Farm Pond winners - your time is running out!
The deadline date is getting closer and closer for 1976-77 farm pond stocking applications which must be received in the Frankfort office of the Department of Fish and Wildlife by October 1.

Those who miss the deadline will have to wait another year - until next October - for bluegill and channel catfish and until the following spring for largemouth bass.

This once-a-year deadline is necessary, according to Pete Pfister, assistant director of fisheries, because forage fish (the bluegill) should be stocked first. But the fish themselves don't cooperate.

Bass spawn first, usually in April, and bluegill spawn later in the summer. In the spring, it is necessary to hold the bluegill over the winter and through the preparation and spawning period the following spring, taking up valuable hatchery space which could be used for other purposes.

So the bluegill are stocked in October along with the catfish (another summer spawner), and the bass are delivered the following spring. Since no bluegill are available in April when the bass are stocked, and since the bass need bluegill for forage, only those ponds which have been stocked in the fall can receive bass the following spring.

But so much for the biology lesson and now down to the immediate details: If you have a pond you want stocked, contact your county fish and wildlife conservation officer. He must inspect the pond and make recommendations about the number of fish needed and any pest-stocking treatments the pond might require.

Only ponds without existing fish populations can be stocked, either new ponds or those in which the existing fish have been eradicated. This is necessary because stocking fry or fingerlings into a pond with larger fish only accomplishes one thing: it feeds the larger fish for a new year.

If you have a pond that's been stocked in the past but which is offering poor fishing, the CO might recommend that you eliminate the fish in the pond and start over. This is often the easiest and fastest way to improve fishing in a pond that's producing poorly.

The CO can give you advice on this or on other pond management techniques when he inspects your pond. There is still time, if you act now, to renovate an old pond before the stocking deadline for this year.

Pond owners who receive fish from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources are under no obligation to open their ponds to the public and they may place creel or size restrictions more limiting than statewide regulations on their ponds.

This is perhaps the most common misunderstanding. The Department of Fisheries has a permit program which lets the property owner and he is under no obligation to allow public fishing on his property unless he chooses to do so.

Of course, many pond owners do let others fish their ponds, usually those who are polite enough to ask permission and who don't litter, try to catch all the fish or generally make themselves obnoxious. With a recent survey showing that over 256 per cent of Kentucky's fishermen prefer fishing in a pond of under five acres, fish and wildlife officials are making a program to serve close to a quarter of a million fishermen throughout the state, both those who own ponds and those allowed to fish them.

Pfister says that the fisheries division stocks around 1,500 ponds each year and that the Oct. 1 deadline is necessary to complete planning for the distribution and delivery of the fish.

Pond owners who have requested fish will be notified when and where to pick up their fish, which are packed in plastic lined boxes containing stocking instructions. No further action on the pond owner's part is necessary for him to receive bass the following spring, when he will again be notified of delivery dates.

So if you've been putting off getting that pond stocked, start tracking down your county conservation officer. If you don't know his name, a call to the county clerk's office should provide you with that information or contact the Division of Law Enforcement, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Capital Plaza, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, phone 502-564-3176.

Proper Harvest of Corn Silage For Profit and Safety

The use of corn silage in dairy rations continues to increase because it is a crop which produces a high yield of energy. In order to maximize the value of the corn crop it must be harvested at the best stage and handled properly to insure good performance.

Corn should be harvested for silage at about 32 to 38% dry matter or in a full dent stage or maturity. The corn plant continues to store energy and increase in tonnage of dry matter until it reaches the full dent stage. If juice runs from a silo, it is fairly certain that the corn was cut too early. The run-off from an upright silo usually indicates less than 30% dry matter at harvest and the run-off contains nutrients which are lost.

A second reason for allowing corn to reach 32 to 38% dry matter at harvest is that dairy cows will eat more corn silage dry matter at this stage than corn harvested at earlier stages. Research has consistently demonstrated higher production per cow when fed full dent stage corn as compared with pre-dent and early-dent stages. Corn harvested at earlier stages does pack easily and does not mold.

Corn harvested too late or not containing enough moisture results in a loss of yield and greater difficulty in preventing mold growth. Loss of leaves and stalks breaking down are primary reasons for loss of yield. The maximum content for moisture is dependent upon fineness of chop, amount of packing, and tightness of silo. Excellent milk production has been obtained with corn harvested at 50% dry matter, however, moldy silage and reduced feed intake is observed on some farms at this level of dry matter. If it becomes necessary to store corn for silage at greater than 40% dry matter, correct chopping is very important. The knives should be sharpened and adjusted, silage harvesters do not cut mature corn as easily as they do corn harvested in earlier stages.

In addition to stage of maturity and correct length of chop, it is important to fill the silo rapidly and evenly. If the silage blower does not have a distributor, it is necessary to frequently level the silage and make sure that the silage is evenly packed in the silo. The reason for the rapid filling and good packing is to eliminate as much air as possible from the silage. The elimination of oxygen promotes a better fermentation and thus a better keeping and feeding quality.

Silage preservatives are not necessary to insure good keeping quality of corn silage, however, some additives, contain minerals and/or non-protein nitrogen which can be useful in meeting the nutrient needs of the dairy cow.

While the occurrence is infrequent, deaths of people are associated with silo filling and the opening of silos. Two dangers associated with silage are the non-toxic gas carbon dioxide and the toxic gas nitrogen dioxide. All silos produce carbon dioxide as a result of fermentation and since the gas is heavier than air, it stays in the tight silo. If someone jumps down into the silo so that his head is below the level of the opening, suffocation could occur. Care should be taken to run the blower prior to entering the silo or always make sure that the silo door opening is lower than the level of the person's head. Gas that is heavier than air acts somewhat like water in a container and will pour out when an opening is made in the side of the container.

Nitrogen dioxide is a brownish-red gas which is very toxic. If enough of this gas is inhaled, it can cause death. Again, as with carbon dioxide, it is heavier than air and remains in the bottom of a tight enclosure. This gas is only produced in large amounts when the nitrate content of plants is high. The nitrate content of corn is high when heavy nitrogen fertilization is used and drought occurs just prior to harvest. Care is also needed in the silo room as well as the silo if this gas is produced.

While corn silage is an easy crop to manage, care in the management is needed to obtain optimum results. It is very fortunate that the full dent stage of maturity maximizes both yield per acre and cow performance. In addition to proper storage, ration utilizing corn silage should be adequately balanced for protein and minerals in order to assure optimum performance of dairy cows. To reduce the amount of residue in tobacco, insecticides or sucker control materials should not be sprayed on tobacco shortly before harvesting.

In Kentucky, recent studies show that, in general, tobacco growers in Western Kentucky have more insecticide residue on their tobacco than do tobacco growers in Central Kentucky.

Growers in Eastern Kentucky have even fewer insect pest populations and often do not need to treat for insect control. The residue picture in Kentucky, as reflected by grower use of registered insecticides, has been encouraging. Residue tests indicate decreasing levels for all chlorinated hydrocarbons, except endosulfan (Thiodan).

Production of low-residue tobacco is fast becoming a very important factor of quality. The use of non-registered insecticides, as well as high-residue levels of registered insecticides, are definitely regarded as negative buying characteristics.

The reputation of Kentucky grown tobacco will depend on responsible action by all farmers in avoiding the use of chemical spot recommended and by using correctly those that are.

Have you a free stereo, sewing machine, or other appliance? Did you receive an offer for one of these at a ridiculously low price? Many Kentuckians have won, only to end up losing. Let's examine these offers.

The game begins when you receive a certificate through the mail informing you that you won a "free" sewing machine, a free stereo, or a "check" for a portion of the purchase price. The price is described including its monetary value. The trick to this scheme is that the price will not be paid until you have made a monthly or yearly charge to cover either a service contract or a portion of the cost of the item beyond the amount won is required. Frequently, the winner is tempted to come to the store to inspect the merchandise and accept or reject the offer.

THE MONKEYS' VIEWPOINT

Three monkeys sat in a coconut tree. Discussing things as they are to be said on the other side of the coin: That there's a certain rumor that can't be true. That man descended from our noble race The very idea is disgraceful.

No monkey ever deserted his wife or Starved her babies and ruined her life. And you have never known a mother monkey who has ever deserted her child. To leave her babies with others to bunk. Or pass them on from one to another. Till they scarcely know who is their mother.

CONSUMER COMMENTS

What's wrong with these offers? The amount you must pay is often higher than the average retail value of the item. Be sure to compute the yearly or monthly cost so that you are aware of the total amount of money involved. It is the merchandise worth the price it will cost you!

Beware of the high pressure sales tactics used to sell you a product immediately to accept the offer? A reputable businessman can wait on your answer until tomorrow. The gimmick salesmen are fly-by-night operators. A contest implies that there are losers as well as winners. These fake contests have everyone winning. How many other people that you know have won?

CONSUMER COMMENTS

The promises of warranties or reliable repair services are often false, who does the repair work and what does the warranty include. You can protect yourself against fraudulent contest practices such as this by remembering to be skeptical of advertising tactics. "Special offers," "free," and "for only a few dollars more" are clues to start investigating.

If you receive an offer like this or if you have any other consumer complaints, contact the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, or call toll-free on the consumer hotline: 1-800-372-2960. Be sure to show your social security card to your employer when you start a new job. Don't rely on your memory in giving your social security number.

3 of 5 Adults Getting Social Security Payments Are Women

Three out of five adults getting monthly social security payments are women, according to social security officials here. "About 27 million people 18 and over get social security payments," a spokesman said, "and about 16 million are women. Over 7 million women get retirement benefits based on their own records. That's over 20 times as many as in 1950."

"If she becomes severely disabled and isn't expected to be able to do any work for a year or more, she and her family may be eligible for monthly cash payments," he said. "If she's entitled to social security disability benefits for 24 consecutive months, she is eligible for monthly cash payments based on their mothers' work records, according to the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare."

TELEPHONE COMPANY PLEAS FOR CAREFUL SHOOTING

Now that the hunting season is underway, the telephone company has issued a plea for "careful shooting" by hunters near telephone cable and equipment.

Wallace Black, commercial manager for the telephone company, pointed out there have been instances of recent and past gunfire damage to telephone cable in the company's serving areas.

Given the smallest shot can cut a wire, shatter an insulator, or otherwise disrupt telephone service.

Mr. Black asked that hunters please use caution with firearms and never shoot toward utility cables and lines.

The BCHS Rockets football team opened their season last Friday night against the Berea Pirates and came out on the short-end of the string considerably 20-0. The Pirates seemed to hurt the Rockets the most on past returns, protecting their ball carrier well for long yardage. In the above photo, Earl Hammons, No. 10, the Rockets' quarterback, sets up for a pass. This Friday night, the Rockets travel to Lincoln County who last last week to Jessamine County. The next four games for the Rockets will all be on the road.

Swine Flu Information

At present, plans call for the Swine Influenza vaccine to be administered to persons, 15 years of age and older, by the Rockcastle County Health Department in late Fall.

Below are a few facts about the illness which might be of information to you.

The Disease

Influenza (flu) is caused by viruses. When people get flu, they may have fever, chills, headache, dry cough or muscle aches. Illness may last several days or a week or more and complete recovery is usual. However, complications may lead to pneumonia or death in some people. For the elderly and people with diabetes or heart, lung or kidney diseases, flu may be especially serious. It is unlikely that you have adequate natural protection against swine flu, since it has not caused widespread human outbreaks in 45 years.

The Vaccine

The vaccine will not give you flu because it is made from killed viruses. Today's flu vaccines cause fewer side effects than those used in the past. In contrast with some other vaccines, flu vaccine can be taken safely during pregnancy.

One shot will protect most people from swine flu during the next flu season, however, either a second shot or a different dosage may be required for persons under age 25. If you are under 25 and a notice regarding such information is not attached, this information will be provided to you wherever you receive the vaccine.

Possible Vaccine Side Effects

Most people will have no side effects from the vaccine. However, tenderness at the site of the shot may occur and last for several days. Some people will also have fever, chills, headache or muscle aches within the first 48 hours.

Special Precautions

As with any vaccine or drug, the possibility of severe or potentially fatal reactions exists. However, flu vaccine has rarely been associated with severe or fatal reactions. In some instances, people receiving vaccine have had allergic reactions. You should note very carefully the following precautions.

*Children under a certain age should not routinely receive flu vaccine. Please ask about age limitations if this information is not attached.

*People with known allergy to eggs should receive the vaccine only under special medical supervision.

*People with fever should delay getting vaccinated until the fever is gone.

*People who have received another type of vaccine in the past 14 days should consult a physician before taking the flu vaccine.

Also, Mrs. Bales said, anyone wishing to change their party registration in time to vote in that party in next year's May Primary, must do so by October 5th. Otherwise, if you change your party registration after this year's General Election you will not be able to vote in the 1977 May Primary.

STATE UNEMPLOYMENT RATE DROPS

Eastern Kentucky's unemployment rate fell from 6.0 percent in June to 5.9 percent in July, according to figures released today by the Department for Human Resources. This is above the state rate of 5.9 percent, but below the national rate of 7.8 percent for July.

Robert MacDonald, chief labor market analyst of the department, says the primary reason for the drop in unemployment is that high school and college students seeking summer work dropped out of the labor force during July, after efforts to locate work proved fruitless. In Eastern Kentucky, an estimated 14,000 people are out of work. Figures for Rockcastle County are 64.

Two Rockcastle Men Charged In Drew Murder

Two Rockcastle men have been indicted and charged with murder in connection with the death of William Drew of Red Hill on August 8th of this year. Drew was found dead on Monday, August 9th on a small secondary road which connects with Hwy. 1955 near the home of C.W. "Wally" Phillips.

Indicted were Arthur Jones and Ronald Maupin who were also wounded in that shooting.

The two men led State Police detectives to the body on Monday. An autopsy performed late Monday disclosed that the cause of death was a wound in the left arm through which Drew bled to death. Drew also suffered various other cuts and bruises on his body.

Drew had been an eyewitness in the trial of George Drew, who was recently tried for the murder of Coy Phillips of Austin, Texas. (See story elsewhere on this week's front page of the Signal).

Jones and Maupin were arrested on Saturday morning by State Police detectives and lodged in the Rockcastle County Jail under $50,000 bond.

George Drew Trial Ends With Hung Jury

By: Roger Coldiron

The trial of George Drew, 46, of Red Hill came to an inconclusive end last Thursday when it ended with a hung jury after several hours of deliberation. Mrs. Fanny Mullins loaned us this photo of the view of Mt. Vernon from the Sand Springs Road in 1912. The old Mullins homeplace can be seen in the background of the picture. Mrs. Mullins also loaned us two other scenes of the same area taken about 1870 which we will run next week.

FRANKFORT WATCHLINE

By Ferrell Wellman

The final ballion has been popped. The din of politics is fading. A last weary delegate has tucked a funny hat into a box of souvenirs. Cattle have again taken over Kansas City. The conventions are over. It's time to put the troops together, round up the wagons, and charge head first into the November campaign.

Kentucky Republicans may begin their charge with a slight limp. They did not fare well at the GOP convention in Kansas City. Reaganites outnumbered President Ford's supporters almost three to one. Yet, despite near fistfuffs between Reagan's campaign chairman Olney Owen and Representative. Tim Lee Carter, a Ford backer, it appears the party is as unified as possible after such a spirited contest for the nomination.

Kentucky Republicans must deal with a candidate who has more aces tucked away than Spuffy Smith. Democrat Jimmy Carter proved his muscle at the polls in the Kentucky primary. He has the support of the present administration in Frankfort which won by a record margin. Democrats outnumber Republicans two to one in Kentucky. Finally, Carter is from the South, and that's an area of the country which doesn't interest the Republican candidate.

Mr Ford apparently conceded the South to Carter with his selection of Kansas Senator Robert Dole as his running mate. Kentucky GOP delegates were hoping for Ronald Reagan or Senator Howard Baker of Tennessee who lives only 20 miles from the Kentucky border.

Senator Dole is a good man, but his selection obviously shows the President is not concerned with the South, said Carter when informed of Dole's selection. President Ford is apparently more interested in the big midwestern states, the northeast, and California. Those are the areas with the electoral votes that could decide the election.

It also appear Mr Ford's preoccupation with those states will prevent him from making any personal appearances in the Bluegrass state. His state campaign chairman for the primary, Hal Rogers of Somerset admits the chances of a Ford visit are slim.

There is also some disagreement among Republicans over the tactics to be used in the fall campaign. Republican Representative Harold DeMarcus of Stanford, the GOP floor leader, told me he wants the Ford campaign to attack the Democrats at their platform.

"For the first time in history the people have a clear choice between the two platforms," said DeMarcus. "Do the people want gun control, abortion, or school busing. I don't think so. The Democrats favor them in their platform. We don't. Some people may call this gut fighting. I thought Dole was supposed to do it, but so far he hasn't. I think ignoring the platforms is a most serious mistake."

DeMarcus is upset because Kentucky Republicans will apparently take the "high road," promoting President Ford as an honest man who led the nation through a troubled time. DeMarcus says the parties established platforms, now they should run on them.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents. Additional forms are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and with a family for such meals and milk for them, they should contact the school.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if family's size and income changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals and milk if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of his race, sex, color, or national origin.

Under the provision of the policy the school principal will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official he may make a request either orally or in writing to Charles B. Parsons, whose address is Mt. Vernon, Ky.

(NAME OF SUPERINTENDENT)

for a hearing to appeal the decision.

The hearing procedures are outlined in the policy.

A complete copy of the policy is on file in each school and in the office of the District Superintendent where it may be reviewed by any interested party.

An Editorial

By Roger Caldwell

To some extent, spathy of the American public has endangered the basic foundation of this country's economic policy. The concept of free enterprise and business competition have been the foundations of the most prosperous country that has ever existed on the face of the earth. To a greater extent, political bias can be blamed if, in the future, these foundations crumble and collapse under the weight of a socialistic policy.

Free enterprise entails competition. Competition brings to the consumer products unequalled in quality and brings to the employer the best trained people society can offer. This spirit of competition is a rather sad fact for those who are unable to make an offering of any substance to either employer or consumer. Shoddy products do not last long in the public marketplace and substantial employees do not last long in the world of the employed.

However, unrealistic it may be, it is pleasant to imagine a Shangri-la where everyone has a good, useful job, makes sufficient money to comfortably support their families, and enjoy everything desired in life. But it is probably as idealistic as true freedom in Communist China.

A proposal has been made that the federal government create jobs for the nation's unemployed. This proposal carries great impact. Unfortunately the impact is greatly disadvantageous to the very people whom those who advocate it have pledged to serve - the American Majority.

The cost of implementing such a plan has been estimated at around 160 billion dollars. To make that figure more identifiable consider this $800 additional dollars on each family of four's income tax annually. Additionally, that is for implementation - not for the actual financing.

Bills such as the one outlined and the Humphrey-Hankins Bill, already through congress, also build a type of economy which will depend, at least in part, on the Federal Government. This is socialism in it's purest form. People are taken off the job market and placed in a job dictated by, arranged for, and financed by none other than K.C. Brothers. Reasons for competition on the job market cease to exist because everybody will be able to get a federal job - trained or not trained.

Projections of economic chaos are easy to make and need not be enumerated. If anyone is interested this will be happy to enumerate some of them.

Probably the greatest disadvantage to guaranteed employment, however, is increased inflation and tremendous misproportion of prices in the U.S. Specifically here is what happens.

Certain items of personal possession are considered luxuries in our society. They are only considered luxuries because not every member of society can have these items. If all people are working, and all can afford them, the prices must rise to make them exclusive again. Then salaries must go up because of the malproportioned prices. Again prices rise to again make these items exclusive.

This trend has become reality in several areas of the world where a socialistic form of economic system prevails in some areas. Case in point: Japan.

One can buy a stereo system for half of it's state-of-the-art in Japan. However, a T-bone steak in a supermarket costs between $10 - $15. Televisions are dirt cheap, but gasoline is $1.50 per gallon for regular.

When it comes time to cast your ballot this year go out and vote. And remember, you can't eat stereo equipment or run your car on a T.V.

Unsung Heroes Of America

JOHN SCULL'S NEWSPAPER

When John Scull came to Pittsburgh in 1786 with his printing press there were just six stores and 93 dwellings. Today, the great area of Southwestern Pennsylvania has a population of 2.8 million people.

Scull set up his small wooden press in a one-story structure behind his log house on Market Street. There on July 25, 1786, he began to publish the Pittsburgh Gazette, the first newspaper west of the Allegheny Mountains.

The Gazette had three columns, cost six pence (in continental currency) and, while attempting to be nonpartisan, was conservative in tone.

Scull also ran a printing business and in 1788 produced the first book published west of the Allegheny Mountains, a satirical novel called, "Modern Chivalry".

Today there are many unsung heroes in the region now known as Penn's Southwest, which has two metropolitan daily newspapers, 95 daily and weekly papers throughout the nine counties of Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Fayette, Greene, Lawrence, Washington and Westmoreland. Twenty railroads serve the nine-county area and one-eighth of all rail freight tonnage in the nation either originates, terminates or passes through this vital area.

Surprise birthday wishes

Lana K. Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Payne, Mead, Ohio, got a slightly unusual birthday card from her friends on her slightly unusual birthday, July 4th. The card (top photo), was "hand-delivered" about a.m., Sunday morning, according to Lana's father. Apparently because it was murder trying to get it in a mailbox. Responsible for the birthday greetings were Paul Wolverton, Scott and Steve Wolcott, and Lana's sister, Lisa. Lana, a senior at Lakota High School, also received birthday greetings from above (bottom photo). The First Church of God (where Lana is a member) put her name under its sign. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Hunt and the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Payne.

Rockcastle Recollections

By John Lark

This is an open invitation to various church congregations to send in material on your church for inclusion in the list and history of churches for insertion in the proposed Rockcastle County history. Considerable information has been gathered on Christian, Baptist, Presbyterian and Methodist churches, but we have nothing whatsoever on the many smaller groups, such as Jehovah's Witness, Pentecostal or Holiness churches. There are too many and too scattered for me to be able to look them up and write their histories, so unless someone undertakes the task of furnishing the desired information these churches cannot be included in the book. The same is true of the Catholic Church and its activities in the county.

There is another matter that I am not going to be able to take care of. I would like to include an account of many of the cemeteries in the county.

especially the older ones. I am greatly interested in those with older markers, such as the one near Wilde containing the tombstone of Jesse Williams, born in 1750. This little cemetery happens to be easy to get to and is well known, but there are many in more remote sections that are completely unknown except to residents of their surrounding community. In earlier years practically every farm family had its own burying ground, which was kept up as long as members of the family or community were alive and able to care for them, but after the older folks moved away or died off the little cemeteries were allowed to grow up in weeds, briars, and bushes. Stones were used to break down the fences, turn over the markers, etc., and the burying ground became an eyesore, each year becoming more run down.

In many such graves sleep the founders of our county families, many in unmarked graves. Some famous in our earlier history, like Col. James Dysart, the most important of our Revolution War veterans. His stone, which I was able to locate with the help of D. Graves and Chester Whitaker, has been broken in two and lies in a rubble of stones from the wall which once surrounded it. I believe his descendants will see to it that it is properly restored and marked with the bronze official government marker which the War Department provides for that purpose. This summer a very personable young military man, a Colonel Dysart, visited me, having heard that I had given some publicity to the location of his ancestors grave. He was followed later by his father, a retired army officer from California, who came here to visit and inspect the grave and see what could be done about caring for it. I feel certain that the matter will properly attended to in the near future.

Another grave marker rapidly deteriorating and going to ruin in the slab cover on the last resting place of Rockcastle's highest-ranking officer, General William Smith. This was mentioned in a previous article in this series when I suggested that some descendant of General Smith (and there are many of them in the county) undertake to have the marker repaired. James Maret, a grandson I believe, had the slab cemented together and straightened up in 1915, but it is again in deplorable condition. I would be willing to bear a part of the expense of such repairs if anybody else is interested. This grave is located in the older part of the Mt. Vernon Cemetery, where many of the early inhabitants of the county lie in unmarked graves. In anyone now living can remember anyone buried there, and can locate their grave. I would be glad to see that they are properly marked. In this connection I recall that Clyde Rickels recently told me that Dr. Josiah Joplin, Mt. Vernon's first physician, is buried in this section. I am assuming that his wife, Elizabeth Crawford, widow of John Crawford and daughter of Devil Bill Adams is buried beside him. Can anyone set me straight on this?

In the late thirties, or early forties, I discovered quite by accident, the graves of Devil Bill and his wife, Rebecca Lawrence Adams in a neglected and overgrown graveyard on what was then known as the Jess Livesay farm, just outside Mt. Vernon. It has since been restored in good order and is now a well-fenced, well-kept cemetery. At the time I discovered these graves they were inside an inclosure of fields tones, many of which had fallen from the wall and lay scattered on the ground. I distinctly remember that wall-carved marble slabs marked the graves of Adams and his wife, but the plain marker over another grave in this small inclosure displayed only the name John Crawford, with no date or other markings at all. It is my recollection that this stone had been broken through the middle and was lying on the ground. In writing this incident up in another recent article it was stated that a stone marked Elizabeth Crawford (this wife was also inside the walled-in space. I am inclined to believe that only the graves of Mr. and Mrs. Adams and John Crawford were walked in together. I have some faint recollection of a marker for someone by the name of Bragg being connected with them in some way, but it is possible that I only saw it nearby. I am inclined to the pretty positive belief that only the three markers previously mentioned were grouped together. Many years have passed since I came upon these graves and I paid the spot another visited some ten or fifteen years ago in note with approval the great improvement that had been made in the entire surrounding cemetery. It did not, though, that the stone wall had been torn down and carried away and that the two pieces of the Crawford marker are entirely missing. Upon inquiry, I was told that somebody in the vicinity had made use of them in walling up the cellar of his home. Early this month of August I again visited this cemetery after the passage of several years and finally relocated the markers of Devil Bill and his wife. Both have been broken and now lie on the ground-in fact, partly under the ground, where it has been washed and piled over them. One is partly concealed by a bush and tree stump, but the lettering and dates on each are still clear and distinct. I expect to notify descendants of the Adamses and hope that something will be done to properly restore the markers identifying the last resting place of one of Rockcastle's more colorful citizens. It seems a pity that the man who once owned's very best farmland, surrounding the spot where he and his wife now sleep, cannot maintain even his notice of ownership over the few feet which they now occupy.

At about the same time I discovered the Adams graves I also found my grandfather Coffey's cemetery in deplorable condition. I hired a crew of men to clean off this and another country burying ground sadly in need of such attention. In the old Coffey cemetery, trees ten inches in diameter, were growing on the mounds of some of the graves. Several years later it had again grown up in briars and bushes, when the Holman brothers had it cleared off again and properly fenced. This summer another visit to it found it a tangled wilderness, with the gravestones covered with honeysuckle and tall weeds. Carol Holman and I are again having it cleaned off and put in the best shape possible for the future, since we are both reasonably certain that this is about the last clean-up it will ever get.

But by no means all country cemeteries in Rockcastle County are a reproach to the descendants of those buried there and a disgrace to the community. Many of the larger ones, such as The Maret Graveyard, the Marebub Cemetery, the burying ground surround Providence church house, said to be the largest and one of the best kept in the county, are splendid examples of community spirit and loving devotion. I am certain there are many more, concerning which I am in ignorance. I would take it as a favor if somebody would write me about any deserving mention in Rockcastle Recollections.

Being very fond of children, I can hear their sweet voices singing and laughing from my apartment. For several weeks one special voice, which I had become very attracted to, was missing. I knew he was looking forward to going on a vacation this summer with his parents, which he did. But, what I didn't know, was that he spent several days a very sick little boy confined to a room at the St. Joseph Hospital in Lexington.

He, Master Bill Towery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bige W. Towery, Jr. is recuperating at home now and we hope how soon we can hear him singing as he swings and plays in his grandfather, Vernon Griffin's, backyard.

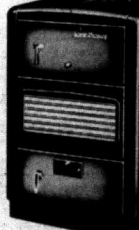

One of his former favorite songs, which was all his father would sing to his cowboy suit was "I'm a happy Cowboy."

STATE DECLARES WAR ON MOSQUITOS

The state isn't taking any chances this summer in its yearly fight against mosquitoes and viral encephalitis. Tom Harris, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, announced in a press conference at Freedom Hall in Louisville Saturday that three or four spray planes and two logging trucks, used around breeding grounds for mosquitoes, will be contracted by the state.

Although no cases of viral encephalitis, carried by the culms species of mosquito, have been reported, Harris said that five cases have been confirmed in Tennessee and one case has been reported in Illinois across the Ohio River from Kentucky.

Equipment owned by the state's agriculture department has been involved in spraying larva breeding grounds in Western Kentucky since the beginning of the mosquito season. "We have at present two fogger trucks and one wet spray truck, in addition to the airplane, that are going full time," Harris said.

The last two nights the foggers have been going all night. Last night we sprayed the City of Hickman.

Harris added that the Department of Agriculture has approximately 600 gallons of concentrated malathion, the pesticide used against mosquitoes, that will be used to spray 60,000 acres by groundfoggers or 18,000 acres using the airplane.

The agriculture department has contacted the supplier of the pesticide and has been assured that adequate supplies are available. Harris said that arrangements have been made for a four-hour delivery if necessary.

"FLEA MARKET"

Charles Barr and Floyd Owens, co-chairmen of the project stated that the vendors have said they plan to sell such items as pocket watches, knives, records, books, antique glass ware, clothing for women, children and men, costume jewelry, door knobs, toys, Bibles, record player, bicycle, clocks and other items, and everything at a bargain price. Some people donate items to the club for them to sell and keep the money for the club's charity projects.

They also state they have one vendor from Madison County and two from Pulaski County.

The club has asked each vendor to arrange own sales tax, if collected, and to make a cardboard or paper sign to identify their table, and suggest each vendor make catch phrases such as "Peter's Pickings," "Bill's Bargains" or "Julius Junks" and plan to give free table space to the table with most original title.

In other money raising projects of the club they are giving away a free CB Radio and giving chances on the radio for each $1.00 donated to the club's eye glass program.

In case of rain, the market will be postponed until September 11.

BROODHEAD WILLING WORKERS HOLD ANNUAL DINNER

By Mrs. Elizabeth Mullins

By a swimming pool and under flickering lights, a long table was set for the Broodhead Willing Workers' Home-makers Club's pitch-in dinner, in Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Brooks' backyard Saturday August 28 at 6:30 p.m.

Seventy-four persons partook of the delicious food brought by guests and the tasty hamburgers and hot dogs grilled by Mr. Brooks.

After the dinner, materials for the Breath of Life Campaign for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation were distributed to members of the club to solicit door-to-door donations between the dates of September 11 and 24.

On the third Thursday of September, the homemakers will meet at the home of Mrs. E.J. Taylor.

A Clean Home Tip: From Extension Specialists at the UK College of Agriculture

Many kinds of fish are low in cost, compared to most meats, according to UK Extension foods specialists.

Frozen fish fillets—perch, cod and whiting, for example—are generally good buys all year.

Canned light salmon (pink) and tuna—especially graded tuna—are also economical main-dish foods. And light tuna in chunks is less expensive than solid white tuna. Canned sardines, mackerel and herring are usually thrifty buys, too.

BRO. FLANNERY CALLED TO FREEDOM BAPTIST CHURCH

Bro. Dan Flannery has been called to the pastorate of the Freedom Baptist Church. He comes here from Boyle County where he pastored the Pleasant Run Baptist Church and was formerly youth director for the South District Association.

Prior to Boyle County, Bro. Flannery served churches in Casey and Lincoln County. He is a native of Perry County near Hazard and worked in the coal mines there for five years.

Bro. Flannery extends an invitation to anyone who doesn't have a church to come to Freedom. He said, "We will treat you in many different ways, you will have to take one of them."

END OF SEASON BEANS

You needn't let go to waste green beans that are too mature and tough for fresh eating. Just leave them on the vines to dry out for a few weeks. Then shell them out and spread them in the sun to dry until they are hard and brittle.

Pasteurize them in the oven to discourage insects. Just spread them on a cookie sheet and leave them in a 175 degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes, or 30 minutes at 150 degrees. Let them cool thoroughly to room temperature, then store in a moisture proof container with a tight lid. Before cooking the dry beans, soak them overnight. They're high in protein and are an economical substitute for meat.

WHAT CAUSES MOLD?

When mold grows in canned foods, it's because the jar is not sealed properly or the food was not processed long enough or at the right temperature.

Don't just scrape off the mold and eat the food. Mold spores have probably gotten into the rest of the jar and could be harmful. Don't take a chance on food poisoning.

FLOATING FRUIT

Fruit is lighter than the syrup. To keep it from floating to the top, pack fruit tightly in jar, but do not crush it. Use a light syrup. It will float if you use overripe fruit, make too loose pack, use too heavy syrup, process too long, or use too high temperature for processing.

REASONS WHY FRUIT TURNS DARK

Fruit not processed long enough; temperature not high enough; that is, water not at a rolling boil at the beginning or processing and/or water not kept at rolling boil throughout processing time; time was inaccurately counted (started counting before rolling boil, failed to check time table, or failed to make adjustments for altitude). Boiling water level not one inch above top of jars throughout entire processing time; paking some fruits raw that should be precooked (pears, apples, pineapples).

Discoloration of Canned Foods

Overprocessing may cause discoloration of foods. Pink and blue colors sometimes seen in canned pears, apples, and peaches are caused by chemical changes in the coloring matter of the fruit. It's nothing to worry about.

Iron and copper from cooking utensils or from water in some localities may cause brown, black and gray colors in some foods.

When canned corn turns brown, the discoloring may be due to the variety, the stage or ripeness, overprocessing, or using copper or iron pans.

Are discolored foods safe? Color changes do not necessarily mean the food is unsafe to eat. However, spoilage can cause color changes. Examine carefully canned food that has an unusual color before using. Signs of spoilage are a bulging lid or leaking jar, spurting liquid when you open the jar, an off-odor or mold.

Discolored Metal Lids

Natural compounds in some food corrode the metal and make brown or black spots on the underside of the lid. The deposit is harmless.

Reasons Why Jars Do Not or Cannot Seal

1. Using make-shift supplies. (a) Off standard jars (one-trip jar) called a packers jar (1) Mouths are not accurate width, lids ride on edge; (2) Sealing neck not level, have dips; (b) One piece caps instead of screw bands.
2. Using screw bands that are not in good condition; have dents, rusty spots or pried up edges.
3. Not screwing band tight against sealing edge before processing.
4. Using jars with nicks or cracks on sealing surface or have sharp sealing edge.
5. Failure to wipe sealing edge clean; particles of food left on can permit air to seep back into jar.
6. Food, seeds, or grease lodged between lid of jar when liquid is lost during processing; prevents sealing or is responsible for later release of seal.
7. Lack of heat.

Reasons Why Food Spoils

1. Pressure cooker not accurate—should be tested once a year. 2. Not processing at correct temperature: Failed to test pressure cooker; Failed to exhaust pressure cooker—10 minutes after full flow of steam for petcock, failed to keep pressure accurate—less than 10 lbs. will not complete sterilization of bacteria in vegetables and meats.
- (b) In boiling water bath: Not having water at rolling boil when jar is placed in canner. Not having water 1" or more above top of jars throughout entire processing time, not keeping water at rolling boil entire processing time, not checking time table carefully for product being canned, not making adjustments for elevation—adding minutes for each 1,000 feet as instructed on time tables.

(c) In open kettle method: Failed to fill one jar at a time with boiling product and seal it filling several jars at one time allows food to cool before cap is put on or not enough heat left to create vacuum when jar is capped, removed kettle from heat while filling jars—product does not stay at boiling point or product put in hot jars practically cold.

3. Improper cooling of jars after processing is finished: failed to take jars out of cooker when gauge is 0 degrees, failed to take jars out of boiling water bath when processing time is up, failed to properly cool jars—jars set apart and jars are not covered.
