

Short Rows

By Nevyle Shackelford

To get a jump on the season, many gardeners start seed indoors. In so doing, they get earlier blooms and vegetables as well as some other advantages such as a better quality and variety of transplant.

Among vegetables that will benefit from a pre-season headstart are peppers, tomatoes, broccoli, cabbage, eggplant, cucumber and hobb lettuce, according to UK Extension vegetable specialist C.R. Roberts. They do best if sown inside from 6 to 10 weeks ahead of outdoor planting time.

Seed can be started anywhere there is enough light-natural sunlight most of the day. Almost any kind of container can be used, ranging from seedflats or small clay pots to used milk cartons or old dishpans. Just be sure that, whatever the container, it has drainage. A starting medium can be mixed from sand, peat moss and sterilized garden soil. However, it is much less trouble—and almost as inexpensive—to sow the seeds in the house plant potting soil mixture available at garden stores and supermarkets, Roberts says.

Most kinds of seed should be sown, 8-10 inches per inch, in rows about two inches apart, according to Roberts. When the seeds germinate and the tiny plants begin to form their first true leaves (about two weeks after seeding), carefully transplant the seedlings to separate containers, such as peat pots, milk cartons or clay pots. Each plant needs 4-6 inches of growing space. (Cucumbers, however, should be seeded directly into the pot where the transplant will grow, putting two seeds in each container.)

To assure survival of plants started indoors, about a week before transplanting them to the garden, harden them off by gradually exposing them to more air and lower temperatures. Move them outside to a warm, sunny place and bring them back in at nightfall if frost is predicted for the night. They also should be given less water during this process. Seedlings not sufficiently hardened off may need shade during the hottest part of the day after they are put in the garden. An inverted flower pot, paper box, or folded newspaper will serve this purpose very well.

About an hour before transplanting, pots of indoor-started seed should be watered and allowed to drain. This reduces the possibility of wilt or shock, Roberts notes. If the transplant is in an individual peat pot, put pot, plant and all into the ground. For those in other containers, carefully lift the plant with the garden trowel or dibble and reset it at about the same depth it grew before. Gently press the soil about the roots, water, and the plant should take root off.

Linoleum was patented in 1863 by Frederick Walton, an English rubber manufacturer.

VOLUME 90 NUMBER 29

Final closing was made last Friday for the $445,000 financing necessary for purchase of an industrial site in the county and construction of the water and sewer lines. Rodney Dempsey, Executive Director of Kentucky Industrial Development Finance Authority, is shown signing the final papers on his organization's loan of $165,000 to the Rockcastle County Industrial Development Authority. Present for the meeting were, seated, from left: Bill James, chairman of the local development authority; Mr. James and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Payne, from whom the industrial site on Hwy. 150 was purchased. Standing, from left: Clyde Linville and Bill Bailey, both members of the Industrial Development Authority and County Judge Executive Hubert Thacker.

KIDFA Loan Agreement Completes Financing for County's Industrial Site

Financing for the $445,000 project which includes the purchase of an industrial site and construction of water and sewer lines was completed Friday at a meeting at the Bank of Mt. Vernon.

The 28.4 acre site is the former Clyde Payne farm on Hwy. 150. Of this acreage, approximately 71 acres will be available for industrial and commercial development.

Rodney Dempsey, Executive Director of the Kentucky Industrial Development Finance Authority (KIDFA) was present for the closing. This organization provided a loan of $165,000 to the development authority to help cover purchase of land. Besides Mr. Dempsey, present were: Mr. and Mrs. Payne, Bill James, Clyde Linville and Bill Bailey, all members of the Industrial Development Authority and County Judge Hubert Thacker.

Mr. James stressed that the help of Terry McBrayer, Commissioner of the Department of Commerce, had been invaluable. Mr. McBrayer was the first to suggest that the development authority apply to KIDFA for the funds needed to complete financing and, Mr. James said, personally helped the application through the various stages. The KIDFA loan was first applied for November of last year.

THE NEXT STEP

The next step, according to Mr. James, chairman of the development authority, is the letting of bids for construction of the water and sewer lines. Mr. James said this should be within 30 days, with construction to begin 80 days after that and completed this summer. Howard K. Bell, Consulting Engineers for the project, are, in addition, preparing a master plan in the form of a booklet to be sent by the authority to industrial prospects.

ACCESS ROADS

Temporary access to the site will be provided by a new grade crossing over the railroad from Highway 150 with permanent access planned from the new Highway 424 bypass. The state is responsible for access roads but they will not provide them until there is a definite commitment from an industry to build on the site, Mr. James said.

FINANCING

Of the total project cost of $445,000.

the development authority is committed to repay only $175,000. $10,000 of this is obligated to businesses and individuals who loaned the authority $500 each - 13 of which came from persons in surrounding counties and 7 from Rockcastle County. The acquisition of loan agreements from people outside the county was important since this enabled the park to be declared a multi-county site and this meant the state would provide the primary access roads and also put the development authority in the position of being able to qualify for additional monies for more access roads. These loans are repayable at the rate of 4 percent per year over a 10 year period. The remaining $165,000 which must be repaid is to KIDFA also at the rate of 4 percent over a 10 year period. Repayment of these loans will be from the sale of industrial sites.

The remaining monies were in the form of grants and in funds due the county from various sources.

The Appalachian Regional Commission provided one-half, $40,000 was granted by the Cumberland Valley Area Development District, $58,000 came from two-year's allocation of coal severance monies due the county and $27,000 from county revenue sharing funds.

KIDFA did require a first mortgage on the property for their loan.

Rockcastle Will Benefit From Summer Jobs Program

Rockcastle County is one of 88 Kentucky counties which will benefit from $4,909,357 apportioned to this region by the federal government this year for summer jobs. The acquisition of Hugh Cox, CETA Balagee of State Program Director, Department for Human Resources.

Employment Training Act (CETA).

Federal allotments to the CETA program were adjusted this year to include increases in the minimum wage and the social security tax.

"Last year this area got $4,255,163. Although we received more money this year it will be absorbed by the increased cost of the program which means the number of jobs we can fund will remain about the same as last year," Cox said.

The minimum wage rose from $2.30 to $2.65 per hour. "Public and private non-profit organizations throughout this 88 county area will be solicited to set up supervised work sites," said Cox.

Sunday, March 12, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Faulkner near Livingston was entered while the Faulknors were at church and several items were taken.

Entry was gained by breaking in through a kitchen door. Items taken included: pistols, radio, tape recorder, CB power unit, camera and knives.

On Monday of this week, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Estel Hodges, between Mt. Vernon and Brodhead, was entered and items valued at about $2,000 were taken.

Stolen were: two color televisions, a pistol, a rifle, a shotgun, radio, watch, costume jewelry, etc. Mr. Hodges said entry was gained through a garage window.

The day after, on Tuesday, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Wilcox in Brodhead was burglarized with thieves getting away again with about $2,000 worth of items.

Neighbors reported seeing a red car in the Wilcox driveway in the morning after Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox had both left for their teaching jobs. Entry was gained through a side door.

Taken in the break-in were: a portable television, guns, watches, radio, speaker, camera, old coins, a chain saw, binoculars, tools, jewelry, etc.

A Debt of Gratitude

The citizens of Rockcastle County owe a debt of gratitude to members of the Rockcastle County Fiscal Court and the Development Authority for their foresight and dedication in securing for the county the Payne farm as an industrial site.

Eventually, the site is expected to mean between 600-800 jobs for Rockcastle and surrounding counties. What this will mean to our economy is staggering. According to a booklet prepared by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, 100 new factory workers would mean: 351 more people, 79 more school children, $1,036,000 more personal income per year, 97 more families, $490,000 more bank deposits, at least 1 more retail establishment, 66 more employed in non-manufacturing and $85,000 more retail sales per year.

This potential has always been here but it has taken a few men with foresight to surge ahead and bring it about.

It has certainly not been an easy task. Long hours by members of the development authority since their formation a year ago, have been required. Of course, there is no recompense to these men for their long hours and sometimes personal expense. Their time and efforts were given because of their sense of responsibility to this community and to its future generations.

We have no doubts that the future will eventually bear fruit for us all and for their efforts and unselfish devotion to our community, we express our gratitude with a very adequate "Thank You."

The Frankfort Report

By Paul L. Whalen

The final week of the session of the Kentucky General Assembly saw such a flurry of activity that it may be weeks after the session had ended before even some of the legislators realize everything that happened. Several hundred bills and even more amendments to bills reached the floor of both houses last week for a final vote.

The biggest story of the final week was the general assembly's decision to rescind Kentucky's 1972 ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. This is probably not the last fight over the ERA in Kentucky. There are strong indications that the supporters of ERA will take the matter to court to see whether or not the General Assembly's action was constitutional.

to the governor for final action. Under provisions of the bill, students in the third, fifth, seventh, and tenth grades will be given competency tests annually beginning next school year.

The House of Representatives passed three measures concerning strip mining, clearing the way for some of the most drastic changes in strip mining in Kentucky in 22 years. All three bills are aimed at putting Kentucky in compliance with the 1977 federal strip-mine statute. One bill requires that stripped mountains be restored to their approximate original shape. The bills also forbid dumping earth and rock down mountains, require the use of topsoil, force operators to give public notice of blasting schedules and contain numerous provisions to prevent water pollution and landslides.

The Senate passed House Bill 179 which would deny welfare money for abortions in Kentucky. The bill now has to await action by the governor to become law.

Legislation was passed by the Senate authorizing the creation of the state Higher Education Student Loan Corporation. The purpose of the corporation would be to issue up to $30 million in bonds for making and insuring student loans.

The House passed Senate Bill 143 which is concerned with the handling of youth charged with serious crimes. Under this measure any youth 14 or older charged with murder or another serious felony would have a hearing to determine if he was mature enough to be sent to the circuit court for trial.

In two weeks this column will have a complete review of the major events and legislation which faced the 1978 session of the Kentucky General Assembly, as well as a report on bills signed into law by Governor Carroll.

Mental Health Matters

Parenting techniques influence the child's emotional growth and eventual adult behavior and sensitivity. The child's perception of security, confidence, trust and patience are taught and nurtured through consistent parental efforts.

One of the earliest opportunities to help the infant acquire a sense of confidence and trust occurs in the area of feeding. Fed on demand and held the baby during all feeding periods. Propping the bottle deprives the infant of the tender, warm body contact with the parenting person of his links to the feeling of comfort and security. An infant's feeding needs to be interrupted once or twice to allow swallowed air to escape by burping. As infants grow older, they often resent being burped, so washing the feeding interruption; but it is still necessary for comfort and to prevent spitting up. It is also an initial step in teaching the infant patience, or learning how to wait, which will be important in his future human relations.

Juvenile Justice Grants Available

The Offices of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention announced a new grant program entitled Restitution by Juvenile Offenders. The aim of this program is to support sound projects to assure greater accountability of convicted juveniles towards their victims and communities. Projects funded will include those which provide compensation to victims, either through payments or work, as well as projects which require appropriate community service. Thus, while helping to assure greater victim and community support for juvenile justice, additional alternatives to costly, indiscriminate incarceration of juvenile offenders will be established.

Information for the development of both preliminary and full applications are available at the CVADD office in London, Kentucky. Pre-applications should be sent to the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention by April 21, 1978.

For further information, please contact Linda White, Criminal Justice Planner, Cumberland Valley Area Development District Office, phone number 606-864-7391.

THIS WEEK IS NATIONAL WILDLIFE WEEK

In a proclamation signed March 15th, Gov. Julian M. Carroll made official Kentucky's participation in National Wildlife Week, March 19-25. Participating in the signing were Arnold L. Mitchell, commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and Roy M. Haddix, secretary of the League of Kentucky Sportsmen.

The theme of this year's National Wildlife Week, "Wildlife Needs You," is designed to focus attention on the way in which man can aid wildlife species. The emblem of this year's week, the peregrine falcon, is a species that has been greatly helped by man. Through the banning of DDT and captive programs, man has halted the decline in peregrine falcon numbers and the population of this magnificent bird is now on the increase.

National Wildlife Week is sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation, one of the country's leading conservation organizations. As a state affiliate of the NWF, the League of Kentucky Sportsmen has cooperated with the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in placing wildlife feed material in Kentucky's public schools and sportsmen's groups throughout the state are planning observance of National Wildlife Week.

"Rockcastle's Most Preferred"

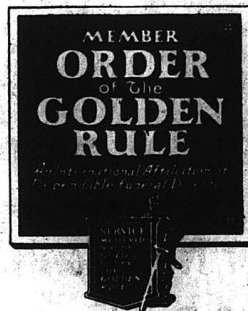

The Dowell and Martin Funeral Home is especially designed with homelike settings to provide an atmosphere of comfort and beauty. A place where old friends and familiar surroundings bring warmth and dignity to the family and guests.

Since our beginning, we have completely remodeled, refurnished and re-equipped our facilities -- always keeping abreast, and sometimes even ahead, of the newest ideas and methods.

All of this has been done to achieve one goal. To provide this community with funeral facilities comparable to the finest our profession can offer and, most of all, your complete satisfaction.

We like to think that our firm is an ideal combination of two things -- Large enough to provide complete and modern facilities and small enough to offer "Sincere, Personal Service."

CONSUMER COMMENT

ASBESTOS SAFETY

Many people have been using artificial ashes in their gas fireplaces for decorative purposes. Some of these ashes contain asbestos, which may cause cancer, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). The Commission believes that certain types of cancer may result from inhaling free-form asbestos fibers released into the air during the use of these products.

The asbestos content of a given product is not necessarily the only criterion for that product's relative health risk. A health risk occurs when asbestos fibers become airborne and can then be inhaled. Free-form asbestos is that which is not bound or otherwise "locked-in" to a product and, therefore, can become readily airborne.

The CPSC issued a ban on artificial fireplace ash containing asbestos effective December 15, 1977. Asbestos product effected by the CPSC ban is asbestos-containing patching compounds. All distribution and retail sales of these compound materials must halt as of June 12, 1978.

The Mt. Vernon Signal Thursday, March 23, 1978 P-5

Artificial fireplace embezzing materials (ash and embers) are used in gas-burning or artificial fireplace systems for decorative purposes; when subjected to high temperatures, the asbestos in these products produces a glow similar to real embers and ash. Instructions for removing the embezzing materials are as follows:

- 1) Wear a dust face mask.
- 2) Lightly spray the ashes with water, do not POUR water on the ash and embers.
- 3) Carefully scoop the ashes into a double plastic bag.
- 4) With damp towels, wipe the fireplace, walls, floors, tools and legs

Legislative Wrap-Up

March 13-18

The 1978 General Assembly session stretched past regulation time Saturday with the Senate and House stopping chamber clocks at 11:50 p.m. That step was taken so the legislature theoretically would not work past midnight on the 60th legislative day.

The Constitution limits the General Assembly to 60 days.

The two bodies agree, however, not to consider any more legislation but to limit activity to procedural matters.

The legislator's last day was a full one, marked by numerous conference committees attempting to iron out differences over legislation, trips to Capitol television sets to watch basketball tournament action and a morning rally by supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), resigned earlier in the week by the legislature.

The final day of the session, which began Jan. 3, also was characterized by the usual last-minute rush to pass legislation. Some measures made it; some didn't.

An attempt to legalize the sale and distribution of Lactris in Kentucky fell short, even with last-ditch efforts of supporters. But workmen's compensation legislation was passed after a conference committee (made up of Senate and House members) reached a compromise.

Legislation Passed

Among the numerous bills passed in the session's last week was the proposed executive budget. The $7.5 billion budget bill passed the Senate with only one negative vote; earlier, it had passed the House unanimously.

Sent to the Governor for his signature was House Bill (HB) 579, which provides for testing of basic skills at grades 3-5-7-10 and provides for creation of remedial educational units to eliminate deficiencies. HB 92, providing for statewide kindergartens, also received final approval.

HB 44, creating a new state department of buildings, housing and construction, won Senate approval. The department would be charged with establishing a statewide building code and enforcing it. Although single family dwellings would be exempt from authority of the department, local governments could make the new code applicable to them.

Bills designed to bring Kentucky into compliance with recent federal strip mine legislation were passed. They include Senate Bill 281, which would create the state Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement in the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

A "youthful offenders" bill, SB 143, was approved. It establishes a youthful offenders program and requires imprisonment of youths to be in a youthful offender facility separate from adult criminals.

Driving permits for 15½ year olds and four-year driver licenses renewals will become law if the governor signs SB 114, passed by both chambers. Currently, 16 is the minimum age for acquiring a learner permit, and two-year licenses are issued.

The House and Senate endorsed increased state control over the operation and financial management of community mental health centers by passing HB 688.

By a vote of 53-33 in the House and 23-15 in the Senate, legislators voted themselves raises by approving HB 331. Daily expense allowances for General Assembly members will increase from $50 to $75 if the legislation is signed by the Governor.

Few dissenting votes were cast in the passage of HB 156, requiring the display of a poster-size copy of the Ten Commandments in school classrooms. Opponents of the measure called it unconstitutional.

A bill that would increase some inheritance tax exemptions was passed. HB 143 provides exemptions for surviving spouses of $50,000 instead of $20,000, and for infants and incompetent children of $20,000 rather than $10,000.

Mandatory annual inspections of motor vehicles will be abolished if HB 332 is signed into law. The bill also requires that automobiles display proof of insurance on the rear window.

An administration bill to fight school delinquency and vandalism gained passage. SB 292 would direct the state board of education to develop program that deal with absenteeism, drug abuse, vandalism and delinquency, and would appropriate $360,000 over the next two years for that purpose.

HB 627, which creates a School Building Authority, and HB 547, which creates two public service commissions, received approval. The building authority would handle public school construction. One of the commissions would deal only with utilities providing energy and the second will deal, with non-energy utilities such as telephone, water and sewer.

A litter bill allowing the levy of a three cents per $100 assessment on items deemed to cause litter passed. HB 233 provides that revenue from the measure would be used to design and buy litter containers for public places and to hire youths to collect litter. Items covered include anything wrapped or packaged in glass, metal, plastic, paper or fiber containers and such items as cigarettes, tires and snack foods.

HB 263 applies prevailing wage requirements to publicly-funded local building projects. Opponents of the legislation warned that the requirements might end the possibility of library and courthouse construction in many rural communities.

An administration measure, HB 546 would include processors of coal among those who must pay coal severance tax and would return revenue from the severance tax to coal-producing counties for road upkeep.

Two measures relating to solid waste management were passed. SB 301 provides a comprehensive program of state oversight of community solid waste management programs. And SB 136 authorized the state Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to construct solid waste management demonstration projects.

STRETCHING YOUR FOOD DOLLAR

Fresh meat and most cured meats should be taken directly home from the market and not left in the car while other shopping is done, according to UK Extension meats specialists. Vagely meats and ground or chopped meats are more perishable than other meats and should be cooked in one or two days or frozen for later use.

ENERGY SAVING IDEAS

Helpful Tips

You can save energy cooling your house by using the same things that help you save energy heating your house: storm windows. Keep on windows not needed for ventilation. They help keep cool air in, warm out.

The Department of Energy has estimated that attic insulation can save up to 30 percent of heating and cooling bills. Seal heat leaks to rise and escape through an insufficiently insulated roof. The same insulation reduces the need for cooling by keeping out the sun's heat.

You can find a number of energy saving suggestions in a new booklet "Energy and Your Home." Edited by James S. Hines, it is available from the U.S. Department of Energy, P.O. Box 1562, York, Pa. 17406.

Facts About Wood

By Greg Stephens
Soil Conservation
Soil Conservation Service
Rockcastle County

1) Trees do not grow from the bottom up like blades of grass. Therefore, a branch that is two feet off the ground when the tree is two years old will still be two feet off the ground when the tree is two hundred years old.

2) Growth occurs at the ends of each branch; the trunk of the tree is often considered the main branch. If the end of a branch is removed the branch stops increasing its length and will become bushy.

3) Outward growth, or increase in girth, occurs in the cambium layer just below the bark. This layer adds material to the outside of the wood and the inside of the bark.

4) Wood is full of tiny openings; so many openings that the surface of all the wood in a one-inch cube would cover over 20,000 square feet, about half a football field.

5) Water repellents have been developed at the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wis. to counteract wood's porosity when it is used for house siding, boats, and the like.

DEPT. OF FISH AND WILDLIFE RESUMES FISHING REPORT

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will resume its weekly fishing report, a service popular with anglers around the commonwealth, beginning this week.

The report, a rundown of fishing conditions on Kentucky's 15 largest lakes, will be distributed to newspapers throughout the state until the middle of November, according to Hope Carleton, public relations director for the department.

The report is compiled from information furnished by conservation officers at each lake. "We feel that the conservation officers are the best men to give us accurate, objective and up-to-date information," Carleton says. "These officers, many of whom are expert fishermen themselves, know local lake conditions well and take pride in giving us a good report as possible."

"Although we try to make the reports as timely as possible, anglers should remember that we can only report on what conditions were, not what they will be," Carleton says, adding that rapidly changing weather conditions (particularly during the Spring) can create major changes in the fishing situation throughout Kentucky.

"Still, we feel that the report gives anglers an advantage," Carleton believes. Information contained in the fishing report includes the "top two" species of fish, how and where they are being caught and details on water conditions at each lake.

"Because of the number of lakes we cover, each report must be as brief as possible," Carleton says, "and it might lake fishermen a while to get used to the shorthand used in the report. While beginning anglers are usually most

Interested in which fish are biting, experienced fishermen want to know water temperature, degree of water clarity and whether the lakes are rising or falling.

In addition to the lakes themselves, the report also covers any activity in the tailwaters. These tailwaters, often overlooked by anglers, can be very productive, Carleton says.

The fishing report is also available to radio stations and is aired on the weekly "Kentucky Afield" television program.

Should Christians Observe Lent

Lent is defined as "the period of forty weekdays from Ash Wednesday to Easter, observed in Christian churches by fasting and penitence to commemorate Jesus' fasting in the wilderness" (Webster's New World Dictionary, pg. 828).

Lent supposedly is a time of penitence performed by contrite persons to lead them to more holy lives. However, abstinence does not make up for one's sins. Aesthetics perceived themselves righteous by virtue of their abstinence. One is righteous by the blood of Christ through faith. Unrighteousness can not be nullified by moral credits. Furthermore, hypocrisy is often seen during Lent. Many give up liquor for forty days. Some quit cursing or other sins for forty days. The concept is "Quit some sin for forty days to manifest penitence." Christians endeavor to refrain from sin every day of the year. True penitence causes one to cease doing wrong and to abhor its continued practice (pg. 119-120).

Immediately before Lent Catholics have what they call the time of "carnival," meaning "to flesh around." Carnival is the last time before Lent, a time in which to indulge the desires of the flesh. If they must be called upon to fast during Lent, then they must give special license to indulge the flesh beforehand! Thus, in New Orleans and other places, they have a "carnival" on Wednesday begins Lent, so the "Mardi Gras" which means "fat Tuesday" is held the day before. This celebration is a pure indulgence of the flesh and is engaged in by supposedly "religious people" to get them through Lent, the time of fasting. Vice and immorality run rampant in these celebrations. Following "carnival" these people solemnly and piously enter into a period of fasting to make them "very religious."

The Bible says nothing about Lent. This is an ordinance and religious observance of man. It is Roman (Catholic in origin) and has spread to some Protestant denominations. Jesus said, "But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men" (Matt. 15:9).

Some young people in this generation have objected to hypocrisy in religion. If they are objecting to the sort of thing described above, then they are right. The whole concept of Lent and accompanying observances is without authority of God. We refuse to subject ourselves to such practices which, at best, are the height of hypocrisy and certainly an abomination to Jehovah God. Fleshly flings in order to "withstand" penitence is contrary to everything holy.

Putting mind over muscle in furniture arrangement.

A little thought can save a lot of muscle when you're arranging furniture. So do take time to make a floor plan, especially if you're moving and have the whole job to do at once. First, you will need quarter-inch graph paper from the stationery store for your plan. Or ask about our Room Planning Kit with ready-printed furniture cutouts in popular sizes and graph paper.

Then, measure each wall - including alcoves, jogs, windows, doors, etc. - and sketch on the graph paper, allowing one quarter-inch square of paper for each foot of wall. With crosswise lines, indicate freestanding, doors, windows, so you know how much wall space you have. Then select or draw furniture cutouts scaled to the size of your furniture.

Start with the big pieces.

Ordinarily, the big pieces - sofas, bed, buffet or hutch - go on the longest wall. The pieces that are next in size can be the focus of little satellite centers on other walls. If the wall is so long, you may want to break it into several small areas. Or even use two or three distinct areas, with room dividers, bookcases back to back, or possibly a sofa-table arrangement at right angles to the wall. Start by working out a pleasing arrangement of the big pieces. Fill in with other items. Then check for these other points.

Good traffic flow is important.

Serving as a background for happy living is a home's first job. So consider the things your family does, the way they move in the house. If a major furniture arrangement just into the path between front door and kitchen or bedrooms, try it on another wall.

If you entertain, make sure guests can move from living room to bed service area and out without stumbling over each other. Try to keep the bed out of the pathway from door to closet or dresser. Make sure doors will open, swing back, drawers will open without hitting other furniture.

Conversation groups make good parties.

In great grandmother's day, furniture was arranged in rows along the walls. People could talk to the person in the next seat, about across the room, remain silent. Mostly, they sat silent. Now this furniture arrangement is obsolete as the parlor.

Furniture in Living and Family Rooms is arranged for easy conversation. Allow for five or six in a main conversation group, all facing each other, all with a table within reach. Add other groupings of two, three, four as space permits.

Don't be afraid to place major seating pieces at right angles to the wall or even in the middle of the room. Today's well-arranged living room often has only one conversation center, with three walls devoted to bookcases, desk, stereo or other less frequently used pieces of furniture.

Every room needs one focal point.

If you have a fireplace, build your major furniture arrangement around that. A window with a beautiful view also makes a good focal point. If you have no outstanding architectural feature, create a center of interest with your finest piece of furniture backed by a wall of unusual, exciting accessories. Just make sure that every room has one dramatic arrangement that draws all eyes. Then fill in with smaller groupings. But don't overcrowd.

And remember, if you want to discuss your plan, professional decorating advice without cost or obligation.

County Agent's Notes

County Extension Agent
For Agriculture

Tornado Season Is Here

March, April, May and June are "tornado season" in Kentucky. These are the months when tornadoes have been sighted in this state most often in the past, although tornadoes have been reported in every month of the year. Aftl, in Kentucky tornadoes are the most severe weather storms to occur. Even though an individual tornado exists for only a short time (usually less than a half-hour), the march of one of these local storms often leaves behind a path of terrible destruction.

The dark funnel of a tornado can destroy solid buildings, make a deadly missile of a piece of straw, uproot large trees, and hurl people and animals for hundreds of yards. For example, in 1931, a tornado in Minnesota carried an 85-ton railroad coach and its 117 passengers 80 feet through the air and dropped them in a ditch.

When there is such destruction, there is usually loss of life. Since the early 1950's, the tornado death toll nationally has averaged about 120 lives per year.

In spring, large contrasts exist between warm air from the south and cold air from the north. Such weather conditions may lead to the formation of tornadoes. They seem to strike most often in mid or late afternoon, when a warm day is at its warmest. Of the tornadoes reported in Kentucky, 50 percent are sighted between noon and 6 p.m. and 25 percent between 6 p.m. and midnight.

Tornadoes are formed several thousand feet above the earth's surface, usually in conjunction with a severe thunderstorm. They must, however, touch the ground to be considered a tornado.

Sometimes, a series of two or more tornadoes is associated with a severe thunderstorm. As the thunderstorm moves, tornadoes may form at intervals along its path, travel for a few miles, and then break up. On the average, tornado paths are only a quarter of a mile wide and seldom more than 16 miles long. Their forward speed has been observed to range from almost no motion to 70 miles per hour.

Understanding the terms weather forecasters use concerning tornadoes is especially important.

A tornado watch means that conditions are such that tornadoes may develop—keep a battery-operated radio or TV nearby and listen for more information. A tornado warning means that a tornado has been sighted or indicated by weather radar—seek proper shelter and listen to your radio or TV for further advisories.

Information on tornado safety rules is available at the County Extension Office.

Wild Garlic Can Be Controlled

Late March or early April is the best time to treat wild garlic with a herbicide to control wild garlic (also called wild onion). In Kentucky new-bulbs usually start to develop about the middle of April. By treating with 2, 4-D, Banvel, Silvex, or combinations of these materials before mid-April, you can control wild garlic better than when treatment is delayed until after new bulbs start to develop. This is because after a new bulb initiation begins, the herbicide will move into the old mother bulb but not from the mother bulb into the very young developing bulb, which will therefore continue to grow to maturity.

Time of application of the herbicides may vary, depending upon temperature. The chemicals recommended for wild garlic control are more effective when the air temperature is 60 degrees or higher for a period of several days. Wild garlic plants will die more slowly at temperatures lower than 60 degrees.

The treatment for wild garlic will also control most other broadleaf weeds that are growing in the lawn at this time of the year.

Silvex, 2,4-D, and Banvel are available to the home owner under different trade names and in various combinations and forms. For rate of application, read and follow directions on the label of the particular product purchased. Most problems occur when inexperienced individuals do not follow label directions.

Dormant Sprays — Dormant sprays should go on now if they haven't been applied already. These sprays are principally aimed to riding scale and mite insects on ornamental and fruit plants. However, to control peach leaf curl, you should include a fungicide in the dormant spray. Ferbam is a good one. With all spray materials, always follow the directions on the label or from your county agricultural agent.

Kentucky's annual trout stocking program is scheduled to begin Tuesday, March 21, when four of the department of fish and wildlife's stocking trucks leave the Dale Holton National Fish Hatchery near Orlin, Ky., loaded with rainbow trout for lakes, streams and tailwaters around the commonwealth.

This month's stocking will continue through March 30. And the stocked trout could provide some "hot" fishing in an otherwise pretty cold angling outlook. Trout prefer cool water and are active in temperatures that make warm-water species such as bass or crappie extremely sluggish. So until our lakes warm up some more, trout fishing will be the best bet for filling a stringer.

In spite of the mystique surrounding dry fly fishing for trout, these fish are often easy to catch without special equipment or exotic skills. While there may be a few flyrodding "purists" around, most Kentuckians choose a more simple and direct way of catching trout.

Our most popular baits are worms, white kernel corn, small cheese balls or even miniature marshmallows, and favorite tackle is whatever happens to be handy. Those who prefer artificial lures usually choose small spinners cast with light spinning tackle, but other small artificial lures will also work well under certain circumstances.

When trout are first stocked they usually get confused and many are caught immediately after stocking, but within just a few days for most the remaining trout start getting wary and a little smarter, necessitating more finesse on the angler's part.

Fishermen should pay particular attention to undercut banks, overhanging brush, midstream boulders or other dark, secluded hiding places. Feeding trout face upstream, waiting for the current to bring food to them, so a bait or lure allowed to drift naturally downstream will usually be the most productive.

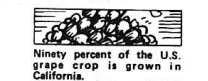

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources stocks 30 streams, nine tailwaters (those portions of rivers just below dams) and 10 lakes. The tailwaters often provide the easiest access and most convenient fishing for those who don't know an area well enough to find some of the more remote streams. Tailwaters usually have paved parking lots, picnic facilities and sometimes even playground for the kids.

Most fishing is done from the banks and there are usually well worn paths made by anglers. A tip: If there is a beaten path on one side of a stream or tailwater, try to fish the other side—you'll find rougher going, but you'll probably catch more fish.

Because trout do well under conditions of low fertility and cold temperatures, they thrive in many areas which would otherwise have very poor game fish populations, areas such as infertile mountain streams or tailwaters where cold water from near the bottom of an impoundment is discharged.

The trout are obtained from federal hatcheries free of charge and the cost of transporting them is covered by the sale of trout stamps, costing $2.25 and received by all trout fishermen who need a fishing license. The stamp must be attached to the license and signed in ink by the angler. There is a size limit on trout, but there is no daily limit and a possession limit of eight. Because the department of fish and wildlife's stocking schedule must be made on a month-by-month basis, depending upon the availability of the trout at the hatchery, it's not possible to give a rundown of specific stocking dates. However, the county conservation officer will know when and where waters in his county are stocked and will be glad to share this information with you. Also, a list of water stocked (including those in the Daniel Boone National Forest) by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, is available from the Division of Public Relations, Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources, 592 East Main Street, Frankfort, Ky. 40601

Job Corps Program Trying to Reach More Youth

By Bill Furnish

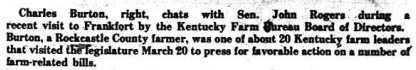

The Job Corps program is attempting to reach more Kentucky youths this month, according to Mary Jo Rodgers of the Department for Human Resources.

An insert describing the program accompanied the March Aid to Families With Dependent Children (AFDC) checks. The insert explains who is eligible for the program as well as what the Job Corps offers young people 16-21 years old.

The Job Corps is a proven program that trains young people for entrance into the labor market. It is different from other training programs because the enrollees live in the centers where they are trained. President Carter's economic package provides for the Job Corps to grow from 60 to 100 residential centers nationwide by September," said Ms. Rodgers, who is Job Corps program manager for Kentucky.

By March 3, 319 responses indicated interest in the program. "If this rate keeps up, the effort will prove a success," Ms. Rodgers said. The bureau of manpower services and social insurance houses in the Department for Human Resources joined in the venture to send out 60,000 inserts.

Charles Burton, right, chats with Sen. John Rogers during a recent visit to Frankfort by the Kentucky Farm Bureau Board of Directors. Burton, a Rockcastle County farmer, was one of 20 Kentucky farm leaders that visited the Legislature March 20 to press for favorable action on a number of farm-related bills.

Congressman Carter Releases Fifth District Poll Results

If the U.S. Senate voted the way the people of the Fifth District would have it, the Panama Canal treaty would be defeated.

Strong opposition to the treaty is made clear in results of a poll conducted by Congressman Tim Lee Carter, R-Tompkinsville.

Rep. Carter sent a questionnaire in December asking the voters in his district about the treaty President Carter signed to surrender ownership and control of the Panama Canal. Results of Rep. Carter's poll, being released in a newsletter this month, show that 76 per cent indicated they thought the treaty should be approved.

Results of Rep. Carter's poll, being released in a newsletter this month, show that 76 per cent of the persons responding opposed ratifying the treaty. Fourteen per cent indicated they thought the treaty should be approved while 10 per cent said they were not sure.

Since members of this House of Representatives are barred by the U.S. Constitution from voting on treaties, Rep. Carter has sent the results to Kentucky's two Senators.

Eleven questions were asked by the Congressman. The only issue besides the canal treaty which drew a larger percentage of persons agreeing on a single position involved raising the federal gasoline tax. Asked if they thought the federal gasoline tax should be raised to discourage gasoline use, 57 per cent said no, 39 per cent favored increasing the tax for that purpose while four per cent were not sure.

According to the Congressman's questionnaire results, a majority of Fifth District residents think there is an energy shortage in this country. But almost as many indicate they do not think so or else are not sure.

Fifty-three per cent answered yes to whether there was an energy shortage, 30 per cent said no and 17 per cent not sure.

Among those agreeing there were energy problems, 40 per cent characterized those problems as very serious. Another 25 per cent thought the problems were serious but not bad enough to require changing lifestyles.

Seventeen per cent felt the problems were only mildly serious but were outnumbered by the 18 per cent who were not sure how serious the problems were.

The largest percentage of undecided answers came on the question about whether environmental controls should be delayed in order to ease energy problems.

Less than a majority for a single view point also appeared in answers to a question about requiring all new cars to have AM-FM all-channel radios if they would bring down the price of those radios. Forty-nine per cent thought they would favor such a requirement while 38 per cent opposed it. The remainder were not sure.

Giving a special tax deduction for parents or guardians with a child enrolled in college won the support of 70 per cent of the respondents. Twenty-one per cent were against such a tax deduction, and the rest could not decide. By a margin of 50 per cent to 34 per cent, Fifth District residents indicated they would support resuming trade and diplomatic relations with Cuba. The remainder were undecided.

As for abandoning the all-volunteer Army and returning to a military draft system, 45 per cent voted yes, 36 per cent no and 19 per cent not sure. View points about regulating firearms drew a split decision. The largest number of those responding, 34 per cent, felt that no further regulation on firearms was needed as present laws were satisfactory.

Almost as many, 33 per cent, agreed with the statement gun laws are an unconstitutional infringement on the right to bear arms.

Those who would agree that making and selling Saturday night specials and other cheap hand guns should be banned represented 28 per cent of the respondents. Only five per cent had no response on gun control.

Coal Shortage Still Critical To Co-Ops

As an update for rural electric members in this area Lee Roy Cole, President and General Manager of Jackson County Rural Electric stated that the coal shortage is still critical and is expected to remain in short supply for the next several weeks due to the strike by the coal miners.

Mr. Cole stated that a limited amount of coal is available at much higher because of this need to buy the high price coal and to buy some high price power from other utilities to stretch our own supply of coal.

We are requesting that you continue to conserve electricity with each member attempting to reduce his usage by 25%. This can be done by lowering your thermostat if you heat with electricity, reduce the temperature of your hot water to 120 degrees, reduce clothes washing and drying to only full loads and use cold water whenever possible.

Remember this will save you money and will be less coal or high priced power your coop will have to buy, Mr. Cole stated.

Lt. Gov. Stovall Refused To Sign Recission of ERA

By Jeanne Beckett

Kentucky's recission of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) became official last Thursday, but its strongest opponent, Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall, refused to be the signer of the measure.

Lt. Gov. Stovall relinquished her place as presiding officer of the Senate to Sen. Joe Prather, Senate President Pro Tem, then with tear-filled eyes addressed the Senate.

Since she felt she could not relinquish her ruling that the manner in which the issue was handled was against the Senate rules, Mrs. Stovall said, she would not put the Senate in the position of forcing her to relinquish the chair again.

She closed by saying, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do."

Later in the day the resolution that started it all sponsored by Rep. C.M. "Hank" Hancock, (D-Frankfort) got a new life. The original provisions of House Joint Resolution had been completely deleted by the Senate when it tacked on the ERA recission. It called for a study of those in the retirement system eligible to purchase military time credit.

It came back to the Senate tacked onto Senate Bill (SB) 213 dealing with pensions and received Senate concurrence.

Hospitals providing emergency services must also provide investigative examination services to rape victims under the amended version of House Bill (HB) 497 which passed the Senate today. The original measure prevents pregnancy counseling from including information concerning abortion.

HB 261 providing for tax payments by Dec. 31 rather than Nov. 1 was amended in the Senate to allow for Nov. 1 payments in the year in which a sheriff is elected. The bill must now be returned to the House for concurrence in the Senate amendment.

An extensive revenue and taxation measure dealing with a number of issues also was amended on the floor of the Senate requiring its reconsideration by the House on the final day of the session. Sen. Doug Moseley, (R-Columbia) offered the amendment to eliminate the gasoline tax for motorboats.

Money contributed to political parties through the income tax write-off system may be used only to support a party candidate in a general election. The original measure (HB) 356 would allow an audit of the bank accounts containing these write-off funds.

Conference meetings will be held tomorrow to try to resolve controversy between the two houses on two measure Senate Bill 228 and SB 229 since the Senate refused to concur in amendments that had been attached to these measurements by the House.

Concurrence action which gives final passage was taken by the Senate on the following:

SB 179 dealing with insurance.

SB 113 relating to aeronautics.

SB 245 providing for temporary substitute appointees on county board of elections.

SB 348 dealing with the coal severance economic aid fund with amendments that set the amounts of allocations to be made to the county for expenditure on capital improvement projects.

SB 162 dealing with crime victims compensation.

SB 163 setting fees for county officials performing certain services.

SB 148 Re-establishing the flood damage abatement program with an appropriation for same. House amendment requires applicant cities and counties to provide evidence of damage from flooding within the last five years.

SB 98 providing for a constitutional amendment as amended in the House would allow for four amendments to be submitted to the voters each biennium as opposed to the existing two. The Senate had sought that the number be unlimited.

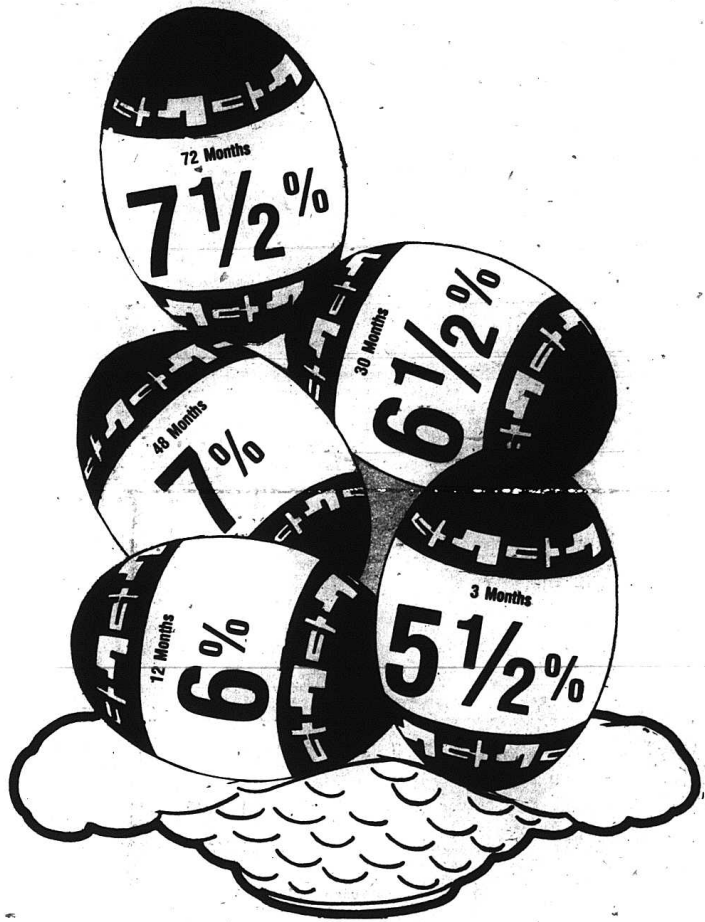

Facts & Fancies

More heat may soon be available to help keep more Americans healthy, thanks to our oil companies which are looking for alternative fuel sources such as geothermal and solar heat. Since those companies have the engineering know-how and development capital to do a good job developing these sources, it could mean more jobs for Americans, too.

"Wildlife Needs You" is Theme of National Wildlife Week

These past two winters have been tough on wildlife. Imagine if you had to live 24 hours a day in below freezing weather. Or had to scrouge for food while there was snow on the ground. That's what our wildlife has to do and both cover and food have been scarce the past two winters. The Rockcastle County Rural Development Committee realizes this fact and has organized an approach to help solve this problem.

The key to attracting wildlife is to create an environment that they will use. The term used for this is habitat management. So the key to attracting wildlife is to provide food it will eat, cover it can hide in, and water to drink. The Rockcastle Fish and Game Club has

ASCS Holds State Conference

Kentucky farm program officials from the Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) met March 18-19 at the Galt House, Louisville, Kentucky, to discuss better services for farmers, the New Farm Act of 1977, and the image of the farmer in today's urban society. Attending the meeting from Rockcastle County were Delmer New, Chairman of County Committee and Harold Ballinger, director of County ASCS Office.

One of the principal speakers was Clarence Gordy, Director, Southeast Area from Washington, D.C. He highlighted that ASCS was going to go through a reclassification of county office employees and that greater emphasis was going to be placed on the county and community committee system.

He commented that Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland was quite concerned about what the feelings are of the farmers. He wants farmers to know that he is working for their interest. But, the Secretary recognizes that only 4 percent of the voters are farmers and that you can't get very many things through Congress with only 4 percent of the voters. "Both the farmer and the consumer must be educated relative to farm policy objectives," he stated.

Another key speaker was Victor A. Senechal, Assistant Deputy Administrator, State and County Operations from Washington, D.C. Mr. Senechal commented on the New Farm Act. The major objectives as stated by Mr. Senechal are to increase market prices by depressing supplies and to isolate excess production through a grain reserve. "The key is not to take 'X' acres out of production, but to increase prices! By utilizing the Grain Reserve Program, which USDA hopes to institute $30 million bushels of wheat and 670 million bushels of feed grain (corn equivalent) from the marketplace and the set-aside program, USDA believes prices will be guaranteed," says Senechal.

The Food and Agricultural Act of 1977 authorizes set-asides for wheat, corn, sorghum, barley, oats, upland cotton and rice. For 1978, the Secretary of Agriculture has announced a 50 percent voluntary set-aside for 1978 crop wheat and a 10 percent voluntary set-aside for 1978 crop corn, sorghum and barley. There will be no set-aside for oats or upland cotton in 1978.

Senechal, in quoting the Secretary, said, "The Grain Reserve Program is a new marketing tool for wheat and feed grain producers. If farmers fully use the reserve program and the set-aside program, they will be able to retain ownership of the grain they produce and thus take advantage of higher prices. In other words, it's a self-help type of program. If the farmer wants to help himself, he's got to participate."

According to Senechal, the set-aside acreage does not receive payment; however, there has been much activity in Congress concerning legislation which would offer a paid diversion program whereby producers could voluntarily divert for payment in addition to the required diversion to which no direct payment can be made. Such a bill, the Talmadge-Dole Bill, is now before the Senate Agricultural Committee. However, it doesn't look like any action will be finalized in time to have an effect on 1978 operations. "Therefore, we need to just work with what we have and be sure that we explain to the farmers the real meaning and objectives behind the various provision of the program," concluded Senechal.

Cynthia A. Duncan, Henderson, Kentucky, is Chairperson of the Kentucky State ASC Committee. Tipton Graham, Crompton, Kentucky, and Floyd Massey, Smiths Grove, Kentucky, are members. Beverly C. Yeiser, Sr., Winchester, Kentucky, is the State Executive Director.

Participation in programs administered by ASCS is open to all eligible producers regardless of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.

Bullock The Man

The following poem was written by Mrs. Leonard Bullock.

I've entitled this poem, Bullock, the Man. To distinguish L.B. from the rest of the clan. For there's Hoover and Monroe, Estill and Glen. There's Ernest and Wayne, and all of them. Now, all are quite wonderful I'm sure you'll agree. But none reached a goal this year like L.B. Nor did any saddle club member attain. This coveted record he was able to gain. Why, he rode in the sunshine, rode in the rain. Up every hillside and down every lane. Yes, dark clouds and gray or sunny & clear.

He was just determined to make it this year. And, in spite of arthritis, lumbago and such, He hasn't permanently resorted to crutch. He still has charisma, humor and poise. And all fringe benefits he really enjoys. For he's a sensuous slave, rough, wild and free. Greeting each day with boyish glee.

And speaking of boys, there's one - James Clyde. Whose determination cannot be denied. His phone call was frequent, concise and clear.

And went like this "Is Wennard ar?" Now without his assistance and faithfulness too. I'm sure the summer L.B. couldn't get through. This boy is courageous, happy and brave. And must always know just how to behave. But one situation sure causes a racket. You know what it is those darned yellow jackets.

So, here's to James Clyde and also L.B. This handsome couple for us to see. We're proud of you guys and want you to know. You're wished similar success. WHEREVER YOU GO.

Mr. diTeresa has had 32 one man shows and an exhibit of his work will be on display in the College library throughout the Festival.

The Arts and Crafts exhibits will open on Thursday afternoon in the Sue Bennett field house and will be open each of the remaining days of the Festival. Egg Tips

Eggs, eggs, and more eggs. Eggs are plentiful supply this month so now is a good time to take advantage of these versatile items in your menu planning.

To refresh your memory about eggs, here are a few egg tips:

1. To keep eggs fresh about 60 calories, 60 of which come from the yolk.

2. Eggs should be purchased only from refrigerated display cases.

3. To help maintain quality, eggs should be refrigerated promptly at home, large end up.

4. Temperature variations cause rapid quality decline and thinning of egg whites. Take only the number of eggs needed from the refrigerator at one time.

5. Only fresh, clean, unbroken eggs should be used when making milk shakes and other uncooked or lightly cooked dishes. Eggs that are cracked should be thoroughly cooked.

6. The thick, rope-like strands of white on opposite sides of the yolk are called the chalazae and are normal parts of an egg. They anchor the yolk in place.

7. To insure best eating quality, eggs should be cooked over low to moderate heat. High temperatures and overcooking toughen eggs.

8. For hardcooked eggs, use your oldest eggs. Very fresh eggs when hardcooked may be harder to peel.

The Easter Cuckoo

In Switzerland, children are supposed to receive their eggs from the Easter Cuckoo. Most countries follow the old German fable of the Easter Bunny, who brings eggs to good children.

Have An Egg Roll

There has been an egg-rolling at the White House in Washington since the early 1800's when it was begun by Dolly Madison. President James Madison's wife.

Ever See A Plaid Egg?

This year, how about a plaid egg or a striped one? Just wrap eggs with rubber bands or strips of narrow masking tape before placing them in the dye. Be sure the egg is completely dry before removing the bands.

The Sacred Egg

Ancient people considered the egg to be sacred. It symbolized the world and its elements. The shell was the earth; the white, the water; the yolk, the fire; and the air itself was captured under the shell. Centuries ago eggs were dyed to celebrate the return of springtime by the Chinese, Greeks, Romans, Egyptians and Persians. The early Christians associated eggs with the Resurrection.

Hard-Cooked Eggs

Place clean eggs in a single layer in a saucepan. Cover them with cold water. Place the pan over medium heat and bring the water to the boiling point. Cover the pan, reduce the heat and allow the eggs to simmer. Allow about 15 minutes after you reduce the heat. Drain the hot water and cover the eggs at once with cold water to stop cooking and prevent the yolks from discoloring.

Refrigerate hard-cooked eggs quickly for safe-keeping. Peel them when you're ready to use them and eat them within a few days.

Peeling Hard-Cooked Eggs

Cool hard-cooked eggs in cold water right after cooking to help make them easier to peel. This also prevents yolks from turning gray-green around the edges.

To remove shell, "crackle" egg by tapping it gently all over against a counter top. Roll between your hands to loosen the shell, then begin peeling at the large end. Holding the egg under cold running water or dipping it in a bowl of cold water also helps ease off the shell.

In old India, coral was supposed to ward off the effects of too much sun.

TURN IT DOWN. TURN IT OFF. AND SAVE.

Turn it down. Turn it off.

It's a good idea to remember these slogans if you want to save money on your electric bill.

Because of an excessive winter and a national coal strike, cooperatives must pay more for their coal and you, the consumer, must pay more for it through the "fuel adjustment charge."

A good rule of thumb is to turn off electrical appliances, like the television and electric lights, when you're not using them.

You can also use electricity more efficiently, like running only a fully loaded dishwasher, or by using less electricity, like turning down your thermostat and wearing a few more clothes.

You will be helping your community, because you'll be using less electricity at a time when brownouts and blackouts are a real threat, and you'll also be doing yourself a big favor.

Utilities can't do a lot about the higher fuel adjustment charge because they must have coal to operate, and coal is scarce and more costly right now.

But if you continue to "Turn it down," and "Turn it off," you'll notice a big difference in your electric bill.

Kentucky Afield

By John Wilson

This year's deer gun season, as set by the Fish and Wildlife Commission at its March 6 meeting, is very likely the most complex ever adopted in Kentucky, but there are good reasons for this complexity, says Biologist Robert Willis, who is in charge of the state's wildlife surveys.

Briefly, next fall's deer seasons will run as follows: in 74 of the commonwealth's 120 counties, hunters may take bucks only on November 11 through November 13 and from December 2 through December 4. Twenty-four counties will be open only on November 11 through November 13 (bucks only); four counties will have a one-day either sex season (Dec. 2) with bucks only the other five days of the open season.

In one county and portions of two others either sex deer may be taken on all six days, and finally, 15 counties will be closed to all deer hunting. I won't go into which county falls into which category at this time, or I wouldn't have room to discuss why biologists feel such complications are necessary.

Deer hunters no doubt remember the "good old days" (about three years ago) when Kentucky had a five day bucks only season, with a few counties closed completely. This old system, Willis says, allowed too many deer to be taken from some areas of the state and not enough from others.

But because of the survey techniques then in use, it took almost a year to compile and analyze the data from the previous season—too long to do anything except manage the deer herd from the standpoint of long range statewide population averages.

With the inception of the check station procedure two seasons ago, however, the situation changed. With all deer taken by gun hunters checked, biologists have an almost instant, highly accurate count of the deer harvest by county and portions of counties. The Division of Game Management has begun other selective surveys of deer populations and deer habitat in key areas of Kentucky, Willis says, with the net result that biologists now have a much better picture of the population and distribution of deer throughout the state.

With this clearer picture, biologists can now recommend seasons which should provide an optimum harvest based on local conditions. It should be obvious that a deer-rich county can stand more hunting pressure than a county where there is very little deer habitat and thus few deer.

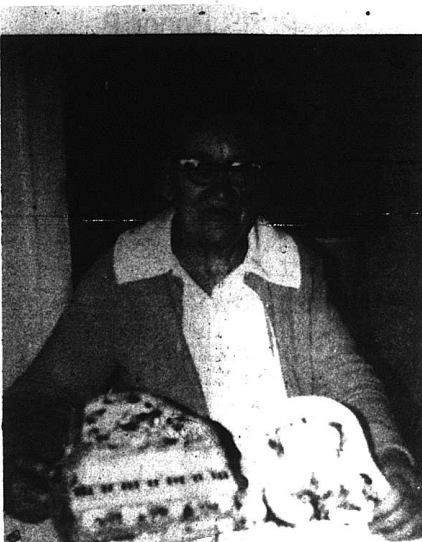

"We want to give deer hunters every opportunity to hunt, based on sound management practices," Willis says. "In some counties, no hunting at all can be allowed, while others have a harvestable surplus of does. To impose a single season on the entire state for the sake of simplicity would be fair neither to the hunters nor to the deer herd."

Now does the future hold much hope for those who want simplicity, Willis believes. "I foresee even more complicated seasons in upcoming years," he says, "with hunting zones based on physiographic areas rather than on county lines."

Another item which may show up in the future seasons is doe permits, which would closely control the number of antlerless deer taken from specific areas. Willis believes that last year's either sex hunting in several counties, coupled with the two "long weekend" hunts allowed too many deer to be harvested in some areas and he feels that the answer is issuing a carefully controlled number of doe permits based on the size of the harvestable surplus and the expected success ratio of hunters.

So far, archers have not experienced as much complexity in their season, but only because the harvest by bow and arrow is low. This year, however, bow hunters will have to go through check station procedure the same as gun hunters, as biologists strive to get an even more accurate picture of the total deer harvest in Kentucky. So be sure you're up on the regulations for the area in which you plan to hunt this fall, and don't assume that just because something was legal (or illegal) last year it will be the same this season. It will take two or three months for these regulations to reach final form and for informational pamphlets to be printed, but full details will be available well before the seasons open.

And this year, in particular, the best

February was so cold... even the Groundhog wouldn't stay out.

This famous little character peeked out on Groundhog Day but quickly scurried back to his den. For good reason—February's temperatures reached an all-time record low.

Heating degree days a measure of heating energy requirements increased almost 46% last month over February 1977. Even with conservation efforts, heating systems worked overtime during this cold period. But without conservation energy uses would have been still higher.

This has been a tough winter for groundhogs and people. Coal has been in short supply and our stockpiles are still down. So thank you for conserving energy—it's helping to relieve the coal shortage and also helps keep your energy costs as low as possible.

Congress Eyes Farm Price Remedies

Action is picking up in Congress on several bills designed to aid farmers distressed by low farm prices and inflation-led cost increases. Lawmakers are expected to act quickly on at least three measures, including a land diversion bill that would authorize per-acre payments to farmers who set aside part of their grain-land cotton acreage.

The diversion measure, S. 2690, is sponsored by Sens. Herman Talmadge and Robert Dole. It calls for taking some 31 million acres of wheat, soybeans, corn, and cotton out in production, in return for direct payments averaging $75 per acre to farmers who choose to participate.

Members of the Senate Agriculture Committee have already approved the Talmadge-Dole bill, following its introduction in Congress little more than week ago. The nation's largest farm organization, the American Farm Bureau, has said it supports enactment of the bill.

Farm Bureau spokesmen say the acreage payments are necessary to induce wider participation among farmers in the set-aside program. Currently, Department of Agriculture analysts estimate less than 40 percent of the nation's farmers plan to set aside the present acreage limits of 10 percent for feed grains.

Farm Bureau has been critical of calls for higher target prices and commodity loan rates, saying such increases would add to grain surpluses unless additional diversion programs are enacted.

At least two other measures may get quick consideration by the lawmakers. They are: "S 2481, called the Flexible Parity Act, sponsored by Sen. Dole. This proposal would increase support prices for farm commodities to higher rates of diversion of cropland by individual farmers. Farmers who set aside 50 percent of their normal acreage would qualify for price supports equal to 100 percent of parity. The bill would also grant small increases in crop loan rates for this year and authorize additional money for the Food for Peace export program.

Some lawmakers prefer the flexible parity concept to the Talmadge-Dole diversion proposal, and the latter may be offered as a substitute, or the two measures combined, during Senate floor action.

*An emergency farm credit bill.

H.R. 8315, would increase farm ownership and operating loan limits for the Farmers Home Administration. It would allow FHA loans to be made to partnerships and corporations.

Rising Prices Squeezing First-Time Home Buyers

Price increases have brought the national median cost of a new home to almost $49,000 and caused a steady widening gap between home prices and average income. A recent Federal survey concluded that the median value of a single-family home had risen 73 percent between 1970 and late 1975, while the median income rose 40 percent. Some experts believe that the gap has widened even more since 1975. Proportionately, there are now fewer first-time buyers than there used to be. As recently as four years ago, according to Government data, the housing market was evenly divided among families who were buying their first homes, and families who were using the equity in houses they already owned as down payments. This year, according to a survey by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, only about 15 percent of new homes are being purchased by first-time home buyers, with the balance being purchased by owners who can parlay inflated equities in previous homes into new ones.

Decision for Newlyweds

Congratulations! You're engaged to be married. Decision time is coming. Shall the first den of your dreams be a cozy apartment or a comfortable home, large enough to house your projected number of offspring?

Stop and reflect these alternatives. Apartment rents are climbing as available space lessens. On top of this, the monthly rent checks represent money that is gone forever. On the other hand, mortgage payments are a form of forced savings and actually build an equity for you. Also you can probably look forward to a profit when you eventually sell.

One other consideration is the cost of household moves each time you stairstep to larger quarters. This expense could conceivably cost you every penny you thought you were saving by paying less for smaller quarters.

Either way you decide - have a happy honeymoon!

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at Ford Realty & Auction Co., Inc., Mt. Vernon, Phone 256-4545. We're here to help!
