Coal counties lag behind in quality of life, study shows

There have been improvements, but the quality of life in Kentucky's coal counties lags behind the rest of the nation over the last 25 years, despite higher income.

Such is the conclusion of six counties released this week by the Mountain Association for Economic Development (MACED), a Berea based research group.

The report calls for public policy makers to make coal field development the yardstick for policy toward the coal industry.

The report cites significant social change in the region and an increased social responsibility by companies as positive signs that there are new opportunities for coal to have a beneficial effect on the area.

The report said government policies must be changed to foster economic development rather than coal production and larger markets.

Present policies helped increase per-capita income in Kentucky's coal counties by 164 percent from 1960 to 1980, compared with a 93 percent increase in manufacturing counties, but coal counties did not translate their high income growth into greater than average gains in the quality of life. MACED said in a summary released last week for publication today.

A recent report by the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition shows 1984 coal production in Rockcastle at 256,963 tons.

The producers and amount produced are: Ikerd-Bandy, 228,702 tons or 89 percent; East Fork Enterprises, 9,247 tons, 3.60 percent; Black Fire Coal, 7,475 tons, 2.91 percent; Cornett and Walden Coal, 6,037 tons, or 2.35 percent; K.W.C. Partnership, 3,000 tons, or 1.17 percent; Tommy Philbeck Coal, 2,000 tons, .8 percent; and Titan Coals, 500 tons, .19 percent.

Tom Duncan, the president of the Kentucky Coal Association, said he was skeptical that more government involvement, especially federal, would improve life in the coalfields.

Noting the present depressed state of the coal industry, he said, "They (MACED) may be right, but the government

Briefly . . .

Named to committee

Mrs. William D. (Mary) Gregory has been appointed to the Advisory Committee of the Kentucky Authority for Educational Television (KET), according to an announcement by O. Leonard Press, executive director. The committee is composed of representative citizens from throughout the state. Her term is for four years.

Meeting times

For the record, it will be meeting time for many groups during the coming week. Beginning Saturday, the Renfro Valley Bardance opens for the season; Monday night is the Brodhead City Council; Tuesday is the Rockcastle Fiscal Court, and the following Monday is the Mt. Vernon City Council.

Hit and run

A hit-and-run driver is on the loose following an incident on U.S. 25 north of Mt. Vernon last Friday morning.

Jean Towery of Rt. 3, Mt. Vernon, had pulled onto the roadway from Reppert's Service Station when her vehicle was struck from behind by another car, which then proceeded on. Mrs. Towery was not injured, although her car reportedly received extensive damage to the rear end.

State Trooper Jack Lawless is conducting the investigation.

Break-in

Pizza Hut in Mt. Vernon was broken into sometime last Saturday night/early Sunday morning. Entry was gained by breaking out a small double window next to their main entrance.

About $40 in change was taken and a couple of vending machines were broken into.

Three Rockcastle residents were injured, at least one seriously, Wednesday morning in a two car collision on the Old Brodhead Road. Mrs. Bernice Beasley and her daughter were apparently traveling east when they collided with a car driven by Mr. Connie Graham of Mt. Vernon. Mrs. Beasley reportedly received a compound fracture of the leg. Complete details of the accident were not available at press time.

Candidates file for court seat

Two candidates have filed nominating petitions to seek a seat on the Third Supreme Court District of which Rockcastle County is a part.

They are seeking to replace J. Calvin Aker who will not be a candidate.

Candidates are Attorney Norma Adams, of Somerset, and Attorney Charles R. Luker of London.

Norma Adams

Mrs. Adams, 54, was admitted to practice in Kentucky in 1953 after graduating from the University of Kentucky Law School. She has lived in Somerset since 1954 and has been actively involved in the private practice of law for most of those years.

She served as Somerset City Attorney during the years of 1970 and 1971. She has been Note

Editor of the Kentucky Law Journal, President of the University of Kentucky Law Alumni Association and the Pulaski County Bar Association, a member of the Unauthorized Practice Committee and the Committee on Ethics of the Kentucky State Bar Association, and a member of the Advisory Boards of the Somerset Community College and Humana Lake Cumberland. She now serves as a Director of Leadership Kentucky.

Mrs. Adams is married to Charles C. Adams, a Somerset attorney, with whom she is a partner in the firm of Adams & Adams. They have four children: Ann Clay Adams, 28, director of Student Ministries for the Iowa Commission on Ministry in Higher Education, Ames, Iowa; Charles C. Adams, Jr., 26, a senior at the University of Louisville, College of Law; Jane Adams Stephens, 25, an attorney practicing with Adams & Adams; and John B. Adams, 19, a sophomore at Washington & Lee University.

Charles R. Luker

Charles R. Luker, judge of the 27th Judicial Circuit for Laurel and Knox counties, today announced his candidacy for the Kentucky Supreme Court.

Luker said he will campaign for the Third Supreme Court District seat vacated by J. Calvin Aker of Somerset, who will resign on March 1 to enter private law practice.

"This represents an opportunity to serve the people of this area in a different judicial capacity," Luker said.

The 57-year-old judge is currently in the third year of an eight-year term on the Circuit

Lack of evidence results in dismissal for Deborde on drunk-in-public charge

A "drunk in a public place" charge against David Deborde was dismissed Tuesday by District Court Judge William Cain because of a lack of evidence and upon payment by Deborde of court costs of $47.50.

Deborde was arrested Aug. 10, 1985 at the Brodhead Fairgrounds during the Brodhead Fair by Brodhead Policeman Bill Lawrence.

Deborde told the court he was not guilty of the drunk charge, but was on medication at the time of his arrest. He also asked the judge if the dismissal and court costs indicated he was guilty and was told "no" by Judge Cain. Deborde did not have an attorney.

Arrested at the same time with Deborde was Gary Shepherd on the same "drunk in a public place" charge. Shepherd's appearance in District Court is now set for April 1 at which time a jury trial date will be scheduled. His attorney is Roger M. Oliver of Berea.

Shepherd also has a civil suit filed in Rockcastle Circuit Court charging the arrest at the fairgrounds was "wrongfully, unlawfully and without probable cause." Shepherd is asking "in excess" of $2,500.

On Feb. 6, Brodhead City Attorney Jerry Cox filed a motion to dismiss the Shepherd suit on grounds it was prematurely filed, meaning the suit was filed before the criminal case (drunk in a public place) was decided in District Court.

Judge Daniel Venters is expected to rule on the dismissal motion, probably Friday.

The dismissal of the Deborde case could have a bearing on the Shepherd suit, since Deborde is likely to be a witness for Shepherd.

The Brodhead City Council is also reportedly awaiting the outcome of the "drunk" charge against Shepherd and Deborde before discussing the situation further with Policeman Lawrence.

Scott Wolfe gets ag award

Scott Wolfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Wolfe, Jr. of Wabash received one of 10 regional awards in the Future Farmers of America Contest last Saturday in Louisville at the 48th Farm Awards Luncheon sponsored by The Courier-Journal and the Louisville Times.

Wolfe was recognized before a group of 250 civic, business and governmental leaders from throughout Kentucky and Southern Indiana.

He received a $100 U.S. Savings Bond and a certificate of award in ceremonies at the Seebach Hotel presided over by Barry Bingham, Sr. and Barry Bingham, Jr., chairman of the board and editor and publisher, respectively, of the newspapers.

Scott's farming program started when he was six years old when his father gave him his first cow. Now, at age 17, he owns 30 head of cattle and half interest in a 20-acre field.

He says one of the first things he learned in FFA was to set goals and not give up until those goals are met. Without goals, Scott doesn't think any person can survive the tough farming life of today.

He maintains a 70-acre pasture project, consisting of Timothy fescue and clover. Scott is president of his FFA chapter at Rockcastle County High School and has won awards for tractor driving, beef proficiency and

Tests indicate Livingston water can be easily contaminated

David Leo and water tester.

By: Ray McClure

Past speculation that a leaking landfill located in the Pine Hill area could contaminate Livingston's city water supply got a scientific boost this week.

David Leo, a geology graduate student at Eastern Kentucky University, said green dye placed at three locations within the Roundstone Creek drainage pattern showed water entering the underground flow routes upstream appeared in Livingston within 24 hours.

He also noted anything running into Roundstone Creek in the northern area of the county could affect downstream water dramatically.

His survey results, which are expected to be completed by June, will be drawn on a map for use as Livingston city residents or others "see fit."

The findings were not unexpected. Some residents had claimed all along that Livingston was within the Roundstone Creek drainage pattern and water had no other place to drain. The survey apparently bore out the point, one resident concluded.

Other residents had agreed on the drainage pattern theory, but had indicated leakage from a well constructed landfill would be unlikely.

Incidentally, Mayor Billy Medley, one of those opposed to a landfill at Pine Hill, had welcomed the survey, however, Leo had contacted the city after he saw press reports on the controversy over the landfill. The city did not contact him.

"It was my idea," Leo said. "The city helped me out with gasoline and a few things, and could be considered the sponsor, but I am writing a thesis at the university on this subject, so I contacted the city. It was a ready-made project for me."

He added he is not trying to "prove anything," or "prove anyone right or wrong."

"All I want to do is map the drainage patterns of the area and draw them on a map for anyone who wants to use them," he emphasized.

He pointed out that a map showing the drainage between Livingston and Interstate-75 can be used in case of a toxic spill from trucks using roadways in the eastern section of the county, including I-75.

"Should there be a toxic spill," he continued, "all the officials have to do is consult the map and see where the spill is draining. They could be drinking gasoline, for example, or something else in a very short time, since the subsurface flow routes would bring the spill into Livingston in a relatively short time."

He related that spills that go underground are more difficult to contain than those going into a lake water supply where pumps can be turned off until the spill is cleaned up.

For his survey, one dye sample was placed in the slinks of Roundstone Creek, and as noted.

Dear Editor:

To the person or persons in the Broadhead area, there has been a rumor that I, Gilbert Lunceford, have been receiving S.S.I. or other federal assistance checks. This is a vicious lie, and I do not appreciate anyone starting rumors and lying about me.

In the future, if anyone feels they need to know anything about me, please come to me and I will tell you everything you need to know.

In closing, might I add, if everyone would mind their own business, they would have a full time job.

New effort-launched to create jobs

Congressman Hal Rogers

This week, I am announcing a new economic force which is geared up and ready to recruit new jobs and new industry for our entire Fifth District.

With the able assistance of nine key economic advisors, I have helped launch the "Southern Kentucky Economic Development Council," a new unified and regional approach to industrial recruiting which I believe has a real chance for success.

For too many years, our high school graduates have been forced to leave Kentucky to seek employment. I know, because I was one of them. Too many of us and our children have faced similar economic realities. This situation can only change if we can begin to bring new industries into our region, so that our talented young people can stay here at home, work and raise their families.

The immediate goal for this new Council will be to go after the spinoff plants which we should see created to serve auto assembly plants in Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio and Georgia. Within a several hundred mile radius, there are numerous plants either in existence or being developed, including Nissan and Saturn in Tennessee, Toyota in Georgetown, Honda in Ohio, Corvette in Bowling Green, Ford in Louisville and Atlanta, and GM and Ford in Cincinnati.

We have two major advantages to offer. The first and most obvious one is the closeness of our area, by rail and highway, to these auto plants I just mentioned. But we also have a large, competitive work force with an old-fashioned work ethic, a work force which can be quickly trained, not only for work in auto-related plants but in other industries as well.

The new S.K.E.D. Council, while working at first to recruit the auto spinoff plants, will also be recruiting other industries. This regional approach should give us a leg up on other areas competing for those same industries and jobs.

The Council was formed with an initial advisory group of nine men. We will now add representatives from each of the 27 counties in the Fifth District, giving every community equal representation. Led by Ray Moncrief of Whitley

City, this new Council can and will succeed in attracting new industries and in creating new job opportunities throughout the district.

I hope all of you share my enthusiasm for this new effort. My recent visit to the Far East gave me new insight into the possibilities of new industries for our district, but there are also numerous potential industries right here in America that could locate in the Fifth District.

We need those jobs for ourselves and our children. This new Southern Kentucky Economic Development Council will hopefully be the key to providing those jobs and keeping our young people here at home, where they want to live.

Social Security (Who Pays?)

All taxpayers with "earned income" contribute to social security without regard to age. There is no minimum age and no maximum age.

There is a common misunderstanding that once a taxpayer has reached age 72 he/she no longer has to contribute to social security. As long as you have income from wages or self-employment (earned income), you are required to make contributions to social security. There are two exceptions: farm labor earning less than $150 per year and self-employment income of less than $400 per year.

Employees in 1986 will pay 7.15% on all earnings up to $42,000 per year, and the employer must match this contribution with a like amount. The total contribution from employer and employee combined will total $6,006 for 1986 as compared to $5,583 for 1985.

The self-employed individual will pay 12.30% on all net earnings up to $42,000 for a total contribution of $5,166 compared with $4,973 for 1985.

If you work for more than one employer, you might pay in an "excess" amount to social security. Each employer is required to hold onto the full amount without regard to what other employers may have withheld from you. In other words, if you earned $60,000 in 1985 ($30,000 from each of two companies), you will have overpaid your social security by $1,438. You are to treat this excess as a credit against your income taxes.

If you worked for more than one employer in 1985 but earned a total of $39,600 or less, you will not have paid in any excess.

Social Security tax along with other tax considerations should be reviewed in determining whether your business should operate as a corporation or not and what levels of compensation and/or dividends should be withdrawn by the owners.

CITIZENSHIP TOUR TO FRANKFORD - MARCH 18

Learn about how the state government works. Our state representative, Danny Ford, will meet with us in Frankfort. We will have the opportunity to visit the State Capitol, Governor's Mansion, sit in on committee meetings and legislative sessions. On the way back we plan to stop at Midway Historical district and eat at Holly Hill Inn.

The bus will leave Brodhead at 7:30 a.m. and Renfro Valley at 7:45 a.m. Cost for bus is $4. There is a limit of 40. If less, the bus cost may raise slightly. You are on your own for meals. We will return around 8 p.m.

Deadline for reservations is March 13. Call the Extension Office if you plan to go or for more information.

SUNSHINE HOMEMAKERS

Feb. 4 the Sunshine Homemakers met once again. Nine members attended, each with a special grin.

Some of our members were under the weather.

So to each of you, we hope you'll soon feel better.

Our meeting started with a prayer. We should, with Bible reading by Pearl Burdette, and Brenda Powell led us in prayer.

Things will always turn out right if we remember to thank the One who was the first to care.

Our minutes and treasurer's report was next in line. Reported by Debbie McQueen, who does the job just fine.

Next came new projects we want to remember.

One is the International Dinner. The dinner is planned at 6 p.m. - March 7 at the Bank of Mt. Vernon: the theme will be on Ireland, so green we will wear.

Put tick in on the menu, so bring a dish and plan to be there.

March 18, 1986, mark on your calendar and don't let it pass away. It's time to give the gift of life, our blood drive will be that day.

On Feb. 20 the Sunshine Homemakers will meet once again, at Conway Baptist Church - at 7 p.m. A class for crocheting will be taught to those who wish to learn.

The Mt. Vernon Signal Thursday, February 27, 1986 P.5
So Sunshine Homemakers, get a skein of yarn and crochet back and come without concern. Our regular club meetings we will have with special craft lessons in between.

Now that our business was over, our lesson on "Strir Fry Cooking" was taught to us by Debbie McQueen.

She prepared for us a delicious dish of stir fried vegetables and beef.

Topped off with homemade almond cookies which made it complete.

A gold star she deserves for a job well done.

Our homemakers meetings are always enlightening and lots of fun.

The Sunshine-Homemakers wish to extend an invitation for new members and new friends. Our next regular club meeting is March 4, 1986 at 7 p.m. at Conway Baptist Church. Hope to see you then.

The meeting ended with a pot luck luncheon. There were 15 members and four guests present.

Jeremy Blake Rowe, son of Jerry and Debbie Rowe, celebrated his first birthday at his home on Feb. 4. He received many nice gifts. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Esill Kirby, Lewis Rowe and Mrs. Irene Graves.

improving speaking. He is a member of the Kentucky Beef Cattle Association and the American Angus Association.

Sharing much of the work on a 170-acre farm with his father, Scott says hard work and determination have paid off for them both. When he graduates from high school this spring, Scott plans to stay active in FFA and to seek an American Farmer Degree and Forage Production Proficiency Awards.

Thirty-three top winners in five incentive contests were presented a total of $5,925 in cash and U.S. Savings Bonds during the recognition program. Winners received awards in the Future Farmers of America Contest, the 4-H Award of Excellence Program, the Jim Claypool Conservation Poster Contest, the Conservation Essay Contest, and the Tom Wallace Farm Forestry Awards.

All of the programs are sponsored by The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times in cooperation with various state and federal agencies, the University of Kentucky and Purdue University.

has been doing is promoting the coal market, we better hope they don't do anything else."

"Every time they have meddled in the energy field, they have mucked it up."

MACED's research shows that policies which promote growth in the coal industry do not guarantee development. The reports note that economic growth is part of development, but development requires more than unfettered growth. Development is a process of building a resilient local economy which provides a good quality of life for the whole community. Business expansion is developmental when it contributes to improvements in the quality of life and opportunities. Even when coal is booming, the benefits do not trickle down throughout the local economy. Income and jobs are not widely distributed, and income growth does not show up in greater tax revenues or higher bank deposits.

While the industry alone cannot solve the region's economic and social problems, MACED concludes that coal can do more than it does under present policies to improve the region. Substantial changes have occurred in both the region and the coal industry which make this an opportune time to change policy.

Basic social and economic conditions in the coal fields have improved—people are better educated and have better health care and housing conditions than they did 25 years ago. Improved transportation and communications have reduced barriers of isolation. Importantly, coal is a better industry today. Laws and regulations passed in the 1970s forced the industry to internalize many safety and environmental costs previously absorbed by workers and communities. Coal management appears to have more enlightened attitudes today than in past decades. Executives at 16 large coal companies say they feel their companies have a responsibility to the communities where they mine coal. These changes in the region and the industry offer new opportunities to expand the benefits to coal-field communities.

The MACED reports discuss some broad recommendations to guide future policy. Recommended changes in national policy include the following:

A national policy to require greater use of long-term contracts and deemphasize the spot-market.

National and state policies to require consumers to buy coal produced in compliance with environmental and health and safety laws.

A national severance tax for investment in coal-field communities; and Accelerated development of technologies to burn high sulfur coal cleanly.

MACED calls for greater public and private responsibility to workers, including recommendations that:

Companies establish early warning of layoffs and mine closures.

Coal companies prepare annual community impact bulletins for each mine outlining consequences of expected changes in markets, investment plans, and technology; and

Coal management and labor work with state governments to establish appropriate training and retraining programs for the unemployed in coal fields.

Specifically in Kentucky, MACED recommends:

- Changing the existing allocation of severance tax revenues so that more coal tax remains in coal-producing counties.
- Working to establish a multi-state severance tax compact which raises the severance tax.

Establishing a mechanism to oversee and coordinate expenditure of increased revenue in coal counties.

Eliminating the two-acre permit, and Devising a long-term solution for coal haul road damage (which includes fair treatment of coal truckers).

Highlights of the reports include these points:

Kentucky coal counties had economic growth rates of 164 percent between 1960 and 1980, compared to around 100 percent in other rural Kentucky counties.

Nonetheless, Kentucky coal counties did not realize significantly greater development gains than noncoal counties. Counties with different economic bases improved about the same amount, and the quality of life in coal and farm counties still lagged behind manufacturing and mixed-base counties in 1980.

Coal counties have greater poverty and inequality and lower educational achievement than manufacturing or government/mixed industry counties.

Coal production increased 37 percent between 1975 and 1984. During the same period, coal industry productivity rose 42 percent. Since productivity outstripped production gains, employment declined. Twelve thousand jobs were lost.

MACED forecasts that productivity increases will continue at an average rate of 3.3 percent a year between 1984 and 1995. Employment would drop by 5 percent (8,300 jobs) from 1984 to 1995 if productivity increases at this rate, even though overall production would grow by 37 percent.

Under current policies, the total revenues from the coal industry in Kentucky for 1985-2000 would be around $7,787 million, while total public expenditures related to the industry would total around $9,259.1 million. The net expenditure loss, for the period would be $1,470.4 million, 50.6 percent of which is coal-haul road costs.

If you need only a few drops of lemon juice, prick one end with a fork and squeeze the desired amount. Return the lemon to refrigerator and it will be almost as good as new.

Edna M. Morris

Edna Marie Morris, 68, of Lamer, died Feb. 21, 1986 at the Rockcastle County Hospital. She was born in Rockcastle County April 19, 1917, the daughter of the late Steve and Sarah Shepherd Baine. She was a retired cook for the Rockcastle County Board of Education and a member of the Morning View Holiness Church.

appeared in Livingston within 24 hours, as did another sample placed in Roundstone Creek.

Dye was also placed in a sink hole in Pine Hill and appeared later in a spring located on Mullins Station Road where the water flowed from the spring for about a mile into Roundstone Creek.

He still has about 10 other samples to take before he completes the survey.

With considerable ingenuity, Leo devised a simple instrument to make the dye tests (See picture). Constructed with a "gumdrop" concrete base and a coathanger, a screen wire packet containing coconut charcoal is placed at the end of the hanger and the entire instrument is then placed in a spring.

A chemical dye, Fluorescein, is then dropped in the nearest sinkhole. Later, the packet of charcoal is placed under a special light. If it glows green, then there is a drainage pattern from the sinkhole to the spring. The process is repeated throughout the survey area.

Leo called the dye "very safe." He noted it is a coloring

Graduates....

Marine Private Eric W. Jackson recently graduated from the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C.

Pvt. Jackson, whose parents, John and Diana Jackson, live in Disputanta, is a 1985 graduate of Rockcastle County High School and entered the Marine Corps through the Delayed Entry Program in October 1985. Pvt. Jackson reported to active duty at Parris Island in November 1985.

Following seven days of recruit leave at home, Pvt. Jackson will go on to Lackland Air Force Base, Texas for formal training in the Military Police Field.

Eric W. Jackson

agent selling for $40 a pound and is often used as a food coloring agent. He said he believes it is used to make the yellow color in Mello Yellow soft drink. Ophthalmologists also use it in the eye to detect scar tissue.

The geologist related the testing process is not difficult. "But finding the springs and sinkholes to test is not an easy job," he said. "But here in Livingston, Earl Baker has been a great help."

In any case, a landfill in the Pine Hill area, or elsewhere in Rockcastle, is no longer officially in the plans for garbage disposal in the county. Whether a landfill will come up again remains to be seen.

Presently a garbage plant is being devised for the county by the Cumberland Valley Area Development District which will probably call for the garbage to be collected and taken out of the county.

But as one official said, "This survey will be much discussed if the Pine Hill landfill site is ever brought up again."
