Pediatricians reaffirm need for Pertussis vaccine

The American Academy of Pediatrics recently reaffirmed its recommendation that young children should receive immunizations against pertussis (whooping cough), and said that the risk of death and suffering caused by this highly infectious disease of infancy is far greater than the possible side effects of the vaccine.

The Academy was responding to the morning NBC-TV "today" program which reported that dangerous reactions to pertussis immunizations are common. The Academy charged that the frequency and severity of side effects to the vaccine was disproportionately magnified in relation to the danger of this disease.

Said AAP President Glenn Austin, M.D., FAAP: "The Today Show statement that 'serious reactions from the whooping cough vaccine are common... as low as one in 700 children' is untrue."

"In fact, the number of children inoculated with pertussis vaccine who have side effects such as high fever or convulsions is approximately 1 in 7,000. The number of cases of permanent brain damage is about 1 in 310,000 injections."

Dr. Austin said while it is true that side effects to children, including serious reactions, do occur in rare cases after inoculation, the use of pertussis vaccine is feast is over and indigestion sets in, many people reach for antacids. Antacids are used to neutralize gastric acid and contain at least one of the four neutralizing ingredients: sodium bicarbonate, calcium carbonate, aluminum salts, and magnesium salts.

Sodium bicarbonate is a potent antacid for relief of symptoms of occasional overeating. However, it should not be used chronically or in high doses because of its high sodium content. This is especially important to individuals on low-salt diets, such as people with high blood pressure.

Calcium carbonate is a rapid-acting, potent acid neutralizer. One advantage of this antacid is the calcium content which is especially important to women. It may be used safely in low doses, but is not usually recommended for chronic use. A major side effect of calcium carbonate is constipation.

Magnesium salts and aluminum salts have less neutralizing capacity than sodium bicarbonate or calcium carbonate, but are also safe and effective when used properly. Magnesium salts have the side effect of causing diarrhea. (Some are used as laxatives.) Aluminum-containing antacids are less potent than magnesium salts and can cause constipation. So these two salts are commonly used together to counteract the side effects of each. However, the mixture still has the potential for any adverse effects of either agent.

The next time you over-indulge at the table and need some relief, ask your doctor or pharmacist to help pick the best antacid for you.

Senior guard Benny Blanton tries for a shot between two Laurel Co. Cardinals during opening round action of the Estill Co. Choo Choo Classic last Thursday. Blanton, who was named to the all-tournament team, lead the Rockets in scoring with 19 points. However, the Rockets took a severe 93-52 drubbing.

Boys fall to Laurel and Boyle in Choo Choo classic

The Laurel Co. Cardinals and Boyle Co. Rebels both took measure of the Rockcastle Co. Rockets during the annual Choo Choo Classic at Estill Co. last weekend.

The Rockets had to meet the much bigger and faster Cardinals in the opening round and it was no contest from the outset as Laurel Co. took an early lead and added to it throughout the game. The Rockets trailed 23-10, 48-24, and 63-37 at the quarter stops and wound up losing 93-52.

Friday afternoon, the Rockets looked better in their first half play against the Boyle Co. Rebels and held a small lead at the end of the first quarter and at halftime.

The Rebels came back strong in the second half and their tough full-court press forced numerous Rocket turnovers.

The decisive quarter for the Rebels was the third when they held the Rockets to 8 points while scoring 23 of their own for a 57-43 edge at the end of the quarter. The Rebels added to their margin in the fourth quarter by outscoring the Rockets 26-18 for the final 83-61 score.

Leading scorer for the Rockets in both games was senior guard Benny Blanton with 19 points against Laurel Co., and 17 in the second game. Blanton was also named to the All-Tournament team.

Others scoring in the Laurel Co. game were: Tommy Payne, 8; Tony Harrison, 6; Scott Parrett and Harold Graves, 5 each; Robbie Mink, 4; Johnny Kirby, 3; and Jon Bullen and Tim Hodges, 2 each.

Following Blanton in scoring in the Boyle Co. game were Graves, 12; Parrett, 10; Kirby and Hodges, 6 each; Harrison, 5; Mink and Bullen, 2 each, and Payne, 1.

The Rockets play their next game Saturday, Jan. 4 against Barbourville.

Senior center Harold Graves tried for a lay-up in the Laurel Co. game but Todd Bearup was there to block the shot. Graves was fouled but the referees settled for a "jump ball" call. Graves scored 5 points in the game.

for water infrastructure in Kentucky. The recommended loan fund would consist of $20 million in bonds to be issued by the Kentucky Pollution Abatement and Water Resources Finance Authority and $10 million in state appropriations. State appropriations would be necessary to subsidize interest rates for low income communities, but the report recommends that communities which can pay market rates should do so.

"In addition to the need for a state financing program, MACE's report calls for greater technical and management assistance for small water systems. Citing deteriorating conditions in many small systems, the lack of funds to provide adequate maintenance and repairs, the lack of comprehensive technical and management assistance, and high non-compliance with Public Service Commission and Division of Water standards, MACE recommends a Facilities Stabilization Program. Elements of the program would include: 1) a technical assessment of system operations by a team of experts from the Public Service Commission, the State Division of Water and funding agencies, 2) recommendations for facility stabilization formalized into a memorandum of agreement which might commit the state and other funding agencies to provide certain capital and assistance and require the system to make any agreed upon management or rate changes. 3) implementation of the agreed course of action. MACE estimates that such a program would cost $220,000 per year. Capital costs for system improvements would be derived from annual commitments sought from the state, ARC and the state.

MACE's report also recommended changes in several PSC policies. The report states that the disallowance of depreciation expense for property acquired through grants perpetuates systems' dependence on federal grants-unable to fund depreciation costs through operating revenues, systems neglect major repairs and are forced to return to the "gray market" for renovations and improvements.

"This policy appears to be an artifact applicable more to the regulation of private utilities, where depreciation of contributed property would benefit a private for-profit owner, than to a public system, which faces the same repair and replacement needs whether or not property is purchased with grants," the report stated.

In addition, the report recommends that water less expensive over 15 percent also be allowed in rate calculations. The report states that with an adequate to find and repair leaks, which are often the result of conditions endemic to the terrain and industrial development of the region, managers must depend on outside assistance or postpone repairs.

In another study of water several weeks ago, MACE found considerable contamination in private water supplies—mostly wells in the study area. It found 91 percent of those in Rockcastle were considered contaminated.

Many rural water systems need help

By: Ray McClure

Many public water systems in eastern Kentucky are in a deteriorating condition and have financial problems, but those in Rockcastle are making ends meet even though it's a never-ending task.

That was the summation this week of a report from the Mountain Association for Community Economic Development (MACED), a Berea based regional development group, that recently completed a study of water systems in 21 southeastern Kentucky counties, including two Rockcastle water systems.

The study found that 57 percent of Rockcastle counties are served by public water systems.

The report which surveyed the Northern Rockcastle Water District and the Western Rockcastle Water District in 1983 found the Western district "doing very well," with 98 percent of its income going for expenses and debt service, but with only a 2 percent net income, which is considered "not a lot of revenue."

The Northern Rockcastle district was placed in Group 2, or "systems that were able to meet their ordinary operation and maintenance expenses and service their debts. But most of the systems in that group were not able to contribute to capital replacement costs by recovering their depreciation expenses. They are just getting by."

Specifically, the Northern district had debt service and expenses totaling 104 percent, the 1983 report found. A percentage of between 70 and 80 percent is considered workable.

"This is only a 1983 cameo study," Ann Gabbard of MACED stressed, meaning both systems could have shown improvement during 1984 and 1985.

She said the "water loss rate" seems to be a big problem in the Northern district. The Western district had an 18 percent water loss rate, and the Northern district, 32 percent.

Both Rockcastle systems purchase water from the Mt. Vernon Water plant, as does Brodhead. Livingston has its own water system.

Ms. Gabbard said she did not have specific financial information on Livingston and Mt. Vernon other than general background information. "The study did not include municipalities," she said. Water is expected to be a high priority item in the year ahead for most counties in the 21-county study area.

At Mt. Vernon, the city plans a $200,000 water system improvement project and has hired Crawford & Crawford, Engineers, of Burnside, to oversee the project which includes a rebuilt filter, installing another chlorinator, rebuilding the filter table, flow controllers and restore plant to automatic control; construct a 766,000 gallon concrete groundwater storage tank; and install a 12-inch water line from City Hall to tank's site on Ky. 1249.

In the planning stage, but far from construction, is a possible $4 million, 26.5-mile water project in the Red Hill-Climax-Three Links-Pine Grove areas extending into Jackson County to serve 246 potential households.

Another water project mentioned recently, but also far from realization, is the construction of a dam on the Rockcastle River north of Lamero Bridge to furnish a stable water source for areas in Rockcastle, Jackson and Laurel counties, and estimated to cost about $100 million.

The 21-county study showed several factors that appear to be major problems with water systems generally.

It found a lack of trained operators, management and technical assistants; poor design and construction of systems; large and frequent water losses from broken lines and flooding; political disputes, and small size and low rates that fail to generate adequate income for debt service and expenses.

The study showed that in 1983-84, about 85 percent of the money for water system construction in Rockcastle came from federal agencies, including Farmers Home Administration and the Division of Housing and Urban Development.

The study also noted that despite predictions by experts that residents will not pay high rates for good water, people in the study area are already paying considerably more for water than the average rates in Kentucky.

The average charge for 5,000 gallons of water in the study area was $16.19 as compared to $14.95 for all rural Kentucky, and $12.75 for all rural Americans.

The Mt. Vernon city water rate for 5,000 gallons is $8.55. Non-city residents pay $10.95 for 5,000 gallons.

To offset some of the financial problems, MACED recommended the establishment of a state loan fund of $30 million to fund water system expansions and new construction.

"In order to meet the need created by declining federal funds and a growing demand for public water supplies in rural areas of the state, the report notes that an estimated $1.5 billion will be needed through the year 2000 just

Three cars in wreck on U.S. 25

An automobile accident on Christmas Eve resulted in a D.U.I. citation against a local man, but strangely enough, he was not placed under arrest and did not spend any time in jail. The three vehicle wreck occurred at 11:15 p.m. in the parking lot of the former Hilltop Market, approximately a half mile south of Mt. Vernon.

Johnny Mac Renner, 39, of Mt. Vernon, was charged with D.U.I. by State Trooper Gary Lane after he failed to negotiate a curve, and struck two parked vehicles—a 1978 Ford pickup owned by Steve McClure of Mt. Vernon, and a 1985 Chrysler LeBaron owned by Ricky Thompson of Brodhead.

No one was seriously injured in the accident.

No tax increase

State Rep. Danny Ford does not believe a tax increase is necessary to fund legislation expected to surface during the 60-day session of the General Assembly in January.

"I think there is money there if it is used adequately," Ford said.

He suggested that fellow legislators reduce spending in some areas of state government and reroute the savings to other, more needy areas.

Three breakout

A Mt. Vernon man, awaiting transfer to the state reformatory, and another man from Irvin escaped from the Pulaski County Jail Monday, but were recaptured about two hours later.

John Denney, 23, of Mt. Vernon, and David Wise, 24, of Irvin, were found by police hidden in the basement of a Main Street building and offered no resistance.

Police said the two overpowered Deputy Jailer Mark Grogan, took his keys and escaped. Grogan suffered minor injury to his knees.

Denney's sentence is 12 years for theft by unlawful taking and escape. Wise is serving a 22 year sentence for robbery and escape.

Market reopens

The Burley Tobacco Markets across the state are scheduled to reopen Monday, Jan. 6, and will hold sales until all the tobacco has been sold, which is usually around the middle of February, according to local ASCS director Harold Ballinger.

So far, this year's price per pound has averaged a $1.60 with about 12 percent of the crop going into the pool.

Ballinger said that about $1 million in farm income will be lost this year in Rockcastle County alone because of the price cut by the federal government.

Tournament

A note for bass fishermen—a bass fishing tournament with a purse of $100,000 has been scheduled for April 12 and 13 at General Burnside Island State Park.

The invitational tournament, which will be televised by ESPN cable network, will have $90,000 in cash prizes, and possibly, an $18,000 bass fishing boat will be awarded for the largest bass caught in the tournament.

Depot for sale

The Seaboard System Railroad says it will not need the Stanford Depot after Jan. 15 and plans to sell it.

The company plans to change the freight agent's duties. The current agent will be replaced with a mobile agent out of Lexington to serve areas in the district.

The final decision to sell the depot will depend on whether the Kentucky Railroad Commission approves the company's plan for a mobile agent.

The Stanford agent currently serves Stanford, Rowland, Crab Orchard, Brodhead, Junction City, Mt. Vernon, Parksville and Pine Hill.

Rail customers in those towns will be able to contact the railroad's mobile agent in Lexington via toll-free telephone number.

The company emphasizes it is not seeking to abandon any lines or cease to provide service to the towns mentioned.

Those wishing to comment on the proposed changes may contact the Kentucky Railroad Commission by calling (502) 564-4640 or writing the agency at 212 State Office Building, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

To be sworn in

Our new county officials and any old ones that are still around will be sworn in Saturday, Jan. 4, at 10 a.m. at the Rockcastle County Circuit Courtroom by Circuit Judge Dan Venters.

Guidance counselor files suit against school board, Parsons

By: Richard Anderkin

administrative positions for which she was qualified and certified.

Her suit alleges sex discrimination by Parsons and the board in their hiring practices.

Mrs. Hamm further states in her suit that she was not only discriminated against because of her sex, but that she was passed over in hiring because of her "political" opinions and affiliations.

The local counselor first took her case to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the Kentucky Commission on Human Rights.

On Sept. 30 of this year, Mrs. Hamm received notice from the Department of Justice (Attorney General's office) of her right to sue. The Department of Justice reviewed Mrs. Hamm's charge after the Commission on Human Rights declined to process the charge. Her attorney, Jennifer Coffman, of Lexington, filed Mrs. Hamm's suit Dec. 23. The case will be tried in London Federal Court before Federal Judge Eugene Siler.

In her suit Mrs. Hamm states that she is certified to be a teacher, supervisor or principal in the public schools of Kentucky, grades K through 12, and that on April 1, 1977 she applied to Superintendent Parsons for such positions as curriculum specialist, special education supervisor, and assistant elementary principal. Every school year thereafter she has applied for administrative positions in the school system, but has never been promoted to such a position.

She further states that on several occasions since April 1977, males with equal or less qualifications than hers were hired for administrative positions for which Mrs. Hamm was certified and qualified. Males were hired for the 1984-85 school year as principal and curriculum specialist, and most recently, on July 2, 1985, a male (Johnny Hale) was hired as principal at Mt. Vernon Elementary School for the 1985-86 school year.

Mrs. Hamm states further that Superintendent Parsons told her he would not name females as administrators, discouraged her from becoming certified as a principal, and declined to recommend her for the position as principal on July 2, 1985 in retaliation for her having filed a claim of sex discrimination against the board and him.

She states in her suit that she and her husband, Doug Hamm, have on several occasions publicly and privately opposed and criticized the manner in which the board and Parsons administered the Rockcastle County schools—all of these facts being tied in to why Mrs. Hamm was not placed in an administrative position.

In her suit Mrs. Hamm asks for "combined" damages of $300,000-$250,000 for mental pain and anguish and injury to her

Response to project was overwhelming...

Dear Editor:

This past September I started on my Eagle Service Project for Boy Scouts. I planned to start a "Clothing Bank" at Mt. Vernon Elementary for needy children. I asked for the support of the county by giving their used but good clothing to this project. I established donation boxes at Sears, Beauty in Wood Florist, Bullock's Shoe Repair and Cromer's Discount. I contacted the Christian Appalachian Project about sponsoring me and they did by printing up 1,000 flyers that were given out at stores.

When I started this project, I thought I might get as much as a couple hundred pieces of clothing. I can't begin to express my deepest appreciation for all who donated clothes and such. Over the past couple of months there were over 3,000 pieces of children's items donated. I not only established a "Clothing Bank" at Mt. Vernon but gave clothing to Brodhead, Livingston and Roundstone schools. I gave clothing to Family Life Center for their Abused Spouse and Children's program which went to a lot in Rockcastle County and gave the smaller pieces and such to an orphanage that had about 80 needy children.

This project would not have been the success it was without the good will and kind hearts of hundreds of people. I want to thank Sears, Bullock's Shoe Repair, Beauty in Wood Florists and Cromer's Discount; Christian Appalachian Project of Lancaster, J. C. Penny Store in Somerset; Saxon Shoes of Richmond, Va.; my dad, Robert, who picked up and delivered clothing; to Billy Blair (Eagle Scout) Troop 263 and Jason Vanzant, Ricki and Jon Palmer (Webelos) Pack 263 for helping me distribute the clothing; and to all who donated. I have so many people to thank and wish I could name you all. You are in the hearts of all that you helped with your donations.

I hope that another person or organization will start a community clothing bank for needy families as there is a great need and fulfilling project. People want to help when they know what is needed of them. Thank you again.

Support for scouting is appreciated...

Dear Editor:

Troop 263 and its committee members would like to take this time to express our gratitude for the continued support that has been shown to Boy Scouting in Rockcastle County. Without your continued support and dedication that you have shown to us we could not have functioned this past year.

This past year we have seen two young men, Chad Merritt and Billy Blair, obtain the highest award in Boy Scouting, the rank of Eagle Scout. At Klondike Derby, in which we competed with five counties, we won two trophies and a Blue Ribbon; to Earn '85 in Lexington with hundreds of packs and troops, we won a first place blue ribbon; we camped out at Summer Camp for a week at Camp McKee in Montgomery County; Dayton Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio; Brown County, Indiana, and Perryville Battlefield, Ohio. Our Scoutmaster and family attended the 75th Diamond Jubilee of Scouting at Camp A.P. Hill in Fryingpanburg, Va. We hiked the Iron Furnace Trail in Irwin trace, Perryville Dry Canteen Trail, Wright Memorial Trail in Dayton, Flags of the Nations Trail in Brown County, Ind., and the Buffalo Trail in Frankfort. Troop 263 worked on "Surveying" merit badge with Doug Mullins as instructor.

The new year of 1986 looks to be as busy and prosperous a year for us and we look forward to your continued support and dedication.

by: perlina anderkin

1985 was a busy, eventful year in our family. The birth of our first grandchild, Aaron Taylor Anderkin, born January 28, then the marriage of our first daughter on August 3, and finally, the arrival of our seventh child, and fifth daughter, on October 29 capped a year which passed so swiftly that the arrival of this new baby has literally left me stunned. I'm not prepared for another year to be gone but then, as anyone who knows me can tell you, I have seldom been "prepared" for anything.

Aaron and Allison are joys, and their childhood days will be savored more by my husband and I than perhaps we did those of our other children simply because as you mature (notice how adroitly I sidestepped the phrase "grow older") you realize how quickly their childhood goes by and how precious that time is.

It was rather amusing, after Allison was born, to remember that when we, both sets of grandparents, were awaiting the event in the waiting room at Pattie A. Clay, that I announced in smug tones that it was a good thing that I was no longer having babies because it was "just too much trouble" these days with having to go out of town to the doctor and leave town for the hospital and having to have a pediatrician, etc. So much for pronouncements of certainties.

Aaron or Allison were neither one particularly into Christmas this year but Travis, our 5-year-old, provided the child's delight that makes Christmas so enjoyable. Of course, we'll have many Christmases that will be enhanced by the presence of small children in the house.

But, enough of this personal reminiscing. The main reason I wanted to write this column is this

BRING IN THE NEW YEAR WITH A BLAZE OF LIGHT

How would you like to add a new twist to the regular New Year's festivities? Something that might be different and lots of fun yet meaningful and helpful? Something that could make you feel lighter and freer? Something that could add a little extra fire, warmth and light to your life. Something that could give you a natural high? Well, if you're game, here's how it works.

Spend a little time off to your own and think back over the past year and all the years before that. As your mind walks among the joys and hurts of the past, briefly jot down all the things which have triggered in your emotions like guilt, fear, anger and other painful feelings that seem in little ways to linger on. Don't dwell on the hurts; just recognize them and jot them down. If you're like most of us and you really put yourself into it, chances are your list may wind up being kind of long.

Now fold your list and put it away until the magic hour of midnight begins to approach. Then get some friends together and build a fire or light a candle in a big pan or a bucket. If you're at a party, perhaps all those involved could just gather around the fireplace.

About two or three minutes before midnight, everybody gets out their own lists, and without much talking, briefly reads their lists to themselves. Then all involved close their eyes, and with deep concentration try as hard as possible, in one sweeping motion to both FORGIVE AND FORGET. Midnight should be about a minute away, now-a-perfect time to burn up all those troubles.

With a sense of ceremony, set fire to all the lists, as you watch your problems shrivel and fall into ashes, feel the joy within you, now freed of all those hang-ups, start to fire to your whole body. Then release and share your joy. Laugh! Shout! Hug! Sing! Or

4-H INTERNATIONAL VISITOR MAKES HOLIDAY SPECIAL

By: Martha J. Wesley
County Extension Agent
For 4-H

A special visitor brought excitement to the Harold Ballinger family this holiday season. Frank Christophery, from Luxemburg, arrived at the Ballinger home Thursday, Dec. 19, and stayed with them until the Monday before Christmas.

The Ballingers first met Frank in July of '83 when he visited the United States for the first time through the International 4-H Youth Exchange (IFYE) program. Frank was one of five Luxemburg youth who stayed in our county for four weeks. Since that time, he has been in close contact with the Ballinger family, exchanging letters, telephone calls and gifts.

Veterans Man

The Veterans Association man will be here on Jan. 9 from 9 to 3, according to Tom Welch.

Volunteer Community Club

The Volunteer Community Club will hold its regular meeting Friday, Jan. 3, at 6:30 p.m.

There will be a pot luck meal, and special, singing by Alan and Jeanne Druen and May Price from Somerset.

Everyone is invited to attend whatever! Happy New Year!

As the days go by, if one of those things on your list starts to haunt you again, remember that it's gone, that you let it go, you've burned it up. It no longer has any substance. It simply can't hold you down the way it did before. For you have both forgiven and forgotten. You are now surrounded by the protecting fragrance of freedom.

Why not think about adding a new twist to your New Year's celebration. Put a little extra warmth and light in the world. Set fire to some of those old grudges, worries and hang-ups that weigh so heavily upon us. Do some mental house cleaning. Gather up all that unwanted rubbish and let go of it in the blaze of light.

While traveling with IFYE group in 1983, Frank was responsible for himself and the group. His experiences provided a good background for making his second trip to the United States alone.

After flying into the Washington International Airport, Frank spent one night at the National 4-H Center where he knew friends from previous exchanges. The following day he rented a car and headed to Mt. Vernon.

As Frank arrived at the Ballinger home, he found Harold said that Frank slammed on the brakes, jumped out of the car, and ran to give him a hug.

One special activity that Frank was able to do during his visit was to attend a UK Wildcats basketball game with James Ballinger. Being a basketball player for Luxemburg's national team, and a UK basketball fan, Frank was excited for this opportunity, as he expressed after the game.

"Oh, something else to see!" After watching the Wildcats play on television the following night, Frank said that being at the game was more exciting because you get caught up in the spirit of the crowd. He also commented that this was the most people he had ever seen at a basketball game.

Frank is just one of the family according to Harold. On Sunday night, they opened Christmas gifts. Frank had brought presents from Luxemburg for all the family members, and they had presents for him.

After leaving the Ballinger's on Monday, Frank planned to stop by and see two Letcher County 4-H'ers he had met at camp and then go to Virginia to visit the family of an exchange youth he had hosted in Luxemburg.

His second trip to the United States is not all pleasure. After the first of the year he will be attending school in Los Angeles, Calif. to obtain Federal Aviation (FAA) certification. For the past two years, he has been working as an aircraft mechanic for Lux Air at Luxemburg National Airlines. In order to obtain his FAA certification, Frank will attend classes in Los Angeles for 14 months. The Ballingers hope to be able to visit him in California during this time.

News from Other Luxemburg IFYE's

Vic Goldert, who stayed with the Stewart Shackelford family, is going to school in Luxemburg City, living at home, and preparing to take over the family feed mill.

Annick Gillen, who stayed with the John Witt and Tony Hopkins families, is just returning to Luxemburg after a six month exchange to Missouri and California. She will be returning to work as a secretary for a trucking company.

Georgia Boura, who stayed with the Danny McKinney family has been changing career goals from a school teacher, to hotel management, and now another field which Frank was unsure of. Diane Sichenauer, who stayed with the Keith Smith and Roland Mullins families, is attending a university in France.
