Mount Vernon Signal

Mount Vernon, Kentucky 40456

Eighteen acts performed, all made up of local talent, performed for the approximately 500 persons attending the show. One of the acts were these singers who presented songs from "The Music Man." Joint Effort Needed to Halt Destructive Strip Mining in County

By: Jan Sutherland
Keeping large-scale strip mining out of Rockcastle and Madison Counties will depend on how many people use the time between now and June 16 to cancel their leases. It is not enough to cancel 14 leases which is the state of things in Rockcastle County now. Even if several hundred out of the 16,000 leases remain under contract to Addington, Rockcastle County is inviting damage to water resources thru deep pit and strip mining techniques, storage of waste shale and air pollution from the processing plants.

The costs of mining are such that the processing plants, used to crush and extract the oil from the shale, must be within 2 miles of the mine site. So, not only do landowners have the problems of strip mining to deal with but also the further use of from 4-25 acres of this land for a processing plant which could use 75 barrels of water for every barrel of oil produced. Current technology sees operations of 50,000 barrels a day as common. At this rate, a plant would use 350,000 barrels of water per day for each mine site.

NAMES OMITTED

In the account of the death of John W. Griffin, which appeared in last week's Signal, the names of his two brothers were inadvertently omitted from the list of survivors.

G.H. "Hobe" Griffin and Vernon Griffin, both of Mt. Vernon, should have been included.

The Signal regrets this omission.

Construction crews will build the processing plant which need to be housed and heavy truck and machinery traffic on our country roads will have an impact on our communities. This is no longer an issue just for those who have signed leases, everyone in these counties should be alarmed. We all need to make it our business to keep informed.

Those people who are considering amending, instead of cancelling their leases, are strongly urged to consult good legal advice before doing so. The future interpretation of any amendments made to a lease this broad, is highly questionable. In order to protect what you now own and avoid future legal entanglement, the best option is to cancel your lease by June 16. This cannot be emphasized strongly enough. There are some people who still are not aware that if enough people keep their leases in this area, Rockcastle and Madison Counties are prime targets for early development because of their convenience to the Interstate. The areas will be mined and the mining will be like nothing we have ever seen before.

If anyone is financially strapped and thinking of keeping their lease because they cannot pay back the money, please call the Appalachian Coalition at 758-4127 as we are keeping a record of hardship cases. Go ahead and cancel your lease anyway and the problem of money will be dealt with sooner or later. Do not feel you have to keep your lease just because you cannot pay back the money.

Eastern Rockcastle Group Forms Protective Association

Because of a rash of recent break-ins and cattle thefts, a group of about 80 local citizens, in the eastern section of the county, met recently at the home of William K. Bullen to take some action concerning vandalism problems which are plaguing their community.

Present to answer legal questions concerning organizing such a group of citizens were County Attorney James W. Lambert, State Police Detective Fred Walton and an employee of Graves Security from Dayton, Ohio.

The purpose of the group is to work with the law to help prevent crime in their community. Shirley Smith, a landowner in the area, was elected president of the organization which will be called East Rockcastle Land and Homeowners Association. Members of the organization own land which encompasses close to 9,000 acres in the area.

This land is now posted for no trespassing and hunting will be by written permission of landowners only.

ELECTION OFFICERS MEETING MAY 16

There will be instruction for election officers will be May 16 at 2 p.m. in the circuit courtroom according to Irene Bales, Court Clerk.

BREAKFAST FOR SENIORS AT CLEPTROCK

Cleptrock Retreat will be congratulating the seniors a special way this year with a breakfast at the Family Life Center, following graduation.

The Family Life Center (old Scenic View Motel), is located north of Mt. Vernon on U.S. 25 and the breakfast will be held from 1 a.m. to 3 a.m.

This is not a school-sponsored event.

Rogers Campaigns In County

Hal Rogers, Republican candidate for 8th District Congressman, was in Rockcastle County Tuesday, and in an interview, reported that he is pleased with the support he has met with here.

Mr. Rogers said he was concerned, as everyone is, with inflation and the high cost of living. He is for balancing the federal budget, switching from oil to coal-burning plants and operating our generating plants at 100% capacity rather than 50% and selling the surplus electricity to northern states who use oil.

Another thing that concerns Mr. Rogers is our country's lack of military strength. Draft registration and stronger national foreign policy are ways he feels the situation can be helped. Mr. Rogers says he is also opposed to any form of gun control and opposed to abortion except to save the life of the mother.

One thing Mr. Rogers plans to do, if elected, is to form a Jobs Task Force, to bring more jobs to the area. He says it seems we are teaching reading, writing and the "road to Detroit."

City Council Extends Lake Linville Lease

At the regularly scheduled monthly meeting of the Mt. Vernon City Council held Monday night, the council agreed to the extension of the lease for the Lake Linville Boat Dock with Father Ralph Beiting. The council also voted to extend the water line to the boat dock area at Lake Linville with the Western Water District furnishing the materials and the city providing the labor.

The council also discussed the possibility of patrolling the lake area by city and/or state police and made mention of the fact that there is now a security officer living on the property who has access to radio contact with both city and state police.

In other business, the council voted to purchase a new computer type billing machine for Burroughs Corp. rather than to have Appalachian Computer Service take over the billing for the Mt. Vernon Water Works system.

PREPARED CHILDBIRTH CLASSES AT HOSPITAL

The Rockcastle County Hospital is sponsoring Prepared Childbirth Classes for women who are planning to have their baby in this hospital.

These classes are open to all interested women and place special emphasis on husbands participating during the labor and delivery of the baby.

The course consists of 6 classes, one each week given during the last two months of pregnancy.

The fee is $15 and checks should be made payable to Rockcastle County Hospital. This fee will be paid to the instructor prior to the class.

For further information, contact Betty Calhoun at 758-8920 or Mitzzy Purcell at 258-2185.

present and reported to the council the plans to increase the war storage tank capacity. The Industrial Authority is sponsoring this action with the understanding the city will assume responsibility when the tank is completed to specifications.

The council elected to delay action on roofing the fire department portion of city hall. Only one bid was received, for $4,770.90 from Charles Shivel.

Two resolutions were passed. One to try to get house-to-house delivery within the city limits and the other to request a study by the Dept. of Highways for the feasibility of traffic control lights at the intersections of Church Street and Main Street, West Main and Williams Streets and School and Richmond Streets.

Marvin Brown Killed In One-Car Accident

Marvin E. Brown of Route 1, Mt. Vernon was killed in a one-car accident early Sunday morning, May 11.

According to State Police reports, Mr. Brown's car was traveling west of Kentucky 638, less than a mile from Science Hill, when his auto failed to make a curve in the road. The car went out of control and into a small branch and overturned.

Entertainment Will Highlight Festival

A special treat during the May Festival this Saturday will be music provided by local groups for your enjoyment. The RCHS Band will appear between 10 and 11 a.m. followed by the Renfro Farm Gospel Singers during the noon to 1 p.m. period. The Sunshine Choir from the Mt. Vernon Christian Church will sing between 1 and 2 p.m. and the last group to perform will be the Dora Wagers Mountain Music Group who will sing from 2 to 4 p.m.

The group has performed at Sue Bennett College, Eastern Kentucky University and at Berea College's Traditional Days and have participated in workshops all over the area.

Mrs. Wagers owns some very unusual, old and valuable music instruments. Her son-in-law, Moses Hamblin, makes instruments - some for the groups enjoyment and some to sell. One of his instruments is a dulcimer, the neck and top sections being of pine and maple and the bottom half coming from an aunt's dresser which came through the '57 flood at Hyden. The unique quality of this instrument is that the soundholes are "looped" rather than the usual heart-shaped. He also added an extra fret which is a rarity and the sound is somewhere between "fah" and "so". Other unusual instruments include a banjo mandolin, 1784 Stradavarius bass, F5 Mandolin and of course, mounblain and hammered dulcimers.

The groups sing all the favorite, traditional mountain songs such as "Pretty Polly," "Liberty," and some old gospel tunes.

Local Arts and Crafts Exhibits Courthouse Lawn

The local ceramics class, held in Louise Carter's basement and taught by Kathleen McCracken, will have a display of its work on the courthouse lawn this Saturday during the May Festival.

Also on display will be a selection of work by Julie Lewis. Miss Lewis is an art major at Transylvania College.

Julian and Virginia Yip will combine their photographs for a joint showing and a local woman, Thelma Bullock, will have on display a variety of her crafts.

The Mt. Vernon Woman's Club will exhibit paintings from various local adults and students and Moses Hamblin will display his musical instruments and handmade toys.

in. They will be singing and playing traditional mountain music, bluegrass, gospel and some songs that Mr. Hamblin has written. This is a local group that you do not get to miss.

"Promoting Self-Esteem In Our Children"

By Larry Keaton
Associate Director
Family Life Center

The value systems of today are a threat to our personal self-worth and have a particularly devastating effect upon our children. There is such heavy emphasis upon physical appearance that we spend a great deal of time and money to see that our "image" is promoted. In the meantime, our children are observing this "epidemic of inferiority" that is overwhelming us and are imitating and assuming for themselves a value system that can only discourage personal self-esteem.

"Don't judge by a man's face or height... I don't make decisions the way you do! Men judge by outward appearance but I look at a man's thoughts and intentions." (1 Samuel 16:7 Living Bible). This timeless statement from the Bible can tutor us toward a value system that promotes healthy self-esteem and growth. In seeing this transpire in our lives, perhaps our children may be able to adopt such a system for themselves.

The Family Life Center of Appalachia warmly invites you to make use of its facilities, planned activities and 24-hour counseling services.

Show Was Success

According to Leah Riddle, president of the Mt. Vernon Woman's Club, the club made over $700.00 this year at their annual Rockcastle Revue held last Thursday night at the Big Barn in Renfro Valley.

About 500 persons came out to see the 18 acts comprised of local talent.

Proceeds from last year's Revue was used to help purchase equipment for the park at Lake Linville. Some of the money from this year's show will be used to help the Improvement Council erect three signs at the three main entrances to town. These large signs will bear each club's insignia or logo along with the All-Kentucky City Sign. Also the club plans to make a few improvements to the city park in town.

Mrs. Riddle said she would like to thank all those club members and others who worked to make the show a success. And, Mrs. Riddle said, a big thanks is certainly due those who performed and those who came out to see the show. More Revue pictures will be in next week's Signal.

"Legislative Report"

House Bill 600 appropriates $250,000 to the State Department of Human Resources to be used for the eradication of bird roosts. Hopefully, this measure will erase the disease of histoplasmosis from Kentucky.

Senate Bill 257 will prohibit the mining of oil shale before June 30, 1980. Also, this measure will require the state Department of Natural Resources to study the environmental effects of the industry and to draft regulations for oil-shale mining.

Oil-shale mining is a topic that has been bandied around quite frequently of late. The subject, for obvious reasons, is of particular interest to the people of the 80th legislative district.

Shorten the Day's Work

The working woman and the busy homemaker find that smooth running of the household requires skillful management. Doing the laundry, food shopping and preparation and housecleaning seem to require a large chunk of the working woman's time at home. Yet the question of having time to do the things you enjoy still remains. Perhaps some suggestions for clever management can help you plan time for other activities.

Plan the things you wish to accomplish. Set goals and priorities. Decide which tasks are most important to you. Whether it's keeping the household tidy, spending time with the family or working on a craft project, listing your priorities and jotting down jobs to be done will help.

Recognize that you have human limitations. It's impossible to be able to do everything. For working women it is sometimes necessary to lower rigid housekeeping standards. Habits are difficult to alter but necessity often brings about change. Plan ahead. Sometimes unexpected situations occur. Be prepared for situations such as unexpected guests or meals by keeping several food items available in the freezer or pantry for quick emergency meals.

Use equipment best suited for doing a job. Evaluate whether or not you are using the best tool for the job. New products and equipment are continually developed and some of the developments may be useful in saving time and work. Where possible, make full use of the vacuum cleaner, also utilize trays, carts or baskets for carrying dishes and cleaning supplies from room to room.

Learn to combine jobs and eliminate steps. "Kill two birds with one stone." Combining jobs or parts of jobs and eliminating steps will save time. Try serving food in a baking dish in which it is cooked. Doing a load of laundry while cooking. Making a shopping list so that you can get everything done in one trip. Preparing extra batches of your favorite recipes and freezing them for other meals.

Eliminate jobs. Reduce the amount of time spent in housekeeping by eliminating unnecessary steps. Let dishes air dry. Avoid ironing permanent press items by removing them directly from the dryer and hanging or folding to avoid wrinkles. Store some items that sit on top of dressers, tables, etc. to eliminate dusting. Pare fruits and vegetables over paper that can be thrown directly in the garbage.

Group jobs together. Some jobs are time-consuming and dull and other are more interesting. Perhaps grouping jobs you like with those you don't like will make them easier to complete.

Improve the order of your work. Analyze the way you do a task before you start. Try to complete one task before starting another. Assemble your tools and supplies before starting a job. When you are finished, rush, tackle the most important jobs first. Organize storage areas. Store supplies and tools in an area close to where the job is done when possible. Return items to their proper storage areas after use which will eliminate hunting later. Also, use two tier revolving turntables to double storage space in kitchen cabinets. Store similar pieces of kitchen equipment in the area where it is used. Store folded linens in a suitable location. Use shoe boxes to organize cleaning supplies. Use a carrier or a basket with a handle to carry cleaning supplies from one room to another. Use drawer dividers for organizing drawers. Consider placing a cleaning basket and supplies on each floor.

Get family members to help. Getting help from family members with household chores will decrease your work load. Get assistance from the family by having family members: Store items in their proper storage place after use. Clean kitchen and bathroom areas after use. Keep dirty clothing in specially designated areas and remove items from pockets. Assume certain household jobs.

Develop routines. Routines help to establish patterns that don't require regular decision-making. Setting up routines such as cleaning up after cooking helps to make it a regular practice.

Exchange money for a service. Often time is more valuable than money. You may find that paying to have shirts laundered or a few meals away from home is worth the extra money.

Keep the time plan flexible. Time should be flexible enough to be altered if something unexpected happens. It is sometimes necessary to drop what you are doing and return to it quickly without being annoyed.

Say "No" to things you cannot accomplish. Since there are only so many hours in a day and only so much that one can do, learning to say no will help avoid the frustration of being unable to accomplish certain tasks.

This beautiful two-door 1980 Pontiac Bonneville has been donated by Juder Stidham Pontiac-Bulck, Inc. to Cumberland River Comprehensive Care Center for May 24th auction at Laurel County High School to raise money to purchase buses for the Center.

A Tribute To John W. Griffin

By Albert E. Griffin

work! He was a family man. He was a family man who was the oldest in the clan. His brothers and sisters looked up to him. He was a jolly, easy-going man and children. They gathered around him, showing their love, spoiling him and he enjoyed it. He was a Christian. Aunt Ethel told me in the hall-way of the hospital about the time when he had his experience with the Lord. He was only twenty years old at the time. I remember him being president of the Baptist Brotherhood. It was one of the few times when it was an active group, having suppers at the church, working on projects. In the Old Testament, we read about the great old patriarchs passing off the scene, leaving younger men to take up the mantle. In every community there are moments of sadness when one of the city fathers dies. It says that time marches on, making no distinction in men. It says that the church leadership changes, the old leaders must go on to better things and allow the young leaders to arrive on the scene to attempt something better...better because they have the advantage of their predecessor's wisdom to build on.

Forgive me if I'm being too personal in these paragraphs. But we have suffered a loss in our family. I'm not sorry that he's gone on to better things. But, I'm saddened at the loss. So is my dad and the Griffin clan. Grieve with us! Pray for us!

(Ed. Note: Rev. Griffin is pastor of the First Baptist Church in Mt. Sterling and nephew of the late John W. Griffin).

PHYSICAL FITNESS

By Bill Toomey, Executive Director, AAU-Penn Mutual Masters Sports

A Few Words Of Caution About Running

Listen to your body when you run. If you develop pain or any other unusual symptom, slow down or stop. If the problem persists, see your doctor before running again.

Don't compete with others until you are an experienced, well-conditioned runner. Your objective in the beginning should be to steadily improve your own performance, not to run faster than someone else.

Running is a great endurance exercise, but it is not a complete exercise program. People who limit themselves to running tend to become stiff and inflexible, with short, tight muscles in the back and in the backs of the legs. They also may lack muscle tone and strength in the trunk and upper body. These conditions, according to the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, "can lead to poor posture and chronic lower back pain, a condition that partially cripples or disables thousands of middle aged and older Americans."

The stretching exercises you do before and after running will give you needed flexibility. In addition, you should do some strength exercises, such as pushups and bent-knee sit-ups, to give your fitness regimen proper balance.

"MOUNTAIN HERITAGE"

New York City. Dad completely captivated her. She was enchanted by his soothing, mystical drawl... charmed by his Kentucky-drawl and simple, natural... Saddy called him a "natural aristocrat."

Their meeting was a high point in Dad's life. He had at last had the opportunity to discuss his beloved Bible with a person of the Jewish faith. Not only was Saddy one of the "Chosen People," but she was a Bible scholar, as well. People tell me that Dad talked about that day for a long time.

Dad was as honest as the day is long. My Uncle Luther still remembers the time when he was young, he hauled coal in Rockcastle County. For a little while, he participated in the common, very human, practice of passing the opportunity and little bit each time he told a buyer how much was in his truck-load. But his conscience bothered him, so he figured out how much he had gained, and he paid back every cent.

A co-worker tells of pointing out change that had been left in the coin telephone Dad had been using. "That ain't my money," said Dad, as he walked away.

Dad was awfully proud of his executive son. Ran is Data Processing Manager at the Gibson Greeting Card Company in Cincinnati, Ohio. Dad worried about the long hours Ran works, but I believe he never bothered Ran with it. Concern. That just wasn't Dad's style.

My father died as he had lived - quietly, no fuss, not bothering anyone. He had seldom been sick, and since he was only 66, we took it for granted we'd have him around for a long time. But, one night, he went to bed and the next morning he wasn't there.

Miraculously, just five days before, we had all been together at Mom and Dad's house; my family and my brother, Ran, and his wife Carolyn, and their children.

For years, I had wanted to show my husband and my children the Kentucky that I loved. That God, we took the trip with Mom and Dad the weekend before he died. Dad would say that "it was the Lord's hand at work."

Mom says he never saw him happier. His joy enveloped us all.

It was a wonderful trip to Kentucky. As we crossed the bridge onto Kentucky soil, Dad laughed and told about an old man he knew who had been visiting his daughter in Ohio. As he entered Kentucky on his way home, he said, "And now I'm going, so do as I darn well please."

Dad was thrilled that my Easterner husband, Ted, responded enthusiastically to the mountains of his Kentucky. Ted loved the beauty of the mountains and the artlessness and friendliness of the people. "Now you see why I will pour out all this in the garden spot of the world," Dad said.

And then he delighted us with a joke that I think he said he had read in your column. About the man who died on a Friday and, when he got to Heaven, was appalled to see some people being confined by balls-and-chains. An angel explained and told that to the Kentuckians every Friday, because so many of them tried to go "down home" then.

We visited the old Shell home on Crooked Creek where Dad's parents, Frank and Joan, had lived. My Pa Shell had been the storekeeper, blacksmith and justice-of-the-peace.

I remembered the sound of a customer calling "Frank" in front of the tiny general store. That sound would send my Aunt Reeks - who was born three weeks after I was - and I scurrying to the store. Pa Shell would unlock the store for his customer, carefully not noticing our greedy fingers helping ourselves to the candy stock.

The silver-washed farmhouse of my mother's parents, George and Fannie Allen, was nestled in a "holler" quite a distance from the nearest dirt road at Poplar Gap.

I led Ted and the children through the woods, down a rocky mountainside, my instincts easily locating the narrow pathway.

It had been over thirty years since I had climbed that steep path with my aunts to carry buckets of drinking water from the clear stream that bubbled out of a cliff.

The path was overgrown and had to push through the branches and bushes. Ted wondered about snakes. I poohed any danger. "Never saw a snake around here," I declared.

We came out into a clearing and there on the L-shaped porch I remembered so well... present owners of Pa Allen's farm.

How many summer evenings I had sat on that porch, listening to banjo and guitar pickin' by my young aunts and uncle - Novella, Odella, Eva Dora, Zena and Clinton. And all the beautiful old ballads sung as Kentuckians sang them hundreds of years ago.

The present owners showed nary a ripple in their Kentucky serenity, as they calmly watched what must have seemed a "strange bunch" pop out of the woods. "Ain't nobody used that path in nobsy," said the old woman, "not since they put in the gravel road. Wonder you didn't run into snakes up there."

The looks on some of my family's faces made me give up all hope of any more mountain-side exploring. "Pa, how did you meet Ma?" my daughter, Glee, wanted to know.

Well, one day, 15-year-old Zora Allen made the long trip to the Shell store on Crooked Creek. She hiked up and down mountains and over ridges from her home in Poplar Gap, because her teen-age heart was set on having a new hat to wear to the big social event of the year -

Decoration Day at the Johnetta Cemetery.

Zora... went wandering around the Shell farm looking for someone to open the store for her. Finally she found 15-year-old Dad and his mother working in the garden.

"I looked up," said Dad, "and there st... girl I ever did see."

Dad found out that the Allens went to the Corinth Church, so from then on he made it his business to be there at every service, until one day Zora Allen let him "walk her home."

Mom remembered that at the groom's "inlaw" the day after their wedding, she was so shy that she could hardly eat any of the big feast Ma Shell had prepared.

"What is an infare?" we exclaimed. We had never heard the word. Our curiosity sent us to the dictionary, where we read that "infare" is a medieval word meaning "reception or dinner party usually on the day after a wedding."

We visited Uncle Bentley Allen, who still lives with his sweet wife, Gertrude, in the beautiful valley that sweeps up to the twin cliffs that form "Poplar Gap."

I asked Uncle Bentley to sing a song for us. He threw back his head and poured out under the clear Kentucky sky, the mournful tune of the moving ballad, Precious Memories: "Precious memories, how they linger,

How they ever flood my soul, In the stillness of the midnight, Precious, sacred scenes unfold."

There wasn't a dry eye among us.

A few days later, I asked Uncle Bentley to sing that song at my father's funeral.

They streamed from all over to offer comfort... "If there is anything I can do..."

They came from Kentucky, "Tom Indax" Mom's sister, Novella Bell, daring to take a plane for the first time in her life, came from her home in Texas. Uncle Luther Shell's son, Lloyd, flew from Florida with his wife, Norma, interrupting their daughter's graduation festivities to do so.

An estimated 600-700 people came to the visitation the evening before the funeral. Mom kept saying, "Your Dad never would have thought so many people would be here."

My businessman husband was amazed at the planned and orderly state of Dad's financial affairs.

"Your Dad worked so hard," Mom said, "and he saved every penny he could, because he never wanted to have to be a burden to the children. He hated the thought of that more than anything."

There was that Kentucky pride in independence. How often it had frustrated me when we would try to do something special for him.

One of the keepsakes I took home as a tangible reminder of Dad for my children - and their grandchildren's children - is a shirt from his mechanic's uniform. It has a patch on one pocket that says "Bill" and many indelible grease stains.

I don't think they could do any better than to pattern their lives after my Dad's.

Our Power

Information About Electricity From Experts

FINDING FUEL

Producing electricity with out burning fuel may soon be possible, thanks to research efforts going on today.

We may soon be able to run power plants on batteries.

The energy would come from a fuel cell, which works like a storage battery, producing electricity from a chemical reaction. Fuel cells are efficient and non-polluting and cost less than coal to use.

Unfortunately, present fuel cells are small. As many as 100 would be needed to produce only 500 kilowatts.

Experts at Edison Electric Institute, the association of America's investor-owned electric utility companies, predict, however, that commercialized fuel cell powered generators will be in use in the near future.

Kentucky Afield

If you've been putting off cleaning up those fence rows and mowing weeds, good - put it off a while longer, says Lee Nelson, chief wildlife research biologist with the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Most ground nesting birds, including quail, will be actively nesting until about the middle of July. Mowing operations before this time are among the prime destroyers of nests, according to Nelson.

Of course, hay must be cut when it's ready and when the weather is right, but leaving an eight-foot uncut strip around the edge of the field will provide wildlife cover and allow most nests to survive, Nelson says, since wildlife tends to concentrate around field borders.

Idle fields must be mowed periodically to keep down brush, but if this mowing is done in strips on alternate years, much wildlife habitat will be preserved and the new growth in the mowed areas will provide additional food for rabbits and other species. But, again, remember to wait until after the middle of July to do your bush-bogging.

Some farm "clean-up" operations are "clear out" signals to wildlife, Nelson says. A clean fence row offers no food or shelter, but one allowed to grow up in brush and shrubs provides excellent habitat. Odd corners of the farm should also be allowed to grow naturally instead of being cleared just for the sake of appearance.

"Clean" farming, growing huge fields of a single crop, plowing to the fences and other current agricultural practices, may be necessary from the standpoint of economics. Nevertheless, they destroy much wildlife habitat, Nelson says.

Wildlife researchers with varied landscapes and vegetative types, with an abundance of "edges" between croplands, meadows, pastures and woodlands.

The loss of these edges,

Nelson says, makes it increasingly important for landowners to be aware of the techniques of wildlife enhancement - and there are many things a landowner can do to help wildlife.

LEXINGTON - Nobody likes an 11-0 record, but if you read this column back in December, I said then that Kentucky would sign a home and home agreement with Notre Dame. The announcement that the two teams had done just that was announced last week. The contract for the two teams to meet each December in Louisville's Freedom Hall runs out after this year's game and the Wildcats and Irish have agreed to Notre Dame playing at Kentucky in 1981 and the Wildcats going to South Bend in 1982.

After the game in South Bend in 1982 I am of the opinion the long basketball series between the two schools will be over. Here's the reason for my theory. Since the two schools started the once-a-year games in Louisville, U.K. has won 11 of the 20 games played, the last 6 in a row. Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps has scored at least 100 points in 10 of the 20 games and has been plugging for a home-and-home series for several years. Since Digger took over the Irish in 1971 his teams have won 1 and lost 8. Even though the current contract runs through December of 1980, I would think there is no penalty clause in the agreement and that Notre Dame was threatening to pull out even before the contract expired. To placate the Irish, Kentucky agreed to the new 2-year contract. I expect Kentucky to play the 1981 game in Louisville. After the Wildcats honor their commitment at Notre Dame in 1982, I think U.K. will drop the Irish from its schedule and by then, we have located a new opponent for an annual game in Louisville.

That shouldn't be hard to do. The game is played while the students are on Christmas vacation and every seat can be sold. The fans pack the place and the two schools pocket about $35,000 apiece. Kentucky could probably find another opponent willing to settle for much less than an even split and the Wildcats could pocket even more money.

The Kentucky-Notre Dame series has become one of the classics in college basketball and I hate to see it come to an end. I sincerely believe that's what will happen after the game in 1982.

Members of the Kentucky Extension Homemakers Association traveled to Lexington recently to present a check for $4,872.82 to the University of Kentucky Ovarian Cancer Research Fund. The money was raised by Homemaker groups across the state during the past year. Accepting the check was Dr. John R. vanNagell, chairman of the cancer committee, professor and director of gynecologic oncology at the UK Albert B. Chandler Medical Center. Mrs. Virginia McCandless of Glasgow, chairman of the association's Statewide Ovarian bristle-like leathers on the breast which allows hunters to distinguish them from hens).

According to Conservation Officer J.R. Littlejohn, who made the arrest, the turkey was found wrapped in camouflage netting in Conger's possession.

The $1,000 fine was the maximum, but a person convicted of illegally killing a deer or wild turkey could, in addition, be jailed for up to one year and forfeit his hunting privileges for up to three years.

"Although we have had maximum fines imposed in deer poaching cases, this is the first instance of a $1,000 penalty for a turkey hunting violation," Steve Yontz, assistant law enforcement director for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, said.

"We believe such penalties for game law violations serve the best interests of the sportsmen of Kentucky," Yontz added, "since they should help deter future violations of our wildlife laws."

Ken Tyler

Elected President

Ken Tyler of Route 3, Mt. Vernon was elected to a two-year term as president of the Kentucky Classical Association at its spring meeting in Lexington, April 26th, having previously served as vice president.

In accepting the office, Mr. Tyler declared the 80's decade as the decade of cultural awareness and encouraged solidarity among Kentucky classics teachers to work hard to demonstrate the importance of student awareness of their heritage through the study of Latin and other classical studies. He set up a committee to better define and refine the role of KCA for the future, proposed a new KCA Distinguished Service Award to be given annually to a retired or retiring teacher of the classics in appreciation of the lifelong service that person has rendered Kentucky youth and proposed the creation of a teacher's resource center whereby secondary and elementary teachers could acquire speakers and other programs of cultural enrichment for their classes at minimal if any expense.

Mr. Tyler also pledged to travel throughout the state promoting and proposing programs in classical studies in school systems where the classics have fallen dormant or ceased to exist while encouraging continued growth in the present active school programs. "As one wise man once said," stated Mr. Tyler, "The Romans may have died but Latin will live as long as civilization as we know it survives."

Mr. Tyler also serves as board member of both the Kentucky Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages and the American Classical League. He received his Masters from UK in 1976 and presently teaches Latin and Geography at Berea College. Most recently, he has developed a classics awareness program at Berea Community School where he introduces Latin courses in etymology, and mythology which have attracted national attention. He will travel to the American Classical League Institute in New Hampshire this June to hold a workshop session on the creation and promotion of high school etymology courses.

been an assistant professor at Western for two years and is head of the department of Library Studies and Technical Services in the College of Academic Services.

In addition to his responsibilities of department head, he is currently serving on two university committees, the Faculty Development Committee and the Library Advisory Committee.

LIONS ELECT OFFICERS

Officers for the 1980-81 year for the Mt. Vernon Lions Club were elected at the last regular meeting of the local civic club.

Those elected were Robert Robinson, president; Bobby Kendrick, first vice president; Don Smith, second vice president; Floyd Owens, secretary-treasurer; Edd Hunt, chairman of eye glass and white cane project; and J. Witt, twister. Other officers to be appointed later by the president.

The club made plans for a booth at the May Festival where they will accept eyeglasses to be donated to the Eyeglass for the Needy Organization.
