"Assertiveness or

Aggressiveness in

Your Marriage?"

Part I

David R. Mace, in an article found in the recent March issue of The Christian Home magazine entitled, "Assertiveness vs. Training," says that there is a tremendous difference between assertiveness and aggressiveness. Being assertive means to have the courage of your convictions; being aggressive implies that this is not enough, that one must "actively parade and shout" in order to convince others about his convictions. There is a dramatic difference between the two, Mace says, and many fail to see this difference.

A good example of assertiveness is Martin Luther's nailing the 95 theses on the church door of Wittenberg, Germany, in October 31, 1517. Realizing that this dramatic display of his beliefs might cause him trouble, he nevertheless went ahead with his plan. He was not attacking but opening himself up to being attacked. He was expressing his convictions with courage.

An example of aggressiveness would be one country invading or attacking another.

Many marriages are based on aggressiveness wherein the husband becomes the authority figure imposing himself over his submissive wife. On rare occasions, it is the wife who is the authority figure. A healthier more ideal relationship in marriage, Mace continues, is better expressed in the concept known as a "partnership of equals." Neither the husband or wife assumes the dominate, or authoritarian role.

The transition from one pattern to the other is difficult and the brunt of responsibility lies heavily with the husband, more so than with the wife. Some husbands, however, do not see the need or advantage of surrendering power in exchange for cooperation. They may also feel their rights are being challenged and threatened. Or, perhaps, they just don't want to bother changing their behavior patterns. But, if the marriage is to be a relationship of equals, as well as a growing relationship, this transition must be made and demands all the "maleness" that a man can produce.

Lt. Gov. Collins Casts Tie-Breaking Vote on Collective Bargaining Bill

Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins cast a tie-breaking vote to defeat a collective bargaining bill for teachers in the Senate Wednesday.

The lieutenant governor, a former teacher, serves as Senate president. Extra votes were cast by her vote, Senate Bill 149 would have been defeated by the 19-19 tie since a majority is needed for bill passage.

During Lt. Gov. Collins' campaign for office last year she took a stand against professional negotiations for teachers. Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr. and the Kentucky Education Association have supported collective bargaining for teachers.

Senate supporters of SB 149 a committee substitute in an attempt to pass the proposed legislation was a simple "meet and confer" bill which would require only that a local school board recognize a teachers' organization and discuss issues in "good faith."

Opponents expressed fear that SB 149 is a labor bill which would cause strife between the board, teachers and parents and would remove control of the schools from the public and its elected officials.

The original bill was sponsored by Sen. William Quinlan (D-Louisville), Sen. Georgia Powers (D-Louisville) and Sen. Daniel Meyer (D-Louisville).

Quinlan said the committee substitute, though "weaker in some areas," is similar to professional negotiation bills passed by the Senate in previous legislative sessions.

Several supporting and opposing Senators explained their votes during the roll call on Senate bill 149.

Sen. Pat. McCusiston (D-Pembroke), a former educator and PTA president, said he's studying the bill trying to find justification for its passage. But after listening to all sides he decided professional negotiations is "bad for education."

Sen. John Doug Hays (D-Pikeville) spoke for the bill. Hays said "meet and confer" means many things to many people, but he had read the bill repeatedly and could not find grounds to justify fears expressed about SB 149.

Hays said he feels the bill would give official recognition to teachers' organizations and at "worst" would give a "public airing" to differences between the boards and teachers.

In other Senate action Wednesday, the following bills were passed.

House Bill 402, which would require all insurers issuing individual health insurance policies to make home health care coverage available. The bill, sponsored by Rep. James Boyd (D-Louisville) and other representatives, passed 21-8.

Sen. Benny Ray Bailey (D-Hindman) a health care administrator, said home care coverage would help those who need it most but can least afford it—elderly people on fixed incomes. Bailey said care at home would enable the elderly to remain out of institutions and nursing homes.

Senate Bill 27, a committee substitute, which would allow state regional universities to fund reduction of faculty member contribution to the teachers' retirement fund. The bill, filed by the Interim Joint Committee on Education, passed 34-2.

Sen. Robert Martin (D-Richmond), a retired university educator, said there are two retirement systems operating at state universities with different faculty contribution rates. The bill is aimed at allowing boards of universities with higher rates to lower the employee contribution.

Teachers' Insurance Annuity Association operates at Northern University of Kentucky, and the University of Louisville. Employees pay 5 percent of their gross income and employers pay 10 percent.

The Teachers' Retirement System operates at Eastern, Kentucky State, Morehead, Murray, and Western universities. At those universities both employee and employer each pay 7.84 percent.

This bill is permissive legislation which would allow the universities to voluntarily fund equalization from their existing budgets. The original bill included a state appropriation to the Teachers' Retirement System for that purpose.

Sen. Ed O'Daniel (D-Springfield) expressed concern that public school teachers under the same Teachers' Retirement System would still be paying a higher rate. Martin responded that it would be desirable to remove all inequities within the retirement systems. But this particular bill would eliminate inequities in the same category.

university faculty members, he said.

In other business, the Senate recommitted Senate Bill 38 and its floor amendments to the Senate State Government Committee. The bill would combine the new Energy Regulatory and Utility Regulatory Commissions, and re-establish the old Public Service Commission. SB 38 is sponsored by Sen. Tom Easterly (D-Frankfort).

Weather stripping is one of the easiest and least expensive ways to save energy in the home.

With spring almost here and summer just sure to follow, thought you might like some tips to make you feel and look better. And maybe you'd like some quick and easy menus to prepare, for the days that you'd rather be outside than over the stove.

With the new heels showing up, every gal from teen to grandma wants a pair. We who grew up in the sixties called them "spike heels". How we moaned when the wedges and earth shoes appeared and the heel disappeared. So here are a few tips for pretty feet.

1. Wash feet daily, drying good afterwards, especially between the toes.
2. After drying, massage a good lotion into the foot. (Every other day).

3. Massage some kind of powders into the feet-top, bottom, sides and between toes.

4. As you rub the powder or oil into the foot, exercise it bending and flexing the toe, arch and ankle of each foot.

5. Massage the back of the heel and the calves, rubbing from knee down, then back to the knee. This exercises the muscles and helps circulation.

6. Rough feet can be softened. Wet a pumice stone. Rub rough, hard skin.

7. Rub castor oil or vaseline in a large amount all over feet. Cover with two pair of old cotton socks. Sleep in them. Next morning wash feet in warm, soapy water. Dry. Powder.

8. Wear shoes that fit.
9. Be sure socks or stockings are correct size.

10. Launder socks and stockings between wearing.

11. Vary the height of your heels. If today you wore 3 inch heels tomorrow wear 2 1/2 inch heels. This helps stretch leg muscles and legs won't pain you so much when you must wear flats.

12. If it is damp weather and you have to be outside. Put an extra pair of shoes in the car. When the ones you're wearing become wet, change.

13. Air shoes out between wearing. Put some foot powder into them.

14. Go barefoot as much as possible around the house or wear soft shoes.

15. For rough, brown, elbows, knees and heels, try this. Rub the brown area gently with the fine side of an emery board. (Be careful as this will make the area tender.) Then apply lemon juice to the same spot. Let dry. Then rub baby oil into spot. Rub hands using a lot of lotion. This helps bleach and soften the area.

16. Remove nail polish from nails. In a small basin of hot soapy water-wash hands, using a nail brush, or old toothbrush-rub nail and fingertip area with brisk strokes. Dry hands good. Massage lotion in hand, using a lot of lotion. When lotion has dried, give yourself a manicure.

Armed Robbery Attempt at Burr Exxon

Employees of the Exxon Station at Burr reported an attempted armed robbery to State Police Monday night.

According to State Police Detective Fred Walton, Frank Hoskins of Route 4, London, an attendant at the station, reported that he and Keith Abney of Mt. Vernon were sitting inside the station about 9:30 p.m., when a green Datsun pulled in near the front door and a white male got out and came in. The man then reportedly pointed a gun at Hoskins and demanded the money. Hoskins told police he reached into his right front pocket, pulled out a .25 calibre semi-automatic pistol and, allegedly, fired a shot, striking the man in the lower left abdomen. Hoskins said the man then got back into his car and left the station, traveling north on U.S. 25.

GET YOUR ACT TOGETHER!

The Rockcastle Revue will be held again this year at the Menfro Valley Barn in May, sponsored by the Woman's Club of Mt. Vernon.

The planning committee promises another great show this year and will be busy recruiting local talent for the Revue. If you have any suggestions or know of an entertaining act, call Leah Riddle, 256-4709 or Nancy Mullins, 256-4252.

Last year's Revue was a tremendous success; the barn was full to capacity and the audience was entertained by about 20 local acts. The planning committee will try to shorten the show this year and limit the number of acts to about 15 but its going to be tough! Our county is so full of talented people.

Rockcastle To Hold First

Blood Drive of 1980 March 27

On Thursday, March 27th, 1980, the Rockcastle County Homemakers will sponsor the first blood drive of the year for Rockcastle County Residents. Rockcastle County was awarded "Total Coverage" for 1980 which means that enough pints were donated in 1979 by Rockcastle Countians so that every county resident will have as much blood available to them as they would need, anywhere in the United States, without having to pay replacement deposit fees on the blood. This will be the first of 3 blood drives in 1980.

Approximate times are 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. for 150 pints for the year. This is the same goal break-in at the Country Store Monday night but the burglar was apparently scared off by the return of an employee of the store. Nothing was taken in this break-in.

as last year even though usage at Rockcastle County has gone up.

If each blood drive nets 65 pints thus obtaining the yearly goal of 195 pints, then Rockcastle County will maintain their "Total Coverage" status for 1980.

Please, Rockcastle Countians, you have something good going, please don't lose it. Come out and donate at the Bank of Mt. Vernon on Thursday, March 27th, 1980, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. and again between 1:00 and 4:30 p.m. at the Rockcastle County Courthouse.

Council Votes To Spend Monies To Increase Water Plant Capacity

The Mt. Vernon City Council voted Monday night to proceed with the installation of tube settlers in the settling basin, a change-over to a high-rate filter on one of the two filters in the water plant and the re-wiring of both pumps in an effort to increase the plant's capacity.

Engineer Jack Crawford told the council that part of the problem was that material from the lake which should be staying in the settling basin was coming over the top and going through the filters and clogging them, causing a lessening of capacity and the necessity for having to back-wash filters more often. Mr. Crawford said this problem could be taken care of by the installation of tube settlers, which would prevent the material from the lake washing over the top of the basin and the high-rate filter would allow more water to be filtered and this would increase the plant's capacity to about 1,750,000 gallons. Mr. Crawford also said it would be necessary to re-wire the two water pumps at the plant so that they could both be used at the same time and the extra capacity gained.

Mr. Crawford, who was accompanied to the meeting by Clyde Mason, a consulting engineer, said that a contractor had estimated the job to cost somewhere in the neighborhood of $35,000 but that of course the project would have to be advertised for bids.

The council voted to proceed with the project and approved a bid notice which will be found in the classified section of this week's paper.

Bids for construction of a sidewalk and street, leading to the elderly housing project behind city hall, were opened during Monday night's meeting and J.C. Newland and Son of Broadhead were the apparent low bidder.

The council was not able to award the bid at the meeting because of the question of why the cost of fill dirt, which would be needed for grading, etc., was not included in the original bid. Mr. Newland did not include this cost in his bid because this caused the council to decide to get in touch with the engineer to clarify the matter and to wait on awarding the bids until this was done.

The council did award a bid to Glenn Pittman for tearing down and hauling off materials from the old Idea Cafe Building on Main Street which the city recently purchased. The area will be used for additional public parking and Councilman Tom Welch said he had talked with several landowners in the area who had agreed to their land adjacent to the lot being used for parking. The council presently plans to install parking meters on the portion of the lot they own.

Councilman Welch also brought up once again the numbering of houses and permanent business houses in Mt. Vernon. Mr. Welch said he felt this was a necessity since the town was obviously going to keep growing. Bud Cox, who was present at the meeting, suggested that the Rockcastle County Jaycees might be willing to serve as volunteers to set-up a numbering system for the town and the council appointed Mr. Welch to head up this program.

Poplar Street Extension is the street chosen by the council to spend their municipal aid money on this year. Mayor Mullins told the council that the amount received had been reduced to $5,800 and this would buy approximately 232 tons of blacktop - 32 tons of which will be used for patch work. The remaining 200 tons will be used to blacktop Poplar Street extension for approximately 1200 feet. The 180 foot length of street will be blacktopped 14 feet wide and ditches will be pulled. This will mean that several property owners on the street will have to buy culverts for their driveways which will be installed by the city.

Mayor Mullins told the council that there will be some money in the general fund in the 1980-81 budget for blacktopping other streets in Mt. Vernon and the council was in general agreement that School Street and Williams Street were in most need of blacktop with these funds.

The council then discussed, at some length, the newly constructed curb which the hospital built across from the Gil Craig residence. The fire department contends that they cannot make the turn, which the new curb demands, with their new fire truck. Fire department officials also said the curb would force them to use the streets off Richmond Street to gain access to some houses in case of fire and in wet weather this area could not be used.

The council feels there is a possibility that the curb is constructed out into the street which was decided to the city by the county for maintenance.

Several members of the hospital board and the administrator showed up at the meeting later and said that before the curb was built it was surveyed and, according to this survey, had been built exactly on the hospital's property line.

On the recommendation of City Attorney Carl Clontz, the matter will be resolved by hiring an engineer to survey the area.

"No swimming" and "Danger-Keep Off" signs will be posted, the council decided in certain areas of Lake Linville before the summer. Councilman Ernie Toot said there was a chance of someone being hurt because of swimming in areas other than the area designated and he felt the "No Swimming" signs were badly needed. He also proposed that a "Danger-Keep Off" sign be posted on the intake valve stand near the dam.

Ronnie Langdon was before the council to make them aware of his intention to begin a garbage collection business in Mt. Vernon provided the council would agree not to enter this business themselves for a period of time to be designated.

Mr. Langdon said he was not concerned with individuals starting a collection route but that he felt that it would damage him too seriously if the council decided to impose a mandatory collection service and charge a fee which would be added to the water bill.

The council assured Mr. Langdon that they had no intention of entering the garbage collection business but did not feel that they could legally bind the city to a contract, over a period of years, such as he requested.

Also during the meeting, Bill James, a member of the All-Kentucky City Committee for Mt. Vernon previewed the film which was to be presented today as part of Mt. Vernon's entry in the All-Kentucky City (Cont'd to P-5) has given his public support to House Bill 124 but in all probability it will not be passed into law until 1982.

House Bill 263 seeks to prohibit the taking of red and grey fox, or possessing raw furs and hides during the months of December, January, and February. House Bill 262 has been passed in the Natural Resources and Environment committee and it seems to have an excellent chance of becoming law.

House Bill 493 seeks to permit public school teachers to conduct one minute of prayer at the commencement of each school day. A bill similar to this has already passed in the House and I voted for it, because I believe it to be worthwhile.

House Bill 604 seeks to require payroll deductions deposited by state employees in the Public Employees Deferral Compensation system be placed in an authorized bank account. By being placed in an authorized bank account, the funds will gain interest payments.

House Bill 604 is the product of an investigation conducted by the Program Review and Investigations Committee, it will save the Commonwealth $35,000 per year. House Bill 604 has been passed by the House and will most certainly become law.

If you have any questions or opinions on these bills which I have introduced, please write to: Rep. Harold DeMarcus, State Capitol, Frankfort, Ky. 40611.

Pasture Renovation Demonstration

Farmers, do you want to double the yield on each acre of pasture? Then be sure to attend the demonstration on the farm of Roy G. Brown in the Quail Community on Thursday, March 20, 1980.

The program will begin at 12:00 noon on the farm with dinner being furnished by the Bank of Mt. Vernon and served by the Quail Homemakers. Pasture Renovation Demonstration will start at 1:30 p.m. with two different methods.

One method is with the John Deere machine which was developed with the help of the University of Kentucky and does a complete job at one time over the field.

The other method is called the Zebra because of the stripes. A boom sprayer is used to kill the grass in 8' to 10' wide stripes and then seeded to legumes.

For more productive pasture and hay fields be sure to come and see these test plots being done on the farm on KY-70, where it will be easy for you to check the plots during the summer.

The demonstration is sponsored by your Rockcastle Soil Conservation Service in cooperation with the ASCS Extension Service, SSC and others.

Everyone is welcome to attend this demonstration.

Learn Your Rights Under Consumer Credit Legislation

Recent consumer credit legislation protects consumers from being discriminated against.

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act means that applicants must treat each applicant for credit the same. An understanding of the main features of this legislation is important if you are trying to establish a credit rating.

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act prohibits credits from discriminating against you on the basis of sex, or marital status, because of race, religion, color, national origin, age, reliance on income from public assistance, or because you may have exercised your rights under consumer protection law.

This doesn't mean that you are entitled to credit whenever you want it. You must still satisfy the lender that you are willing and able to repay.

While the lender may not normally ask for your sex, race, color, religion or national origin, you must be asked such questions according to another law, when you apply for residential mortgage.

The questions are required to build a history of facts that will help to enforce the law against discrimination in mortgage loans. The information cannot be used by the lender in evaluating your application.

Couples can apply For a Loan Separately

Under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, a married woman may use either her maiden or married last name in applying for credit. Also, either spouse may ask for a loan separately provided he or she is credit worthy.

Loan ceiling and finance charges will then be determined individually, not on the couple's combined finances. However, marital status is a legitimate question when property owned jointly by the couple is used as collateral.

A lender may also ask your place; notice of your right to request within 60 days the chief specific reason for refusal, if the lenders has merely cited your credit score. The lender must then respond to you within 30 days.

Lenders must determine whether you are able and willing to repay a loan. They do this by looking at your credit records. Therefore, it is important that you pay bills regularly and on time to establish a good credit rating.

In many communities, local businesses and associates verify a person's credit rating by phone or personal contact. In larger communities where people are not well known, credit bureaus made up of business representatives were established to keep credit histories and credit ratings on those people using credit.

Information in credit files must be accurate and fair. The Fair Credit Reporting Act was recently passed to make sure the information in the files of the credit reporting bureaus is accurate, or corrected if not. Under this act you are entitled to know the nature, substance, and sources of all data in your file. If you have been denied credit within the past 30 days, you may obtain all data from the credit bureau without charge. You may ask who has received your file for credit purposes in the past 6 months, and for employment purposes in the past 2 years.

If you consider any information in your file to be incomplete or inaccurate, you may have it rechecked. And, if information cannot be substantiated, or is incorrect, it must be removed from your file.

You are also entitled to have those who received inaccurate or incomplete or disputed information notified of changes. Consumers should request that this be sent.

If rechecking doesn't settle a dispute, you may have a statement placed in your file telling your side of the story.

Credit bureaus are required to remove any adverse information in your file that is older than seven years, or in the case of bankruptcy, 14 years.

UNEMPLOYMENT RATE REMAINS HIGH

Unemployment throughout Eastern Kentucky remained high in January as 8.7 percent of the area's labor force was unemployed. That rate is 2.4 percentage points above the state's January unemployment rate of 7.3 percent, according to statistics released today by the Department for Human Resources.

In January there were 29,750 persons searching for employment in Eastern Kentucky, where 21 of 34 counties had unemployment rates higher than 10 percent. Only one county in the area had less than 6 percent unemployment, said Robert MacDonald, the department's chief labor market analyst.

"This area traditionally has the highest unemployment in the state, primarily because of the lack of job opportunities," MacDonald said. "Currently the coal industry is depressed, causing the area's unemployment to be even higher."

Martin County had the area's lowest unemployment rate at 4.8 percent, while Menifee County had the highest rate, 18.1 percent.

The national rate of unemployment was 6.8 percent in January.

Rockcastle County's percentage rate for January was 10.6.

The film was divided into different categories and showed the progress which had been made in Mt. Vernon and Rockcastle County over the past year. Mrs. Les Harris and Mrs. Tony Hopkins are chairpersons for the local committee.

As one of the last orders of business, the council and mayor made a recommendation to local businessmen that, in view of the recent rash of break-ins, they might consider staying in their business places periodically all night to see if this might help prevent some of the burglaries.

She was born January 13, 1907 in Rockcastle County, the daughter of the late Ben and Julia Cummins.

Gov. Brown Announces Compromise Plan for Compensation Bills

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. announced a compromise plan for workmen's compensation bills pending before the General Assembly in a news conference Monday.

The legislation he proposes would give a stronger balance to both labor and employers in solving controversial workmen's compensation problems, Brown said.

Rep. Lloyd Clapp (D-Wingo) agreed to substitute the governor's bill, with certain changes, for House Bill 532 which he introduced.

One of the provisions in the governor's bill sets up a "variable cap" on benefits to partially disabled workers. Kentucky would apparently be the first state to adopt such a provision, the governor said.

As a variable cap would vary the length of time during which a partially disabled worker receives benefits according to the seriousness of the disability. It is more generous to the worker whose injury is greater, Brown pointed out.

Caps on disability benefits used in other states usually cut off benefits to partially disabled workers after a set length of time has passed or a set amount of benefits has been paid. The more seriously disabled worker is treated the same as the less seriously disabled worker.

Under the proposed variable cap system, if a worker has a 20 percent disability he would receive six years of benefits (20 percent of 30 years), Brown said.

Totally disabled workers would receive their benefits for life under the governor's bill with the maximum amount of weekly benefits set at $217 (100 percent of the state average weekly wage).

Changes that will be made in the governor's bill before it is substituted for Rep. Clapp's bill include:

—Upping the mandatory reduction in premiums from 25 to 27 percent savings of some $75 million to state businesses, according to Brown.

—Making the five-member Workmen's Compensation Board a full-time body with board members asking the same salary as circuit judges.

—Endorsing House Joint Resolution 24 which appropriates $150,000 for an outside actuarial study over the next year to take a comprehensive look at the worker's compensation law.

—Elimination of state contributions to the state black lung fund and a 6 percent increase in coal miners' contributions. According to Brown, this method would reduce coal miners' premiums by only 21 percent instead of 26 percent.

—Extending the period for contesting a claim from 30 days to 90 days. The governor said this provision would cut up to $1.5 million annually from total attorney fees in black lung cases.

"The bill I am proposing today may not please everyone, but it is the fairest solution I have found for both employers and employees," Brown said. "Our experience over the next two years may indicate other changes that should be made."

Senate Bill 148

Deals With Motorists

Motorists convicted of traffic offenses could be sentenced to driver improvement program in lieu of other penalties under a bill which passed the Senate on Monday.

Senate Bill 148, which now goes to the House, would direct the Kentucky Department of Transportation to design such a program "to create a lasting and corrective influence on the driving performance of traffic offenders." A driver sentenced to the driver improvement program would have to pay a $15 fee to defray costs of operating the program.

The amended bill, sponsored by Sen. William Quinlan (D-Louisville) and Sen. Bill "Fibber" McGee (D-Louisville), passed 34-0. Quinlan said the proposed program is based on a Jefferson County drivers' school.

Originally the bill would have required the state Administrative Office of the Courts to establish the program in cooperation with KYDOT. But a floor amendment sponsored by Sen. Ed O'Daniel (D-Springfield), switching administration to the Transportation Department, passed 18-16.

The Senate also passed SB 246, a second bill relating to motorists. The bill would make a learner's permit valid for six months rather than 90 days. Sen. Woodrow Stamper (D-West Liberty), a bill sponsor, said the extension would give aspiring drivers more time to prepare for the test. SB 246 passed 35-0 and now goes to the House.

In other action, the Senate passed two House bills which now go to the governor for consideration:

—House Bill 396, which would extend jurisdiction of commonwealth's detectives to allow them power of arrest in all counties comprising their districts, and the right to serve process (legal documents) statewide. The bill, sponsored by Rep. Bobby Richardson (D-Glasgow), passed 22-1.

Under the current law, detectives are in the office of commonwealth's attorney were limited to the same power of arrest and right to executive process as sheriffs. This limited adjustment and the meter reading upon which the bill was computed. A committee amendment deletes a requirement that the preceding meter reading and consumption rate be on the new bill. SB 222 passed 30-0.

—SB 222, also sponsored by Moloney, would create new law regarding public utilities to include a "conspicuous notation" of the applicable rate schedule for the service, charges for fuel

Badge Of Security

Of course, a good investment must earn an attractive return, but more important it should be safe. Perhaps that's why more and more people turn to the security of our bank where every account is insured up to $40,000 and the interest rate is excellent.

Don't forget no one has ever lost one dime in a federally insured bank.

WINNERS & LOSERS

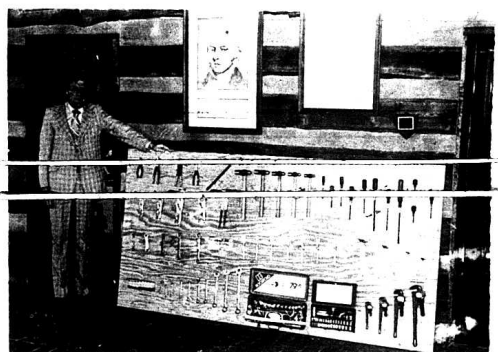

Some winners have helped make winners of us all: health and safety all over the world may have been improved by the winning ways of a number of people in Argentina.

Newborn babies and prospective diabetes may live longer, better lives, thanks to the work of 1970 Nobel Prize winner, Bernardo Houssay, who is also known as the father of Luis Federico Leloir. This biochemist discovered fascinating facts about sugar that doctors say could lead to a way to predict and prevent diabetes and identify galactosemia—a disease in which infants have a fatal intolerance to milk.

The people of Argentina are also winning the battle for safer streets that is being waged in cities all over the world. With sufficient government support, the police there are able to go a long way toward discouraging terrorists to lose their interest in crime.

Another Nobel Prize winner from Argentina, Bernardo Houssay, won his award for work on problems of the pituitary gland which controls human growth functions. He is also known as the creator of the Argentine School of Physiology, which can turn out scientists that can help the whole world win the fight against suffering.

These five girls were named to the District All-Tournament team last Saturday night at the 49th District Tournament held in Jackson County. All five starters were selected for the honor. They are, from left: Libby Ruppe, freshman, Donna Faulkner, junior, Tracy Mulberry, sophomore and seniors Kaye Hammond and Kim Howard.

Girls

The RCHS girls team had to settle for runners-up in the 49th District Tournament Saturday night as they lost to Clay County by a score of 53-40.

The girls had advanced to the championship game by beating Oneida by a massive 50 points - 77-27. In that game, the girls could do no wrong as they played excellent defense and put the ball in the hoop on the offensive end. The Rockets also had much better coaching and a great deal more talent going for them than did Oneida.

The girls jumped out to a 22-6 lead at the end of the first quarter and the outcome of the game was never in doubt as they led by 34 at half-time and extended their lead throughout the second half.

Kim Howard played a fine game and led the girls in scoring with 18 while the amazing freshman, Libby Ruppe, had 17 points. Senior Kaye Hammond pumped in 12; Tracy Mulberry, 9; Donna Faulkner, 8; Glenna Reams, 5; Diana Caldwell and Sandy Clark, 2 each and Sheila Burton, 6.

The girls then lost to Clay in the finals of the district Saturday night but not hardly by as much as the boys stunning 40 point loss. The girls final score was 53-40.

Down by 10 at the end of the first quarter, the girls were forced to play catch-up the rest of the game but the 30-point deficit proved however to be insurmountable.

Donna Faulkner turned in an excellent performance, leading the girls by 14 points; Kim Howard had another good game, getting 11; while Libby Ruppe and Kaye Hammond each got 5; Tracy Mulberry had 3 and Sandy Clark, 2.

Regional Play

The girls then traveled to Knox Central at Barbourville to do battle in the 13th region with Cawood. They did not turn in their best performance of the season and with their mainstay, Donna Faulkner, absent due to illness in her family, the girls were defeated 61-31.

The girls did not play the poorly the first half, going to the dressing room down by only 9 at half-time. However, when the girls scored only 2 points in the entire third quarter, that pretty much sealed their doom as the Rockets did not have a player in double figures.

Cawood, winner of their district, was just too much for the girls to handle.

Libby Ruppe led the scoring with 9 points; Kaye Hammond and Sandy Clark each got 5; Tracy Mulberry and Sheila Burton each got 4; Cynthia Holbrook, 2 and Kim Howard, 1.

Boys and Girls Finish Runners-Up In 49th Dist.

THE RCHS boys' team placed four men on the all-tournament team during the district tournament last Saturday night. All four of these boys are seniors and are, from left: David Riddle, Trent Mullins, Mike Manis and Marty Hensley. They

Boys

The RCHS Rockets suffered their worst defeat of the season Saturday night as they came away from Jackson County, and the District Tournament, with a 40-point loss and the runner-up trophy.

The Rockets did not have a good night Saturday night against Clay County but when they beat Oneida Thursday night, to advance to the championship game, they were at their best.

Rockcastle won this ballgame 64-63 on some clutch shooting by Marty Hensley and Matt Poynter at the foul line. Oneida's big man, Ben Franklin, was ineffective through the entire game. On several occasions, when Oneida needed Franklin's points, he responded by shooting air balls which hit nothing and sometimes almost missing the gym.

However, the Rockets played a fine game, both offensively and defensively, hitting the boards well and not falling apart in the final period as they have done several times this season.

Rockcastle's seniors pulled them through as guard Marty Hensley led all scorers with 16 points; Mike Manis got 11 on the night and seniors David Riddle and Trent Mullins each scored 9 points. Matt Poynter, who hit the boards very hard on both ends of the court, and who was the only starter who was unjustly kept off the all-tournament team, had 11 points and David Burdine and Danny Offutt each got 3.

Rockcastle then suffered a 40-point drubbing at the hands of Clay Saturday night in the championship game with the final score being 85-45.

Rockcastle was in the ballgame at the end of the first quarter when the score was 14-12. However, in the second period, Clay County began to pull away and that was all she wrote for Rockcastle as they were not even to be in the ballgame the rest of the way.

Glenn Gregory led a Clay County offense that virtually destroyed the Rockets hope of at least a close loss. And, it appeared the Rockets quit when they got behind during the second quarter which opened the door for the 40-point deficit.

In the Clay County game, the Rockets were led in scoring with 11 points; Mike Manis got 10; David Burdine and Matt Poynter each had 6; Marty Hensley, 4; Anthony Davidson, 3; Trent Mullins and Steve Phelps, 2 each and Danny Offutt, 3.

The Rockets were scheduled to play Lynch in regional action Wednesday night and this report will be in next week's Signal.

Kentucky Archery

Deer hunters will find many familiar features in this year's regulations, but they will also find something new—the possibility of taking two deer in the state's open countries.

Under the two-deer, two-tag system adopted by the Fish and Wildlife Commission at its March 20 meeting in Frankfort, a hunter will be allowed to take two deer by bow and crossbow or one by gun and one by bow or crossbow.

Gun hunters will be allowed to take two deer only if one is taken from the Blue, Ft. Campbell, Lang between the Lakes, the Blue Grass Army Depot or the Ballard Wildlife Management Area. Under no circumstances may a hunter legally take more than two deer in Kentucky.

Because it's difficult to take deer by archery—only 1,266 deer were taken by bow last year, as compared with 12,300 taken by gun hunters—biologists feel that this system will greatly expand the opportunity to hunt deer and at the same time keep harvests within acceptable limits.

After taking his first deer, a hunter may purchase a "second deer" permit. This tag, like the "first deer" permit, will cost $10.50. A portion of the first tag, showing when and by what method (gun, bow or crossbow) the first deer was taken, must be in the hunter's possession to validate the "second deer" permit.

Here are examples of how this system will work:

If a hunter takes his first deer by gun in an open country, he may take his second deer only by bow or crossbow in open countries, or by an legal method on the "special areas" listed above.

If the first deer is taken by gun from a special area, the second deer may be taken by any legal method in open countries (or from another special area, if the hunter is lucky enough to be selected in the drawings for these areas).

If the first deer is taken by bow from an open country or special area, the second deer may be taken by any legal method.

Bow hunting season will open Oct. 1 and run through Dec. 30, except for the six days of gun hunting. Bow and cross-

Donna Faulkner, far right, looks for a pass in the championship game of the 49th District girls tournament at Jackson Co. High School Saturday night. Donna had 14 points to lead the girls in scoring and when she was unable to play in the regional tournament Tuesday afternoon at Knox Central against Cawood, she was greatly missed. The girls lost to Cawood by a stunning 61-31.

EKU Baseball Team Opens 1980 Schedule With Four Games In South Carolina

Eastern Kentucky University's baseball Colonels opened their 50-game 1980 schedule Tuesday, March 11, with four games in the state of South Carolina.

Cosch Jim Ward's EKU club opened the season Tuesday with a single game with Erskine College at Due West, then travels to Aiken for a game with USC-Aiken Wednesday. The highly-touted South Carolina Gamecocks will be the foe Thursday and the trip concludes with a game versus Furman at Greenville Friday.

"The weather has been kind of rough and we haven't had a chance to get outside much. We will probably be a little rough around the edges our first week, but this trip south is, all about," said Ward.

Senior All-OVC righthander Tom McNulty heads the EKU mound corps with last season's 6-1 record. Other pitchers expected to add strength to this year's staff are senior Greg Wiseman; junior Jim Harkins; sophomores Tom Horvath, David Shaw, Randy Lykes and Mark Parton; and freshman Steve Rehbold.

"Our pitchers have gone through an excellent conditioning program, but they haven't been able to throw from a mound much. We'll just have to wait and see what kind of velocity and control they can come up with down south," Ward said.

Expected to provide much of the offensive punch is senior outfielder Craig Meyer (299, 4HR's, 11 RBI's) and junior "curve" pitcher David Napier (299, 5 HR's, 9 RBI's). Other newcomers to the team who are being counted on by Ward are catchers Bud Fries and Joe Myers; infielders Mark Klein, Mike Woelker and Kevin Kocks; and outfielders Scott Quessel and Kevin Tully.

Tri-captains for the 1980 season will be returning lettermen Mike Weaver and Paul David Brown, along with Kocks. Weaver batted .253 while playing shortstop last year and Brown hit .172.

Following the Colonels' trek south, EKU will entertain Centre in its home opener Monday, March 17, in a 1 p.m. doubleheader.

Archery Club

Special Meeting

The Rockcastle County Archery Club will hold a special meeting Friday night, March 14 at the Rockcastle County Courthouse at 7:00 p.m. Officers for the coming year will be elected. All members of the club are urged to attend this meeting.

The Rockets' boys team and their cheerleaders sit dismayed after their crushing 43-41 loss to Clay County in the championship game of the 49th District Tournament. Rockcastle advanced to the finals by beating Oneida 64-63.

Marty Hensley, No. 22, brings the ball down the court in Thursday night's action against Oneida in the district tournament. Marty was a very big factor in the boys' win as he calmly sank a free throw and hit a needed lay-up in the closing minutes of play. Marty had 16 points on the night and was named to the all-tournament team for his efforts.

LEXINGTON—"There's no tomorrow." I'm sure it was not original, but the late Adolph Rupp always trotted out those three words about this time every year. It was Coach Rupp's admonition that no game in a tournament could be treated lightly because one loss meant the season was over. How right he was.

The boys' and girls' high school teams are at it across Kentucky now. The college teams are involved in the two national tournaments, the N.C.A.A. which will be decided in Indianapolis and the N.I.T. which will hold the final shootout in Madison Square Garden in New York.

I've been an observer on the tournament scene for over a quarter of a century and I think the teams that win the tournaments must have certain qualities. First of all, the best team does not always win. In a situation where one loss means elimination, upsets are commonplace. The teams that wins, I think, has to have five ingredients.

1. It must have talent. There is still no substitute for good ball players.
2. It must be able to sustain emotion and enthusiasm over the entire course of the tournament. Any team that looks past an opponent is almost sure to get an early trip home.
3. A team must peak at tournament time. All teams play better at some stages of the season than at others. A tournament champion must be coming right to the top of its game at the right time. It happened to the University of Kentucky team in 1958. If had lost six games during the regular season and to that time no team had ever won the N.C.A.A. with that many defeats. Kentucky hit its peak right at tournament time and went on to win the national championship.
4. It must be a team effort. The great individual stars; the sport's highest scorers seldom bring home the big prize. Tournament champions are usually made up of players who are willing to sacrifice personal glory for the good of the team.

5. Luck. In close games good luck never hurt anybody. Watch the tournaments this month. Study the teams. I think you'll agree the winner will have these five ingredients. If the team doesn't it will be "no tomorrow" very soon.

Concerned Citizens Pack Shale Subcommittee Hearings

Over 100 citizens, legislators and Kentucky officials packed the hearings on shale oil mining in Frankfort on Thursday, March 6. Dave Martin of the Attorney General's office spoke of the destructive effects the broad form type deed has had on Eastern Kentucky lands and the dangers this broad form lease of Addington Oil company poses to our farmlands. When almost any and everything you can think of to mine is covered in a lease or mineral deed, when there are no regulations to control the mining of all those possibilities, when we know from the history of Eastern Kentucky what strip mining does to land even when it is regulated, and when the company obtaining those leases uses the good nature and trust of people to mislead them with verbal assurances into signing a lease that many would never sign again knowing what they know now, you have the makings of a very interesting subcommittee hearing.

Representative Raymond Overstreet, Republican from Casey County, said people in his county were made enough about this company's (Addington's) practices that they might become violent if strip mining were begun on their property. Tim Murphy, of the Kentucky Rivers Coalition, said that private lands out west are leasing for shale oil at $2,000.00 an acre with royalties of 12%, a far cry from Kentucky's $1.00 an acre and 5%. There are reportedly only a total of 70,000 acres out west that contain shale deposits which contain oil compared to the 350,000 acres that have been leased in Kentucky alone.

The Appalachian Coalition called for a 2 year ban on shale mining until the results of a series of pilot mining and processing projects had been studied by the Department for Natural Resources and other appropriate agencies. Senator O'Daniel, Democrat from Washington county introduced a bill in the Senate calling for such a ban and subsequent study and impact statements.

Of concern to citizens of these counties involved, is not only the mining techniques that will take place, but the impact that the large scale processing plants will have on our farmland and in our communities. There are many pollutants that spent shale contains, such as salts, flouride, boron and molybdenum, which can leach off of plant sites into the surrounding water supply and onto productive farm land. Fortune magazine, in its September 1979 issue has stated "That if would take 20 plants, each producing 50,000 barrels of oil a day to supply just 5% of our present needs for liquid fuel. "Just how many of these mammoth plants will eventually dot central Kentucky's farmlands?"

Some folks aren't upset about these questions, some folks are. If you are one that is concerned over what may happen to your land, send in your affidavit using the suggestions in the accompanying article. To date 90% of those farmers who signed leases in Marion County have sent their affidavits in to the Attorney General's office. Other counties are beginning to respond similarly and the Attorney General's Office said they had received an additional 10 affidavits from neighboring Madison County in the mail on Tuesday. More on this Macinac issue next week right here in the Mt. Vernon Signal. In the meantime, if you desire any more information, please call Jan Sutherland, at Appalachian Coalition Central Office, right here in Rockcastle County, 758-4127.

MEMORANDUM

To: All People Concerned With the Mineral Leases Signed With Addington Oil Company From Appalachian Coalition Central Office.

Recent articles in the paper and announcements on the radio have been informing people of the widespread mineral leasing throughout our counties and the questionable nature of both the lease itself and conditions under which many folks signed. The Attorney General's Office of Consumer Protection wants signed affidavits from persons who feel the lease was misrepresented to them. Following is a list of questions to ask yourself as you write out your affidavit. An affidavit is simply a statement that this is what you feel to be true as you remember it. The questions are provided to help you to think back to the time when you signed the lease and the circumstances under which you signed it. Did you mislead by the agent? How well and how long you know the agent? Was the # public figure at the time of signing or any time in the past? Would you have signed the lease if a stranger brought it to you or did you sign because you trusted the agent?

-Did you read the lease or have a lawyer read it before you signed it? Did the agent ask you to read it?

-Did you think you were signing the kind of lease you actually signed. If not, what did you think you were signing?

-Was strip mining mentioned? Were you told strip mining would or would not take place?

How did the agent tell you the oil would be obtained? How long did he tell you the lease you were signing would last?

Was a lawyers name mentioned as having read the lease and saying it was okay?

If a lawyers name was given, state this, was it?

Did you sign the lease in his presence. Did the agent sign it in your presence?

State your age and education. Can you read and write?

Discuss all the circumstances surrounding the lease. Were you rushed into signing it or did the agent take plenty of time to explain it to you?

Do you receive a copy of the lease or do you have to obtain a copy at your own expense?

If both husband and wife signed, or any 2 or more members of the family, be sure to say "we" and "us" when writing the affidavit. Get a copy of your lease and read it. If you find anything written on it that you do not remember being there when you signed it, or that does not agree with what you remember, state it in the affidavit.

Write your affidavit, put your address and phone number on it, and sign it before a Notary Public. Sent it to: The Attorney General's Office Div. of Consumer Protection 758-4127 Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

One additional thing you must do if you sign an affidavit to the Attorney General's Office of Consumer Protection, is to send a letter of Notification to Addington Oil Company. The wording of the letter might go something like this:

"Gentlemen, we are not satisfied with the lease we signed with the agent representing your company. The true contents of the lease were grossly misrepresented to us by the agent. Therefore, we have filed a complaint with the State Attorney General's Office for their review."

Change the wording of this Notification letter to fit your circumstances. Make two copies of the letter, keep one for your records, and send the other one to Addington Oil Company by registered mail.

Addington Oil Company 3060 Harrodsburg Road Suite 105 Lexington, Ky. 40511 Ph. 606-223-3824

When Addington receives your letter, you will receive a notice from the Post Office saying it has been received.

These questions and suggestions were prepared by a farmer who was one of the first people to publicly question these leasing provisions. He testified before the House of Representatives Committee on Natural Resources and Environment on January 31, 1980. Since then he has helped out a lot of people who are concerned with these leases. If you require further information, please call Jan Sutherland at the Appalachian Coalition office, 606-758-4127.

The Schneiders have been assigned to the South American country of Ecuador where there are currently 5,045 Jehovah's Witnesses among a population of 7,185,000.

"Although all of the 45 students in the class had previously been teachers of the Bible full time," Mr Schneider said, "the missionary course greatly sharpened our ability to teach God's Word, as well as showed us how better to apply the Bible's practical principles in our own lives."

"Jehovah's Witnesses," he went on to say, "do not get involved with politics or social reform in any country. Our work as missionaries will be to benefit individuals and communities by teaching the Bible's high moral standards and its message of God's kingdom as mankind's only hope."

Jehovah's Witnesses are a society of Christians who believe that God's kingdom is an actual government now ruling in the heaven which will soon take complete charge of the earth, bringing peace and perfect conditions to the human race. All of the 2.2 million Witnesses in 205 lands actively promote home Bible study in their communities, offering their services as trained teachers free of charge.

The Gilead School, since its founding in 1943, has specially trained more than 6,000 Jehovah's Witnesses as missionaries.

How to grow corn

Steve Trebolo's 200-plus bushel yields prove what soil tests can mean in the hands of a farmer who knows how to use all the information

HOW TO GROW CORN

Large slices of gray shale jut out of short, sharp-sided mountains on the road into Brodhead, Ky. The highway into town tends to follow a stream as it runs between the hills.

This is beautiful country, but it doesn't look like productive farmland from the road. Yet, get off the road, go on top of the hills and you can find small rolling fields fine for farming. Good for grain and grass, this land is well-suited to raising livestock.

It's an unlikely place to find anyone who might be called an outstanding crop farmer. Yet, it's here you'll find 28-year-old Steve Trebolo bringing in impressive crop yields.

Trebolo is a livestock farmer for sure. He recently started up a new hog facility and also backgrounds a few beef cattle. His crops are mostly used to feed the livestock; he has only 90 acres of corn and a few rented acres of soybeans.

Not exactly a big time crop grower, this farmer who makes Steve Trebolo knows how to grow a crop of corn.

About 6 years ago Trebolo graduated from the University of Kentucky with a bachelor's degree in agronomy plus a few graduate courses in the subject. From school he went to Ohio where he worked in a soil test lab. After 3 years at the lab, he moved back home, buying from his parents a 280-acre farm on top of a hill just outside of Brodhead.

Trebolo has applied all he has learned about soils. Doing what his farm supplier, Ken Stewart of Stewart of Stewart Fertilizer Service in nearby Mount Vernon, Ky., calls "by-the-book farming," Trebolo is a perfect example of how valuable a soil test can be in the hands of a farmer who understands it.

In this hilly, rocky land where the main crops are pasture and trees, this young farmer was able to coax 206.95 bushels of corn per acre out of his land last year, winning the area's SSC corn growing contest and coming in a close second among the regional winners from the cooperative's five-county area.

Corn growing award from Southern States in 2 years.

Ask Trebolo how he handles his soil, and it's quickly apparent it wasn't the seed, fertilizer or chemicals that brought about the high yields as much as it was his knowledge of agronomy.

"What's important is the cation exchange capacity," says Trebolo of his soil test results. "You don't know the capacity of the soil unless your test tells you this. It tells how often to fertilize and how much fertilizer to use. Without knowing the cation exchange capacity you don't know if a thousand pounds of potash is enough or too much."

"The cation exchange capacity is a measurement of the soil's ability to hold many plant nutrients, such as potassium, calcium and magnesium, in a form available to plants. Cations are plant nutrients with a positive electrical charge," he continues, sounding and looking more like a professor than a farmer with his grammatically correct sentences and dark-framed glasses.

"The importance of the exchange capacity is this: With a high exchange capacity you put on a lot of fertilizer and lime, but not very often. With a low exchange capacity you have to apply small amounts often," says Trebolo.

The cation exchange capacity is expressed in milliequivalents (M.E.). One milliequivalent of dry soil, Trebolo explains. This is a measure of the soil. One milliequivalent will hold a specific number of positive charges-cations.

For the best crop performance these cations must be in balance: 65 percent calcium, 13 percent potassium and 10 percent hydrogen.

"On my farm, with soil testing 8 M.E., I need 2,080 lbs./acre of calcium, 286 lbs./acre magnesium and 356 lbs./acre potassium in order to be in balance," explains Trebolo.

Phosphorus is a bit more complex. Testing for what's called the "Weak Bray" and the "Strong Bray" can give a grower a more complete picture of the active and reserve soil phosphorus.

"On my soil, 60 lbs./acre of phosphorus is desirable with the Weak Bray and 120 lbs./acre is desirable with the Strong Bray," says Trebolo. How much phosphorus he actually applies depends on the plowing depth and the crop.

"In my soil the exchange capacity is fairly low, but on sandy soil it can be even lower.

If you get into a clay soil, a gumbo soil like we tested in Ohio, you can run as high as 20 or 30 M.E.," he explains.

It's like a gas tank. If you have a 100-gallon gas tank, it takes a lot to fill up, but after you have it filled then you don't have to get gas for a long time. The guy with a small tank fills up quickly and cheaply, but he's back at the pump a lot.

"On the gumbo soil, that gumbo, it can take 10 years with small applications or one very large application of potash to get that soil built up to where they need it. But, after they have it built up, they might not need to fertilize with potash for 10 years."

"Here, I apply a little potash each year-what the soil test calls for. Phosphorus on this soil is real low-I just keep building it up again," says Trebolo.

As most every farmer does, when Trebolo reads a soil test he quickly converts the pounds of fertilizer to dollars of fertilizer. "I've been putting on a lot of magnesium until recently. I stopped simply because of the cost. I know what crops are going where and I can let the magnesium slip a little on the corn and not lose any yield," he notes.

"If I had pasture on this field, I might go for the ideal magnesium level so I wouldn't have to worry with grass test any."

Trebolo is among the growing number of farmers who believe that having the proper micronutrients (zinc, manganese, boron, copper, iron, molybdenum) plays an important part in bumping crop yields higher, but only after "balancing the major elements."

"On the winning test plot last year I put on a little zinc when I top-dressed with nitrogen in the spring because the corn looked a little weak. Later I attended an Extension Service field day and got to talking with one of the specialists. He said, putting on zinc with the nitrogen was the best thing I could do. I don't know if I can agree with him, I think it made a difference."

Not surprisingly, Trebolo has a reason when he chooses his seed corn.

"That SS 727 is probably one of the leading corn hybrids in the southern corn belt. I understand that its parents are two public breeds: B 73 and Missouri 17. That corn has been either number one or number two in the southern corn-belt for several years."

"While SS 727 has a good yield, it doesn't have the root and stalk of SS 775. That 775 can be difficult to pull out of the ground. Also, you can let the 775 go a little longer than the 727; you can be a little late in bringing 775 in and get away with it," Trebolo says. His seeding rate on his contest field was 28,000 kernels per acre; usually he plants his corn fields at 25,000 kernels per acre.

Although he has a problem with johnsongrass in his corn, Trebolo hasn't been scared off from using no-till following Trebolo doesn't soil-test for maximum yields so much as for maximum profits. By knowing what his crop needs and what the soil has, overspending on fertilizer is avoided.

Although he won the yield contest with SS 727, Trebolo says he likes the roots and stalk of SS 775.

Steve and Wanda Trebolo and their children, Adam and Rachel, look like a successful young farm family. "If they can't make it, nobody can," says Ken SS 775, manager of the local SSC agency.

"The best program for controlling Johnsongrass seems to be Eradicane. Last year we impregnated the fertilizer with Eradicane in the spring and it did a good job with us. I didn't know until last year you could put the Eradicane with the dry fertilizer, then disk it in.

"What I'm going to do is plant a crop one or two years using Eradicane, then one or two years with no-till. That way I can control both erosion and my Johnsongrass somewhat.

"On my sloping land I'm planning to put more alfalfa and get its deep roots to hold the soil."

Trebolo has turned to livestock despite his devotion to agronomy. "We had a computer analysis done on this farm at the University of Kentucky to see what the best operation for it would be," explains Trebolo.

"I knew what it would say to be the most profitable-dairying.

"Well, I didn't want to do that, so I asked for a printout of the second most profitable operation. It said hogs, corn and some beef cattle, so that's basically what we're doing. Most of the corn goes to the hogs and we're backgrounding some cattle-buying the steers at about 450 pounds and feeding them hay and a little grain for about 6 months. We're getting them to gain about a pound and a half a day."

Trebolo is aware that some people question the wisdom of "retreating" to pork business these days, but feels that if he keeps an eye on efficiency he will be able to stay in business. While his new 18-row farrowing house and utility building is started for now, later he hopes to add on a Mix-Mill feed processor along with more building and good equipment.

Steve Trebolo is obviously the kind of person who, besides checking over the details; he has an enthusiasm for careful management.

"Being careful is seldom thought of as a virtue these days, but to this young farmer looking over the finer points of his business is fine. It could be the enjoyment comes from finding his profits in the details.
