

"Rockcastle Dam Project"

environmentalists who wanted (and still do) the river to remain untouched.

At one time, the discussion at one of the public hearings became so heated between the opposing Rockcastle and Somerset people, the Corps had to adjourn the meetings to prevent a fight.

The Corps caught between opposing forces, finally lost interest. The Corps claimed that flood control along the river was not incentive enough to justify the then $50 million cost of a dam.

In retrospect, the environmentalists won, for in time, the "narrow" area of the river was placed under the Wild Rivers Act, prohibiting development forever.

Again, if the project develops, an environmental impact study would have to be made, and possibly, approval would have to come from the Corps before the dam could be constructed.

One resident who was in the forefront of the 1962 and 1963 hearings, called the new proposal "a rebash" of a past effort that failed, and predicted it "will likely fail again."

More water for McKee and Red Hill sections of Rockcastle, among other areas, would possibly be an added incentive for a dam; but whether the electricity produced, water provided, and recreation would be enough to offset a $100 million expenditure at this point in time is "anybody's guess."

There would probably be no argument at this time with Somerset, since the new site is far from Lake Cumberland and would not directly affect their area, other than the possible loss of some recreational dollars.

Another resident who was in the thick of the 1960s controversy was eager to express an opinion: "It is as good an idea now as it was back then. The only question then and now is where to put the dam. Who put it way up there on the river? Why not at the alternate site near Livingston that the Corps thought about? Near Livingston it would give Rockcastle some benefits that it wouldn't otherwise have."

als and farmers stopped short of calling it a "successful day." They were quick to point out that most leaf sold for no more than two cents above the support prices and that the auction warehouses bought more than usual to try to force tobacco companies to increase their bids.

In Somerset, U. S. Rep. Harold Rogers issued a warning to buyers at the Farmers Tobacco Warehouse.

"The support price has been lowered—farmers are suffering. Now we're watching to see if the companies hold up their end of the bargain. We want to know what's in your heart. The future attitude of a lot of us in Congress will be adjusted accordingly," Rogers said, directly addressing a group of buyers.

A London warehouse, Odell Smith offered a prime example of the farmers' plight this year. He sold part of his crop over from last year's crop for $1.62, a pound, and bemoaned the fact that it was a grade of leaf that earned him $1.84 last year. "That's hard on the farmer," he said. Other growers said that as long as the companies purchased their crop, they wouldn't complain about the lower prices.

A well-thought-out bill to fund cleanup of toxic waste sites can mean a healthier America for years to come.

very well.

The girls' first home game is next Thursday night when they will play host to district foe Oneida.

Boys Basketball

The boys' head basketball coach David Perkins has high hopes for this year's basketball season.

"A 500 season or better would be nice," Perkins said Monday. "And we have been working very hard toward just that."

The boys' varsity, which had a record of 6 and 16 a year ago, return only two starters from that team, guard Benny Blanton and center Harold Graves.

Perkins says Blanton is one of the best high school guards he has ever coached, and he doesn't understand why Blanton's name has not been mentioned in all-region circles.

The new head coach also thinks his team has been underrated in most polls. He says the latest poll he saw did not rank his Rockets in the top 15 in the region.

Perkins, who hails from Monticello, is in his tenth year as a head coach. His previous nine were at Jackson City schools in Breathitt County.

The boys have had two scrimmages-one against McClure Central, and the other against Monticello. Perkins said he was very pleased with the boys' efforts in the two games, except for the fact that none of his players, with the exception of one or two, wanted to play defense.

According to Perkins, defense will be the main topic at practice between now and the season opener next Tuesday night when the boys will host the Estill County Engineers.

RCHS boys and girls open 1985 season next week

RCHS boys' head basketball coach Preston Parrett is hoping for a good year in 1985-86 after a disappointing season a year ago.

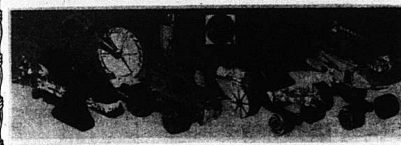

One factor that might encourage Parrett is the fact that he returns four starters from a year ago. The team's record was 6 and 14.

When the girls open their season next Monday night at Knox Central, they will put on the floor two seniors, a junior and two sophomores.

Livingston product Sandy Hunter will get the call at center, while senior Caroline Machal and sophomore Lori Mink will start at forward. The other senior, Paige Anderkin, a three year starter, will play one guard, and sophomore Tanya Parrett will be her running mate.

The girls have had one scrimmage-two weeks ago-against Clark County High School in Winchester, where they fared Rockcastle man held in stabbing

Rockcastle County man is being held in the Rockcastle County Jail in lieu of $12,000 bond after he was charged with the stabbing of a local man early Monday.

Halcomb is charged with criminal mischief in the third degree, terroristic threatening, and assault in the first degree.

The Kentucky State Police Spectral Response Team was called to the scene to apprehend Halcomb.

A state police spokesman said when they entered the house Halcomb was apparently hiding in the attic. While they were in the house, Halcomb fell through the ceiling.

Bullock was released from the hospital Tuesday morning.

Gratefully, Kentucky's season is over otherwise one would have to wonder if Coach Jerry Claiborne could field a team this week.

UK finished its season with a 5-6 record. A disappointment of course, but there are reasons for optimism too.

First, Claiborne and staff will be back. It is a major plus in that UK fans can be confident the program is in good hands and the Tireless One (Claiborne) will not rest until "we get it right."

Second, the return roster is most impressive with 29 regulars as well as a 22-man red-shirt list that includes the kind of troops UK needs to compete in the SEC. Mike Pfeifer (6-7, 265), Gardner Surrill (6-3, 280), Russell Viel (6-4, 250), Tony Nash, (6.5, 245), Doug Houser (6-4, 247), Oliver Barnett (6-4, 225) and Vic Adams (6-2, 230).

More on UK's football returns and recruits next week.

Congratulations

Kentucky football led the SEC in one category this season, for the second year in a row. Ten Wildcats were named to Southern Conference Academic All-SEC team last week, most in the league. Vandy was second with eight, Ole Miss with seven.

The UK's chosen were: Chris Denny, Kevin Dooley, Eric Haas, Richard Ledford, Matt Lucas, Pietrowski, Ransdell, James Reichwein, Gary Sexton and Tom Wilkins.

Last week UK led the league with eight, giving Claiborne and staff 18 SEC all-academic performers.

To qualify, players must maintain a B average and be a regular on the team.

Kenny Walker

A new color poster of the UK senior forward will be available for purchase by Kentucky fans "in about a month." UK sports information director for basketball Brad Davis said last week.

UK marketed a poster of Walker a year ago, and it sold like hot cakes at $3 a copy.

"We got this super photograph of Kenny during the Czechoslovakian game that we're going to use in the new one," Davis said.

Information on the poster and how to order one will be upcoming.

Too high/too low?

A basketball fan had one of those typical questions last week: "Louisville is ranked 9th and Kentucky 11th in the first Associated Press Poll. Is that too high?"

Answer: About right for UofL, but too high for UK.

Rockcastle River Dam back in picture - again

By Ray McClure

An old controversial water project, buried since the mid 1960s, surfaced last Friday, at all stages, during a called meeting of the Rockcastle Fiscal Court.

John Bruner, an official of the Cumberland Valley Area Development District (CVADD), called the court to join in a three-county industrial authority that could eventually lead to the construction of a dam on the Rockcastle River impounding a possible 7,000 acres of water.

Since the project would be of no cost to the county, and financed through bonds, the court gave its blessing, 4 to 0 to the authority to be known as the Parker's Branch Industrial Authority and encompassing Rockcastle, Laurel, and Jackson counties. Magistrate Alex Abricht did not attend the meeting.

CVADD will seek grant money for a feasibility study to determine if the potential benefits from a dam would outweigh the cost of the project. Only after the study is completed could an accurate estimate of the cost be made, but a "ballpark" figure is $100 million.

The suggested benefits include additional employment through industrial development, available water for the municipalities in these three counties, an electrical power source, and recreation.

As currently visualized by CVADD, the dam would be located at a point somewhere between Lamero Bridge and Horse Lick Bridge, a distance of about three miles. It would be a hydro-electric dam to generate power and would also be noted from a lake estimated between 3,300 and 7,000 acres. Water behind the dam would back within two miles of McKee, and to within three or four miles of East Bernstadt.

Bruner told the court Jackson County is in need of an additional water source since its two reservoirs are now running at capacity.

"Their water problem is not at the critical stage at this time, but it is moving up to that point," Bruner said. "The Rockcastle River seems to be the best durable raw water source available."

In the final analysis, and depending on what the study shows, the dam might not be hydro-electric, but only a water source and for recreation, Bruner added.

He pointed out a dam would control the flow of the Rockcastle River which sometimes has flood problems in the spring and fall and is virtually dry in summer. He said the dam and its impoundment would also raise the quality of the water downstream since most of the strip mining and its resulting pollution is centered above the site of the dam.

"All these things will be studied, and discussed before a decision to pursue the project is made," Bruner continued. "It may be that a different site and a smaller dam and lake would be more feasible."

Bruner admitted there are problems. Two such problems are that six miles of Ky. 30 would be under water, and "quite a few families" would have to be relocated.

Admittedly also, it would be a long, long process to win final approval and receive money for the project. If approved, it would take from five to 10 years to complete.

A dam on the Rockcastle River has been discussed and evaluated at least two other times. In the 1960s, the Army Corps of Engineers proposed a dam on the river at the "narrows" that would have backed water into Livingston. The Corps also considered an alternate dam about two miles northeast of Livingston that would have backed water 14 feet deep under the Lamero Bridge, but inundating some good bottom farmland.

The project came to the boiling point in the summer of 1962 when the state and national spotlight focused on the justification of three dams in the area-

Rockcastle River, Laurel River and Devil's Jump in McCreary County.

The "Rockcastle" River dam was the brainchild of the Corps that wanted a constant and controlled water flow into Lake Cumberland, "pulling the plug when needed," someone jested at the time.

Livingston, seeing a major recreational windfall, strongly supported the Livingston site as did Laurel County, claiming the "narrows" site would not help Rockcastle or Laurel. However, Somerset people preferred the "narrows" dam and made it known loudly. Others did not want anything on the river that would possibly interrupt the flow. One other group opposed a dam at any site. Unnamed, they were the

County begins talks about garbage plan

By: Ray McClure

How to solve the garbage problem in Rockcastle County and at the same time please the public and the state, was the focus of a meeting of the Advisory Committee for Solid Waste Planning Monday night.

If there was one thing that was obvious, it was that it won't be easy to satisfy everyone, including the state which mandates a county plan be "in the works" by Dec. 31.

Gaiff Craig, executive director of Cumberland Valley Area Development District (CVADD), a group that has a contract with the county to devise a plan, told the 20 persons who attended the meeting, including County Judge/Executive-elect Hubert Thacker and all five magistrates-elect, that the fiscal court is responsible for selecting a plan and seeing that it is run smoothly and efficiently.

Because of the far reaching financial implications of a solid waste plan, the court's decision may not be popular, but it is a decision the court will have to make, Craig explained.

Seeing that it is carried out after approval will be most important, Craig said. If not carried out the court will have to face the displeasure of the state Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet.

For the record, it is estimated that Rockcastle countians generate 2.46 pounds of solid waste per person per day, or a total of 32,415 pounds, in 1985. The current 16 tons of residential waste per day in the county is expected to increase to 30 to 35 percent in the next 20 years.

Although in the final analysis, the CVADD will come up with a plan that the state will accept, there are at least alternate plans to choose from. They are:

A. 100 percent door-to-door collection, that is mandatory, public operated, requiring an ordinance with penalties, and a coordinator. This plan is considered to have a high capital outlay and administrative burdens.

B. 100 percent door-to-door mandatory collection, contracted to a private firm, with an ordinance and a coordinator.

C. 100 percent desirable, but not less than 70 percent door-to-door, voluntary, franchised ordinance required, and a coordinator.

D. 70 percent plus of population, door-to-door collection, mandatory with contract greenbox on rural 30 percent of the population (not in smaller communities), public plan, ordinance required and a coordinator.

E. Door-to-door, voluntary and franchised, with employed public coordinator and enforceable ordinance.

Three other plans were enumerated but all were found to have a high capital outlay and not as desirable.

After discussing the plans, a secret ballot was requested from those present. Plan D was the first choice, followed by E, followed by B.

CVADD staff members told the group they would come up with cost figures by Dec. 10, the next meeting of the council.

As a final note, Craig told the group it is not a good idea to choose a plan because it happens to be the cheapest, but to choose a plan that works and one that the taxpayers can live with.

It was reported during the meeting that a request has been forwarded to the state for a three-month extension of the Dec. 31 deadline for completion of a plan. It is expected that the request will be approved.

Currently, garbage in the county is handled by private firms with greenboxes used in rural areas and Brodhead. Mt. Vernon and Livingston have their own garbage collection.

A wet start greeted Elmo Greer & Sons Construction Co., when they began work Monday on the Mt. Vernon bypass of Ky. 461. Workmen removed the old Mt. Vernon Water Works Dam so the land behind the dam could drain and dry before spring. Talking over the dozer work are Herb Alcorn of Brodhead and the dozer operator, Clyde Brannon of East Bernstadt. The area above, owned by Ed Winstead, is not part of the new road. The company is continuing to clear the right-of-way for the new section of the highway that is reportedly contracted to be completed in between 18 months and two years.

Burley price at new low

It wasn't the best of days and it wasn't the worst of days on the first day of burley tobacco sales in Kentucky Monday.

Twenty-two markets in Kentucky reported sales of 31.1 million pounds for an average price of $159.58 a hundredweight.

On opening day last year, 20.3 million pounds sold for a record average price of $187.76.

However, this year, production quotas were reduced 10 percent and the price support average was cut from $1.79 to $1.49 in an effort to preserve a tobacco program troubled by debt on a huge surplus.

Burley officials said a 30-cent-a-pound reduction in price support levels prompted the increase in sales over the previous two years, when more than 30 percent went to the federal tobacco program's "pool" of leaf that fails to bring the support price.

However, some burley officials

People Poll . . .

County ranks 90th in quality of life survey

A recent survey by a EKU professor ranked Rockcastle County as having the 90th worst quality of life in the state of Kentucky.

The following are five reactions concerning the ranking from local people. A complete story on the survey can be found on page 16 of this week's SIGNAL.

Doug Brock: "I studied the article at great lengths and I'm going to keep it for future reference. But I certainly didn't agree with it. I can't see why they would hold it against a county for producing coal. I agree crime rate should be lower in this area than it is."

lot, to offer as far as lifestyle goes. But the people here make up for it. That is why we are here. My husband, Deniz, and I didn't want our children bussed across Indianapolis, Ind. We wanted to raise them in a friendly, small community.

Billy Hiatt: "When I was growing up in Wildcat I never had any intention of leaving the county to work or to live. It so happened that my first job took me to Fayette Co. and the first chance I got I came back to Rockcastle. To me, the preference for the place you would rather live is a relative thing. Some people may like to fight the traffic and red lights on Nicholasville Road in Fayette Co., but that's not for me. On a scale of 1 to 120 I would have to rate Fayette about 90 and Rockcastle number 1. Of course if we ever install a red light in Rockcastle, I would have to drop it a notch or two. On the other hand, if the Webb Brothers keep tinkering with downtown Lexington, I would drop Fayette

Jewel Hansel: "I don't thoroughly agree with the article, but it's a time people in this county wake up and see that there is a lot to be desired in our community. But I also think we have the greatest people in the world here."

Peggy Bowling: "We moved back to Rockcastle County 25 years ago because we thought the quality of life was better here than anywhere else we had lived. I'm from Tennessee and we lived there and in Michigan and this is by far the best place to live. We've never regretted moving here."

Sherry Allen: "Mt. Vernon as a community doesn't have a Lot bought for new fire house building

A lot for a new fire station on the south side of the railroad in Mt. Vernon was purchased by the city from Billy Hiatt at a called meeting of the city council Monday night.

The sale price for the lot was $16,500. It is located on the south side of east Main Street between Sears and Eveline Raines Properties building. The lot has a 165 foot frontage.

Mayor Roland Mullins said the city will install a drain and fill the lot at an estimated cost of $10,000.

He said funding for the building will hopefully be done through grants. There is no time table on construction of the building.

The city will clear all the land, and after construction of the building, have more parking area left than is in the city parking lot opposite the courthouse. He said the present lot opposite the courthouse will then have one and two hour parking, and the new lot, all day parking.

The new fire station is mandatory because the business area of Mt. Vernon is not on the same side of the railroad as the fire station. The city will maintain

The Week That Was

1947 (38 years ago this week)

T-Sgt. Fred M. Lawson, commanding the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting substation, 2nd floor, Post Office Building, Danville, announced today that Roy Eugene Tallant, Mt. Vernon, Ky., had enlisted in the U. S. Air Forces for three years and has been assigned to the Indochina Division, Lockland Air Base, San Antonio, Texas for training.

Emmett L. Bryant, of Mt. Vernon, has been formally initiated into the Kentucky Chapter of Triangle social fraternity at the University of Kentucky.

Bryant, now a junior in the University's College of Engineering, was graduated from Mt. Vernon High School.

Triangle was founded at the University of Illinois in 1907 and there are now over 100 national chapters. The University of Kentucky chapter was installed on the campus in 1920.

The Rockcastle County Association will have its 5th Sunday meeting with the New Corinth Baptist Church Nov. 30. There will be several of these preachers speak on different subjects. The church will serve dinner. All are invited to hear these gospel messages. All-day meetings. Come be with us. Mr. Garland Singleton is pastor.

Members of the Mt. Vernon Christian Church voted Sunday to call their pulpit Rev. Lavis Kineman of Kimberlin Hts., Tenn.

His first services as the Church's new pastor will be on the second Sunday in December.

The reason the Brodhead and Mt. Vernon city water is low is apparent in the rainfall figures so far in November as kept by Bill Cox at the Weather Bureau station at Mt. Vernon. A total of .89 of an inch has fallen this month in four relatively small rains.

Mt. Vernon's new night policeman is Dennis Cromer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil (Buck) Cromer of Mt. Vernon.

Mr. Cromer replaces Roy (Schooner) Lucas who resigned. Other night policeman is Clifford Pittman.

A subscriber writes that he seldom sees Pine Hill and Burr-palnames on Mt. Vernon basketball teams these days and names old timers like Metcalf, Fain, etc., who used to play. That's an easy question. Pine Hill and Burr students, who in yesteryear were some of Mt. Vernon's top players, now go to Livingston since the schools were re-districted after consolidation, or what was supposed to be consolidation. For your information, eight of the first 13 players on Livingston's varsity are from the Pine Hill-Burr-Chestnut Ridge area, including Lee Smith, who is expected to be all-region this year. No, we don't know who made the switch.

Marine Pvt. Dennis R. Collins, son of Mrs. Verla Collins of Route 1, Brodhead, has graduated from Marine recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot at Parris Island, S. C. He has been assigned to Camp Lejeune, N. C., for four weeks individual combat training and four weeks of specialist training.

There is nothing new to report this week on any of the county projects, including the proposed Renfro Valley Dam. We understand a committee has been set up by the city to contact residents whose property will be affected by the Lake. The committee probably will try to obtain options on the land.

Oscar (Bucky) McNew of Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro, North Carolina, has recently been promoted to the rank of Captain. At the present time, Capt. McNew is serving temporary duty in Thailand. His overseas address is: Captain Oscar H. McNew, 307th Strat Wing, Crew Control, Box 10147, A.P.O. San Francisco, California 96330.

Private Ricky D. Thompson, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. William William D. Thompson, Route 1, Brodhead, Ky., recently completed the seven-week basic field artillery (cannoner) course at the U. S. Army Field Artillery Training Center, Ft. Sill, Oklahoma.

Army Private Larry W. Napier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leander P. Napier, Route 1, Brodhead, Ky., completed on October 10, the seven-week basic field artillery (cannoner) course at the U. S. Army Field Artillery Training Center, Ft. Sill, Oklahoma.

During the course, he learned the duties of a howitzer or gun section crewman. He also received instruction in handling ammunition, setting fuses, and preparing charges, communications, and maintenance.

Pvt. Napier entered the Army late June and completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky.

The 18-year-old soldier is a 1975 graduate of Rockcastle County High School, Mt. Vernon, Ky.

Five Ohio juveniles were apprehended late Wednesday night after an alleged robbery attempt at the D. L. Bullock General Store on Highway 70.

According to Mr. Bullock, owner and operator of the store, a male youth came into the store and bought a package of cigarettes about 8 p.m. He then left and some 15 or 20 minutes later, two more male youths came into the store with stockings over their heads, carrying a shotgun. They reportedly told Mr. Bullock to put their money in a sack, whereupon, Mr. Bullock, thinking they were local youths pulling a prank, told them to give him the gun.

Mr. Bullock told Sheriff Milton Shepherd that the gun then discharged and several pellets struck the concrete floor, ricocheted off and struck him (Bullock) in the legs. The youths panicked, fled to a waiting car and took on on Highway 70, heading for its junction with 150. Billy Lawrence, a resident of the area, pulled up at the store only moments afterwards and Mr. Bullock told him what had happened. He gave chase and followed the youths onto Highway 150 where they turned toward Mt. Vernon. While pursuing them on this road, both cars passed State Trooper Greg Ennis, who recognized the Lawrence car and began chasing the youth's car. He followed them until they pulled into a service station at Renfro Valley where he took the four boys and one girl into custody. Mr. Lawrence left the chase when he saw Trooper Ennis and pulled over at the French residence to go back and get him, not realizing that the State Trooper was already in pursuit of the youth's car.

All five youths are now awaiting a juvenile hearing

SORRY WE WERE LATE last week but it couldn't be helped. The Sentinel-Echo in London prints our paper after we get it ready.

The plates were on the press by 6:30 p.m., one of the earliest times in recent history for the Signal to be printed. With only about 300 copies off the press, the whole works blew. A total of 5,400 copies of the Signal are printed.

It took three electricians and 6 1/2 hours to get the press running again--this time at half capacity. By 11 a.m. I was on my way home with the papers.

We have been late getting them out on the street before but never this late. We hope it doesn't happen again. Those people who get the Signal in the mail on Thursday were not affected by this.

IF YOU MISSED THE PLAY. The Importance of Being Earnest, then you missed a treat.

The latest production of the Rockcastle County Council for the Arts was very good.

It is nice to see that we have so many talented people in our county.

Congratulations are in order to the cast of the play and the members of the Arts Council. Nice

Let's Talk About Pre-Arranged Funerals

There is a growing tendency for folks to make Funeral Plans before death - in much the same manner as they make their wills. A written list of requests - placed where the family can easily obtain it - relieves much of the burden for those left behind. Cox Funeral Home feels this is a very worthwhile and sensible approach to death. We welcome you to stop in any day and discuss your funeral arrangements. Naturally, you will be under no obligation. It's a service Cox Funeral Home's proud to offer the community.

News from the Rockcastle Co. Library

The mystery theme has taken hold. Try to figure this one out: What county institution offers special services and programs for every resident of our county—just by asking? Where can an individual or group borrow books, records, films, film strips, magazines, pictures, polaroid cameras and projectors? Where can an individual or group park easily and spend time in a clean, pleasant, peaceful atmosphere, browsing for pleasure, locating needed information, reading the local newspaper back to 1880, searching genealogical records, enjoying a meeting, participating in a special or established program, copying materials, reading, listening, looking, growing, or learning to read in the Adult Literacy Program with a private volunteer tutor? And for those who are unable to visit in person, what county institution transports services to all areas of the county every week?

You guessed it—the Rockcastle County Library and Bookmobile offers these services and more. The library staff and Board of Directors urge you to take advantage of your public library services and facilities. All inquiries, suggestions, gifts, and volunteers are welcome.

While it is the purpose of the public library to meet the needs of Rockcastle County, the Library is experiencing a major need at job. IN THIS WEEK'S SIGNAL there is a story concerning the quality of life in Kentucky. Rockcastle ranked 90th out of 120 counties. Neighboring Jackson County ranked 120, dead last.

While this may very well be a fair assessment by Eastern Kentucky University professor Dennis E. Quillen, I personally don't think one man can decide our quality of life.

It could be better here, there is no doubt. But when you live in a county where you don't have to worry about bussing, riots in the schools, severe traffic problems, numerous drug pushers and many other things that a large city like Louisville offers, then you have it pretty good.

Located right on I-75 with access to any place any time, Rockcastle County is a nice place to raise a family.

One thing that really irks me, and it happened just the other day, is when people who live in Rockcastle County put it down and make fun of it. These people, who moved here from Ohio were in the Signal office making snide remarks about the county. The way I feel about it is that they should move back to Ohio. Everyone would be a lot better off.

There is a great deal of room for improvement in our "fair" county, but it is my opinion that steps are being taken to make life better here. Local merchant Billy Hiatt summed it up best when he said that is what many people want, so therefore, their quality of life is the best—at least in their own mind, and isn't that all that really matters?

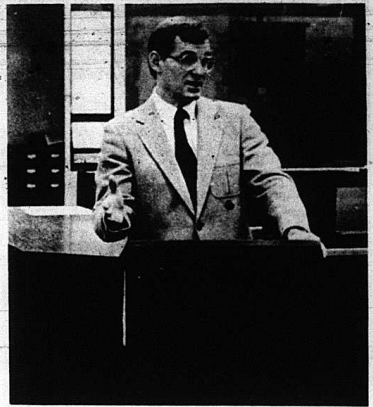

THIS WEEK'S PHRASE is: The accumulation of facts does not necessarily indicate one's intelligence. Intelligence is how one uses what he has learned.

present. Because of an inadvertent error, the tax collector awarded the library more than its fair share of tax money last year. The library is now in the process of repaying the money. This situation has created a deficit in the library budget and donations are being accepted. Please become a Friend of the Library by sending your tax deductible contribution to the Rockcastle County Library, P. O. Box 261, Mt. Vernon, Ky., or come by the Library in person. In other action, the council tentatively accepted a bid of $497,000 made by Karish Construction of Mt. Vernon to install sewer lines on Fairgould Hill, part of Owens Subdivision and Cox Lane. The Karish bid was $500 less than Singleton Construction of Winchester.

The mayor said he hopes to get an additional $50,000 to $60,000 from the Kentucky Housing Authority to bid all the alternatives that were left out of the original plans and original bid that turned out to be above the amount of money the city has to spend.

"With the additional money, and city employee help, we believe we can complete the whole project as we planned," the mayor stated.

Rep. Hal Rogers praises John Lair on House floor

Another accolade appeared last week for the late John Lair of Renfro Valley. It was given on the floor of the House of Representatives in Washington by Fifth District Rep. Harold Rogers of Somerset and placed in the Congressional Record Nov. 19, 1985, Rogers said:

"Mr. Speaker, one of the real pioneers in country and western music died last week.

John Lee Lair is not a name that many country fans of today may know. But this Kentucky farm boy helped lay the foundation for the growth and popularity of the music which millions of Americans enjoy today.

In my district, John is best known as the founder and organizer of the Renfro Valley Barn Dance. From the late 1930's through the 1950's, the barn dance was broadcast daily from Renfro Valley, helping establish many of the early stars of country music, and putting this small community permanently on the map.

Such country and western, to country music."

stars as Red Foley, Lily May Leford Pennington and Homer & Jethro began their careers through the Renfro Valley Barn Dance, which lives on today with weekly shows from March through November.

But John Lee Lair also contributed much to Rockcastle County and to the Renfro Valley area. A large tourist industry has developed around the barns where the dances were held, and the area is a frequent stopping-point for tourists along Interstate 75.

John's family has indicated that the Renfro Valley Barn Dance will live on, despite John Lee Lair's passing. And Mr. Speaker, I can think of no better lasting tribute to this giant in the country music field than for that to take place.

I ask my colleagues to join me in sending condolences to John's family, and in honoring John Lee Lair for his many contributions to Kentucky, to his community, and to country music."

Saturday, Nov. 30, 1985 10:30 a.m.

Quail Section of Rockcastle County

LOCATION: Approximately 6 1/2 miles southwest of Brodhead and 8 1/2 miles southeast of Mt. Vernon. Turn off US 150 at Albright's Feed & Supply onto Hwy. 70. Follow 70 to the auction site. Signs are posted.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Taylor have authorized our firm to sell this highly desirable, well-located farm for the absolute high dollar. The Taylor's have farmed for several years but are both doing public work and do not have the time to devote to the farm and therefore have said to sell it to the highest bidder.

The farm contains 62 acres, more or less, with 55 acres of cropland. The basic tobacco allotment is 2688 lbs. This farm has an entrance from Hwy. 70 or from Hwy. 618 and it is truly a farmer's farm. Water is provided by a spring, creek and city water could also be utilized.

It is improved with a good concrete block building that was formerly used as a hog house, completed with slatted floors. In addition, there is also a dandy tobacco barn plus an old house and another barn, both in need of repair.

Auctioneer's Note: If you're in the market for a beautiful farm with privacy and yet easily accessible in one of the county's most desired locations, then be sure to attend this auction. Remember, the last bid will buy.

Miss Cromer is resident assistant at Cumberland

Martina Cromer, daughter of Mrs. Ercel Cromer of Mt. Vernon and the late Jack Cromer, has been appointed by Cumberland College's Dean of Women, Linda Carter, to serve as a resident assistant during the 1985-86 school year.

As a resident assistant, a student has a unique opportunity to help establish an atmosphere that is conducive to meaningful living experiences as well as good conditions for studying in the residence hall.

A resident assistant has a variety of responsibilities and duties including guiding students in their adjustment to dormitory life and to college life in general; encouraging students to accept the responsibility of good citizenship; counseling students and whenever necessary, referring them to the college counseling center or other administrative personnel; and enforcing the regulations and policies of Cumberland College.

A resident assistant is assigned to office duties certain nights during the week and every other weekend, but is "on call" at all times. Therefore, a student is not permitted to hold another position on campus while serving as a resident assistant.

The Resident Assistant Program is a part of Cumberland's workshop program. Before a student can be appointed to a resident assistant position, he or she must first apply for and be awarded a work-study scholarship. Each resident assistant then receives a scholarship to be applied toward his or her tuition costs.

40th Anniversary

RCHS students conduct interviews of veterans

This year marks the 40th anniversary of the end of World War II. During the Thanksgiving season, and just prior to the anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor, we might stop and give thanks that our country is not at war.

Students in some of the English 9 classes at RCHS recently completed a project which included an interview with a World War II veteran and two short interviews with some family member or neighbor about their recollection of the day, December 7, 1941, the day that marked America's entry into the war.

The following is a sampling of those interviews.

"When Lorene Baker heard about Pearl Harbor, she was out feeding her cows. Her sister came and told her she heard it on the radio. After she finished with feeding, she went to the house and listened to the radio for more news." Shana Turner

"When Lillie and Charles Halcomb first heard about the bombing, they were standing in Lillie's sister, Myrtle's, store. Lillie said her first thought was, 'We're in war now.'" Lisa Rader

"Cecil Anderkin got up at 7 o'clock to go to work. When he got there, he found out that Pearl Harbor had been bombed. He said the first thing he thought about was that he was going to war and he felt 'hated for the Japs.'" Jason Payne

"Janita Blackburn of Livingston was listening to the radio with her mother and sisters when she heard about the bombing. The first thought (and that of her sister, Gracie) was that their brothers would have to fight and they were very frightened for them." Lesla Burke

"Hubert F. Vanzant was in Indiana picking up a friend who was on leave. When he got to the air base, he heard sirens and jets began going off. Then came the announcement over the loudspeaker. He went to sign up." Scottie Chattell

"Charles Leager was working in a field and his brother came and told him about the bombing. He said he went over and sat down by a tree in the edge of the field. He thought he would have to go and fight." Clayton McNew

"Nathan Clark, age 74, of Wildie, said, 'I heard about the attack of Pearl Harbor on an old transistor radio in my tobacco barn in Hummel. I thought it sounded awful bad that the United States had to go to war.'" Susan Smith

"Robert Robinson was 21 years old in 1941, and on his way back to the University of Kentucky when the bus driver told him about Pearl Harbor. He said he was filled with hate for the Japanese. He entered the U.S. Air Corps on December 19, 1941." Scott Chattell

"Eva Doan was in her kitchen in Mt. Vernon when she heard about Pearl Harbor. Her first thoughts were that she should start moving food to her basement and she should spread the news to her neighbors." Willie Swiney

Cameron takes 1st place

The North American International Livestock Exposition (NAILE) is the largest all-bred livestock show in the world and is held at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center (KFEC) in Louisville. Livestock men from across the nation bring nearly 14,000 entries to Louisville for the well-known event. Operated as part of the Commonwealth of Kentucky Tourism Cabinet, the NAILE generates $25 million into the local economy, ranking it as the number one KFEC event.

there to Casablanca. The trip took twelve days and nights. He said, "That's when we went to work." From Casablanca, he went on to Tunis. He said, "There the Italians gave up. They came in truck loads. They were fighting with Germany at the time, but gave up." Then from North Africa they went to Naples, Italy. They were there for 11 months. They then went on to France and then into Germany. He said it was "tough going." Dola said he served under many different generals. They traveled to whatever part and whatever general was in command there became their new general.

When it comes to sad stories, "We were working one cold day preparing a railroad that had been blown up. We built a fire and were eating dinner when there was a big shell went off. It went off right in the fire. It got eight of my buddies. That liked to have killed me because everybody's always looking for more. I fell behind my buddies dozer blade and I felt the wind. It just missed my head or it would have cut it off. It broke both of my buddies' legs and I can remember seeing him now pulling himself over a hill with his hands, looking for more."

Dola wasn't badly hurt in the war. His ankle was hurt and a bullet grazed his arm leaving a small scar but nothing really serious.

He said, "Several times it looked pretty dark." When asked if he ever thought he wouldn't make it home, "You talk about homesick and waterbound. I didn't know which way was home and I didn't know if I'd get home or not." When they did get to come home they were able to fly home. The first plane they got on, "there were three of us besides the crew. He hit an airport and we dropped 220 feet. It thought: Well, the Lord has spared us this long in the war and now we're gonna die. That was scary. That was about as scared as I was all through the war really."

Veteran Dola Rader of Rockcastle County was interviewed by his granddaughter, Lisa. She did the interview as an assignment in English 9 at RCHS, and needless to say, did an excellent job, especially considering it was her first.

My Interview with Dola Rader

When Japan launched the sneak attack on the U.S. Naval Base at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, Dola Rader, then an unmarried 23 year old former resident of Orlando, Kentucky, was in Morgan, Kentucky working on the railroad. He said, "At that time I knew the war was coming. I hated to leave home, but I was ready to go when they called." He said, "I knew the job had to be done if we had any freedom."

Dola was in the Army Railroad Battalion or Transportation Department. His job was very important. They repaired broken or burned down bridges and it was their duty to get food and supplies to the places of battle. "Railroad was the greatest help there ever was. They could get ammunition as close as possible to the front line as they could by rail." Dola had been inducted in Ft. Thomas, Ky. and spent six weeks in Ozark Mountains, Ft. Leonardwood, Missouri. From Missouri, he went to Clovis, New Mexico. By train he traveled to New York and from

Health Focus

Your Child's Health

by
Dr. John Payne

You may not always know when your child is coming down with an illness until it reaches the acute stage, but there are certain signs to look for.

If a child is not well, he may not "look right" to you. Some mothers and grandmothers refer to this as "weak eyes." Maybe the face is flushed, hot, and dry or he is perspiring for no apparent reason. Perhaps he looks pale or is unusually quiet, whiny, and unhappy. You can't feel for a cool nose as a sign of health; that one is for puppy dogs.

If your child is not old enough to tell you what is wrong, just observe him for a few hours. Don't worry if the child is not hungry at a particular meal. If he is coming down with something, the symptoms will persist and he won't want to eat for a few days. Just give clear liquids (things you can see through) and check the temperature. Feeling for a hot forehead is not enough. Get a thermometer if you don't have one and learn to read it. Color indicator tapes you place on the forehead are not accurate.

Many times a child may encounter a brief viral illness which may only last 12 to 24 hours. They probably don't need to see a doctor unless more severe symptoms such as an earache or sore throat develop.

The above guidelines are mostly for children over a year of age. Younger infants, especially in the first four months of life, may get seriously ill quicker and should see a doctor sooner.

or its container. Another type is blister packaging, which is individually processing sealed tablets or capsules. Some products have tape sealed over a carton flap or a bottle cap. Others have paper or foil sealed to the mouth of the bottle under the cap. Shrink bands fit tightly around the union of the cap and container. Some products have plastic or metal caps which break apart when removed. Carton flaps are often sealed so that the carton must be visibly damaged when opened. Tubes may have seals which must be punctured before use. If a protective feature is not intact, do not use the product.

The medicine itself should also be checked. Make sure the appearance of tablets, capsules or liquids has not changed. Products should also be checked for any differences in odor or in imprinting. Not every change in appearance means the package has been tampered with. The manufacturers often change the color or the packaging.

If you see a product that looks suspicious, check with your pharmacist and help put an end to tampering.

The Medicine Chest

In 1982 seven deaths occurred from deliberate tampering of medicines. Immediately, makers of over-the-counter medicines began sealing their products in tamper-resistant packaging. Government backed their actions with new packing regulations. Beyond that, we must still do our part to guard against criminal tampering.

The best safeguard against tampering is common sense. Always inspect the packaging before you buy a product, then inspect the product when you open it at home.

Learn how packaging is supposed to look. There are many examples of tamper-resistant packaging. One type is film wrap, which is sealed around the product

Dola received a good conduct ribbon and six bronze stars in the war.

In the war Dola realized how much he loved his country. "That's why many of them lost their lives, while we were in there, to have this free country. Freedom of speech, notices of God, and we could pray to Jesus Christ. We have more freedom than any other country in the world," he said.

On holidays, times were sad, but they knew war was going on and were willing to go through hardship. On Thanksgiving in Italy, they were going to get turkey, but had to move before they got it. They were going to get it that day: "The men were in chow line and the Germans shot a big bomber right at them," Dola said. "That woke us up. I left the chow line, went to the foxhole and got my rifle. When I saw those Germans' planes and men dropping in parachutes." He said, "I forgot all about the turkey. That was over." They never did have to go any long periods of time without food. "They always got it to you. But many in infantry didn't. That was rough in infantry," he said.

Dola said in C-rations they would sometimes get something like beef stew. He said it usually had a lot of potatoes in it and he really liked that. All he ever received from home was a box of cigars besides letters and he asked for the cigars through a letter to his uncle.

The in-between times were only when they were getting ready to go into another country, loading up and waiting on ships to get ready. That was their biggest waiting period. When they changed, they had a day off to rest and to wash their clothes. The service read articles of war to them every six months and they had chapel. Every once in a great while they took them to a place where they could listen to a minister. He said it still bears in his mind when the man came out on the field and talked to them about Easter Sunday and Jesus Christ. They weren't allowed to mix with the local people in the places they were stationed much. Especially in Germany, they weren't allowed to fraternize or talk with them. He always wrote and corresponded with people at home. If they were going to change countries, they would write home and tell them not to write until they heard from them again. Because they would have another APO number and they didn't know how long of period that would be.

Coming home he said, "I was as happy as a coon in a huckleberry patch, knowing I was going to get loose." They were on five different planes coming home. On a C-54 they were 8 hours over water. He said, "C-54 is the one they flew over Miami, Florida at night. That was the first city I'd seen lit up in three years. That looked beautiful to me. We got landed there and they took us to some place. It was a big, long building. Right there I got my fill. They had banana stalks hanging all the way down a line. You could get milk, ice cream, whatever you wanted on each end. I'd walk that line get me a banana, eat it, and reach up and get me a glass of milk when I got to the end. I had had any milk in 30 years."

Dola said he would really like to go back to where he had fought and see what it looked like now but he knew there was no chance that he could. And he wasn't able. He said he saw some tore up country and towns. No doubt he wouldn't know it now. He said he would love to see it and that he thought about it every once in awhile.

Dola gets a newsletter every year from the 713th. He's never gotten to go to a reunion, but he said "he would love to." He said he had seen a few of them. His sergeant that he went through with came to see him about four years ago. His sergeant told him that after the war he went to the Navy and stayed until he retired. He said, "I was tickled to death to see him."

Dola now lives in Orlando, Ky. (Brush Creek) with his wife, Sarah, and two of his sons, Nathan and Enoch. Dola lives on a farm. He spends a lot of his time working on the farm.

IF PLANTS COULD ONLY TALK...

Your houseplants may be gone by spring if you don't do a good job of shepherding them through the winter.

Being a houseplant right now is not an easy life. There's that icy window pane, the hot dry blasts from the heating duct, and little of that life-giving sunlight. To make matters worse, there's the alarming possibility of too much water and fertilizer lavished by an owner who can kill them with kindness.

If plants could become vocal to save themselves from an early death at your hands, here is what they might tell you:

-Keep me at least 6 inches from single-pane windows, and at least 2 or 3 inches from insulated or double-pane glass.

-Close the draperies behind me at night.

-Cut back my watering schedule by at least half, maybe even two-thirds.

-Before you water me, be sure the soil is slightly dry at a depth of 1 inch. Then give me enough to drink that the bottom of the pot starts to drip.

-Feed me fertilizer about once every 8 weeks. I'm just not very hungry these days.

-Unless you have a humidifier to keep the air from being too dry, set my pot on a dish filled with pebbles. Fill it with water that doesn't come as high as the tops of the pebbles. That way water will keep evaporating into the air around me, but my roots won't get waterlogged.
-I like cool nights, so don't worry about me when you turn down the thermostat. I get up fine as long as it's not colder than 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

SAFEGUARD YOUR HOME

With the increased crime rate in the last few years, make sure your home provides safety and privacy.

Use reasonable lightning to help keep robbers away. Try to light the entire exterior of the house and yard, preferably from one spot in the house. Have a light showing even when you are home at night.

-If you are away for an extended period, let a timing device turn on the bedroom light and radio. Hire a "house-sitter" when you go on a long vacation.
-All exterior doors should have a dead bolt lock. The only way you can open this type of lock is with a key or by turning a knob. For added protection, choose a vertical drop-bolt lock with a double cylinder as an auxiliary lock. A double cylinder lock requires a key to enter and another to exit. Double cylinder locks may be potentially hazardous to small children or the aged by confining them in an emergency, so use these locks only when the house is unoccupied for a long time.

Use additional locks on windows because the single-twist offers little protection. On sash windows and conventional double-hung windows, use security glass, single-twist locks and a lock which locks without a key but requires a key for opening. The awning type window offers the best protection.

HOW TO THAW A TURKEY

There is a good chance that the turkey you buy this Thanksgiving will be a frozen one. Both frozen and fresh turkeys are always available in the market, but the special prices usually are offered on the frozen birds.
What is the safest way to thaw a turkey?

The best way to avoid bacterial growth is to thaw the bird in the refrigerator. If you forget to remove the turkey from the freezer in time for refrigerator thawing, it can be thawed in cold water if the water is changed frequently, or it can be thawed in some microwave ovens.

To thaw the turkey in the refrigerator, place it in the original wrap or on a tray or in a pan to catch the moisture that accumulates as it thaws.

Remember: It takes at least four days to thaw a 20-pound turkey in the refrigerator.

Smaller turkeys take less time to thaw in the refrigerator, but still they may take longer than most people realize. For example, a 16 to 20 pound bird takes three to four days while a 12 to 16 pound one will require two or three days thawing time. A small eight to 12 pound turkey can thaw in just one or two days.

If you have forgotten to thaw the turkey, and it's the day before Thanksgiving, you can do it in cold water. Check the original wrapping to be sure there are no tears. If there is one, place the turkey in another plastic bag and fasten tightly. Then place it in cold water. The National Turkey Federation recommends the water be changed every 30 minutes.

That 20 pound turkey will thaw in cold water in 11 to 12 hours, while the 16 pound bird will take nine to 11 hours. The 12 pound turkey will water thaw in six to nine hours and the smaller one will take four-to six hours.

You can also thaw a frozen turkey in some microwave ovens. Read the manufacturer's instructions to find out what size turkey you own will handle, as well as the minutes per pound and the power level to use for thawing. You will need to shield parts of the turkey with aluminum foil during thawing to prevent cooking. Again refer to the oven manual about using foil because older microwave ovens advise you not to use foil.

Thawing the turkey on the kitchen counter is not recommended. The room temperature falls within the danger zone of 60 to 125 degrees and promotes the growth of bacteria.

Since the turkey thaws from the outside in, the surface is warm enough for the growth of bacteria. Cooking cannot be counted on to destroy all bacteria.

Once the turkey is thawed, it should be washed inside and out and drained. Then wash your hands, utensils and sink after they have come in contact with raw turkey to prevent the spread of bacteria.

HOW TO ROAST A TURKEY

Since the earliest beginnings of this country, turkey has been the traditional main entrée for Thanksgiving.

As a result, many of us may assume that we know all there is to know about roasting turkeys, but this is not true, according to a poll taken by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Perhaps this is your first holiday to roast a turkey. Maybe you just want to improve and update your cooking technique. Whatever the case may be, this article will increase your knowledge of cooking turkey.

Bridges still substandard

Sixty out of 10 bridges in Buchanan County are substandard, according to an evaluation submitted to the Federal Highway Administration by the Kentucky

Transportation Cabinet. Rockcastle County has a total of 81 bridges (20 feet in length), with 60 of these structurally deficient and/or functionally obsolete.

...y county in Kentucky has its share of "killer bridges," observed Jack Fish, president of Kentuckians for Better Transportation, a statewide association of those interested in improving air, water, highway and rail transportation.

"Our old, obsolete bridges with narrow clearances, bad approaches, faulty guardrail and high traffic volumes are just waiting to kill someone," Fish said.

Kentucky has 12,740 bridges—one for every 5.5 miles of road. On average, every 10 miles there is a substandard bridge. The state report shows that 7,191 of Kentucky's 12,740 bridges are substandard, based on an inspection of every bridge in the state, using federal bridge inspection standards and evaluation criteria.

According to the report, Kentucky has 490 bridges on the Federal-aid system that are structurally deficient and 3,698 that are functionally obsolete. Most of these bridges are on the state's major highways and interstates.

Of the state's bridges off the Federal-aid system—primarily locally maintained—1,355 are structurally deficient and 1,648 are functionally obsolete.

The deficiencies are attributed to age, heavier traffic, the effects of weather and deferred maintenance, according to Fish. The state and most local governments just don't have adequate funds to begin to deal with the problem realistically, he said.

Over the years, bridge maintenance and reconstruction projects have been postponed and the weight limits of aging bridges have been repeatedly reduced for safety, he added.

The state's current construction plan provides for replacing 340 substandard bridges by 1989. At the current rate of improvement, using available state and federal funds, it would take more than 70 years to solve the state's "existing" bridge problems, Fish said.

Kentucky ranks 22nd among the states in total number of bridges and 20th among the states in terms of deficient bridges, according to FHWA's national inventory.

A structurally deficient bridge is one that has been restricted to light vehicles only, is closed to traffic, or must be rehabilitated immediately to stay open. A functionally obsolete bridge is one whose narrow lanes, load carrying capacity, clearance, or approach roadway alignment can no longer safely serve its current traffic load. A structurally deficient bridge may also be obsolete.

Every bridge is assigned a load rating which is the load level at which vehicles can safely travel for an indefinite period without affecting bridge life. Repeated use of a bridge by vehicles that exceed the load rating causes a significant reduction in bridge life through fatigue.

The fact that a bridge is "deficient," either structurally or functionally, does not mean it is necessarily unsafe to use. With proper load posting and enforcement, many structurally deficient bridges can continue to serve traffic. Both posting and enforcement are a problem in some areas.

Kentucky had a total of 79 bridges closed to traffic as of Dec. 31, according to the Federal Highway Administration. The FHWA also said 215 local bridges that should have restricted weight limits were open, but not posted.

The most significant aspects of substandard bridges are economic costs and safety, from the standpoint of one-lane bridges and narrow approaches that may be on a curve.

A closed bridge—or severely reduced weight limit—can cut off essential services, add shipping costs to business and farmers, increase fuel costs to school districts and motorists, and play havoc with the daily routine of any community.

Even people who don't use bridges are affected. Fire trucks and ambulances must be rerouted. When delivery trucks are required to make long detours around closed or weight-restricted bridges, the extra fuel and employee costs are generally passed on to the consumer. Operating costs increase as much as $2.50 for each mile a truck must detour.

Inadequate roads and bridges seriously restrict an area's economic development prospects. "Ask any manufacturer who has located a plant in Kentucky for a list of factors influencing site selection, and transportation will be among the top items on the list. Areas that do not have adequate transportation facilities are not even considered," Fish said.

Functionally obsolete bridges have deficiencies which often can be minimized by the use of roadway striping, signs, signals, and crash cushions. Unfortunately, local governments often don't have the funds to provide even this margin of safety.

Federal law requires that all public bridges are inspected at least every two years. If a bridge is substandard because of an inability to carry the weight it was designed to carry, it must be inspected at least annually.

CHICKWEED CONTROL IN ALFAIFA

The weather conditions this fall have been favorable for alfalfa growth. If these conditions continue to exist, farmers may observe as much as 30 percent reduction in alfalfa stands where heavy chickweed infestations are present.

Chickweed can be controlled, provided the right herbicide is selected and applied at the

...haved the turkey, place it breast-side up on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Brushing with oil or margarine is not necessary, but may be done if you prefer.

Make a tent with heavy-duty aluminum foil to loosely cover the bird. A tent is made by tearing off a sheet of foil that is ten inches longer than the turkey. Crease the foil across the center and place it over the turkey, tamping it loosely onto the sides of the pan. The tent prevents overbrowning and keeps the turkey moist.

You will be glad you used a tent when the time comes to clean the pan. The tent will reduce the amount of fat on the roasting pan. To remove the turkey, remove the tent about 20 to 30 minutes before roasting is finished and remove the tent until the thermometer indicates 185 degrees. Be sure to place the thermometer correctly. It should be inserted through the foil into the thickest part of the turkey without touching the bone.

Turkeys may be roasted without a tent, but many people prefer a stuffed turkey. It's important to know that a stuffed turkey takes longer to roast than an unstuffed one.

For example, a small eight to 12 pound turkey can be roasted in three or four hours while the same turkey, if stuffed, will require about 30 minutes longer. A large 24 to 28 pound turkey can be roasted in five to six and a half hours. When stuffed that turkey may take seven to eight and a half hours.

Stuff a turkey just before it is to be cooked—never the day before. Leftover stuffing must be separated from the meat and kept covered in the refrigerator for use within a day or two. If longer storage is desired, wrap and freeze the stuffing. It may be kept three or four weeks frozen. Then heat it without cooking.

Correctly storing turkey is important to prevent bacterial growth.

From the time the turkey is taken out of the oven, you have only two hours to carve it, serve it and stuff it. After two hours at room temperature, bacterial growth that can cause food poisoning can occur.

Large quantities of turkey should be divided into smaller pieces and stored in several small containers. This will allow the turkey to get colder quicker. Leftover turkey, if not stored in the broth or gravy, will keep in the refrigerator three to four days. It will keep only one or two days if stored in broth or gravy.

For longer storage, wrap leftover turkey in freezer paper or heavy duty aluminum foil and freeze. Always date your packages and use under one year. Frozen turkey, stuffing and gravy should be used within one month.

Church of Christ

Is One Church As Good As Another?

Frequently we hear someone in his efforts to justify the existence of denominationalism come out with the statement, "One church is as good as another." He who does not so think is commonly labeled "bigoted" or "narrow." But let us consider this question in light of the Scriptures.

Jesus said, "I will build my church" (Matt. 16:18). Martin Luther built his, John Wesley built his, King James VIII built his and Christ built His. Now according to common logic, Luther's is just as good as Wesley's and they are both just as good as the one the Lord built. Do you really believe these men came up with a church of their own equal to Christ's? I am unable to concur that any thoughtful person can answer in the affirmative. It is not logical that John Wesley, the father of the Methodist church, suffered the criticism and the ridicule of the Church of England because he believed that one way of worshipping God was just as good as another.

I wonder, too, if Martin Luther, from whom the Lutheran Church got its name, endured the persecution of Papal Rome because it didn't make any difference what one believes or practices in religion.

Then, too, did the early settlers come to America—the Baptists, Presbyterians, Quakers and others—because one was as good as another? No! They came for religious freedom. They wanted to worship God in a specific way and they made the sacrifice of possessions and homes to live where they could. Their leaders would vow that their church was right and anything contrary or different was wrong.

Today, they have departed from the faith of their founders. They teach, not what is true, but what is right, regardless of what they believe or practice. What brought about this change of ideas? They sought and found the "course of least resistance" a new and easy (?) way of thinking. It is easier. The Lord's church is best because HE BUILT IT. HE BOUGHT IT with His own blood (Acts 20:28). If Luther or anyone else could have accomplished such without this sacrifice, it was foolish for Christ to endure the suffering of the cross. The church of Christ is the only church existing today by divine appointment (Matt. 15:13). This is not narrow...it is the Bible.

Sutton Era Begins at UK; Football? Wait! Next Year!

Something new, something old. The Eddie Sutton era officially began last Friday night in Rupp Arena. And Kentucky's football season ended (mercifully) a day later.

First, some views on UK's baseball debut.

1. The Wildcats seemed extraordinarily relaxed and crisp during the early going against feisty Northwestern State. There again on a game or three at the bench to be seen from the starters.

2. While the visitors' starting Kenny Walker inside, the Wildcats did not exhibit the frustration evident in the past.

Walker, because of his unusual temperament for an All-American, became mostly a decoy in the offense. No problem... Roger Harden and James Blackson split six field goals out of 10 shots in the first half. Harden added five assists. Ed Davender had three.

3. Winston Bennett played very well, not only taking medium range jump shots, but swishing them.

4. While it may change when the stakes become higher, say, against Indiana, Sutton remained under control at the bench instead of firing, pacing and "working" the officials. It was a nice change.

5. Sutton teaches during a game too. On a number of occasions when substitutions were made he spoke quietly with the coach, player upon his arrival at the bench, presumably, pointing out ways to improve play.

6. While many of us believe that UK's success this season rests on Walker's shoulders, I suggest that is not the case. The other things have to happen as well. The guards must score from the perimeter... naturally, but perhaps more vital, UK must get help from Cedric Jenkins and Rob Logg.

Jenkins shows promise. The gangly 6-9, 205-pound sophomore is a raw talent at this point. But he is quick, jumps well and runs the floor well. He looks to be quite capable of becoming a good rebounder and playing solid defense, when the experience comes.

Jenkins played 19 minutes Friday night and had eight points, four rebounds. I like him.

Something old. It is a synonym this week for what the UK football team demonstrated against the Wildcats last Saturday.

Courage was absent all the Wildcats had left at the end because the second half was a disaster by any standard for UK fans.

Coach John Major's Tennessee Volunteers were bigger, stronger and immensely more talented. And they played much smarter football as well. Tennessee, even without injured quarterback Tony Robinson, looks from here like a legitimate Sugar Bowl candidate.

The Tennessee team that showed up at Commonwealth Stadium Saturday was the best UT team I have seen play in Lexington in more than a decade, even without Robinson.

And yet, like a tired old lion of a heavyweight boxer who gets up gamely from being knocked down and stumbling back into the fray.

By the fourth period the Wildcats had been worn down and beat up unmercifully, particularly

County ranked 90th in survey

No one is pleased and some are grumbling, but the figures remain—Rockcastle County is ranked 90th in counties in Kentucky in quality of life.

So declares a survey made by Dennis E. Quillen, professor of geography and planning at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, who personally surveyed 95 Kentucky counties.

If Rockcastle was ranked 90th and "below average" in the survey, neighboring Jackson County has cause to be furious. Jackson was 120th, at the bottom of the heap, and one point below its neighbor, Clay County.

In that "below average" ranking were nearby Laurel (78th), Lincoln (82nd) and Whitley (76th). Garrard County (58th) and Pulaski (62nd) were in the average column.

Kentucky's urban areas were the tops, even though some might call them the pits. Fayette topped the list followed by Oldham, Boone, Jefferson and Kenton.

Quillen, who chaired his survey was "scientific," took various factors into consideration, including education, crime rate, average income, value of farmland, proximity to cities and colleges, entertainment and sports. He used a point system to make his analysis. For example, if

Veterans Administration spends $427 mil. in state during fiscal 1984

Expenditures by the Veterans Administration in Kentucky totaled nearly $427 million during fiscal year 1984, an increase of $11.8 million over the previous year and the highest in state history.

Lee Caudill, director of the VA Regional Office in Louisville, reported today on the federal agency's estimated spending for various services and benefits. The largest portion, $260.2 million, represented disability compensation and pension checks to veterans, their dependents and survivors.

Approximately $121 million went toward medical services and administrative costs, and $28.8 million provided for GI Bill educational and vocational rehabilitation programs for Kentucky veterans, he said.

The remainder was spent for GI insurance and indemnities ($17.9 million) and construction and related costs ($3.5 million).

Of the total, Rockcastle veteran and received $1,549,667. Of that total, $1,452,115 went for compensation and pensions, $40,065 for readjustment and vocational rehabilitation; $57,489 for insurance and indemnities.

Jackson County received $1,369,498; Laurel, $4,021,593; Madison, $4,154,406; Lincoln, $2,998,144; and Pulaski, $6,325,131.

In Jefferson County, disbursements totaled $89.8 million with $46.6 million for medical services and administration at the Louisville VA medical center and $1.6 million for construction and related costs. Compensation and pension payments amounted to $32.9 million. Another $4.8 million was spent for GI Bill education and vocational rehabilitation programs and $3.9 million for insurance and indemnities, Caudill said.

In Fayette County, the VA spent $83.7 million, with $74.5 million for medical services and administration at the Lexington medical center and $1.9 million for construction and related costs. Compensation and pension payments amounted to $35.5 million and $1.2 million was spent for insurance and indemnities.

Payments in Hardin County totaled $13.7 million, with $10.3 million for compensation and pension payments. Another $2.9 million went to veterans engaged in GI Bill educational and vocational rehabilitation programs.

col was produced in your county. it was a loss of 10 points.

Quillen hopes no one will take the ranking too seriously. "I'm not trying to offend anyone," he said. Quillen is a Virginian who has a degree from the University of Tennessee where he lived before coming to Kentucky 18 years ago. He lived in Fayette County for a year, then moved to Madison County (26th).

Quillen admits that his personal feelings show up in the rankings. He likes cities, and gives extra weight to those things that are associated with urban life.

Not only did Quillen compare 120 counties, he compared them with the rest of the nation. He discovered that only the first 14 Kentucky counties would rate above average on the national scale. Another 14 would be about average and the other 92 would be below average.

Most, if not about all, the counties in the below average category were in Eastern Kentucky.

That indicates that a rural

Court approves state loan money

A resolution to participate another year in the state Qualified Mortgage Revenue Bonds to provide money for low income families who wish to build or purchase houses, was approved by the Rockcastle Fiscal Court during a meeting Friday.

Rockcastle will get an estimated $350,000 to $400,000 for loans through the Bank of Mt. Vernon. The bank is expected to request $2 million, but probably won't receive more than the $400,000.

The county readily participates in the loan program through the bank and the resolution was considered routine to participate in 1986.

The court also agreed to participate in the Community Development Block Grant program again in 1986.

"Bridges" (Continued)

Kentucky policy with regard to standard bridges goes even further. Bridges in a "critical condition" are inspected more frequently—perhaps monthly or weekly, depending on judgment at the district level. Bridge inspections by state personnel are made not only of state-system bridges, but the same inspection policy extends to city and county bridges.

Motogysts sometimes wonder why "Briestman" goes to bad on relatively new bridges, including many on the interstate system. The culprit is deicing chemicals seeping through concrete to corrode reinforcing steel which in turn causes pavement to crumble. Bridge decks now being replaced include protective systems and new construction methods which prolong deck life.

From 1979 through 1984, Kentucky obligated $187 million. Federal bridge funds to replace or rehabilitate a total of 548 bridges. (The U.S. Grant Bridge at South Shore over the Ohio River was funded through another program.) The federal share of bridge projects (BRRP) is 80 percent, with state and local government responsible for the remaining 20 percent.

Kentucky currently receives $25.8 million annually in federal bridge apportionments requiring a $6.6 million "match."

Kentucky's "sick bridges" are symptomatic of the overall problem of inadequate funds for bridges and state-maintained roads said Fish. The Cabinet, last month, presented an analysis to the General Assembly showing an additional $47 million in state construction funds for roads and bridges and $12 million for rural secondary bridges is needed annually to keep pace with growth and development.

Total additional funding needed is $178 million for the first year of the biennium and $190 million for the second. Transportation Cabinet Secretary Les Dawson said the additional funds would do things like put resurfacing on a "rational schedule," and provide funds needed to complete the State six-year highway construction plan.

So, having a bridge, or other project, in the construction plan doesn't mean it will necessarily be built in time soon. Dawson said an additional $28 million is needed annually to implement all of the projects in the plan.

The Cabinet estimated that additional revenue needed by local government is a minimum of $10 million annually for resurfacing, initial surfacing, and bridging.

On December 15, 1967, the Silver Bridge between Point Pleasant, West Virginia, and Kanawha, Ohio, a 1,753-foot suspension bridge built in 1927-28, tore loose from its supports and tumbled into the Ohio River during the height of the evening rush hour, taking 46 men, women, and children to their deaths. This spectacular collapse focused national attention on the problem of bridge deterioration and aging. The Federal Highway Bridge Replacement and Rehabilitation Program was launched in 1968, as a result.
