SECTION TWO

State's Tornado Season has Arrived

Tornado season is here. The months of March through June are generally looked on as "tornado season" in Kentucky, according to B.J. Barfield, of UK's Agricultural Engineering Department and a weather specialist.

Severe weather in Kentucky is most frequent in the form of thunderstorms and tornadoes are usually spawned during thunderstorm conditions, Barfield noted.

Thunderstorms have been reported in Kentucky during every month and so have tornadoes. But according to weather records, tornadoes are sighted in the state most often in the four-month period of March through June, and that is the period in which the most severe thunderstorms generally occur.

The most devastating severe weather which occurs in Kentucky is caused by tornadoes. An individual tornado exists for only a short period of time, usually less than a half hour, Barfield said, noting it is normally a local storm and that its intensity often leaves a path of terrible destruction in its wake.

On the average, six tornadoes would be reported in Kentucky during a year, but the totals vary widely. There have been some years without the report of a single tornado. In 1967 a total of 16 were reported and on April 3, 1974, there were 27 in a single day.

Barfield said the most likely period of the day for tornadoes to occur is the six-hour span between noon and 6 p.m., with about half of all tornadoes in Kentucky having occurred in that period of the day. He said the second most likely period is from 9 p.m. to midnight, when about 25 per cent occur. The remainder are evenly distributed between midnight and noon.

Tornadoes are formed several thousand feet above the earth's surface, however, they must touch the ground to be considered a tornado, Barfield said. This type of storm can occur in almost any section of the state and in any terrain—hilltop or valley bottom.

In Kentucky a greater number occur in the western and northern sections of the state, Barfield commented, with fewer being reported in the eastern sector. He noted, too, that since the funnels are comparatively short-lived, they could occur in less densely populated areas and go undetected—usually—often the number of tornadoes reported depending on the density of population.

Weather history indicates 80 percent of all tornadoes approach from a direction ranging from the southwest to west.

At times a series of two or more tornadoes is associated with a single severe thunderstorm, Barfield said. "As the thunderstorm moves, tornadoes may form at intervals along its path, travel a few miles and then break up," he added.

Tornado paths are usually only a quarter of a mile wide and seldom more than 16 miles long, with a forward speed ranging from virtually nothing to 70 miles per hour.

Understanding the terms weather forecasters use concerning tornadoes is very important, Barfield said, noting the term "tornado watch" means "that conditions are such that tornadoes could and may develop. The term "tornado warning" means that a tornado has been sighted or indicated by weather radar. He recommended that in the case of a "tornado watch" announcement, persons should keep a battery-operated radio or TV at hand and listen for further information. But when a "tornado warning" is issued, persons should seek proper shelter and listen to the radio or TV for additional advisories.

"There is no way to stop a tornado, but it can be seen and people can seek shelter," he said. Due to the full force of a tornado usually being concentrated in a relatively small area, much of the burden of warning, evacuation and shelter falls the responsibility of the individual communities and even individual citizens.

"If you spot a tornado, immediately contact the local law enforcement agency, which, in turn, will notify the proper authorities," he said. "Proper authorities" are the National Weather Service, radio and television stations, which will all issue further details and warnings.

When a "tornado warning" is issued, persons should seek inside shelter—in a storm cellar, basement or a reinforced building. A particular advisement was to stay away from windows. "If a tornado is in the immediate vicinity, curl up so your head and eyes are protected," Barfield said.

In a basement, the southwest corner was termed as offering the greatest safety against tornadoes, with shelter to be sought under sturdy furniture or like objects, if possible. "This lessens the threat of being struck by flying objects, since tornadoes usually travel from the southwest to northwest," Barfield said.

"In homes without basements, take cover in the center part of the house, on the lowest floor, in a small room, such as a closet or bathroom, or under sturdy furniture," he continued. "Keep some windows open, but stay away from them."

People in office buildings should go to an interior hallway on the lowest floor, or to a designated shelter area. "Do not get in hallways with doorways at either end," Barfield warned. Most schools follow advance plans to take shelter in an interior hallway on the lowest floor, he said, noting that auditoriums, gymnasiums and other structures with wide, free-span roofs should be avoided.

In open country, people are advised to move away from the tornado's path at right angles and if there is not time to escape to lie flat in the nearest ditch or ravine. "Never sit in a parked car during a tornado warning," Barfield said.

Mobile homes are especially dangerous places during strong winds, since they could be overturned, he pointed out. He added that mobile home damage can be limited by securing it with cables anchored in concrete—but even so, he advised persons in a mobile home to seek shelter elsewhere.

"Trailer parks should have a community storm shelter and warden to monitor broadcasts during a severe storm emergency," Barfield said. "If there is no shelter nearby, leave the trailer park and take cover on low, protected ground."

The National Weather Service, through local Civil Defense organizations, offers free weather spotter training to any community that wants to establish a community warning plan, Barfield said. The program instructs volunteers the proper procedures in setting up an observer network to recognize severe storms and alert residents of a community. "The program involves volunteers spending little time to buy a few seconds that could save many lives," he emphasized.

chapter welcomed one visitor, Mrs. Rachel Griffith. After a brief business meeting, Mrs. Mary Gregory, who is the chapter's National Defense Chairman, gave a most informative report of her findings concerning local preparedness in an emergency. The members were shocked to learn that Rockcastle would be very poorly prepared in the event of a local disaster of any kind. An informed source in Frankfort state that on a scale of 0-100, Rockcastle rated less than 10 in Civil Defense. This source blamed a lack of interest on the part of the general public and Congress' failure to allocate money for Civil Defense supplies for this sorry state of affairs. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Ann Henderson and Mrs. Belle Huff.

Lightning is Major Killer

Lightning kills more people in the United States than do tornadoes, floods or hurricanes.

The year is again moving into the season when storms that trigger lightning become more prevalent, and with that in mind, B.J. Barfield, of UK's Agricultural Engineering Department and a weather specialist, urged Kentuckians to reacquaint themselves with a few simple safety rules that could very possibly save their lives during an electrical storm.

"Lightning seldom kills more than one person at a time," Barfield noted, "and for that reason a lightning death doesn't claim the attention that is regarded more spectacular incidents of nature's rampages such as tornadoes, hurricanes, and floods, which often have tolls that number scores of people."

When accounting for all lightning deaths in the United States in a single year, the toll is often more than twice the fatalities caused by tornadoes and not quite double the fatalities in which hurricanes and floods are responsible.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the parent organization of the National Weather Service, has drawn up a list of safety rules designed to avoid death and injury from lightning, Barfield said.

The first rule is simply to learn to recognize the signs of an oncoming thunderstorm, from which bolts of lightning emanate. "Watch for towering 'anvil' clouds, distant rumbles of thunder and distant flashes of lightning which indicate an approaching storm," Barfield said. He added that listening to the radio and television for National Weather Service forecasts and warnings provides the individual ample time to "get in out of the weather."

All experts on lightning agree that, when a thunderstorm threatens, the most important single thing is to get a home or large building, or inside an all-metal vehicle. An enclosed car or truck is described as an excellent shelter from lightning, for, if struck, it will allow the current to be discharged harmlessly into the ground.

When inside during an electrical storm, persons should avoid using a telephone, except for emergencies.

If outside, with no time to reach a safe building or an automobile, there are another set of rules to follow, Barfield said.

"Don't stand under a natural lightning rod, such as a tall, isolated tree in an open area," he warned. "Avoid standing in small isolated sheds or other small structures in open areas."

Persons should avoid projecting above the surrounding landscape, such as standing on a hilltop, in an open field, on a beach, or fishing from a small boat.

Get out of and away from open water," Barfield advised. "If you're swimming, the electrical current from the nearby lightning strike can flow through the water to you."

On the farm, persons are warned to get away from tractors and other metal farm equipment.

Get away from motorcycles, scooters, golf carts, and bicycles. Put down golf clubs. Stay away from wire fences, clotheslines, metal pipes, rails and other metallic parts that could carry the electrical shock from lightning from some distance away.

In a forest, a person should seek shelter in a low area under a thick growth of small trees, however, in other open areas a person should go to a low place, such as a ravine or valley.

If a person, helplessly isolated in an open field, suddenly feels the hair standing on end, the persons should drop to the knees, and bend forward putting the hands on the knees. "In this position, if lightning strikes near you, the chances of it using your body as a conductor are minimized," Barfield said.

The recommendation at one time was to lie flat in the field to get as low as possible, however, this action has been disapproved. Kneeling, it was stated, provides the maintaining of a low profile, while at the same time keeping as small an area of the body in contact with the ground as possible. Lying in a ditch or hollow is also discouraged, for surface water or saturated soils termed as a better conductor of electricity than the surrounding area.

Groups of persons in exposed situations, such as hikers or mountain climbers, should spread out-staying several yards apart—so if lightning strikes nearby, the smallest number will be affected.

"Many people apparently 'killed' by lightning can be revived if quick action is taken," Barfield pointed out. "When a group is affected, the apparently 'dead' should be treated first—those unconscious but breathing will probably recover on their own."

The American Red Cross says first aid should be given to persons not breathing within four to six minutes after being struck by lightning to prevent irrevocable damage to the brain. Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation should be administered once every five seconds to adults and once every three seconds to infants and small children until medical help arrives.

"If the victim is not breathing and has no pulse, cardio-pulmonary resuscitation is necessary. Cardio-pulmonary resuscitation is a combination of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external cardiac compression. Such action, however, should be administered by persons with proper training—the technique can be learned from local Red Cross or Heart Association chapters in one-day sessions.

It was emphasized that medical attention should also be given victims, who appear only temporarily stunned or otherwise unharmed, since there may be hidden injuries or effects.

Mental Health Matters

"My Child Won't..."

How many times have you heard someone say, "My child won't put his toys away, won't keep her room reasonably neat, won't do his homework, or won't listen to anything I say?" Why and how do children develop these problems? How can they be changed?

Let's consider the fact that children learn by imitation. Much time is spent by pre-schoolers during the developmental years, with parents, baby-sitters, relatives or staff of day care centers or nursery schools. What type of example do these important people set? Is it worthy of imitation? Have you helped or taught your child one to pick up the toys-made a game of it-even demonstrated a degree of enthusiasm while doing it? Do you, the parent, or big brother or sister, pick up your clothes, keep your room reasonably clean? Do you read or engage in some type of study as an example that homework is useful?

Do you say interesting meaningful things to your child so he or she will listen with interest? Do you praise him or show affection when he or she accomplishes one of these tasks? Children respond favorably to enthusiastic, consistent and loving adults who point the way to creative, challenging, necessary and rewarding activities for them.

S-T-R-E-T-C-H-I-N-G YOUR FOOD DOLLAR

When a cut such as pork blade steaks, or beef chuck is on "special" buy extra packages and freeze some. Over-wrap the packages with freezer wrap that you plan to store in the freezer. If you don't have freezer space, buy two packages. Serve one the first day and next two days later. Vary the flavor by cooking one with vegetables and the other with fruit.

55 MPH Speed Limit Proven Effective

The 55 mph national speed limit in effect since January 1974, has proven itself to be an effective means for energy conservation, according to State Transportation Secretary Calvin G. Grayson. The lower speed limit was first imposed in response to the October, 1973 Middle East oil embargo.

Grayson cited findings released by the Federal Highway Administration (FHA) in a statement encouraging Kentucky drivers to observe the 55 mph limit as an oil conservation measure.

According to findings, vehicle fuel efficiency has increased significantly since the lower limit has been in effect. During the first year of the 55 mph limit, the fuel efficiency average rose to 12.09 miles per gallon, a substantial increase as compared with the 11.85 figure for 1973.

The FHA findings also showed an increase in 1975 when the fuel efficiency average increased to 12.20.

In a similar study conducted by the Federal Energy Administration's Office of Conservation Policy, it was found that the 55 mph speed limit provided the largest savings of any single national energy conservation policy.

The federal report projected that if all vehicles traveling only main rural roads complied with the lower limit, 200,000 barrels of oil per day could be saved compared to the amount of fuel consumed by American motorists before the limit was lowered.

The report maintained that this potential savings—200,000 barrels per day—is cut in half when the average speeds reach 60 mph.

However, the FHA study shows

ARCHAEOLOGICAL SITES LIST FOUR IN PERRY COUNTY

Only four archaeological sites are known to exist in Perry County, but Tom Sanders and Tom Gatus, prehistoric archaeologists with the Kentucky Heritage Commission will be there looking for more.

According to Sanders, only a brief archaeological survey, completed in 1958 before Buckhorn Lake was built, has been conducted in the county since 1932.

From March 21 to April 8, Sanders and Gatus will be in Hazard to study the prehistoric sites and resources of Perry County. They are asking that any local persons interested in archaeology and knowing the locations of any sites contact them at the Citadel during the three-week survey.

Sanders explained, "The sites will probably reveal remains from the Indian cultures known as the Archaic, Woodland and Fort Ancient periods. The peoples of the Archaic period lived from about 8,000 to 1,000 B.C. As hunters and fishermen, they moved around part of the year, and only settled down seasonally along the river banks."

"The Woodland Indians dating from 1,000 B.C. to 900 A.D., were not as migratory but stayed in the central and eastern Kentucky villages. Some characteristic activities of these people are hunting, fishing, farming and pottery making," said Sanders.

Those living during the Fort Ancient period resided in rectangular or oval houses in small villages," said Sanders, "in addition to hunting and fishing, they farmed corn, beans, and squash. The Fort Ancient period dates from 1200 to 1650 A.D."

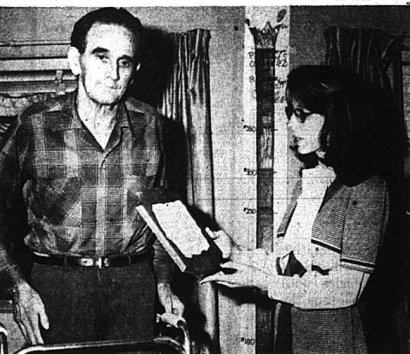

The Kentucky heritage Commission has chosen Perry County as one of 24 counties in which to study the archaeological resources during the next two fiscal years. The commission is preparing the archaeological and historic surveys to assist governmental agencies and industries in more effective planning and development throughout the state.

Rockcastle County is Eligible for Funds Under CETA Title VI

Balance of State-Kentucky, a prime sponsor under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), has been allocated funds under CETA Title VI to provide public service projects in the 89 counties served by the prime sponsor counties included in Balance of State and eligible for these funds are Laurel, Whitley, and Rockcastle Counties.

All applications are to be completed and submitted to the Cumberland Valley Area Development District (ADD) Manpower Planner for presentation to the Ancillary Manpower Planning Council. The application shall be forwarded to the Kentucky Manpower Planning Council (SMPC) with the Ancillary Manpower Planning Council's recommendations. The SMPC then recommends to the Governor or his designee as to which projects should be funded. With the Prime Sponsor's approval of the application and contract, the project may begin operation. No application shall be submitted directly to the SMPC or the prime sponsor. All projects must have the Ancillary Council recommendation before it can be funded.

Any private non-profit or public agency may apply for these funds.

Examples of public service include, but are not limited to beautification, conservation, crime prevention and control, education, child care, parks, streets, solid waste removal, fields of human betterment, veterans outreach, community improvement, recreation, and protection.

The application is designed to be converted into a contract upon its approval by the Prime Sponsor. The U.S. Department of Labor has issued a rigid time schedule for the implementation of Title VI projects. This does not provide time to clarify or amend the application once it has been submitted to the ADD Ancillary Manpower Council. The application must be able to stand on its own. If questions are not answered or answered incompletely, the application cannot be reviewed by the SMPC or submitted to the prime sponsor for approval. Failure to accurately and thoroughly address all points will result in delays in approval and implementation upon approval. It may result in the postponement of funding until the next fiscal year or preclude the project from funding altogether.

Applications may be picked up at the Cumberland Valley ADD office, 106 S. Broad Street, London, Ky. All completed applications must be returned to this office no later than April 8th. Due to the above mentioned time (Cont. 'd to P-14)

The $40,000 is federal money given to the state and this amount is the allocation for each county. In Rockcastle's case, since there is not enough money in the budget to pay for having the rock hauled then this amount ($8,247) will have to come out of the $40,000 allotted to the county, leaving approximately $31,753 to be used to buy rock.

FRANKFORT WATCHLINE

By: Ferrell Wellman

The man standing in the governor's office being sworn in to his new position was unique. He was a career state employee who had toiled in his department for 28 years before reaching the summit.

When Calvin E. Grayson took his oath as secretary of the state Department of Transportation and commissioner of the Bureau of Highways he became the first non-political appointment to run the state's second largest super agency. With Grayson's appointment leadership at transportation and in the highway department took a giant step away from the political cynicism that has been the trademark of those agencies since their creation.

Under the administration of Governor Wendell Ford the Bureau of Highways was under the guidance of James Gray and later Billy Paxton. Both were tight political associates of the former governor.

During the first year of the present administration, Governor Julian Carroll took what many believed to be a step in the right direction by naming John C. Roberts as highway commissioner and transportation secretary. Although Roberts was (and still is) a member of Carroll's inner-circle of advisors and friends he was the first engineer to run the state's highway program in 25 years.

Grayson's appointment goes one step further. He is not a political crony. He is a professional. Grayson, who is from Lexington, began his work for the state directly after graduating from the University of Kentucky with a BS in civil engineering. When the Department of Transportation was created by Governor Ford when he reorganized state government Grayson was named Transportation Planning Engineer for the state.

Grayson has vast experience and has a handle on the transportation problems that face the state. It will be interesting to see how the 3,000 employees who labor in the state's transportation agencies respond to his leadership.

Grayson replaced Roberts who became secretary of the Public Protection and Regulation cabinet. Although the shift means a loss of power and responsibility for Roberts there is no indication the former transportation secretary has fallen in disfavor with Governor Carroll.

Roberts suffered a serious heart attack last July. He returned to his demanding job in the fall. On one occasion I checked with him concerning reports that workers in the Louisville district were loan sharking and some dismissals were likely. Roberts denied any knowledge of an investigation. Early the following morning he called to say the reports were true, but his aides had not given him the details of the probe because they didn't want to worry him. "I had to remind them who's boss," Roberts told me.

Roberts replaces James Gray who is secretary of the governor's cabinet. His transfer was apparently not related to an investigation by state auditor George Atkins. On the day of the Roberts shift, Atkins confirmed that his office was investigating the paving of a road in Woodford County by the state. The road passed property owned by Roberts.

Roberts contends the road was paved at the request of the Woodford Fiscal Court. He says he even delayed the project for one year. Atkins says his investigation will be completed in a few weeks.

The governor's office must have known about the probe. It would be surprising if it didn't have ears in the auditor's office. It's no secret that Governor Carroll wants to be aware of what Atkins is up to since the bad feelings between the two continue to intensify. With a meaningful investigation under way, it's unlikely Carroll would have switched Roberts when he did.

In 1967 the Nunn administration fired 225 merit system employees in the highway department. The courts have since determined the workers were discharged without cause. A $1.25 million settlement has been reached in the case.

That's why Governor Nunn's planned visit to Murray State University draws a snicker. Nunn is scheduled to address a conference. His subject:

and responsibility for Roberts there is no indication the former transportation secretary has fallen in disfavor with Governor Carroll.

Roberts suffered a serious heart attack last July. He returned to his demanding job in the fall. On one occasion I checked with him concerning reports that workers in the Louisville district were loan sharking and some dismissals were likely. Roberts denied any knowledge of an investigation. Early the following morning he called to say the reports were true, but his aides had not given him the details of the probe because they didn't want to worry him. "I had to remind them who's boss," Roberts told me.

Roberts replaces James Gray who is secretary of the governor's cabinet. His transfer was apparently not related to an investigation by state auditor George Atkins. On the day of the Roberts shift, Atkins confirmed that his office was investigating the paving of a road in Woodford County by the state. The road passed property owned by Roberts.

Shoplifters Pick Everyone's Pocket

The nimble fingers of shoplifters are costing us all a bundle. The people studying this growing problem estimate that shoplifting costs retail businesses five million dollars each year. And they pass this cost on to the consumer in the form of higher prices.

In one large department store under surveillance, researchers observed 500 shoppers. One out of every twelve stole something.

The majority of these slight-of-hand artists are amateur thieves. They come in all ages, sizes, shapes and colors, and from all economic levels of our society. We don't have to just stand by and let them get away with it. There are at least five things you can do.

1. If you see a shoplifter in action, quickly report what you saw to a clerk or to security personnel.

2. When you buy something, insist on a receipt.

3. Refuse to accept an improperly-wrapped package, or you might be in for the unpleasant experience of having store personnel suspect you of snopiting.

Mrs. Anna Kay Owens' class, top photo, and Gary Scott's class collected more for the Heart Fund at Brodhead Elementary School than any other classes there. Members of Mr. Scott's class are, front row, from left: Bill Lear, Glenna Dooley, Katherine Brown, Rhonda Hanel and Paula Bell. Second row: Craig White, Ronnie Cameron, Gary Hurst, Lisa Lawrence, Dee Ann Sargent, Debbie Barron, Mike Glovak, Barry Hurst.

1. The grain or weave in the fabric should be straight with the frames of the piece. 2. Hems and pleats should hang (Cont. to 8)

Annual Lincoln Banquet

Mr. Lee Nunn, Chairman of the Republican Party of Kentucky, will be the guest speaker at the Annual Lincoln Banquet sponsored by the Pulaski County Young Republican Club. The banquet will be held Friday, March 25, in the Pulaski County High School cafeteria beginning at 6:30 p.m., EST. State Senator John Rogers will serve as Master of Ceremonies.

Mr. Nunn entered politics in 1953 helping his brother, Louie, be elected as Barren County's first Republican Judge since Reconstruction. He was a campaign liaison to the Eisenhower White House for the successful Kentucky campaign which re-elected the President and sent John Sherman Cooper and Thruston B. Morton to the U.S. Senate. He later went to Washington to serve as Administrative Assistant to Senator Morton. In 1962 he directed the successful re-election of Senator Morton and returned to Kentucky in 1967 to help his brother be elected the Commonwealth's seventh Republican Governor. Mr. Nunn was

Mrs. Stella Burke has been named Brodhead Chairman of the Breath of Spring Bike-A-Thon to fight children's lung-damaging diseases, according to Jay Crouse, president of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. Ms. Burke is leading local volunteers in organizing a Bike-A-Thon in Brodhead to raise funds to support research and care programs for children affected by lung-damaging diseases like Cystic Fibrosis, severe asthma chronic bronchitis, and bronchiectasis.

The Bike-A-Thon campaign period will be held during the month of April. Approximately one of every 1,500 babies is born with Cystic Fibrosis, which is still incurable. Cystic Fibrosis is inherited when both parents carry the recessive gene for Cystic Fibrosis. It is believed that one in twenty persons, or a total of ten million Americans, is a symptomless carrier of this gene.

Current research funded by the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is seeking practical tests to identify these carriers, as well as a cure for Cystic Fibrosis and better methods of treatment for all lung-damaging diseases.

Because of improved treatment developed through research, many Cystic Fibrosis patients are now living into the teens and young adulthood. This same treatment is also benefiting and often curing children suffering from other lung-damaging diseases. Even with this progress, the need of millions of children who struggle to breathe grows larger, and with it the need for more volunteers and more funds.

BREATH OF SPRING BIKE-A-THON IS APRIL 16

Mrs. Stella Burke, Chairman of the Breath of Spring Bike-A-Thon has announced that April 16 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. will be the official date for the Cystic Fibrosis Bike-A-Thon in Brodhead. If you wish to participate in the event, instructions and pledge forms are available at Brodhead School, Rockcastle Carpet Store in Brodhead.

If you have any questions or can help in any way, please contact Mrs. Burke at 758-8624.

Spring and Artists are Budding At Natural Bridge State Park

By Helen Price Stacy

Spring, Natural Bridge State Resort Park and paintings each Sunday and sometimes Saturday too-by Kentucky artists can be reason enough to plan to visit Powell County Park.

This resort has a history in railroading, picnicking, and folk lore as well as in fostering arts and crafts in the Commonwealth. There was a time "Way back" when any politician who was serious about his campaign did not consider a halt to the speeches and community visits until he had made a stop at the old Hemlock Lodge or at the outdoor dance pavilion down below where dancers were cutting a rusty.

Those too young to do so did run here and there, enjoying games and climbing; those too old sat and whittled long shavings or did a bit of handwork.

The fun, the frolics and the creativity are still much a part of the park at Slade, which is accessible from the Mountain Parkway.

From the time in 1925 when the Louisville & Nashville Railroad gave land to the Commonwealth to be developed into a state park, the park has helped bring to public attention musicians, crafts persons and artists.

On March 13, Lexington artist, Tom Armstrong showed his paintings including a Morgan County sargum mill, a mountain moonshine still and an Eastern Kentucky coal tipple. March 20, Charles Spaulding will exhibit his art work of birds and wildlife and demonstrate painting.

Putting together the showings are Park Manager Dan Glass and park personnel Scotty and Carole Bush through cooperation of the Kentucky Department of Parks. Saturday exhibits will be from 1 to 7 p.m. and Sunday hours are 1 to 4 p.m.

Viewing with the artist and their colorful paintings will be spring wildflowers. Any trail in the park offers vistas of beauty as far as the eye can see and displays of smaller but just as spectacular beauty at one's feet.

For further information about the artists or what the park has to offer in other recreation features, contact the park at Slade, telephone 606-963-2214.

RE-ELECT

Judge Hubert Thacker

County Judge Executive

To The Citizens Of Rockcastle County

As I have already indicated, I am willing and want to continue to serve you as your County Judge Executive for the next four years. I believe that these will be the most important four years that most Rockcastle County citizens will remember or will live to see. Many of you have dreamed dreams about progress for Rockcastle County -- Now we know that many of these are coming true. We know that almost all our surrounding counties have had factories in their counties for years. With your continued support, we will have factories and jobs in Rockcastle County within a very short period of time. The county now owns land for an industrial site. I have appointed an Industrial Authority to manage the site and federal money is committed to develop it for factories which will mean jobs and this means that our children can come back and work at home.

In later issues of this paper, I want to talk about some of the other things that we have dreamed of having. These include our fine hospital, our growing Senior Citizens Program, Child Development, ambulances, garbage disposal, county park and the possibility of some public housing that I am told we will need once factories begin to come to Rockcastle County.

Four years ago, I promised to take an interest in and support all these things that you have wanted. I believe that my record will bear out that I am making a strong effort to keep those promises.

I am always aware that I am the public's servant.

SINCERELY,

Hubert Thacker

Consumer Comments

Attorney General

Would you like to buy some magazines? This question will be asked time and again during the warm weather months ahead. You better have some questions and answers ready, or you may end up with magazines you don't really want.

Almost every consumer has been approached at one time or another by a magazine salesperson who says that he or she is competing for a trip to Europe, trying to win a scholarship, or working his or her way through college. This is almost never true, and don't be influenced by such sales pitches, since they have nothing to do with whether or not a magazine is a good buy.

You should question introductions such as "I am taking a survey of neighborhood reading habits" or "The magazine is free; all you have to pay for is the cost of postage and handling." These are merely deceptive and illegal plays used to get into your house. If you know at this point that you don't want or need a magazine subscription, then say so and send the salesperson on his or her way.

If you are interested in subscribing, ask to see the solicitor's registration number. All salespersons selling any type of printed materials in Kentucky, where the delivery depends upon some type of future payment, must pay a fee and register with the county clerk of the county in which the solicitations will be made. If the salesperson is not registered, he or she is doing business illegally.

Also, all "deals" will be presented in very attractive packages. Don't be fooled by the claim that the subscription will only cost you "A few pennies a day." Just ten pennies a day is $36.50 a year, and if you buy a three year subscription, "a few pennies a day" can add up to more than $100. Make sure you compute this cost and compare it to the subscription prices offered by the magazine itself.

Consumers should also remember that door-to-door salespeople have sales pitches designed to push you into purchasing merchandise for which they receive a commission. They are not giving away anything for free. Some will try to maneuver you into signing a contract by embarrassing you or by promising a lot of free extras. Don't be pressured into signing anything. If you are not sure, tell the salesperson to come back or that you will send the contract in the mail. If the solicitor won't agree to this, then call off the transaction.

Before you sign a contract, make sure that you read it first, and understand it exactly what you are doing. Also, look for the notice that you have three business days in which to cancel the contract. If this is not on the contract, the contract cannot be valid. If you sign a contract, and then realize it is inadvisable, you can utilize

Kentucky Afield

BY JOHN WILSON

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources trout tricks will start rolling March 22, as the annual stocking of rainbow trout into streams, lakes and tailwaters gets underway.

Although the commonwealth's trout water are usually stocked for the first time early in March, it was necessary to wait until the end of the month this year because cold weather last winter slowed down the trout's growth. The fish are stocked at an average length of nine inches, a size they won't obtain this year until almost a full month later than usual.

The department will stock 31 streams, eight tailwaters, and 10 lakes this year. In addition, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will stock an additional 11 streams in the Daniel Boone National Forest with trout.

These fish are all catchable size trout, and the intention is that most of these fish be caught shortly after stocking for trout to spawn successfully in Kentucky and low water during the summer limits the number of trout that will hold over from one year to the next.

Some streams are stocked for only two months, while other streams receive trout through September depending upon stream flow. Since the tailwaters below the larger dams in Kentucky are fed by cold water from the deep in the lake, they are stocked through October on a monthly basis, with one exception. No trout are stocked by the department of fish and wildlife in May, because the trucks and crews are busy with the farm pond program during that month.

Tailwaters usually have favorable conditions for "hold-over" trout. The state record rainbow, 14 pounds, four ounces, came from the tailwaters of Lake Cumberland.

Lakes must be deep and cool to support trout. The best lake fishing for trout is now at Laurel River Lake, near Corbin. This 5,000 acre impoundment was stocked in February with its yearly quota of 65,000 trout, in addition to holdover fish from stockings since 1973.

The nearest thing to "native" trout fishing in Kentucky occurs in a few remote streams in the Daniel Boone National Forest, where fingerling trout are stocked by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. These trout grow up wild and wary, and the challenge of catching them is sometimes matched by the challenge of getting back into these remote waters.

Kentuckians have their own ways of catching trout, which, even though they would make a dry fly purist cringe, are effective. Whole kernel corn, a small job of cheese or a worm are favorite baits. These are usually cast out and allowed to sink, then the angler simply waits for a bite.

Those who prefer artificial lures usually choose light tackle with small spinners. It's unusual to see anyone fly fishing Kentucky's trout streams, but this shouldn't discourage fly fishermen; flies should be as effective here as anywhere else.

If you'd like to try this year, drop a line to the Division of Public Relations, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, for a copy of this year's trout fishing guide. This pamphlet tells which waters are stocked and the months each receives trout.

SHORT ROWS

Some call it, Witloof chicory; others, French endive. Old time gardeners had still another name, succery, but by whatever name it was called, it was, and is, an excellent salad plant, even if little grown in home gardens of Kentucky.

One of the great advantages of this plant is that its blanched tops can be made to serve as an unending supply of delicious salads for the "heads" that are used for salad, but these rows can be stored like carrots or turnips until needed. Any roots left in the soil outdoors can be taken up in early spring and replanted in boxes of soil mixture. Or, by cutting off the tops and heaping soil deep over them, they may be forced to produce a spring crop of salad.

It takes a little effort to produce Witloof salad, of course, but anyone who has ever partaken of a bowl of this appetizer, will most likely agree it was worth it.

A Consumer Tip
From Extension Specialists at the UK College of Agriculture

When a cut such as pork blade steaks or beef chuck is on "special," buy extra packages and freeze some. Over-wrap the packages with freezer wrap that you plan to store in the freezer. If you don't have freezer space, buy two packages. Serve one the first day and next two days later. Vary the flavor by cooking one with vegetables (tomato and onion) and the other with fruit (canned peaches or apple wedges).

YOUR HELP APPRECIATED

Real Estate

By SAM FORD
REALTOR

Hesitation Can Be Costly

Once you put real estate on the market, you have to make up your mind to move when the right offer comes. Your asking price should come pretty close to your selling price, if you have priced your property realistically. The right offer will be your first offer, and if you turn it down, you may never get another as good.

However, the offer should be a written one - the only kind that has any real significance and on which you can depend.

Just remember that a legitimate offer should be accompanied by a good-sized check depending on the selling price. Never accept a verbal promise and take your property off the market. The next day, a good sale may be lost if you are tied up in this type of questionable transaction. You'll never have to worry about this situation arising if the sale of your property is in the hands of a Realtor.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at Ford Realty & Auction Co., Inc., Mt. Vernon, Ph. 256-4545. We're here to help!

For 5th District

MAGISTRATE

During the four years I have served as magistrate from the 5th District, I have attempted to expend your county funds in the most careful and economical way possible while always looking out for the best interest of the people in my district.

I have worked for and obtained for my district, during this term:

The upgrading of almost all roads, including the blacktopping of the Saltpetre Cave Road back to the Red Hill Road. I also obtained much-needed guard rails for the Brush Creek Road and have worked long and hard for the upgrading of the Cove Branch Road (although I have not managed to make much headway with the State Dept. of Highways on this project).

When I first took office, I had a total of $53 to work with and in spite of this, within the first 4 months I took office I was faced with a flood which washed out 3 or 4 bridges in my district and the tornado which also tore up several roads. I had these bridges replaced within a very short time. Also during my term of office, I have assisted with the formation of the Rockcastle County Ambulance Service, which included modern service to the people of Rockcastle County.

I am also very proud of the fact that I was able to fulfill one of my original campaign pledges to upgrade the roads to all cemeteries in my district.

I have worked long and hard for you, the people of the 5th District, and feel that I have had the experience and qualifications to serve you in this capacity for four more years.

Record High is Given Burley Quotas

By Bennett Roach

With mid-March beginning another burley crop year, growers over the eight-state belt have again o.k.'d their production control program—this time by a record high percentage.

An even 99 percent endorsement was registered in the 1977 referendum, highest "yes" score yet recorded. It was the third time the program has been approved by belt-wide vote since poultage controls were adopted in 1971.

All eight of the burley producing states showed percentage gains over 1971 and 1974, in final figures from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, as supplied by the Kentucky state office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Lexington, Ky.

Although the "No" vote total has always been minimal, the record high percentage in favor was regarded as an indication of growing satisfaction with poultage controls, and the price-support program in general.

U.S. Burley in Far-Away Places

By Bennett Roach

"You're the only tobacco man to come through here in the 3 1/2 years I have been here."

So the U.S. Agricultural Attache at Djakarta told R.C. (Dick) Travis, who is traveling Southeast Asia in the interest of U.S. grown burley tobacco. Djakarta is the capital of the Republic of Indonesia, a country with 130 million people.

Some U.S. tobacco manufacturers are expanding in that corner of the globe, where American and English type cigarettes are highly popular, and Travis wants to make certain that the unique flavor of U.S. burley is part of the blend.

As world traveling agent of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, with headquarters at Lexington, Ky., Travis arrived in Australia in late February and is continuing with visits to Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia, Borneo, Sumatra and the Philippines.

opened up and the economy is booming, with inflation skyrocketing.

In neighboring Java a leading U.S. tobacco concern "opened up in joint ownership with the government," wrote Travis. "How clever can you get?"

In Singapore where he once helped set up a tobacco factory for a U.S. concern he worked for, Travis noted that it has now been taken over by a British firm.

Like Hong Kong, Singapore is a free port and U.S. brands of cigarettes are plentiful, around 65¢ a pack. But throwing a cigarette butt on the street can bring a $4.25 fine in "The world's cleanest city."

Australia where the seasons are the reverse of North America's, starts tobacco marketing in March. The country has production control and minimum-purchase guarantees for flue-cured tobacco, much like burley in the United States.

The country also has a strict "Mixing law" requiring cigarette manufacturers to use 50 percent Australian tobacco. This has been increased to 70 percent by voluntary agreement among manufacturers in order to help reduce surplus stocks. The high price of cigarettes (82¢ to 90¢) has reduced sales so sharply that tobacco stock-piles are a problem.

Australia grows about 1 1/2 million pounds of burley a year, about ten times more than eight years ago. Due to extremely high Federal and state taxes on locally-produced cigarettes, the imported products from the U.S. sell for about the same price as domestic.

In this situation Travis sees prospects as "very good" for marketing U.S. burley blend cigarettes in Australia.

Flue-cured is the principal type grown and for this the Australian farmer receives a guaranteed $1.58 per pound (U.S. equivalent).

Says Travis: "This extremely high price has backfired on the farmer, whereby he has lost any hope of exporting either leaf or manufactured products. The drop in consumption due to excessive taxation has created a situation that could be very tense for the local manufacturers."

"Meanwhile, the farmers want an increase in their minimum price for this year's crop, which begins marketing in March and extends into November. They say they need more money, as the cost of production steadily goes up. However, there are some old hands who say that they may well price themselves totally out of the market."

"I believe that we may learn something from this situation, and practice more restraint in our pricing and grading system."

County Agent's Notes

BY H. LEE DURHAM
COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT
FOR AGRICULTURE

A brand new tabloid publication primarily developed for the home landscape gardener has been issued by the Department of Horticulture of UK's College of Agriculture.

"Plants and Plans for Kentucky Yards" is the title of the new tabloid—the second tabloid prepared and released by UK horticulturists for the benefit of Kentuckians on recommendations and suggestions on gardening.

The first tabloid was one of the vegetable garden, first published in 1975, with a revised edition published in 1976.

The home gardener tabloid was a very popular publication; the supplies being quite rapidly exhausted as more and more persons have turned to "growing their own vegetables" in recent years.

With more and more homeowners now looking at the problems of landscaping their yards not only for beauty, but also with an eye to the ecology needs in the environment, UK horticulturists decided to answer the many questions on landscaping by developing the tabloid as a means to set up guidelines in the planning and planting of the so-called "ornamentals."

The new tabloid contains "Facts, principles, and ideas which can help shape your yard the way you want." UK horticulturists say. Sometimes people think landscaping must be hard because the word sounds so formal. Forget it. Once you know what you want and what you can practically do with your yard, landscaping is easy.

There are suggestions on what trees and shrubs are most generally fitted for Kentucky climate, tips on how and where to acquire the trees and shrubs, the planting, fertilization and care of the plants, disease control and even tips on how to have a better lawn.

"We feel the tabloid on ornamentals—that is to say, trees and shrubs—is a good piece of companion information to the garden tabloid," the horticulturists said.

The new landscaping tabloid will be available through the offices of the individual county agents.

Fertilizer Top Dressing Time

The Mt. Vernon Signal Thursday, March 24, 1977 P.9

For Pastures Is Here—Early Spring (February and March) is the ideal time to fertilize established pastures. When fertilizers are put on early in the year, the perennial grasses and legumes are able to get off to an earlier and faster start.

The best guide to find out what fertilizer is needed, and how much to use, is a good soil test. When fertilizers are applied to pastures based on a soil test recommendation, you can expect to get back up to $5 worth of feed for each $1 you invest.

As a general guide for your pastures, here are two suggestions: (1) If you need both phosphate and potash for a good grass and legume pasture, use 300 pounds of 1-20-20 or its equivalent, (2) If you need both phosphate and potash and your pasture is grass only, you should use some nitrogen. An application of 300-400 pounds of 10-10-10 or its equivalent will give good results. If more production is wanted, additional nitrogen fertilizer in July or August will help.

So don't put fertilizing off put it on!!

CUMBERLAND PCA

Rockcastle County and Kentucky farmers lost a real friend last week in a tragic accident. Mr. Smith T. Powell, Jr., from Lincoln County.

Smith T., as he was called by everyone, was well known all over the state of Kentucky, as he was serving as President of the Kentucky Beef Cattle Association and the Leader in getting the beef check-off program in the state.

Smith T. worked several years as an adult farmer-instructor in the Vocational Agriculture Program in Rockcastle County, holding classes with farmers.

Smith T. could always be depended upon to give his all in whatever was beneficial, progressive and a better way of life for the farmer and his family.

Smith T. will be missed by his many friends everywhere and will always be remembered for the many good things he did for all people "Down on the Farm".

KY FATALITY RATE LOWEST SINCE 1962

Kentucky State Police have reported that this year's fatality rate for the month of February is the lowest since 1962.

State Police Lt. Ernest Blevins said, "We had predicted that more people would be killed because of an increase in traffic after the hard winter, but just the opposite happened." He said only 41 people were killed on the highways last month.

"Over the past 15 years," Blevins said, "we have averaged 58 deaths on Kentucky roads for this month." The total for the year now stands at 112.

COACH ADOLPH RUPP NAMED CHAIRMAN FOR CANCER SOCIETY

Coach Adolph F. Rupp is the American Cancer Society, Kentucky Division, 1977 Crusade Chairman. Coach Rupp has long been an active American Cancer Society volunteer. He has served on the Kentucky Division Board for five years and has been involved with the Fayette County unit since 1968.

Coach Rupp noted in accepting the chairmanship that the American Cancer Society program is a threefold one of research, education and service and rehabilitation to help the cancer patient.

"We could be saving many more lives from cancer with what we know today if everyone understood the importance of early diagnosis and prompt treatment. While there are many more things than can be done for the advanced cancer patient today, treatment is more successful when applied to an early case," Coach Rupp said.

For this reason, the annual American Cancer Society Crusade combines education and fund-raising to support the threefold American Cancer Society program. "Our volunteers will be contacting as many people in Kentucky as possible to ask for support, and to give our literature containing the best American Cancer Society advice on safeguards against cancer."

Governor Carroll has proclaimed April as Cancer Control Month in the Commonwealth. He and Coach Rupp are asking that every Kentuckian do his part to help fight cancer this year.
