Burley Buying Changes Cause Grower Concern

Reports that tobacco companies are refusing to buy top quality burley, preferring instead the cheaper grades of upper stalk tobacco and even some offerings labeled nondescript, are causing concern among farmers as the current burley marketing season near its close.

Some officials blame increased imports of cheap foreign-grown burley for the cigarette makers' reluctance to bid near the $1.40 mark for so-called "fancy" tobacco. Others say the contract selling of excess tobacco, or burley produced over the current year's allotment, has given buyers an alternative method of obtaining tobacco, which may be easier and cheaper in the long run.

Both factors may have played a role in sending large amounts of this year's top-quality burley in the burley "pool", says S.J. Stokes, Jr., tobacco chairman for Kentucky Farm Bureau. The Fayette County grower says Farm Bureau is asking the U.S. Department of Agriculture to outlaw contract selling of excess tobacco to warehouses. The other issue, that of increased imports, may lead to a meeting later this year between Farm Bureau officials and tobacco buying interests, Stokes added.

Stokes said domestic cigarette manufacturers have shunned top grades of lower-talk burley during the entire auction season, buying instead the "chocolate-colored red" leaves, from the upper one-third of the stalk. That tobacco brought between $1.35 and $1.39 during the major part of the season, and is still "bringing a good price," Stokes said.

The trend away from the lower-stalked tobacco is nothing new, he noted. It began with the introduction of cigarette filters, and has continued with new low-tar cigarettes. Manufacturers need a "heavier-bodied tobacco to get the flavor through," Stokes said.

The lengthy light-colored leaves from the lower stalk, long considered by growers to be the highest quality offerings, were brought primarily this year by independent buyers filling consignments for Japanese and West German interests, Stokes said. When these buyers filled their orders and went home, the "fancy" tobacco started going into the pool, as much as 50 or 60 percent of it on some days," he said.

Stokes blamed the upsurge in forward contract sales of excess burley during the past two years for "taking large amounts of tobacco off the competitive auction floor." Some sources say at least 20 million pounds of burley were sold by this method last year.

Such tobacco is usually delivered to the warehouse, which acts as agent for the grower to establish a sales price to be paid by the buyer at the beginning of the next sales season. If the grower is willing to wait 10 or 12 months for his check, he is thus able to market a fairly sizeable amount of excess tobacco a year in advance.

Companies like this method, Stokes noted, because they are able to assure themselves of additional tobacco a year ahead without having to pay for it in advance, and at a price which is at or just above the current year's support levels. Support prices the next year would always be significantly higher.

Stokes said he has discussed the problem of excess tobacco sales with USDA officials and with some members of Kentucky's Congressional delegation. He said he is hopeful that new regulations will be issued to "completely do away" with that process.

Stokes also said that Farm Bureau's tobacco committee may initiate a series of meetings with representatives of domestic tobacco companies later in the year to discuss reports that as much as 25 percent of many popular cigarette blends may be composed of imported burley.

Stokes acknowledged that no proof exists to substantiate those charges, but "we may need to approach the companies, and indicate to them their importance of their using our tobacco in manufacturing. We know they can't equal our quality with imported tobacco, but we're going to have to reiterate that it's worth the price."

County FB Leaders To Meet in Louisville

It will be back to school for county Farm Bureau leaders, as some 150 county FB presidents and vice presidents travel to Louisville Feb. 15 for a two-day series of "classes" about Farm Bureau's legislative, information and member service programs.

The conference, held each year during the National Farm Machinery show and Tractor Pull, gives Farm Bureau's volunteer leaders a chance to combine organization business with the festivities of the machinery show and related activities.

Addresses by Ray Mackey, president of the Kentucky Farm Bureau, and Warren Newberry, executive officer of the Texas Farm Bureau, are scheduled around the program-oriented class sessions. C.H. "Chuch" Fields, a member of the American Farm Bureau Washington Office staff, will brief the leaders on FB's 1979 congressional program, while KFB staff members discuss program activities and goals at the state and county levels.

The conference is scheduled to convene at 12 noon opening day, at the new Hyatt Regency, in downtown Louisville.

No Apology For Higher Farm Prices

Farmers shouldn't apologize if hamburger "goes up to $2.00 a pound", in light of steep increases in farming costs, Kentucky Farm Bureau President Ray Mackey told a livestock marketing group recently.

While that type of increase probably won't happen, Mackey noted, it wouldn't be unlike the price increase for automobiles, farm machinery or interest rates. He was speaking to the annual meeting of Louisville Producers Livestock Marketing Association, attended by livestock growers from Kentucky and southern Indiana.

Noting that reports of projected food prices increases frighten consumers, Mackey added, "Think for a minute how you would have felt a few years ago if you had been told that a pickup truck would go up to $7,500, or a 3-ploiw tractor to $18,000, or a medium-sized combine to $50,000, or interest on operating capital to 12 or 15 percent."

"All these things have happened to farming during the last five years."

Consumers tend to believe that when farmers gain, they lose" in terms of food costs, Mackey added. "Nothing could be further from the truth. We are in a position to nip that myth in the bud. When we get a decent price for beef cattle it means we produce more beef. When we get an upper price for milk, we produce more milk."

"Consumers need a better understanding of how and why this works and nobody is going to tell them our do."

Plans Unveiled for Major Recreational Area To Be Built This Year at Brodhead Fairgrounds

The Fiscal Court is considering a multi-million dollar plan to turn the Brodhead Fairgrounds into a recreation area with several housing projects.

Some of the projects proposed by architect Helm Roberts of Lexington are already funded, and should be built this summer. They include facilities for soft ball, horseshoes, basketball and tennis, and shuffleboard, as well as a Senior Citizen Center with crafts and meeting rooms. Also, the skating rink and the grandstand will be torn down, with a new grandstand complete with exhibit halls taking the old one's place.

"The main thing is to have a master plan so you know where you are going," he said at a meeting Thursday with the Fiscal Court.

County Judge Executive Hubert Thacker explained that the county received a $271,900 grant from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), which $111,600 was spent to buy the fairgrounds and its entire 30-acre tract of land, last July.

The rest of the money would cover the items listed above as well as an access road. Private developers would fund the Senior Citizens housing project, to be built next to the Center, as well as future housing projects. Mr. Roberts' plan called for 12 units of senior citizens housing, and 32 for families, including eight townhouses.

Judge Thacker said that there was some preliminary construction to be done first, involving the water and sewer lines, but after that, the Court should be ready to take bids on the Senior Center and recreational park.

"We will not interrupt the Brodhead Fair or other events," Judge Thacker said. He said they may have to wait until after the Fair to work on the grandstand. Roof material from the old skating rink will be salvaged and used in the new grandstand, he said.

Renfro Will Run Barn Dances Only Nine Months Next Year

After three bad winters, Renfro Valley Folks, Inc. have decided to close the Renfro Valley Barn Dance Shows from Dec. 1 to March 1.

"It's not only been hard for the crowds to drive in the winter," Gary Smith, one of the co-owners of the enterprise, said, "it is sometimes hard to get the entertainers here."

The Renfro Lodge and Motel and offices will remain open in the winter, Mr. Smith said. The radio station will be broadcasting as usual.

When the season begins March 1, there will be two shows in each of the two barns every weekend, Mr. Smith said.

Besides the traditional barn dance shows, five special events have been planned for the Valley, for this year.

City May Lease Lake Linville Boat Dock To The Christian Appalachian Project Or The Rockcastle County Archery Club

By Jane Kundtz

Both the Christian Appalachian Project and the Rockcastle County Archery Club are interested in leasing the Renfro Valley Boat Dock from the city of Mt. Vernon. Some decisions may be made Saturday after a special meeting of the City Council, with groups interested in the dock.

Mayor Roland Mullins told council members that he had been contacted twice by Father Bieling, founder of the Christian Appalachian Project, about renting the dock for recreational purposes for the general public. The organization is currently building a Family Life Center at the former Scenic View motel near Renfro Valley.

James Bowman and Delmer Vanzant, officers of the Archery Club, told council members at their regular meeting Monday night that the club would operate the dock on a non-profit basis, and use the building for meetings.

Only club members could launch boats, but membership in the club last year cost $10. Mr. Bowman said. By paying the annual family membership fee, a person could launch his boat anytime at no charge. Last year it cost $3 each time to launch a boat.

Mr. Vanzant said the club would probably put in a trap shoot and a special area for archery tournaments. He said the club was almost two years old and had 36 members.

Sewer Evaluation Study, a necessary step to getting a grant for improvements or new construction.

Mayor Mullins said they needed to know how much the project would cost and how far into the future would it serve the city. Mr. Moore's firm originally recommended a $5.9 million system, to be built at Renfro Valley.

Mayor Mullins said that the city still pays $60,000 per year on bonds for the current system, which is 15 years old. The bonds won't be paid until 1985.

The Council reviewed contracts with Brodhead, and the Northern and Western Rockcastle Water Districts, all of which buy water from the city. There was some discussion about raising the rates, but no vote was taken.

The Council heard a report from City Clerk Mary Craig about unpaid taxes, some of which are five years in arrears. Mrs. Craig said that $2,244 was not paid in 1978.

Mt. Vernon should receive $271,900 in HUD funds next year, according to a letter received from District Engineer J.H. Sturgill of the Department of Transportation. The city street commission voted to meet about how best to spend the funds.

Fire chief John Cox advised the Council that it would be a good time to put two fire hydrants in the Barnett Subdivision, because of the construction work going on at the county's industrial park.

He said water lines and fire hydrants placed near Lloyd Cain's and Dr. Billy George Griffith houses would cost about $3400. The Council voted to ask the superintendent Matt Powell, Jr. see if he could not do the job cheaper.

The Council voted to pay the Fire Department $300 for an automatic door opener. The Department had raised $500 privately for the property.

The Council passed a Fair housing ordinance, which said there would be no racial or other discrimination in housing rental property owned by the city.

Superintendent Powell was advised to build a ditch near Verla Scott's property, to alleviate a drainage problem. Mr. Powell received Council permission to replace four street signs.

Doug Brock wanted permission from the city to use some land for access to his property near Lake Linville. The Council voted to let him have such an easement, if he would pay for the surveying and other costs.

Here's How to See if You Can Get Federal Coal Mine Reclamation Aid

District Conservationist Greg Stephens of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) Office at Mt. Vernon is prepared to help landowners determine if they have tracts eligible for federal assistance under the Rural Abandoned Mine Program (RAMP).

He said sign-up under the new program for unclaimed, abandoned coal mine lands began February 20, 1979 and will run through February 23, 1979.

He cited this basic rule in determining land eligibility: "Lands and waters are eligible for reclamation if they were mined for coal or were affected by coal mining processes and were left abandoned and inadequately reclaimed before August 3, 1977."

"There are three factors that would disqualify coal mined land from the program," he said. "No land is eligible that is federally owned or controlled. RAMP won't accept lands for which the state or coal company holds a bond for reclamation. And the land rights may not be under an existing easement or lease to be reclaimed."

If land is eligible, SCS will help landowners work at a rate from 25 to 100 percent total cost, depending upon the site.

"Surface owners do not have to own or have control of mineral rights to participate in the program," Stephens said. "This is based on the fact that mineral right owners, if different from surface owners, must obtain the permission of the surface owners for surface mining activities."

No more than 320 acres of eligible lands and waters may be offered for contract under one ownership in the new program. The rule applies to individual, group, corporate, or multiple ownership.

A landowner will place his affected land under RAMP for a period of 5 to 10 years. Reclamation work should begin within 12 months and completed within six years. The involved land will stay under contract for at least three additional years to be sure vegetation is established and maintained.

The landowner will help determine the cost-share rate for his property. The first consideration for a higher rate will be whether the main reclamation benefits will accrue to the public off the site. Then, the landowner may get a high rate if paying part of the costs would create a financial burden for him—that is, if he could not recover those costs as a result of the land uses after reclamation.

The maximum federal cost-share, 100 percent, would apply only to the first 120 acres. A diminishing rate of cost-share will be used for large tracts.

Lands and water reclaimed under RAMP may be used for crops, hay, woodland, wildlife habitat, natural areas or noncommercial recreation.

Win State Competition

Three Rockcastle County High School students have won a state competition in singing, and will perform with the All-State Chorus in Louisville next March.

The students are Marilyn Brown, Michelle Dick and Sandy Sweeney.

A house, owned by Beale Brock, in Seafield Court burned down last night. The house was owned by Beale Brock and his children had rented the house but were not home at the time of the fire. Mr. Vernon was called to a fire about 3 a.m. Saturday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Tucker in Fairground Hill. Fire Chief John Cox said that Mrs. Tucker was not home and her children were not home at the time of the fire. The house was estimated to be worth between $500 and $1000, according to Chief Cox.

House Clerk Confirms That DeMarcus Voted "Pass" on Income Tax Cut

The chief Clerk of the Kentucky House has confirmed that

Joe Lambert

Mr. Harold DeMarcus did not vote on House Bill 48, the income tax cut bill. The official record of the House A & R Committee shows

LOCAL MEN PARTICIPATING IN SPECIAL ARMY EXERCISE

Pvt. Timothy Bishop, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard D. Bishop of Brodhead, and Spec. 4 Winfred E. Graves, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Graves, of Rt. 1, Mt. Vernon, are participating in the first Return of Forces to Germany exercise to be held in winter.

Reforger 79, a strategic mobility exercise, demonstrates the U.S. capability to move by air and sea to reinforce NATO rapidly in a crisis situation.

The Reforger Units join U.S. units stationed in Germany and allied elements for the exercise in an area between Northern Baden-Wuerttemberg and Eastern Saxony.

Army National Guard and Army Reserve units also are included in Reforger, one of NATO's largest annual exercises.

Bishop is regularly assigned to the 15th Transportation Company in Nellingen, Germany.

Graves is a member of the 1st Armored Division in Germany.

DeMarcus "passed," which means to abstain.

Joe Lambert, Republican candidate for the 80th House seat, criticized this action by saying, "The special session was called to provide tax relief. Mr. DeMarcus was sent to Frankfort as the people's representative. He had a duty to cast his vote, one way or the other."

Lambert added, "This whole affair smells of politics. Governor Carroll opposed this bill and Mr. DeMarcus did not want to vote against his friend, Julian. At the same time, he was afraid to vote against a tax cut. As a result, he did not vote at all."

"The real issue in this campaign is accountability," Lambert said. "I intend to represent the wishes of the people of the 80th District, not play politics in the Legislature. I will always consider it my solemn duty to vote on pending legislation, not sit on the sidelines."

Paid for by Lambert Campaign Fund: D.S. Reynolds, Treasurer, P.O. Box 278, Mt. Vernon, Ky. 40456.

Legislative Report

By Rep. Harold DeMarcus

During the 5th week of the 1979 special session the Kentucky House of Representatives passed several bills pertaining to the items listed in the Lt. Governor's call. Basically, these legislative measures propose different ways in which your tax dollars may be appropriated.

House Bill 38 requires the Department for Natural Resources to provide technical assistance to small coal operators in fulfilling environmental protection standards imposed by federal and state stripmining regulations. The bill defines "small coal operators" as one who anticipates mining less than 200,000 tons of coal in one year. Hopefully, this bill will help stabilize coal prices and thus result in more stabilized utility bills.

House Bill 51 amends the Kentucky Revised Statutes in order to decrease by $5.00 the minimum fines for violations of motor vehicle motor carrier laws; this bill was a by-product of the democrat caucus. During the 1978 Regular Session, the General Assembly increased 32 separate traffic fines by $15, which served to make the minimum fee $22.50. This measure did not bring the Commonwealth any increased revenue because the fines were so excessive that police officers and judges were reluctant to enforce them. House Bill 51 sets the minimum traffic fine at $47.50, which is still too excessive. I have introduced House Bill 11, which seeks to remove the extra $15 from the fines, however, as yet we have not been able to get it posted in committee.

House Concurrent Resolution 8 states that all law enforcement and peace officers, should be urged and directed to enforce to the fullest extent those statutes dealing with the criminal littering of Kentucky's highways. It is only logical to assume that if the Commonwealth's litter laws were sternly enforced, then the democrat caucus would not have been able to toss the "litter abatement" in our laps.

Senate Bill 5 amends the Kentucky Revised Statutes in order to raise the daily dieting fee for prisoners in county jails from $5.75 to $6.75, which is simply a $1.00 increase. America is a free country and crime is one of the prices we pay for our freedom, although those that violate our laws should be punished, the USSR has shown that starvation is not a fair punishment.

House Bill 44, which has been labeled as an important piece of legislation, can be described as a "property tax limitation" measure. In effect, the bill states that a taxing district cannot increase revenue by more than 4% in any year without first giving the taxpayers the right to recall, in which case the issue is placed on the ballot for a vote by the people. Representative Marshall Davenport of the 83rd legislative district spearheaded the property tax committee that was formed by the Republican caucus and summarized House Bill 44 in this fashion: "should any district increase real estate taxes by more than 4%, the people of that district would have the right to get a petition signed by 10% of the citizens who voted in the last presidential election, and thus be able to force the issue to a vote at the next general election. Also, an increase that does not exceed 4% can be imposed after public hearing is held and would not be placed on the ballot."

The 1979 General Assembly's special session has just about run its course and most of the above mentioned measures will become law. Even though these bills are not all that we had hoped for, they do represent a step in the right direction.

On another note, the House Republican Caucus met in the state Reception Room for the purpose of honoring Pat Freibert, a newly elected representative from the 78th legislative district. Mrs. Freibert was elected by an outstanding 87% which indicates a resurgence of Kentucky's Republican Party. Representative Freibert is the first female member of the Republican Caucus in this decade. Also, the General Assembly was shocked and bereaved at the sudden death of Senator Tom Garrett, the majority floor leader of the Kentucky Senate. This loss is deeply felt by all who have a concern for the Commonwealth's government.

under cold running water can reduce the effect of the spray.

The oil in onions also gives them their flavor. This oil blends with fats and oils in other foods-an important fact to remember in cooking with onions. If you want to enhance the onion flavor in stews, for example, heat chopped onion in a little fat for a few minutes and then add to the other ingredients. Likewise, you can prepare a truly "oniony" salad by adding some chopped onion to an oil dressing about an hour before serving. Tricks such as these will improve the flavor of almost all dishes.

On the other hand, if you prefer just a hint of onion zip, here are a few suggestions: soak onion slices in milk and then use this liquid in soups or sauces; rub a salad bowl with a cut onion surface, or add onion slices to simmering broth to be removed before serving.

Onions are the featured ingredient in so many different side-dishes. Creamed, glazed, barbecued, buttered and fried in rings-these are just a few ways to enjoy onions. Onions can even be a main dish, when stuffed with a hearty filling. But there are countless other dishes in which onion is the unheralded hero, adding exactly the right touch of seasoning. From breakfast eggs to dinner-time casseroles in every kind of dish except desserts-onions reign supreme.

Try these onion recipes:

Piecrust-lined tart shells
 1 1/2 T. butter
 6 onions, sliced thin
 1/2 t. salt
 1/2 cup diced bacon (fine)
 2 cups milk
 3 T. flour
 2 eggs, well beaten
 2 cups shredded Swiss cheese

Saute onions in butter, add salt and bacon. Saute until golden brown. Add milk to flour. Beat in eggs and cheese. Add onions and pour into tart shells. Bake at 350 for 30 minutes.

Barbecued Onions
 Cook peeled onions until almost tender in boiling salted water. Place onions in baking dish and pour a tangy barbecue sauce over them. Bake at 400 degrees for 45 minutes, basting several times. Serve with a sprinkling of chopped parsley.

Robert Barker

Mr. Robert Barker, 84, of Rt. 1, Crab Orchard, Ky., passed away Sunday, February 11, 1979 at his home.

He was born on December 26, 1894 in Big Stone Gap, Virginia, the son of the late John G. and

Now is the time to think about pasture renovation. The next 12 to 18 months should find farmers paying special attention to pasture and hay fields, advises Garry Lacefield, Extension forage specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

February and March are very important from the pasture and hay standpoint. Farmers should be concerned not only with whether hay supplies will last through the winter but also with pasture condition.

"We feel like we have adequate hay to get cattle through the winter," says Lacefield. However, he expects that some shifting of supplies from areas with hay surpluses to needy areas might be required.

Lacefield's biggest concern now is that farmers check their fields to determine what needs to be done to ensure greater forage productivity and quality. The most important forage improvement that can be made is pasture renovation, according to the specialists.

In Kentucky, grassland renovation, as listed by Lacefield, are fertility-meeting fertility needs to be done to ensure greater forage productivity and quality. The most important forage improvement that can be made is pasture renovation, according to the specialists.

Farmers might also improve pastures with nitrogen. Top-dressing grass fields with nitrogen fertilizer can hasten grazing by a week or so.

It's advisable to test the soil to determine whether other fertilizer or lime is necessary. A random soil sample should be taken and submitted for analysis through County Extension agents.

Lacefield cautions that beef cows which have calved or soon will calve should be fed a supplement to counter grass tetany risks which may exist on cool season grass pastures.

"LETTER TO THE EDITOR"

1971. After retiring he returned to the Philippines to visit and see his family since leaving, he returned back to America, his adopted country asking me to return with him to the Philippines for a visit so in November, 1975, we came to the Philippines and was here until March, 1976. I returned to Manila but with the desire to visit and see more of my husband's country for the people were so friendly and so much of their farming reminded me of the way people farm in Kentucky when I was a little child. We returned to the Philippines in Nov. 1976 and I stayed until October, 1977, deciding to return to America and arrange my affairs so I could return with residential visa to live here. I returned in Oct. 1977 and now I will try and write about life here.

I am in the Province of Ilocos Saur, and the Barrio of Beselon, Sta. Cruz. I was the first American woman to visit the Barrio. I had seen, and they would stand and starg at me for long periods of time. They are so beautiful, have expressed very much interest in me. The first trip I couldn't get near them, now they come to me and feel my hands and hair. I cannot speak their dialect, which is Ilocano and Tinglay. Very few people speak English and I can't speak very many words in their tongue, but we still understand each other.

When I arrived in the Barrio, they were finishing harvesting rice, then they set out Virginia tobacco. Their tobacco beds were ready for setting then, which they do by hand. They plow with carabou and carabou and old fashioned plows. I only saw one tractor coming from Manila here to Barrio. We ate 38 kilometers from Manila, the largest city in the island, metric system is used here for all things.

The people who raise rice here can have plenty of food, which is their main staple food. They exchange rice for all other articles, and sea food such as shrimp, squid and fish is another food which they gather from the China Sea, "which is only 9 kilometers. The sea is called the, "Bay, oy," in their dialect. They raise one kind of banana here, but swap rice for a different kind grown in other parts of the Islands, or other fruits and vegetables such as mango, papaya, cauliflower, celery, onions, cabbage. Every day there will be 10 or more women going by with baskets of produce, fish and other seafood.

They are in a basket carried on their heads. At times they will carry a hundred pounds of rice in their head basket, and never have to use their hands.

From the Barrio to the highway, the roads are very rough (such as country-wagon roads in Ky. in the 1920's) and very, very muddy in the rainy season. I still the women walk carrying baskets on their heads, which would be 6 to 10 miles, they walk, they go all over the Barrio. There are four Barrio's from here at Beselon to the highway. They are very hard working and faithful workers, it seems to me they are the mainstay of families. The men do the plowing but the women do most of the planting and harvesting.

Doing the family laundry, the ladies put their clothes in a tub and with a paddle, soap in the tub carry it to a river (tub on head). At the river they soap their clothes and using the paddle bag their clothes until clean, then spread them on the grass to dry. They then take a bath in the river. When the clothes are dried, they are folded and carried home to be steam ironed. They are very fussy with their clothes, sparkling clean and no wrinkles after ironing. On my first visit there wasn't any electric here and reminded me of the ironing when I was a young girl in Callaway, Ky. They had never seen a wash-board until my brother, Claud Elkins, sent me one. They use it to wash here at the pump. They have pumps here like they had at the Callaway School House. They also have huge wells with a bucket on a rope to draw water from the well. Water here is very good.

They build tall mud and bamboo square houses and hang their tobacco in them and dig a big hole under the buildings, where they build fires and dry their tobacco. They keep a big fire going for four days and nights, until the tobacco is cured dry and also lay lots of tobacco in the sun and cure it. They raise peanuts to eat. They dry all but enough saved for replanting, which they shell. Three peanut crops are raised each year.

Now here in January their rice is all planted and ready to start faring rice.

Everything grows so fast here once they get it in the ground, even though they don't get rain for 4 or 5 months at a time, of course all people here aren't farmers, some school teachers, doctors, nurses, contractors, miners, fishermen, and sailors.

All boys and girls go through some kind of literacy. People here believe in school and college degrees. I think more people here have some kind of college degree than anywhere I know of, but degrees don't put food in the stomach unless you can get a job you are qualified for and many don't. There are nurses and doctors by the dozens and not enough sickness to make use of their training. Teachers are the worst underpaid of any trade here. Many people live from hand to mouth and they're called squatters, to me they are what we would call "hippies" in America.

The only way you get help from the Government here is by an "Act of God." Destruction by flood, fire or such, in plain words here you work to live.

There are no nursing homes here. All people are wanted; the young people look after their parents. Grandparents take care of young children while their parents work.

Christmas here was more like the 4th of July. Fire works, parades, all night dancing under the moon, which makes it bright as day, midnight mass then dinner afterwards. And what a dinner, fish, fixed in dozens of different ways, J. Amp. crab, lobster, vegetables fixed in many ways, roast pig and the trimmings, cakes and cookies. No turkey or ham here.

We were the guest of the Mayor and Mon-Signor. I enjoyed the Barrio Fiesta the most, also had a comedy put on by the local people which was very, very funny.

Next month will try and write more.

Eddie Thompson, No. 44, goes for 2 of his career high 24 points in Friday night's game against Oneida. However, it was in vain as the Rockets lost 66-63. The Rockets and Oneida will next meet in the preliminary round of district tournament play to be held at BCHS this year.

Steve Center had a good night against Oneida, scoring 22, but one of his worst games of the season Tuesday night against Model where he scored only 2 points.

Rockets Lose to Oneida; Defeat Madison Model

By: Rick Anderkin

The BCHS Rockets lost to Oneida Friday night 66-63 in a district preview. Rockcastle didn't look good the entire game as they lost to a much less talented Oneida team.

Eddie Thompson, the Rockets' senior forward, had his career high game scoring 24 points. But Oneida's fine junior center, Ben Franklin, countered with 28 points.

Steve Center also had a good game, pumping in 22. David Riddle scored 8 points; Jack Farthing and Matt Poynter, got 4 each and Walter Browning was held to 2 points.

Tuesday night, the Rockets traveled to Richmond and came away with a win 62-50 over the Model Patriots.

The victory should have been an easy one for the Rockets as they were playing a team definitely inferior to them but their offense didn't click well and their play on the boards was poor.

Late in the first half, Coach Riddle cleared his bench and it worked as the Rockets came back to take a five-point lead into half-time.

Scoring in the game was balanced with David Riddle leading the way with 12; Farthing got 9 (all in the second half) to help keep the Rockets in the win column; Eddie Thompson, Mike Manis and David Mullins each got 6; Matt Poynter scored 5; Walter Browning, 4 and Steve Center and Jeff Hammonds, 2 each.

This Friday night, the Rockets will travel to Jackson County to try an average an earlier 6-point loss.

24 Members of RCHS Chorus To Take Part in Festival-Workshop

Twenty-four of Rockcastle High School's top chorus members will take part in a Choral Workshop and Festival Concert at Centre College this Thursday and Friday (Feb. 14-15). The group will go to the annual festival by school bus Thursday afternoon, come snow or shine, according to their director, Margie Wilcox.

"We haven't been able to practice because school has been closed," she said, "but I gave the students tape-recorded instructions to practice with at home. They must learn their own music and be ready themselves, in order to take part in the festival. It is essentially an outside-class project."

Mrs. Wilcox said the chorus members will be practicing all day Wednesday until 8 p.m. for the concert.

Rockcastle is one of the 14

schools to participate in the festival, which offers students the chance to rehearse and perform under professional conductors. The event ends with a concert Friday at 7 p.m. at Newlin Hall, and the public is invited to attend at no charge.

Among the guest conductors of the 400-member chorus are Robert McSpadden, a former member of the faculty at Cincinnati College of Music, and Sara Holroyd, University of Kentucky choral director.

The junior high chorus will sing a program which includes "Joy in the Morning" by Natalie Sileth, "Come Saturday Morning" by "Smoo Man," John Carter's "Surely He Has Borne Our Grievs," Joyce Eilers' "Charleston Flappers and Razz-a-ma-Tazz," and David Eidleman's "Clap Your Hands."

The senior high performance will include "I Will Not Leave You Comfortless," "The spiritual 'Ain't Got Time to Die,'" "The Cowboy's Lament" by Margaret Vance, Mozart's "Laudate Dominum," Dave Loggins' "Please Come to Boston," and "Saul" by Egil Hovland.

Needlepoint will be taught Feb. 22 at 1 and 7 p.m., also at the library. On Thursday, March 1 at 1 and 7 p.m., learn "Basketry." Register by calling the County Extension Office at 256-2403. A small fee of $2-$2.50 will be charged for materials.

How about a class through the mail? Sign up for "Building a Home", and learn all about contractors, mortgages, and so forth. Call the Extension Office to register.

Tree Farm Program Participation Increases

Directors of the Kentucky Forest Industries Association have reported that nearly 2,000 acres of privately-owned commercial timberland in Kentucky were brought under the protection of the American Tree Farm program last year. Richard P. Babbitt of Wickliffe, Westvaco Corp., executive and chairman of the KFIA Tree Farm Committee, said that the 232,468 acres registered as of December 31, 1978, represented a 0.8 percent increase over the 230,574 acres recorded a year earlier.

The number of certified properties rose from 507 to 513 during the same period, despite delisting of 19 tracts as a result of 94 reinspections. This rise represents an increase of 1.2 percent, Babbitt reported.

"Significantly," he said, "the average number of acres in each tract indicates that KFIA is succeeding in its continued effort to bring small, non-industrial holdings of commercial timberland into the American Tree Farm program."

As recently as 1974, he pointed out, the average tract included 510.8 acres; 1978 summaries reflect an average of only 453.2 acres per tract.

Properties inspected and certified for the first time last year averaged 202.4 acres in size, Babbitt said.

According to KFIA statistical summaries, more than 90 percent of Kentucky's commercial timber land—some 12 million acres—is privately controlled in tracts that average less than 100 acres in size.

Properties enrolled in the American Tree Farm program are identified by an emblematic plaque and are pledged to forestry practices that provide for recreation, food and shelter for fish and wildlife, watershed protection and the growing and harvesting of repeated timber crops.

Inspections are carried out by district officials of the state's Division of Forestry and include provision for fire and insect control as well as timber stand improvement.

A recent KFIA study indicates that timber ranks second only to tobacco in its value as a cash crop at market. Sales last year exceeded $339.5 million, the KFIA report stated.

The Kentucky Forest Industries Association represents timber growing, harvesting, production, fabrication, and marketing among a selected statewide membership. These related industries active in 103 of the state's 120 counties—employ nearly 20,000 production personnel and generate some $175 million in total payrolls on annual industry sales of $64.5 million.

RCRDC Has Asked To Participate In Wildlife Set-Aside Program

Rockcastle County's Rural Development committee has contacted state officials to find out if this area could participate in a Wildlife Set-Aside Program. Under this program, farmers sow and maintain food plots for wildlife, with some of their costs paid through the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Office (ASCO).

Harold Ballinger, chairman of the rural Development Committee, told the group at their meeting Monday that the food plots are usually in shady areas close to fences, where the crop usually does not grow well anyway. They are usually one quarter acre.

In another effort to help preserve wildlife in the county, the Committee will be ordering bi-color Lespedeza and Japonica, which are both varieties of brushy wildlife plants that provide food and cover for birds and small animals.

The Lespedeza is a hardy tallbush that comes back every year, according to Clay Colson, secretary of the Committee. Rabbits and quail are among the animals that can be found near these plants.

The Committee voted to recognize Gary Burdette's efforts in raising game birds.

Mr. Ballinger was elected representative to the existing Rural Development Committee.

The Committee meets the second Monday of the month at noon. For further information, contact Mr. Ballinger at the ASCO office in the Rockcastle County Courthouse.

GOV.'S ORDER WILL ALLOW SOME TO ENTER FIRST GRADE AND KINDERGARTEN EARLIER

Gov. Julian Carroll has issued an executive order which will allow some five and six-year-olds to begin kindergarten and first grade earlier than is normally allowed.

The order sets up procedures by which parents may petition the board for their child to be admitted to kindergarten if the child becomes five after Sept. 1, and before Dec. 31. The parents of a child whose sixth birthday falls during the same period, and who has not attended an approved kindergarten, may petition for the child to be admitted to the first grade.

If a child in this category has attended an approved kindergarten, the decision on his promotion or retention will be made by local school authorities, and the parents are not eligible for the petition process.

Parents must submit their petitions to the secretary of the state board by May 1, unless they have moved from another state after that date, in which case the deadline is August 1.

One of the most tragic aspects of hearing loss, according to the Beltone Crusade for Hearing Conservation, is that many hearing impaired persons do not seek the help that is available because of the myth that a hearing loss is equivalent to old age or even senility.

A Garrard County player puts up the ball in Monday night's game between Garrard County and the Rocket girls team. In the photo are Kim Howard, No. 11; Diane Thacker; Tammy Shepherd, No. 41 and Kay Hammonds. Hammonds was high scorer in the game with 10; Sandy Sturgill and Diane Thacker got 4 each; Donna Faulkner and Kim Howard, 4 each; Tammy Shepherd, 9 and Breana Parsons, 2.

Grocers Reminded of Changes In U.S.D.A. Food Stamp Law

Retail food dealers have been reminded that several major changes in the food stamp regulations affecting grocers became effective January 1.

Edward W. Davidson, Southeast regional director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's family nutrition programs, said the most significant of the changes is the requirement that retail food dealers give cash change up to 99 cents. In the past grocers were required to give credit slips or due bills.

Other changes listed by Davidson include:

- Hot foods ready for immediate consumption may not be sold for food stamps.
- Food stamps may now be used to pay for deposits for bottles.
- Grocers are allowed to redeem manufacturers' "cents-off" coupons for food stamps customers in the same manner as they do for cash customers.

Davidson said cash register companies have assured the Food and Nutrition Service that they are reprogramming their machines to handle bottle deposits and "cents-off" coupons as fast as possible.

ENERGY CONSERVATION

The Kentucky Department of Energy is taking initial steps to implement a federal matching grant program for energy conservation efforts in schools, hospitals, local governments and public health care institutions, according to Damon Harrison, deputy secretary for energy.

Federal matching funds will be available to conduct "energy audits," proposed detailed engineering analyses of a building's efficient use of energy. Schools and hospitals will also be eligible for additional financial assistance for building modifications, he said.

The state energy department will begin mailing information to hospitals, schools, public health agencies and state and local government officials this week, Harrison said.

KENTUCKY AFIELD

By John Wilson

Winters, even mild ones, are hard on wildlife. Cold weather increases the need for food just at the time when food is most scarce. We humans can help provide wildlife foods, but not if we wait until winter to worry about the needs of wildlife.

One of the most effective ways to help wildlife through winter is by providing wildlife food plots, according to Joe Bruna, game manager and director for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Now is the time, Bruna says, to start planning for spring and summer wildlife plantings to furnish food for next winter.

Some persons with hearing losses actively lead a stern noisy environments than in quiet places, according to the Beltone Crusade for Hearing Conservation.

Washington Said:

"Cherish public credit... use it as sparingly as possible. By vigorous example... discharge debts... not ungenerously throwing upon posterity the burden we ourselves ought to bear."

That sounds mighty good for 1979. We celebrate his birthday February 22nd.

Jesse James: the Kentucky Connection

by JoD Neace

Mention Jesse James and you conjure up pictures of a masked rider waving a gun in front of a bank or stopping a train to rob it. Often referred to as Robin Hood of the West, Jesse with his hard-fighting, hard-riding outlaw gang, added some interesting pages to the history of Kentucky.

Fact and fiction are hard to separate in the stories of Jesse and his outlaw gang, who terrorized banks and railroads in Missouri and her neighbor states, Kentucky being one. The core of the gang consisted of Jesse, his brother Frank and their cousins, the Younger brothers—John, Jim, Cole and Bob.

The James family, whose origins are in Kentucky, were slave-holders before the War Between the States. During the war, Jesse joined the Confederate guerrilla band known as Quantrill's Raiders, in 1863 or '64. Feelings were strong in Missouri after the war and Southern sympathizers such as the James family were persecuted by Union sympathizers.

The James gang's best-known visit to Kentucky was on March 20, 1868, when they robbed the Old Southern Bank of Kentucky in Russellville. This robbery was the gang's first "outside of Missouri, so no one in Russellville took notice when a fellow named Colburn stroled into the bank ten days before the robbery to sell a bank note.

Nimrod Long, who operated the bank, was a little suspicious because that type note would bring more money if it were sold in Louisville, and he refused to buy it. Colburn made two more visits to the bank before the robbery, on various pretenses.

$14,000 poorer when the outlaws high-tailed out of town. About an hour later a posse of Russellville citizens took pursuit, but the criminals got away scot-free.

The question of whether Jesse was with the gang during the robbery arose. A Louisville detective, "Yankee" Blight, began tracking the gang the day after the robbery. He got as far as Nelson County before losing the scent. There were rumors that Jesse was in Nelson County several weeks before the robbery. Blight did locate George Shepherd in Nelson County, a long-time cohort of the James and Younger boys, and arrested him for his part in the robbery. Shepherd stubbornly refusing to disclose the identity of his accomplices, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

Blight insisted that Jesse was with the gang in Russellville even though he admitted Jesse was 75 miles away at the time of the robbery, recuperating from an old gunshot wound. Believe that one?

It is recorded in the annals of Kentucky that Jesse made several visits to our Commonwealth. Jesse was a patron at the Stagecoach Inn (Gray's Inn) in Guthrie, and often stayed with relatives and friends in Nelson and Woodford counties. Alexander Care in Simpson County is said to have been one of his hideouts.

In Woodford County it is reported by local historians that a stone house, which burned about 20 years ago, on Highway US-421 was the home of Jesse's mother. And a short distance from it is a cemetery that allegedly contains some of the graves of the James family—a family that was so close that Jesse married his first cousin, Zee Mims of Kansas City, on April 23, 1874, after a nine-year engagement.

When Jesse was shot in the back of the head, by his cousin Charles and Bob Ford, for a $10,000 reward, the family and old family friends turned against them. Charles Ford, haunted by the fear of being killed by a relative in punishment for Jesse's murder, killed himself and Ed O. Kelly, a distant relative of the Younger brother, killed Bob Ford in a saloon Bob owned.

RP FORAGES

The difference between luck and science.
Put your trust in science and not luck by planting genetically superior RP Seeds—Research Proved varieties that improve your chances for getting more meat-and-milk-making forage.

VANGARD variety alfalfa* resists both wilt and anthracnose for top production wherever hot, humid growing conditions threaten summer decline. Leafhopper yellowing tolerance. Topped all varieties in a 77-78 U.K. trial.

APOLLO variety alfalfa* resists Phytophthora root rot (wet foot disease), greater yield potential, less damage from wilt, pea aphids and leafhoppers than other major varieties. Second only to Vanguard in a 77-78 U.K. trial.

REDLAND variety red clover* has greater disease resistance and persistence, for unparalleled extra-season yield potential—up to 40% more than Kenland and Medium. Ideal for grass pasture renovation in Kentucky.

NAPIER variety orchardgrass is later maturing, drought tolerant, for lush grazing straight or in mixtures. Winterhardy; resists leaf disease. Ideal companion with Vanguard Alfalfa.

TORO variety timothy combines extra leafiness and disease resistance with early maturity and quick recovery, for top yields further south than most other timothy varieties. Better than Clair. Ideal companion with Apollo Alfalfa or Redland Clover.

RP Seeds are bred and developed by North American Plant Breeders, Mission, Ka.

Distributed by Louisville Seed Co.
