Older Kentuckians - Those With Illnesses Should Receive Influenza Vaccine

Older Kentuckians or anyone who has a chronic illness like heart or kidney disease should receive a dose of influenza vaccine now available to local health departments, according to Dr. Carlos Hernandez, preventive services director for the Department for Human Resources.

In a letter to the health departments, Hernandez noted that the new flu vaccine is available in a limited supply to immunize only "selected individuals who are over 65 or chronically ill."

The Mt. Vernon Signal Thursday, October 6, 1977 P-11

The chronically ill are listed in four categories, regardless of age, who have: heart disease, chronic lung disease, chronic kidney disease, diabetes or other chronic disorders.

Hernandez said the aged and chronically ill stand a much higher risk of suffering complications from influenza, so they have been singled out for immunization prior to the coming flu season.

The vaccine now available is a "split virus" type which has been associated with fewer side effects than the "whole virus" type, Hernandez said. It is made up of two strains of flu virus, A-victoria and B-Hong Kong. Several outbreaks of both strains occurred last year, according to the prevention services director.

Pricing Your House Right

The value of your house is not what you think it is - or what the buyer thinks. It is determined chiefly by the location, the neighborhood, and the current market. An overpriced house sitting on the market for months becomes almost impossible to sell. So first, you must get in line with the market. That means a realistic appraisal.

Nobody - buy nobody - is more acutely aware of the current house market than your local Realtor. A capable Realtor can bring in his own appraisal expert or even a team of salesmen who will individually price your home and then reach a fair consensus. Or you can hire a qualified independent appraiser. You may be pleasantly surprised to find out that you were intending to price your house for less than its fair market value.

If possible, your price should include curtains, draperies, refrigerator, air-conditioners, dishwasher, built-ins. It's a better package deal and may hasten the sale.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at Ford Realty & Auction Co., Inc., Mt. Vernon, Ph. 256-4545. We're here to help!

"NEW RATE"

1976 KU invested about $49 million and by 1981 it is projected that KU's expenditures in protecting the environment will total $113 million.

"Keep in mind," the KU president said, "that this environmental equipment does not add a single kilowatt to the production capability of our plants. On the contrary, these devices actually require a substantial amount of electricity to operate and they reduce our plant output and efficiency."

"Because we must go to meet our customers' demands for power and because inflation increases the price of what we buy, our construction expenditures have increased greatly and are forecast to rise sharply in the years ahead," Duncan said.

"Ours is an extremely capital intensive industry. Therefore, the cost of the capital necessary to finance expansion of electric facilities is a substantial element in the Company's need for increased revenues."

KU serves approximately 308,000 customers in 78 Kentucky counties.

"BURNING LAW"

Kentucky Division of Forestry explain that when the leaves fall from the trees, the sun dries the forest floor and danger of forest fires getting started increases. After 4:30 in the afternoon, the wind whips up the humidity rises, reducing the chance that fire will escape to the woods.

"Forty percent of the forest fires in this state when the leaves fall from the trees, are caused by people who are careless when burning trash and debris," according to Steve Bullen, Ranger for Rockcastle County. "If people would be careful, most of these fires would be prevented."

Along with observing the 4:30 burning law, area residents are asked to be careful with any fire, including cigarettes, during the fire hazard season. Any time fire escapes into the woods and burns out of control, the law is broken. The person responsible for starting the fire is subject to pay a fine, regardless of the precautions he is taking when the fire escapes.

School Districts Finding Myriad Uses For Par Equalization Grants

Local school districts are finding myriad uses for their first power equalization grants. The money will help to buy property for a new high school in McCray County, an expanded special education program and better instructional materials for Bullitt County. It means higher salaries for cafeteria cooks, school janitors and bus drivers in Wolfe County, and permit schools to catch up on bills in Pike County, according to superintendents in those districts.

In areas where property assessments and/or low school taxes add up to a little local money spend thinly for education, power equalization is a "blessing from heaven," according to Gayle Bowen, director of local school district finance for the Department of Education. Most local superintendents would find it hard to disagree.

Here's how power equalization funds help poorer districts catch up with the districts which have more tax money for education: Local school districts in areas where property assessments are low would have to have higher taxes than wealthy areas to generate enough money to support quality education. Some do, others don't.

The 1976 General Assembly passed a power equalization bill which recognizes that all children are entitled to an equal educational opportunity. Taking a wealthier county school district this year it's Fayette County as a goal, power equalization supplements the taxes of poorer counties until, theoretically, they are on a par with Fayette County.

The cash that is the 1977-78 power equalization grant of $10.5 million is far from enough to bring all school districts up to this equal level. "It is enough, however, for the state to make up to each local district the difference between what the first nickel of its tax rate yields and what that nickel would yield in Fayette County," explained Bowen.

The proposed budget of the Department of Education, which will be up for approval by the 1978 General Assembly, would raise that nickel to a dime for the 1979 school year and to fifteen cents for the 1979-80 school year. Most local school districts would be on an even par if that rate were raised to 20 cents.

Wolfe County's school superintendent, Richard Jett, says of power equalization, "We had been operating at a deficit. Now we are able to raise salaries for our best personnel. We've hired a music teacher and plan to hire a Spanish teacher."

Wolfe County received a $51,000 equalization grant, an amount that is close to what most other school districts received. But among the highest grants were $407,000 to Pike County and over $300,000 each to Bullitt, Christian, Floyd and Harlan districts.

Bowen cautioned against reading poverty or wealth into the exact amounts received by each local school district. "Because a district received a particularly high or low amount does not mean that area is necessarily extremely poor or rich."

poor or on the borderline of being wealthy. The size of the grant is figured on the basis of average daily attendance records as well as on property assessments and permit schools to catch up on bills in Pike County, according to superintendents in those districts.

districts, according to statistics supplied by the state education department.

Hatfield pointed to increasing mobility of population as the factor which makes it crucial to offer the same quality education across the state.

Perhaps the only superintendents to complain about power equalization would be those whose school districts are already too wealthy to receive any money at all. Fayette County and the four independent school districts of Southgate, Frankfort, Anchorage and Beechwood, Putaski did not receive a grant because that district does not levy a local tax for education.

Rockcastle County's share of power equalization grants is $104,158.83.

Five From Here Meet With Reps. of KIDFA

Five community leaders were in Frankfort Monday to talk with representatives of the Kentucky Industrial Financing Authority (KIDFA) concerning a $24,000 loan to the Rockcastle County Industrial Authority. This is the amount needed to complete financing for the new industrial park located on U.S. 150.

An application is now being prepared for the monies and, according to Bill James of the Industrial Authority, chances look very good for the application to be approved, possibly as soon as the November meeting of KIDFA.

Mr. James said this would enable the local industrial authority to install the needed water and sewer lines, etc. to the site. Any monies borrowed for the project will be repaid from the sale of property to industry.

Making the trip to Frankfort were: Gattiff Craig, Mayor Roland Mullins, Judge Hubert Thacker, Bill Bailey and Mr. James.

Kentucky Utilities Files For New Rate Schedule

Kentucky Utilities Company, citing increased inflationary pressures and a greater demand for electric power, today filed a new rate schedule requesting a gross revenue increase of $33.2 million per year with the Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) to become effective on October 20, 1977.

KU had only four rate increases since the creation of the PSC, in 1958, 1972, 1974 and 1975. The Company has made six major rate reductions in each of the years from 1962 through 1967. All rate schedules approved by the PSC of the last rate case effective on September 19, 1975 are proposed to be increased, except "flood wall pumping".

The Company estimates that a residential customer without electric heat and using 544 kilowatt-hours per month would have an increase of about $1.99 plus taxes.

At the same time, KU has also proposed a revision of the fuel clause that would result in lower fuel adjustment charges to the customer than the schedule which the Company retained the current fuel clause.

W.A. Duncan, President of Kentucky Utilities Company, noted that the new rates are designed to produce a 19.4 percent increase in revenues above that provided by the rates approved by the PSC two years ago.

The KU executive said several factors have brought about the need for adequate rate relief. "Our company is suffering - and that word is not too strong - from the same inflationary costs that are causing so much trouble to our entire economy and which are hurting electric companies all over the country."

Duncan said the Company continues to experience increases in the cost of materials and supplies. The cost of constructing new generating units has also risen sharply. In 1971, unit three at the Brown Plant cost about $143 per kilowatt to build, compared to about $255 per KW for the second unit at the Ghent Plant which was placed in operation earlier this year.

In addition to the usual stresses of inflation, KU is facing another class of expenditures which have become especially significant in the last few years - the costs associated with environmental protection equipment. Through

Rev. Jennings, Local Minister Sworn in as Deputy Sheriff

Why should a minister become a deputy sheriff? The Rev. Lewis Jennings, a staff member at the Clear Creek Baptist School, Pineville, Ky., was asked that question when he was sworn in to office at the Bell County Courthouse.

For several years, Rev. Jennings and his wife, Carolyn, have worked with inmates at the Chenoa Forestry Camp, a minimum security penal institution, near Pineville.

Mrs. Jennings teaches cake decorating at the camp to inmates who continue their rehabilitation program through this and similar classes. Those completing the course learn a skill they can use upon release from the facility.

Mrs. Jennings was recently recognized by the Kentucky Council on Crime and Delinquency for her work with the inmates.

Rev. Jennings became interested in providing activities for the inmates while visiting the institution. He learned however, that they could not leave the camp unless in the custody of an officer.

That posed problems for Rev. Jennings because police officers were often busy at times he needed the inmates.

This ruling further complicated Rev. Jennings' ministry because the officers had to be paid from county funds when escorting inmates.

The answer to the problems was solved when Bell County Judge Willie Hendricks swore in Rev. Jennings as a deputy sheriff. He then was qualified to remove an inmate from the Chenoa institution.

In order to fulfill the requirements of the law, Rev. Jennings carries a badge and handcuffs, and although he has the privilege to carry an armed weapon, he rarely expects to need one.

"This is one of those instances," Rev. Jennings said, "when a minister has to work in close operation with local law enforcement officials. In fact, I had to become one in order to minister to the Chenoa Forestry Camp residents."

Rev. Jennings will take the men to church gatherings, civic clubs, and other functions in the course of his work with them.

Natives of Newman, Ga., Rev. and Mrs. Jennings are the parents of 3 children. In addition to his position, in the printing operation at Clear Creek, Rev. Jennings is pastor of the Mt. Zion Baptist Church, Brodhead, Ky.

Lloyd Fletcher, Chenoa's new superintendent, recently came to direct the institution from a similar position at the LaGrange State Reformatory.

Fletcher supports the ministry of Rev. Jennings, feeling that it is a part of a total rehabilitation program.

A former pastor of the West Pineville (Ky.) Baptist Church, Rev. Jennings commented, "Paul the apostle said, 'I am become all things to all men in order to win them, and I hope to bring hope and encouragement to the inmates at Chenoa through this action.'"

IN REMEMBRANCE

Of Johnny Wayne Childress who passed away 5 years ago October 22
As we go on our way each day without him, we know and have come to realize it was God's only way of showing us and telling us He loves us all in his own special way.
Because since then, God has called another loved one home to live with him forevermore and he also meant so much to each one of us who were left behind. But they were God's first before they were ours. It seems God is only trying to show us that he has our lives in control, that only through his will, we ever see our loved ones over on that golden shore to live with Him and our loved ones forevermore.

Unemployment Rate
Unemployment in the Eastern Kentucky region rose during August to 5.6 percent, the Department of Human Resources released the figures today, reflecting an increase in the rate of unemployment from 4.8 in July, up 0.8 percent.
Robert Macdonald, chief labor analyst for the state said, "Unemployment statewide was increased by 0.4 percent to 4.8 percent in August from 4.4 percent in July."
National unemployment figures show the unadjusted rate at 6.8 percent during August.

Letcher County recorded the highest rate of unemployment in the state at 11.2 percent. Rowan and Elliot have the lowest rate in this region at 3.5 percent.
The rate for Rockcastle County stands at 4.8 percent for the August figure.
DID YOU KNOW?
Did you know that Kentucky has a state Constitution?
Nearly 27 percent of Kentuckians did not, according to a recent study prepared for the state Legislative Research Commission by the University of Louisville Urban Studies Center.

"A convention is the most democratic means of changing our outdated Constitution," Clarke said. "We felt that the people of Kentucky should be able to have their say in changing the Constitution. They would select their delegates to a convention and later vote on any revision the convention prepared."
Public hearings and public discussions during a convention would insure public participation in the convention process. Co-chairman Elaine Musselman added, "I can't think of a fairer method than the address."
"Some people opposed to Constitutional reform are afraid of a convention and say it's better to keep what we have rather than risk the unknown. I disagree," Miss Musselman said. "I think people have a very good idea of what they want in government and how government should operate. I think we should give people a chance to try for a better state."

Rockcastle 4-H'ers To Celebrate 4-H Week

More than 200,000 4-H'ers in the state of Kentucky will be joining some 6 million other youths from across the nation in celebrating National 4-H Week, October 2 through October 8. The theme for this year's National 4-H Week salute is "4-H-Freedom to Be."

Among the activities planned in Rockcastle County during the week include a display of 4-H posters made by youth in the County, and the 4-H Recognition Banquet.

According to Cheryl Witt, County Extension agent for Home Economics, 4-H officially began some 63 years ago with the passage of the Smith-Lever Act in the United States Congress.

This legislation enabled long-gone institutions, such as the University of Kentucky, to hire college-trained personnel whose task was to reach farmers and their families with the latest scientific information on agriculture and homemaking, she explains.

But even before the Smith-Lever Act was passed in 1914, forerunners of today's county Extension agents were working with farmers and their wives.

They found that a good way to reach rural people with new ideas was through their children. "Boys' Corn Clubs" were organized in several states, with farm boys given seeds of improved corn varieties and taught better ways to propagate corn.

In Kentucky, she adds, the first boys' corn club—thus really the first club in the state—was organized in Fayette County, Professor George Roberts, head of the department of Agronomy at the State University (later, the University of Kentucky) and Mrs. Nannie Faulconer, county superintendent of schools, started the club in 1909 and soon corn clubs for boys were organized in other Kentucky counties. Before long, "pig clubs" and "poultry clubs" were also teaching boys better farming methods.

In those early days, the emphasis was on agricultural clubs, with boys making up the entire membership. But soon, girls began joining these clubs and by 1912, a few canning clubs had been formed for Kentucky farm girls, and the infant 4-H organization gained the name "Boys' and Girls' Club Work."

By the time the State University of Kentucky in 1916, "Boys' and Girls' Club Work" was being called "4-H Club Work" in most parts of the state.

The name "4-H" came about from the 4-H pledge, in which the youths pledged to do their best to improve their heads, hearts, health and hands, through club work. The pledge that gave the group its name is still used in 4-H work today, she points out.

The UK Extension agents working with these early day youth groups taught the 4-H members to grow better pigs and corn and to do a better job canning garden products and they also insisted that the products should belong to the boys and girls. The idea of ownership spread throughout club work and gave a tremendous push to the 4-H concept.

By 1917, nearly 4,000 boys and girls were enrolled in 4-H in 42 Kentucky counties.

4-H has changed considerably during the past 63 years, according to Mrs. Witt. No longer is 4-H restricted to rural youngsters. In fact, because of urbanization trends in the state, more than half of all 4-H members are from small towns and cities. And 4-H project work reflects the changing needs of the youths of the Commonwealth. Projects currently popular with youths in Rockcastle County include: Window Film garden, health & Nutrition, Foods & Cooking, Sewing, Woodcraft, Conservation, Wildlife Conservation, Community Pride, Consumerism, Super Shopper, Small Engines, Flower Gardening, Dogs, Horses, etc.

Today's 4-H is focused on kids' interests, their interests and their abilities. 4-H gives young people the opportunity to take an active part in learning about and solving problems that face them and their communities. 4-H'ers participate in projects and activities that give them knowledge in science, agriculture, home economics, personal development, community service and citizenship, that can be used to support their communities and make them a better place to live.

Working with the 4-H'ers in Rockcastle County are some 123 volunteer leaders who donate their time and expertise in helping youths to grow into responsible adults. These leaders serve various roles in the county 4-H program - from teaching youths in the project groups, to judging 4-H events and activities to donating their financial resources to recognize the efforts of outstanding 4-H'ers, she adds.

This year's theme, "4-H-Freedom to Be" focuses on the leadership and citizenship development in the 4-H'ers for a better today and tomorrow, she notes.

STRETCHING YOUR FOOD DOLLAR

Don't throw hard cheeses away just because they're a little moldy on the inside. Some molds are harmful, but the kinds that grow on hard cheese won't contaminate it. Just cut off the mold. If the mold has grown clear through the cheese, however, it's probably a good idea to throw the cheese away.

months with an additional two doses at two month intervals each. The fourth dose to be administered about one year after the first. The child should get booster shots again at a year and a half and between the ages of 4 and 6 before he starts to school.
For polio, the first immunization is recommended at two months, with another two doses of the oral vaccine two months apart. At a year and a half the child should get another booster and one again before starting school.
For rubella, German measles, measles and mumps, the child should be about one year old. If a prepared triple vaccine is not given, each vaccination should be separated by at least one month.
The right foods are one of the best protections of your child's health. A loving parent helps his child develop good eating habits.
Your child needs calcium each day for good bones, heart beat and nerves: 2-3 glasses of milk.
Protein is needed to build and replace body tissues; 2 servings of meat or meat-substitutes; 2 eggs, 4-4 tablespoons peanut butter, 1/4 cup cooked dried beans are good substitutes for a serving of meat for the small child.
Vitamin A helps protect the lining of the nose, throat and digestive tract and thus helps to resist disease; 1/4 cup of deep yellow or dark green leafy vegetable, such as carrots, sweet potatoes, pumpkin, greens, broccoli or winter squash every other day will provide enough Vitamin A.
Vitamin C acts as a cement in holding cell walls together and helps wounds to heal. We need it everyday; 4 ounces of orange or grapefruit juice; one whole orange or half of a grapefruit; 1/2 cup strawberries; 1/2 cup tomato juice; one medium fresh tomato, raw cabbage and potatoes are fair sources.
Iron is important for making hemoglobin, the red part of the blood that carries oxygen to the cells and helps the cells get energy from food; lean meat, liver, and other organ meats; dry beans, dried fruit, and egg yolk are best sources; cereals and enriched and whole grain breads are good sources when eaten frequently.
B Vitamins - Thiamin, riboflavin and niacin help with the proper functioning of nerves, normal appetite, good digestion and healthy skin. Four servings a day will give what your child needs; 1 slice of bread or 1 ounce of dry cereal or 1/2 cup cooked cereal equals a serving.
Two or more additional servings of a fruit or vegetable should give your child the nutrients needed for growth and health. Snack foods should provide more of these nutrients and not calories alone.
Empty calorie foods such as candy, soft drinks, kool aid, potato chips and sugar cookies are poor choices for a snack.
Providing nutritious meals for your family can be the most important "Act of Love" you perform.

During the festival, Barbourville residents dress in buckskins and long dresses and stroll around Knox Street and the Courthouse yard visiting the booths set up by the merchants and civic organizations.
This year for the first time, all Knox County students have been invited to participate in an art show in which drawings with pioneer themes will be judged and displayed in downtown stores. The festival also features a carnival behind the Knox County Courthouse.
The following is a schedule of festival events: Oct. 8 - Square Dance; Oct. 9-Gospel Sing; Oct. 10-Style Show; Oct. 11-Variety Show; Oct. 13-Crowning of prince, princess, king, queen and miniature king and queen.
Oct. 14 -Pickin' Contest among Bluegrass music groups; a horseshoe pitching contest; hog calling contest; a dance. The events want to cut along the banks of the Cumberland River.

County Agent's Notes

B. H. Lee, Durham County Extension Agent For Agriculture

What To Do in October and November
Fertilize berries or fall lawn
Lawn in late October and of November October is the last month to control breakfast weeds in lawns.

Fertilizer trees after they are dormant. Their roots are active now, and are able to absorb nutrients.

Deciduous trees and shrubs can be planted after they lose their leaves.
Wait until spring to plant thin barked trees such as Magnolia, Dogwood, Birch, Vines, Althea and Buddleia. Support trees with stakes, wrap trunks with mulch.

Plant spring bulbs according to size.

The smaller ones can be set down 1 1/2 inches and the larger ones 4 inches.
Plant tulip bulbs toward the end of October or early November.

After frost kills the tops of Dahlia tubers, Begonia tubers and other tender bulbs, wait 7-10 days, then dig and dry.
Do not divide Tuberoses, Begonias, Dahlias and Cannas until next spring.

Chrysanthemums should be covered with mulch if you want to protect them during the winter.

Cut back red and yellow stem
decays, Forsythia, Korra, Privet, climbing roses, Anthony Waterer and Vanhoagette Spirea and lilies.

This is your last chance to set out peaches, tree and shrubs, but they must be protected with 2-3 inches of organic mulch.

Water all permanent plantings during periods of drought, for they will need abundant moisture as winter approaches.

Flowers should be sprayed or dusted as long as they are in active growth.

Although fall planting of roses is not recommended for this area, beds may be prepared now for early spring. Dig in manure, leaves, grass clippings or peat moss, along with chemical fertilizer and superphosphate, leaving the soil rough over the winter.

Plant cornflower, larkspur, poppies, cosmos and calendula hardy annuals that will flower next spring. Try sweet william, ranks, pansies, snapdragons and English daisies in the yoldframe or protected seedbed.

The garden should be planted in rye after vegetables are gone.

Cut sunflower heads and leave them in a dry, warm place to dry.

Put out old vegetables, weeds and grasses - put in compost heap.

"FLU VACCINE"

"We can anticipate local outbreaks of flu in Kentucky this fall and winter and the risk of complication from flu in the elderly and chronically ill far exceeds the slight risk of any side effects from the vaccine," said Hernandez.

Hernandez noted that Gillian Barre, a disease which usually results in a temporarily paralysis, has been studied thoroughly since it was associated with last year's swine flu vaccination program.

"In any given eight-week period, there is one case of Gillian Barre per million population without flu vaccination," said Hernandez. "The risk increases to ten cases per million among vaccinated individuals," he said. "And among the high risk population, the threat from influenza far exceeds the chance of Gillian Barre."

Hernandez suggested that high risk individuals should go to their family physicians or local health departments for a dose of the vaccine. The shots are free of charge at local health departments.

Matt Poynter broke through to block the punt and it was the Rockets' final score of the night - a safety for 2 points and a 44-0 lead.

Late in the fourth quarter was the first time the Rockets had to punt during the entire game and was the only time that Lynn Camp was able to put any points on the board. They also made their two extra points and it was 44-8. Coach Glen Folly could have run the score up tremendously on the much smaller Wildcats but chose instead to give every man on his squad game experience. Sophomore Denzil Chasteen looked very good in his running back spot and did David Riddle, Tony Saylor, Charlie Falin, Brian Owens, and freshman Dwayne Thomason, who also quarterbacked the Rockets for a few plays.

Statistically, the Rockets were led offensively by Billy Hackworth who, despite an abbreviated game, picked up 178 yards in 11 carries; David Owens got 30 yards in 3 tries; Hammons was 19 for 5; Miller, 8 for 3; Chasteen, 38 for 8; Brian Owens, 23 for 5; Kenny Johnson, 3 for 2 and Steve Mitchell, who received a painful tooth injury in the first half, got 7 yards on one carry.

The Rockets had a total of 300 rushing yards in 39 carries and 13 first downs.

Defensively, the Rockets were led by Miller with 6 tackles and 4 assists; Danny Hunt got 6 and 3; Charlie Falin, Earl Hammons and Mark Holbrook all go 5 and 2; Tony Saylor, 4 and 3; Dusty Carlisle, Ty Huffins and Kenny Johnson were all credited with 3 individual tackles each; Walter Browning, Bo Huffins, Chasteen, Mark Poynter, Mike Arnold were all credited with 2 each and Eddie Thompson got 1.

Lynn Camp was held to 4 first downs and 64 yards rushing.

This Friday night, the Rockets host Casey County before beginning a three-game out-of-town schedule.

It was a Gala Homecoming As Rockets Crush Lynn Camp 44-8

There was actually no contest when the Lynn Camp Wildcats came to town last Friday night as the Rockets easily punched over 6 touchdowns and played every man on their squad on their way to a 44-8 Homecoming Win. The Rockets are now 4 and 1 on the season.

The first score came early in the first quarter with Hackworth scoring around left end. The score was set up on a punt blocked by Kyle Miller on Lynn Camp's 32 yard line. The try for the extra point was no good but, with 6 minutes 29 seconds left in the first quarter the Rockets were ahead 6-0.

Kyle Miller's first kick-off, to open the game and after each touchdown, was extremely entertaining for Rocket fans and equally frustrating for the Wildcats as he kept them deep in their territory all night. His kicks ranged anywhere from 50 to 60 yards each.

Quarterback Earl Hammons scored next in the first quarter from the two yard line and then went over for the two extra points.

A 25-yard pass from Hammons to tight end Eddie Thompson put the Rockets on Lynn Camp's five yard line and, on the next play, Hackworth struck paydirt again. Hammons took the ball over for the extra points and it was 22-0 with 10:54 left in the second quarter. Kyle Miller was the next to draw a little Wildcat blood as he scored from the three yard line. Hammons again got the two extra points and it was 28-0 with 4:52 left in the first half.

Coach Folly began substituting his sophomores and freshmen late in the second quarter and the regulars saw very little action from then on.

At the beginning of the second half, the Rockets began their drive on their own 31 yard line and a clipping penalty made it 1 and 10 on the 16. On the next play, the runner was thrown for a four yard loss but Hackworth took the hand off on the next play and broke loose for 88 yards and his third touchdown of the night. The extra point attempt was no good but the Rockets led 36-0 with 10:54 left in the third quarter.

Hackworth got his fourth and final touchdown of the night when he intercepted a Wildcat pass at midfield and returned it for the score. Once again, the extra point attempt failed but the Rockets led 42-0.

At this point, with sophomore David Riddle quarterbacking, the Rockets drove to Lynn Camp's 3 yard line, following a fumble recovery at the 40 by Kenny Johnson. The drive stalled there and the Rockets were forced to turn the ball over on downs. But, Lynn Camp was unable to move the ball and had to punt from their own end zone. Sophomore

Rockcastle Recollections

By John Lair
Previous pages of this history have dealt with hunters and explorers of our Rockcastle country, passing through to the more desirable areas of early settlements of central Kentucky or returning with the spoils of their venture to their established homes in the old settlements from which had come. It is only reasonable that many who came this way looking for land or a permanent home would find this part of the country to their liking.

There is no record of when or by whom the theory of the "broken wagon wheel" was originated but it seems to have found wide acceptance among those writers interested in sensationalism rather than facts. Their story goes that the Kentucky mountain country was built by a more or less shiftless class of pioneers whose wagon had broken down somewhere along the way through the mountains and that rather than go to the trouble of repairing the damage they had thrown up a rough pole cabin and settled permanently there. Since there were a good many people settled in the mountains before there was a trail established that could be negotiated by a wagon that theory seems somewhat questionable.

It should be remembered, too, that the majority of families seeking new homes in Kentucky were dependent for their livelihood on hunting and fishing more than on agriculture. They saw in these Kentucky hills and mountains terrain similar to the mountains sections of Virginia and the Carolinas from whence they had come. They found the forests filled with deer, bear and wild turkeys and the streams teeming with game fish, so what country more suited to their needs could they expect to find farther along the trail? Wherever they found a level spot sufficient for a cabin site, a garden and a small corn field, with a good spring nearby, they had found everything they needed and here they built their cabin and raised their family.

And while we're discrediting the broken wagon wheel myth let's get rid also of the belief that those mountains were settled by a shiftless inferior class of people. Check the census report of any mountain county and you will find lists of true descendants of some of the most important families of the Old South. The fact that mountain people through the years fell well below the level of literacy and achievement of other sections of America can be attributed to lack of good roads and good schools and consequent opportunities rather than a lack of good bloodlines and heritage.

For a number of years following World War One I was employed in Chicago by a major Insurance Company in the department covering Workman's Compensation. My job carried the high-sounding title of Medical Director but required no medical knowledge. When an employee was injured in a plant we insured it was up to me to see that he got into the hands of the right doctor and the right hospital, and that everything necessary was done to get him back on his company's payroll and off our compensation list as quickly as possible. Often a certain amount of investigation was required, such as checking with his fellow employees, his foreman, company records, etc. Some cases would require interviews with officials of the company, sometimes going as far as the office of the general manager or the owner. I soon noticed that these individuals - and the higher they got the more common it was - had been raised on a farm or in a small town in the south or mid-west. The more I noticed this the more curious I became as to why so seldom encountered native Chicagoans in these higher positions. Finally I figured it out. From childhood up the Chicago boys had been surrounded with all they needed. They had finished high school, got married and immediately gone to work at a good salary and had never really had to struggle for the comforts of life and had developed no ambition to better themselves. The man they were working for had once been a country boy who sat on a rail fence at sunset, looking off across the hills, visioning the good life that probably lay beyond them and making up his mind to find out some day. Often all a mountain boy needs is opportunity. The determination, the intellect, and the ability are already there. As a striking example, consider a man who a few years ago was the acknowledge world's expert on money and it's handling. He had grown up far back in the mountains that he had never heard a train blow until he was twenty years old.

The first two trails from the south toward central Kentucky crossed what is now Rockcastle County and as early as 1780 land speculators were taking up grants in this area centered along it and were within easy access to it. In 1780, four men, two of whom we recognize as early-comers of some historical importance, entered 2000 acres near the head of Skaggs Creek and in May of the same year John Curo entered 2000 acres adjoining them. Also in 1780 James Barker entered two acre tracts on a military warrant on the head of the east fork of Skaggs Creek. On treasury warrants from the governor of Virginia, Stephen Trigg acquired 50 acres on Skaggs Creek, near the trace leading to English Station. This was in September of 1782 and in June of that year Jacob Mayners obtained 360 acres nearby. In 1783 John Cobb, on a treasury warrant signed by Patrick Henry, then governor of Virginia, claimed 100 acres lying on the waters of Rockcastle River adjoining the already established claim of Samuel Taylor. The description of the Taylor tract includes mention of a stone house, the original occupants of which may well have been the first settlers in Rockcastle but nothing is now known concerning them. This was one of Taylor's many tracts totaling 5000 acres in and adjacent to Renfro Valley, described as lying on the waters of the north branch of Rockcastle River, which was Roundstone Creek, into which Renfro Creek enters only a few miles from the Renfro Valley. Bars from which it would appear that the stone house mentioned might possibly have been within the Valley itself. If this was true, the whoever lived there was the first resident of Renfro Valley, rather than John and Lulu Renfro, who did not build their cabin here until 9 or 10 years later. If this stone building was not a temporary hunter's shelter it's occupants were also the first settlers in what is now Rockcastle rather than the Lewis family to whom we have extended that honor in our search for the first family to settle here.

1820 seems to have been the date given for a whole series of land grants taken up in this area, which would indicate that there must have been a surveying party passing through and laying out claims for many different people. If so, however, rather than the possible instance of the stone house, do we definitely find settlers building and holding of land in this area, as the holdings of 1780. In most instances these land claims were made for men who surveyed and located huge tracts of land as a matter of occupation, moving on to other sections and repeating the process until some of them had established vast holding over a wide wilderness territory. We would be interested in finding land claims dated before 1780 anywhere in Rockcastle County and would appreciate any information any reader could furnish along that line.

Down On The Farm

by Danny McKinney

We often talk about and look back at those depression years and realize the extent and seriousness of them. Prices were so low that it was next to impossible to pay taxes and normal operating costs much less pay debts.

Corn was bringing ten to fifteen cents a bushel. Wheat was bringing twenty cents, tobacco five to fifteen cents per pound, while hogs were selling for two and one-half to three cents per pound and cattle six to seven cents. In some cases the amount received was insufficient to pay marketing costs.

Now in 1977 some farmers still have the same problem of meeting operating costs. No single farmer or person was responsible for the depression; however, some are responsible for their own plight in farming today. These situations are most often caused by poor management. Good management is the key to a sound operation. Probably more than any other single thing. Careful planning is the most important part of good management.

Set down a good set of plans that can be followed with a profitable end in sight. Things won't always work out as planned; however, we know more what to expect "Down on the Farm".
