

and sell such items as bicycles, Bibles, antiques, glassware, books, clothing, toys, shoe knobs and other items.

President Hunt also stated that this would be the last club sponsored market for this year and the club hoped to have at least 25 dealers or vendors and that anyone can set up a table for a charge of $3 per space. The club uses this money in their charity projects.

The club has expressed a desire that people wishing to set up a table call and reserve a space. Call one of the following Lions members who will be working at the market: Mr. Hunt, at 6-2821; Floyd Owens at 6-2821; Estil Hodges, 6-2821; Lee Durham, 6-2408; Robert Witt, 6-2397; Joe Adams, 6-2526; Charles Barr, 6-2316; Ernie Johnson, 6-2876; Gerald Thompson, 6-2112 or Marvin Hensley, 6-4084.

The club hopes to promote the market to have a good crowd for the vendors. Also anyone wishing to donate items to the Lions Club for them to sell and keep the money for their charity projects may call any of the above members and arrangements will be made to pick up the items.

The co-chairman of the flea market have asked that each vendor arrange for their own sales tax, if tax is collected, and the co-chairman announced they plan to have a "table title contest" whereby the operators are asked to put a sign on their tables for help in identifying tables and to create a little humor in shopping. The titles could be such titles as "Pet's Pickings", "Bills Bargains", "The 'Wot-Not' Table" or "Julius Junque" or the best idea you can think of to identify your table, and the space rent will be given free to the winner of the table title contest.

So, to those who plan to display and sell, gather your tricks and think of a good title, and to those who visit, look and buy, prepare for some bargains.

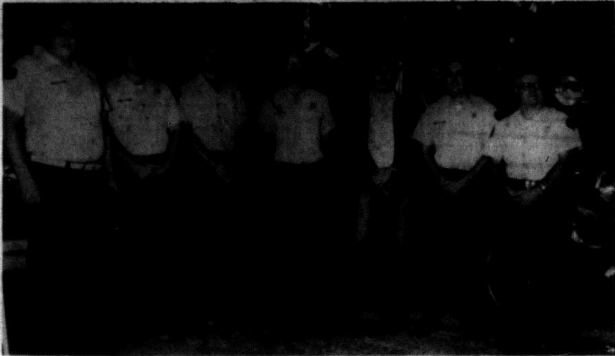

Help A Good Thing Grow

Volunteer adult and teen leaders are needed to help guide 4-H'ers in projects and activities that fit their interests. Leaders work with 5 to 7 youngsters in some 50 different subject areas. If your interest is gardening or rocketry or just helping others, 4-H needs you. We'll help you. If you want to lead, you can. You really can.

by Mr. Cox and other Mt. Vernon firemen. He also discussed the burning of the Angus building which once stood being the present bank, and said that it was definitely the largest blaze ever in Mt. Vernon.

Whether or not the laws permit the entire fire department or truck to fight a blaze, Chief Cox will always go even if it is with his pick-up truck and fire extinguishers. He has been known to fight a blaze alone when the necessity arose.

It is comforting to know that carrying on the American tradition, there are people in our community who will help anyone, anytime, anywhere, if aid is requested. Chief John Cox is presented as the epitome of that tradition.

FAIRVIEW

By Mrs. Hubert Chasteen

Worship services were well attended at Fairview over the week end and ninety five attended Sunday School classes.

Baptismal services were conducted our church Sunday night August 22nd with good attendance.

We enjoyed very much the message Sunday of Rev. Houston Lanier, a speaker from the Temperance League of Kentucky. He spoke on the "Evil of Drugs and Alcohol."

Attending the Gospel Singing at Macedonia Baptist Church Saturday night were Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Chasteen, Miss Jewell Alexander and Mrs. Thyrus Blair. A large crowd attended with 18 churches represented and three ministers. Everyone enjoyed the many groups of good gospel singers. May God bless each one of them to continue in the good work they are doing.

Several from around Fairview attended and enjoyed the Gospel Singing held at the Roundstone Church Saturday night. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Cetus Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Malone, Tim and Tammy Anderlin Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wren, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Wren and family, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Isaacs, and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Anderlin and Cheryl, Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Mullins and family, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Vaughn, Mrs. Chester Roe and children, Mrs. Paulette Ponder and son, Clady Helton, Vonda Croucher, Sherwood, Gary and Kenny Pickle.

Mrs. Willard Todd and John T. Stephens are hospital patients at this time and need our prayers. May God bless them both to be well again. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Pickle, Kenny and Gary and Michael recently enjoyed a 10-day vacation touring several western states. They spent three days with Mrs. Pickles nephew, Sgt. and Mrs. Ernest M. Lamoy, Jr. at Elsworth Air Force Base, Rapid City, South Dakota. Highlights of the trip included visits to the Badlands and Mt. Rushmore National Memorial and a tour through the Black Hills. After going on into Wyoming the family returned home, visiting several historical places on the way.

Mrs. Luther (Mary Lou) Cox and Mrs. Shirley (Mamie) Phillips of Richmond visited Mrs. Mona Treon and Mrs. Gladys Rose Monday.

A surprise potluck supper was given Friday night in honor of Mrs. Doris Gabbard's birthday. The event was held in the church basement, sponsored by her Sunday School class and teacher. Attending were Mr. Wesley Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. John Gilliam, John Lynn and David, Mrs. Cliflene Bowman, and Robin, Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Gabbard and Gail Lee, Cetus Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Malone, and Clark Mullins II, Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Pickle and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Pickle and family. A beautiful birthday cake was presented to Mrs. Gabbard and she received a very nice gift from her class. A very enjoyable evening was had by all. We all wish Mrs. Gabbard many happy returns of the day.

Mrs. Gladys Rose entertained her Sunday School Class members Friday night with a cook-out at her home. Present were Cheryl Viers, Kitty Pickle, Jerri Wren, Susan Wren, Judy Cain, Koley Poynter, Cynthia Rose, Jeff Joynette, Randy Cain, Sherwood Pickle, Jesse Mullins, and Bonnie Abney. They had a very enjoyable evening together.

We welcome Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chasteen and family to our vicinity. They moved from Richmond to the Cancer Thomas place near Fairview. Please remember, Church and Sunday School. God bless you all.

Canning Tablets For Tomatoes

Now you can buy salt and citric acid tablets for the safe canning of your tomatoes. Food scientists at the University of Kentucky have tested these tablets and found them to have the correct amount of citric acid for both safety and flavor.

Use according to the directions — two tablets per quart and one tablet per pint of tomatoes. If you're on a low sodium diet, don't use the tablets. Instead, add 1/2 teaspoon of citric acid per quart or 1/4 teaspoon per pint of tomatoes.

Don't confuse citric acid with ascorbic acid. You can use ascorbic acid to help fruits keep their fresh color, but citric acid is what to buy for canning tomatoes.

You should be able to find the salt and citric acid canning tablets at the grocery or the "food grade" citric acid at the drug store.

Last Year's Canned Tomatoes

If you canned tomatoes last year without adding acid and you still have some left, don't let them go to waste unless they show signs of spoilage. Use them only in cooked foods, casseroles and sauces. For safety's sake, also boil your canned tomato juice for 10 minutes before testing or drinking it.

Don't Forget Canner Rack

Don't forget to put the rack in your steam pressure or water bath canner when you're processing foods. It keeps the jars from touching the bottom of the canner and also makes it handy for lifting jars out of the canner when you're finished.

If you don't use it, you run the risk of jars cracking from contact with the intense heat on the bottom of the canner. If this happens, don't try to salvage the contents, there may be tiny splinters of glass in the food.

Artificial Sweeteners

You can use an artificial sweetener instead of sugar in canning fruit. Add according to the manufacturer's directions or can the fruit without sweetener.

The Mt. Vernon Signal, P-16
Thursday, August 26, 1976

and add it later on. Sugar or a sweetener isn't necessary to preserve the fruit, but it does help fruit keep its natural color and firmness.

Loss of Liquid In Jars

It's a common problem and there are several reasons for it. Food may be packed in too tightly; jars may be too full (not enough headspace); a steam leakage at the petcock of your pressure canner may cause fluctuating pressure; or you may have lowered the pressure too fast.

To keep this from happening, follow your canning instructions to the letter; be sure that your pressure gauge is accurate, that your gasket fits tightly and that there are no steam leaks. Don't let pressure fluctuate during processing, then allow pressure to return to zero by setting canner off the source of heat, away from a draft or air conditioning. Don't ever run cold water over top or set it in cold water.

If there is a loss of liquid, never open the jar to refill it. That would let bacteria in and you would have to reprocess the food. If liquid is lost, food will still be safe to eat, even though food above liquid may darken.

Freeze Melons Now For Winter Treat
While melons are plentiful in your own garden or local market, freeze some for winter meals. Watermelon, cantaloupe and honeydew melons are all easy to freeze.

Use only top quality melons. Remove the seeds, peel and cut melon into slices, cubes or balls. Cover with a cold sugar syrup, using two cups sugar for every four cups water, or pack dry in bags using no sugar. Expel as much air as possible from the bag, seal and freeze immediately.

When using frozen melons, freeze them partially thawed, especially those frozen without sugar. Melon slices frozen in a sugar syrup will maintain their texture better and be firmer after thawing.

County Agent's Notes

COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT
FOR AGRICULTURE

NOT AN ENDANGERED SPECIE

There are five species of cockroaches that can drop in at your home. They range in length from half an inch to two inches and vary in color from yellowish or reddish brown to black. So you may pick a color that won't clash with your decor, if you have a choice. Because you may not see any roaches doesn't necessarily mean they're not there. Cockroaches hide during the day and come out at night to forage. They feed on garbage as well as your choice foods. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, cockroaches may transmit human diseases, particularly those caused by food poisoning organisms. They contaminate and spoil human food. They eat starch and glue, so may damage fabrics, garments, curtains, books, papers and many other materials. The only certain way of keeping your home free of cockroaches is with good housekeeping and when necessary the use of insecticide. The following insecticides will control all kinds of cockroaches, including the very populous German cockroach: diazinon, malathion, propoxur or ronnel. Lindane also works except where German cockroaches have become resistant to it. Use insecticides according to direction on the label. Wouldn't it be nice if the cockroach became an endangered species?

Enyomias - Powdery Mildew
Powdery mildew disease of Eunyomias, caused by a fungus called Oidium eunyomijaponici, has been occurring throughout the summer and is becoming more serious during the late summer months. The typical symptom of the disease is the white layer of fungus growth produced on the surface of the plant leaves and stems. Spores produced by the fungus can be blown by the wind or carried by rainsplash to new plants, initiating new mildew infections. Other plants such as pin oak, tulip poplar, lilac, and zinnia will also be showing symptoms of powdery mildew diseases (each caused by a slightly different species of fungus) this time of year.

Sprays of Actidione PM, Benomyl, Karathane, or wettable sulfur, applied when mildew first appears and repeated at 7 to 10 day intervals as needed will control powdery mildew disease.

TURFGRASS-RHIZOCTONIA BROWN PATCH

Turfgrass specimens with Rhizoctonia brown patch disease have been observed in the plant disease diagnostic laboratory. The disease occurs in more or less circular areas varying from a few inches to several feet in diameter. The infected portions of the plants are first water-soaked and dark colored, they then wilt and become light brown as the tissue dies. Generally, not all the plants in an affected area are infected. In the early morning when the grass is wet, an affected area that is rapidly enlarging is often ringed by a narrow zone of dark-colored, recently-infected grass. Rhizase and sporeform of the Rhizoctonia fungus pathogen are often abundant on darkened leaves. The fungal material disappears rapidly as the sun and wind begin to dry out the turfgrass.

Although the disease is most destructive to bentgrass, bluegrass may also become infected. The disease can be controlled by using one of several appropriate fungicides, including Daconil 2787, Actidione Thiram, Dyrene or Fore. The disease is most prevalent during hot, humid weather.

CORN-CRAZY TOP

Crazy top is the common name of a corn disease caused by the downy mildew fungus, Sclerophthora macrospora. The most characteristic symptom of this disease is the pyral or complete proliferation of the tassels which continues until the tassel resembles a mass of leafy structures. Leaves of infected plants may be narrow, strap-like and leathery. Stunting and chlorotic striping of leaves are other common symptoms.

Spores of the fungus may be present in the soil. These spores infect plants where soils have been saturated for 24 to 48 hours shortly after planting or before plants are in the 4-5 leaf stage. The fungus develops systemically and is most abundant in the meristematic tissues. Crazy top control is best achieved through adequate soil drainage and by avoiding low wet areas for planting corn.

TOBACCO-HOLLOW STALK

Hollow stalk has caused more trouble in tobacco fields this year than usual. It is soft rot of the pith and stem tissues and is caused by the same bacterium that causes blackleg in tobacco beds. The disease attacks tissues of mature to almost mature tobacco plants.

Infection may occur through insects wounds or through the wound left by breaking out the top. The top leaves wilt and infection spreads downward. The leaves drop and hang down or fall off. In severe cases and during rainy periods, the plants may rot completely in a few hours.

No preventive measures are known so are they thought to be necessary because so few plants in a field are affected by this disease.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION FOR USE OF COAL SEVERANCE ECONOMIC AID

Coal severance economic aid cannot be expended for health scholarships, according to an opinion from the state Attorney General's Office. The opinion to John C. Wolff, Jr., project director at the University of Kentucky for the Southeastern Kentucky Health Professions Scholarship Program.

Wolff asked an opinion on the use of coal severance tax receipts for the program which supports students from 16 of the coal producing counties. The program is directed toward meeting the health manpower needs of Bell, Harlan, Breathitt, Clay, Jackson, Knott, Laurel, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Owsley, Perry, Rockcastle, Whitley and Wolfe counties.

Charles W. Runyan, assistant deputy attorney general wrote in the opinion that legislation controlling the use of coal tax funds authorizes expenditures for capital improvement projects.

Dayton, Ohio Man Killed In Head-on Collision With Trucks

Robert C. Benge, 24, of Dayton, Ohio was killed instantly at approximately 11:30 p.m. Saturday, August 21, 6 miles south of Mt. Vernon on Interstate 75. Mr. Benge died of massive head and internal injuries following an accident involving his car and three tandem trucks. One truck driver was also injured but was treated and released at a local hospital.

According to state police reports, Benge had traveled across the I-75 median at some point and was traveling south in the northbound lane at a high rate of speed. He struck a pair of the trucks head on. One was in the left lane passing the other. The truck in left lane then went, out of control, across the median, and struck another truck traveling south.

Benge was an employee of Kroger, Inc., in Dayton, Ohio.

When the collision occurred the auto literally disintegrated throwing Benge forward and initiating the series of injuries that led to his death. Individuals who viewed the scene stated that this was probably the most destruction done to an auto in a single accident in their memories.

Trooper Danny Coleman is conducting a routine accident investigation. Benge's remains were returned to Ullmer & Son Funeral Home in Dayton.

Brown Urges "Yes" Vote On Beef Referendum

Vote "yes" on the September 7 check-off referendum and help insure a bright future for Kentucky's beef industry, Roy Brown urges Rockcastle County beef producers.

The beef cattle industry is by far the largest segment of U.S. Agriculture and has the potential to become the largest segment of Kentucky Agriculture, he says. And to reach this potential and keep the industry moving forward, more beef research and promotion is essential. Recent state legislation gives Kentucky cattlemen the opportunity to develop such program for promotion consumer education research.

For this industry-financed program to become reality, cattle producers must vote favorably on the check-off referendum to be held this fall, Mr. Brown continues. Under the proposal, cattlemen would pay 10 cents per head on cattle sold into a fund to finance this self-help program. This amount would be checked off at the time of sale and sent monthly to the Kentucky Beef Cattle Association by the auction market officials. Producers not wishing to participate could request refunds.

"The Kentucky Beef Cattle Association will administer the promotion education, research program, and since the Association board is elected by the beef producers of Kentucky, those contributing to the program would maintain control of the program," notes Mr. Brown.

"It is essential that all beef producers support the proposed program," he goes on. There is no such thing as sitting still in today's farming business. We either progress or go backward. Can we afford not to invest in making beef a better value for consumers and a more profitable source of income for our industry?"

Smith Powell, KBCA President, has pointed out that one food company General Mills spends more money per year on just research and development that is spent on all beef research and promotion in the entire United States, adding that much of the General Foods' research probably concerns meat substitutes. Grand Jury Highway Dept. To Recommend Westernmost Route For KY 461

The July term of the Grand Jury found a few things wrong with the Courthouse and commended the library for its excellent state of repair and stated that it felt that more proper facilities should be found for housing the county's ambulance service than where it is presently located.

The Grand Jury's report reads in full as follows:

COURTHOUSE

The main front entrance overhand has suffered severe water damage and needs replaced or repaired. The recessed light fixtures are rusted out beyond repair. Cracked glass at this entrance needs to be replaced. The ceiling inside the entrance way is very dirty and needs painted badly. Front doors need extensive refinishing.

There is severe water leak damage to several areas which include both wall plaster damage and ceiling damage. Past repairs have not helped. The areas of this type include the ASCS office, Health Office, the County Extension Offices, the County Attorney's Office, Sheriff's Offices, Court Room, and ceiling damages in the records vault of the County Court Clerk's Office. Severe water leaks and damage in Judges Chambers adjoining Court Room.

The Health Office shows clear evidence of poor housekeeping such as dirty floors, accumulated dirt on baseboards and walls and rusty and dirty trash cans.

Old dirty and worn mattresses in the janitor's closet should be disposed of as they are a rat and fire trap. Old records stored in this janitor's closet or storage room are not maintained in any order of good records storage and are not protected from dirt and other abuse of disorderly housekeeping.

The stairway lights have the glass covers either removed or missing creating an unsightly scene.

The public restrooms in all three floors need general upgrading in their custodial care. Trash cans are rusty and should be replaced and have plastic liners used. Broken wall mirrors should be replaced where needed. A missing wall switch cover in the bed floor men's room is missing and could cause physical damage due to shock.

The stairway aluminum hand rails need cleaned completely. It is evident they are seldom if ever cleaned.

It is recommended that all painted areas be brought up to good repairs with new paint and maintained in that manner on a routine or scheduled basis.

With the exception of severely stained and unsightly toilets and urinals in the jail, it was found to be in good repair and supervision. We highly recommend renovation or replacement of these fixtures.

LIBRARY AND AMBUL. SERVICE

We found the Library to be maintained in an excellent state of repair and management. We however, recommend that other more suitable quarters be found for the ambulance service due to this building is not or was not intended to house ambulances or provide living quarters for those attending on duty 24 hours per day. Also, these men share the dining rooms for the elderly and their sleeping rooms.

SADDLE CLUB TO HOLD ANNUAL LABOR DAY COOK-OUT

The annual Labor Day Cook-out of the Rockcastle County Saddle Club will be held Friday night, September 6 at 7:30 p.m. at Renfro Valley.

A charge of $1.00 will be made to non-members but members will be admitted free.

Meat, beverage and dessert will be furnished but those attending are asked to bring a vegetable dish.

OPTIMIST CLUB TO HOLD CHARTER BANQUET

The Rockcastle-Mt. Vernon Optimist Club will hold its charter banquet Saturday, August 28. The affair will be held at the Holiday Family Restaurant at 7 p.m.

This banquet will incorporate the official charter of the area chapter of Optimist International with a meal and presentation of charter membership certificates to those who qualify. Guest speakers will be present from other clubs in this district.

Tickets are $6 and may be obtained through Gary Crouner, Kenny Robinson, Roger Coldiron or the Mt. Vernon Signal Office.

Members are encouraged to attend since this is probably the most important event in the chartering of the club. Wives, of course, are equally welcome to enjoy a fine meal and find out what Optimist International is all about.

A year ago this month, a group of local citizens attended a KY 461 Pre-hearing Conference at the high school concerning proposed corridor of the KY 461 Somerset-Mt. Vernon Road in Pulaski and Rockcastle Counties. Tuesday, the Signal contacted D.J. Garland, Assistant District Engineer for planning to learn the present status of plans for the highway and were told that the final environmental impact statement had not been submitted to the Federal Highway Administration. But, the most surprising thing Mr. Garland said was that the route which would be proposed to the Federal Highway Administration for their approval would be the Westernmost route or Alternate 3. This route follows the originally recommended Alternate 1 route to Level Green where it veers to the west more.

Mr. Garland said that following the approval of the environmental impact statement, that a location approval (for the westernmost route) would be requested after which design of the highway would begin. When this is completed, another public hearing will be held to show property owners exactly how the new highway will affect them. Once the design is complete, surveying will begin and then right-of-way will be purchased. Mr. Garland said that the following purchase of the right-of-way, construction will progress according to the availability of funds. The highway will be paid for with 70% federal funds and 30% state highway funds.

The time schedule is approximately this, according to Mr. Garland: 1 1/2 to 2 years for design and 1 to 1 1/2 year for acquiring right-of-way plus construction time. So, actually, the total time until the highway is completed is hard to figure.

The westernmost route which will be recommended is the dark line farthest to the left in the aerial map printed on page 11 of this week's Signal.

Fire Chief John Cox There When You Need Him

By Roger Coldiron

It has long been American Tradition that a community spirit pervades nearly each and every neighborhood across the country. A community spirit which motivates members to act when a call for aid is issued by an individual. Mt. Vernon is no different from other small towns in the United States, perhaps even luckier, that we have outstanding citizens who will individually or as a group respond when help is needed.

A particularly active member of our community has been responsive to these needs since 1937 when he joined the Mt. Vernon Volunteer Fire Dept. John Cox has always been a citizen of Mt. Vernon, who has taken an active interest in the needs of the town and is always available for help when a threatening situation confronts anyone in this community.

Mr. Cox's only respite from the Fire Dept. was a period during which he was engaged in U.S. Combat operations in Europe. He entered the U.S. Army in 1944 and served in various parts of Europe until 1946. Previous to that time he had worked in his father's hardware store here. He was a member of the 102nd Infantry Division which landed at Omaha Beach during World War II. He was engaged with German forces until the end of the war and remained in Europe until 1946 when he was released from active duty.

Mr. Cox then returned to Mt. Vernon to his father's store and to service of the community in the Fire Department and became the fire chief when Bill Cox of Mt. Vernon died.

Chief Cox born in Mt. Vernon in 1919, the son of Claude and Amy Proctor Cox, he graduated from Mt. Vernon High School in 1937, the same year he became a fireman and went into business with his father. It is perhaps relevant to note his fine reputation for business practices as well as his dedication and service to the community.

Upon being asked what his most memorable experiences in Mt. Vernon were, the conversation immediately turned to past fires. Large ones, small ones, fatal and near fatal fires, were mentioned. Chief Cox talked of Jack Fish being trapped in a second story window of the old post office building while the interior blazed. Mr. Fish narrowly escaped tanks to action taken

Bigotry Has No Place In American Way Of Life

By Roger Callahan

Bigotry has become one of the most explosive issues ever confronted by the American people since the conception of the American freedom experiment. Unfortunately, racial bigotry in all its various forms at one time was an intrinsic part of American social lives. A caste system grew and was nurtured in our society. The Black man, the Chinese, Mexicans, Irish, Jews, Catholics, all except the white Anglo-Saxon protestants were not freely accepted in the "melting pot" of the world. As free and equal citizens capable of making decisions. In large part this old bigotry has led to newer forms of bias and chauvinism.

Confronting the American way of life are threatening issues which could again promote a bigotry of a different sort. The feminists have again and again mounted their forces and battled those whom they call "male chauvinist."

However, the word "chauvinism" comes from a man named Nicholas Chauvin who was a Napoleonic Soldier noted for his fierce patriotism in the name of France. The word has taken on a connotation of unrestrained dedication and boastfulness to one's own sex, race, creed, or way of life. It is obvious that though feminism could use the word "chauvinist" in a degrading fashion for their purposes, it could easily be directed toward them in reference to their obviously bigoted attitudes.

One cannot be opposed to equal pay for equal work or equal contributions. But exceptions must be taken as far as equal pay for less work is concerned. A race in point is the recent announcement that a boycott of the next Wimbledon Tennis tournament unless the female participants are given equal pay. However, it must be noted that women spend approximately half as much time on the courts as their male counterparts, and additionally more paying fans are present for the men's competition. Payment has always been relative to the ability of a performer to draw crowds.

The new evening TV show "All In The Family" made possible the open viewing of bigotry in it's open and in it's latent forms. Archie Bunker's open, unrestrained confidence that his beliefs were always right led to his normally winning arguments, but constantly decreasing stature.

The same principle applies to political bigotry and chauvinism. People who were informed of the supposed principles of political party in previous years and were indoctrinated to the point of brainwashing in the "true" principles of that party continue their narrow minded approach to elective offices. Whether Democratic, Republican, or leaning Independent one side is heard and if not agreed with is well considered better than the facts on the other side.

This approach led us into the dark days of Vietnam social security ineptness, the welfare jungle, and deplorable Watergate. The bigoted, chauvinistic view of the political scene has produced a U.S. Congress capable only of massive attempts to empty the national treasury, stretch the national deficit, and pass legislation it knows will not cross the desk in the Oval Office intact.

In the coming year it could lead to restrictions on the purchasing and ownership of firearms (See Bill of Rights of the Constitution of the U.S. Amendment 11) it could also lead to free and unrestricted abortions. (See same Constitution Amendment 14) The same "party loyalty" could lead to the continued meddling of the federal government in a sovereign state's affairs - busing. Socialization of medicine and socialist government economic foundations are obvious and weighty considerations. The building of a government based economy is a mistake on any level - federal, state, county or city.

Important political considerations are blatantly obvious in this election year. Party differences as well as standing here. Intelligent decisions must be made for the benefit of society and of the individual. However decisions based on the listening and understanding of one side are as foolish as trying to fly an airplane with one wing. Both sides need to be heard and an individual in depth evaluation of each side must be made. Chauvinism and bigotry have no place in the American political spectrum. Curtailed of the American individual freedom could easily result from a half hearted interest in this year's national election. The only way to prevent such a tragic event to listen, evaluate, and decide for one's own self and not follow the dictates of others.

FRANKFORT WATCHLINE

By Ferrell Willman

Kentucky will be getting a new Commerce Commissioner this fall. Commissioner Larry Townsend, 36, is resigning effective October 1 to return to his personal business endeavors.

The Mt. Vernon Signal, P-2 Thursday, August 26, 1976

Townsend was one of the charter members of the Julius Carroll team. He joined the Carroll Administration in February 1975 shortly after Carroll assumed the governorship. Townsend has been associated with millionaire Louisville businessman John Y. Brown in several fast food chains. Townsend's tenure was much like his business affairs: a success. Townsend broke new ground for Kentucky during his commissionership. New foreign investment in the state was encouraged and attempts were made to expand the market for Kentucky products.

Governor Carroll led a trade mission to Japan. A similar trip will be made to four European countries in September. Industrial search trips have been made to California and six north-eastern states. In the past 18 months, 319 businesses were established or expanded in Kentucky. More than 10,000 new jobs were created and 478 million dollars have been invested. Despite these attractive statistics, there are some in state government who will be glad to see Townsend depart.

A power struggle of sorts was under way in the Kentucky Development Cabinet which contains the Commerce Department. The egos of Development Secretary William Short and Townsend had clashed on occasion. Townsends ego was a sore point with some in state government. "Administration sources say Townsend spoke out of turn recently when there was speculation Ashland Oil might move its corporate headquarters from Ashland to Louisville or Houston, Texas.

"I think we've got contacts established and our program going," Townsend was quoted as saying in Louisville Times report on his resignation. "It's time for someone else to come in and handle the detail work, because that's not my forte. I'm more of a creator. I like to put things together then move on."

Governor Carroll has told me he had not yet begun to interview candidates for the job, but hopes to make an appointment in the next six weeks. One name frequently mentioned as a possible successor to Townsend is Katherine Peden. Peden served as Commerce Commissioner during the Breathitt Administration in the sixties. A strong supporter of the Equal Rights Amendment, she is a successful industrial consultant in Louisville. Katherine Peden is not the type of individual who would be satisfied to just supervise the detail work left by a previous administrator.

Another high ranking position is also available in state government since Governor Carroll appointment Deputy Justice Secretary Anthony Wilhoit of Versailles to the new Kentucky Court of Appeals.

"That's what we didn't need," said one in the administration. "We don't need another vacancy in Justice," referring to the recent shake-up in the Justice Cabinet as a result of the problems in the Bureau of Corrections. Wilhoit received nothing but praise from a high administration official who like his performance during a trying period in state government.

HARRIS REVIEWS WAREHOUSE LAWS

Tobacco warehousemen in 32 Kentucky markets have received reviews of state laws on tobacco marketing by Agriculture Commissioner Thomas O. Harris in a recent series of meetings.

Harris said he felt the meetings were necessary because he felt that few of the warehousemen, and practically none of the tobacco growers were aware of all points of the law, particularly the section that dealt with rebates and preferential treatment.

Commissioner Harris noted that laws against rebates and preferential treatment of individual tobacco growers by warehousemen were enacted by the General Assembly in 1940. "I am sworn to enforce our laws and will do my best to see that equal advantages are afforded all farmers," Commissioner Harris declared at each meeting.

The meetings with warehousemen began April 7. Each representative was supplied a copy of the law and heard a presentation by Commissioner Harris and George L. Johnson, Director of the Kentucky Division of Weights and Measures. Johnson's division is in charge of enforcement of the law.

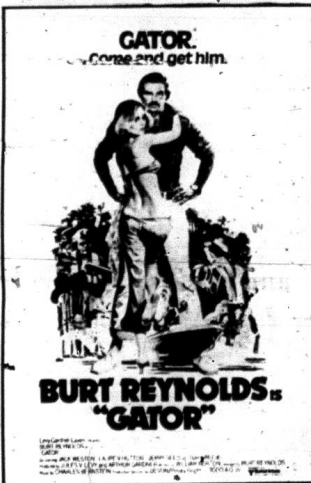

Commissioner Harris also said he had the full support of the Tobacco Auction Warehouse Association, which represents most of the buyers in the markets in the eight state buying areas. Although none of the other states have a law like Kentucky's, he said most of the transactions in those states would cooperate with Kentucky's law. He had already met with tobacco warehousemen in the other seven

Rockcastle Recollections

By John Lair

In a recent issue of the Mt. Vernon Signal, Dr. James W. McCaleb, who was also at one time the superintendent of public instruction for Rockcastle County, I can verify this for Mr. Johnson, as it was my grandfather, Judge Jerome Burke Lair, who appointed him to that position to fill a vacancy which had occurred in that office. Dr. Davis was at the time living in Lincoln County where Judge Lair offered him the appointment, following which the doctor moved his family to Mt. Vernon. My recollection is that after the term of his appointment expired he was duly elected for another full term by the voters of the county.

The description given by Mr. Johnson of the unusual treatment successfully rendered by Dr. Davis in the instance under discussion adds another to the sensationally successful operations known to have occurred in the early days of this county. The first would be that of David Bill Adams, performed on a man from Green County, whose name has not been recalled. It was previously noted in this column, although perhaps not sufficiently explained in detail to allow the reader to clearly understand the process. As it was told to me by David Adams' one hundred year old grandson and by my grandfather Lair, an eye witness to part of the proceedings, a small section of the victim's skull was broken in when his head struck the corner of a large stone doorstep. The "water doctor" who was called in on the case said that some sort of operation would have to be performed to remove the broken skull bone from pressing on the brain. When the doctor expressed himself as being afraid to try to remedy the condition, Adam drove him away and declared his intention of doing something about it himself.

After due thought and consultation with his wife, he had his overseer clamp a pair of forceps on the loose skin of the scalp over the depression and raise it even with or a little above the other part of the scalp. He then ran a knitting needle through it, allowing the ends to extend beyond the broken spot and rest on the solid part of the skull. This held the broken section up off the brain tissue and in time healing took place, the needles were removed and the man lost no time in heading back to Green County.

The next notable example of successful surgery under extremely unfavorable conditions is well remembered by many citizens of the county today. It occurred following a pistol battle between Elzie Langford and Dave Clark in which Langford was shot in the head, with a considerable amount of his brain matter coming out the bullet hole. A Dr. Pennington, a successful medical practitioner from London, Kentucky happened to be in Mt. Vernon that day and the injured man was turned over to him for treatment, although his case was generally considered hopeless.

Later in the day, several of the boys of which I was one, were approached by our compatriot, Herbert "Derby" Cox. In a most secretive and mysterious manner he informed us that he had something to show us. Experience had long since taught us that when "Derby" had something to show us it was worth looking at, so we immediately fell in and followed him across a convenient back lot, to the big springhouse below the original James McCaleb home. After looking at the Tip Langford Farm Slipping silently into this springhouse, we saw an ordinary china dinner plate resting in the shallow water where the head of the victim had been. A smaller plate was inverted on the larger plate as a cover for its contents. When "Derby" carefully lifted this smaller plate we saw a pliable, convoluted mass which he assured us positively was part of the brains from Langford's head, which Dr. Pennington was keeping on hand as a specimen for his treatment by retaining them to their original position.

Filled with wonder and something of a feeling of guilt we hurried away from the scene and took no further interest in proceedings. We later heard that the doctor did replace the brain tissue and we were all, for many years, witnesses to the fact that Langford was alive and apparently in good general health, although there were times when he was unable to speak for many days, a terrible affliction and he was temporarily unbalanced. While in this case the doctor was an experienced surgeon and had seen many cases that resulted as he was as were common to a small town druggist, his refrigeration process was at least such as to make this a rather unusual case.

Dr. Davis' handling of his case, already discussed in the pages of the Signal by Mr. Johnson, was in direct violation of all medical procedure. His successful termination; was all the more amazing. It seems that the part of the stomach protruding through the stab wounds had entangled in the point where it could not be pushed back into the cavity and a rib had to be sawed out to enlarge the opening so that this could be accomplished. House also had enough, but when you take into consideration that while the stomach and intestines were outside the body cavity they had been saturated with blood and sand and ground in dirt, not all of which could be removed. In the absence of proper antiseptics it seems impossible that severe infection did not set in and bring about the death of the patient. But, all's well that ends well, as it seem to have done in this case.

In a fourth example of primitive medical procedure is required, consider one that came under my personal observation many years ago, probably around 1900. My father had just purchased the Benfro Valley farm which was to become our homeplace, and in line with accepted procedure of that day set about logging off all merchantable timber to help pay for the land. I was too small to take a hand with the logging, but constituted myself general overseer of everything in sight. I will remember the day when one of the loggers got an arm caught, lengthwise, between two big logs rolling together. The arm was not crushed and no bones were broken, but it sustained a deep bruising laceration, extending from elbow to wrist. The other loggers quickly gathered around the injured man and each placed his end of tobacco in the trough of the wound, following which it was pressed together and several dirty handanna handkerchiefs were bound tightly around the arm. The man was then mounted on one of the work mules and started on the three mile ride to Mt. Vernon to find a doctor.

At about the halfway mark along the road lived a benevolent old man who was known to have always on hand a fairly good grade of moonshine. By the time the injured party reached this house the pain was so intense that he easily convinced himself that he should stop and get something calculated to lessen the pain. His friend prescribed the expected remedy and, to show his sympathy, started taking it along with him. In due time, both were so intoxicated they knew nothing of what was going on and were removed with attention whatever. Three days later, when they sobered up a bit, the wounded man completed the journey to the doctor's office. The doctor cleaned out the mess as best he could and did what he could to close the fissure. Needless to say, the patient made a complete recovery, aided by a ragged lumberman consent. There was a long ugly welt of a scar at first, but in due time it was reduced to a narrow white scar running from elbow to wrist. No doctor, working in any hospital could have done a better job.

These four impossible-sounding case histories were all verified by actual and reputable eye-witnesses. Thanks to a well-equipped and well-staffed hospital in Mt. Vernon, Rockcastle citizens are no longer subject to such primitive methods of treatment. Modern antibiotics kills all pain, except that of progressively higher medical costs!

In Loving Memory of Mrs. Deon Allen Who Passed Away August 24, 1972

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last. The world's weary troubles and trials are past. In silence she suffered, in patience she bore. Till God called her home to suffer no more.

You left a beautiful memory Mother. And a sorrow too great to be told. But for us who loved and lost you. That memory will never grow cold.

If we had the world to give We would give it, yes and more. To hear your voice and see your smile. And greet you at the door.

But as we can do, dear mother, I'll go tend your grave. And leave behind tokens of love. To the best mother God ever made. Now resting in Heaven above.

The Highest Compliment

When we look around and see other funeral homes using our ideas and methods, we believe this is the highest compliment we could ever receive from members of our own profession.

There's just one thing that cannot be imitated though, and that is the "sincere, personal service" that is given to each family we serve.

Kentucky Afield

By John Wilson

Back in the old days, dove hunting was an activity for the well-to-do, with invitations shoots generally attracting the cream of society. The hunts then were as much social gatherings as hunting trips where the host, usually a wealthy landowner, would furnish food, liquid refreshments, and servants to dress the birds.

Although much of the old style elegance has disappeared, many shoots are still on an invitation-only basis. But, unlike in the past, anyone can now find some good dove hunting if he's willing to do some pre-season scouting.

Since doves congregate to feed, the first step is to find fields of harvested corn, grain or other crops which attract these birds. The next step is to obtain permission from the landowner to hunt on his property and you're all set for the September 1 opening day.

Another possibility is hunting on public lands. Several of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' Wildlife management areas generally offer some find dove hunting, since they have fields planted in crops which attract doves. Three areas which look good right now, according to Jim Durell, assistant director of the game management division, are the Central Kentucky area (Madison County, the Lloyd Area (Grant County) and the Mullins area (Kenton County).

Two other Central Kentucky areas: Twin Eagle and Kieber (both in Owen County), usually have dove shoots, but Jim says that so far, the doves haven't been using the food plots provided for them.

But this situation could easily change by opening day. Dove can be unpredictable critters, sometimes flying into or abandoning a field for no apparent reason. So Jim cautions that all his predictions are subject to change and are dependent upon the whims of the doves themselves.

In Western Kentucky, some areas which almost always have good shoots are: Ballard County, McCracken County, Henderson County and Union County.

Hunters in the Breckinridge County area might want to scout one of the department's newest acquisitions, the Yellow bank Wildlife Management Area. Food plots have been planted for doves on this area, but the area is still too new Serena Gail Childers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gorman Lee Childers of Louisville, will be performing a dance routine at the Kentucky State Fair on August 26th. She is a student at Tuya Sublett in Louisville and is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Childers of Mt. Vernon.

For any accurate predictions of what kind of hunting it will offer, Jim says,

There are few changes in the dove regulations this year. The season opens on Sept. 1 and runs through Oct. 31, with the second phase from Dec. 11 through Dec. 19. The limits remain at 12 daily and 24 in possession after two or more days of hunting.

Also remember that the hours for dove hunting are from noon until one-half hour before sunset, prevailing time; that shotguns must be plugged to hold no more than three shells (one in the chamber and two in the magazine) and that it is illegal to shoot over a "baited" field—that is one where feed or salt has been scattered as a result of anything other than a valid agricultural practice.

For a complete rundown of dove regulations, or for a current listing of Kentucky's public hunt areas, write the Division of Public Relations, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601.

states of Ohio, Indiana and Tennessee. Harris said he will train a special team of investigators in the Division of Weights and Measures and place them in the field working exclusively with the Tobacco Warehouse Law. He further stated that he had received an official opinion from the Attorney General stating that he had the legal right to inspect the records of any warehouse in the state.

Harris said the 1940 law covers many things, including having a Board of Trade, warehouse licensing, proper grading, bonded weighmen, height and weight of each basket, checking of scales and duck bills and other weighing equipment with tares set for each scale, number of baskets sold per hour, and the following listed items pertaining to rebates, special privileges and services explained in laymen terms:

1. No warehouse or warehouseman shall discriminate against any grower of tobacco by failing to afford to that grower all privileges and services extended to any other grower.
2. No tobacco warehouseman selling leaf tobacco in this state shall discriminate between purchasers as to charges, samples, warranty or otherwise, whether the purchasers are members of the tobacco exchange or not.
3. No warehouse or warehouseman shall give a rebate of any part of the warehouse charges or commissions to any person as an inducement for the purpose of selling tobacco on the warehouse floor and thereby discriminate against any grower, nor shall any warehouse pay or offer anything of value directly or indirectly for the delivery of tobacco to any warehouse.
4. No warehouseman shall extend to any customer and special privilege or service not extended to all customers on like terms and considerations.
5. No warehouseman shall furnish any means of conveyance as an inducement to sell tobacco at an particular warehouse, nor shall any warehouseman finance, help to finance or secure the financing of any means of conveyance for the purpose of inducing the hauling of tobacco to any particular warehouse.

Commissioner Harris also advised each warehouseman that the full resources of the Department of Agriculture would be utilized in his efforts to gain uniform compliance with the statutes.

Commissioner Harris said, "I am asking all farmers throughout the State of Kentucky as well as tobacco warehousemen to give us their full cooperation in order that we may carry out the successful enforcement of this law passed by the 1940 General Assembly."

Scholarship Program In-Danger

A highly effective health manpower training program, one that has proven its ability to return graduates to fill vast needs for health professionals in Southeast Kentucky may die this year unless new funds are found to keep it alive.

Because of the urgency of the situation, those most intimately involved with Southeastern Health Professions Scholarship Program, the students who receive financial assistance from the project are rallying around the cause. Some 190 of them are waiting to hear if there will be scholarship money available for the coming school year.

At a meeting recently at the University of Kentucky, Albert B. Chandler Medical Center, the students initiated a campaign to get support for the program back in their 16 home counties.

The Health Scholarship project was established 5 years ago by the Appalachian Regional Commission. Under the terms of the 5 year grant made at that time, the ARC could not continue or renew support following expiration of the original funding period.

The history of the program, while brief, is marked a success. The strides the program is making toward reaching its primary long range goal, that of meeting the health manpower needs of a designated region is reflected in the return rate of graduates practicing in the area.

Based on University of Kentucky studies which show that students from Appalachian Kentucky are 5 times more likely to practice in that region than students from other areas, the project has provided financial assistance to persons from the region. In return, the scholarship students have agreed to return to the area to practice. Scholarships have been awarded depending on the availability of funds to the students with the greatest financial need.

To date 63 students have graduated from various health education programs in colleges, universities and health facilities around the state and of these, more than 83 percent are meeting their obligation to practice in Southeastern Kentucky. An Additional 3 students have repaid their scholarship and are practicing in Southeastern Kentucky. An additional 3 students have repaid their scholarships and are practicing in Appalachian Kentucky counties outside the designated 16 county area. When these graduates are included in the percentage of Southeastern Kentucky Health Professions Scholarships students practicing in the Appalachian region of the Commonwealth, the total climbs to over 98 percent.

According to project director, John Wolfe, Jr., the effectiveness of the program has far exceeded original expectations. A review of the program by the ARC states, "Implementation of this project has been highly successful. It is one of the highest return rates of any man-power training program designed for severely underserved areas. The possibility that it might dissolve for want of financial support is not good."

Along with the effectiveness rate, the program financial records has been remarkable. By maintaining a record low of overhead cost, it has been able to devote 96 percent of its funds to the scholarships.

It is expected that 70 students will complete their health professions education program during the 1976-77 school year. However, new funding must be found in order for the program to survive and continue its efforts to provide educational opportunities to Appalachian area health science students.

The students are putting into action following the recent meeting. Each returning to the home front, communities throughout the 16 county region, and enlisting the financial support of local residents to save the program.

The health professions training programs included in the scholarship project are clinical assistant, dental hygiene, dental laboratory technician, dentistry, medical technician, medicine, nursing, medical technician, nursing, pharmacy, physical therapy, radiologic technician respiratory therapy and social work.

The program, according to students of some of the participating institutions, is valuable for its help to area students and its aid in filling health man-power voids in the region.

A spokesman from Somerset Community College said the program has opened the door, "to many needy students who are very interested in completing an academic program in one of the health fields as well as many Southeastern Kentucky Health Facilities by providing them with knowledgeable, academically sound and well-trained employees."

A representative of the Kentucky Health District Health Department reported "This program, more than any other to date, has added to the health man-power pool in Eastern Kentucky and we personally have benefited from recruiting students graduating from the program."

The remarks of the scholarship students regarding the program reflect the hopes of the group's endeavor to keep it alive.

A University of Kentucky College of Medicine student said, "The scholarship has provided encouragement for me to take advantage of the support provided to me in order that some day I will be better able to serve the people for whom this program was established to help, the people of Southeastern Kentucky."

A nursing student put it this way, "This program has shown me the many areas of need in the Appalachian Region. I have visited several of the health services in this area and I have been impressed by the tremendous work done by the program."

A UK identity student expressed his view of the Southeastern Kentucky Health Professions Scholarship program saying "It can be summarized what this scholarship has meant to me in that it has eliminated the obstacle between what I might have been and what I can be."

invest this minimum amount in the future of our product and business, we may not be able to maintain our place of importance in producing the choicest food of our country," according to Powell.

The proposed program also will give beef producers more voice in shaping the future of the industry through involvement in industry and government affairs, Mr. Brown says. Various special interest groups such as consumers, environmentalists and labor now are important forces in affecting federal laws and regulations and the beef industry must make similar efforts for the benefit of both producer and consumer, he continues.

"It is important that we as cattlemen work together through strong, Cattlemen's Association in Kentucky to help achieve our goals," he says. "It is a favorable one on the check-off program will help finance our program and make our industry stronger, he concludes. "This is your opportunity to help yourself!"

Further there is no shelter or storage available for the ambulances. This matter should receive immediate attention due to the importance of our ambulance service.

Restrooms adjoining the dining area should be properly identified to show men or women. Currently both sexes are using one restroom due to no identification.

MAKE RESERVATIONS NOW FOR WATERFOWL HUNTS

The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission has set September 5-21 as the dates for waterfowl hunters to make reservations for the fall season. The Ballard County Wildlife Management Area in Western Western Kentucky, Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Arnold L. Mitchell announced today.

Mitchell also said that beginning in 1977 the dates for submitting applications for the Ballard area hunts will be standardized. Next year and in future years, hunters may request reservations from Sept. 1-17.

The commission also recommended that the goose season on the Ballard area open Dec. 1 and continue through January 20, 1977, with duck hunting on the area from Dec. 11-Jan. 15, pending final approval from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Duck and goose hunting on the Ballard Wildlife Area is by advance reservation basis only. Those wishing to hunt there should write the Ballard County Wildlife Management Area, Rt. 1, Jackson, Tenn. 37506. The word "reservations" should be written on the envelope, which must be postmarked no earlier than Sept. 5 and no later than Sept. 21.

The request for reservations should include the names and address of all hunters in the party, first choice of hunting dates, alternate dates and preference for goose or duck hunting.

A fee of $5.00 per day per hunter of $15. per ptl must accompany the request. Only cashier's checks, certified checks or money orders will be accepted. Hunters are limited to six hunts per season with no more than two Starudays hunts. Hunts are not conducted on Sundays or on Christmas Day.

The statewide waterfowl season and limits will be announced when final approval from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has been received, Mitchell said. As migratory birds, ducks and geese are under federal jurisdiction and each state's regulations must conform to federal guidelines.

Mitchell said that he expects federal clearance for Kentucky's waterfowl seasons near the end of August. *****

There should be plenty of food available for Americans, if the trend established in the 1950s, 1960s and 1970s continues. Reliable statistics from the U.S. Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System show our production doubled in 20 years.

ROCKCASTLE CIRCUIT COURT CIVIL ACTION FILE NO. 3070

Brads Newcomb Elmer and husband, Duver Wayne Hines Plaintiff

VS: NOTICE OF SALE

Ralph Newcomb and wife, Shirley Newcomb, Anna Newcomb and wife, Lola Newcomb, Lela Crawford and husband, Russell Crawford, George Newcomb and wife, Rose Newcomb and John P. Allen Defendants

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Rockcastle Circuit Court rendered on the 26th day of July, 1976: in the above styled cause, a partition action, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door on Main Street in Mt. Vernon, Rockcastle County, Kentucky, to the highest bidder, at public auction on Saturday, September 11, 1976, at 10 o'clock A.M. or thereabout, the following described real property located in Rockcastle County, Kentucky, described as follows:

In a court suit, the newcomb's invoked the Constitution. "According to the Fourteenth Amendment," they said, "there must be no discrimination. This restriction clearly discriminates against everyone under 21."

But the court "upheld" the restriction and ordered the defendants to depart. The court said that the Constitution forbids all discrimination but only that discrimination that is unreasonable and separating adults from children is reasonable.

In other ways too it is lawful to discriminate against—or in favor of—the young. For example: Children may be forbidden to frequent bars.

Children may be prohibited from driving automobiles.

Children may be given milder punishment for their crimes.

Children may be allowed to travel at lower fares.

In each case there is a valid reason for treating them differently from adults. But if there is no such reason, there must be no such discrimination.

In another case, a state passed a statute requiring hunting licenses—but only for those over 21.

Adult sportsmen called this unconstitutional, and a court decided they were right. Since the purpose of the statute was to protect wildlife, the court could find no logic in letting young people hunt more freely than their elders.

The property shall be sold to the highest bidder on the terms of cash or credit of six months, with the purchaser being required to execute bond with surety thereon to be approved by the Commissioner, to secure the purchase price; said bond to bear interest at the rate of eight (8%) per cent per annum from date of sale until paid.

The purchaser shall have the privilege of paying all of the purchase price in cash, or paying said bond before maturity by paying the principal and interest accrued to the date of payment. The purchaser shall have possession of the premises after complying with the terms of the sale.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

By: Robert L. "Buddy" Cox

Last summer, a man asked another fellow, "What's your daughter doing this summer?" The frank answer was, "Her hair most of the time." So much is heard about youngsters not wanting, or even trying to earn a few dollars on their own, it is a real pleasure to cite some cases to the contrary.

Two brothers, age 9 and 11, got new customers with this sign on their backs while cutting grass: "We don't just cut your lawn, we manicure it..." Several boys had shoe shining stands. One boy put up this sign: "Free! Fine shoe shine on your right foot for free! Left foot only 25 cents!...A group of youngsters were selling worms in a fishing area. One lad put up this sign: "Worms with fish appeal! Only 25 cents for a big dozen!...An 8 year old girl was ringing door bells to sell Christmas seals. She sold a lot with this simple approach: "These cost a penny a piece, ten cents for a sheet. How many do you want?"

True, these are exceptional cases. Nonetheless, with this sort of juvenile ingenuity, the future of America's business outlook certainly isn't hopeless by any means...Cox Funeral Home, Mt. Vernon, Ky. Ph. 256-2345 or 256-4444.
