"Battered Wives" Tragedy Examined By KET

They suffer from bruises, lacerations, concussions, and broken bones, but seldom, if ever do they report the violence they suffer from.

Wife-beating—often considered the most unreported crime—is cutting across class and social lines. Whether out of fear, humiliation or economic dependence, most women do not press criminal charges against their husbands. If they do, they must be willing to leave him and national studies show most women either do not want to leave or have no place to go.

KET's "Woman Alive" will present "A License For Violence: The Tragedy of Battered Wives" on Friday, April 29 at 10 p.m. (ET), 9 p.m. (CT) and Monday, May 2, at 9 p.m. (ET), 8 p.m. (CT). The May 2 showing will be followed by a special "Commonwealth Call-In" examining the tragedy of battered wives at 10 p.m. (ET), 9 p.m. (CT).

With Gloria Steinem as the anchorperson, "Woman Alive" will show a film about Erin Pizzey, founder of London's Chiswick refuge, which accepts abused women and their children from all over England. Ms. Steinem will discuss the problem of battered wives in the United States and what is being done—and not done—for them in this country.

Immediately following, a panel of guests from Louisville and Northern Kentucky will talk about what is being done in Kentucky. The guests will be Virginia Collins Burbank, a Louisville attorney; May Zriny, a psychiatric social worker; and feminist counselor, John Higgins, a social worker; and Roxanne Qualls, a social worker with the

KEEP TAX RECORDS FOR SIX YEARS

Once you receive your tax refund, it's safe to throw away your accumulated records for the year, right? WRONG!

"A refund only means that the initial processing of your return has been completed," says Helen Stevens, Extension family economics specialist at the UK College of Agriculture. "An audit may still be a couple of years away."

So, to be on the safe side, she advises you to keep all those receipts and cancelled checks around for at least 6 years. That means clear back to include your 1970 tax information.

Keep the records for your 1976 return until April, 1982, and hang onto those final copies of your tax returns indefinitely. They can come in handy for lots of purposes.

"Keep a separate clearly-marked folder for each year's receipts and records," is Ms. Stevens' suggestion. "It's also a good idea to have fire-proof metal safety boxes for storing your important papers."

If for some reason your tax return is audited, IRS regulations require such action within 3 years. However, under certain circumstances of suspected fraud or evasion, IRS can go back for as many years as necessary.

Don't panic if an IRS audit does come your way, even if you've thrown away your records," Ms. Stevens adds. It will be a whole lot easier and less time-consuming if you have all your records and receipts handy. But, if you don't, they will accept and/or help you reconstruct a reasonable basis of proof for most of the facts and figures you have put down on your return. Unless you have intentionally cheated on your taxes, you should have nothing to fear.

Ms. Stevens says that homeowners should keep all their records of purchases, improvements, taxes, etc., even if they bought their home 50 years ago. These records are invaluable for tax assessment purposes, resale, loan collateral, estate planning, and computing rental value.

Kentucky Afield

By John Wilson

Although it's getting harder and harder to find a bargain these days, there are still some good deals around.

One such bargain, offered by the Conservation Education Division of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, is a week (Monday noon through Friday noon) at summer camp for $23. This price includes lodging, meals, insurance, expert instruction in a variety of outdoor skills and valuable lessons in conservation. The only other charge is a small fee ($5 or less, depending on distance) for transportation to and from camp.

But like almost all other bargains, there is a catch. In the first-place, you have to be a fifth or sixth grader to qualify for the camping program, and your school must have participated in fish and wildlife's conservation education program during the winter months.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife, which has operated a camping program since 1945, currently has three camps for youngsters, Camp Robert Webb on Grayson Lake, Camp Earl Wallace on Lake Cumberland and Camp John Currie on Kentucky Lake.

At these camps, youngsters get a chance to practice some of the outdoor skills which they studied in the classroom portion of the conservation education program. Members of the conservation education division visit each participating school monthly, introducing students to the various aspects of conservation.

At the camps, many subjects taught during the school year, are reintroduced in an outdoor setting, with daily nature hikes to allow the students a first hand look at this topic. Safety is emphasized, both in many of the lessons and in the way all activities are conducted. Campers are taught first aid, swimming, safe boating practices and hunter safety, including the proper handling of both firearms and archery equipment.

And the safety record of the camps themselves is something to be proud of, according to Bill Bell, director of the conservation education division. "In 32 years, we haven't lost a single camper," he says.

Boys and girls in the participating schools received camp applications during March. These applications need to be returned by May 1, but Bell urges parents to act promptly, since many districts reach their quota before the deadline. Applications should be returned to the wildlife conservation education supervisor is also than can get in touch with for additional information about the camping program.

Bell emphasized that applications should not be mailed either to the camp itself or to the fish and wildlife office in Frankfort since the result could be delays in processing which might mean that the application wouldn't meet the deadline.

10 Flood-Stricken Counties Declared Major Disaster

Gov. Julian Carroll declared 10 flood-stricken southeastern Kentucky counties a major disaster area today and asked President Carter to do the same at the federal level.

In a telegram to the President, Gov. Carroll said heavy rains and flooding that began Monday already have caused four deaths, rendered thousands of persons homeless and inflicted millions of dollars' worth of damage to public and private property.

Before leaving to tour the area by helicopter Tuesday afternoon, Gov. Carroll said the flooding "seems to be much worse" than the 1963 flood although "we don't know yet whether it will match 1967."

The counties most severely affected were Harlan, Bell, Pike, Knox, Whitley, Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Perry and Leslie. Governor Carroll said damage reports also are coming in from other counties in the area, and they have been added to the disaster list as circumstances warrant and as recommended by the Division of Disaster and Emergency Services.

The Governor ordered additional state police units to the area to provide security.

He activated National Guard units Monday to help flood victims evacuate their homes. Other units are standing by to help as needed.

The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration responded immediately by sending two field men from the Atlanta Office last Tuesday to evaluate the extent of damages. Usually, that is not done until after the necessary paperwork is completed.

Declaration of a federal disaster area will make the victims eligible for low-interest loans as well as provide federal grants to repair or rebuild public facilities, including roads and government buildings.

Designation of a state disaster area by the Governor enables the state's resources of state government to provide assistance.

Donations Being Asked For Flood Victims

We have heard much about the needs of our neighbors who were victims of the recent flooding in Southeastern Kentucky. We are soliciting the aid of people in this area who would like to help.

Canned goods, linens, pillows, coats, mattresses and cleaning supplies are being collected to be taken to the flood victims in Pineville on Saturday, April 16. These items may be taken to: S&T Hardware in Broadhead, Livingston Motors in Livingston, the PCA building in Mt. Vernon, Cox Funeral Home in Mt. Vernon or the Christian Church in Mt. Vernon.

If you would like to help, but have to have someone pick-up your supplies, you may call any of the following persons who will be happy to come and get your donations: Bert McWhorter, 758-8377; Fay Mobley, 758-8950 (after 5 p.m.); Cox Funeral Home - 256-2345 or 256-4444; Bro. Ernie Johnson, 256-4352 or any member of the Rescue Squad.

Those who want to help but have none of the items mentioned, may donate money. The money will be used to buy canned foods and cleaning supplies. There is no need for clothing.

If you would like further information, call (Cont. to 9)

Renfro Valley to Get Historical Marker

A state historical marker saluting Renfro Valley's role in the development of country music will be unveiled in this Rockcastle county community on Saturday, April 23.

The Renfro Valley Barn Dance began national radio broadcasts in 1939. Announcer John Lair introduced "the first and only barn dance on the air, as presented by the actual residents of an actual community."

Since its premiere, the Barn Dance has helped launch the careers of several prominent country music artists, including Homer and Jethro, Little Jimmy Dickens, Merle Travis and Red Foley. The program has entertained in the White House and given a command performance for British royalty.

The unveiling ceremony for the historical marker will begin at 2:00 p.m. and continue until 5 p.m. The ceremony will include a special old-time country music stage show. The public is invited.

City Council Votes To Open Lake Linville Earlier

The Mt. Vernon City Council voted in a 3-1 decision at Monday night's meeting to open Lake Linville for motor boating before the Memorial Day weekend. There were two abstentions.

The request was made by John Lair by letter as "a personal favor." The council refused to change the existing ordinance that forbids the operation of motor boats between June 10 and September 10, but decided to open it up to motor-powered craft from May 27-September 6. That will mean the lake will open up 2 weeks earlier than what is called for in the ordinance passed last year.

Those voting for the change were Dennis Halcomb, Conrad Parrett, and Bob Jasper. Chester Hillard was the lone dissenter. Oscar Bullock and Elmer Alcorn obtained.

The Council moved to allow for an extra police officer to patrol 4 hours daily, six days a week. The increase of daylight burglaries in parking lots prompted the action.

Fencing of the city parking lot was also on the agenda. Two bids were submitted. Tony Hopkins, of Sears and John Newland of Newland Construction Co. were returned their bids upon being considered at a later meeting after the city meets bidding regulations.

Four people requested action from the Mt. Vernon Water Works. Residents of the Cedar Heights Subdivision requested that lines be installed to service their homes. After getting a cost estimate for line installation, the representatives of the group was asked to talk to other owners to see if they are willing to share the

Tribbett Found Guilty

Peter L. Tribbett was found guilty Tuesday, by a Rockcastle Circuit Court Jury, on three counts in connection with the February, 1975, shooting death of Clarence Perciful of Mt. Vernon.

The jury assessed a punishment of life imprisonment on the murder charge, 10 years on the count of burglary and 5 years on the theft charge. Sentencing will be at a later date.

Members of the 1977 Rockcastle Baseball team are shown in the above photo. The team has had a leading season thus far although in their last couple of games they have looked much better. Monday they bowed to Berea by a 2-1 decision and Tuesday they lost to Clay County in the final inning. Members of the squad are, front row, from left: Coach Jack Lawson, Walter Downing, Mike Arnold, Bruce Hopkins, Jimmy Baker, James Thompson, David Cummins and Asst. Coach David Hanson. Second row, from left: Darrell Bell, manager, Lee Cole, Jeff Taylor, Brian Stokes, Tony Seyler, De Huffines, David Pensol, David Owens and Mark Bishop. Back row, from left: Robert Scott, manager, Matt Foytner, Mark Cummins, Bobby Bell, Billy Hackworth, David Riddle and Rick Anderson.

The Levisa Fork Overruns Its Banks filling the valleys and lapping buildings in Prestonsburg. Such scenes are common in many parts of Eastern Kentucky where flooding started earlier last week.

Attacking The Food Shortage in Flooded Counties the Kentucky Army National Guard airlifts hamburgers from Winchester to Eastern Kentucky. The "Big Mac Attack" was launched when Jerry Healy, who owns three McDonald's restaurants, donated the burgers. About 3,000 of them have been flown to stranded residents of Pikeville, Harlan, and Pineville. The restaurant chain is sending two corporate jet helicopters to fly more food to the devastated areas.

A Review of the 1974-75 County Audit

The 1974-75 fiscal year audit report, presented to the Fiscal Court at last week's regular meeting, contained a report concerning the County Clerk's excess fees for that period.

The auditor, who presented the report to the Court, made a personal recommendation that the court approve the additional monies for deputy hire for the period.

According to the audit report, prepared by the office of George L. Atkins, Auditor of Public Accounts, the county did not, operate in accordance with provisions of the Uniform County Budget Law since the budget was overspent by $4,818. This overexpenditure was after a budget amendment of $2,435. The largest overexpenditures were: $4,573 for Social Security payments, $1,782 for retirement; $1,200 in interest for the general fund debt service and $1,187 under miscellaneous expenses for Election Commissioner. The total spent in the miscellaneous category was $4,824.

The Revenue Sharing fund was also overspent by $2,280; however, $10,000 was allocated for the Rockcastle Amblinette Service which was not included in the original budget. Therefore, monies had to be trimmed from other areas in the Revenue Sharing fund to cover that expense.

It was also recommended in the audit that the County Treasurer keep a ledger which will include all disbursements by the county and that an inventory be prepared of all county-owned equipment.

Tickets are 50c for the smaller print and $1 for the larger one and may be purchased from Mrs. Stewart at Young's Pharmacy. Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:
In 1974 and 1976, I introduced a bill in the Kentucky General Assembly that ultimately would eliminate "throwaway" beer and beverage containers. In both sessions this bill was defeated because of the very strong and well financed lobbying effort by the affected industries.

In 1975, a survey of the people of Kentucky indicated that 97% favored a ban on "throwaway" beer and beverage containers. You might ask, why, if so many favor this legislation, was it defeated? The answer is that only a few of those who favor the legislation contacted their representatives in the General Assembly. On the other hand, the affected special interests persuaded their employees (and in most cases with false information) to write literally thousands of letters to their senators and representatives opposing passage of the bill.

If you are a citizen of Kentucky who is concerned about preserving our natural resources, conserving energy and attacking the problems of litter and solid waste, now is the time to contact your candidates for the General

Curiosity Seekers

If you intend to implant a "For Sale by Owner" sign in your front yard, be prepared for the inevitable "Curiosity seekers". You'll probably spend more time tramping through the house with curiosity seekers than showing it to firm prospects.

Your "For Sale by Owner" sign leaves you open to all types of people and problems. For example, a visitor may present another to buy on which he doesn't intend to follow through. You may make plans based on accepting it, only to learn that the "prospect" had no intention of completing the agreement.

A Realtor has the experience to unmask the insincere offer and turn it away before it does any harm. In fact, the presence of a Realtor usually will discharge any attempts of that sort. He will qualify prospects in advance and allow only those who are definitely prospective buyers not curiosity seekers to inspect your home.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at Ford Realty & Auction Co., Inc., Mt. Vernon, Pa. 256-4545. We're here to help!

Appalachia Sounding

"Appalachia Sounding," a Carolina Regional Theater production with music, will play at Berea College's Phelps Stokes Chapel Saturday, April 16 at 8 p.m. The performance will be one of two Kentucky performances by North Carolina's professional touring theater. They will also be in Pikeville. Admission is $1 and tickets will be available at the door.

The Romulus Linney play revolves around an Appalachian family from their first settling on the land to the present. It deals with their working the land, standing up to land opportunists, and losing their children to the cities and their friends to the coal mines.

"Appalachia Sounding" is the product of a workshop of Appalachian historians, oral historians, and musicologists from all over Southern and Central Appalachia which the Carolina Regional Theater hosted in 1975. Hours of taped conversations and anecdotes served as a guide for the months of research for the play.

The result is a play that is rich in Appalachian songs, dances, tall tales, ghost stories, superstitions, riddles and jokes. The play features two native Appalachian musicians, Scotty Collier and Jan. Davidson, who perform on guitar, banjo, fiddle, mandolin and dulcimer.

"Most of my musical schooling was at the Texaco station in Murphy, N.C.," says Davidson of his background in music. "I learned to play from the old folks in the area."

The play is directed by John W. Morrow, Jr. He has acted and directed at the Cincinnati Playhouse in the Park, the Barter Theatre in Virginia and the Rochester (N.Y.) Shakespeare Theatre.

"Appalachia Sounding" will tour all thirteen states... of the Appalachian region this year on a grant provided by the Appalachian Regional Commission. The Berea performance is sponsored by the Berea College Appalachian Center.

Down On The Farm.

By ROY G. BROWN
ASSISTANT VICE PRESIDENT
CUMBERLAND PCA

Now is the real busy time for farmers as there is so much to be done. We need to keep close watch on tobacco beds for flea beetles, and be sure to water them when it gets too dry, at the small plans need water for them to come up and grow.

Get sturdier. Sealthful plants are a must for a good tobacco crop.

Corn needs planting as early as possible to get the benefit of early moisture if we were to have a dry season later in the year.

We need to make every effort to cut down cost and expenses in our farm operations and there are several ways this can be done. We need to check out our supplies and other things needed and get them while we are in town rather than make a special trip. Also having equipment ready to operate when needed for the job to be done and not have to make trips to get repairs.

These are just a few of the things we can do to cut expenses "Down on the Farm."

Fairview

By Mrs. Hubert Chasteen

Worship services were well-attended at the Fairview Baptist Church Easter Sunday and 103 persons attended Sunday School.

Worshippers also gathered at the Fairview Cemetery Sunday morning to observe the Sunrise Service and enjoyed it so very much. Our pastor, Rev. Ray Dean, delivered the message. We thank God for the beautiful day and the wonderful blessings we received. I can never say enough about how good the Lord is to us. He is always there when we need Him. The night is never too dark for him to hear us when we pray. We should love Him with all our heart and trust and obey Him. He gives us every blessing of life - even the air we breathe. Still, there are many people who never take time to thank Him. Think about it and if you aren't attending worship services somewhere, won't you please start. I pray you will.

The Scofield Cane Baptist Church conducted baptismal services Eastern Sunday afternoon at the Fairview Baptist Church. A large crowd attended. We always enjoy having them and welcome them and others anytime. We also thank God for the two that were baptised.

As each of you know, I have very carefully chosen as my deputies, Raymond "Jughead" Ballinger and Fred Abney - two very well-qualified men.

With these two men and myself, I feel we can make Rockcastle County a safer place in which to live and to be proud of.

I would also like to see and talk to each and everyone of you but because of our work it may not be possible. If we miss someone, your vote and support is wanted and appreciated.

EVERYONE INVITED

All Citizens of Rockcastle County

First, I wish to say that I appreciate very much the support and understanding that you have given me and the Fiscal Court during these three years since I was elected. Again, I am most grateful for your understanding as we have been faced with some very serious problems from time to time.

Right now, we are faced with the problem of many of our roads being in very bad shape due to the worst winter that most of us can remember. I know that you are concerned as I am concerned. We are working on the county maintained roads as far as we can. Also, I met, this week, with State Officials and requested additional state maintenance funds in order to get more blacktop replaced on state-maintained roads.

You will recall that we have had other problems facing us in the past such as the ambulance service problem that we had in my first year of office. As you know, Rockcastle County now has established a very reliable ambulance service for you in time of emergencies. Our staff is being better trained all the time. We have recently purchased two new ambulances. These are the best equipped and most modern ambulances that are made.

Naturally, we have had and will continue to have problems but the important thing is that through your cooperation and support, we can build together a better Rockcastle County for our children and our children's children.

SHORT ROWS

By Nevyle Shackelford

Just about everyone loves the tomato and whether one has a large acreage or a flower bed in the backyard, he can grow this popular vegetable. When staked or tied up, tomatoes require very little space and are capable of producing several pounds of fruit per plant.

According to UK garden specialists, a home or backyard gardener can expect best results when tomato plants are set out on a spot that will receive full sunlight all day. If this is not possible, plant them where they will receive the maximum sunlight for at least six or seven hours each day. Tomatoes in spots with too little sunshine produce few, if any fruit.

Tomato plants prefer a fertile, well-drained soil that is high in organic content. In soils of low to medium fertility, add 2.5 pounds of 5-10-10 fertilizer per 100 feet of row.

Transplant tomatoes in the garden after the danger of frost is over (after May 15). However, if a frost threatens after they have been set out, they can be saved from frostbite by covering over with hot caps, paper sacks, boxes, or even folded newspapers.

Tomato plants should be spaced 18 to 24 inches apart in rows at least three feet apart and when setting them out, plant them deeper than they were growing in the containers. The less the roots are disturbed when transplanting, the less the shock to the plant and the faster it will take off and grow. Pour about 1 pint of starter solution around each plant to wash the soil around the roots. Use 2 tablespoons of 5-10-10 or 5-10-5 fertilizer per gallon of water. This helps roots to develop quickly.

Black plastic or some other kind of mulch can be very beneficial in tomato production. The mulch causes the soil to warm up earlier, yields the mulch also helps control weeds, helps conserve moisture and fertilizer, and may help reduce fruit rot and blight by protecting the fruit and foliage from disease organisms splashed up from the ground during heavy rains.

Stake tomato plants after the first flower cluster is formed and place the stake on the opposite side of the stem from the flower cluster. Since all the flower clusters will usually be formed on the same side of the stem, this will keep the fruit from being jammed against the stakes.

Tie the plants to the stake with a soft string or a strip of cloth. Tie the string to the stake and then pass the string under a leaf stem to give more support.

Prune the plants to one or two main stems by pinching off the suckers that form in the leaf axils.

The UK garden specialists recommended J1 Star, Ramapo and Better Boy as the best varieties for staking and caging.

SCS Woodland Planning Assistance

Wood As A Heating Source

By Jim Geiger, RC&D Coordinator
Corbin, Ky.

This Woodland Page was initiated and written by the members and technical advisors of the Cumberland Valley Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Forestry Committee. The purpose of this Woodland Page is to help the general public to become more aware of the economic and other values of the woodland in the Cumberland Valley and to help woodland owners to become better acquainted with local markets, woodland management practices, and assistance available to them concerning woodland management.

The Forestry Committee is an arm of the Cumberland Valley RC&D Council which is sponsored by the eight county fiscal courts, conservation districts, and the 18 cities within the eight counties.

The Forestry Committee is concerned with land used for forestry, its management, resource problems associated with it, and its contribution to the total economy of the area including marketing and processing.

The committee analyzes forestry problems and opportunities within the Cumberland Valley and gives guidance and recommendations to the RC&D Council on how to solve the problems and take advantage of the woodland opportunities.

The RC&D Forestry Committee consists of one member from each county. The members are: Dr. William B. Wilder, Chairman, Whitley; Lee T. Hopkins, Bell; Hannie Day, Clay; Bill Koser, Harlan; Stanley Bishop, Jackson; C.H. Melton, Knox; Glen Chaney, Laurel; and Roy G. Brown, Rockcastle County.

By Greg Stephens
Soil Conservationist
Rockcastle County SCS

Approximately 20 years ago Bill Cass made the decision to convert this steep hillside into a stand of potentially valuable trees. Today Bill looks at this adventure with much pride and enthusiasm.

The Soil Conservation Service (SCS) can help individuals like Bill or yourself in determining where to plant trees or how to care for them through its program of Conservation Planning. This is a service which is available at no charge to the individual.

Conservation Planning involves on the farm visits to evaluate the potentials of the farm on a field by field basis. The present use and condition of the field along with the soils, slopes, and desires of the owner are a few of the factors which determine what the possible land uses might be. SCS professionals working with a land owner evaluate these possible uses and develop various courses of action which will need to be taken to achieve the desired uses.

If you have some area that you feel could be put to more productive uses or if you would like soils information to locate the more productive soils on your farm, call the Soil Conservation Service at 256-2541 or contact Greg Stephens in the conservation office on the 2nd floor of the Rockcastle Courthouse.

By Gordon Cole, U.S. Forest Service
Berea, Ky.

Now that Spring is here, this might be the time to sit back and consider how we can be better prepared for next winter. Some of us may have used a large amount of fossil fuel, and still remained chilly because the thermostat was turned down. Or, we may have used a large amount of wood when a smaller amount of a different species would have burned better.

One of the answers to keep warm next winter could be the wood that covers our Southeastern Kentucky Mountains. Wood burns cleanly, leaving only a minimum of waste ash, which is a good gardening aid. When applied to the soil it's a valuable fertilizer. Also, by using wood for heating a renewable fuel resource. Unlike trees, coal, oil and gas are limited resources, and once used they can not be regrown. Wood also has the advantage of being readily available, easily cut, and relatively inexpensive. Generally speaking, a standard cord of dry, dense hardwood weighs about 2 tons and provides as much heat as 1 ton of coal or 150-175 gallons of #2 fuel oil, or 24,000 cubic feet of natural gas.

Now, before rushing out to cut the nearest tree, let's take time to consider the properties of wood and fire. Individual species of trees have different characteristics and hence, wood from these trees will have something different to offer in aroma and heat value. Of the common species growing in the area, Hickory produces the highest amount of heat per cord. White Oak ranks next to Hickory, followed by Beech, Red Oak, Yellow Pine, Red Maple, and White Pine. Generally speaking, dry seasoned wood produces 16-20" more heat per cord than green wood of the same species.

With this information in mind, we next need to decide what type of fire we want. Firewood cut from softwoods, like pine, will highly easy, but will burn out rapidly. They will produce a quick, hot flame with no lasting coals, and will require frequent attention. Therefore, pine would be the wood to burn if one wants a short warning fire before going out or to bed.

For a long lasting fire, it is best to use heavier hardwoods such as Hickory, Beech or Oak. These woods burn less vigorously than softwoods and with a shorter flame. Oak gives the most uniform and shortest flame and afterwards produces steadily glowing coals.

One can get aroma from wood of fruit trees such as apples and cherry, and nut trees such as beech or hickory. Their smoke generally resembles the fragrance of the tree's fruit. By mixing softwoods with hardwoods, one can achieve an easily ignited and long lasting fire. Later, by adding some fruit or nut woods, one can capture the wood smoke aroma as well.

If you are considering wood as heat source, remember research has shown fireplaces can actually cause a heat loss. When not in use an undampened fireplace can allow hot air to escape up the chimney. In addition, when in use, this convection of air up the chimney draws cool air into the house. In this case, the best heating value would be a burning stove instead of a fireplace.

For people living near the Daniel Boone National Forest, free firewood is available for personal use. For further information contact the local District Ranger's Office.

Forestry Benefits Through Federal Assistance

By Harold Ballinger, ASCS

The demand for wood and wood products in this country is expected to exceed the supply by the turn of the century unless more forest land is placed under good forestry management.

Private forestry landowners, who own and control the majority of forest lands in the Nation, usually do not have the funds to make long-term investments in good forest management practices.

The Federal Government has allocated funds, which are available to private eligible forest landowners to share the expense in carrying out good forestry management practices.

Any individual who is a private forest landowner which has land suitable for reforestation, reforestation, or improvement which is capable of producing a marketable timber crop and has had no commercial harvest on suchland within the past five years is eligible for Federal cost-share assistance.

The Federal share of these cost ranges from 50-75 percent depending upon the cost-share rate set by local State and county Agricultural Stabilization, and Conservation Committees.

Since the inception of the Forestry Incentive Program (FIP) in Rockcastle County, seventeen eligible forest owners have carried out practices on 781 acres with 11,401 dollars of cost-share assistance.

Requests for cost-share assistance are handled by local ASCS Offices or Agricultural Service Centers in every county in the Nation. They will then ask the State forestry agency to examine the landowner forest land and discuss needs for the practice which they have in mind.

A forestry management plan is developed through consultations between landowner and the State forester. The State forestry agency will provide advice and help in finding vendors (if needed) for getting the work accomplished.

Finally, the state forestry agency will certify that the project has been completed so cost-share payments can be made by county ASCS Offices or Agricultural Service Centers.

Benefits Of Farm Woodland

By H. Lee Durham
Extension Service
Mt. Vernon, Ky.

The family forest serves many uses. It provides the habitat for certain species of game and in some localities, can provide forage for domestic stock if properly protected and managed. It can prevent erosion on steep slopes, hold back water resulting from snows and heavy rain and prevent or diminish the damages of floods.

The scenic value of forests is well known, and the economic advantages of forests attracting tourists and vacationists are important to many sections of the country. The personal satisfaction gained from the stewardship of forestland is as old as history, and is more important today than ever before. The relaxation afforded by a quiet walk in the forest, the joy of hunting and fishing, or camping or picnicking in the woods has prompted many a businessman or professional man to acquire forest property of his own.

Timber production, under proper management, is compatible with most other uses of the forest. Because of the flexibility in growing and harvesting of timber as a crop, it is often possible to "have your cake and eat it, too." Lands managed primarily for recreation, wildlife protection, water shed protection or other uses can also produce commercial timber. If the timber is properly harvested, this use need not interfere with the other purposes of ownership.

According to Mr. Richard Green, Service Forester, Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, the cost of planting an acre of trees will run approximately $70.00. This is based on sixteen man-hours of planting time at $3.00 per hour added to the average cost of seedlings - $25 per 1,000. In an eighteen year old pine stand, a landowner could expect $32 per acre by thinning and selling posts and pulpwood. At a stand age of thirty, he could expect $40 per acre by thinning a second time and selling pulpwood and poles. At age forty, a pine stand should be sawtimber size. A final cut (assuming 8 to 10 thousand board feet to an acre realistic figure) should return $328 per acre to the landowner. A total income from the initial $70 per acre investment would be approximately $400 after 40 years.

The Commonwealth of Kentucky maintains a staff of competent, well-trained professional foresters and capable technicians to assist you in all of your forestry problems. There is one near you-Stephen C. Bullen, Ranger, Kentucky Division of Forestry, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky 40456 (Phone 256-2957). Mission Control in Houston?

No, but just as essential to reliable, economical electric service as Houston is to the space program.

This is one of several Kentucky Utilities' power plant control rooms. Every facet of plant operations is monitored and controlled here to make sure all generating units are working efficiently.

Each control room is connected to a system-wide, computer-operated dispatching center which determines the most economical operating schedule of all generating units. This is how we provide electricity at the moment you need it, giving full concern to the generating cost.

Ultra-sensitive equipment is enormously expensive. And, it's absolutely necessary to continue providing the energy demands of this generation, which challenged the outreaches of space, and the next generation, which will conquer it.

Wildlife Habitat

By Bill Loier, U.S. Steel
Lvneh, Ky.

Wildlife managers tell me that the three necessities of a good wildlife habitat are food area, nesting or den area, and cover and protection area. Sometimes two of these areas may cover the same terrain, but seldom are all three of the areas found in one location. Ground rabbits are likely to find their food in a more open area where sunlight reaches the forest floor. Herbs and grasses need full or partial sunlight for a vigorous and luxuriant growth. Open areas in the forest canopy are vital for growth and production of nuts, fruits, berries, and grasses.

Large mature timber is necessary for dens, roost, and bedding ground. Usually an older, thick stand of trees does not bear nuts, support grape vines, or allow small berry bushes to grow in its shade. A continuous forest of mature trees, although excellent for den and nesting wildlife, is not capable of supporting wildlife by itself. A younger or sparse stand of timber provides the best food and cover for wildlife.

The transition zone between dense older timber and thick brush provides protection from predators, a variety of food, and nesting areas. This change of timber age and size provides the "edge" effect so vital to all wildlife management.

U.S. Steel's forestry-management program intentionally keep the size of logging areas to less than 500 acres. By alternating cutting operations throughout the entire U.S. Steel property and limiting harvest areas between 100 and 500 acres, different timber age classes and small openings are created every year. U.S. Steel has managed its property for multiple use since 1959. Timber production, soil and water conservation, recreation and wildlife protection are continuing efforts in the management of Lynch forests.

The Small Tree Farm Is It Worth Trying To Save?

by Lee Hopkins
Forestry Committee Member
Pineville, Ky.

Recently, three area mountain men discussed their respective timberland holdings. They agree on several things, the fact that timber was selling poorly, and that the small logging companies have given way to larger operations. They had differences of opinion as to whether or not it was worth while to own anything less than several thousand acres. When one considers that roughly eighty percent of Kentucky's landowners hold less than two hundred acres, you can see that this is a meaningful discussion.

There is room for thought that much waste to the national income goes on with a situation where timber is, or is not, harvested under these conditions. If these farms were hunched together into plots of, say, one hundred thousand acres, trained forestry people could be well employed to manage this size operation. Logging could be carried on much as it is in the north, and in the northwest.

However, this is not the style of the Kentuckian. He would fiercely defend his right to his farm, or woodland, and argue that he alone will manage it. Or mis-manage it.

An increasing demand from city dwellers for a few acres out of town is a menace to the size of these smaller farms. Also the temptation to surface mine is leaving less and less timberland all the time. An alternate to the problems the small landowner faces is to market his timber harvest through a co-operative effort of his neighbors. As an example, if ten timber owners went to the Service forester and ask to have their total acreage cruised and the results presented to one of the larger logging firms, they would almost certainly receive more attention, and perhaps, a better price, if the timber were sold.

Let's face it, the two-man, one-mule logging company is on the way out, if not a collectors' item. A person still sees loaded log trucks on the highway, but most likely they are going to a firm that employs many trucks, loaders and men. If this farm, or another is not

Woodland Management Assistance Available

By Steven Bullen
County Forester

Professional foresters are available through the Kentucky Division of Forestry to help woodland owners manage their timber lands. Accompanied by the landowner, the forester will make an examination of the timber lands, and will make recommendations based on his findings. A written management plan is developed and supplied to the landowner. The plan contains a description of each of the various timber stands which make up the tract, including tree species, size class, growth rates, and a general quality evaluation.

Information gathered in this preliminary examination may lead the forester to recommend one of the variety of management practices. If a sufficient amount of mature timber is present, a harvest will be recommended. The forester will assist in marking the trees which are ready for cutting. The marking charge is 80 cents per 1,000 board feet of sawtimber, and 20 cents per cord of pulp wood. The forester estimates the volume of timber to be cut and supplies these figures to the landowner, along with a list of prospective timber buyers and sample bid forms and contracts. Selling marked

FHA-Woodland Forestry Loans

By Ken Arterburn, FHA
Landon, Ky.

The Farmers Home Administration, United States Department of Agriculture can make loans to farmers for establishing or improvement of approved forestry practices in conjunction with its Farm Ownership loan program. To be eligible each applicant must be an individual who has farm experience or farm training sufficient to assure reasonable prospects of success in the proposed farming operation and who must rely on farm income in order to have a reasonable standard of living as determined by the local County Committee. The applicant must be unable with their own resources to obtain sufficient credit elsewhere, to finance his actual needs at rates and terms he could reasonably expect to fulfill. After the loan is made, he must be the owner-operator of a family farm which will produce not less than a substantial portion of his total income.

Timber stand improvement, establishing of approved forestry practices, constructing of access roads, fencing, purchase of land and buildings, and construction repair, or relocation of essential buildings can be included in loan funds. In order to stretch funds to help more eligible applicants these loans may be made with local private sources of long-term lenders providing part of the money as participating loans at the prevailing rates and terms in the area.

Loans are repaid consistent with the borrower's repayment ability over periods up to 40 years at 5 percent interest. These loans are generally secured by a real estate mortgage on all land owned by the borrower.

Farmers Home Administration has local offices serving each of the 120 counties in Kentucky, usually located in County Seat towns.

CHARLES D. HOLBROOK

For

County Judge Executive

One of my opponents has stated that I am running a "Shoe String" Campaign; well, he's right, but he failed to mention that I tie my own shoes.

One of my first objectives, if elected as your County Judge Executive, will be to lower taxes (county). This will be accomplished by implementing the following measures:

No additional factory sites will be purchased. I have commitments from County-Wide Concerned Citizens who have pledged free factory sites and I was the first one. After all, Mt. Vernon isn't the only community in Rockcastle County suffering from an overwhelming unemployment rate. I'll work to fill some of these sites.

My position concerning the County Ambulance Service - That it be returned to the respective funeral homes where it rightfully belongs. After all, aren't Mr. Cox, Mr. Watson, Mr. Dowell and Mr. Martin more capable of providing this service. I will accomplish this by giving them complete control over the ambulance service - including hiring of qualified personnel, if they so desire, and county funds when needed.

My Concluding Statement concerning the self-employed - that is the self-employed LOOTERS AND DESTROYERS of private property. This is not a warning, it is a FACT, you will be given what you rightfully deserve - a room in the County Jail for as long as the law allows - whoever you may be. The voices of the bleeding hearts who walk the corridors of the Courthouse pleading for their mercy will no longer be heard.

In Seeking This Office it is not the desire for wealth or salary, but a conviction that all people should share in their government. As I have stated before, one-third of my salary will be used for the betterment of the county. If you believe aren't vastly different than mine - I want your support and vote in the upcoming primary. If different than mine, seek another candidate as you have 6 others to choose from.

Gov. Carroll Extends

Tax Filing Deadline For

Flood Victims of Kentucky

Gov. Julian Carroll today extends the Kentucky income tax filing deadline for victims of the Eastern Kentucky flooding that has left many homeless with massive property loss and damage in the recent days.

In granting a 90-day extension until June 13, 1977, for the filing of Kentucky income tax returns by flood victims, Gov. Carroll said, "this is one of the many steps Kentucky Government can take to, in some small way, alleviate the suffering and personal loss experienced by so many of our fellow Kentuckians in this month's tragic flooding.

Being granted the extension are persons affected by the flooding in the 15 counties declared disaster areas on April 6 by both Gov. Carroll and President Jimmy Carter. Gov. Carroll explains that a disaster declaration such as he and President Carter made on Wednesday triggers Kentucky and Federal tax law machinery, which allows the flood losses experienced this week to be claimed on the 1976 returns due this year, rather than waiting a full year.

The fifteen Kentucky counties declared major disaster areas are: Bell, Floyd, Harlan, Johnson, Knox, Leslie, Martin, Perry, Pike, Whitley, Breathitt, Knott, Lawrence, Letcher, and Magoffin.

"This makes possible a larger refund or a smaller tax bill a full year earlier," said Gov. Carroll.

The Governor pointed out, however, that the Federal Internal Revenue Service does not have the ability to authorize such blanket deadline extensions as does Kentucky Government.

"The Internal Revenue Service will have field officers on hand at disaster centers in the region beginning next week, remaining for about 2 weeks," Gov. Carroll said. "They will advise flood victims that they must file individual applications for deadline extensions from the Federal Government, and they will counsel citizens on how to do that."

State and Federal Government will establish disaster centers to provide assistance and counsel to flood victims at points throughout the flooded area. The locations of these offices will be announced by the media in the area as quickly as the locations are established.

In addition, the Governor said, taxpayers in the flood-affected counties who have not yet filed their 1976 returns may claim flood losses on them. Those who have already filed may file an amended 1976 return as soon as they know the extent of their losses.

"Even more time than the 60 added days will be granted on the state tax extension if demonstrated it is necessary," Gov. Carroll said.

Kentucky Revenue Commissioner Maurice Carpenter, meantime, points out that Kentucky business taxpayers in the stricken areas should file their withholding, sales tax, or severance tax returns as quickly as possible. However, no penalties will apply to the returns due in April if filed within 30 days after the due date for such returns.

Taxpayers needing help in filing returns or amended returns should contact Kentucky Department of Revenue personnel at the disaster centers in the flooded areas, or at Revenue department offices in Ashland, Corbin, Hazard, or Pikeville, Commissioner Carpenter noted. The offices in Hazard and Pikeville are flooded but that they will be as operational as possible.

3,441 Families

Issued Food Stamps

Department of Human Resources personnel in seven Disaster Assistance Centers and 15 Food Stamp certification locations worked through the Easter weekend to certify 3,441 families for Food Stamps. The total value of the USDA Food Coupons issued by late afternoon Sunday was $419,854.

An estimated 140 Social Insurance workers were pulled from Human Resources offices in unaffected areas to complete the weekend applications. As many as 50 additional workers are expected to arrive today to process anticipated large numbers of applicants this week.

In the flood-stricken area 401 families applied for Individual Family Grants up to $5,000. The Individual Family Grants Program awards the funds to eligible families who do not qualify for other aid available from state and federal agencies.

The counties designated by the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture for Disaster Food Stamp assistance in the flood area are: Harlan, Bell, Martin, Floyd, Knox, Pike, Whitley, Johnson, and Perry. Post offices in at least some of the counties kept their doors open long into the weekend to issue Food stamps, according to officials at Disaster Assistance Field Offices at London.

"The flooding is over but the effects will be felt for many months. We will keep enough personnel on the scene as long as necessary to meet the critical need of Eastern Kentuckians," said Peter Conn, Secretary of the Department for Human Resources.

Food Enroute To

Eastern Kentucky Counties

More than 80,000 pounds of U.S. Department of Agriculture food are enroute in a semi-trailer from a Cincinnati warehouse to flooded Eastern Kentucky counties.

The food will be unloaded in Winchester by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture and immediately reloaded onto National Guard trucks which are standing by. The food will be transported to emergency shelters in the flood stricken counties.

Mass feeding operations have been set up at several locations in Pikeville and Middleboro by the Disaster and Emergency Services Office, Civil Defense and the state agriculture department.

Agriculture Commissioner Tom Harris said, "We are presently in touch with the U.S.D.A. regional office in Atlanta and feel we will need another 80,000 to 100,000 pounds of food."

About 21,600 pounds of canned beef, poultry, vegetables, fruits and dried milks, shortening and peanut butter have already been distributed.

Harris is advising "all farmers who have livestock not to feed any hay or other food that has been muddied by the flood as it could be moldy." Cattle could die within a few hours after eating contaminated feed, according to Harris.

County Agent's Notes

BY H. LEE DURHAM
COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT
FOR AGRICULTURE

Shake, But Don't Panic

The word "termites" creates panic in any home owner. The U.S. Department of Agriculture says you should be concerned, but not panicked. Termites are really slow eaters. A colony of 60,000 workers eats only a fifth of an ounce of wood a day. Termites play an important role in forest ecology by recycling dead wood on the forest floor and enriching the soil. If it weren't for termites and decay fungi, much of the world's forest area would be an impenetrable mass of fallen trees and stumps. Since your home is made of their food, can you blame them for dropping in for lunch? If you find or suspect termites, call a responsible pest control operator. Get two or three cost estimates from established firms. Check the references of the operator and beware of firms that quote a price based on the gallons of the pesticide they will use. Get an estimate of the total price for the job. Beware of firms that profess to have a secret formula or ingredient for termite control. Chemicals tested by the Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture are the best known to man and are not expensive. The chemicals are: aldrin, chlordane, dieldrin and heptachlor. Beware of a firm with no listed phone number. Beware of firms that show up without an invitation and use evidence of termites in trees as an excuse to inspect the house. Also beware of firms that want to trim trees and do general repair work as a part of the contract. In other words, don't become a victim of another pest in addition to your termites.

Not Every Scratching Dog

Is Fighting Fleas

If every dog has his flea, as the old saying goes, then it stands to reason that he will occasionally have to scratch that flea. But, according to William F. Wise, Extension specialist in veterinary medicine at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, when that occasional scratch becomes a 24-hour thumping symphony, there may be something more serious than these pesky parasites working on the dog. In case of continual scratching, says Wise, the first impulse of the dog's master is to grab up a can of flea powder, give the victim a genuine good dusting, and then, when the pup shows no improvement, cuss the remedy.

Instead of fleas, the trouble besetting the dog may be a type of eczema that, while most prevalent in hot weather, can occur at any time of the year and whatever the time, cause the dog great distress. There may be several causes for this irritation: diet deficiency, allergies, environment, and even temperament, with the main symptom being extreme itchiness, manifested, of course, by the continuous scratching.

Then there may be other symptoms. The dog's coat may become dull and in appearance. Bald spots may result from the scratching and biting, and a pinkish rash may show up on the more exposed areas of the legs and belly.

According to Wise, when a dog shows these symptoms, there's not much advantage in using flea powder or rushing to the drug store for a bottle of mange remedy. The problem is internal, rather than external, and the flea powder and mange remedy will be useless.

If your dog shows these symptoms and no fleas or mange problems are evident, Wise advises calling on a veterinarian who, after examination, recommend cortisone, antihistamines, vitamins, or some other drug.

However, if a veterinarian is not available, Wise says the troubled dog may get some relief by a changed diet, by the addition of some fat to the diet, by putting a few drops of wheat germ oil in the food each day, and by applying calamine lotion or cortisone ointment to areas of skin damage caused by scratching. Brush, rather than bathe the dog, he said, and cut out all exotic foods such as candy, cake bread and potatoes.

As Wise points out, each case of prolonged scratching may have a different cause, and finding that cause may take some doing. However, if a veterinarian is not available the home remedies mentioned may help. Make the Hole Fit the Tree

When you're transplanting shade and ornamental trees, you may want to do some pruning. So, the U.S. Department of Agriculture suggests that you remove all the branches that cross or touch other branches. Smooth the ragged ends of any broken parts. If the tree has been dug up carefully, and handled properly, you will need to do no other pruning. But if the roots are damaged, you'll need to prune off about one-third of the length of twigs and small branches. By removing part of the top, you compensate for the loss of roots. As the tree has damaged roots, prune off the injured roots, too. But don't trim the roots to fit them into the hole. Make the hole big enough to accommodate all the roots. Cut the branches along the lower part of the tree at this time. To cut them would leave you a tree with a tuft of branches on a slender stem that will sway in the wind, and its roots will loose. Wait for a year or two before you start any pruning to improve the tree's form-provided your tree's form needs improving.

Tobacco Plant Beds Need Water

The importance of moisture for tobacco beds is continuing to be emphasized by UK extension tobacco specialist.

Seed germination time and immediately after the plants begin to appear in the beds are the critical times when the plants need moisture, said Joe H. Loeff, tobacco extension specialist. "Unwatered beds can result in poor stands and stunted plants."

Smiley pointed out that windy weather, which is "normal" for the spring season, can carry moisture away from the soil surface, causing a soil crust to form. As a result plant beds may need frequent watering, even though fields may be too moist to plow.

Smiley urged the growers to check the plant beds frequently to keep tabs on any moisture needs. "Frequent watering at germination time is recommended if the soil surface is dry," he said. "The soil surface is dry, 150 gallons of water per bed will moisten the surface adequately."

After the plants are established, however, he advised that form 300 to 500 gallons of water per 100 square yards of bed may be needed each week during any given dry period.

Smiley made another point for growers to check-fertilizer injury. He said if any fertilizer injury begins to show up in the bed and the plant stand begins to disappear it is a definite indication the bed needs water.

"The Small Tree Farm"

ready to market timber at this time, perhaps a visit from the service forester will reveal that TSI will be rewarded with a larger price at harvest time. One feature of this program is the fact that the government will cost-share with you on the highly regarded TSI practices.

You owe it to yourself to look into the advice a professional forester can give. If the proper procedures are followed and precautions against fire are taken, it's kind of like the country boy said, "It's growing you money while you sleep." The small tree farm is well worth saving. And well worth the money our government spends to help us save it. Nobody ever said it was easy to run a tree farm right, but think of it this way, how many privately owned tree farms would you guess there are in the USSR?

"Training for Parenthood: Whose Responsibility?" This is the title of a one day seminar to be held at Sue Bennett College, London, on Wednesday, April 20, 1977. Registration begins at 8:30 in the Student Center.

Dr. John F. Crosby, Family Sociologist, Chairman, Department of Human Development and Family Relations, University of Kentucky, will open the program with a review of types of families and the types of marriages to help us understand how the family and marriage are changing. His address is titled, "Family Change in Historical Perspective."

Dr. Crosby will follow this presentation with an address called, "Can the Family Service In Its Present Form?" He will point out how social changes, legislation and attitudes have changed the functions and interaction of the today's family.

The morning session will conclude with discussion in small groups on public policy issues.

During the afternoon, Dr. David Loeff, Professor of Child Psychiatry, University of Kentucky and Dr. Doris Sutton, Assistant Professor of General Studies English, Eastern Kentucky University, will make presentations.

Dr. Loeff will discuss new directions that may be taken to strengthen the family while Dr. Sutton will talk about the Ph.D. as a Mother.

The seminar is open to the public. There is no admission charge. It is being sponsored by the Cumberland River

Trustee Inc. This is a one day seminar, the County Judge inspects this jail and they all say my jail is clean and in good condition and no bugs.

My equipment is in good shape and costs the taxpayers a lot of money.

If you say the jail needs cleaning, why do you eat there.

You're slinging mud on the wrong man as I am not a candidate.

"Diamond In The Rough"

Kentucky is a "Diamond in the rough" in potential natural gas reserves, an independent gas and oil producer told a legislative committee today.

DeWitt Langford, president of Langford Oil and Gas Co., told the Interim Joint Committee on Labor and Industry that a natural gas field in Grayson and Edmonson counties could supply enough fuel to keep Kentucky industries in production and homes warm for 100 to 200 years.

Langford's claims about the reserves, known as the Shrewsbury Field, have been disputed by state Energy Commissioner Damon Harrison and Richard Heman, Secretary of the Public Service Commission. Both acknowledge there are gas reserves in the field, but not nearly as large as Langford estimates.

The committee, after hearing from Langford and Hugly, decided to invite Harrison, and representatives of the Public Service Commission, Louisville Gas and Electric Co., Columbia Gas of Kentucky and the state Department of Mines and Minerals, as well as a non-participating observer from the Federal Energy Administration to their next meeting. Langford and Hugly will also be invited.

In other action, the committee heard a report from James Carigan, assistant deputy commissioner, Department of Insurance, on the results of efforts to lower workmen's compensation insurance rates.

4-H Consumerama Will Be April 19

The 4-H Consumerama will be held from 4:30 to 8:00 p.m. at the Harry Sparks Vocational School on Tuesday, April 19, 1977.

Youth who participate in the 4-H consumerama will gain information on a particular subject matter, skills in making judgements, interaction with other youth, a spirit of competition and a sense of achievement.

The Consumerama is a judging activity. It is called "Consumerama" because the subjects are of the kinds that will enable participants to make better judgements (become better consumers) in everyday life in selecting items for purchase.

Judging is simply selecting one article or product instead of another because of certain qualities and standards.

Judging has many benefits. It helps to develop a knowledge and understanding of qualities and standards. It teaches one to make close observations, to recognize good and poor points, to make comparisons and appreciate another's judgement. Important, too, is the fact that it teaches one to approach problems with skills, confidence and enthusiasm and to apply their learnings to everyday living.

Judging also provides the opportunity to work with others. Learning together, working together cooperatively and respecting other people's judgement are very important parts of our mental development.

It consists of a group session in which the participants are (1) taught specific points about a subject; (2) taught how to make judgements applying what they have learned about a subject; and (3) given a situation in which they make judgements. The situation used at the local and county level should be designed by agents and leaders to fit the local situations.

Five juniors and five seniors from each county in each area (Food/Nutrition, clothing and home furnishings) are eligible to participate in the State Consumerama. At the state activity, participants are asked to make judgements similar to those in the county activity. Five alternates will also be chosen.

Rules: Any youth may participate in the county Consumerama activity. The following are categories for 1977: Juniors ages 9-13 (clothing and Grooming (Hair Care); Foods (Dairy Products); Home furnishings); Seniors age 14 and up (Clothing and grooming (Hair Care); Foods (Food Shopping) and Home Furnishings).

Each participant may choose one of the three categories.

"MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS"

At Bedtime

Many parents become anxious and worried or even resentful and angry when children refuse or rebel when it is time to go to sleep for the night.

Pre-schoolers need a bedtime routine to help them relax and feel secure. It is important that the activities of late afternoon and early morning be geared to allow the child to "wind down."

After the evening meal, or just prior to some playtime, with one or both parents is reassuring. It gives the parent an opportunity to teach recreational skills and at the same time enjoy the children.

Immediate preparation for bedtime (which may be carried out equally well by father or mother) might include a bath, brushing of teeth, a drink of water and use of toilet. When the child is dressed in sleepwear, the parent may sit in a favorite chair and read or tell a story or two. The comfort of sitting on "Mommie's" or "Daddy's" lap or close beside, is most reassuring for the infant and pre-schooler. A goodnight hug, kiss and "being tucked in" is also part of the recommended bedtime routine. A night light, leaving the door ajar, and the comfort of a favorite soft toy or blanket may help young children to fall asleep more easily.

First Birthday—Tabatha Michelle Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bell of Mt. Vernon, celebrated her first birthday on March 15, 1977. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Singleton of Crab Orchard and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Bell of Mt. Vernon.
