Council Discusses Revised Ordinance

The Mt. Vernon City Council met Monday night with very few items of importance on the agenda.

The Council did discuss with Jack St. Clair the problem several property owners have encountered that of renters moving off owing the city a three-month water bill and the property owner having to pay the bill before the property can be rented again.

Mr. St. Clair said he felt the council could do something such as raise the deposit required or lower the cut-off time in order to protect the property owners.

After some discussion, the council decided to direct City Attorney Carl Clontz to draw up a revised ordinance, including these two provisions, for the council's approval.

The council also agreed to lay a 3" water line to the property of John Purcell, Andrew Cox, and Judy Roberts on the Rose Hill Road near Lake Linville. The Council decided that the property owners would be charged for a 1/4" pipe, along with the costs of laying the line, and that the city would pay the difference of approximately $100 to be recovered later when additional water customers wish to hook onto the line. These customers will be charged for 3" line and a prorated share of the $100.

The cleaning of sidewalks on Main Street after a snowfall was brought before the Council by Councilman Tom Welch. Mr. Welch originally expressed his feelings that the city should pass an ordinance requiring that the sidewalks be cleaned off after a snowfall or else property owners would be cited.

Welch said that his main concern was with businesses rather than homeowners. However, there were some councilmen who felt that perhaps the issue would be better left as is especially after City Attorney Carl Clontz pointed out that there might possibly be more liability to property owners if sidewalks were cleaned carelessly than if they were left

Klan Activities

A few years after the Civil War, the L&N railroad was laid through Mt. Vernon. The railroad company, eager to find cheap labor, "shipped in a train load of colored and put them up in huts near Pine Hill.

Some of the men in the area "took a notion to run the colored out" because they were "working for nothing." "Devil Bill" Adams brother, Bob Adams, who rode a big stallion, reportedly led a group of local men armed with clubs and rifles in the rouse.

There lived an old lady in a double log house, down at Big Spring near Pine Hill. The railroad was up the hill behind her house and a dirt road ran along in front. One of the colored railroaders, on the run, came to the entry of her home. She was, at first, frightened, but after realizing he meant no harm, allowed him to hide under her bed. In a few minutes the pursuers, on horseback, rode into her yard, called to her and asked if she had "seen a nigger." She pointed to the railroad above her home and told them he had fled down the track.

When the men left, she told the black man to "take across that sour wood mountain" in front of her house. She never saw him again or knew what happened to him.

This episode may have encouraged the emergence of the Ku Klux Klan in the county. Rockcastle was a Democrat county until several years after the Civil War. Some are certain that the Klan's activities were responsible for the political turnaround in this county, sq terror.

ized was the area by the riding band of men.

Sometime during the building of the railroad through the county, William Harlan VanHook who lived on Skaggs Creek and sold crossties to the railroad, as many of the men in the area did, told the story of returning home one night after making a delivery of crossties to the construction site. As darkness fell, he decided to camp by the road and wait until day break to finish his trip home. He hitched his mules to a nearby tree and slept in the wagon. When morning came, the first thing he saw as he opened his eyes in the mist was the silhouette of a black man, hanging from a tree.

The dinner will be held at Pulaski County Elementary School, University Dr. Somerset. Reservations for the banquet may be obtained by writing Pulaski County Lincoln Club, P.O. "KU KLUX KLAN"

 He was so unnerved by the sight that he immediately hitched his horses and "struck for home."

Numerous other hangings and misdeeds took place in this area as well as elsewhere following the Civil War. One such hanging reportedly took place on what is referred to as the "hanging tree" located near where Sparks Florist is now located.

According to other recountings, an Owens and a Cummins family lived on adjoining farms at Maretburg along the main road. The men were old and their children were grown. At least one of the men had relatives in the Klan who were putting a great deal of pressure on the men "to join in with them". These two old men, on several occasions, had to go to the back side of their farms and hide from the Klan to keep from getting a whipping.

Owens had a daughter who was so "flux" suffering from the "flux" that her family was sitting up with her. The Klan came along, stopped back from the house and ordered the family to get out the light. The lights were blown out and the Klan passed on and the family was able to relight the lamps. According to one source, this area was "bad Democrat country back in there."

The Klan often left warnings, notes and signs when they objected to a normal or political issue or conduct. An old man at Pine Hill named Tink Owens was not a Klansman. He was ill with tuberculosis and had a lady who came in and took care of him. The Klan left switches and a note telling him to get rid

CARD OF THANKS

The family and friends of Brocade Holt wish to thank all those who expressed so many kind acts of sympathy during the recent loss of our loved one. Thanks to those who called, brought food, sent lovely flowers or extended their respect in so many ways. A special thanks to the Rockcastle Ambulance Service, Dr. Arvin, Rockcastle Co. of the woman indicating that it was an improper relationship. When he made no changes in his living arrangements, they came back, called him out and gave him a whipping. A few days later he died of pneumonia, probably from exposure coupled with his condition.

The Klan rode their last time when they rode to Sand Springs to the big farm of Republican Jim Betherum, who had been outspoken against the Klan, lived by himself except for an old "darkie". According to the story, Betherum heard them coming and sent the black man across Skaggs Creek to Chestnut Ridge to Lib Langford's with a message to "round up all he could to fight the Klan and meet at Burr Hill". Jim reportedly ran "the house and hid behind a big limestone rock. The gang saw the movement and no doubt thought they were shooting him as they shot the rock he hid behind. When they left, he rode towards Level Green possibly to gather more men and circled back to Burr. The Langford's, Jim and other boys hid by the road near the quarry there. In the shootout that took place, many of the surprised Klan members were hurt and killed. They were taken to Mt. Vernon and put in the Joplin Hotel. The next morning hears and buggies pulled up and loaded the face covered men and carried them away.

This broke up the Klan and people were so grateful to those responsible the Langfords and Betherums that they rewarded them by electing them to public offices numerous times.

Even after more than a century, people were amazed about allowing the Klan leader's name to be published, but he reportedly lived at Maretburg and after the ambush he became fearful and moved to Livingston to live with his wife. He lived to be near 90 years old, which was an exceptionally long life span for the times. One of his relatives used to quote the Bible passage that stated that the "wicked shall not live out their days" remarked that he wondered how long he (Klan leader) would have lived if he'd been a good man.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

I see in the Signal lots of candidates filing for various positions in the local government and couldn't help noticing one in particular—the candidacy of Benny E. Ham for Commonwealth Attorney. Mr. Ham has pledged to prosecute vigorously the robbers, rapists and murderers and thieves who commit crimes in this district.

I can't help wondering where Mr. Ham was when a confessed killer was given five (5) years for the murder of a gentle old man, Chester Patrick, of Hamilton, Ohio while he was passing through your county.

Sincerely,
 Mrs. Ann Patrick Rogers

TURNING ORDINARY MINUTES INTO MEMORABLE MOMENTS COSTS SO LITTLE.

If the idea of picking up a telephone to talk with a relative or friend in another city seems too expensive to do on impulse—think again. It costs so little and means so much, you can call anytime for little more than the price of a hamburger and a soft drink, even less after 5 p.m. and on weekends. Why wait for a special occasion to call? Now, with low long distance rates—even lower at night and on weekends—about any occasion will do. To catch up with the news, to share a special moment, to say "hello" to someone you care about.

SHOPPERS BEWARE

Some "natural" foods are not "natural". Shoppers may find that foods advertised as "natural" contain additives, preservatives, artificial coloring or other artificial ingredients. That's because there is no generally accepted definition for the term "natural" as applied to foods.

All kinds of food are being marketed as "natural" by producers seeking a share of the flourishing natural foods business. No federal standards regulate the use of the term "natural" so some producers often use it to suit their own purposes in promoting and selling various foods products.

Health and natural food stores have a specific image to protect. Many have their own standards for stocking natural food products. For example, some do not stock products containing refined sugar, additives and preservatives. However, other stores carry products containing natural additives, preservatives or both.

Some foods are advertised as natural even though they are highly processed and contain synthetic additives. Cereals that are processed and fortified with vitamins and minerals or contain chemical preservatives could fit into this category.

Natural foods are unprocessed or minimally processed without additives, preservatives, artificial coloring or chemicals added after the food is harvested. Nutritionists have a stricter definition of natural foods: those not processed after harvesting or slaughter. Organic foods are those grown without synthetic pesticides, fertilizers or chemicals.

Health-conscious consumers are turning to natural foods in ever-growing numbers. This has resulted in a dramatic rise in the number of health food stores in the last decade, from 1200 in 1968 to 6600 in 1978. Moreover, new health food stores are opening at the rate of 400 per year.

As the demand for health foods grows, many conventional grocery stores are stocking health or natural foods among their regular wares, or adding separate sections devoted entirely to health or natural foods.

The Federal Trade Commission is drafting proposals to define foods that can be advertised as natural. The proposals would prohibit use of the word "natural" in advertising food products that have undergone more than minimal processing after harvest or slaughter or contain any artificial flavoring, color, additive or chemical preservative or any other artificial or synthetic ingredient.

By reading the label, you can determine whether a food contains additives, preservatives or synthetic ingredients.

Monticello and Clay Co. Take Measure of Rockets

Boys' Coaches Corner

By Coach Roscoe Denny

Last Friday, February 6 we played host to Monticello in our 1981 homecoming game. Both teams entered the contest with only four wins and at game's end the visiting Trojans had claimed their fifth win by a 68-59 score. The first half was played with an exchange of baskets and several lead changes. As the half came to an end Monticello took a 34-33 lead to the locker room. Our field goal shooting was nowhere near what it has been for most of the season as we shot 33% for the first half. We did not improve much on this for the entire game.

At the beginning of the third quarter the Trojans began to hold the ball and spread us over 47 feet. We did not do a good job of defending this spread offense and this enabled the visitors to dictate the game from that point on. For much of the season rebounding has not been as much a problem for us as with thought it might be, but in the past couple of games our opponents have been working us hard in this area. Against their full court pressure we simply did not execute after beating the press. We are in between on alot of things and when and at what speed we take the ball to the basket is one of them.

Last night we visited Manchester for our second meeting with the once beaten Tigers. Middlesboro had given them their first loss by a 64-51 score last Friday at Middlesboro. Unlike our game with them at home some 2 1/2 weeks ago we did get off to a pretty good start. Clay County did not shoot as well in the early stages as they had done in our first game, but when they missed they attacked the offensive boards and rebounded until they scored on we fouled them. The home team led at the first quarter stop by an 18-12 margin and had increased their lead to 50-31 at the half.

The remainder of the game was completely dominated by the home team. We were able to manage only 14 points during the entire second half. Many of our shots were blocked during the game and we did not get as many shots as we did the first half, because we turned the ball over more. Clay Co. played their usual aggressive game. At times our players got in there with them, mixed it up a little and showed signs of trying to stand their ground.

This Friday we go to McKee for another district game with the Jackson Co. Generals. We drew for the District Tournament and we will play this same Jackson Co. team in the District which will be held at Jackson Co. High School. This game will be played on Wednesday, March 4 immediately following the game between our girls and the Jackson Co. girls which begins at 6:30 p.m. Next year the District Tournament will be played at Clay Co. and the following year will be held at Rockcastle County High School.

The winning edge will be a weekly column by Head Basketball Coach Roscoe Denny, to help the young ball players in the county pick up on some tips. The column will appear at the Barry Proctor, No. 10 for the Rockets, drives around a pick by Danny Offutt, No. 24. The boys lost Friday night to Monticello by a score of 88 to 59 in the homecoming game. Barry failed to score but Offutt led the scoring with 21.

Kelli Thomason, No. 20, looks for some room to operate in Friday night action with Garrard County during the homecoming festivities at the high school. The girls' lost only their sixth game of the season, 53-28. Kelli led the girls in scoring with 12. Also in the photo is No. 14, Tracy Mulberry.

Girls' Coaches Corner

By Coach Preston Parrett

We played Eubank at home Thursday night and defeated them 69 to 45 for our fifth win in a row and thirteenth win overall.

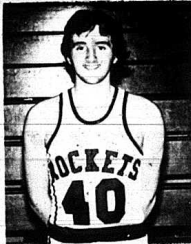

In the first quarter we jumped off to a good lead but Eubank had cut it down by halftime in the second half we got rolling again as our press and fast break became more effective. Our shooting percentage for the game was fifty percent. Ruppe had 16, Faulkner got 14, Thomason and Bowman, 12 each, Mulberry and Sturgill, 4 each, Clark, 5 and Hargraves, 2.

Friday night we played Garrard County at home and they defeated us 55 to 46. We had defeated them earlier in the season on a last second shot.

In the first half, we could hit only five of twenty-four attempts and were down at halftime 25-17. In the third quarter, we cut their lead to five as our shooting improved. In the fourth quarter, we cut their lead to three points but could get no closer and they went on to win by nine points. We hit on 12 of 25 attempts in the second half. Our team has played consistently better in the second half all season long.

WHAT'S HAPPENED TO THE MOUNTAIN-BOYS?

LEXINGTON — I lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help.

That's how the late Adolph Rupp paraphrased the bible to describe the rich basketball talent he recruited out of the eastern Kentucky mountains.

Kentucky teams of the 40's and 50's were generously stocked with players from eastern Kentucky. All America "Wah Wah" Jones of Harlan was an important cog on the "Fabulous Five" in the 40's. All America Johnny Cox of Hazard was a key member of Rupp's fourth and last N.C.A.A. championship team in 1958.

Since then, the mountain talent seems to have dried up. Rupp and his successor, Joe B. Hall, have begun lifting up their eyes toward Indiana.

In 1966, Rupp's last close call at catching the brass ring, his "Runts" had two Hoosiers in the starting lineup, Louie Dampier and Tom Kron.

Hall's recruiting success in Indiana has been even more pronounced. On his 1975 national runner-up team, one of his starters was Hoosier Mike Flynn. On his 1978 national championship team, the quarterback was Kyle Macy from Indiana.

Joe's newest recruit from the Hoosier state, freshman Jim Master, has broken into the starting lineup this year.

What's happened to the mountain boys?

"You're talking about only one section of a small state," says Hall. "Indiana is a much larger state than we are, so they have more players to choose from."

"We got Flynn from Jeffersonville, right across the river from Louisville. We got Macy from Peru, up in the northern part of the state and we got Master from Ft. Wayne. We didn't just recruit one section of Indiana."

Joe went on, "Even though Kentucky is much smaller, don't forget we're starting three Kentucky players right now."

None of them are from eastern Kentucky.

But Joe Hall predicts it won't be too much longer until we see a Kentucky mountain boy in a Kentucky uniform. Those things go on in cycles.

Rockcastle received three inches of snow early Sunday morning - the pretty, wet, clinging type of snow as evidenced by the above photo. School was called off Monday due to road conditions, but, due to a rise in temperatures, was in session again Tuesday.

Spring Tree Planting Season

Spring tree planting season is almost here according to officials of the Kentucky Division of Forestry. Unless bad weather interferes, the first seedlings will be lifted from the State Nurseries and delivered around the first of March. Most of the pine species are in good supply, but many of the hardwood species are scarce or already sold out. Since tree orders are filled on a "first-come, first-served" basis, anyone interested in planting trees this spring should not delay getting in their order.

Most of the tree species cost around $2.00 seedlings.

However, in most cases the landowner can get back 75% of the cost of seedlings, tree planting, and site preparation through the Cost-Share Programs of the county ASCS office. With these programs, a landowner can put idle land back into production, guard against erosion, and increase the wildlife habitat on his farm at a relatively small cost.

Foresters with the Kentucky Division of Forestry will assist the landowner with preparing a planting plan free of charge, recommending proper species, planting procedures, and site preparation needs to obtain the best possible plantations. This service can be obtained by contacting the local Forest Ranger or by calling the Kentucky Division of Forestry Office in Pineville at 337-3011. Tree orders will be taken until the first week in April, but for best results trees should be planted as early as possible. Also, if site preparation is needed, it should be done before the trees are delivered so they can be planted immediately after delivery. For these reasons, anyone interested in planting trees this spring should get in touch with the Division of Forestry or the county ASCS Office at the first opportunity.

with just snow on them. It was finally decided that businessmen on Main Street would be requested to clean off their sidewalks in order to make it more safe for their customers and others.

Mr. Welch also brought before the Council a problem which he said had been discussed with him by several people in the community, that of hunting wild game within the city limits.

Mr. Welch said that several townspeople, including himself, had been feeding squirrels, rabbits, etc. and more or less making pets of them, only to have hunters come onto their property and kill the animals.

Again City Attorney Carl Clontz expressed the opinion that there was very little the council could do beyond adopting an ordinance prohibiting the firing of guns in congested areas of the city. Clontz said the city might encounter trouble if they tried to legislate this matter since it was the policy of the state to allow citizens to hunt game in season with permission of the landowner.

Welch made a motion to prohibit the hunting of wild game in the city limits but later changed it to congested areas. The motion did not receive a second and was withdrawn by Welch.

City Water Superintendent Matt Powell, Jr. informed the council of monies available from the state to replace all existing signs in Mt. Vernon with regulation signs.

Mr. Powell said that the state had received 100% grant monies which would provide the signs but would not pay for the installation. The city would also have to agree to maintain the signs for a five year period. Mr. Powell said that the City of Corbin has recently taken advantage of the offer to the tune of $37,000.

The council authorized Mr. Powell to apply for these signs. Just before the meeting adjourned, Mayor Roland Mullins informed the council that he had received notification from the state that the street repair and maintenance allocation to the city for the 1981-82 fiscal year would be in the amount of $9,224.69-up almost $2,000 from last year's allocation. Local EKU Student Participates In Seminar

Kenneth D. Adams of Mt. Vernon, a senior at Eastern Kentucky University, is a participant in a Tobacco Marketing and Grading Seminar conducted by the Department of Agriculture.

The seminar is designed to help young people who are interested in tobacco production to understand what happens to tobacco after it leaves the farm and the processes it must go through before it becomes a consumer commodity.

Adams is one of 20 students who will participate in field trips to a warehouse, a redryer, The Tobacco Research Institute, and in three seminars which will feature experts in the field of tobacco marketing. Beginning March 30, all seminar students will attend an eight-session grading school conducted by the Tobacco Division, Agriculture Marketing Service, USDA. They will learn the federal system for tobacco grading.

Dr. W.A. Householder, professor of soils and agronomy at Eastern and director of the seminar, said, "The intention of the seminar is to further the education of young men and women concerning a major Kentucky Agricultural product. The training will result in a better appreciation for leaf quality as well as the intricacies of the tobacco marketing process."

Residents Asked To Help Find Abandoned Mines

Residents of Kentucky's eastern coal-mining counties are being asked to help the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection locate potentially dangerous abandoned-mine sites.

The state division of abandoned lands has begun to inventory the thousands of abandoned-mine sites in the commonwealth. "Locating the sites and determining the extent of problems at each one is the first step toward getting funding to reclaim the potential hazards," said Dave Rosenbaum, division director.

After the sites are located and documented, the division will set priorities and request annual funding from the federal Office of Surface Mining for reclamation of the sites.

The division has contracted with Skelly and Loy, a Lexington consulting firm, to help conduct the inventory. Representatives of the firm have already begun to locate mine sites through interviews with local residents and personnel of various agencies.

Anyone knowing of a potentially dangerous abandoned-mine site should write to Abandoned Mine Land Inventory, % Skelly and Loy at 2365 Harrodsburg Road, Room 220, Lexington, Ky. 40504, or call (606) 223-3844.

In order for the sites to qualify for funding of the reclamation, mining at these sites should have ceased by Aug. 3, 1977, the day the federal Surface Mining Control Act became effective.

"Of primary concern are sites that may endanger people and property," Rosenbaum explained. "In other words, the danger, whatever it may be, has to be near people, where they live, travel or play."

There are many examples of dangers. Unsealed underground-mine entrances or air shafts, abandoned tipples and cleaning facilities, and abandoned mining machinery near residences or play areas, are common dangers because they are attractive to children, he said. Landslides threatening houses or roads are obvious dangers.

Although not common in populated areas, subsidence can be very destructive. Subsidence, in which the land surface cracks and caves in, occurs where significant underground mining has eliminated support for the surface, Rosenbaum explained.

Dangers connected with water include drinking water that has been contaminated by acid-mine drainage, impoundments above residences, and streams clogged with silt or other debris from abandoned mines which causes flooding of nearby homes.

"We urge anyone knowing of dangerous mine sites, abandoned before Aug. 3, 1977, to report them to Skelly and Loy as soon as possible," Rosenbaum said. "They are working county by county and the sooner we know of the sites, the better chance we have for reclaiming those sites."

THE WINNING EDGE

READING THE DEFENSE

If you have possession of the basketball and are being defended there are basically three ways in which the opponent can guard you—(1) tight or overguarding position, (2) standard defense—an arm's length away (3) in a manner in which he tries to take your passing lane by playing closer to the man you want to pass to than he is to you; In each of these instances the offensive player must read the defense and react by following these rules: (1) if you're being over-guarded, drive him to the basket; (2) if you're being guarded in the standard defensive position, fake and pass; (3) if the defense is taking your passing lane then increase your passing lane by taking the ball to him on the dribble.

First of all, I want to publicly thank God for the wonderful blessed rain that fell all day long last Sunday, February 1st. Also for the beautiful snow that awaited us when we arose from our beds Sunday morning, February 8th. The snow was almost breathtaking it was so beautiful. Every tree, branch and twig and everything else discovered completely. The hand-work of God is always lovely. Again I say "Thanks to God." It has been so dry around here for several months. You know people usually complain about too much rain or snow, but you never hear anything said about it anymore, every body is so pleased to get it. But to me, I don't think it is anybody's business anyway. God knows what we need and whatever he sends we have to live with. And after all, what do the most of us do for God that we are deserving of His blessings? I know that I for one come up very short. Well, my mother, Liddie Reppert died 6 years ago February 6th and my sister, Bertha Vaughn one year ago January 27th. Time goes on but there's always that vacancy that is left. I'm sure all of their loved ones think of them often and miss them. But the hope that we have is this, that on day we can all meet in Heaven and be together forevermore.

Retirement Age Changes For School Bus Drivers

The state Board of Education Tuesday passed a motion to raise the maximum retirement age of school bus drivers from 65 to 70 and reversed a Kentucky High School Athletic Association decision concerning a student's sports eligibility.

At the December board meeting, Deputy Attorney General Robert Chenoweth suggested the board direct Department of Education personnel to secure additional information justifying age 65 as the maximum retirement age for school bus drivers.

Tuesday, Chenoweth recommended to the informants that ered by department personnel and said, "Based on the information I have seen, I suggest the board modify the recommendation and take it up to 70." The board then voted to raise the limit from 65 to 70.

Board members voiced their concerns over allowing school bus drivers between the ages of 65 and 70 to operate buses, but based on the recommendation made by Chenoweth, the motion passed and the regulation will now be in complete compliance with the federal regulations concerning age discrimination.

The board also voted not to uphold the athletic associations Board of Control recommendation concerning athletic eligibility in the case of John Henry Small. The Board of Control had ruled Small ineligible for athletic competition in accordance with By-Law 6, which requires a 36-week waiting period for students transferring from one school district to another.

Board member Stuart Jay pointed out that in this case there was evidence that the Board of Control should have waived the penalty according to By-Law 6 which does allow for eligibility when the residence of the student's parents changes from one district to another.

Board member Jay states, "The student's legal parent was changed by the court when he moved from New York to Kentucky, which means that his parents, legal not natural, did change residence and the student should not be penalized for this change." The board upheld the other athletic association appeal concerning student eligibility.

The board in earlier meetings had recommended the association review By-Law 6 and at Tuesday's meeting heard a report from Commissioner Tom Mills concerning proposed rule changes.

In other action, the board presented Amy Brown of Lexington with a scholarship donated by board members and Department of Education personnel. Brown is the daughter of the late Rev. Bob Brown, a former board member.

Taxpayers Can Choose Between Income Tax Forms

Perplexed about what forms you had to file your federal income tax this year? There are two basic forms, the Form 1041 and the simpler Form 1040A. Depending upon your personal situation and needs, one of them is best designed for you.

How do you decide which form to use?

You may be able to use a Form 1040A if you earned $20,000 or less ($40,000 or less if married and filing a joint return) during 1980, and all of your income is from wages, salaries, tips or unemployment compensation. In addition, you cannot have earned more than $400 in interest or $400 in dividends unless you are filing only to get a refund of the earned income credit. In that case interest or dividends can exceed $400. You may also be able to use a Form 1040A if you do not claim credits other than the earned income credit or the political contributions credit.

Filing the Form 1040A has advantages for you because it's short, easy to complete, saves sessions around "Prayer and the Life of Jesus". The group meets from nine to eleven each Wednesday morning; child care is provided.

A Community Choir, under the direction of Ralph Anderson, is being formed. Ralph has had more than twenty years experience teach music, participating in and directing church choirs. Participation in the Community Choir is open to everyone who enjoys singing. In addition to Sacred music, the Choir will develop a repertoire of Gospel songs and old-time favorites. The Choir will have its organizational meeting at the Enrichment Center on Thursday, March 5, 7:30 p.m. Fun and fellowship, as well as singing, are important parts of this program.

Recreational programs for youth will begin in March; family recreation programs are being planned. Dates and times will be announced. Everyday, the F.L.C. grounds are open to the community. Several hiking trails have been established through scenic and wooded areas; picnic spots are being developed. When temperatures are warmer, community families are welcome to bring picnics and enjoy the day re-creating at the F.L.C.

For more information, please contact Dorothy Williams, Director of Local Programs, Family Life Center, 256-5612.

time and makes errors less likely.

However, you must file the regular Form 1040 if you itemize deductions, or if you claim more exemptions than are shown in the tax table for your filing status. You also need to file the Form 1040 if your spouse files a separate return and itemizes deductions, unless your spouse lives apart from you for the whole year and you have a dependent child, in which case you may be able to use the Form 1040A.

You should file a Form 1040 if you decide to income average, or if you wish to claim certain tax credits such as child care credit, residential energy credit, credit for the elderly, investment credit, foreign tax credit, or work incentive credit. Filing a Form 1040 is also required if you are a qualifying widow (er) with a dependent child or if you made estimated tax payments.

If you are claimed as a dependent by your parents and had interest, dividends, or other unearned income of $1,000 or more, and you had earned income or less than $2,300 if single, or less than $1,700 if married filing a separate return, you must file a Form 1040. Additional guidelines for use of each of the Forms 1040 and 1040A can be found in the instructions in your 1980 Federal Tax Forms package.

REVISED INCOME SCALE

FAMILY SIZE	COLUMN I FREE MEALS AND FREE MILK if family income is within		COLUMN II REDUCED PRICE MEALS if family income is within

For each additional family member, add $1,530 per year to the income level for free meals and $2,380 to the income level for reduced price meals.

School officials will review all free and reduced meal applications currently on file in the schools using the revised income scale. If any change occurs in a student's eligibility status, parents will be notified in writing 10 days prior to any change being made in benefits.

In determining a child's eligibility under the new income guidelines, a school shall compare the family's income to the guidelines without allowing any hardship provisions. The hardship provision has been replaced by a standard deduction which is incorporated in the income scale.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if a family's size and income changes during the school year, the family should contact the school to file a new application.

Under provisions of the policy, the school official will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If he wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request either orally or in writing to: Mr. Charles B. Parsons (Hearing Officer)

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, or national origin. Each school and board of education has a copy of the completed policy which may be reviewed by an interested party.

Under these announced legislative changes, local boards of education are allowed sufficient time to implement the required revisions.
