 1864. James suffered injuries to his eyes when a powder cask exploded. His condition progressively worsened and at the time of his death he was completely blind. Bluford sustained a wound to his right forearm during the Battle Above the Clouds, at Chattanooga, Tennessee. John was seriously wounded. He managed to get home but died soon after.

The Cummins family is well represented in the annals of Kentucky. Then as now many members are recorded as ministers of the Gospel, in Kentucky and elsewhere. They have been sheriffs, attorneys, judges, state legislators, with one governor of Kentucky. They have been explorers (one was with Daniel Boone), farmers, poets, musicians, school teachers, heads of railroads, home makers and historians. They are representatives of the strength and fortitude of the 18th century pioneers who founded Kentucky. Their moral courage has endured, enabling them to sustain the historic suggestion of greatness of real Americans.

Kentucky Afield

By John Wilson

Kentucky's squirrel season will open August 21 and hunters are probably wondering what kind of season to expect.

A preliminary prediction from Harold Barber, the chief forest game biologist with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, is for good hunting statewide. Squirrel populations in east and central Kentucky are up somewhat from last year, and we have a repeat of 1975's good populations in the western part of the state.

The squirrels that hunters will be seeking on opening day are the results of last winter's breeding season, when there was an ample crop of acorns and other squirrel foods. This good mast led to a good survival rate and high reproduction, so there should be plenty of squirrels this year.

But Barber also voiced a note of pessimism. An unusually early spring followed by a late freeze apparently caught many mast producing trees in the bloom stage and may cause a very poor mast crop this winter. This may mean a low population for the 1977 season, but would work to the hunter's advantage this year.

With scant food supplies this winter, the squirrels will probably be more concentrated than usual. The hunter who can locate a stand of trees which did produce mast this winter will most likely find the squirrels there in abundance.

But squirrels are seldom concentrated early in the season. The opening day hunter usually finds that he has to do a lot more stalking than is necessary in November and December. The full foliage of August is also a handicap since it makes spotting squirrels difficult.

So if your early season hunting isn't as productive as you like, don't blame it on a lack of squirrels and give up. After the leaves have dropped and food becomes more scarce, look for stands of nut bearing oaks, beech or hickory trees, take a stand and sit quietly for awhile. Chances are, you'll find squirrels.

But however you find squirrels, you still have to clean them before they can be converted to stew. A pesky and persistent problem is getting hair on the meat and later, between your teeth.

A good way to get rid of living hair is to soak the squirrels in water before dressing them. Then keep a container of water or a hose nearby to wash off any hair that remains on your hands.

For these prequizzes, the meat still is a good idea to examine the meat carefully before cooking or freezing it.

since stray hairs can impart off flavors to the squirrel.

After its August 21 opening, the squirrel season will continue through October 31. The second phase of the season will open November 18 and run through December 31, except for the December 4 through December 8 statewide gun deer season, when all small game seasons (except trapping for furbearers) will be closed.

The daily limit on squirrels is six, with a possession limit of 12 after two or more days of hunting. A possession limit of squirrel or any other fish or game species can't be held in the field.

Rockcastle County has instituted a new lunch program of the elderly. Lunch is served daily at the Rockcastle Co. Library and the lunch is free. Those attending must supply their own transportation.

"stockpiling." That is, the growth which occurs during August-November is accumulated in the field and "stockpiled" for deferred grazing during fall and winter. This accumulated growth is attractive to many farmers because it doesn't have to be cut, raked, baled, stored and fed. The grazing cattle do all of these operations.

The time to begin stockpiling for the coming winter is now! Remove cattle from fields to be stockpiled, apply the needed fertilizer and allow grass to accumulate growth until November or December. During the stockpiling period, August 1 to November 1, other available forages such as sorghum-sudan hybrids, sudangrass, bermudagrass, grass lespedeza and grass-clover should be utilized. Quality goes down rapidly on these plants after frost and, in fact, the frosted sorghums can be poisonous to livestock. After hard frost has occurred (usually about November 1), alfalfa-grass and clover-grass which has accumulated since the last hay harvest may be grazed.

All plants cannot be stockpiled for winter grazing. To the ones previously mentioned add timothy and orchardgrass. These should all be utilized, but planned stockpiling should be on fields of all these or bluegrass. These are somewhat resistant to low temperatures, retain green color into the winter and form good sods. Tall fescue produces more fall and winter growth than bluegrass.

It is good management to select for stockpiling those fields in which legume stands are almost lost. Management of the stockpiled grass is such that grass stands should be thinned some in the spring, grazed closely over the winter. If lime, phosphorus and potassium are applied in the fall, these fields are ideally suited to make renovation seedings of legumes in late winter. Ask your County Agent for a copy of Agr-26 Renovating Grass Fields if you need more information on renovation.

Fertilizer according to feed needs. The amount of growth produced is related to water, lime, phosphorus, potassium and nitrogen levels in the soil. A soil test should be made to determine lime, phosphorus and potassium needs. Nitrogen rates should be determined by the desired production level. Kentucky researchers have shown that bluegrass and fescue fertilized with 45 pounds of N per acre gave a yield increase of about 24 pounds of dry matter for each pound of nitrogen, when nitrogen was applied August 15 and yields were measured on December 1. In the same study, where both grasses were fertilized with 90 pounds of N per acre, fescue continued to return about 24 pounds of dry matter per pound of nitrogen, but bluegrass gave only about 10 pounds. One can calculate how much nitrogen to apply since one pound of N will produce approximately enough dry matter to feed a mature 1,000 pound cow for one day. The maximum rate should probably be about 60 pounds of N per acre on bluegrass and 90 pounds per acre on fescue.

What about quality? The quality of fescue in fall and early winter is better than at any other time during the year. This has been shown in many studies which agree with the data in table 1 from the University of Kentucky. Table 2 shows the changes in crude protein, total sugars and Nutritive Value Index (NVI) of tall fescue and Kentucky bluegrass over the winter. NVI is an estimate of nutritive value with good alfalfa hay having about NVI of about 70. These figures represent averages of three years research where N was applied to the grasses on August 15 and growth was stockpiled from that date. Analysis made during the October 1-March 2 period show that although the NVI and protein contents of both grasses go down, they remain acceptable feed for mature, well-conditioned beef cows. Energy value of the forage goes down rapidly during January through March as shown by the change in total sugars.

Utilization is important to profits. After frost, be sure to graze grass-legume fields first before quality deteriorates. After these fields are grazed, the stockpiled field or fields should be grazed. Light stocking will result in a lot of waste due to trampling. Unless increased production is efficiently utilized, nitrogen costs may not be recovered. To make most efficient use of the stockpiled material, a temporary fence can be used to open a new strip every week or so. Some farmers prefer to ration grass stockpiled growth by turning cattle into the field for only two or three hours each day.

Summary Stockpiling of bluegrass or fescue is an effective and inexpensive method of extending the grazing season. If lime, phosphorus, and potassium levels are adequate a good return of forage can be obtained for each pound of August applied nitrogen. These fields also provide an excellent place for the best cow herd to calve in the spring and are ideally prepared for renovation seedings of legumes.

TOBACCO
Many growers are thinking about topping their crops. At this time growers apply a sucker control chemical, sometimes in combination with a clean-up insecticide. MH (maleic hydrazide) in combination with several insecticides has produced PHYTO-TOXICITY (a burning of the tobacco leaves). Although it is common practice to do this, every year we have a small percentage of growers who get hurt. We don't know all the answers as to WHY this burn is produced. We have not been able to duplicate the damage, which leads you to explaining it away by blaming "certain atmospheric conditions." Well, forward it is forwarded. The UK College of Agriculture stand on this one is if the label does not recommend combination, then we don't. I think if you look at MH labels closely, they recommend AGAINST mixing in round-about way. For example, "MH has been used successfully with tobacco insecticides but separate application is recommended until further studies are completed."

The Hickory Grove Free Pentecostal Church held its annual Vacation Bible School July 5-9th with a total enrollment of 58 and an average attendance of 48.

Also, remember from here on in the cutting and housing of this crop, it is very important to observe days-to-harvest statements on insecticide labels so that high residues will not be left on the marketable leaf-A negative buying characteristic.

STOCKPILE GROWTH NOW FOR FALL AND WINTER GRAZING

Kentucky farmers produce excellent forages, but there are about five or six months during each year when little or no plant growth is actually being made. This requires that feed for our livestock be produced during the months when temperature and moisture are favorable for forage plant growth. This production must be stored for winter feeding.
A storage method which has increased in recent years is called

Vacationers, Beware of Too Much Sun
Sunbathers, swimmers, sports enthusiasts, and just plain loafers all have one thing in common - they are exposed to the sun's tanning and burning rays.

If your vacation takes you to the mountains, seashore or a tropical climate, or if it means long lay hours by a lake or a swimming pool, be prepared for those extra and concentrated doses of sunshine.

Sunburn hurts. And chronic exposure to the sun causes premature wrinkling and increases your chances of developing skin cancer. A tan is the skin's means of protecting itself from the ultraviolet rays of the sun. First, the skin thickens its outer layers. Second, it forms color granules on its surface, which results in a tan.

You must pay careful attention to the location and the timing of a tan to avoid a painful sunburn, especially when on a vacation. Begin by lying out in the sun for only 15 minutes on the first day. Increase the time gradually as your skin becomes conditioned to the ultraviolet rays.

A tan will also be affected by your distance from the sun. If you travel to a vacation spot closer to the equator, you will be more susceptible to the sun. If it has a dry climate, the sun's rays are stronger. Mountain areas are closer to the sun and the air is thin, so there is less atmosphere to filter the rays. Beaches, swimming pools and lakes are additional places where you will burn more quickly. In these areas, the rays not only shine directly onto your skin, they are also reflected from the sand and water.

The time of day is another important factor for avoiding sunburns. The sun is at its hottest from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. During these times, a sunbather should beware of staying out too long.

There are three different kinds of suntan lotions: a sunblock, a sunscreen, and an oil or butter. The type of lotion you use will depend on your skin coloring. People with extremely sensitive skin should use a sunblock lotion. Sunblocks keep out all ultraviolet rays. They prevent sun exposure that can result in blister and skin breakdown as well as sunburns.

The white-posed lifeguards at your local pool use sunblocks for the delicate parts of their skin which are exposed every day. The white cream is zinc oxide, an unobtrusive but effective kind of sunblock.

If you are fair-skinned, you should use a lotion which contains a sunscreen. Sunscreens filter out all the ultraviolet rays, minimizing burning, skin damage, and freckling. Weekend sunbathers should also use sunscreens.

People with medium-to-dark complexions should start with a sunscreen lotion. Then, when your tan is formed, you can use oils or butters. Most of them do not contain any sunscreens at all. They just help keep the skin from drying out.

Every sun-worshiper should start out the vacation with a sunscreen or sunblock. One year's tan is started, decide for yourself which suntan lotions to use. Dermatologists say that all fair-skinned people with a family history of skin cancer should always use a sunscreen.

Read the lotion's printed directions and list of ingredients carefully to determine which type of protection it offers. Price is not necessarily an indication of quality, either. You may find that two lotions with identical ingredients have a big price difference.

Are You Wearing Sunglasses or Just "Fun Glasses"?

Any part of your body that is exposed to the sun very long needs to be covered: skin by a suntan lotion, hair by a scarf, and eyes by sunglasses.

Sunglasses are important protectors, and you shouldn't treat them as seasonal items. You need to wear them year-round for hunting, fishing, driving, swimming, anything that takes you out in bright sunlight.

Your eyes use up at least 25 percent of all your physical energy. When eyes are exposed to glare or strain from poor-quality glasses, this percentage climbs.

Also, research shows night vision is reduced 50 to 90 percent after you've spent a few hours outdoors on a bright day without proper glare protection.

The trick is to buy the right kind of sunglasses. Opticians tell us that our best color choices are neutral gray or sage green. These shades are the best for blocking out sunlight. Glasses with rainbow or light colors ranging from blues to reds to yellows are more of a fashion accessory than anything else. They won't give your eyes the protection they need.

An effective lens allows 19 to 30 percent transmission of light. A good test is to look into a mirror while you're wearing the glasses. If you can clearly see your eyes, the glasses will not very effectively guard your eyes from glare. (Unless you're testing those changing photochromic lenses. These lenses clear indoors and darken outdoors in the sunlight.)

Another sign of quality is the lack of image distortion. To test this, turn the glasses so that an overhead light reflects on the inside of the lens. Move the glasses slightly so the reflection travels across the lens. If the image distorts, you have a faulty lens that can cause eye strain.

Frames also give clues to quality. Good frames, whether plastic or metal, fit comfortably and snugly and have strong hinges with replaceable screws. A metal core in plastic ear pieces is another indication of superior frames. These cores help prevent stretching and let you bend the frames for comfortable fit. (Cont'd to p-10)

A fervent turtle hunter recently caught this 24 lb. baby at Lake Linville. Clyde Owens has a simple way of catching turtles. All he has to do is run his hand back to the turtle hole and pull him out. He said he had a hard time pulling this one out from its hole. The turtle measured 15 inches across its back.
