Another Father's Day has come again, the day we loved so well. But you're not with us today. Our love for you to tell. No presents now, just flowers Day. To be upon your grave. But we know God had a plan for you. He called you home on high. He called you from a land of care. And said, come home, my child. Your work down here is over now. With him you shall always abide. But some times it hard to understand. We loved and miss you so. But we must never question God. Why you had to go. The Lord appoints a time for us.

Rockcastle Recollections

By John Lair

In his many rambles through the Kentucky Wilderness Daniel Boone had no doubt kept a sharp outlook for places particularly suitable for a settlement, and very likely had several in mind when called upon by Richard Henderson and associates to lead their first venture into the Great Unknown.

The spot finally selected was a stretch of beautiful level meadow running along the south bank of the Kentucky River. A point about a mile and a half down the river below the mouth of Otter Creek was selected as the actual focus of operations and here Boone's weary road cutters began to unload their pack horses and establish camp. This spot had probably been chosen largely on account of an abundance of water nearby, generally a deciding factor in the location of a settlement. One of these living springs was pure "sweet" water, for drinking and variety was added by the fact that the other spring was impregnated with sulphur and served as a "lick" which through the ages had continued to draw game in great numbers and to grow to the impregnated earth about it.

In sycamore hollow and around about a grove of immense sycamore trees, three of them 50 ft. in diameter, according to George W. Rank, in his "Boonesborough" published in 1901, to make them outstanding among other groves of the forest. Nearby, in the grassy plain, stood an elm tree long acclaimed for its immense size and perfect symmetry and long known among early settlers as "The Divine Elm." But the practical hunters and trappers among Boone's men were more attracted by the abundance of game than by the scenic beauty of the spot and were convinced that after their long and toilsome journey they had indeed reached "the promised land."

The journey which had culminated so satisfactorily had begun on the tenth of March, at Long Island and was completed April first, approximately three weeks later. But they had been harrowing weeks of toil and danger, marked by the death of two members of the party in a surprising Indian attack. They had travelled with comparative ease as far as the Rockcastle River. Years later the son of one of the proprietors of the Transylvania Co., pany stated in a letter, a copy of which I have before me, that in his opinion Boone did not cut a bush between Cumberland Gap and Boonesborough, following buffalo trails all this opinion, journals kept by members of the road cutting party, by water means justify this opinion, but they did have a comparatively easy trip between Cumberland Gap and the Hazel Patch where they left. Previously traveled paths and struck into the Wilderness to cut a new path to their destination. Following down Parker's Creek and into the Rockcastle River at the mouth of the creek they followed down the right hand bank of the river to Trace Branch, following it up and crossing Gauley Mountain, coming down to the waters of Crooked Creek, not far from great Saltpetre Cave, they came to Roundstone Creek which they were to follow to Boone's Gap, at which point they left what is now Rockcastle County. From the time they crossed Rockcastle River, and certainly by the time they reached its tributary, Brush Creek, they were laboriously cutting their way through a tangle of fallen trees and brush which had practically obliterated the buffalo and game trails in some areas. In recent years the buffalo had, sometimes made new trails around patches of fallen timber, but often these were through such difficult terrain that it seemed advisable to remove obstructions and follow the old trails.

This downed timber, which covered an area of twenty miles, had no doubt been caused by cyclonic wind storms similar to those which blew down many acres of trees in the same section as late as March, 1973. It is quite possible that Boone and his party were contending with the blow downs mentioned by Dr. Walker as having been in evidence when he visited the very same section in 1790, as not all the downed timber would have decayed and disappeared in the intervening twenty-five years. If, on the other hand, this was a fresh blow-down it would indicate that this particular territory was periodically subject to such damage. After finally hacking their way through this tangle of downed brush and other debris the road party got into the scarcely less laborous work of cutting their path through heavy canebrakes for several miles. No member of this work party would agree with the statement previously referred to by a resident of Boonesborough, that Daniel Boone probably never cut a bush between Cumberland Gap and Boonesborough.

We find that in crossing present Rockcastle County Boone's Trace to the spot selected as the location of the new settlement of Boonesborough followed mostly up Round Stone Valley, by following along the creek they traveled at water level and thus avoided steep grades and rocky routes. US 25 in passing through Boone's Gap is located high enough on the side of the hill to allow for a fairly steep grade at each end of the gap. That is strictly the work of modern highway and railway engineers. The route followed by Boone and the Buffalo lay along the water level of Roundstone Creek which still flows through it.

Boone's road cutting party consisted of about thirty axemen, mostly Boone's own pick of the most experienced and skillful woodsmen he knew. Included were his brother, Squire, his special friends and hunting companions, Stoner (Steiner) and Cutbush, and his Yadin neighbor, Richard Calloway, who was later to content with him for leadership in the new settlement in which both would play important parts. A certain Captain Tweed, who would not be spared to see Journeys End, but would be killed by the Indians, along with his Negro slave and his faithful buldog which fought to protect him, Young Felix Walker, severely wounded by the Indians but later recovering, was the journalist of the party and left interesting accounts of their efforts to connect Boonesborough with the older settlements by a path which though crude and inadequate served its purpose

Lloyd "Pooner" Albright Names Bussell and Howard Deputies

Lloyd "Pooner" Albright, 50, of Brodhead has announced the two deputies who will be on his ticket in the November General Election. Charles Bussell, 48, of Route 4, Mt. Charles Bussell, Lloyd "Pooner" Albright, and Joe Howard pol. adv. pd. for by candidate for the time being.

The road was finished and open to foot and packhorse travel—the only kind of travel that would be undertaken at the time. As the eager pioneers longing to make their homes in the new country, Kentucky now knew where to go and the path which would take them there: Richard Henderson, regardless of his motives, made possible the settlement of Kentucky could now begin.

TROOPER ISLAND OPENS 10TH SEASON THIS WEEK

Trooper Island, operated by the Kentucky State Police, opened its 10th season last week.

Trooper Island is a summer camp for 10-12-year old boys, who, for financial or other reasons, would not be able to attend a camp or have a "real vacation." It is located at Dale Hollow in southern Kentucky.

Each week throughout the summer, 50-60 boys from two Kentucky State Police post areas will be at the camp.

Troopers and counselors supervise them to recreation and craft activities. "The major importance of Trooper Island," according to state police safety education director A. Ernest Bivens, is that the boys see state troopers as being, not in uniforms, but in shorts and tee shirts.

It's good for the troopers and good for the boys to see each other in this light," he said.

STRETCHING YOUR FOOD DOLLAR

Save money at home by storing fresh vegetables with care. The length of time raw vegetables are stored, storage temperature and humidity, affects nutrient amounts. Leafy vegetables such as kale, spinach, broccoli and salad greens need prompt refrigeration in the "vegetable crisper" or in moisture-proof bags. Cabbage, a more stable source of vitamin C than most leafy vegetables, should not be allowed to dry out. It should be wrapped or put in the vegetable crisper where the humidity is high.

Savings begin at home. Before you leave for the grocery store, you need a plan of action. This should be a complete or partial shopping list for food you will need in the next few days or week. Include some of the less-expensive kinds of food in your list.

It is estimated that the earth weighs 6 sextillion, 570 quintillion tons.

A cost-of-living increase in monthly social security benefits will be included in checks delivered on July 1, according to social security officials here. The increase will amount to 5.9 percent for most people getting social security payments. The automatic cost-of-living provision was added to the social security law in 1972.

"People getting social security checks don't have to do anything to get the higher payments," a spokesman said. "The increase will be added automatically."

The increase is based on the rise in consumer prices from the first 3 months of 1976 to the first 3 months of 1977. With the cost-of-living increase, average social security retirement payments to retired workers will go from $221 to $234 a month. Average social security disability payments to disabled workers will go from $248 to $262 a month. Average social security survivors' payments to widowed mothers or fathers with two children in their care will go from $517 to $547 a month.

Social security pays monthly benefits to over 33 million people. The payments are funded by social security contributions from employees, employers, and self-employed people. The Social Security Administration is an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Employees and employers contribute 5.85 percent each of the first $16,500 of yearly earnings from jobs covered by social security. Self-employed people contribute 7.9 percent. Those figures remain unchanged.

Social Security checks are usually delivered on the 3rd of the month. When the 3rd falls on Saturday or Sunday, the checks are delivered the preceding Friday. July 3 is on Sunday this year, and the checks will be delivered Friday, July 1.

After 20 Year Search Rev. War Ancestor's Grave Found

The country's 60 200th birthday celebration has been over nearly a year; everyone has taken down their flags and stowed them and the other bicentennial trivia in moth balls, waiting for the day when they can once again drag out these mementos of the good ole days.

The summer has been properly ushered in with a Memorial Day parade of northern license plates and splashy plastic wreaths. Things have settled down, one can sit back and push aside the thoughts and remembrances of wars fought, battles past and dead forgotten.

But wait, was that a shiny new headstone just erected? Was that a red, white and blue flag waving over it? Surely this is no time to be visiting weed-strown graveyards and raising patriotic intimations. But that is exactly what was done the 8th day of June. After more than 20 years of family searching, prolonged travels, visits with long distant cousins and multiple cemetery trappings, Andrew Hook and his son, Andrew, Jr., of Jamestown, Indiana, raised a white marble stone over the resting place of their ancestor, Nicholas Hook.

For one hundred and thirty-six years, Nicholas' grave had lain unmarked, for years forgotten, located only by a stone commemorating the births and deaths of four members of the Hook Family. Born in 1740 in Pennsylvania, he had moved to North Carolina where he served as a private in the Revolutionary War. Early in the 19th century, he and his wife, Sarah, came to Kentucky with a family of at least eight children. Nicholas died in 1841, Sarah in 1845, both were buried in the cemetery at Renfro Valley.

Now, 20 years after he fought in a war to overthrow tyranny, Nicholas Hook is remembered and honored. There were no speeches, no drum rolls, no plantive "Taps"; just the steady stream of Indiana traffic, the rattling together of tree limbs; but, heartfelt of unspoken love and pride as two men recognize their heritage.

pull up and destroy and keep watch on the rest. Destroy all plants as they develop signs of disease.

Treating seed via the "shake and bake" method is a good way to prevent the deadly damping off of certain young plants after the seed has sprouted. Put the seed in a small bag containing a fungicide like captan and shake vigorously before planting. Thus coating with captan, the seeds are much less likely to damp off, collapse and die.

Dealing with plant disease and garden insects, don't panic at the first sight of a beetle or a rust spot on a bean leaf. View the situation objectively and calmly and make an identification of what you see before starting control measures. If identification is uncertain, consult with a garden's best friend and doctor, with local county agent. He will gladly make a diagnosis and recommend correct treatment.

And in making a garden do not become discouraged or give up if, in spite of repeated dusting and spraying there is still some blight on the tomatoes and beetles on the beans. Despite bugs, cutworms, wilts, blights and other pests, farmers and gardeners here in Kentucky and these United States, still produce satisfactory harvests.

Short Rows

Like black sheep that occasionally show up in the best of families, plant disease and injurious insects often show up in the best of gardens. As forms of disgrace, both are highly over-rated, but they can be embarrassing nevertheless. As a consequence, both should be kept under control if such is possible.

In the case of insects and plant diseases, they can be downright devastating and harder to restrain than black sheep in a family. A black sheep can be locked up, but insects must be killed and diseases cured. This often means some dosing. Plant diseases are mostly of two kinds-viral and bacterial. Both are deadly and extremely difficult to control. Actually and in a lot of cases when a disease strikes there is no possibility of effecting a cure. A gardener in this position can only hope to reap a crop before the plant dies. In spite of early and late blights that often attack tomato patches, good crops of fruit are often harvested before these two diseases complete their deadly work.

Garden specialists say prevention is the best method of handling plant disease. Some ailments like cucumber and melon wilt are carried by insects. Kill off these insects by sprinkling the young vine seedlings with Sevin dust as they emerge from the ground will keep the patch family free of this wilyling disease. Some plant diseases are spread by the wind. So if a plant or two of particular kind shows signs of disease,

FARM BILLS GET MIXED REVIEW

An extended loan program for feed grains, proposed in one version of new farm program legislation, has drawn "a lot of support out here in the country," according to Kentucky Farm Bureau President Bob Wade.

But new formulas which tie target prices to rapidly escalating farmland values, could artificially raise supports and aggravate current surpluses of wheat and corn, Wade noted.

Under provisions of a House measure soon to be considered, grain growers could receive government loans, for periods up to 36 months, for grain stored on the farm. After the first 12 months, the loans would be interest free and farmers would be paid one cent per bushel per month for their corn or wheat.

Some officials have estimated the new loan could result in a 300 million dollar increase in grain and stored in farmers, that could be available for sale should market conditions improve.

An additional feature of the measure would provide 7 percent loans of up to $50,000 for farmers to build or improve their grain storage facilities.

With their built-in incentive for farmers to delay marketing newly harvested grain, the extended loans could help alleviate perennial harvest-time transportation shortages and problems with limited commercial storage capacity, Wade said.

The new target price provisions, unlike the extended loan feature, have drawn an unfavorable response among Kentucky farmers, Wade added. Farm Bureau is seeking to amend pricing formulas contained in a Senate-passed farm bill that would raise 1978 target prices on corn to $2.28 and wheat to $3.10 a bushel.

The supports would be too high, Wade said, and he blamed a provision in the legislation that ties target levels to farm production costs, including farmland purchase prices and a management fee allowance.

Statutory minimums for targets, with discretion for the Secretary of Agriculture to go above the minimums if economic conditions so dictate, would be a better procedure, he said.

County Day Care Centers In Danger Of Closing

With one center closing early this year, Rockcastle County's entire Child Development Center program is in danger of total collapse because of a lack of funding.

According to CDC Director Gary Cromer, next year's program hinges on whether or not a $68,000 CETA grant is approved. Other grants are used for the program which costs nearly $150,000 to operate and maintain for pre-school children throughout Rockcastle County.

CETA is one of three sources for the program's required capital. Special Foods, Title 20, Purchase of Day Care, and local county government are the others. In addition the CDC staff stages fund raising activities annually including fish fries and chili suppers to raise additional money for the program.

County government last year contributed $1000 for operation of the program and has budgeted $5000 for next year's operation. If the county approves the budget and CETA grant as well as other sources come through, the program will still be $12,000 short of what it needs to operate 2 centers for next year and $27,000 short for operations of all 8.

When all 3 of the centers are in operation, they employ 23 county people daily. With children at 2 centers, 18 people staff them.

The centers use one certified teacher at each location. They follow a prescribed curriculum approved by Federal Day Care legislation. The legislation requires at least one staff member for every 5 children.

Each child costs the program approximately $1485 per year. The cost includes 2 meals as well as two snacks. The children are challenged to stimulate their learning preparation for entering the first grade. A rest period is scheduled daily for the children.

Some parental financial support is required in the day care centers. The cost is based on income and family size so that the cost to some parents is nothing. The cost is at most little more than a nominal fee for the service.

The centers have, in the past, of funding and there is a possibility that none of the three centers will be reopened next year unless needed funds from CETA and county government are approved.

operated daily from as early as 6:30 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. Buses picked up some children at their homes and delivered them again at the end of the day.

The Maple Grove Development Center closed in March of last year because funding ran out before the year's end.

If county support doesn't improve, approximately 100 children from 3-6 years of age will miss an opportunity to get the edge they may need before starting elementary school.

The Child Development Centers are located at Maple Grove, Brindle Ridge, and Brodhead. *****

Cattle Producers To Vote In Referendum

Voting in the national beef referendum starts Tuesday, July 5, at the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Mt. Vernon. Voting ends Friday, July 15.

Any Rockcastle County cattle producer who registered June 6-17 is eligible to vote.

One vote per business entity will be allowed. Any principal in the entity - husband, wife, partner - may cast the vote for the business.

"It's important to remember that if you registered and then don't show up to vote, it's almost the same as casting a 'no' vote since 50% of those registered must vote to validate the referendum," says Roy Brown, Beef Development Taskforce (BDT) official.

To many cattle producers, the referendum is a long awaited chance to build a more profitable future in the cattle business.

"It's now or never," says Mr. Brown. "Even if the plan achieves only a small portion of its potential, we'll all be a lot better off."

Dean's List

Eleven Rockcastle Co. students have been named to the Dean's List for the 1977 spring semester at Eastern Kentucky University.

Dr. John D. Rowlett, vice president for academic affairs, said the list, totaling 1,263 students, includes 392 who make a perfect 4.0 standing.

To attain the list, a student must make a scholastic average of 3.5 or better for 14 or more semester hours. Names to the Dean's List from Rockcastle County were: Rita E. Brown, Janet S. Burton, Janice R. Holbrook and Lisa D. Holbrook, Phillip E. Howard, Jeta L. Taylor, all of Brodhead; Stephen C. Bullen, Nancy I.B. Hale, Marcia G. Lamb, Teresa A. Parrett, Jennifer J. City of Mt. Vernon Receives Park Grant

The U.S. Department of the Interior has announced that the City of Mt. Vernon has been granted a $20,638.80 matching grant through the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation for construction of a recreation facility.

According to a news release to the Mt. Vernon Signal from the office of Senator Wendell Ford, the grant will be made to develop 18 acres of land the city owns in the Lake Linville area near the campground. The match, from state and local governments, will have to total another $20,638.80 for a total of $41,277.60 to be used for the project.

The planned area will include a picnic area with tables and grills, a shelter, tennis court, ballfield, portable bleachers, play area and landscaping. The funds will also be applied to building a road, parking areas, comfort station, sewer system, water lines, fountain and lighting.

Promoted

Leaman E. Burton, son of Mrs. Grace Burton of Brodhead, has received his first promotion in the U.S. Air Force. Burton, promoted to airman, recently completed technical training at Lowry AFB, Colorado, and is now assigned at Keesler AFB, Mississippi. He serves as an Inventory management specialist with a unit of the Air Training Command.

Airman Burton is a 1972 graduate of Brodhead High School and attended Sue Bennett Junior College in London.

Council To Start Long-Awaited Projects

The Mt. Vernon City Council voted at its Monday night meeting to begin two major projects which area residents have been requesting for several years.

The Council decided to begin construction of a new sewer line for Terry Street residents in Owens Subdivision. Sewers in that area have been leaking for several months creating a health hazard for residents.

The city has been waiting in hope of a HUD grant for the project; however, the grant request was denied while one for an elderly housing project was approved by HUD.

Cost of the sewer project is expected to be approximately $40,121 using city equipment and labor. It is broken into two parts - an east end and a west end project. The west end cost will be $17,491 and the cost of the east end project will be $22,630. The council authorized the water department to get a final survey and easements and begin dorer work on the west end when the survey is completed.

Ages for entrants in the Dairy Doll are 4, 5 and 6 years old and the Dairy Belle contest will be for 7, 8 and 9 year olds.

Kindergarten Starts Aug. 22

For the first time in the history of education in Rockcastle County, kindergarten will become a part of the regular instructional program. These programs will be centered in each of the consolidated elementary schools (Mt. Vernon, Brodhead, Roundstone and Livingston).

The state is providing funds for three units under the Foundation Program. Other needed units will be funded by Title I, ESEA.

All centers will be staffed with teachers who have college degrees with certificates in kindergarten. In order to offer transportation to the kindergarten students the program will operate on a full day schedule with the student attending every other day instead of the usual half day program. The teacher will have 20 students one day and another 20 on the following day. Lunch will be served.

There will be no tuition cost to the parents. The "Alpha Time" program will be used in the instructional program. The "Alpha Time" program is the first stage of the "Alpha One" program which is used in all the first grade classes. It is felt that the "Alpha Time" will provide a good background for first grade students.

New Psychologist For Rockcastle County Center

The Mt. Vernon office of the Cumberland River Comprehensive Care Center recently employed Arnold Morgan as staff psychologist.

Mr. Morgan received his masters degree in clinical psychology from Eastern Kentucky University.

"Arnie" and his wife, Alycia reside in Richmond where Mrs. Morgan is employed as a psychologist with the Bluegrass South Comprehensive Care Center.

Mr. Morgan is in the Mt. Vernon Comprehensive Care Center office on East Main Street, Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and is available during these times for counseling services (involving problems of daily living, family or marital problems, psychological testing or consultation services). Other appointment can be arranged when necessary.

In juvenile cases, the commissioner will have authority to hear and determine if children in custody shall be held in detention; to conduct preliminary inquiries, informally adjust, and conduct judicial sales if authorized by the chief judge of district.

The commissioner will issue writs of forcible entry and detainer and warrants of restitution; issue orders of involuntary hospitalization of mentally ill persons for periods not exceeding seven days or as may be directed by the court; and conduct the attendance of witnesses and the production of evidence with respect to proceedings before him.

A trial commissioner may be temporarily assigned by the chief judge of the district and shall, while so serving, have the same authority as in or out of his residence. He shall disqualify himself to receive or reject any will in interest, relationship, or bias that would disqualify a judge.

Estimated cost of the project is $860.00 plus any rock removal that will have to be done and the cost of crossing Highway 25.

Three people in the area will be served by a line to be installed from the area of Peppers's Gift Shop across the valley. That route is shorter than following the road in from 25.

The council discussed but disposed of the idea of installing traffic signals at the corner of Main and Richmond Streets and in front of the Western Auto Store on Richmond Street.

Leroy Brown, a traffic engineer with the State Highway Department told the council that before any traffic signals could be installed, surveys would have to be justified. He said he didn't think the traffic volume would be sufficient to get warrants for signal installation and also said that intersections must have a history of causing accidents.

Brown further stated that he felt the signals would create more problems than they would solve. Problems including the possibility of traffic backing up onto the railroad crossing and stacking up in town.

Dr. William Qualls presented the council with the final application he has prepared for a community development block grant for $22,500. The grant is to purchase property and prepare it for an elderly and low-income housing project. The city recently picked up an option for property belonging to Ralph Sigmon adjacent to city hall. The cost of the acre of land will be $10,000. When an environmental assessment is prepared, the full application will be sent to HUD for a final decision.

The council approved the installation of two street lights in Mt. Vernon. One will be installed between the Bank of Mt. Vernon and the Post Office and the other on Terry Street. The light on Terry Street will be installed wherever it is deemed the most beneficial to the greatest number of people.

Two bids were received on the city's old police cruiser. Bobby Anglin had the high bid of $105 plus the cost of transfer and tax. Any police equipment will be removed from the car before it is transferred.

Two bids were also received from CPA's for a water works audit. Touche Ross, Inc. bid $2,000 but was underbid by Evans and Phillips at $1,875. The council accepted the low bid.

John Cox, city fire chief, requested that the city apply for a grant from the State Division of Forestry. Mr. Cox said that $59,000 will be distributed to volunteer departments across the state so no large grants will be given to any one department. Mr. Cox also said he hoped that enough money would be provided by the grant for the purchase of some new small equipment.

Johnny Cornett was granted a 15% pay increase by the council.

Frankfort

By Ferrell Wellman

It's Friday afternoon and the traffic is starting to pick up on I-64 in Shelby County. So is the speed.

Trooper Danny Knight, assigned to the Frankfort post of the Kentucky State Police, spends 40 hours a week patrolling the interstate and nearby U.S. 60. Spend a day with Trooper Knight and it's easy to see why the state's highway death toll, like the speed of the traffic, is inching upward.

The flow of traffic is moving at between 60 and 64 m.p.h. "We try to slow them (drivers) down," says Knight, "but they just don't pay attention."

Trooper Knight buckles his seatbelt and heads the cruiser down the ramp at exit 35. Knight has been with the state police for seven years. Like most troopers, his uniform is sharply creased; his shoes shined; his blond hair short. He's tall and lean.

As he drives, a shotgun is tucked under the front seat. A week earlier, a routine attempt to pull over a speeding violator developed into a chase at speeds of better than 110 mph. The speeder turned out to be a kidnapper. The chase ended after 20 miles at a police roadblock in Jefferson County. "First time I was ever on television," Knight says.

There are no chases today. Knight is working radar. He's pulling cars over for flagrant speeding violations. There's more business than he can handle.

Knight is using a device troopers call "moving radar." The radar scope is mounted in the window. The computer is placed on the dashboard. Knight drives westbound down the interstate in the median lane. Unknown to the drivers, he's clocking the traffic heading in the opposite direction.

The numbers flash by on the computer as the traffic passes on the other side of the highway: 58, 64, 62, 69. An eastbound stationwagon is 14 miles over the limit. A quick turn is made across the median.

Within seconds, a familiar scene is repeated. A cruiser, with blue lights flashing, pulls up to the outside bumper of the speeding car. A surprised driver pulls over.

The driver argues with Knight about his speed. The driver claims he was "only doing 65." He gets a ticket.

"First unfriendly type I've met in three months," Knight grins as he gets back in his cruiser. "Maybe his speedometer registered 65, but he was doing 69."

The violation occurred in Shelby

County. The county judge in Shelbyville has a reputation for backing up the troopers. Citations become fines, not garbage. Few tickets are filed away. The troopers like to write citations in Shelby County. They know they aren't wasting their time.

"We're getting more speeders out here (the interstate), and there are two reasons," according to Knight. "CB radios is one. The other is the fact that drivers know they won't get any points on their license."

"Smokey workin' milepost 35, westbound," blares the CB tucked under the dashboard in Knight's cruiser. It quickly becomes obvious from listening that most drivers aren't aware Knight is actually working the traffic heading the opposite direction.

While Knight can't find enough time in the day to write all of the violations on I-64, the number of citations written by troopers is off 24 percent this year. The drop is blamed on several factors; two months of bad weather, beefed up investigative work, and the floods which took a lot of troopers off the road.

Some troopers feel the time has passed for the state to move to unmarked cars to work traffic on the interstate. Speeds are getting faster and the death toll is climbing. Of course, the unmarked units would have to be equipped with moving radar.

"Best thing we've ever had," says Knight as the computer flashes 71.

Wilderness Trail Area 4-H Horse Show
The Wilderness Trail Area 4-H Horse Show will be held at the Brothead Fairgrounds in Rockcastle County on Saturday morning, July 9, 1977. The show is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. 4-H members should be on the grounds by 9:00 a.m. to register in the class in which they are to participate.

4-H members planning to participate in the State 4-H Horse Show in Louisville, in August must qualify at the Area event in order to enter the State show.

Horses entered in the State Horse Show must be accompanied by papers showing that the Coggins Test for Equine Infectious Anemia has been made. Test papers are valid for one year. The Coggins Test requires about two weeks for completion so be sure all horses are tested before leaving for the state show.

Other dates which may be of interest to you relative to the Horse Project are as follows: Monday, June 20-State Horse Demonstration Contest,

State Public Speaking Contest and State Horse Bowl Contest on Wednesday, June 15-deadline for State Demonstration Contest; State Public Speaking Contest and Horse Bowl entries, Tuesday, June 21 - State 4-H Horse Judging Contest and Banquet; Tuesday, July 26 - deadline for entries for State 4-H Horse Show, August 13, 14 and 15 - State 4-H Horse Show.

Horses must be owned and/or certified as a 4-H project by May 1, 1977. A member must show in exactly the same classes in the state show as he does in the area show.

Wilt Disease is Showing up in Corn
Reports of wilt disease in corn fields have been confirmed in the diagnostic laboratory operated by the Plant Pathology Department of the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture.

"We have received several samples of corn plants infected with Stewart's Bacterial Wilt," says R.E. Stuckey, UK plant pathologist. "With corn varieties varying in breed in resistance, or tolerance to the disease, farmers should check their fields."

Infected corn wilts rapidly, resembling plants suffering from drought, nutritional deficiency, or insect damage. Leaves show long, narrow, pale green to yellow streaks with irregular margins which parallel leaf veins. The streaks soon turn brown. Premature death of leaves reduces yields and weakens plants so that they are more susceptible to stalk rot diseases.

The symptoms showing up now originate from feeding of the corn flea beetle which is important in the spread of the disease bacteria. Controlling the beetles is the only measure that can be taken this season by farmers who observe serious wilt disease infection in their fields.

Spraying fields is considered economically feasible if active beetle populations are observed on small corn plants, according to Wesley Gregory, UK extension entomologist. Recommended insecticide products include Sevin 50% Wettable Powder at the rate of 2 to 4 pounds per acre, Sevin 80% Soluble at the rate of 2 pounds per acre and Sevimol at the rate of 2 quarts per acre.

Looking ahead to controlling corn flea beetles next year, Gregory recommends use of Furada 10% Granular as an end-furrow treatment at planting time.

DR. WESLEY GREGORY REPORTS
Dry weather has stressed newest set tobacco and caused high populations of cutworms. I have observed numerous tobacco fields in the last week that are being damaged by cutworms; prevent-age of plants cut is running as high as 60%.

I believe the reason for the high population numbers is linked to our dry weather conditions. Most fields in Kentucky were parched up until the relief some got over Memorial Day weekend. If we had had more plentiful rainfall, more often, it would have helped to keep cutworm numbers in check. Reason? It prevents moths from free-fighting to lay their eggs and, by saturating the soil, it forces larvae (worms) to the surface during the daytime so that birds and other predators and parasites can get a shot at them.

The species that is doing the most damage to our transplants is the Black Cutworm, Agrotis ipsilon. It has the habit of restlessness, and moves from plant to plant during the night-time hours and cuts recklessly without pausing to feed extensively on any one plant.

It is a greasy gray to brownish gray worm without any distinct markings. It hides under clods of dirt during the daytime, shallow digging with a pocket knife will uncover the beast.

Control of black cutworms on tobacco is possible. Your first step should be to walk your fields and observe the extent of cutting damage. Often cutworms will enter in isolated areas of the field and you may get by with spot-treating. However, if the activity is general over the field, and you find freshly cut plants and worms ranging in size from small to 1 1/2 to 2 inches, and you figure that you need to treat, to keep from having a major resetting chore-consider these suggestions:

The registered and recommended post-setting treatments involve using either Sevin 5% bait or Dyltox 5% bait at the rate of 20 lbs. per acre.

Research at UK has shown that sprays, directed over the row, using the following compounds have given good cutworm control:

Orthene Tobacco Insect Spray, 1 pound; Dyltox 80%SP, 20 ounces; Lannate/Nudrin 90%EW, 1/2 pound; Lannate/Nudrin 24%SL, 2 pints.

These sprays were applied in 30 gallons of water per acre. Applications were made in late afternoon, so the chemical residue would be exposed to minimal breakdown. In other words, so that it would be fresh as the worms began their nightly foraging activities. We noted that newly set plants were

Home Canning

The Ground Rules: Safe canning procedures are based on two elementary facts: (1) the correct temperature and the correct processing time are necessary to destroy food poisoning and food-spoilage bacteria, spores and micro-organisms; (2) a tight seal is necessary to keep the food safe until you're ready to eat it. Then, storage in a cool, dark place is necessary to keep the food quality high over the months to come.

Canning is a lot of hard work. You want the results to be worth all your time, effort and investment in equipment. So can only fresh, high-quality, and do it right. Each new season, take time to study an up-to-date canning manual, then follow carefully the step-by-step directions given for each fruit and vegetable.

YOUR EQUIPMENT

Boiling Water-Bath Canner
Fruits, rhubarb, tomatoes and pickled vegetables may be safely processed in a boiling-water-bath canner.

You can buy a special canner for this purpose, or you can use a big metal container with a close-fitting lid. Just be sure it is deep enough to allow about 4 inches above the tops of quart jars set in a rack. This gives room for the necessary 2 inches, plus room for the water to be kept at a rolling boil throughout the processing time.

A lard can or a big kettle can be a good boiling water-bath canner. You can use a round cake rack to set the jars on, or make a rack from sturdy wire. The best rack is one with full sides and handles.

If it is deep enough, a pressure canner may be used for boiling water-bath canning. Do not fasten the cover tightly, and make sure the petcock is wide open so that steam can escape and no pressure is built up inside the canner.

Steam Pressure Canner

Most vegetables must be processed in a pressure canner with an accurate gage. That's because these low-acid foods need to be processed at a higher temperature than the 212 degrees that is reached in the boiling-water-bath canner. There is no other sure way to kill the spore that causes the rare-but-deadly Botulism toxin.

Steam-Pressure Saucepan

A pressure saucepan with an accurate gage for controlling pressure at 10 pounds may be used for canning vegetables in pint jars. However, you must add 20 minutes to the processing time. This is necessary to make up for the quick climb in temperature at the beginning of the processing and for the more-rapid cooling at the end. Follow carefully the directions that come with your pressure saucepan.

Down on the Farm

By Roy G. Brown
Assistant Vice President

Many pasture fields are growing up with weeds, grass headed out, this makes bad pasture and also helps to cause pinky eye as the tall grass and weeds cause eyes to water and makes flies more of a problem in spreading germs of pinky eye.

Also, excess pasture that is good can be a source of feed for the winter if cut and baled at the proper time. Be sure cattle have plenty of clean water at all times. Also, provide back rubbers, oiler and oiled or some source to keep cattle as free of flies as possible.

Don't forget to register at the ASCS office to vote in the Beef Referendum July 5-15. You can go, call or write for blanks to sign and fill out to vote and you must be registered to be eligible to vote.

The Beef Referendum is a way we, as livestock producers, can promote our own products at a very small cost to each producer. It will only cost the producer 30c out of each $100 of beef sold. The funds collected will be administered by a board of 66 beef producers.

This is a voluntary program, each producer who doesn't want to contribute will be able to get his money back promptly.

All other products are highly advertised and promoted with some kind of checkoff program. For one example, the citrus growers have organized in Florida to promote their fruit and this has proven very successful. We have had some very bad public relations with some few senators, congressmen and others about beef being a hazard to health and this is another important reason why we need to get the facts before the people that beef is a most healthful food. So, registered by June 17th and vote YES July 5-15 for a better livestock price DOWN ON THE FARM.

Flag Day Held June 14

Country music entertainer Johnny Cash was the featured guest at the U.S. House of Representatives Flag Day ceremonies Tuesday, June 14.

This year's program commemorated the 200th anniversary of "Old Glory," according to Rep. Tim Lee Carter. On June 4, 1777, less than a year after the Declaration of Independence, the Continental Congress passed a resolution authorizing the original version of the "Stars and Stripes."

"It is particularly fitting that Johnny Cash be with us to join in honoring our flag. His words and music have for years richly portrayed the spirit of our nation and of the people that our flag represents," Rep. Carter said in a report on the Washington festivities.

Cash, a leading country singer for 18 years, wrote and recorded "Ragged Old Flag," which has become an American folk classic. Son of an Arkansas cotton farmer, Cash bought his first guitar and started singing and writing music while serving in the U.S. Air Force in the early 1950's.

Flag Day ceremonies have been held in the House Chambers in Washington for many years. Featured guests at previous ceremonies have included former First Ladies Mamie Eisenhower and Lady Bird Johnson as well as entertainer Red Skelton, newsmen Howard K. Smith and baseball home-run king Hank Aaron.

Mental Health Matters Confidence and Trust In Children

Good mental health is demonstrated when people have confidence in their abilities and capabilities. How do children learn to be confident and to be able to reach out to others?

Love and conscientious parenting in a child's earliest stages of growth and development helps to insure that confidence and trust will be learned. Notice and acknowledge the infant's day-to-day accomplishments. Allow the infant or young child to stay with a competent baby-sitter fairly frequently. When an infant or child sees and relates only to his or her parents, there may be a shock or rebellion when an abrupt or forced separation occurs, such as the necessity for hospitalization of child or parent.

Allowing the infant or child to occasionally "stay overnight" with competent, loving relatives can be useful to facilitate an ease in developing relationships and personal confidence. A child learns by doing. Provide him or her with appropriate opportunities to develop self-confidence.

Remember, these sprays are not registered or recommended because they are still experimental. If used, they are used at your own discretion and the manufacturer assumes no liability. Keep checking corn fields for cutworm, armyworm, and first generation European corn borer activity. A few beetle populations should be kept in check to prevent Stewart's Wilt. Thrips, 20 individuals per plant, were reported in Butler County this week. Unless levels build much higher, don't spray for thrips control. I was invited to attend their monthly meeting and pot luck dinner held the second Tuesday of each month in Somerset. They asked me to come talk, preach, or whatsoever. My choice was the Talking Book Program. This is a Federal Government Program to aid the blind, those with a slight problem or physical handicap that limits their reading. I will be glad to explain this program to anyone or group and show the equipment used.

GODEVER CARES

God, ever cares, not even in life's summer,
When skies are bright and days are long and glad,
He cares as much when life is draped in winter,
And heart doth feel bereft, and lone, and sad.

God ever cares! His heart is every tender,
His love doth never fail nor show decay,
The loves of earth, though strong and deep, may perish,
But His shall never, never pass away.

God ever cares! And thus when life is lonely,
When blessings one time prized are growing dim,
The heart may find a sweet and sunny shelter,
A refuge and a resting place in Him.

God ever cares! And Time can never change Him,
His nature is to care, and love and bless,
And drearest, darkest, emptiest days afford Him,
But means to make more sweet His own cares.

The set that takes the guesswork out of adjusting your color picture! Newly developed circuitry senses a special VIR signal now being transmitted with many programs... decodes this signal... and uses it to adjust the receiver's color intensity and tint according to those color standards established by the VIR reference signal being transmitted. The result... "Broadcast Controlled" color... and it's all done automatically! Stop in and find out the extent to which the VIR signal is available in our area.
