Dems Make Strong Showing In County's Tuesday Election

Democrats made a strong showing in Rockcastle County in Tuesday's election. In a county where Republicans outnumber Democrats two to one, Democratic incumbent U.S. Senator Walter Huddleston pulled forty-two percent of the vote. Democrat Jesse Ramey received twenty-eight percent of Rockcastle's vote against seven-term U.S. Representative Tim Lee Carter.

Both Carter and Huddleston easily won their bids for reelection statewide. In the only contested local election, David Cash, D.A. Robbins and Terri Chandler became members of the Board of Trustees for the city of Brodhead.

John Calvin Aker, a district court judge from Somerset, beat John D. White, an Appeals Court judge, for a state Supreme Court seat in a non-partisan election. One of the issues in this twenty-eight county race was the age difference between the candidates: Judge Aker is 39 years old, Judge White is 53. In Rockcastle County, the vote was Aker, 837; White, 521.

Parents-Teachers Day Set for Wednesday

Parents will have the opportunity to confer with the teachers of their children next Wednesday between 1 and 6 p.m., when schools will conduct a Parent-Teachers Day. School will close at 1 p.m. but teachers will be staying until 6 p.m. for the conferences.

County Judge-Executive Hubert Thacker signed a proclamation today that declares the week of November 12 "American Education Week" in Rockcastle County. Superintendent Charles Parsons said that local principals decided to hold a Parents-Teachers Day in honor of American Education Week. The project was approved by the School Board at their regular meeting November 6.

Parents are instructed to come to the classrooms of their children, where teachers will be answering questions about the children's progress or the current curriculum.

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK

County Judge Executive Hubert Thacker has signed a proclamation, proclaiming next week, November 12, 1978 as American Education Week in Rockcastle County. The proclamation reads:

WHEREAS, The schools represent the best efforts of the community, the state and the nation to improve the quality of life; and

WHEREAS, Defining the school's goals and evaluating their results are the responsibilities of an informed and involved citizenry; and

WHEREAS, There is a wide spread need for better communication and more cooperative relationships between professional educators and the community.

Now, Therefore, I, Hubert Thacker, County Judge Executive of Rockcastle County, do hereby designate November 12, November 18, 1978 to be American Education Week and do urge all citizens to:

Reaffirm their commitment to improving education on all levels, and Translate that commitment into action by visiting local schools.

The warrants are being issued through the county and state Departments of Public Health. Steve Midkiff, a county environmentalist, said

Improvements For High School Okayed By Board

By Jane Kuntz
Improvements for Rockcastle County High School dominated discussion at the regular meeting of the Rockcastle County School Board Monday night. The Board approved a bid of $2,301 for a chain link fence with several large gates that will secure a garage being built adjacent to the school.

Only Sears, Roebuck and Montgomery Wards bid on the fence-Sears was lower and therefore approved. School superintendent Charles Parsons reported that the garage, which will house school buses, should be completed this month.

It will be a relief to have the garage, he said, pointing out that buses are overcrowding the Richmond Street garage and causing traffic tie-ups.

The Board also approved a baseball field for the high school campus, voting to advertise for bids to level an area adjacent to the football field. The Board also voted to advertise for bids on a tractor-mower for the high school grounds. Mr. Parsons said that the tractor now on hand was purchased used six years ago and is worn out. He said that the cost of a mower would probably be less than that of a tractor.

Mr. Parsons said that the new roof for the high school is almost finished despite some problems after a heavy rain which was deducting one year of art supplies and some ceiling tiles. The roof company will pay for the damage, he said.

The bonding company which promised to guarantee the roof but refused to pay when the roof failed may agree to a compromise, Mr. Parsons said. The Board voted to accept $6,417 settlement from Celator Company in Ohio. The company had originally agreed to pay $7,260 bond on a 20-year basis.

The compromise figure was worked out by attorney Carl Clontz and Mrs. Portnoff, who is representing the school's bonding and what the company spent so far on repairs to the roof.

The Board accepted bids from Institutional Distributors, Central Kentucky Foods, Somerset Foods, Robinson's Sausage and Uncle Charles's Sausage on luncheon foods and supplies. The company with the lowest bid on any of 119 items got the sale in each case.

An audit performed by professional accountant J. Courtney Horton of Mt. Sterling for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1978 was approved and sent to the State Committee of School District Audits.

The following substitute teachers were employed: Elaine Price Taylor, Ricky Barnett, Katherine Bradley, Lisa Lewis, and Catherine Joyce Baker. Bus drivers employed are Otis Howard, Coy French, Garret Brown, Jane Harper and Joyce Jones. Nine people were approved to receive high school diplomas through audit education. A fund-raising project for Ramdstone School was approved.

that just because an illegal dump was investigated once does not mean the inspectors will not come back again. He said that areas of illegal dumping include the Hurricane School Road near Copper Creek, one near Rockcastle River about one mile east of Livingston, Ky. 1004 near Oak Pointe Cave, the Hammonds Fork dump, and any dumping along secluded county roads or gullies. All household trash should be bagged and put in county dumpsters. Large items must be hauled to the county landfill, and commercial operations must hire private garbage collectors.

Bernice Thomason listens to instructions from Edison Coldiron as she prepares to take a sewing test. Behind him is a row of sewing machines where other volunteers are testing job applicants as part of a labor survey for the Rockcastle Multi-County Authority and a Cincinnati-based company.

Volunteers Interview Hundreds For Garment Factory Survey

Women by the hundreds are being interviewed and tested for sewing skills at Harry Sparks Vocational School this week. Local volunteers and paid consultants are screening the applicants as part of a study of Mt. Vernon's suitability as a location for a garment factory.

The factory, which is a large company based in Cincinnati, Ohio, should let Mt. Vernon people know by next week whether it will build a plant here, according to Larry Portnoff, director of Unified Management Consultants of St. Louis and Atlanta. The garment factory is as well as "the local community" is paying Unified Management Consultants to take charge of the interviewing.

Mr. Portnoff would not comment on Mt. Vernon's chances of getting the factory, except to say it looked encouraging. "On the first day of testing, however, only about half of the women scheduled for interviews had shown up, and this was not a good sign, Mr. Portnoff said. He said that if Mt. Vernon could prove that a ready labor force were available, the factory would build here and no testing of other communities would take place.

Over 2500 women answered advertisements placed by the Rockcastle Multi-County Industrial Authority last month seeking workers for the proposed factory. The advertisements asked for applicants under age 45 years, with at least a high school education, and residence within 25 miles of the city.

Local volunteers scheduled the applicants to come to the vocational school at a specific time between Monday and Thursday.

The applicants were first given one-page application asking job history, state of health, personal references and so forth. Then applicants took a test on an electric sewing machine that required them to "sew" a straight line of stitching. (No needles and threads were used for safety reasons.)

Mr. Portnoff said that about 70% of applicants can pass the sewing test and that women over fifty years tend to fail more often.

Bill James, chairman of the Industrial Authority, said that the garment factory would be built by June, 1979, if its directors decide to proceed. Volunteers who coordinated the project were Julie Harris, Mary Craig, Billy and Sandy Dorell, Jillian Collette, Brodhead Mayor Elizabeth Mullins, and Livingston Mayor Bertie Rice. Other volunteers included: Pat Hines, Jennie Singleton, Elizabeth Stokes, Willa Chestnut, Iris Young, Joyce Baker, Nancy Mullins, Rachel James, Bessie St. Clair, Mollie Bryant, Nivra Senters, Anne Mullins, Marjorie Johnson, Lucille Ponder, Mrs. Dell Ponder, Mildred Osborne, Caroline Huffines, Margie Harris, Louise Phillips, Lela Thomas, Rose Baker, Martha Eversole, Helen

Highway Department Asks County To Take Over Road Upkeep

By Jane Kuntz
Highway department officials told the Rockcastle County Fiscal Court that $458,467 has been budgeted for road maintenance in this area for fiscal year 1979-80. Then the same officials said that they would like to see the Court take over maintenance of local gravel and blacktop roads from the state starting in July.

At a regular meeting of the Court, Nov. 8, John Sturgill, district engineer with the Department of Transportation, said, "If you take over the roads, we will just turn them over to you and supply the money."

The money is budgeted as follows: $142,000 in County Aid funds; $315,556; Rural Secondary program; and $912.00 Energy Road fund. Mr. Sturgill said the $142,000 would be available to the Court if it voted to take over the 94 miles of blacktoped and 44 miles of gravel roads. He said the county could start by taking over only the gravel roads at first.

The reason we are asking the counties to do this work is that our maintenance work is getting too heavy, and we don't have time to do it all," he said. Future legislation may require that the counties do the work, he said.

The magistrates voted to consider the idea. They named the following roads to the Rural Secondary Program: District 1- CR 1293 - Freedom Church; District 2- Sand Hill Church; District 3- CR 1287 - Carl Brown; District 4 - CR 1056 - Old State; District 5 - CR 1001 - Cove Branch.

Electric Bill Notice

All bills for electric service rendered in November 1978 and thereafter will have most of the fuel charge included in the base rate according to Lee Roy Cole, president and general manager of Jackson County R.E.C.C. This change has been made pursuant to an Order of the Public Service Commission of Kentucky. The change will not affect the total cost of electric service. It simply transfers part of it from the fuel charge into the base rate. The Commission will continually review the fuel charge and is empowered to make changes as necessary. There will continue to be a fuel charge or credit depending upon the cost of coal.

J.R. Garland, an assistant district engineer, said that some funds were available through the Federal Aid-Off program amounting to enough money to cover work on one road. Magistrates Anne Burdette, J.R. Cromer and Joe Clark picked numbers out of a hat to determine which road would get the maintenance money. Joe Clark drew the right number, and he chose Cove Branch Road with Trace Branch as his second choice.

In other business, the county has received $5,657 from the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection for surface mining activities. The Court allotted it as follows: $3,000 to road maintenance; $2,600 to miscellaneous and reserve fund; $57... to court expenses.

Judge-Executive Hubert Thacker announced that $1250 had been received for the Public Defender fund.

Industrial Authority Considers Five Bids For Park's Water

The Rockcastle Multi-county Industrial Authority is considering five bids from construction companies for the installation of water and sewer lines to the industrial park site on Hwy. 150, two miles west of Mt. Vernon. It will take about two weeks to decide which company will get the contract, according to Bill James, chairman of the Authority. He said that administrators at the Farmers Home Administration, which is providing some financing, will be consulted.

The bids were as follows. First bid is for installation of the water mains only; second is for total project. The Allen Co., Inc., Winchester: $176,127 and $382,519; Walker & Walker, Inc., Berea: $157,174 and $323,740; G & G Coal & Energy Corp., London: $130,234 and $278,411; Mays Construction Co., Williamsburg: $108,851 and $248,557; Miles Construction, London: $102,855 and $247,195; Highland Contracting Co., Inc., of Elizabethtown bid only on the water mains: $130,511.

Howard K. Bell, the consulting engineers for the Industrial Authority had estimated the cost of the project at $150,000.

Twenty Rockcastle Tobacco Producers Take Part in Experimental Baling Method

Twenty-two tobacco farmers in Rockcastle County are taking part in a federal experiment by selling their tobacco in baled form, according to Lee Durham, county extension agent. They will be baling over 150,000 pounds.

Instead of hand-tying the tobacco, the farmer put the leaves into a wooden box and compresses them into sixty-pound bales.

Farmers had the opportunity to sign up for the program in September. Sign-ups ranged from none in many counties to 297 in Shelby, according to Mr. Durham.

One farmer who did sign up said that he has saved about half his time by using the baling method. Harold Ballinger said that the baling method also saved space and that he liked the new method.

Mr. Durham demonstrated equipment and techniques of baling in front of a crowd of farmers and members of the Future Farmers Association at Rockcastle County High School last week. Helping him was Seldon Hale, Laurel County extension agent.

Among the tools necessary are cotton twine, the bale press and baling boxes. Mr. Durham told how to make the press and the boxes and where to buy the twine.

The farmers who are participating in the federal experiment will have government price supports and grades. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, when he announced the program, said baled tobacco will be eligible for the same grade loan rates as comparable grades of hand-tied leaf.

A farmer could apply for a quota equal to 5 percent of his total quota of 1,500 lbs., whichever is greater. Special

Legislative Report

By Rep. Harold DeMarcus

The Department of Agriculture is under the direction of the Commissioner of Agriculture, who, by constitutional provision, must be elected and cannot succeed himself. The department consists of six main divisions: (1) markets; (2) livestock sanitation; (3) commodity distribution; (4) weights and measures; (5) seeds and fairs; and (6) pests and noxious weed control.

The Division of Markets cooperates with federal authorities in inspecting and labeling products such as fruits, vegetables, eggs and dairy products. This division sets standards for grading and handling commodities, encourages the establishment of public markets, and assists farmers in setting up farm cooperatives and markets. It also gathers and distributes market statistics and market news and promotes the consumption of Kentucky grown products.

The Division of Livestock Sanitation, under the direction of the state veterinarian, is charged with the responsibility of enforcing measures necessary to prevent, control or eradicate communicable disease among livestock. It is charged with the responsibility of implementing and operating the state-federal cooperative meat inspection program.

The Division of Commodity Distribution channels surplus foods donated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to eligible schools, charitable institutions, child care centers, summer camps and welfare recipients.

The Division of Weights and Measures inspect commercial truck scales, small capacity scales, small and large capacity meters, tobacco auctions, bulk milk tanks, and liquefied petroleum tanks. It licenses stockyards and sees that they are properly bonded and that weighmen are bonded. They inspect packaged commodities to see that the net weight corresponds to the weight represented on the package. This division also licenses and regulates businesses engaged in pest control, such as termite exterminations.

The Division of Livestock Shows and Fairs was established by the legislature in 1968 to promote the exhibition of Kentucky products and to supplement the agricultural education program of the extension service and vocational agricultural education. The division sponsors purebred livestock shows and sales of various types and local agricultural fairs.

The Division of Pest and Noxious Weed Control carries on educational work relative to the control and eradication of pests and noxious weeds and assists in their eradication in areas where they become a serious menace.

In addition to the work of the divisions outlined, the department administers the egg marketing law and dog law. Also, the attached Milk Marketing Commission tries to preserve a healthy competitive system in the sale of milk, cottage cheese and frozen dairy products.

Another program administered by the Department of Agriculture is their student loan division. These are federally insured state loans which are given to boys and girls whose family is in the farming vocation. These loans are given to families with low adjusted incomes and are to be used to attend accredited colleges and universities.

King of Movie Directors

by Lynn Evans

David W. Griffith, the Kentuckian who was a pioneer motion picture producer and director during the early years of the 20th century, created techniques for silent pictures that are still being used in the movie industry today.

He was born in La Grange, Kentucky, on Jan. 22, 1875, to Col. Jacob Wark Griffith and Margaret Oglesby Griffith. At 16 he started working on a local newspaper and as a correspondent for the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Griffith was bitten by the acting bug early in life and played minor roles in many stock companies. He wrote several plays that were flops and finally decided to try his hand at movies. After an unimpressive attempt as an actor, he switched over to directing in 1908.

Most of his work was done at Biograph Studios. It was there he created his most well-received motion picture, "Birth of a Nation," an epic of the Civil War and Reconstruction. His father had been an officer of the Confederacy and his family had been ruined by the fall of the South, therefore, his point of view was biased. The film was filled with great sweep and movement; and, in many of his other productions, it brought to the screen many important philosophical and historical themes, social questions and prophecies. His battle-scene techniques were copied the world over.

Griffith never used a script in his shooting; everything was done "from his mental notes."

He experimented with and was credited with creating or improving many innovations such as closeups, vignettes, soft focus, back-lighting, fade-in, fade-out, night photography and the moving camera.

David W. Griffith

During his career he made nearly 500 films, many of them done in a week or less. He lengthened the standard 1,000-foot film under protest from his bosses and made the first four-reel, "Judith of Bethulia."

He rejected the plump female stars of the time, looking instead for slender young girls with classic features. Actors and actresses he discovered for the screen who are best remembered would include Mary Pickford, Dorothy Arzner, Gish, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., Mae Marsh, Lionel Barrymore and Mack Sennett.

During his career, he spent $23,000,000 producing and directing films. These pictures grossed $80,000,000.

He was not a good businessman, but in 1919 he formed United Artists Corporation with Douglas, Fairbanks, Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin. Unfortunately, he sold his partnership in 1933.

His many failures in the latter years of his career came from a failure to keep up with the times, spending lavish sums of money on sets, falling behind shooting schedules, producing films that did not have popular appeal and bad business advisors.

Griffith had no children from either of his two marriages, both of which ended in divorce.

His last years were spent in relative obscurity in Hollywood. He came out of seclusion only to reminisce with the group of people he had worked with during his days at the top.

He died at the age of 73 of a cerebral hemorrhage and was brought back home to be buried in La Grange.

The blood of both proud families had already darkened the shape-dappled mosses of the Pike County forests when Johnse Hatfield first saw Roseanna McCoy. It was election day in the year 1880. Johnse was nineteen years old, and Roseanna twenty-one when first their glances met—and before that day's sun would set, they would become lovers, pledged to marry immediately. Little they knew then the horrors their ill-starred love would bring. Anse Hatfield would not permit his son to marry a hated McCoy, and Ranel McCoy was outraged that his daughter was living with a Hatfield without benefit of marriage. Ranel vowed to ride across the Tug Fork into West Virginia and bring his daughter home. To avoid the battle that was certain to ensue, Roseanna returned to Kentucky, but Johnse was inconsolable, and followed his heart to Pike County. He was captured by Roseanna's father and brothers. Fearing for her lover's life, Roseanna took a horse from a neighbor's pasture, and rode without bridle or saddle at utmost speed through the darkness to Johnse's home. The Hatfields rescued Johnse at gunpoint, but from that hour, the feud grew ever more bloody. Roseanna bore Johnse a daughter, but never returned to her lover, and their child died in infancy. Blaming her love of Johnse for the dreadful war that killed dozens in both their families, Roseanna grew wretched and wan, and at age thirty died, of no apparent reason other than sorrow.

KENTUCKY AFIELD

By Jack Wilson

Two Bracken County men who pled guilty to deer poaching charges have been fined $500 each, given six-month suspended jail terms, placed on two-year probation and denied hunting and fishing privileges for two years.

The two could also be made to pay for the deer they illegally killed and could also lose all equipment used in the poaching activities, including a 1976 four-wheel-drive pickup truck. A hearing will be held October 31 before District Judge Robert L. Gallenstein to determine what equipment will be declared contraband and whether restitution must be made for the deer. The current value of a white-tailed deer is $220.

If either is convicted of any fish and game law violation within the probationary period, he could be made to serve the six month jail sentence.

William H. Sifers, 27, and Buford W. Smith, 38, were arrested Sept. 30 by conservation officers, James H. Smith, Joe Wilson and Atlas Lynn when the officers observed the two men jackknifing. A nine-point buck was discovered in the back of the pickup truck.

The sentences Smith and Smithers received were the most severe handed down so far this year. The 1978 Kentucky General Assembly increased its maximum fine for deer poaching to $1,000 provided for jail terms of up to one year and allowed the courts to revoke hunting privileges for up to three years. Existing laws allowed the courts to confiscate any or all equipment, including boats or land vehicles, used in game law violations.

Wildlife officials believe that these stiffer penalties will serve as effective deterrents to deer poaching, an illegal activity which biologists say cuts deeply into Kentucky's deer population and is directly responsible for many areas of the state being closed to deer hunting.

"With a few more judgements like this," says Fish and Wildlife Department Commissioner Carl E. Kays, "poachers will be getting the message that they are engaged in a serious criminal activity with serious legal consequences."

"The days are long past," Kays adds, "when violating fish and wildlife laws was viewed as some kind of 'game' between the poacher and the conservation officer. Our men know that poaching is a major offense and I would like to commend Judge Gallenstein and many other judges around Kentucky who are handing down sentences which can be of positive value in deterring future poaching."

Fireplace Logs May Be Source of Insects

To offset the problem of rising heat costs and at the same time add to the romantic atmosphere of home, many of you may have decided to use the fireplace again. In the fireplace logs you stacked up, you may also have a supply of millipedes, sowbugs, crickets and other hibernating creatures at no extra cost. When you bring the wood in and place it on the hearth for ready use, the free riders may also be brought in. In the warmth of your home the free riders resume their activity and may become a nuisance as they wander out of the wood. To avoid this problem, do not bring in more wood at a time than you will use in a few hours. Do not try to rid your wood of insects with insecticide sprays. This could make the smoke from burning logs toxic.

Garden Soil Amendments

A number of questions crop up from time to time on materials which may or may not be added to the garden to improve soil structure. The following are some of those which may be commonly available in eastern Kentucky.

Mature is beneficial in supplying nitrogen and other nutrients to the garden. Generally cattle, swine or horse manures containing straw are best. Poultry and sheep manure are higher in nitrogen and should be worked into the soil during late summer or fall. Fresh manure should be worked in during the fall, do not apply to the garden before planting time in the spring.

Wood ashes supply potassium and small amounts of other nutrients to the soil. They also make the soil alkaline so don't use if the soil pH is above 7.0. Have the soil tested if you're in doubt about the pH.

Leaves are good sources of organic matter for garden soil but should be either composted or turned under during the fall. Oak leaves have a slightly acid reaction during decomposition or composting but this slight amount of acid release will in no way affect the garden. Again, periodic soil tests are recommended for pH.

Sawdust and other wood shavings are most beneficial to soil building when allowed to age or compost for at least a year. The finer sawdust you can find to add to the soil, the better. Fresh sawdust will fix up soil nitrogen. It can be worked in during the fall and allowed to age that way. A nitrogen fertilizer, such as ammonium nitrate should be added at rate of about 1/2 cup per bushel of sawdust or 25 pound sper 1000 square feet of garden for every inch of sawdust added. The fertilizer should be sprinkled on top of the sawdust prior to turning it under.

For further information or for literature on constructing a compost pile, contact your County Extension Office.

Grain Storage

Each fall we have trouble with stored grain pests in our on-farm storage. Prebanning practices have a great deal to do with successfully avoiding stored grain pests. Here are a few tips for successful on-farm storage.

1. Clean your bins thoroughly several days before using.

2. Never put newly harvested grain into a dirty bin or a bin containing old grain.

3. In cleaning bins, get into all cracks and crevices and clean up the area just below and around the bin.

4. After the bin is thoroughly cleaned, the walls, floor and areas around and below the bin should be sprayed thoroughly with malathion. Spray to the point that the spray begins to run off.

5. Do not spray for stored grain for 1000 square feet of surface use 1/2 pint of 57 E.C. malathion in 2 gallons of water.

RUN AWAYS

Two juveniles under fifteen years of age were apprehended near Benfro, Va. Friday night, and on Saturday afternoon, Bill Kirby, county jailer, said that the children's parents drove from Alabama to take them home. They had been hitch-hiking along the interstate, when state troopers picked them up.

Be Careful of Strenuous Exercise This Winter

Every winter many unnecessary deaths occur because people, especially older persons, engage in more strenuous physical activity than their bodies can stand. The Kentucky Division of Disaster and Emergency Services offers some advice about avoiding overexertion and dressing properly for winter weather.

Cold weather, itself, without any physical exercise, especially exercise that you are not accustomed to, such as shoveling snow, pushing an automobile, or even walking fast and far, you may be risking a heart attack, a stroke or damage to your body.

The most important times to be aware of this danger and to avoid overexertion is during winter storms, such as heavy snows and blizzards.

The manner in which you dress can be very important in the winter months. Try always to be aware of the weather forecast to avoid being caught unprepared by a winter storm. If you spend much time outdoors, wear several layers of loose-fitting, lightweight, warm clothing rather than a single layer of thick clothing. Mittens are warmer than gloves. Use a hood to protect your head and face, and cover your mouth to protect your lungs from the extremely cold air.

The Division of Disaster and Emergency Services notes that the past two winters in Kentucky have been quite severe and urges citizens to avoid overexertion.

Children Can Be Paddled in School

A teacher or school official can paddle a student for such infractions as talking in class, according to an opinion from the Attorney General's office. "Irrespective of whether one is an opponent or proponent of corporal punishment, the legal fact is that corporal punishment is alive, and well and constitutionally acceptable." Assistant Attorney General Robert Chenoweth wrote in an opinion to Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Cunningham of Shelbyville. The Cunninghams had requested an attorney general's opinion following an incident in which their 15-year-old son had refused to accept a paddling as an infraction for raking in class.

Chenoweth, in the letter acknowledged that the Office of the Attorney General had not looked at the issue since the U.S. Supreme Court reviewed and approved using the paddle.

In the letter Chenoweth said that while it is not against the law for a teacher or school official to paddle a youngster there should be consideration of guidelines by the local school board governing the use of such punishment.

Get Ready Now For Severe Winter Weather

After fighting through two severe winters, most Kentuckians should now begin thinking about preparations for this coming winter season and the hazards produced by winter storms, according to Wibur Buntin, executive director of the state Division of Disaster and Emergency Services.

Buntin noted that one of the most serious problems faced last winter was that some Kentuckians, after experiencing blizzard conditions across the state, were isolated at home for several days. "This year," Buntin said, "let's hope people are preparing for this type of winter storm."

Here are a few precautions that could mean life or death in coming months.

Keep an adequate supply of heating fuel on hand and use it sparingly during a prolonged cold wave. Last winter storm conditions prevented many fuel companies from delivering supplies for weeks at a time. If necessary, conserve fuel by keeping the house cooler than usual, or by closing off some rooms temporarily.

It is advisable to have available some kind of emergency heating equipment and fuel so at least one room of the house can be kept warm enough to be livable. This could be a camp stove, or an adequate supply of wood or coal for a fireplace. Remember, if the furnace is controlled by a thermostat and the electricity is cut off by a storm, the furnace probably would not operate.

Many rural areas of Kentucky were faced with this type of problem last winter.

Stock any emergency supply of food and water, as well as emergency cooking equipment such as a camp stove. Most of this food should be of the type that does not require refrigeration or cooking.

Make sure you have a battery-powered radio and extra batteries on hand so if the electric power is cut off, you can get emergency information and advice broadcast by local authorities will still be available. Flashlights and lanterns could also be needed.

Keep on hand the tools and equipment needed to fight a fire. Also, be certain that all family members know how to take precautions that would prevent fire at such a time, when the help of a fire department may not be available.

Buntin added that last year almost every county in the commonwealth was affected by winter storms in some manner. "By taking a few simple precautions," he added, "you will help protect your family and yourself against winter hazards."

can save from 25 to 40 percent of their time and labor costs during stripping by using a loose-leaf package.

About six out of seven burley growers who wrote to the Department of Agriculture last summer said they supported the loose leaf program.

Growers were in solid support of setting identical price support bands for the burley, in the Department of Agriculture's survey. By contrast, three tobacco companies, including R.J. Reynolds, told the department the price guarantees on the bales should be lower.

Rockcastle County has about 4500 tobacco farmers who produce more than 3,345,000 pounds per year, worth over $4 million.

VOLUME 90 - NUMBER 10

Second Section

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1978

With 14 seconds left in the first half and the Rockets down 8-0, Todd Fields sacked the Knox Central quarterback and he coughed the ball up. Kenny Johnson, No. 80, then picked the ball up and ran it 30 yards into the end zone for a Rockets' TD. Walker Browning is also shown in the above photo giving "protection" pursuit. The Rockets try for the extra point was no good and this touchdown ended the scoring in the game for both sides as the final score was 8-6. The Rockets did put on a beautiful goal line stand in the closing minutes of the game. Knox Central was threatening seriously and had the ball 4th and inches from the goal line; however, the ball carrier was met at the line of scrimmage by Steve Mitchell and Mike Arnold and was unable to get the ball across. (Photos by Kenneth Pillion)

Walter Browning, No. 81, was converted into an end in the last two Rockets' games of the season after Keith Russell was unable to play because of illness. In the above photo, Walter goes after a pass.

Todd Fields, shown here giving pursuit to a Knox Central ball carrier, had his best game of the season Friday night, amassing 15 individual tackles in the game. The Rockets lost four games this year by 2 points or less and wound up with a 4 and 7 season.

inventory data collected by the Division's Service Forester to generate both a short term and long term management plan." Duane Bristow said, "This plan sets up cutting schedules for each tract of a total woodland ownership and predicts volumes to be harvested and future timber values. It can be an invaluable aid in making management decisions. Annual management costs and stand improvement measures are also detailed so that the landowner can determine how much profit he will be able to make and now soon."

"Such a detailed analysis has not previously been available in this area," Bristow continued, "although it is used statewide in Alabama." The service is free to any Southeast Kentucky woodland owner. Superstars Win

4-H Variety Show

A 1950's "American Bandstand" won out over some disco dancing at the annual 4-H Variety Show last Thursday night at Roundstone School. An audience of more than 250 persons watched the Mt. Vernon Sixth Grade 4-H Club win first prize with their version of the popular television program. They simulated guitar playing and jitter-bugged to several rock numbers.

In the Specialty Acts category, "It's A Hard Knocks Life" won top honors for Jamie and Jennifer Cox, DeeDee Thompson and Karen Miller. The catchy little song told the story of life in an orphanage and the girls sang and danced as they scrubbed floors.

It was a second-time win for Jennifer and Jamie who performed last year at the state 4-H variety show after winning in the county and region.

Second place was "Funny Farm" by the Quail Quackers, who performed a skit based on television's Hee Haw program. Dana Singleton won second in the Specialty Acts category for a pantomime of "You Life Up My Life."

Competition was particularly intense this year. Cheryl Witt, 4-H county agent said. Judges Linda Whitt, Clyde Linville and Greg Stephens told the audience that it was very difficult to choose among the acts because they were all of high caliber.

Kentucky Afield

By John Wilson

The first phase of Kentucky's gun deer season is almost upon us, and by hunters should have bought their deer permits, studied this year's regulations, obtained permission to hunt (written permission if they use rifles) and scouted their hunting area.

With the tip of a sharp knife, make a slot in each chestnut. In a 3 quart sauce pan, cover chestnuts with water and place over high heat. Heat to boiling; cook 1 minute. Remove from heat.

Remove a few chestnuts at a time from the boiling water; shell and skin. Coarsely chop the nuts and set aside. Cook celery, onions, salt, thyme, marjoram and pepper over medium heat in hot butter or margarine for about 10 minutes or until the vegetables are tender. Remove from heat and stir in chestnuts and bread crumbs; mix well. Makes about enough stuffing (11 cups) for one 14-16 pound turkey.

Helpful Hints

To remove a chewing gum stain, harden the gum with ice and scrape off with a dull knife. Sponge with dry cleaning solvent. Repeat if necessary to remove gum.

Patterns made for knit fabrics have less ease and few darts. These patterns follow for the stretch of the knits themselves. That's why patterns marked "for knits only" usually won't work successfully with woven fabrics.

Use nylon-coil zippers for knit fabrics. These zippers are more flexible than metal zippers. To prevent puckering later, shrink the zipper tape by soaking it in hot water for a few minutes. Air-dry and press lightly.

Thoroughly wash and rinse, washable garments treated with solvent-type spot removers before putting the garments into the dryer. Solvent-type spot removers are flammable and when heated could cause an explosion.

deared the coming of the gun deer season. Because of the misdeeds of a few sloth hunters who trespass, block gates, cut fences, washphone shoot livestock or endanger human life by careless gun handling, more and more land is being placed off limits to deer hunters.

I live in a rural area myself, an area with a high deer population which attracts many hunters each year. And every season I can count on at least one or two telephone calls from neighbors with problems—the most common one being trespassing.

I also hear the many post-season complaints and see, every year just before the gun deer season open, the posted signs go up. These signs and these complaints aren't symptoms of anti-hunting sentiment—most of the people involved are hunters themselves—but they are serious indicators that hunters need to give more consideration to those on whose land they hunt and to work actively to eliminate the sloth hunter from their ranks.

It's a natural human reaction to condemn an entire group for the actions of a few. And deer hunters, with their blaze orange outfits and high-powered rifles, are a highly visible group. The majority are law abiding and considerate, but they aren't remembered or talked about. The one who does get noticed is the sloth and the impression he leaves behind isn't a "pretty" one. I shouldn't repeat the cliché about the one bad apple, but it certainly applies in this case.

It is an act of the grossest irresponsibility to tolerate the sloth hunter. Those who witness his acts and do nothing about it have hurt their own good name and that of all hunters.

We all owe it to ourselves and to our sport to report the sloth either to the landowner involved or to a conservation officer. If he is a friend, let him know that his actions will quickly make him an ex-friend. If he is a sportsman's club member, consider club action to revoke his membership. Peer pressure of this sort can be a very effective deterrent.

And above all, be a careful, considerate and polite hunter yourself. You are a guest on someone else's property; so conduct yourself with the same decorum as if you had been invited into the living room instead of onto the backcountry. A little common courtesy will pay dividends in the future.

Attend Franchise School

Pete and Minnie Lee Stamper, managers and Hal Smith, owner of Renfro Valley KOA campgrounds, recently completed a four-day franchise training seminar, held September 25-28 in Nashville, Tennessee on the Belmont College campus. KOA University courses range from restroom renovation through accounting procedures, campground standards, advertising and promotion, proper merchandising and layout, and telephone and registration desk professionalism. At a final night banquet at the Nashville KOA campground, graduates received a management pin and diploma awarding them a degree in "Campgroundology."

While the Systems' more than 800 campgrounds are franchised under the KOA, Inc. logo and trademark, most of them are individually owned and operated. Renfro Valley KOA offers complete camping facilities in a beautiful setting overlooking Renfro Valley. Quiet and peaceful sites invite you to this area of country music and folklore attractions.

room temperature. But if refrigerated in loosely covered containers or in ventilated plastic bags, they will keep for several months.

Freeze shelled, blanched chestnuts whole or chopped for longer storage. Pack them in freezer containers, close tightly and freeze immediately at 0 degrees or lower. Use in cooking without defrosting.

To blanch, place shelled nuts in boiling water and let stand for 2 minutes. Remove few at a time, cool slightly, then peel with a paring knife. If nuts are difficult to peel, return them to the hot water for 1 to 2 minutes.

Roasting also will loosen the skins of chestnuts. Slash through the shells on the flat side of the nuts. Place cut sides up on a baking sheet. Roast in a 400 degree oven until tender for about 20 minutes. Insert fork through the cut in the shell to test tenderness. Remove shells and skins while nuts are still warm.

Chestnuts not only add a delightful flavor, they have fewer calories than other nuts. Use them as a snack or add them to different recipes.

There are only 53 calories in each ounce of chestnuts or 80 calories in ¼ cup of whole chestnuts. Roasted peanuts provide 165 calories for each ounce and 210 calories for ¼ cup. Black walnuts have 180 calories for each ounce and 195 calories in ¼ cup of chopped nuts.

Here's a traditional way to use chestnuts.

How to Store Chestnuts

Since chestnuts have a low oil and high carbohydrate content, don't store them like you would other nuts. Refrigerate them at 35 to 40 degrees under most conditions shortly after harvesting and you'll prevent them from getting dry and hard.

Chestnuts may be placed in plastic bags with damp or nearly dry peat moss and then refrigerated. They have a high water content and are perishable at

Louis Ison Fund Formation Announced

Formation of a scholarship fund for graduate students at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture has been announced by Kentucky Farm Bureau.

Called the Louis F. Ison Memorial Scholarship, the fund honors the former KFB president and producer of the famous County tobacco and livestock farmer.

Guidelines for the fund's operation call for recipients to be members of Farm Bureau who have earned undergraduate degrees from a Kentucky college or university.

The funds will be administered by the KFB Scholarship Foundation, a non-profit corporation which currently handles some $7,000 annually in five college-diploma grants.

Wade's Plan to Put Economy in Government to Control Inflation

Wade stressed, however, Farm Bureau's opposition to mandatory controls on salaries and prices, a move recommended by Meany.

Inflation Up Costs, Boosts Farm Exports

While a devalued dollar may boost farm export sales, current inflationary forces are pushing up farm production costs and eroding the farmer's purchasing power.

That assessment of inflation's impact on agriculture was offered recently by Bob Wade, Kentucky Farm Bureau president.

On a related subject, Wade said, President Carter's call for voluntary restraints on prices and wages will probably go unheeded, and he predicted that the president would seek mandatory controls by spring. Wade said the main flaw in Carter's program is that he's trying to plug the little holes in the economy—wage levels and business profits—but he's leaving the big gap in the middle, the high level of government spending.

"We've got to put some economy in government to control inflation," he said. "The United States Government can't be printing its way out of its financial trouble by spending more money than it takes in."

Wade said that Carter's voluntary plan to work. "Somebody's got to volunteer," Union Chief George Meany's denunciation of wage and price restraints was "exactly what I thought he'd say. That man's never been overly cooperative."

Wade stressed, however, Farm Bureau's opposition to mandatory controls on salaries and prices, a move recommended by Meany. "I'm not for them personally until somebody shows me they'll work. They would have to apply to everybody's pay, as well as the price of millions and millions of products."

The dollar's fall in overseas money markets could boost interest among foreign buyers in this year's burley crop. Wade said. The dollar's value has fallen by as much as 60 percent against some foreign currencies during the past several years, and U.S. products such as tobacco, have become cheaper for foreign buyers.

Report South With Questions Livestock Pricing

The president of the American Farm Bureau is urging release of a USDA report asking to question the mechanisms used in establishing prices paid by packers for meat animals.

Allan Grant said Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland should release the report earlier this year. They told a KFB Group recently that they would be looking competitively for both hand-fed and baled burley when the auction floors open here later this month.

Bergland reportedly ordered the report be kept secret until November 15 to allow for revisions by its authors. A USDA task force, to fill "serious gaps of information."

The study conducted over the past several months, has been in response to complaints from members of Congress, farmers, and other widely used market reports that indirectly establish bid prices for livestock, do not accurately reflect market conditions.

A major criticism of the Yellow Sheet, used by almost every livestock buyer in the country, is that the prices are taken from just three or four of the nation's largest packers. Most Yellow Sheet price quotes, according to marketing sources in Louisville, are for stock that are either overweight or overly fat, animals that "are not the most acceptable." Another report says 60 percent of Yellow Sheet transactions between packing plants in different cities owned by the same parent firm. Such sales are less likely to reflect competitive pricing.

Use of such market reports as the Yellow Sheet in meat-price setting makes "price takers" out of farmers, according to Jack Crocker, executive secretary of the Kentucky Livestock Producers Association.

Crocker noted that the Yellow Sheet quotes slaughter prices for cattle, but indirectly affects prices paid for all stock, including feeder calves, to Kentucky producers.

Bible Lesson

"Praise Ye The Lord." Praise God in his sanctuary; praise him in the firmament of his power; praise him for his mighty acts; praise him according to his excellent greatness; praise him with the sound of the trumpet; praise him with the psaltery (lute) and harp.

Shout and sing with organ and strings; praise him with stringed instruments and organs. Praise him upon the high sounding cymbals. Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord. Praise the Lord, O Psalm 150. King James version.

It is clear from this Psalm in the Bible that one of the ways God can be praised or worshipped is with music. Music produced by the human voice, by musical instruments such as the harp, tube, cymbals, etc., is the book of Psalms in a song book. We have only the words to these songs today but in ancient Israel these Psalms or songs were sung with musical accompaniment. One such as mentioned in the 150th Psalm. There was much worship at the temple in ancient Israel that involved the use of music.

The apostle, Paul, in urging Christians to praise God in song, follows a similar pattern, as stated in Colossians 3:16. "Teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord."

With an subject, such as music, the best source to go for accurate information is the Bible. The worship of God, remains the Bible. Address any questions you may have to: Weekly Bible Lesson, Raymond Schneider, P.O. Box 706, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky 40056.

Short Rows

By Nevyle Shackleford

In direct opposition to man who plants most of his crops in the spring of the year, Mother Nature plants most of hers in the fall. And, many are the methods she uses to disseminate the seed.

Take for instance the witchhazel. As the seed pod of this plant ripens, the drying tissues contract at different rates and internal strains are set up. Then, there comes a point in the ripening process when the strain becomes too much and the pod explodes, sending the seed as far away as 20 feet. This may not be far, but it is far enough to prevent the overcrowding that would likely occur if all the seed fell straight down from the bush.

Then the seeds of some plants like bloodroot, foxglove and others are carried away by ants and deposited in the ground for later use as food. Some of these seed are never found again by the ants and germinate and grow.

Many other plants are distributed by birds and animals. The fruit of the cocklebur is covered with hooked spines which catch in the coats of fur-bearing animals and are carried for miles away before being detached. The seeds of such fruits as apple, cherry, dogwood, pokeweed, and dozens of others, are protected by resistant husks and pass undigested through the food canals of birds and animals that eat them. These seeds, too, are often deposited far away from the source.

Movements of wind and water carry seeds to great distances. Charles Darwin showed that many seeds can float on salt water for weeks and even months and germinate. By ocean currents the vegetation of other areas bordering the sea have spread to great regions of the Tropics. It is both probable and possible, too, that seeds of inland plants washed down rivers stop in crevices of sticks and logs, have crossed the sea and colonized other countries. The winged fruit of the maple, pine,

Johnny was 6 years old on October 24th and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis McClure. Kim was two on November 2nd and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Doan, all of Mt. Vernon.

William Leon Mason, Jr. celebrated his 2nd birthday Saturday, November 4, 1978. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Mason and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mason and Mr. and Mrs. David Stewart all of Orlando. Great grandparents are George Mason of Orlando and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Falin of Pine Hill, and Mrs. Mary Bell Bond of Orlando. He is the great great grandson of Mrs. Maggie Falin of Broodhead.

Funeral services were held Monday, at the Ransdell Funeral Home Chapel.

and as an often volpines for long distances as gusts of wind lift and scatter. Still more effective are the tufts of loss that crown the seeds of dandelion, milkweed, thistle and others. These seeds are sustained in the air by the gentle currents and on this flow of wind, drift far, far away to the shores of everywhere and nowhere. Besides such wanderings, the travels of Marco Polo pale into insignificance. Mother Nature has a wonderful and practical way of getting things done.

General VS. Limited Partnership

Buying commercial real estate differs in one respect from buying a family home. The time and opportunity may be right to buy a piece of commercial property, but one buyer may not be able to raise enough money. In this case, additional money may be found by forming a partnership with one or more other persons who will share the financial load.

There are two kinds of partnership arrangements. The general partnership and the limited partnership. The basic difference is in the degree of financial responsibility. In a general partnership, all partners share in profits and losses. There is no limit of liability. With the limited partnership, one partner must be a general partner, but the limited partner's liability is limited to the amount he has invested. Be sure your lawyer advises you in this area for your own financial and legal well-being.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at Ford Realty & Auction Co., Inc., Mt. Vernon, Ph. 256-4545. We're here to help!

Shirts are among the "basics" in your baby's wardrobe. They protect baby against drafts and absorb perspiration. There are three styles, each with specific advantages.

* Snap-on shirts are best for the very young infant. The wrap-around styling makes it easy to dress baby with a minimum of fuss.

* Once baby has learned to sit, pull-on shirts are convenient. They have easy on-and-off neck openings, so they can be drawn over baby's head quickly without catching on tiny ears or noses.

* Sleeveless shirts may be worn as a summer top with a diaper, or under other sleeveless clothing year-round.

All Gerber baby shirts are made of 100% cotton, woven to retain their shape wash after wash. Economical Gerber baby shirts are available in supermarket baby departments or wherever babywear is sold.
