Bu: Mrs. Hubert Chasteen

Worship services were con-ducted at Fairview over the weekend with good attendance. But due to vacations, our Sunday School attendance was down to 91. School attendance was down to 91. Our average attendance in Sunday School for the month of July was also down to 97. But we all need vacations from time to time and we can worship God and pray where-ever we are. And we do thank God for all the blessings of life. He is so good to us.

for all the blessings of life. He is so good to us.

Due to sickness in our families. I haven t been able to send in my news for some time. So bear with me and I'll do the best I can. You know when our loved ones and friends are sick and hurting, it hurts us too.

We extend our deepest sympathy to those who have lost loved ones recently, including Mrs. Ada Saylor. Mrs. Ruby Jackson and Mrs. Sarah King. May God comfort the loved ones at this time.

KSP destroys $2.6 million in marijuana found at Pongo

By: Richard Anderkin

There is more marijuana grown in Rockcastle County than in any other county: in eastern Kentucky. At least, that is the opinion of Rockcastle County Sherff William Taylor. The sheriff may well be right. Last Thursday, State Police spotted a crop growing in the Pongo area of Rockcastle County with more than 2.600 plants growing in t. They destroyed it Prinday. KSP Public Affairs Officer Gilbert Accardio. Jr. said Monday the crop was estimated to be worth $2.6 million by the Marijuana Eradication team which destroyed it.

Sccardio said it took the seven KSP officers and she sheriff almost six hours to cut down the Lof4 plants. The plants ranged in size from four feet to 14 feet. The crop, which was spotted by State Police from a helicopter. was located approximately 14 miles from Mt. Vernon on 1249 between the four and five mile marker. It was by dar the biggest crop found this year.

Sheriff Taylor said Tuesday he thinks so much marjiuana is grown in Rockastle County because of the lack of convictions in the court system.

"Most people know they can grow it and probably get away with it." he said.

Mccardio said arrests would be forthcoming in the Pongo find and he reported two other marijuana, findings in the county last week, one of which has taken a surprising turn for the worse.

Mrs. Amelia Furman, of Rt.
2. Livingston, reported to police that she and her daughter had located 74 plants on their property near Red Hill.

Police said the plants were (Cont. to A77)

That ghostly specter hovers over several Rockcastle County, farmers, who 20 years ago joined the National Farm Organization (NFO), soon forgot it, but now find they are 18 years behind in payment of their dues. In 1965, the NFO, that boasts members in several states, came to Rockcastle County to urge farmers to set up an NFO chapter. It was all in the best of causes, mainly because the farmers could depend on getting more for their crops and livestock if they were

An organization called Rockstle Riven-Jand Trust, Inc. is seleting $15,000 in loans to open a sorghum processing plant in Livingston which they say will create badly needed jobs in the area. Eight farmers have agreed to grow about six acres of sugar cane this year under the plan. They plan to market the molasses in gift shops along 1-75, by mail order and in specialty stores in New York, Washington and Chicago.

"A lot of people will buy it "A lot of people will buy it because it was something their grandparents made," said Ray Scoggin, the chairman of the land trust. "But mostly it will sell because it's good for mules and good for cows and horses, and it's good for human beings." Last fall, the land trust grew about an arre of sugar cane and about an acre of sugar cane and obtained an 1897 steel press from Tennessee for crushing the harvested cane and installed it on Lee Faulkner's farm in the Long Branch community. The process yielded about 35 gallons of syrup. Don Martin, the executive director of the trust, said it thoped to sell molasses at an average of more than $22 a gallon and remedia would receive $4.000 this year and $30.000 by 1990.

Some of our nation's unfimphed business was recently ght to the public's attention as we observed National

V/MIA Recognition Day. More than 2,400 Americans -- both civilian and miliwhite than 4,400 Americans - both evitan and min-tary - are still unaccounted for by the Vietnamese govern-ment. This number includes 22 Kentuckians. The July 23 observance highlighted the fact that ten years after the end of the Vietnam War, the fate of these brave men and wom-of the victionan War, the falte of these brave men and women is still a mystery.

Many friends and relatives of these missing Americans refuse to end their quest for answers regarding the fate of the missing. While the missing are beyond the sight of these friends and relatives, they are not beyond the reach of their leaves and areity.

the missing. While the missing are beyond the sight of these friends and relatives, they are not beyond the reach of their love and caring.

Through the years of disappointment, uncertainty and pain, these people devoted to the missing have not allowed them and their unknown fate to fade from the American conscience. They have organized vigils, met with officials, written countless letters and submitted many articles—all so that the memory of the missing would linger. These tireless efforts have kept the issue alive, as well as forging a kinship with millions of Americans who share the need to know about the fate of so many of our countrymen.

Many have observed that our official efforts to resolve this issue have been less than adequate in past years. It is possible that the unpopularity of that war has pushed this matter to a back burner. The remains of only 118 Americans have been returned from Southeast Asia since 1973: However, I am encouraged by the apparent recent decision—Covernment to cooperate with the United States in resolving this tragedy.

The most disturbing aspect of this tragedy is that there have been repeated reports of so-called "live sightings" in which Americans have supposedly been seen living in forced labor circumstances in Southeast Asia.

If Americans remain alive, they must be quickly brough home. I join other Americans in my support of the President and our Government as efforts continue to resolve speedly and conclusively the status of those Americans whose fates remain unknown.

Martin said plans were for four part-time employees to work at the processing plant, but more could be hired as other sorghum products were added.

Darrell McIntosh, one of the eight participating farmers, raised 4,000 pounds of tobacco on leased land in 1984, but with provisions of the federal tobacco program in doubt, he said he was afraid to rent land again this year.

He is attempting to feed a wife and three children by tilling 4½ acres his mother owns near East Bernstadt, Cane is planted on 1½ acres. Growing problems have cut the expected crop size by 50 percent. McIntosh figures he could make $1.500 in a good year.

"If we can get the growing conditions right, it is going to be a wonderful asset to us." McIntosh said.

There are more than 200 sorghum producers in the state now, said Morris Bitzer, an agronomist at the University of Kentucky.

He said Kentuckians made from 30,000 to 50,000 gallons of

This summer, keep your kitchen cool by making the most of your microwave oven. Owners of these marvelous appliances often use them only to reheat, warm, thaw and melt.

Microwaves can be used to make many delicious recipes.

A busy person can have abome-cooked meal on the table in 30 minutes with the help of her microwave and a few good recipes. An example is a menu that includes stir-fred beef and vegetables, micro-frees and the world's easiest strawberry pie. Recipes and cooking tips follow:

Cooking Tips:
For easier slicing, partially freeze meat until firm.
Cook frozen vegetables in the box. Punch holes for steam to escape. Place on paper towel.
Microwares cook the outside of food, which in turn cooks the inside. Some meats are still cooking 15 minutes after removal.

Baseball and things.
The Earl of Baltimore. Earl Weaver has been called lots of things, not the least of them, tight fisted. But the feisty, chain smoking new/old manager of the Baltimore Orioles took a pay cut last month when he returned to the O's dugout replacing Joe Altobelli who replaced him two seasons ago.

Altobelli who replaced him two seasons ago.

Until Weaver made his comeback he was under contract to ABC-Television as ay-baseball.

analyst on Monday Night Base

His workload consisted of 23 games a summer and brought him
a salary in six figures.

"It was the best job lever had in terms of energy expended for remuneration received," Weaver told Berry Stainback in an interview for an article in the July 20 issue of TV Guide.
"I enjoyed every minute of sissue of TV Guide. "I enjoyed every minute of the experience." Weaver added, saying the only part he found distasteful was conducting interviews. "The reason is that you are forced to ask questions that you already know the answers to and the guy you i're asking knows that you already know." Then. Weaver made a point that demonstrates, I believe, how metwork moguls underestimate their audience. The questions he was obliged to ask were basic, too here with ringuist minute shinist was obliged to six were basic, too was obliged to six were basic, too was obliged to six were basic, too was obliged to six were basic too was obliged to six when the said was obliged to six were said. He's right Heaven knows what TV ratings surveys tell television analysts, but common sense says that any fan who tunes in a baseball game on the tube is a baseball game on the tube is a tleast a casual expert. And those who stay past the third inning-the prime targets for beer and shaving cream commercials-don't need to be insulted by dumb analysis.

ream commercials - don't need to be insulted by dumb analysis. Weaver's analysis was a cut above because, I think, he had a feel for what baseball fans "out here" want, duiet, cohfident and a public tantalizing into the mysteries" and variables of this game some of uscall the chess of summer. "My commentary came out off my knowledge of the game which only years in the dugout could provide." Weaver said.

Then the Earl of Baltimore made a couple of important points. "I'd see certain things that would lead me to make a prediction."

would lead me to make a prediction.

All sports fans love predictions and enjoy mightily someone with audacity to go out on a limb and, nake gene.

In it works out, fine. If stockfirts, it's entertraining.

And this.

If left some of my best moments on the air were with my offered price of the some of my best moments on the air were with my offerer pitcher Jim Palmer Joecause we didn't plways agree.

The banter and needling.

The banter and needling between Weaver and Palmer was refreshing, unpretentious which is where Howard Cosell has failed so miserably in recent years. Weaver and Michaels made good chemistry with 7th Michaels asture play-by-play.

istry with A. Aichaels asture play-by-play.

On Weaver's return to the dugout, Palmer concluded, "Earl Weaver's a very intelligent man. I miss him in the booth and I think fans do, too."

Dearly American songs in the dining room.

The bell rang to remind all the people there who planned to go to the theater that it was time to get in their seats in the outstide heater. A breeze of cool wind kept the group comfortable for 2 hours. The talented cast played their parts to perfection! The sction of the play took place in the Foster's house and yard in Canton, Missispip, Relatives came to attend the funeral of a loved one.
