LAST 60 DAYS CRUCIAL TO WEAK CALF CONTROL

The last 60 days of pregnancy are crucial to preventing weak calf syndrome.

Roy Burris, Extension animal scientist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said farmers must be certain their cows are getting enough protein during the final two months of pregnancy.

Researchers studying weak calf syndrome have found that herds receiving enough protein during the last 60 days of pregnancy had no problems with weak calf syndrome. As the name suggests, calves displaying the syndrome are weak at birth, often too weak to stand and nurse, and this can result in their death. The syndrome is much greater in Idaho than it is in Kentucky, farmers need to be aware that feeding low quality forages may lead to weak calf syndrome.

When protein intake was two pounds or more per day, herds had no problems with weak calf syndrome. But in herds in which intake was only 1.8 pounds per day, 3.4 percent of the calves born displayed symptoms of the syndrome. At a protein intake of 1.21 pounds per day the incidence of weak calf syndrome was 9.8 percent. It seems clear that protein intake is associated with the syndrome.

Farmers should know the protein content of their feed, how much their pregnant cows are receiving, and be prepared to provide a supplement if it is needed. One caution regarding supplements is that producers should be sure that any protein supplement they feed to their cows is made up of high quality protein. Some supplements have high levels of non-protein nitrogen that can be utilized by the cow only if other high quality feeds with adequate energy are used with them.

For more about beef cattle nutrition and management, be sure to attend the Beef Cattle Short Course, or call the Rockcastle County Extension Office.

4-H News

For 4-H

4-H PROJECT RECORDS

An important and rewarding learning experience for 4-H members is keeping records of their 4-H project and activity work. The reason most often associated with record keeping is that records are used to measure the accomplishments of the 4-H member and to award them accordingly.

The awards offered for record keeping include recognizing a champion in each project of the county level in three age categories: junior, junior high and senior. These champions then prepare their records for area judging.

A new area recognition trip has been initiated for all 4-Hers entering records in area judging. Last year 4-Hers were awarded a trip to Lexington to see the Blue White bolognae. This year's trip will be on a Saturday to visit the Kentucky Horse Park or the Knoxville Zoo.

In addition to the area recognition trip 4-Hers receive county and area ribbons, points toward being recognized as outstanding 4-Hers at their school, points toward their club receiving the outstanding club award, and an invitation to the county 4-H recognition banquet where they are presented a project pin.

Junior 4-H members (age 14-19) who receive champion at area judging may submit their records to state judging. As a state winner, the senior 4-Her receives a free trip to Chicago to National 4-H Congress and their record entered in national competition where they may win $1,000 college scholarships. A champion senior record is usually one which a young 4-Her started in the 4th or 5th grade and kept adding learning experiences each year in the same project.

Determining winners of project awards is only one reason for record keeping. By keeping a record, 4-Hers can see what they have accomplished and learned in a certain period of time. If it is a project which involves the production and sale of a product, such as with the dairy project, the 4-Her can determine expenses and income and then determine what the profit was on the project.

We all have to keep financial records even if it is the minimum amount required when you balance your checkbook or to file our income taxes. 4-H record keeping helps 4-Hers learn to keep accurate records, thus helping them to prepare for the role as an adult record keeper.

In order for a 4-H member to do a good job of record keeping, the interests of 4-H leaders and parents are very important. The following tips will help leaders and parents assist 4-Hers with records.

Records should be kept simple and accurate.

Project record forms come with each project book. If 4-Hers complete more than one unit of a project in a club year, units can be combined to build a stronger record. A stronger record is built when a 4-Her carries the same project each year and adds new learning experiences every year. Records should be checked and updated throughout the club year, making a continuous record. It's easier to record things close to the time they happen.

Activities such as demonstrations, speeches, and tours related to a project add to its quality. (An example of a tour in the computer project might be to go to a local bank and ask them to show how their computer is used or to go to a computer sales store.) Be specific when explaining what was learned in the project. Avoid generalizations such as "I learned a lot about..."

Most project records for the 1985-86 club year will be due May 15. The exceptions are animal or horticulture projects which require work over the summer. These will be due in August.

Council talks telephones --

By: Ray McClure

A resolution opposing action by Continental Telephone Co. to close and relocate the London Toll Center to North Carolina was approved by the Mt. Vernon City Council at a meeting last Thursday.

The resolution was approved at the request of the London City Council which is actively opposing the move that would relocate the center, bring about job transfers, and reduce working hours and employees at the London center.

The London Council is asking councils in all areas in eastern Kentucky now served by Continental to oppose the move.

In its request, the London council said it had been advised that the closing of the toll center would eliminate employment for about 52 and a loss of revenue to Laurel County of about $900,000 annually.

Such changes would be detrimental to our community if the such changes do occur," the council stated.

In recent months, the company changed its billing and collection office to Merrifield, Va. and changed branch offices in various towns in the area.

The council at London did not indicate to what area toll calls will be relayed from the Kentucky area. The change will not affect installation and repair service in the counties.

Also at the meeting, the council accepted a federal/state grant of $1,443,305 to help the city in expansion and renovation of the city sewer plant.

The acceptance resolution goes to the state where no further problems are anticipated.

Mayor Roland Mullins said Titus Construction Co. of Dayton, Ohio expects to begin work at the plant by Mar. 15.

The city has $220,000 on hand to share in the $1,621,745 project. The city will need an additional $261,102 to complete its share, probably to be raised through an increase in sewer rates. To date, no decision has been made on the amount of the rate increase or when they will become effective.

The council instructed City Atty. Carl Clontz to draw up an ordinance making property owners in Mt. Vernon responsible for cleaning sidewalks of snow and trash in front of their property with penalties for those who fail to comply.

The council also approved Jeff Abney as a parttime city police officer. Abney is a former deputy jailer.

Fickle weather

On Tuesday someone was heard humming "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," and with reason.

The temperature was going to reach 75 degrees before it topped out on the Bank of Mt. Vernon temperature and time gauge. Everyone agreed, it was warm for Feb. 18.

However, the official temperature Tuesday recorded at Cox Funeral Home was 70 degrees. Monday it had reached a balmy 60 degrees.

But how easy it is to forget February temperatures. For those who do not remember, it was a warm 72 degrees on Feb. 24 last year.

During the last few days there has been an ample supply of snow. There has been a total of 14 inches to be exact, more or less depending on where it was measured. There was 2 1/2 inches on the 10th, 5 1/2 inches on the 11th, one inch on the 14th, and 5 inches on the 15th.

Proving the point, three boys (top photo) are shown shoveling snow from a driveway in Mt. Vernon on Saturday morning. The bottom picture shows the temperature on Tuesday afternoon.

After a low of 38 degrees on Sunday morning, the warm breezes from the south really took over and combined with about an inch of rain on Saturday night. Sunday and Monday, the snow made a hasty retreat.

Schools were back in session Monday after several snow days. Most county roads soon became passable. Before Monday was over, residents were thinking about lawn mowers, gardening, sunbathing, and most of all, getting the car washed.

BANK OF MT. VERNON

A Job Well Done

Several people called it to our attention, and we noticed it ourselves. We're talking about the job the State Highway Dept., under the direction of county foreman John Brown, did in keeping our state roads in the county in excellent condition during our hazardous weather.

Travelers to surrounding counties, both north and south, during that time, reported that the condition of our interstate was far superior.

Mr. Brown said Tuesday that the Collins' administration had appropriated enough money so there was plenty of salt this year and that a plan had been formulated by the state detailing how the state roads should be cleared and he couldn't understand why other counties should be having problems. "It's a hard job but you just have to stay on top of it—like fighting a fire," Brown said.

Anyway, be that as it may, we appreciate the extra effort put forth by our local department and wanted to publicly say so.

A 12-member Parks and Recreation Council to perpetuate and promote the city's parks and recreation program was established and by-laws presented to the Mt. Vernon City Council last Thursday.

The purpose of the council is to keep the public and city council informed of services offered at the parks and of needs of the parks and recreation program.

The council will periodically review the programs and report to Mayor Roland Mullins and the council, as well as make recommendations.

Among activities of the council will be the development and utilization of parks and recreation areas, program planning and implementation, soliciting funds for programs, and evaluation of programs.

The current programs include Little League T-ball, children's summer activities, softball at Lake Livville park, upkeep of Triangle Park and the small park at Spout Spring.

Terms of members will be one, two or three years, whichever is finally decided. Members will not receive pay except reimbursement of funds expended in conducting business of the council.

Meetings of the council will be held on Thursday prior to the second Monday of each month, with an annual meeting in March.

Councilmen will submit names of city residents who could be chosen to serve on the council.

By-laws for a city Police Commission will also be presented to the city council for study and later action.

The Police Commission has been operating for several months and approval of by-laws will be a formality.

The commission will also be a 12-member group and terms will be one, two or three years.

depending on the decision of the council.

Meetings of the commission will be held at city hall on the Friday prior to the second Monday of each month, with an annual meeting in April.

Like the Parks and Recreation Council, the police commissioners will receive no pay.

The police commission currently has seven members. They are Carl Baker, Robert Robinson, Jess Tom Pife, Ralph Signora, Walter Shepherd, Clyde Barnett and Paul Blevis. Tom Welch, who was chairman of the commission, withdrew after he was elected to the city council. Five more members will have to be chosen by the council if the by-laws are approved as presented.

According to the by-laws, commissioners will consider problems relating to traffic control, drunk driving, alcohol and drug use and trafficking and property protection.

How to meet tourists, theme of local hospitality seminar

How to meet tourists and put on a happy face is the theme of a hospitality seminar titled "Hospitality Training-86" to be held from 10 a. m. to noon Mar. 11 at the community room of the Bank of Mt. Vernon.

Businesses and other groups are invited to send representative and/or employees to the seminar, especially those who meet the public, according to Floyd Owens of the Mt. Vernon Local Development Corp.

Mr. Carolyn J. Isaacs, tourism education administrator with the Department of Travel Development, Frankfort, will be the principal speaker from 10 to 11 a. m. Following, Mrs. Ann Henderson will discuss Rentfro Valley and plans for the summer. Floyd Owens will explain a Rockcastle County fact sheet that will be made available and which enumerates information on the county, including points of interest and business locations. A representative from the Family Life Center may take part in the program.

Danny McKinney of the Bank of Mt. Vernon and Dr. John Parsons of the Rockcastle County Chamber of Commerce will provide lunch for those who attend.

The hospitality seminars cover everything that is vital to a healthy tourism industry.

"To make the entire community more proficient in 'selling' and serving tourists.

"To foster a positive, enthusiastic and professional attitude among individuals employed in the Hospitality/Tourism industry at all job levels.

"To encourage local citizens, community leaders, business employers and employees to know the location and give accurate directions to hotels, restaurants, hospitals, churches, stores, industries, parks, historical sites, major roads, etc.

"To understand what the tourism industry means to the local community, and the various business enterprises.

"To develop an understanding of travelers, what motivates them, what their needs and desires are.

"To make service employees aware of the benefits derived from being courteous to our guests.

"To develop an appreciation of tourist attractions and pride in the community.

"To impress upon front-line employees the importance of good customer service as it affects the image of their business community and Kentucky.

"To develop better communications between tourists and employees, between business owner and employees; better ways of road signing and creating publicity for your particular area.

Dislocated workers project proving to be good news

When Darry Hatfield, 21, of Bronston was laid off from his manufacturing job last year, things looked bad.

The unemployment rate in southeastern Kentucky is high. Jobs of any kind are hard to find, and good jobs even more so.

"I went to the unemployment office looking for work," Hatfield said. "I saw this poster for the Dislocated Workers Assistance Project. I asked about it, and they introduced me to Cindy."

Cynthia J. Miller is the training assistant for ERU's Dislocated Workers Assistance Project in Somerset. She has worked on the project for most of its year in existence.

"Darry was an unusual case in one sense. He didn't have to go through the entire program," she said. "He wanted to go to work for Cumberland Wood and Chair, and was hired for on-the-job training."

The entire program for participants not as lucky as Hatfield includes job and resume counseling, vocational counseling and tuition support for vocational school, on-the-job training, and help in locating job interviews.

Funded by the Kentucky Department for Employment Services and the U. S. Department of Labor, the project has now served more than 409 workers in 16 Kentucky counties, including Adair, Casey, Clay, Clinton, Cumberland, Green, Jackson, Knox, Laurel, McCreary, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Russell, Taylor, Wayne and Whitley.

Cheryl Kerby of Mt. Vernon and Revue Frederick, of Brodhead, were more traditional clients of the program. In December they took part in a vocational workshop run by Ms. Miller.

"I think the workshops have been a big help in job searching," Ms. Kerby said. "For example, we learned the best way to dress when you go for a job interview, and how to put together a resume, and all about it."

Both she and Ms. Frederick plan to attend the Eastern School of Hair Design this semester.

"Right now I'm just deciding what I want to do," Ms. Kerby said.

The women will attend an 11 1/2 month cosmetology course

Dear Editor:

I would like to express my opinion on the person or persons that dropped off two little pups in Orlando on Maple Grove Ridge.

One has already been shot and killed by a heartless person; the other one is almost starved to death. I think there should be a law against cruelty to animals, and I think the law should check these things out and find out the owner of these abandoned animals and tell their owner. I think they may run into a surprise, for I believe anyone who could be that cruel could very well be a criminal. Maybe if they would work on this thing they could clean up the county of some of the crimes that are taking place.

I believe every citizen should have one good dog and take care of it.

Fifth District Congressman Harold Rogers is one of four U. S. Representatives to be invited on a trade mission to Asia this month, working to bring new industry to America and to remove trade barriers in Asia.

The group will also include some 10 representatives of American tobacco, coal and other companies, who are trying to increase their sales overseas. The group will leave Washington on Feb. 10 and return on Feb. 18. The trip is being underwritten by private industry and without cost to the government.

AUTO RECORDKEEPING (One More Time)

New rules go into effect January 1, 1986, concerning the recordkeeping required for the business use of automobiles, computers, airplanes, boats, etc. All the publicity about the easing of the rules should not lead you to think that you do not have to keep records. The fact is that the new rules are very much like the 1984 Tax Act rules, with the exception that your recordkeeping no longer has to be done "contemporaneously," that is, as the usage occurs.

You are still required to keep "adequate records" or "sufficient evidence" to substantiate any deductions or credits that you take for the business use of equipment. For automobiles, you must keep a record of the date, the distance, the destination, and the business purpose of each trip. Though daily recordkeeping is no longer necessary, the law makes it clear that logbook entries for or near the time of the trip will still be the best documentation should there be any challenge to your deductions. Receipts, cancelled checks and other documentary evidence may also be used to support deductions.

The "sampling method" can be used in some circumstances. You keep thorough records for a portion of the year and demonstrate that this portion of the year accurately reflects the usage during the rest of the year.

Where employers provide a vehicle to employees for business, no logs have to be maintained if certain conditions are met. Check with your accountant for details.

If you use a vehicle or other listed equipment in your business, be sure you understand the recordkeeping requirements in your particular situation. Do what is necessary to maintain adequate records throughout the year. A tax approach could cause you to lose deductions to which you are rightfully entitled.

Call us, we understand business and financial concerns.

Inherited Religion

Should a person just accept the religion of his parents as his own religion? Some people sing: "Give me that old time religion - it was good enough for mother, so it's good enough for me." Others say that one ought to stay with the religion in which he was raised, and no one should try to change him.

Possibly - every religious person has thought about this question to some extent. Perhaps you have become dissatisfied with denominationalism and modernism in religion and have considered leaving them. You are not in a class by yourself if you are thinking about leaving your parents' religion.

Suppose one's parents were idol-worshippers, heathens, or even atheists. Should the children of these people just accept their parents' religion without changing? I believe you would agree that to do so would be folly. But how can we be sure that our parents' religion is acceptable to God and thus safe (or unsafe) for us to follow? The fact is, there is a standard we must use to determine whether our parents are correct before we accept their views. Isn't that right? Flesh and blood are not infallible!

Consider the people who were faithful to God in the first century. Did you ever stop to think that every one of them had to leave the religion of his parents? Paul, for example, had been raised "in the Jews' religion" (Gal. 1:13-14), but he had to be converted to please God. Was he wrong in changing?

The Bible says, "we ought to obey God rather than men"

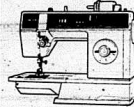

By: Austin Mobley, Minister
Providence church of Christ

(Acts 5:29). No doubt we procrastinate in making a religious commitment because it is the most important decision of our lives. Yet a love for God must be greater, stronger, and fuller than a love for our own flesh and blood. Jesus said, "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me" (Matt. 10:37). It is wonderful if our parents are right religiously, but the fact is that the BIBLE is the only infallible religious guide (2 Tim. 3:16-17). If we wish to please God, we must compare everything we have been taught with the Bible. If what we have been taught agrees with the Bible, we should be glad. On the other hand, if what our parents taught us is in conflict with the scriptures, however honest and sincere they may be, then let us follow the Bible and not our parents. It may also be possible to teach our parents the truth wherein they can be fellow-partakers of salvation.

If you are not a member of the Lord's church - the one that Jesus built (Matt. 16:18) - the one you can read about in the Bible (Rom. 16:16), then we plead with you to become one. Jesus said, "...every path, which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up." (Matt. 15:13).

"WORKERS PROJECT"
From Front)

...istence of a grant funded through the program. We have a large number of people, but not everyone qualifies as a dislocated worker under the grant." Ms. Miller said. In general terms, a dislocated worker is one who has been terminated, laid off from a job and has exhausted his or her entitlement to unemployment compensation and is unlikely to return to the previous industry of occupation.

Dr. Bruce I. Wolford of the ECU Department of Corrections and the director of the dislocated worker project said many of the manufacturing jobs lost in the export's service areas are in declining industries. These jobs are not likely to reappear.

"Many people in that district lost jobs in the textile industry," Wolford said. "It's a sad competition for jobs in that industry, and those jobs have largely evaporated," he said.

"We want to help move some of these workers into healthy industries."

"One company that has been active in hiring workers under the program is Cumberland Wood & Chair Co. of Somerset."

Wayne Pierce, director of personnel for Cumberland Wood & Chair, explained why.

"The program has worked well for us," he said. "The people we have hired under the program have been serious about their work and have made good employees. We always do background work on all of our employees, but Cudi Miller probably gives us more about these people than we would normally get in an interview."

Kenneth Gamble, 36, of Eubank road, noted the company through the dislocated workers project.

"The courses told me about interests and made me feel better about it," he said.

Gamble said he hopes his job at the furniture factory.

"I get to do a little bit of everything. I enjoy the assembly area. I guess, but we treat around to work where there's good us on a given shift. That's okay too, because you get to do different things."

Another worker at Cumberland Wood & Chair, Jessie Carter, 40, of Seneca Hill, said he took part in the program for about two months before he was placed in on-the-job training.

"There were no hassles," Carter said. "We worked on my resume and some things like that, and I got the job."

'86 Flu

But before it's finished, you feel you're through.

Textbook Display

Runny noses and sore throats, combined with a little fever, have been the ingredients that have made up this flu season. John Holbrook has... at last... report, escaped. But he has a few words for that annual malady:

You've had the flu I understand. Is it bad for woman and/or man?

I asked this question of a lot of folks.

They gave me this answer without a joke.

I'll give you the evidence, and you decide. Whether you're against me or on my side.

One thing about the flu of '86. It shure do make you awful sick.

You cough, you sneeze, you shure do sneeze.

And that's just one symptom of this old flu.

Your eyes get red, and your face will sweat.

But you're not finished with this flu yet.

Your body aches, and that's no lie. You get so weak, you want to die.

Your nose will run, your face will puff.

All your food will taste like snuff.

This wouldn't be so bad for a day or two:

It really may last a month or more. So when it does, you sure are sore.

You're tired of working, but you can't quit.

You haven't paid all your debts yet.

I believe you, folks, that this is true. So I have only one thing to say to you.

If you get close, I'll say show. Cause I don't want the '86 flu.

The following textbooks will be on display in each school on Friday, Feb. 21, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The public is invited to each school to preview and make comments pertaining to the upcoming Adoptive Group. ELECTRIC SPACE HEATER CAN BE SAFETY HAZARD

Most free-standing electric heaters are meant for short-time or emergency heating chores. They are usually not designed for constant use.

Safest electric space heaters to use have a built-in fan and thermostat control that turns the heater off when the room is warm, then turns it back on when the room starts to get chilly. They also have an automatic turn-off in case they get knocked over.

Some new heaters have a built-in safety mechanism that turns them off before they can become overheated.

Giving mere tips on safe use of electric space heaters, they need a direct line to the fuse box. This means you should plug them directly into a convenience wall outlet. NEVER use an ordinary lightweight extension cord. If your situation demands that you use an extension cord, get a heavy-duty cord for household appliances or power tool use.

Put your electric space heater a safe 3- to 4-foot distance from curtains and other burnables and keep it well out of traffic lanes. Use it with great care in bathroom or kitchen because of the danger of shock or electrocution. Place it out of reach from the bathtub or sink, caution everyone to be sure hands are dry before turning it on or off. Turn heater off when small children are using the bathroom.

Another good safety measure would be to connect your electric space heater to a special heavy-duty timing device that will allow it to run no longer than an hour at a time. You'll have to remember to turn it back on, but this way it won't get left unattended and forgotten.

If you find that the floor under your space heater becomes dangerously hot, you'll be wise to set it on a small asbestos stoveboard.

Senior forward Tony Harrison, No. 32, and senior Scott Parrett both had good games against Laurel Co. Monday night. Harrison put in 6 points, all tough inside shots, and Parrett was high point man in the game with 21 - both from inside and outside. The Rockets lost 73-59 after making a run at the Cardinals early in the 3rd quarter to cut a 15-point deficit to 7. However, Laurel's bigger size and a tremendous shooting percentage proved to be too much for the Rockets to overcome.

Red Man mountain division opener is at Dale Hollow

Operation Bass, Inc. will bring their "working man's" bass tournament to Dale Hollow Lake Sunday, March 9, the opening tournament of the Mountain division.

It's been two years since the last Red Man tournament was held on Dale Hollow, but tournament director Gale Stearns remembers the lake for producing a large catch.

"This is one of the most productive smallmouth bass lakes in the country," said Stearns.

According to Stearns, fishermen using a pig and jig off points and drop-offs will probably be most successful.

At the 1983 Dale Hollow tournament, Bill Wilborn of Harrodsburg took first place with a catch of 18 pounds. John Morris took big bass honors with a 7 pound 4 ounce bass. Two hundred and forty bass were caught in the 1983 event.

Entry deadline for the Dale Hollow tournament is Feb. 26. There will be five other Red Man qualifying tournaments in the Mountain division. Dates, locations and entry deadlines are as follows: April 6 on Cumberland (March 26); May 4 on Cherokee (April 23); June 8 on Barren (May 28); July 20 on Ft. Loudoun (July 9, Sept. 14 on Cumberland (Sept. 3).

The top 24 fishermen after the six events will advance to one of four regional classics where they will square-off with the top 96 fishermen from the Michigan, Northeastern, Buckeye and Bulldog divisions. The regional will be held on Patoka Lake in Indiana, Oct. 9-12.

There the anglers will compete for a first place prize of a Chevrolet truck and a fully equipped Ranger boat, along with an additional $15,000 in cash.

The top ten from this regional move on to the Red Man All-American at Lake Havasu, Ariz. No. 9-16 to battle for the $100,000 first place paycheck.

1986 Operation Bass sponsors include Red Man chewing tobacco; Ranger Boats, Chevrolet trucks, DuPont Stren line, Evinrude Outboards, GNB, Inc. Fenwick rods and tackle boxes, Minn Kota trolling motors, Ryobi reels, Penn-zoil outboard lubricant and Tech-sonic (Humminbird electronics and Mavis' S. Bait).
