At Saturday's Parade.

It was an ill wind.....

Saturday, during the Christmas parade on Main Street, seemed a good time to have a "bake" sale, at least according to the Foster Parents Association thought.

But then, that was before the big helicopter dipped low over Main Street to drop ping pong balls inscribed with gifts from local merchants.

The wind gust from the helicopter was so strong for a few seconds that it not only blew children off floats, but blew all the bake sale money, including some coins, and craft items, from the table.

People reaching for ping pong balls thought the helicopter was also dropping money and so the efforts of the Foster Parents were "gone" with the wind.

Randy Ison, manager of Druthers, who was helping with the JKL concession trailer, gave the group a donation.

The Foster Parents Association raises money annually to provide a Christmas party for children living in foster homes in Rockcastle County.

Anyone wishing to donate to the party can call Phyllis Holbrook, 256-4416, or 256-4425 at the Bureau for Social Services.

New Requirements for Food Stamp Eligibility

New requirements set by the federal government will affect eligibility for some food stamp recipients, announced Dr. Grady Stumbo, Secretary of the Department for Human Resources.

An insert explaining the new requirements will be enclosed with the December allotment which recipients receive their food stamps.

Regulation changes made by Congress mean that some households will no longer be eligible to receive food stamps if their gross income extends 130 percent of the poverty guideline unless at least one household member receives Social Security Income or Social Security disability, or is age 60 or older and the total net household income does not exceed poverty guidelines.

The standard deduction for work-related expenses has also been reduced from 15 percent to 10 percent of the gross earned income.

Changes caused by these regulations will begin with the January allotment. There will be an opportunity for a fair hearing

Monday, December 7th was the first day in office for newly elected Property Valuation Administrator H.R. "Tim" Hale. FVA's take office in December rather than January as do the other county officials. Margaret Offutt, left, and Jean Hale, center, are office assistants.

State DOT Awards Contracts

The state Department of Transportation has awarded more than $21.4 million in contracts for construction projects in 37 counties throughout the state.

Included were projects to replace 36 bridges as part of the more than 280 bridge replacement projects included in the state's five-year road and bridge construction plan.

As part of the federal bridge replacement program, the federal government provides 80 percent of the construction cost and the state provides the remaining 20 percent.

In Floyd County, Kay and Kay Contractors, Inc. of London received a $1 million contract to build a bridge over Lewis Fork of the Big Sandy River on Tram Bridge Road.

A $1.2 million contract was awarded to Hazek Construction Co. of Henderson to build a bridge over Lead Creek and a bridge over Yellow Creek on U.S. 60, Lewisport-Hawesville Road, in Hancock County.

Kay and Kay received another contract for a $1 million project to build a bridge over the L&N Railroad and Roundstone Creek on Ky. 490, Livingston-Victory-Fairburg Road, in Rockcastle County.

In Lawrence County, a $910,161 contract was awarded to Bush and Burchett Inc. of Allen for construction of a bridge over Rockcastle Creek on Ky. 3, Inez-Louisa Road.

Shamrock Corp. of Kentuckiana, a Louisville firm, received a $2.5 million contract for the four-laning of Parrish Avenue in Owensboro. The project, which includes a center turn lane,

Farmers Reportedly Pleased With Tobacco Prices and Poundage

With burley tobacco poundage in the county doubling that of last year and prices up from last year's average of $1.65 to this year's $1.81, Rockcastle

County tobacco growers are well pleased this selling season, according to Harold Ballinger of the ASCS office.

About 75% of the growers are reaching their 100-110% poundage quota and about 40% are exceeding the quota," according to statistics from his office.

Ballinger anticipates the total sale of tobacco grown in the county to reach or exceed 4 1/2 million pounds. Last year, due to drought, only 2.4 million pounds reached the market.

Both of the reconstruction projects are part of the state's five-year road construction program for those counties.

With the market holding at $1.81 and some farmers getting $1.83 and $1.84, the total cash realization for county farmers could easily reach $8 million for the 1981 growing season.

Authoritative Overview of Common Modern Malady... the Dreaded Virus

By Nancy Mullins

Diphtheria, measles, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, bubonic plague, black death influenza and yellow fever epidemics have all struck fear in the hearts of those living in times past.

With modern medicines advances in the past 60 years or so, these no longer are the looming threats they once were; however, there is an illness which probably comes as close as making modern mothers grow faint as any of the above mentioned plagues. The illness I speak of is the common, seldom fatal, two-day stomach virus.

Of course, one can only speak with any degree of confidence from personal experience. After coming to the realization that I have had at least six years of experience with the latter and having emerged from a recent bout with it, I have (not by choice) become somewhat of an authority on the subject of the stomach virus.

The "virus" as most people more simply refer to it, plays no favorites. It strikes the young, the old, the big, the little, the rich, the poor and male and female alike.

It is so highly contagious that I have come to believe that anyone who develops the symptoms should immediately be stripped, bathed in Lysol, have all personal possessions burned and made to stay outside in the fresh air until proven completely healed.

You can be sure that if these precautions are not taken, every member of the family and anyone with whom any member of the family has any contact will have the virus.

The virus attacks in a "chain reaction" style. Seldom will any two members or "household" have the virus at the same time. It is only after bed clothes, towels, wash cloths and clothes have been Purexed, carpets have been shampooed, mattresses and cushions aired and everyone decides to breathe deeply, that the next person is overcome with the disease and the cycle is reactivated. This usually continues until a week has passed or everyone has been ill, whichever comes first.

Friends and acquaintances disappear quickly from the contaminated family. A fairly educated family in the community can expect even phone conversations to suddenly cease when "the word" is circulated.

Doctors have come to treat more and more cases of virus over the phone prescribing a medicine that is above all things "not to be swallowed".

And when old-timers tell their stories of the trauma of getting castor oil down, don't think I don't have some better ones to tell concerning virus medication.

I used to be a consultant of doctors. I thought they had some secret virus prophylaxis since you never hear of a doctor having a virus (even before they started treating by phone).

There is one other thing to look out for when dealing with a virus, no matter how nauseous children feel, they will avoid

Legislative Report

By Rep. Harold DeMarcus

Kentucky's state representatives and senators are continuing to prefile bills for the 1982 General Assembly.

Legislators prefile bills with the Legislative Research Commission in order to afford all interested persons and groups an opportunity to study their proposals.

Profiled bill 109 seeks to require a five-year educational improvement plan rather than an annual plan from each local school district. This bill has been approved by the Interim Education committee.

Profiled bill 111 seeks to prohibit parole or conditional release for persons convicted of or pleading guilty of Class A, B or C felonies wherein a weapon from which a shot or projectile can be discharged, was used. This bill has been referred to the Interim Judiciary committee.

Profiled bill 112 seeks to require each executive order of the governor relating to his reorganization authority to be presented to the General Assembly as a separate bill.

Profiled bill 120 seeks to allow a member of the Kentucky teacher's retirement system to retire with full benefits after 27 years of service regardless of age. This bill has been referred to the Interim Education committee.

Profiled bill 121 seeks to require that solid waste landfills be constructed and operated in such a manner that the surface of the filled area does not project significantly above the original ground surface.

Profiled bill 123 seeks to direct the Department of Natural Resources to study the problems associated with the operation of waste water treatment facilities in rural and suburban areas. And, to conduct a public forum for citizen comment on such operations.

Profiled bill 126 seeks to permit a peace officer to arrest a person at the scene of an accident, without a warrant, for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs if he has reasonable and probable grounds to believe that the persons was driving under such influence, rather than requiring that the offense to have been committed in the officer's presence.

Profiled bill 129 seeks to define a property tax rate of one-tenth of one cent upon each $100 of the value of business inventories. This bill was prefiled by the members of the Task Force on Small Business.

Profiled bill 136 seeks to establish a procedure for an appeal hearing relating to the denial, suspension or revocation of a child day-care facility's license.

Profiled bill 137 seeks to require periodic review of existing administrative regulations by the state legislature. Also, this bill would establish a schedule for such review.

Profiled bill 140 seeks to develop a community work experience program to provide recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children, who must register with the Work Incentive Program, to work on projects serving a useful public purpose as a condition for receipt of benefits.

If you have any questions or opinions on these or other prefiled bills, please write to Representative W. Harold DeMarcus, House Minority Office, Room 314, State Capitol, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Consumer Alert

By Steven L. Beshear
 Attorney General

Wood-Burning Heaters
 With the rapidly rising price of fuel, the thought of heating your home with low-cost, wood-burning heaters has probably become more attractive. In fact, sales of wood-burning heaters jumped from 200,000 in 1972 to 1.2 million in 1979.

With more and more people investing in these devices, Attorney General Steven L. Beshear suggests you should know how to compare wood-burning heaters so that the one you purchase will fit your needs.

There are two basic kinds of wood-burning heaters: radiant and circulating.

Radiant heaters have a single wall between the fire and the room. This will get extremely hot and radiates heat into the room. Caution in necessary around radiant heaters because contact with the heater can cause serious burns. Radiant heaters are not recommended for those with small children, Beshear advises.

Circulating heaters have a second wall which surrounds the firebox. Air is heated between the walls and then passes out into the room. Some models have blowers which force the air to circulate. These circulating heaters can heat several rooms fairly evenly, however, they generally cost more than other heaters. Beshear says.

The most efficient wood-burning heaters are devices which burn the small particles and gases that wood releases as it burns.

Another aid to efficiency is the thermostatically controlled damper. These

Disputanta

By Hilda Gabbard

After people got used to the cold weather we have been having, they settled in and turned to a cold weather chore—"hog killing time." I don't believe I've seen so many greasy chins, including our own, for a long time. I heard Johnny King was killing a lot of hogs, so I made plans to get real friendly with his family. In these inflation days, you need a friend with a full smokehouse of meat. But Johnny dashed my hopes by saying he had killed hogs for other people. The way he talked, I should probably be taking his family meat during the hard season ahead.

Things are never dull on Clear Creek. The picture of Tip Repper and his turnip stirred Armon Neely to challenge Tip for the title of the year's Champ. Now we didn't weigh the one Armon brought from his patch but it measured 21 1/4 inches around. This takes Jimmy Clark out of the race for the one he gave me when I visited their home in Anglin Falls Hollow was a whopper. I keep telling you Clear Creek is the place to live.

Our Thanksgiving guests were sons from northern Ky., Chesley Cornett who spent two days with us, and Russell and wife Sherrill. Their daughter, Diana Lynn, came along to play with Today and Tomorrow, our kittens, who are fast growing into cats, but romp and wrestle like children. I am very proud of 13 year old Diana, who is a seventh grade pupil of R.C. Jones Junior High School in Florence of Boone County. She was one of four students who had been nominated for the Duke University Talent Search Program because she qualified by scoring above the 97 percentile on the National Achievement Tests. She will be invited to take the A.C.T. test at UK which qualifies her to enroll at advanced academic classes in various universities. Now I wonder if her Grandma having 32 years of teaching experience, and her mother, Sherrill, being one of Boone County's School counselors, as well as a student of Duke University (now before you choke on that as I did, it's a higher education's study of the qualities of the mind and potential of a child) would have anything to do with Diana's knowledge? "Correction Department!"

In writing of the Anglin's of Falls Hollow Road, I wrote that the name of Anglin was about to cease because there were no male descendants of the last son, a statement made to me by Lynn Anglin Clark. I should have said of the Mason Anglin family of that area, not all Anglin relatives.

Well, I look any day for Sheriff Henry Abney to come for me with a warrant, and I'm afraid to go down Clear Creek toward Mt. Vernon since Bronco Abney carries a big club for me (all relatives) for in naming the Abney brothers and sisters of my Grandpa Taylor Abney, (at 1 o'clock in the morning while writing this column) I left out Uncle Jack Abney, Pa's younger brother, who was the most likeable and fun loving person that I knew as a great niece! Am I forgiven, "Some Facts"!

Dema Anglin of Anglin Falls Hollow has a truck that she estimated to be 75 years old, having been in her family during that time. I must go back and visit again to see about the beautiful quilt that she was making, she may let me see in the trunk what, I am sure, will be fascinating memories of this 89 year old little lady.

I recently read that an ant can carry 50 times its own weight. Some people can hardly carry their own in a crisis. Me, 120, early some mornings.

As of this writing, we are deeply in sympathy with Bro. Herbert and Alta Berry and family, for he has re-entered a hospital in Lexington for further tests due to his illness. May God help his faithful servant, is my prayer for Bro. Herbert. Cleve and Blanche Payne, John and I were dinner guests of our niece, Nyra Hart, in Berea, recently after church. She is the daughter of our beloved sister, Vergia Payne Williams, who passed away some years ago. Nyra is a wonderful cook and I have it on the authority of her cousin, Fred Williams, president of Berea National Bank "What that woman can do to squash!" he praised her and I surely agree. Ask us again, Nyra!

While in Berea recently, I stopped to visit Sus McCerron Abney, wife of Edd Abney who passed away some months ago with the largest attendance of Abney relatives, ever to be seen at his funeral. It shows what a likeable kind of man Edd was. Sue had been kind enough to call about my writing so I stopped to thank her for the pat on the back. Visiting her was her sister, Fannie McCerron Mullins who had been a school teacher at the Anglin Falls School before me. Fannie says she had some stirring times for during one flooding of a creek that she had to cross; she rode Jim Anglin's old mule to get to the schoolhouse. That's what mountain school teachers do to keep things going for the kids—"snow days" then, nor "flood days" either, it seems.

Matilda Miller is a pioneer type of woman who lets nothing stop her. One Sunday afternoon, John and I took her over the rough road up Dicky Cope Hollow to the Chastain Cemetery. It was the most peaceful scene of a well-kept "grave yard." But we had come to gather perennials which lay thick on the ground. The tree was so tall we couldn't begin to think of climbing it but I wondered if Thilo meant to try as she gazed upwards at the delicious fruit. Kids, no candy bar could ever give you the satisfaction we got as children when we sank our teeth into a permignon after the frost bit them. But look out, if you ate one before the frost ripened the fruit!

One of the happy facts that I have found out about living on Clear Creek (Cont'd to P-6)

is that I won't be deprived of reading, which is my hobby. Reading can take you any place. It is the best pastime a child or grownup can have. One day I saw a familiar white van come over the hill and I said, "Why they have a Bookmobile here on Clear Creek?" Sure enough it slid to a stop and the friendliest, smiling woman opened the door when I rushed out. She couldn't have opened a bank vault and said, "Help yourself!" than I was happy to greet the Bookmobile Lady or Librarian as she called herself. I met Geraldine Gentry Robbins, who is a lovely person in her own right. She was very helpful in securing a book, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" where the story takes place in Louisville's poor district years ago. If you want to laugh your sides off, read that book. You'll think your problems are nothing and you will feel better for it.

The article about Tom Nicely brought home memories of what a good family friend he had been to the Payne's. I remember my Dad taking me to Mt. Vernon one time and, having business to attend, he stopped by the Nicely home, asking Lucy Nicely if he could leave a bewildered country child with her for a few hours. "Indeed you can and I want you to come back for dinner with Tom," and she reached out a loving hand to draw a frightened child into what seemed an enormous house. She made me so welcome, and talked so kindly, soon lost my 8 year old shyness. I too have wonderful memories of her as did my brother, John Payne, who was the Cleatus Tussey of Clear Creek that Nancy Mullins named in her article. You can understand why Tom Nicely was elected to office year after year. Clear Creek would offer a belated sympathy to Cola Wilson and Goldie Barnett in the recent death of their brother Daniel Abney, who at one time lived in a house located where Cleve Payne now lives; were former citizens of this valley.

"Church Happenings"
Our services seem to get better and more interesting all the time. We are so indebted to Glenna Ricks Smith for her beautiful singing with recorded music this past "Sunday. Her daughter Tina, also sang a song for us. They came from Bee Lick in Pulaski County and were accompanied by Glenn's husband, Jay and another daughter, Gama. Our thanks to the Smith Family and please come back!

Our Youth Ministry Church Party has gotten off to a good start in the selling of tickets to the event. It seems Donna Dees was the first to sell the allotment she volunteered for and now is helping Sharon Robinson. Raymond Hurley mourns "I haven't sold a one." Now it could be if you were a cute young woman, Raymond, you would have better success! No one gets in free, Bro. Kirby. A couple, to whom we are deeply indebted in carrying on the church work, is the Jerry and Carolyn Nicely, as well as daughter, Jacqueline, family. Carolyn Long Nicely plays the piano which seems half of singing and Jerry leads the congregation in song. Jackie favors us with a solo often in a childish voice that shows promise.

I recently returned to Northern Kentucky on business. It was good to see relatives and friends, especially school ones, shop at the Florence Mall and go to a Beauty Shop to be rejuvenated (if possible). I think all women have a favorite hair dresser, one who does excellent work, listens to your gripes and sends you out almost a Farrah Fawcett (at my age) we hope. Mine is Marie Oder at J.C. Penny's Salon, who has become a good friend that I hated to leave.

"Featuring People"
Well, you have to get up before daylight to beat our County Road Dept. We nag about the holes in the road and why they aren't repaired, but when anything needs doing, they really get at the problem. My story starts with moving here to the farm of my deceased brother, John Payne which homestead we rent from his heirs, Sue Payne Dalton of Mansfield and Betty Payne Dalton of Mansfield and Betty Payne James of Arlington, Texas and a brother, J.B. Payne of Hamilton, Ohio. Now the county road runs near the house with a few feet in front of the Big Hill. Right in that fork was a mess of loose gravel, some being pushed down the Church Hill Road by cars. Others were loosened by traffic on the road itself. Young people would drive through the gravel at all hours, dragging or spinning off, whatever they call it. The gravel would fly backwards like bullets from a gun, breaking the window panes. Even John, when crossing the road, had to dodge behind a truck to escape the flying stones late one evening. The yard was littered by stones. We repaired eight panes. Now beside this problem, we had another one. There wasn't a road sign to be seen standing for they had been uprooted, knocked over in the field, or thrown down by vandals. This road is much traveled by strangers. Where a lone mule might plod up or down it on a hot summer afternoon in the past, now we have snappy race around its corners. What bothered us was the knock on the door and queries such as, "Where are we? How do we get to Berea, Wildie, or Big Hill?" were the questions usually asked just as we sat down at mealtime, to which we patiently answered. But you know if the preacher hate to leave him at the table with fried chicken on it for you know how a preacher likes fried chicken! Never being one to let George do it," I decided to take the bull by the horns (an old time saying) and seek help from the County Road Department, who were passing by in a yellow truck. Sure enough they were polite and sympathetic but said they could only pass on our request to the "higher ups," few, who were they? I wanted to know. Well it seemed the man, who put the okay on road sign requests, was a Leroy Brown in the State District Road Dept., in Somerset. Was I stopped? Thinking of the flying gravel, lost signs, and my fried chicken being eaten up while I was at the door answering the same questions, I was undaunted in my pursuit for relief. "We'll go see, Leroy Brown," I told John. A few days later, we had to be in Somerset on business and I said to my husband, "The Lord said to ask and you would receive. Let's find Mr. Brown." Now I don't know if the Lord had road signs in mind when I quoted that, but I believed him. We asked directions and were given at a beautiful, imposing building which struck me with as much awe as if I'd been in the White House. That's why I'm proud of Kentucky. We really do it up nice when it comes to our public buildings. We inquired for Leroy Brown's office. Now I don't know if the Governor's firing so many state employees put them on their toes but we couldn't have been treated nicer by everyone we met. I looked behind me once to see if they had made a mistake and that it wasn't someone more important that they meant. But a smiling, pretty clerk turned us over to another, and we had a personal escort who took us down a long hall. It had such beautiful floors, attractive offices, and an alert group of people working. We stopped at a doorway and our escort announced "Mr. Brown's office," with much respect in her voice. I wondered, by her tone, if there would be a throne in the center with some pompous politician with a gold watch chain across his stomach, smoking a big cigar. Well, was I in for a surprise! So this was what Governor John Y. Brown meant by taking the politics out of State Government and putting it in the hands of qualified people to run it. Was I relieved! I was thinking I'd have to promise my vote for life, as well as Aunt Sophia's and Uncle Fudd's too for the favor I wanted as a county citizen. Behind the ordinary, business like desk sat a young man (I don't dare guess his age with his classy hair style) wearing a bright, yellow, sport sweater, and a very friendly smile. Well, I have always heard that "the higher up they come, the nicer they are" and Leroy Brown certainly was no exception. He listened, courteously, to our problem and turning said, "This is the man you want to talk to. Meet Boyd Prather," introducing us to another "higher up" man who treated us for life, as well as Mr. Brown. We were told the road numbers such as Wildie Road to Berea was 1787, Hammonds Fork to Big Hill was a branch road. Mr. Prather stated that the State would replace those signs that had been vandalized. He, regretfully, informed us, the gravel he could do nothing about since their department handled only road signs. We would have to come back to Rockcastle to get anything done about the gravel. We thanked both men for talking to us and left. Before we quit the building, I purchased for $1.50 a large interesting map of Rockcastle, 36x36" in size, which shows all roads as well as pit paths, it seems. A few days after we came home, Mr. Prather, and Danny Meese, one of the state road employees from Somerset, happened to be on an inspection trip in our county so they brought the number signs for the road to replace the vandalized ones. In talking to Mr. Prather, he said he lived on Lake Cumberland near Somerset, and never so much as dropped a hook in the water to fish. Would you men believe that? Well, I could care less myself. If I were promised a boat load of fish so I believe him. However, he invited us down to the lake to fish and we had to go next summer and have a cookout on the bank. I'll play it safe and take along sardines. After Mr. Prather left, I walked around the lake, the sturdy signs much as a kid would a Christmas tree and felt very proud of them. Then I turned and looked and there was still the mess of gravel. Let me say that one of the County Road men, using a heavy piece of equipment back in the fall, had tried to push up the gravel, at our request, but could not scrape the low lying stones. "If you want anything done, do it yourself!" has been an old saying. I'll bet the Rockcastle County Road Dept. didn't know that for one afternoon, a woman was working for them (without pay). I decided I would tackle the gravel myself, John being busy otherwise. I made a sign, saying "Woman at Work", put it by the roadside, and proceeded to push gravel with a stiff construction broom. I got a lot of cheers by passersby but no helpers. Moral of story: "Don't give up if something needs to be done, but next time I'll let George do it and push the heavy broom!"

Due to illness, I was not able to visit anyone the past week. If you have news, Clear Creek folks, drop by and tell me.

For the past two Sunday our Sunday School attendance at the Fairview Baptist Church has been 93, with more coming in for worship services. We also had several visitors on Dec. 6th for which we are very thankful. We are always glad to see everyone and welcome them back anytime. It's good to see people in the House of the Lord.

Mr. Cletus Peters and Mr. Walter Malone attended the "M" Night service held at the Northside Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon, in night last week.

Mr. Tip Reppert of Scaffold Cane, Mrs. Nancy Isaacs of Wildie and Mrs. Mary Mullins of Roundstone have all returned home from a few days stay in the Berea Hospital last week. I'm glad to be able to report that they are all improving nicely for which they all are thankful. Thank the good Lord for answering prayers.

Thanksgiving dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Peters were Mr. and great thrill from seeing Santa Claus. But the wind was so cold everyone was shivering and shaking. Well, maybe next year there will be a warmer day for it.

Little Chad Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Peters, celebrated his 5th birthday on Wednesday, November 25th.

Little Sherry Lynn Ridgell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.J. Ridgell had a birthday on Thursday, November 26th (Thanksgiving). She was 4 years old. Both these little ones are very precious and we love them dearly.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Alexander returned home Saturday, November 28th from a three-day visit in Louisville with Mrs. Alexander's sister, Mrs. John Thomas and Mr. Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. Wren visited Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cope Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Peters and family spent Thanksgiving with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith of Wildie.

Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Peters and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brock were in Louisville during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Mrs. Helen Powell of Berea visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cope this past Sunday. Miss Vonda Croucher is back in school at Eastern following a stay in the Berea Hospital where she had surgery. Thank the Lord for the improvement.

Thanksgiving dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Davidson were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Alexander and son, Kenneth of Fairview and his mother, Mrs. Myrtle Davidson of Kirksville.

Spending Saturday night and Sunday of the week before last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Alexander were her relatives of Everts, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Begley and son, and Mrs. Christine Napier and daughter, Lorene.

Well, winter time is approaching fast and we all, I'm sure, are getting ready for Christmas-a glorious time of year, but sad too in a way when we think of all our friends and loved ones who won't be with us this time-God has called many home since last Christmas but we do have the assurance that one day we will all meet around the throne of God and be together throughout eternity. What we all must do is to be ready when the call comes. May God bless each of you to be ready. May God bless and keep you all in my prayer.

ALLOCATION FOR HOME CARE OF ELDERLY

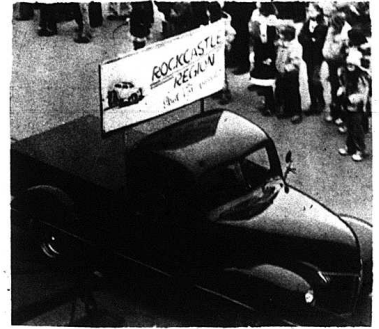

Human Resources Secretary Dr. Grady Stumbo today announced the allocation of $1.5 million for the home care for the elderly in twelve areas of Kentucky.

The money will go to provide homemaker and home health aid services, home-delivered meals, transportation assistance, and chore services for homebound older persons who need long term care because of health and social problems.

"Many older persons can continue living in their own homes even after they develop health problems with some help," Dr. Stumbo said. "We have committed these funds to supplement what community agencies and volunteers can do to provide long term care in the home for more of Kentucky's older

This new 1½ story building now under construction will soon be improving the looks of things on Church Street in Mt. Vernon. James W. Lambert is building a new law office on the vacant corner lot next door to the State Farm Insurance building where the old Mt. Vernon Signal office once stood. According to Mr. Lambert, the building which was begun about a month ago, is scheduled for completion sometime in January. The law offices of James W. and his son, Joe will be on one side of the building, and the County Attorney offices of son, James H. Lambert will be housed on the other side. The building will also feature a large file storage room upstairs, a law library in the back and a reception area in front.

dampers automatically open and close to maintain a selected temperature. Therefore, the fire burns more evenly and efficiently.

"Safety is a must," says Beshear. "Consumers should be careful when choosing, installing and using wood-burning heaters." Before you install a wood-burning heater, contact your local building inspector and your homeowner's insurance agent to find out what requirements you must meet, the attorney general advises.

After your heater is installed, never let children play near the heater and never use chemicals to start a fire. Don't burn trash or man-made logs in your heater; they can damage your unit. It is also a good idea to keep a fire extinguisher handy—just in case, Beshear adds. Creosote build-up is always a danger with wood-burning heaters. Creosote is the "tar" that accumulates inside the chimney. Creosote build-up can be a definite fire hazard.

By building a roaring fire in your heater once a week, you can burn out the creosote before it gets thick enough to be dangerous, according to Beshear. "You can get maximum economy from your wood-burning heater by carefully choosing the wood you burn. Hardwoods, such as oak, provide more heat per log than softwoods, such as pine," he says. Avoid buying green wood unless you can store it for at least six months before burning. The least expensive way to get wood is to cut your own. To find out where you are allowed to cut your own wood at little or no cost, call your forest service."

If you have consumer questions or complaints, write to the Office of the Attorney General, Division of Consumer Protection, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Girls lose two in a row

By: Coach Preston Parrett

In a game played Monday night at the high school Garrard County defeated us 48 to 46. In the first quarter, we went up 12-7 but couldn't hold the lead as Garrard managed to go up by two at halftime 23 to 21.

In the third quarter, we came back and went back on top 33 to 31. However in the fourth quarter Garrard County regained the lead at 48 to 46. We had a chance to tie the game and send it overtime but we missed our shot.

We shot 40 per cent the game had 12 turnovers to Garrard's 15 and we pulled down 19 rebounds.

In scoring Ruppe 2, Bowman 11, Holbrook 4, Sturgill 20, Thomason 4, Reams 2 and Martin 3.

Tuesday night we went to Knox Central and again we came out on the short end of the score. For three quarters the game was tight but in the fourth quarter Central broke it and defeated us by 16 points 61 to 45.

Cynthia Holbrook came through with 13, Bowman had 7, Sturgill 7, Thomason 4, Reams 4, Wolfe 4, Farthing 4 and Partin 2.

We shot 37 percent, had 24 rebounds and 20 turnovers. Knox Central had 28 turnovers.

Greg Mink, No. 31, is shown as he attempts to throw the ball in bounds against Brodhead Monday night. The Livingston 7th and 8th grade boys teams avenged an earlier loss this season to Brodhead in the Jaycee tournament by beating Brodhead on their home court, 53 to 36.

Cynthia Holbrook no. 40 for the girls varsity team watches as Glenna Reams attempts to get a rebound in the girls first lost of the season Monday night to Garrard Co. 48 to 46. The girls also lost to Knox Central Tuesday night. Holbrook had her best game of the season against the panthers with 17.

Livingston In Other Days

Written for Clyde Fordyce
By Juanita Fordyce

Come take an imaginary trip with me. Let's remember how Livingston used to be. Picture the railroad as it was then. We will start at the old coal bins.

Tool sheds for linemen and section hands. The L&N depot, don't it look grand. The railroad restaurant had lunches on call. Railroad men and passengers. They fed them all. Two large water tanks, tall and round. Where trains took on water before leaving town. Trains coming and going and switching all day. The could turn at the "Y" and go back the same way. Down in the mill yard were two mills. It's still called the mill yard. But there's no mill. Let's take a stroll to the South end of town. Little by little it has been torn down. I wish I could remember each place as they stood. But lately my memory isn't that good.

Jim Chaney, Pete Drummond, Dave Smith and Bill Wilson had stores. Tom Elliott's Butcher Shop, Gutherie's Busy Bee Restaurant next door. Maggie Martin's Millinery Shop. Telephone exchange, Bill's shoe repair. Lee Black and Arch Mullins had a theatre along there. Jimmy Jones and Sons Barber Shop had three chairs. Everyone liked the way they cut hair. As long as you were there you couldn't lose. If you let Bill Hudly put a shine on your shoes. We had three doctors practicing here then. One had his office and a drug store in that end. The little jail house wasn't too strong.

Mostly for drunks they didn't stay long. Toward the Ford of the river a blacksmith shop. Run by Madison Mink where I loved to stop. We had three hotels and a boarding house in town. None standing all torn down. This town was booming I've said before. Our population was nine hundred or more. The name of our bank was The First State. For a town this size, we were really top rate. I could ramble on half the day. For now that all I have to say. Old things pass away, all things become new. Soon we will be getting a new bridge too. When things fall down and go to rack. I wish everything could be put back. Our town was prosperous as it could be. You would have to have been here to really see. I've enjoyed our trip in the past. It isn't my first, won't be my last. And to a many that can walk it with me. I'm sure to them it's a good memory.

SAFETY TIPS FOR KEROSENE HEATERS

Portable kerosene heaters are one of the latest options available to the public for space heating in the home or on the farm. Unlike earlier kerosene heaters, the new heaters are more efficient and safer to use. The following are some tips for using the new space heaters. The heater should have a safety device to automatically extinguish the flame if the heater is jarred or over-turned. Place heaters out of traffic pathways and three feet from curtains, furniture or other flammable materials. Use heaters only in well-ventilated areas and according to the manufacturer's recommendations. (Any type of fuel-fired heater consumes oxygen during combustion and gives off by-products, including potentially dangerous carbon monoxide.) There heaters are not recommended for use in mobile homes and travel trailers, since safety standards require sealed combustion units which are vented to the outside. Shut off the heater while unattended. Monitor the wick and replace at the beginning of each heating season if necessary. Keep kerosene in metal cans which are remade "Kerosene" and stored outside the living area.

Mrs. V. Gordon Walker, Regent of the Berea Laurel Ridges Chapter, presided with the welcome being given by Mr. Charles M. Ballard, president of the James Madison Chapter. Other members of the two chapters taking part in the program were Mrs. A.M. Hiatt, Mr. Carl Ford, Miss Lucille Stephens, Miss Frances Moore and Mrs. Lester Hurley. Mrs. Gilbert Prather, Kentucky Society Daughters of the American Revolution Lineage Research Chairman, and Mr. Eddie Pullins spoke briefly on the history of the Pullins family and the military record of Loftus Pullins, Jr. The ceremony was made impressive and colorful by four participating groups. The Rifle Squad of the Berea Reserve Unit, directed by First Sergeant James H. Johnson, gave the Twenty-one Gun Salute. The Young Historians Club of the Berea Community School carried replicas of flags of the Colonial period which had been made by Mrs. Wilson A. Evans. Mr. Stephen Davenport, president of the club led this group. All the young children present carried American flags. Four of these children were descendants of Loftus Pullins, Sr., a father of the patriot being honored. Alan Pullins, Emily Shell and David and Jenny Walker.

Following the first part of the ceremony which was held at the base of Rucker's Knob, the Color Guard led the group up to the grave site where, after the Posting of Colors, Mrs. Wilson A. Evans, Honorary State Regent, Kentucky Society Daughters of the American Revolution and past vice President General National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, dedicated the marker. The marker was accepted on behalf of both chapters by Dr. V. Gordon Walker, president elect, Kentucky Society Sons of the American Revolution. Master David Lewis Walker unveiled the marker and Miss Elizabeth Prather presented a wreath. Following the benediction given by Mr. Raymond Layne of the James Madison Chapter, the ceremony concluded with the Twenty-one Gun Salute by the Firing Squad, Taps by trumpeter and drummer, and the Retiring of Colors by the Color Guard.

Winterizing Pesticide Sprayers Saves Time

Next Spring Farmers can save time and effort next spring by cleaning and repairing spray equipment before winter. Winterizing consists of cleaning sprayers to flush pesticide residues that could harm crops next year, and repairing or replacing broken parts. Most people put the equipment away and forget about it until they need it next year. But taking care of equipment now will save time next spring when farmers are in a bind. Farmers can clean a sprayer by running a tank of water through it. But sprayers used with herbicides that could cause carry over problems should be cleaned with a water and ammonia mix. One pint ammonia to 25 gallons of water is recommended. Car-riate the mixture through the sprayer for about five minutes, and run a small amount through the nozzle. The remaining mixture should be left in the tank overnight, then discharged the next day and the sprayer flushed with a tankful of water. Pesticide equipment should also be checked to make sure it will be in working order next spring. Any bent or broken parts should be repaired or replaced. Cracked or broken hoses should be replaced or tagged for replacement next spring. Remove the nozzle and inline strainers to see that they are clean and open, and do not show excessive wear. The nozzle should allow the proper flow of pesticide. Damaged or worn nozzles or screens should be replaced. Strainers, nozzles and screens should be stored in light oil to prevent corrosion. Farmers should dismantle the sprayer pump to check the condition of the rollers and other moving parts.

KDE Sets Budget

The Kentucky Department of Education revealed budget figures for the next biennium at a special meeting of the state Board of Education in Frankfort, Nov. 24.

In disclosing the figures, Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber said the budget was based on a growth prediction in state revenue receipts of 10 percent.

"This increase would amount to about $202 million for state government," he noted, "but this figure seems to be optimistic to me."

Under the proposed budget, teachers will receive a 5 percent raise for the 1982-83 school year amounting to an average of $220 yearly and teachers can expect a 7.5 percent pay hike for the 1983-84 school year which would add another $1,310 to their yearly salary.

Arnold Guess, head of the Department of Education's Bureau of Administration and Finance, said this increase is over and above what teachers would receive for rank and experience increments.

The two in-service days that were eliminated from the school calendar due to recent budget cuts are restored under the proposed budget. This would mean an additional $5.5 million to the 1983 budget and $8.4 million to the figures for 1984.

Capital outlay funds which had also been cut because of budget restraints from $2,000 per classroom unit to $1,800 per unit have been partially restored under the proposed figures. Some $100 per unit, amounting to $3.1 million, has been restored for 1983 with that figure holding constant for 1984.

The only surprise in the budget was a $600,000 expenditure for the two-year period to attract more students into the math and science teaching field. A firm decision on how this money is to be distributed will be determined at a later date.

The move to appropriate money for attracting future teachers into the math and science field was recommended by Cresap, McCormick and Paget, a consulting firm which studied public school finance and management in Kentucky.

The total budget for the Department of Education amounts to $1.161 billion for 1982-83 and $1.24 billion for the second half of the biennium.

Kentucky states require the state Board of Education to review the department's budget for recommendations before it is turned over to the Legislature.

There could be good news for people concerned about the effective use of nuclear power in the world.

Because of its strong leadership role in the development of the nuclear industry, the U.S. has been a powerful influence on the use of nuclear power for peaceful purposes throughout the world.

Experts predict that further development of our almost complete fast breeder reactor plant can open the door to increased U.S. influence over the proliferation and non-proliferation of nuclear power.

In this case, conventional refractory standard electric bake and broil units located within the same oven cavity which may be used separately or at the same time as the microwaves. The microwave-convection oven can be switched to use microwaves or convection (forced hot air cooking).

Time, temperature, and humidity sensing controls determine whether or not microwaves enter the cavity. The timer control, found on all microwave appliances, allows the power to be on for a preselected time period. The timer will indicate the remaining heating time. The temperature control allows the power to be on until the temperature sensed by a probe inserted into the food reaches a pre-selected temperature or one necessary to maintain a preselected temperature. A dial or panel will indicate the changing temperature. In a few models, time is determined by sensors affected either by the temperature or relative humidity of the exhaust.

Most appliances are available with a full-power setting and one or more lower settings. The lower power settings are most useful in thawing foods and in cooking protein foods. In thawing the crystals in the center of the food must be melted without the outside of the food being cooked. In protein cooking a slow rate of heat penetration is needed when it is desirable to minimize toughening and break down the connective tissue in less tender cuts of meat.

Automatic programming is available on ovens with electronic features. This includes memory capabilities. Automatic programming allows the user to sequence several combinations of power, time and temperature settings. These combinations may be selected by the user or be preselected by the manufacturer for a number of commonly prepared foods or food types; the user selects the food or food type.

Ovens with automatic programming usually can be operated by selecting a single time and power setting.

Counter Top Model: This may serve as the only cooking appliance; however, it is often used in addition to a range or to other portable cooking appliances. Usually the newest features are introduced in counter top models. These appliances are more convenient to use if there is work space near the entry side of the oven door; a pull-out board can be used. Required clearance space for each model is listed on the appliances specification sheet. Over a range, use an oven top affected by moisture or heat.

Built-in: In most cases, these are counter top models placed in wall cabinets or walk-in cabinets.

Double oven range: This model provides an existing 30 inch range. The upper oven is essentially the same as the counter top model. The range top and lower oven are standard gas or electric. The double oven range requires 120 volts plus gas lines; the double-oven electric range requires 220/240 volt hookup.

THANK YOU

Cub Scout Pack 263 would like to thank everyone who helped in the making of their float, "Christmas on Planet Hoth." A special thank to some grandparents, Mr. Henry Brown, for the use of his wagon and Jim and Ann Mullins for allowing the Scouts to build the float in their warehouse. Congratulations to all of you; your help was really appreciated and without it, the Cub Scouts of Pack 263 would have won second place in the Christmas Parade of 1981.

Microwave-conventional oven. This may replace an existing conventional oven and requires a 120/240 volt hook-up; the oven must be vented outside. The micro-wave conventional unit is usually found in 30-inch free-standing ranges.

Use of Dishes and Utensils

Glass, glass-ceramic, paper, pottery and many plastics can be used with microwaves. Most of today's dishware is china and can be used in the oven unless it has metal designs on it or inside. Test your dishware for use in the microwave oven. If a dish is cool after the following test, you can use it in the microwave oven. Place a glass of water in the corner of the oven. Place the dish to be tested in the center of the oven; heat for one minute. Some plastics, even if they pass the dish test, become distorted due to the heat absorbed from food, especially fats.

Microwaves will cause some containers to get warm; however, most of the heat in the container absorbed from the food. Glass-ceramic dishes, which are range top or broiler proof, should be used if a browning unit in a microwave oven or the broil unit in a microwave-conventional oven is on.

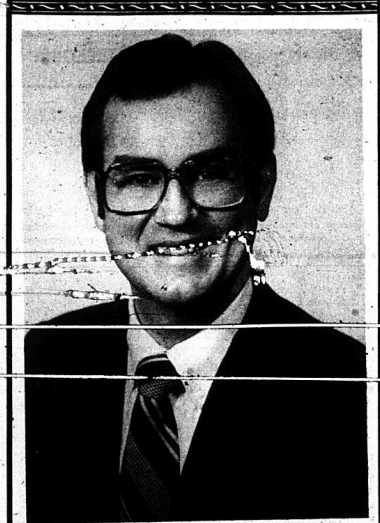

Metal is usually not used in microwave appliances because the microwaves are reflected by metal. When food is covered with metal, such as foil, this reflection does not permit the microwaves to reach the food and be absorbed. Food placed in an open metal pan will cook and heat from the top only. Most manufacturers allow a small amount of metal if a large amount of food is heated (ratio 1 to 3).

If metal pans are used, they should be placed in the oven so they do not touch the sides of the oven cavity. (Arcing can occur if there is contact during oven use.) Pans should have low sides, ¼ inch or less. Dishes with metal trim or designs should not be used.
