Rockcastle Recollections

John Lair

I am still trying to locate the grave of Elizabeth Adams, a daughter of William "Devil Bill" and Rebecca Lawrence Adams. She was born in 1808 and was either the first or the second of their nine children.

She was first married to John Crawford and after his death became the wife of a Mr. Kibbe, or Kirby and then to Dr. Josiah Joplin. Records are not clear and it could be possible that she married Dr. Joplin and then Kibbe or Kirby.

Some years ago I found the grave of William Adams and his wife, together with the grave of John Crawford. His marker had only his name cut on and there were no dates shown. These were the only graves enclosed by the stone wall around them.

I recently located the grave of Dr. Joplin, in the Mt. Vernon Cemetery, and assumed that she would have been buried by his side, but have been unable to locate a marker to that effect. Unmarked graves on each side may be the last resting places of his two wives, one of which would have been Elizabeth Adams.

I have no information as to where Kibbe, or Kirby, might be buried, but am assuming it is somewhere in Rockcastle County. After again consulting the old Crawford Bible, I am inclined to the opinion that this was her last husband instead of Dr. Joplin, in which case she would very likely have been buried with him. The Crawford Bible gives the names of probably two of their children; their first names were Elizabeth Smith and Thomas Wilkerson. Maybe some reader can tell me if their last name was Kibbe or Kirby, so I can tell where to look for their mother's grave. Since the Rockcastle County census reports lists Kirbys but no Kibbe it is possible that Kibbe is the correct name.

A Thomas Kirby listed in 1830 census reports may have been the person for whom Thomas Wilkerson Kirby born in 1845 was named. These names and suggestions might enable some reader to set us straight on the present mystery of where Elizabeth Adams is buried.

Nothing has yet been done toward repairing or restoring the slab covering the grave of General William Smith, one of Rockcastle's earliest and most noted settlers. Unless attended to soon this marker will soon be in such bad condition that it cannot be preserved. I wish that some civic club or similar organization would undertake this preservation. I would be glad to assist in carrying it through to completion.

The badly damaged headstones on the graves of "Devil Bill" Adams and his wife have been completely restored and reset by a descendant. As soon as I can find them to visit the cemetery and get a picture of them I will be glad to give a complete account of the undertaking, giving due credit to the individual who at his own expense, involving a trip from his home in another state, completed the job.

I believe I have reported on the visits of members of the family of Colonel James Dysart who have visited his grave since I reported finding it, with the help of Chester Whitaker and D. Graves. They made a visit to the grave site, marked by only a crudely lettered fieldstone slab and plan on returning later to take care of it in a manner befitting the history of the exploits of this outstanding member of the Kentucky Long Hunters of 1770, who was a long an officer in the Revolutionary Army, winning promotion for his gallantry at the battle of Kings Mountain.

Elizabeth Mullins, of Brodhead, reports that the grave of her great grandfather, Alenworth Adams, in the Negro Creek Cemetery is no longer unmarked. She says that her cousin, Harry Tharp of Davis, Oklahoma, himself a descendant of Dr. Alenworth Adams, has recently erected a suitable headstone to his grave. Who knows but what it will someday be replaced by an official marker naming him as another survivor of the Fall of the Alamo!

I am still working toward having the State of Kentucky, through some of its historical units, honor the lonely and neglected grave of Henry Skaggs, Long Hunter, explorer and looter of the first named and established trail between Cumberland Gap and Central Kentucky. His grave, marked by an unlettered fieldstone, is not in Rockcastle County, but since he did so much for this section in the early days of its discovery and development we feel that we owe much to his memory and would be greatly pleased to see him honored in even this small way.

My person interest in an unmarked grave is no further along toward satisfaction that when I last mentioned. In the old Renfro Valley Cemetery sleep the parents of my father's mother and one of their daughters. No stone has ever been erected to honor them, an omission I would to take care of if I had sufficient information. I know the dates of the birth and death of the mother, Charity Lawrence French, and of the daughter, Sarah French, but of the father, Will French, I know only the name and that he was living near Mt. Sterling when they were married at a date and place unknown.

Home Health Service Provides Needed Interim Care for All

By: Roger Caddron

[This is the second in a series of articles dealing with state and federal government agencies in the county who provide needed services.]

Once, if you became ill but not ill enough to be hospitalized, you were penalized for it. Those who were not sick enough to be confined to a hospital were turned away to find whatever kind of care happened to be available. A stroke victim, for instance, had only the care that his family could offer after release from the hospital. Private nurses have always been available but not very affordable.

Now, citizens of Rockcastle County have a nursing service available to them in their homes. It comes by way of Home Health which is centralized in Mt. Vernon.

Home Health is a part-time visiting nursing service which is available, on a fee basis, to residents of Rockcastle, Clay and Jackson Counties. Pay for the service is based on the income of the patient's family. Medicare, Medicaid and private insurance will pay for the home health service.

A typical example of one who needs and can have the services of Home Health is a victim of a stroke. People who are well on their way to recovery after a stroke seldom need a full-time nurse or full-time institutionalization. They have the ability to move around at home but not to get out of their homes.

Home Health provided an RN or an LPN to visit the patient daily. Physical and occupational therapy can be given the patient, very often in the home. The patient's progress is watched and reported to a physician. In this way, institutionalization for rehabilitative purposes is very often evaded. A stroke victim can learn to contribute again to his own homelife without ever leaving the home.

All of Home Health's services are not strictly medical. Social services are offered in helping a patient's family to adjust to a particular disease. Things, such as recognition of symptoms of the onset of diabetic and asthmatic attacks can be taught to the family members.

Quite often, a family needs help in adjusting to a terminal illness. Counseling on death is also available through Home Health's social services.

An individual who is stricken with a crippling disease usually needs help with such seemingly trivial things as housekeeping and dressing during the time they are adjusting to their problem. Home Health can provide this service as well as teaching the individual to become gradually more independent of domestic helpers.

In addition to these, speech therapy and inhalation therapy are also available through Home Health.

Rockcastle County's Home Health Service normally cares for between 50 and 60 patients at any given time. The patients range from 4 months to 90 years of age. There are no restrictions because of age, type of disease or income group.

Criteria for using the program are: first and most importantly, the person must be essentially homebound. This is not to say they must be bedridden, but they must have limited mobility. Secondly, the patient must be referred to Home Health by a physician. Normally, the same physician will take care of treatment plans and progress checks for the patient.

Nurses and other Home Health workers maintain frequent communication with the physician. Any patient must be re-certified for his need for care every 60 days. The patient's progress is evaluated at the same time and his benefit from the program is examined.

If you are unfortunate enough to be one of those people who has a loved one confined to a hospital, it may do some good to check into Home Health carefully. Check with the physician who is treating that member of your family. A service designed to prevent prolonged hospitalization may be able to do just that and bring your family member home.

The K-Night Puppets of Kentucky Christian College will be the Christian Church on Sunday morning, July 31. Everyone is featured group at the Annual College Retreat, July 29, 30, and welcome. 31 at RCA in Broadhead. They also will appear at Mt. Vernon Mother is such a lovely name. For it always brings to mind Someone who was sweet and special. Someone who was gentle and kind.

Mother means a loving heart. Where content and peace abound. Mother means a happy home. Where laughter's were always found.

Mother stands for gentle care. For pride and good advice. Mother stood for everything. That was wonderful and nice.

Sadly missed by Daughter and Sons fish is to drift along the walls with a baited hook just off the bottom of the ledge. In many cases the depth may vary from 10 to 20 feet. One bait that is an excellent choice is easy to come by is live crickets. They are available from many of the boat docks and sporting goods close to the lake areas.

Many times in the drifting technique a full live basket or ice cooler of bluegill may be harvested and, as an added treat, at times some fine catfish will also take the cricket offering.

During the summer there are those who still choose to fish for black bass, but most of these individuals are very much aware of techniques that can and do produce nice summer catches of bass.

The majority of bass anglers during this time will fish either in early mornings and late evenings, casting shorelines or following the bass in the jumps.

But there are some who seek out the bass during the night. During the day these fishermen will "hold up" in a nice air-conditioned room and leave the waders to those who wish to water ski or boat.

Then in late evening, the night bass casters head to the waters as they begin to quiet down from the day's boating activities.

Some night casters choose dark color, noisy surface lures. But there are those who use artificial nightcrawlers or spinner baits and work the points, dropoffs and the deeper shoreline banks with outstanding results.

Now that hot weather is here, this period will afford some fine fishing for the vacationing family groups as well as the die-in-the-woods bass fishermen. If you haven't tried it it may be missing some exciting fishing adventures.

George Bernard Shaw, the famous British playwright, wrote a vegetarian.

Even though many fishermen have put up their fishing tackle during these hot summer months, there are others who continue to ply their skills in angling.

One such group of fishermen includes those who are on family vacations and for whom fishing is just one of the many pastimes of the trip. However, they do want to have some action and a good fish to go after is the bluegill. They fight well and are a treat on the table.

In many of Kentucky's major lakes bluegill may be found during the heat of the day along the deeper banks, especially those that have ledges at varied depths. Bluegill seem to school up along these steep walls that have, in effect, a steep drop off of ledges.

Down On The Farm

BY ROY G. BROWN
VICE PRESIDENT
PUBLIC RELATIONS
CUMBERLAND PCA

This week I would like to go back a few years and discuss some changes that have taken place in farming then and now.

Remember years ago what a dairy operation was? Well, then, cream was skimmed off the milk and sold as cream to a cream station. Where it was bought then progress was made when a hand turned cream separator was used to separate the cream from the milk. Progress was made when electric cream separators came into use. By those who could afford the luxury, of course, the milk was fed to the hogs when about all farmers raised hogs for their meat. The hogs usually weighed 400 to 600 pounds each. Each farmer would see who could get the most land. The cured hams were taken to the store and traded for other things not produced on the farm.

Chickens and eggs, too, were on most every farm. When the old hen would lay eggs all fall and winter would as was known go to setting and about 15 to 20 eggs would be placed under her and in about 3 weeks (if the old hen had done a good job setting and not let the eggs get cold too many times) the eggs would start pipping and the little chicks would come forth.

Fried chicken was a very tasteful dish, but that was usually when the preacher or company came and then for us kids we had to wait until the last table and all we got was a wing or leg and sometimes a little gravy was left.

But, today, we have the modern dairy farmers where most of the milking is done by milking machines, piped to a milk cooler tank to be picked up by a bulk milk tank truck and not touched by hand. Chicken and egg production are produced in a huge laying house with 1 to two hens in a cage where she eats, drinks, sleeps and lays her eggs. She is bought as a pullet from a commercial hatchery ready to start laying. These are just a few of the changes taken place "Down on the Farm."

Consumer Comments

By Robert F. Stephens
Attorney General

Have you ever had a legal problem and needed to talk to an attorney but did not know who to contact, or if you could afford the services? The Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office receives many calls a day from consumers with legal problems requesting personal legal assistance.

However, the Kentucky Attorney General's office has no authority to act as a private attorney for individuals with personal legal problems. But there are two organizations in Kentucky that you can turn to for assistance.

The Kentucky Bar Association is sponsoring a new Lawyer Referral Service that will assist you in locating an attorney to handle your particular problem. This is not free legal aid. The service is for persons who are capable of paying a reasonable fee for a lawyer, but do not know who to contact in their town. The request for an attorney's name from the service is at no cost to the client. The initial one-half hour appointment with the attorney whose name was given to you by the service is $10. This appointment will enable the attorney to tell you if you have legal grounds for your problem.

The Kentucky Referral Service has a toll-free number - 1-800-372-2999, which will be answered by the Frankfort office from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Any Kentucky resident can call this number and receive the name of a local attorney that will handle his/her particular legal problem.

Another legal assistance organization in Kentucky Legal Services. These organizations are private, non-profit corporations established to "provide equal access to the system of justice" for poor people that otherwise would not be able to afford an attorney. Five of these organizations are currently in operation in Central, Northern and Eastern Kentucky.

The Legal Services Corporation provides free legal counsel in civil cases to eligible Kentuckians that meet specific guidelines based on income, family size, and locality. The maximum income allowed for these free services varies according to each person's circumstances. To find out if your area is covered by one of these programs or if you are eligible for legal assistance, contact the Office of Kentucky Legal Services, 800 Lexington building, 210 West Short Street, Lexington, Ky. 1-600-233-4556.

If you need legal services, and don't know which lawyer to contact, contact the Lawyer Referral Service on their toll free number, or the Kentucky Legal Services office in your area.

For further information on legal services in Kentucky, or if you have a consumer complaint, write: Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write if you have a consumer complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the toll free Consumer Hotline at 1-800-372-2960.

Cooling Needs Are Double Last Year's

Air conditioners are getting a heavy workout in this summer's extremely hot weather and Kentucky Utilities Company says customer's increased use of cooling equipment will result in big increases in electric bills.

Based on weather data for the Lexington area supplied by the National Weather Service, KU said it has been more than twice as hot this year, compared to 1976, and customers can expect the cost of cooling may double the cost for the same period last year.

Through July 18, the number of cooling degree days was 113.2 percent greater than in 1976, and 37.2 percent greater than normal. There were 774 cooling degree days through July 18, compared to 383 last year. The normal is 564.

(To determine a day's cooling requirements in degree days, subtract 65 from the average of the day's high and low temperatures. A reading of 65 is the temperature at which little or no cooling or heating is required for comfort.

Of the first 18 days in July had recorded temperatures of 90 degrees or above.

On July 18, KU recorded a new summer peak load of 1,795,000 kilowatts, slightly below the all-time record set last January during the extremely cold weather.

Extended Unemployment Benefits Will End July 23rd

Extended benefits for Kentuckians receiving unemployment insurance will end July 23 because the nation's insured unemployment rate has dropped below the 4.5 percent compulsory cut-off level.

According to James Hayden, director of the Unemployment Insurance Division in the Kentucky Department for Human Resources, extra payments will no longer be available to persons who use up the regular 26-week benefit schedule after July 23, unless they establish new claims.

Unemployed persons already receiving extended benefits may qualify for additional payments until Sept. 3, by transferring those claims for coverage under the federal supplemental benefits program, Hayden said.

Approximately 5,300 Kentuckians will be affected by the program's termination. The state's present insured unemployment rate is 3.5 percent, considerably lower than the national average.

The extended benefits program could be reinstated if there were dramatic increases in the state and national insured unemployment rates, but Hayden said such changes "probably won't happen in the near future."

Savings Bond Sales

$29,428 in County

Mr. James W. Lambert, Chairman of the Rockcastle County U.S. Savings Bonds Committee, announced that Kentuckians placed $43,183,922 in Savings Bonds during the first half of 1977 and during the same period citizens of Rockcastle County placed $29,428 in Savings Bonds.

Americans now hold over $74 million in Savings Bonds.

Congratulations to the citizens and volunteers of Martin and Nicholas counties who exceeded their annual goals.

Ins. Board Presented With Rate Increase

The newly appointed seven-member Kentucky Insurance Regulatory Board was presented with a request for a 20 percent increase in workmen's compensation insurance rates here today during its first meeting.

The board, appointed by Gov. Julian Carroll last month, voted to hold an Aug. 15 public hearing on the rate request. Harold McGuffey, commissioner of the state Department of Insurance and moving chairman of the panel, told the group that his office had received the filing by the National Council on Compensation Insurance only last week.

Moving Expense Tax Deductions

Prior to 1970, your moving expense tax deduction was limited to the cost of transporting your household goods and family transportation costs for the move (including food and lodging).

Little by little, other expenses of making the move were added to the deductible expense list. Now they have been liberalized even more with the 1976 tax reform bill. Effective in 1977, here is how the new scoreboard reads.

You can deduct up to $3,000 for the cost of real estate commissions, mortgage costs, and similar items incurred in buying or selling your home or settling a lease. Of this $3,000 total - one half (or up to $1,500) may be deducted for expenses incurred for pre-move house-hunting expenses as well as temporary living expenses for up to 30 days at your new location.

These benefits apply to the self-employed as well as employees. In order to qualify for this moving expense deduction, the reason for the move must be a job change and the new job site must be at least 35 miles away.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at Ford Realty & Auction Co., Inc., Mt. Vernon, Ph. 256-4545. We're here to help!

Canning Tomatoes
To increase the acidity of home-canned tomatoes, we now recommend adding bottle lemon juice or commercial citric acid and salt to each jar before processing.
Don't substitute fresh lemon juice.

however, because the acidity varies. What about adding citric acid or 5% vinegar, which you will remember we recommended last year? Well, these also increase the acidity to a satisfactory level, but they do change the flavor of the tomatoes in a way that some people don't like. That's why we now give preference to the lemon juice and tomato canning tablets.

How Much?
To each pint or quart jar of tomatoes or juice you should add one of the following: Lemon, juice, 4 tsp. to a quart and 2 tsp. to a pint; Tomato canning tablets, 2 tsp. to a quart and 1 tsp. per pint jar.

Use Perfect Tomatoes
Can only firm, ripe, perfect tomatoes. Don't ever can overly-ripe ones, or any with bruises or soft spots.
Wash tomatoes. To boost avacins, dip tomatoes into boiling water for about 1/2 minute, then dip into cold water. Cut out stem ends and peel.

Raw-Pack
To raw-pack tomatoes, leave them whole or cut in halves or quarters. Pack them to within about 1/2 inch of top, pressing gently to fill spaces with tomatoes or juice. Don't add water.

To each quart add the recommended amount of lemon juice or tomato canning tablets. When using lemon juice, add 1 teaspoon salt to quart jars and 1/2 teaspoon to pints for flavor, if desired.

Work out any air bubbles with a table knife or spatula. If there is more than 1/2 inch of headspace in the jar, bring up the level by adding a slice or two of tomatoes.

Wipe jar rims clean. Adjust jar lids. Process in boiling-water bath canner, 35 minutes for pints and 45 minutes for quarts.

Hot Pack
To hot-pack, cut peeled tomatoes into quarters and bring to a boil, stirring to keep from sticking. Pack boiling hot into the jars, proceed as above, and add the recommended lemon juice or tablets. Process in boiling-water bath canner, 10 minutes for both quarts and pints.

Checking Corn for Pests
With higher than normal populations of corn rootworm adult beetles and Japanese beetles appearing in Kentucky this year, farmers are being advised to check their corn fields for signs of the pest at silking time.

"Both insects can severely prune skills, reduce kernel-set, and cause a loss yield," says Wesley Gregory, Extension entomologist in the UK College of Agriculture.

Farmers have a choice of two recommended insecticide products to control the two corn-damaging beetles: Sevin or Diazinon. Gregory suggests making two applications three to five days apart, starting when corn is 40 percent silked. If infestation averages five or more rootworm beetles or three or more Japanese beetles per acre.

Instructions on the insecticide container should be followed. More detailed information also is available at county Extension offices.

Agriculture Experiment Station's grass-breeding research program played a major role in the development of Kenby. The first variety derived from hybridization of annual ryegrass and tall fescue, Kenby was released cooperatively by the Kentucky Experiment Station and the Agricultural Research Service of the USDA December 1, 1978. Kenby is a widely-adapted variety with superior forage quality and yield. It has less crude fiber and lignin, the same amount of crude protein and yields 12% more than Kentucky 31 which is grown extensively in the state.
More ryegrass-tall fescue hybrids are being developed by Buckner and Burrus in the effort to get 'big yields of high quality forage that will avoid the slump in cattle gains. They are following up on leads from research by UK scientists L.P. Bush that indicates an alkaloid, called perline, is involved in the erratic cattle performance on fescue. The alkaloid accumulates in tall fescue during summer. Research by UK scientist J.S. Bolling has shown that perline inhibits certain beneficial bacteria inside the rumen and interferes with the digestion process of ruminants such as cattle and sheep. Digestion of protein and cellulose was reduced in lambs fed the alkaloid.
