The Third Annual Rockcastle Revue

Friday night, May 8th is the date set for his year's Rockcastle Revue. The Revue will again be held at the Old Barn in Renfro Valley and will feature performances by local youth.

This year's acts include a chorusline made up of local ladies, boys' scouts act, girls' scouts act, Jack Lewis and Band, "The Pointer Sisters" act, RCHS Chorus, Future Secretaries act, 4-H club act, Tribute to the Old South, Jennifer and Jamie Cox duet, Johnny Wilcox solo, 4-H club act-Patty Cake Polka, Roy Cummins solo, Cornrowers, Inc., and Blues Brothers.

The program this year will be minus an emcee since the show follows a skit-plot in which two broke Broadway producers hit town and try to help local clubwomen put on a show, but plan to leave town with the money.

An effort is being made to limit the length of this year's show to from between two and two and a half hours.

The community is urged to attend the show which promises to be even better than ever.

Indictments Returned

Arraignment date was set for June 12, 1981 for Michael Joe McFerron and Vincent L. Pittman after they were indicted by the Grand Jury on April 16 on six charges each. The charges stem from a March 29 incident involving four Pulaski County youths.

Pittman and McFerron had to be certified in District Court in order to be taken before the Grand Jury for indictment since technically both were classified as juveniles.

Pittman was indicted on charges of first degree rape, complicity, kidnapping, third degree assault-complicity, first degree robbery-complicity, first degree sodomy and first degree sexual abuse-complicity. He was released on $100,000 property bond.

Clarence Kirby, who had earlier been indicted on five charges of first degree rape, complicity, kidnapping, third degree assault-complicity, first degree robbery-complicity, first degree sodomy and first degree sexual abuse-complicity. He was released on $100,000 property bond.

Appalachians:

Authentic British Islanders

By Nancy Mullins

In the past several years the national spotlight has been on Appalachia. After the area was found to be different in many ways (whether good or bad) from the rest of the country, the goal of those who have goals was to change Appalachia. With that purpose in mind the area was funded, fed, studied, restricted, industrialized, opened-up, recorded, educated, evaluated, enlightened, photographed, analyzed, scrutinized, medicated, video-taped, examined, reviewed, supplied, romanticized and sometimes exploited.

Generalizations, some right, some wrong, were and are made about Appalachians but, like it or not, one of the most undeniable differences which singles Appalachians out is language. Not only the slowness of speech and the nasal quality, but many of the language differences are in expressions, words and pronunciations that are peculiar to the area.

It is the mistaken assumption in many cases that these differences indicate that the people are not smart or that they cannot learn how to communicate correctly. Much of the graphic spoken language of the hill farming people which so sets the area apart is considered poor usage by grammarians and provokes those in other parts of the country, many of whom have never set foot in Appalachia to deride the people as being unintelligent. Loretta Lynn said it well, I thought, when she screamed to her husband in the movie, Coal Miner's Daughter, "I may be ignorant but I'm not stupid."

According to Paul Dalton's research entitled "Elizabethan Leftovers in Allen County", upon which much of the rest of the article is based, "Imprecation demands that the people are not smart or that they cannot learn how to communicate correctly. Much of the graphic spoken language of the hill farming people which so sets the area apart is considered poor usage by grammarians and provokes those in other parts of the country, many of whom have never set foot in Appalachia to deride the people as being unintelligent. background of these people being given careful study before final judgement is placed upon them. He further states that, "The language of the people of England during the time of Shakespeare, when the exodus to America was just beginning, was essentially provincial or rural in nature. Dialects varied greatly in the different countries or shires. Communication was almost entirely oral, and the few who knew how to read and write concerned themselves very little with standardization of the spelling of words, as is evidenced by the oft-mentioned saying that the name of William Shakespeare is found to have been spelled scores of different ways during his lifetime. When the second wave of emigrants left England during the latter part of the 17th Century and the first part of the 18th Century, the coastal lowlands had already been taken up by the time they arrived in America. Their arrivals drifted on to the foothills and mountains where they soon formed a civilization apart and distinct from that of their lowland neighbors. These people were mostly English, with a plentiful scattering of Scotch-Irish.

This transplanted group in its new home became completely separated from its roots and almost entirely isolated from all contact with the outside world. It transmitted without modification from generation to generation its speech, its mores, its superstitions and its other social traditions. Consequently, their language and habits remained almost static while unchanging in its isolation, it wrought outside the boundaries of this region. Words were dropped and idioms shed by a progressive national speech while they were still treasured by those cut off from the main course of life. Soon the highland speech came to wear an old-fashioned air, with its archaic words, different pronunciations and old spellings.

Although this took place naturally, these highlanders have in recent years been criticized or laughed at for their language, when, in fact, they have really been faithful to the old tradition. These people today have a good reason for using almost every word and phrase they do and can be deemed ignorant only to the extent that they have failed to keep pace with the outside world in relinquishing old words and acquiring new ones. In some ways they actually have the advantage. For example, "I am afeard" is really better English than "I am afraid" since "afeard" is the regular participle of the old verb "afear" and "afraid" is the very irregular participle of "afray", an irregular variant of "afraid".

The commercializing effect of railroads, highways, mines, radios and newspapers, and the influence of better schools are gradually erasing the quaintness of the speech of "Elizabethan America". It has

Legislative Report

By Rep. Harold DeMarcus

There will be more on Kentucky's 1981 ballot than the candidates for public office.

On November 3rd of this year, Kentuckians will elect 100 state representatives and nineteen state senators. District judges, commonwealth's attorneys, county and local officials will also be elected.

Additionally, two constitutional amendments will be on the ballot. One of the amendments is being widely discussed, while the other has received little if any fanfare.

A constitutional amendment is placed on the ballot after it has passed the General Assembly by a three-fifths vote of all members elected, both the House of Representatives and Senate. A majority vote from the public is the culminating step in getting a constitutional amendment approved.

The constitutional amendment causing the most conversation proposes to amend the Kentucky Constitution to permit state constitutional officers to be elected to two successive terms. This would allow the governor to seek a second successive term in office.

The amendment would also allow sheriffs to seek election for an unlimited number of successive terms.

In the next seven months county sheriffs and the governor will probably wage a big campaign for approval of the succession amendment. So, those unfamiliar with the amendment should be well versed on the matter by November.

The constitutional amendment that is going almost unnoticed proposes to extend the homestead exemption to those classified as totally disabled, matter what their age.

The homestead exemption was created by a constitutional amendment approved by the voters in 1971, which allows Kentuckians 65 and older to be exempted from taxes on the first $6,500 of their assessed home property.

The homestead exemption includes a provision for a cost of living raise each year, and this year the actual exemption will amount to $10,200.

Extending the homestead exemption to the totally disabled is a very worthy cause. Although, needless to say its goal would cause a reduction in revenues for Kentucky government.

In November of 1979 Kentucky voters approved two constitutional amendments which pertained mostly to the state legislature. Since 1891 Kentucky voters have considered 51 (Cont'd to P-16)

Letter to the Editor

Alcoholism Recovery
Community: 1972-1980

Dear Editor,

Unfortunately, another social program has fallen victim to budget-cutting and cost-effectiveness evaluation. The ARC Program in Lexington was the only program of its kind in the state of Kentucky where alcoholics could receive treatment for their disease. During its eight years of existence, the program was immensely successful in providing treatment for persons suffering from alcoholism, a disease which not only affects the alcoholic but also his family, friends, the community, the state and the society. The cost of not treating the alcoholic is staggering not only in terms of lost dollars but also in human suffering and lives. Alcoholism untreated also means child abuse and neglect, spouse abuse, damage to lives and property, crimes of violence, jail terms, loss of employee effectiveness etc. The list goes on and the cost is absorbed by society.

Having been employed in the helping profession for the past six years, I have referred people to the ARC Program and have observed many individuals successfully complete the program and return to the community as recovering alcoholics able to become useful, contributing citizens once again.

As usual, an attempt to save taxpayers thousands will result in costing taxpayers millions of dollars not to mention the continuing suffering of all those directly affected by alcoholism.

Sincerely,

M. Anderson

"Today, several skills which pay enlistment bonuses are open to young people in the U.S. Army," according to Sergeant Lingerfelt, the Army Recruiter in Richmond. "These bonuses range up to $4,000 for qualified persons enlisting in certain specialties," Sgt. Lingerfelt said.

Many of the job skills offer challenge and adventure, plus learning new and useful skills with an opportunity to advance into supervisory positions. State Adoption Program For Special Needs Children

Are you thinking about becoming a special needs adoptive parent but not sure of the requirements involved?

Adoption may be less complicated than you think. The Department for Human Resources, the state agency that places children in adoptive homes, is looking for prospective parents who have a happy, stable home life, can accept a child through adoption and can give emotional care and love to a child not born to them.

There are not rigid standards for parents who want to adopt. Applicants do not have to earn big salaries or own their own homes. Adoptive parents may be single or married. You need only to have a real "home" for the child and live within your income.

Persons adopting special needs children may be eligible for adoption subsidies, which provide for continuing financial assistance from the department to help meet the child's needs.

If you are interested in the special needs adoption program, call toll free, 1-800-432-9346.

CAUTION

One way skin cancer can be avoided is by using caution in the sun. Use protective lotions, wear a hat or cover up, urges the American Cancer Society.

able," said Stumbo. "We know a lot of these reductions are going to be unpopular and in some cases difficult to cope with. We are genuinely concerned about the impact these cut-backs are having at the local level."

Through the meetings, he said, department representatives hope to help communities define what the budget cuts will mean locally and start looking for other ways to fill the gaps in services.

"I have said all along that we can't depend on government to satisfy all our needs," said Stumbo. "Now we all are beginning to see how necessary it will be for each of us to take on more responsibility for ourselves and for each other."

Each meeting will open with a 30-minute presentation on the Human Resources Department's services and the potential impact of federal and state budget cuts. The remainder of the two-hour sessions will be open for public comment and discussion.

Representatives of each of the department's four service bureaus (Health Services, Manpower Services, Social Insurance and Social Services) and the office of the Human Resources Ombudsman are scheduled to attend each meeting.

been with the thought of attempting to preserve in a small measure a record of these Elizabethan "leftovers" that I have undertaken this study of the spoken language of the remote sections of the Appalachian area in Kentucky." (Paul Dalton)

The following information is based upon Dalton's extensive word research. "Axe" is an old form of the verb "ask." "Beholden" or "beholden to"

are obsolete words expressing indebtedness. "Diked-out" is the corruption of the obsolete word "dight" which means "dressed." "Disremember" is an old word used in Ulster for "forget." "Duds" originated in Scotland and means "rough clothing." "Faze" came from the Old English word "feze" meaning "daunt." "Fer, ferret and ferrest" were the three degrees of the Old English form of the adverb "far." "Fit" is an obsolete past tense of "fought." "Feteh" is a word from the Old English "foche." "Hit" is an obsolete form of the pronoun "it." "Hunker" is a Scottish word, when used as a verb it means "to squat", when used as a noun it means the calves of the legs. For example, "Get down on your hunkers and hail the plants." "Neb" is an Anglo-Saxon relic meaning the features of the face mainly the "nose." For example, "Keep your neb-nose of it." "Lam" is an Old English word meaning "to beat". "Peaked or peaky" are adjectives from the dialect of Devonshire and mean "pale". "Rare and rare" are from the Anglo-Saxon "rarian" meaning "to bellow".

Many of the old usages have been so assimilated into the language that we do not recognize them as being outmoded words saved for us by our isolated Appalachian ancestors. Among these are such words as: tote, whelk, smidgen, shebang, lambaste, feisty, galluses, gab, catty-cornered, greens and gum.

The following pronunciations are a few examples Dalton gives with each being the archaic pronunciation traced directly to a particular area or areas in England, Ireland or Scotland: "bile" for "boil," "brickle" for brittle, "kin" for can, "bust" for burst, "ater" for after, "cuss" for curs, "keer" for care, "chaw" for chew, "chimbley" or "chimley" for chimney, "kivver" for cover, "drap" for drop, "juberusus" for dubious, "deef" for deaf, "line" for join, "year" for ear, "ellum" for elm, "eatch" for itch, "retch" for reach, "marvel" for marble.

"jist" for just, "rench" for rinse, "sallet" for salad, "sassy" for saussy, "stob" for stab, "shuck" for shook, "yeller" for yellow, "tuck" for took, "vermilt" for vermin and "whup" for whip.

The quality of the language was, and perhaps is, the unaltered inventing of colorful expressions and methods of identifying people. For instance, several years ago in one section of Rockcastle County, it was common and accepted (possibly to avoid confusion as to who was being referred to since so many had the same first and last name) to refer to a woman by her first name followed by her husband's first name. The husband often went by a nickname so that a conversation in a community household might go something like this: "Did you say Aunt Lucy 'Coot' was sick or Aunt Lucy 'Biggy' or 'Mary Gard' said she saw Aunt Can-Tom today." Sometimes even this was not enough and the husband's father's name was added. Em-John-Mod and Em-Frank-John were instances of this.

The men bearing the same first name and last name, if not otherwise nicknamed, were likely differentiated by such names as "Long Jim", "Short Jim" and "Jim Number Three" who might later in life simply be referred to as "Three". Bill- Foot was so named because he had large feet. Children often were referred to by their first names plus their father's first name or nickname, such as Bill-Tink, Ed-Tink, Frank-Tink, Grant-Tink or Shot-Henry's children as Johnny-Shot and Jack-Shot. Since this was the common reference, sometimes much confusion surrounded the actual last name.

I have always been proud of my rural mountain heritage and I have felt grateful for the privilege of the simple values and lifestyles. "Flick", "hill-billy" and "briarhopper" are names I feel proud to be called because it is what I am. "Briar Is Better" might be a slogan for those who, like me, believe the Appalachians to be the most authentic British Islanders in America today.

JAMES BOWMAN
SHERIFF
Rockcastle County
No. 3 On The Ballot

For the past several years, I have taken an active interest in the improvement and betterment of Rockcastle County. This interest was the main reason for my decision this Spring to become a candidate for Sheriff of Rockcastle County.

I feel it is vitally important that a candidate take an interest in his or her life - not just at election time. I also feel that commitments other candidates make are part of the Sheriff's Dept. in the first place such as:

- (1) 24 hr. protection for the people.
- (2) Serving Warrants.
- (3) On Call When Needed.
- (4) Patrolling of Roads.

If elected, I will continue to take the same complete interest in our community as those of you who are acquainted with me know that I have in the past. This same interest will help me to carry out the duties of the Sheriff's Department to the letter of the law.

I've always believe in betterment of the community. I would like to see more ditchlines cleaned out. We also need road signs for each of our roads. Each road needs a name and a number. Several of our roads need guardrails installed to insure safety for the drivers. I would personally like to see the tall weeds and grass mowed in the summer so you could see around surves better.

Our county has enough good workers that litter could be kept off the right of way.

I realize that the workers cover all districts, but I feel, by organization, all this and much more can be accomplished. This will taken time I'm sure.

The County Judge is the authoritative decision maker in our county system.

The magistrates are only allowed to submit suggestions. Each and every vote for me will be appreciated.

Fish and Wildlife Open House is April 24

By John Wilson

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will hold an open house Friday, April 24 between noon and 6 p.m. at its new headquarters, the Arnold L. Mitchell Building, located at the Game Farm, five miles west of Frankfort on U.S. 60 (Helby Atte Road).

The public is invited to come take a first-hand look at the "house that sportsmen built." The 25,692-square foot building was paid for through regular fish and wildlife funds, which come primarily from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses. No general state revenue was used and the building was paid for in full before construction began, making this building, if not unique, at least most unusual among government edifices.

A highlight of the open house will be the unveiling of a minnows ten to twelve feet deep over stickups; murky to muddy, rising at four feet below summer pool and 65 degrees.

exhibition of wildlife art. The works of at least 20 Kentucky wildlife artists will be on permanent display in the lobby of the building.

"As far as we know, this is the only place in the state where such a collection of works by Kentucky artists will be displayed," says Carl Kays, the department's commissioner.

The building is named in honor of the department's former commissioner, Arnold L. Mitchell, whose professional career was devoted to wildlife conservation in Kentucky. Mitchell joined the department as a biologist in 1949 and was director of game management for 14 years before being appointed commissioner in 1971. He retired in 1978 and still lives in Frankfort with his wife, Joan.

The Mitchell building overlooks one of the two lakes on the Fish and Wildlife Department's Game Farm, a 150-acre facility just west of Frankfort. Construction of the new office building necessitated moving "exhibition row," a popular display of native and exotic wildlife species.

The four-week program will help potential students brush up on their communication and study skills.

The class meets each Tuesday and Thursday, May 5 - 28 from 8:30 to 9 p.m. in Room 304 Graze Hall. Enrollment fee is $25.

Instructors for the class are Sharon Brennan of the UK Counseling and Testing Center, Roger Fain and Ruth Hull of the UK English Department and Enid Waldhart of the UK Communications Department.

Skills focused on in the class will include increasing speed and comprehension for efficient note-taking; refining techniques for various types of test-taking; help in relieving fears of communicating in front of others.

For more information or to register for the class, contact Jane Stephenson, Academic Support Services, telephone (60) 257-2883. Enrollment is limited to 20 persons and the deadline for admission is May 1.

NURSING PROGRAM EARNS DISTINCTION

Nursing students in Eastern Kentucky University's Associate Degree program have achieved a first-time distinction by earning a 100 percent pass rate on the State Board Test for the third consecutive time.

The achievements were attained by the last three graduating classes, according to Phyllis Welnetz, chairman of the Associate Degree Nursing program. The exam is administered uniformly in all 50 states on the same date by the National League for Nursing so that all associate degree nurses are measured against national competency standards.

Welnetz indicated that "motivation" was the primary rea-

Huddleston Bill Protects Farmers - Consumers

Senator Walter (Dee) Huddleston has introduced sweeping farm legislation designed to continue those federal programs that contribute to stability and price protection for farmers and plentiful supplies at reasonable prices for consumers.

In addition, the bill would slash nearly half a billion dollars from the food stamp program while assuring that qualified, needy recipients continue to receive benefits.

son for the students' success. Welnetz said that other reasons were a positive faculty-student relationship heightened by a faculty "open-door policy" as well as close faculty guidance and supervision.

Additionally, the faculty conducts post-graduate evaluations and monitors the program to continually upgrade the quality of the curriculum and to ensure that students are receiving accurate and relevant instruction. Welnetz pointed out that all May 1981 associate degree nursing graduates have obtained jobs in hospitals or clinics. This indicates the program is meeting the needs of employers and students alike.

Welnetz said the ADN's mission is to train bedside nurses with emphasis on primary patient care.

She also said the program will achieve another distinction when the May 1981 class graduates its 1,000th student.

Democrat on the Senate Agriculture Committee, which will begin writing the new farm bill later this month. The farm bill basically sets federal agriculture policies for four years.

"Farmers are facing unusually unprecedented demands and problems - record high interest rates, the ravages of drought, falling farm income and dramatically higher fuel costs," Huddleston pointed out in introducing the legislation.

"All of us, farmer and consumer alike, have a stake in the farmer's survival."

Huddleston noted that while the federal government cannot and should not provide total protection to the farmer in a free market system, "over the years, federal price support programs have provided a degree of stability in uncertain markets and protection from prices far below the cost of production."

Here are some highlights of the Huddleston Farm Bill:

Target Prices: This program establishes price levels for certain commodities based on the cost of producing crops. In the event that the market price falls below the target price, payments would be made to make up for the deficiency. The Huddleston bill would set target prices for wheat at $4.40 a bushel, up from $3.81; corn at $2.75 a bushel, up from $2.40; cotton at 80 cents a pound, up from 71 cents; and $11.01 per hundredweight for rice, up from $10.68. Huddleston would also retain the set-aside authority and the "safety net" loans to farmers storing crops.

The administration has proposed abolishing the target price program as well as the set-aside program.

Vote For Graydon B. Cummins For County Judge-Executive

When I am elected as your County Judge Executive, the only obligation I will have is to serve the people of Rockcastle County. I am not obligated to any special groups who want to feather their own nests.

I believe in the democratic principles. I do not think it is right for the people of this county to get less than a full time qualified person to run this county.

I am not obligated to anyone individually. None of my sons or daughters are state employees. I have no buildings either rented or leased to the state of Kentucky, therefore I am not obligated to the state administration.

I was not elected to run by a few selfish, own interest people. I am in the race to stay. Come November 3, 1981, I will be right there.

A good candidate runs for something. Below are the things I am running for:

1. Better roads so our children can get out to the bus. Our children should have a good education. They are to compete in this complicated world in which we're living.

2. This county can afford a first class ambulance service and I will see that we have one.

3. Our Senior Citizens are having a tough time getting transportation to the grocery store and to the doctors. I will set up a transportation system that will aid those who are so disabled that they cannot get out.

4. We have a good looking courthouse, but it is running due to poor upkeep. I'll get the roof fixed and clean it up so our citizens will be proud to come in and visit it.

5. We have five magistrates. I want to see each one and encourage them to do a good job. I'll work with them and we will get the county moving.

6. I'll work closely with the Industrial Authority and the other civic organizations in our county to get industry into the county.

7. I'll meet with the City Councils of each town in our county and especially Mt. Vernon to see if it will be possible to re-finance our county water system so the water bills can be lowered. Country people can't afford $18 and $20 a month water bills.

8. I'll work with the Magistrates to set up a countywide door to door garbage pick-up service at very little cost to the people.

9. I'll work with the soil conservation people to preserve our natural resources.

10. I'll work with our county Health Department to see that it has the building and the equipment to do a good job. I will also give my fullest support to the Rockcastle County Hospital and the Extended Care Facility.

During this campaign, I have been offered contributions but, thus far, I have refused them. However, if anyone does wish to make a donation to my campaign, you may do so by depositing any amount to the Graydon B. Cummins Campaign Fund, Account # 001-412-5, at the Bank of Mt. Vernon.

Help for Cancer Patients

The American Cancer Society, as part of its cancer control program, provides certain types of aid free of charge to medically indigent cancer patients. The following types of help are available to patients in Rockcastle County:

1. surgical dressings; these are available in all sizes, being made to order for the individual patient.
2. reimbursement for transportation expenses to the nearest cancer center approved by the American College of Surgeons. This is based on the cost of a round-trip bus ticket. In this area, approved by ACS are the UK Medical Center and Good Samaritan Hospital, both in Lexington.

3. ostomy supplies.
4. durable equipment, for example—bedpans, hospital beds—on a loan basis.
5. rehabilitation services for mastectomy, laryngectomy, and ostomy patients.

6. self-help support group for patients with life-threatening illness and their families.
The Society is not able to pay physician, hospital or drug bills. Medical indigence is basically determined by the patient's physician, who must sign the request for services. Also, the Society cannot give aid that is readily available from any other source.

Home Energy Savings

Summer is just around the corner, bringing with it those hot, lazy days. This summer, as in the past, homeowners will be turning on their air-conditioners for comfort. To get the most out of your energy dollar, follow these tips on economical home air conditioning.

When selecting a central air-conditioning unit, purchase one with the lowest suitable capacity and highest efficiency. A larger unit not only costs more to run, but probably won't remove enough moisture from the air.

Make sure the ducts in your air-conditioning system are properly insulated, especially those that pass through the attic or other uncooled places.

In place of central air-conditioning, consider using individual window or through-the-wall units in rooms that only need cooling from time to time.

To further reduce your cooling expenses, use fans instead of more expensive air conditioning. Install a whole-house ventilating fan in your attic or in an upstairs window to cool the house when it's cool outside. It will pay to use the fan rather than air conditioning when the outside temperature is 82 degrees or below. With the windows open, the fan pulls cool outside air through the house and exhausts warm air through the attic.

A lot of political strategy went into the buying of the election of "ugliest candidate" at the Jaycees Political Pie Supper Friday night. The winner, whether deserved or not, was Danny Fort, far right. Runner up was Ernest Stanley, shown in the center with wife, Janita, and third place winner was James H. Lambert, left.

When using your air-conditioner, set your thermostat at 78 degrees. This is a reasonably comfortable temperature. A setting of 78 degrees reduces cooling costs by 12 to 47 percent over a setting of 72 degrees.

Don't set your thermostat at a colder setting than normal when you turn your air-conditioner on. It will not cool the house any faster. It will cool to a lower temperature than you need and thus use more energy.

Set the fan speed on high except in very humid weather. When it's humid, set the fan speed to low. You'll get less rapid cooling, but more moisture will be removed from the air because the moisture-laden air is exposed to the cooling coils for a longer time.

Clean or replace air-conditioning filters at least once a month. When the filter is dirty, the fan has to work harder and run longer to move the same amount of air. This takes more electricity which costs you money.

Turn off your window air-conditioner when you leave a room for several hours. You'll use less energy cooling the room down later than if you let the unit run.

Consider using a fan along with your air-conditioner to spread the cooled air farther without greatly increasing your power use.

Don't place lamps or TV sets near your air-conditioner to spread the cooled air farther without greatly increasing your power use.

Don't place lamps or TV sets near your air-conditioner thermostat. Heat from these appliances is sensed by the thermostat and causes the air-conditioner to run longer than necessary.

If everyone in the nation raised air-conditioning temperatures six degrees, we would save the equivalent of 36 billion kilowatt hours of electricity each year.

A LOOK INTO THE FUTURE

What strategies will you adopt if inflation reaches the 20 percent mark? What would be the safest car to buy from now till 1990? Which new differences will endure? Such questions claim serious attention.

If computers are the present, robots may be the wave of the future, some experts believe.

They are the kinds of questions which a new magazine has been designed to explore. Covering topics from almost every discipline—economics, biology, ethics, lifestyles—this new magazine, NEXT, is aimed at treating issues that will affect our lives in the next 2 to 10 years.

The magazine's goal is to help people cope with change. Its editor, A.J. Vogt, views it as a source of information on which readers can base intelligent decisions about their future. For a six-issue subscription to NEXT at only $9.99 (cover price is $2.00), call 800-247-5470. You can cancel your subscription at any time and receive a refund on undelivered issues.

Don't Post

Advertisements On State Right-of-Way

State Department of Transportation officials remind Rockcastle motorists that posting advertisements on state right of way and defacing traffic signs are illegal. Under Kentucky Revised Statute 512.080, placing posters, advertisements or notices on public property is a violation and may be punishable by a fine or up to $250.

Placing stickers on street signs or defacing them with paint or bullet holes is a misdemeanor under KRS 512.40. The penalty may be a sentence of up to 90 days, a fine of up to $250 or both.

Transportation officials said in addition to the expense of replacing signs and removing posters from the right of way, these violations can cause a hazard to drivers. Signs or advertisements on the sight of way can obstruct a driver's vision.

Stickers on traffic signs destroy the reflective quality of the signs, making it difficult to see them at night, officials point out.

RHUBARB

What is it
Rhubarb is unique in that it is sometimes classified as an herb and sometimes as a vegetable. It is served as a fruit in sauces and is made into jams and pies. Whatever the classification, it is one of the earliest foods in the garden each spring. You may hear it called the pie plant rather than rhubarb. It is a fair source of potassium and vitamins A and C.

What to look for
Look for fresh, firm rhubarb with a bright, glossy appearance. The stems should be pink or red in color, although some good quality stems will be predominantly light green. Be sure the stem is tender and not too fibrous. Avoid very slender or very thick stems which are most likely to be tough and also avoid wilted or flabby rhubarb.

Preparing Rhubarb
Never cook the leaves because they contain a large amount of oxalic acid that is not safe to eat. However, the stems are perfectly safe to cook and eat. Can or freeze rhubarb or even make jam from it. It is also good to eat fresh.

Canning Rhubarb
Wash rhubarb and cut into 1/2 inch pieces. Add 1/2 cup sugar to each quart of rhubarb and let stand to draw out juice. Bring to boiling. Pack hot into hot standard jars leaving 1/2 inch headspace. Wipe jar rims clean. Adjust lids. Process in boiling-water-bath canner (212 degrees F) for 10 minutes for strawberry; remove caps or crush. To make jam, measure prepared rhubarb and strawberries into a kettle. Add sugar and stir well. Place on high heat and, stirring constantly, bring quickly to a full boil with bubbles over the entire surface. Boil hard for 1 minute, stirring constantly.

Freezing Rhubarb

Choose firm, tender, well-colored stalks with good flavor and few fibers. Wash, trim and cut into 1 or 2 inch pieces, or in lengths to fit the package. Heat rhubarb in boiling water for 1 minute and cool promptly in cold water to help retain color and flavor.

For unweetened pack - pack either raw or preheated rhubarb lightly into freezer containers without sugar. Leave head space. Seal and freeze.

For syrup pack - pack either raw or preheated rhubarb tightly into freezer containers, cover with cold 40 percent syrup (3 cups sugar to 4 cups of water). Leave space. Seal and freeze.

Rhubarb-Strawberry Jam
Cook cupped red-stalked rhubarb about 1 pound rhubarb and 1/4 cup water)

2 1/2 cups crushed strawberries about 1 1/2 quart boxes)
6 1/2 cups sugar
1/4 bottle liquid pectin

To prepare fruit, wash rhubarb and slice thin or chop; do not peel. Add water, cover and simmer until rhubarb is tender (about 1 minute).

Sort and, wash fully ripe strawberries; remove caps and wash.

VOTE FOR Rollie Mullins FOR Magistrate OF THE FIRST DISTRICT
Republican Primary, May 26, 1981
WORLD WAR II VETERAN

Your Vote And Influence Appreciated

PAID FOR BY CANDIDATE

ELECT Jerry Carter Republican Candidate For County Clerk

Four years ago, the people of Rockcastle elected Irene Bales as County Clerk. At that time, several people were under the impression that she would not run for another term.

Mrs. Bales has changed her mind, whatever the reasons, and wants the people to give her four more years. If elected, she will have served in office a total of 20 years.

I, for one, feel the people have been gracious enough. It's time to elect someone who will serve the people with kindness and honesty all four years and not just at election time.

Your Vote and Support will be Appreciated.

Maple Grove In Revival

The Maple Grove Baptist Church has invited Bro. Elmer Oakley to conduct a week-long revival beginning Sunday, April 26th and running through Saturday, May 2nd. Services will begin nightly at 7 p.m. There will be special singing nightly including, Marsha Fuller, Bradley and Shirley Green, The Blue Grass Meditations, the Rammer Family, the Solid Rock Singers, the Sunrise Gospelists and the Brush Creek Holiness Church Singers. Pastor Lester Arnold invites everyone to attend.

I am a candidate for Sheriff of Rockcastle County. A life-long resident of this county, I am a veteran of the Korean War.

If elected Sheriff, I will hire my deputies and a secretary at a later date. I do not believe in making a lot of promises but intend to fulfill the obligations of this office to the best of my ability.
