County commended for support of recruiting in '85

Army recruiters assigned to the Richmond Army Recruiting Office have commended Rockcastle County residents for their support of recruiting as fiscal year 1985 ended on Sept. 30.

Sergeant First Class Robert Jones, recruiting station commander, said that 120 young men and women from this area took advantage of Army opportunities during the fiscal year. "We appreciate that support," he said. "It's enlightens from the small cities and towns of America that collectively build an Army."

Fiscal Year 1985 began last Oct. 1 with some apprehension from Army recruiters. A difficult year in military recruiting had been predicted due to an improved economy and fewer people between the ages of 17 to 19. Despite those factors, Army recruiters enlisted 125,434 Americans into the Regular Army. Another 68,391 joined the Army Reserve to serve part-time as citizen-soldiers.

Recruiting records indicate that the U.S. Army has possibly become the smartest fighting force in its history. Sixty-three percent of those who enlisted during fiscal year 1985 scored in the upper half of the Army's aptitude examination, versus 25 percent in 1980 and 56 percent last year. On the other end of the scale, Regular Army enlistees who scored in the lowest aptitude category fell to about 9 percent from last year's 13 percent.

and 1980's 57 percent. "We try to recruit quality people every year," Jones said. "The technology we have in today's sophisticated equipment demands a highly motivated person, someone with above average intelligence. Smarter people make better soldiers in every way."

College aid has been the biggest incentive for enlistment according to Department of Army studies. The recent passage of the New GI-Bill Plus Army College Fund has enhanced the Army's college financial aid package by raising the benefits as high as $25,200 for a four-year enlistment.

For a two-year enlistment, which only the Army offers, a soldier can accumulate up to $17,000 from a personal contribution of only $1,200.

Two years of college and the same personal contribution can furnish a two-year enlistee with up to $21,000 toward continuing education, and an enlistment of three years, same contribution, can build an educational fund of almost $25,000.

The Richmond Army recruiters are ready to assist anyone having questions concerning Army enlistment programs and options that are currently available. For more information, contact Sergeant First Class Jones at the office located at 630A University Shopping Center or call him at 623-1270.

An educational program "MEET THE KIDS ON THE BLOCK" was presented by the UK Cooperative Extension Service and our local 4-H program recently at MVES to the fifth and sixth grades. The program is funded by the Development Disabilities Council and WHAS Crusade for Children and its purpose is to provide accurate information about various handicapping conditions, among other things. Six large puppets with various handicaps are used in skits to bring the information to the children in a manner to which they can relate.

4-H PRESENTS PROGRAM ON HANDICAP AWARENESS
Some 400 youth at Livingston

At Mt. Vernon Elementary schools were able to take part in a special handicap awareness program last week as they met "THE KIDS ON THE BLOCK" "MEET THE KIDS ON THE BLOCK" is an educational puppet program being presented across Kentucky by the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service and the local 4-H program.

The program provided accurate information about various handicapping conditions, and helped the audience become more sensitive and accepting of people with disabilities.

Four large puppets, about the size of three-year-olds, presented the information. Three of the four puppets were disabled. Renaldo Rodriguez was blind, wore glasses, used a white cane, and had a Braille watch. Mark Reilly had cerebral palsy. His speech was slightly difficult to understand and he got around in his wheelchair that he called his "cruiser." Mandy Puccini was deaf. She taught the audience some simple sign language. A good friend of the disabled puppets was Brenda Dubrowski. She was having a birthday.

Sally Moore, 4-H program specialist for the University of Kentucky, Mary Ann Jaggers from Louisville and Jennifer Mangin from Brandenburg were the puppeteers. Sally works specifically with the State 4-H handicapped programs and Mary Ann and Jennifer are UK students studying communications and elementary education who volunteer their time to help with this program. Funding has been made possible through the Developmental Disabilities Council and WHAS Crusade for Children.

Rogers supports rural telephone co-ops, satellite dish owners

In the age of instant, worldwide communications, it is vital that those of us who live in rural areas have access to the latest technology. If we are to compete with other parts of the nation and with other countries, we need to have modern communications at affordable rates.

This week, I pressed for those concerns at a hearing with the Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, Mark Fowler, as he testified before my Appropriations subcommittee which funds the FCC.

As all of us who live in rural areas know, good and affordable telephone service is absolutely essential. Businesses depend on it more and more, and our elderly need to have affordable phone service as their link to the rest of their community.

Since the FCC is the federal agency which regulates phone service nationally, I questioned Chairman Fowler extensively about the need to keep rural phone service prices down. He agreed that we need to continue to average out long-distance charges between urban and rural areas, so that rural areas will not pay unfair rates. And I told him that this practice must continue.

I also voiced my unhappiness that long-distance competition has not yet come to much of Kentucky. Competition was the whole idea behind the breakup of AT&T, a move which I opposed then and still oppose now. I urged Mr. Fowler to make sure that our rural telephone users will not see any further raises in their rates, rates which are too high already.

I also discussed with him an item which hundreds of you have written to me about in recent months. Many of our rural families in the Fifth District are unable to get cable TV or any over-the-air TV because they live too far from town or in mountain valleys. For many of these people, the only answer has been to purchase a satellite dish.

Now, however, some of the providers of television programming are threatening, or in some cases have already begun, to scramble signals so that those with dishes cannot receive their programming any longer.

I have co-sponsored three bills now before Congress which would offer satellite dish owners a chance to continue to receive TV programming at a reasonable and fair rate. At the hearing, I urged Chairman Fowler to also work toward trying to set up a system where programmers, satellite dish owners and cable operators could negotiate a fair system. Either way, by legislation or negotiation, I am hopeful we can keep these signals available for those satellite dish owners who have no alternative if they want to watch television.

Communications at fair prices are as much if our rural areas are to see progress in the years ahead. I pledge to continue to make sure that rural America is not left out of the new communications technology which offers us a brighter future.

Rogers sending annual Fifth District poll

Residents of Kentucky's Fifth Congressional District will soon be receiving Congressman Harold Rogers' annual Fifth District Poll.

The yearly questionnaire is mailed to each family in the Fifth District in order for Rogers to get specific answers to questions he faces in Congress.

"The results of this annual questionnaire are important aids to me as I make difficult choices facing us in Washington," said Rogers. "Each year, thousands of Fifth District residents return the questionnaires, and I look forward to an even larger response this year."

Rogers said this year's questionnaire deals with such issues as how to reduce the deficit, tax reform, trade policy, terrorism, economic development and Social Security.

"This year, more than ever before, we face many tough decisions in Congress," said Rogers. "I urge as many residents of the Fifth District as possible to fill out this brief questionnaire and return it to me, so that I can better represent our district's views on these important issues."

Conservation tillage affects yields

By: J. David Stipes
Soil Conservation Service

As a general rule, we have seen an increase in yields with conservation tillage in Rockcastle County, according to David Stipes, District Conservationist, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service. Corn has shown a marked increase, especially when planted no-till instead of with conventional methods.

Conservation tillage systems leave a large amount of residue that help trap moisture in the soils. This is where we see our greatest increases in crop yield.

Crop yields vary with the conservation tillage system just as they do under conventional tillage. Factors including rainfall, kind of soil, fertilizer, pest and climate all contribute to yield increases or decreases. Any one factor during a crop year can have a significance for better or worse.

Although yield must be considered as a significant factor in switching to conservation tillage, several other benefits must also be considered including a large savings of time and fuel operating costs.

Over 20 percent of American farmers are using some form of conservation tillage now and the information, contact the local office of the USDA's Soil Conservation Service in the Rockcastle County Courthouse at 256-2541.

Save money at planting time

By: David Stipes
Soil Conservation Service

With fewer trips across the field to plant crops, farmers are saving fuel using conservation tillage. Although the savings vary because the practices used may be different, studies help support fuel savings enjoyed by farmers, said District Conservationist David Stipes of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service.

A University of Nebraska study found that using a chisel plow instead of the conventional moldboard plow system reduced fuel consumption by 23 percent. Using a disk for seedbed preparation lowered fuel needed by 42 percent, and when no-till was used, 70 percent less fuel was needed.

Similar findings came from a Michigan State University study that showed a savings of 4.21 gallons of diesel fuel per acre with no-till planting.

With conservation tillage, not only is fuel saved, so are basic resources of soil and water. Conservation tillage systems reduce erosion and moisture loss by leaving crop residue on the surface after new crops are planted. Residue protects the soil from the impact of raindrops. It holds soil and water and reduces sediment and chemical runoff helping improve water quality.

To learn more about saving water, soil and fuel with conservation tillage, you can contact the local office of USDA's Soil Conservation Service located in the Rockcastle County Courthouse or call 256-2541.

MOLES ARE MORE A MESS THAN MENACE

Many homeowners suspect moles of eating the roots of their plants or lawn and gobbling up flower seeds as fast as they are sown into the soil. The little pests aren't guilty of those crimes, but the tunnels they create, especially during spring and early summer, may incline many homeowners and gardeners to go after them with a hoe.

Moles literally swim through loose moist soil in pursuit of earthworms and grubs. Swimming through dirt can use up a lot of energy, so moles need to eat 70 to 100 percent of their own weight in worms and grubs every day. Swimming around enough to find that many worms and grubs can leave a lawn looking like a mess.

Recent warm weather will stir moles into activity, and they will soon develop extensive networks of tunnels in lawns. The tunnels are unsightly and damaging to plants. Although people often blame the moles for eating garden seeds and chewing on roots, this damage is likely done by mice that use moles' tunnels for travel and protection.

Repellants and poisons used to control moles are generally ineffective and can be dangerous, and removing the mole's food supply by applying insecticides to the lawn will only result in increased tunneling activity as the mole looks farther and farther for food.

The tunnels a mole creates center around its home chamber, to which it returns after every hunting foray, and that by placing a single trap where a fresh-worked tunnel leads back to the home chamber, the mole digging all the tunnels connected to that chamber may be caught. This method poses no threat to other wildlife, or pets, and will catch only the mole, actually doing the damage.

Mole traps can be purchased from hardware and lawn and garden stores. Follow the directions that come with the trap carefully, or ask the salesperson for instructions.

creator, Barbara Aiello, in their own CBS Special on Good Morning America. Today, PM Magazine and before the President of the United States.

What did our youth think of the presentation? The following excerpts were taken from stories written by Livingston students:

Curtis Cotton—"The Kids on the Block made me realize how lucky I am. But they're not really any different from anybody else. Some people don't want to be around disabled people, but you can't catch it."

Angela Stallsworth—"Handicapped people are no different than anybody else. They have dreams and feelings, too. People with disabilities have abilities for other things far beyond some people's wildest dreams."

Debbie—"I saw today some ordinary people. All of them had special qualities."
Janet Durham—"I think the puppet show was a great learning experience for all of us. It showed us that people with disabilities can do many different things. Sometimes they can do things better than people without disabilities. It showed us that people with disabilities care and feel the same as people without disabilities."

The students also reported that they enjoyed learning the sign language. Many of them are still practicing it.

"Great Performances" Presents
"Cavalliera Rusticana" ON KET

Plácido Domingo and Elena Obraztsova star in the passionate romantic opera, "Cavalliera Rusticana," airing as part of the "Great Performances" series on Monday, March 24, at 8 p.m. (ET, 7 p.m. (CT) on KET.

Franco Zeffirelli, famous for his direction of the screen adaptation of "Romeo and Juliet," directed this film version of the La Scala production of Pietro Mascagni's famous work about Easter Sunday in a Sicilian peasant village at the end of the last century.

Zeffirelli devised new techniques for bringing this opera to film. To capture the voices in performance, he shot the players live on stage, in sets that are detailed reproductions of the actual sites in Sicily where the tale originated. He then assembled his large cast on location in Sicily to film the lavish exterior ensemble scenes.

"Great Performances: Cavalliera Rusticana" is presented by the Great Performances Alliance: WNET/New York; KERA/Dallas; KQED/San Francisco;

SCETV/Columbia, S.C.; and WTTW/Chicago.

"By the Sword Divided" On "Mastepiece Theatre"

Producer John Hawkesworth had two reasons to create his newest TV series, "By the Sword Divided": "a colorful, romantic adventure about the 17th century British Civil War. The conflict, which pitted the Cavaliers loyal to King Charles I against Oliver Cromwell's revolutionary Roundheads, he says, was the start of democracy in England. And, he adds, his own ancestors fought on opposing sides during the War."

The nine-episode series, which British critics said provides "a feast for those with a taste for swashbuckle... packs a powerful punch." "Mastepiece Theatre" on KET Sunday, March 23 at 10 p.m. (ET, 9 p.m. (CT).
"By the Sword Divided" focuses on the aristocratic Lacey family, living peacefully in their Arnescoate castle before the war erupts and tears them apart. Sir Martin Lacey (Julian Glover) is the family head, unwaveringly loyal to the king. His troubles start when his elder daughter, Anne (Sharon Maughan) weds John Fletcher (Rob Edwards), son of a merchant-class family who supports the Cromwell forces. Timothy Bentinck portrays Tom Lacey, Sir Martin's son and heir who sides with his father, Lucy Aston plays the younger daughter, Luinda.

The Lacey family's troubles echo those confronting Hawkesworth's during the 1640's. Charles Hawkesworth was captured by the Roundheads while fighting for the king, Charles' brother, Joseph, fought with Cromwell's army. Even though both emerged unscathed from the war, they never spoke to each other again.
"Mastepiece Theatre" is produced by WGBH/Boston.

Frances Davis Gets Top Award For Snack Shop Operation.

Sometimes running a business, even a small one, can end in disaster, but for a woman like Frances Davis, who operates the Engineering Building Snack Shop, a lot of determination to be on her own has resulted in an award for a successful operation.

Davis recently was awarded one of two plaques given in 1985 by the Business Enterprises Program in recognition of the management, quality of customer relations and professionalism displayed in the snack shop.

The Mt. Vernon Signal

The second plaque was given to a snack shop operator in Mesa.

Under the Department of Economic Security's Services for the Blind Enterprises, Davis' snack shop is part of a statewide project that involves local, county and state government agencies. In this program, food service concessions in government buildings have been set aside for operation by the legally blind.

Davis summed up that program nicely when she said, "It gives me a chance to make a decent living."
Prior to gaining her concession, she worked in various places. Before coming to Arizona, she worked as a waitress in Ohio and after arriving here waited tables at Brookshire's 16th Street and East McDowell restaurant.
"It was always very difficult to hold a job," she said, "but I did."

In 1978, she entered the Enterprise Program working at the little snack shop in the Capitol

Thursday, March 20, 1986 P-17

Annex Building.

Interested in country-western music, Davis sings with three musicians, who also are blind. Currently, the group practices for its own pleasure in the Center for the Blind, but hopes eventually to appear in public.

Davis, who is taking a course in Operating a Small Business at Phoenix College, is very pleased by her award. With a laugh she says the only thing about it that bothers her is that "I'll have to work harder next year to win it again."

Mrs. Davis is a sister to Mrs. Forster (Ora J.) Hale, who worked in the administrative department of Rockcastle County Hospital for eight years, and the late Mrs. Doyle (Carla M.) Hale, who taught in the Rockcastle County school system for 15 years. She is the daughter of Edna S. Hamblin and the late Hezekiah D. Hamblin of Phoenix, Az., formerly of Hamilton, Ohio.

Mount Vernon, Kentucky 40456

VOLUME 99 - NUMBER 33

THURSDAY, MARCH 20, 1986

They all turned out the day the first car came to town

Very few readers, if any, will remember, but the whole town turned out the day the first locally owned car made its exciting appearance about 1910.

That is not to say cars had not been around Mt. Vernon since that time. They had, but they also had made quick exits, always on the way to somewhere else.

Roads were the problem.

Who in Rockcastle would want a car if there were no roads worth driving on, was an often heard statement. One motorist summed it all up on a visit to those days:

There were few roads of any description, and it's still a mystery how they (cars) ever got over the stretch between Mt. Vernon and Livingston, for a man had to be cold sober before he could get over that road on horseback.

The exact date when the first locally owned car found its way to Mt. Vernon is difficult to pinpoint, but it probably was before World War I. Put the first locally owned car when it arrived, was the center of attraction for many days, as described by the late Ralph Griffin, sometime historian and local businessman, in an article in the Signal. It is a fun story and we thought readers might enjoy it.

Mr. Griffin:
"Bill Kreuger brought the first automobile to Mt. Vernon, and I believe it was the first in the area. In what is believed to have been a moment of weakness, Bill purchased the contraption in Stanford and it was shipped to Mt. Vernon by boxcar.

When word was passed around that the car was upon the Mt. Vernon railroad siding, the whole town turned out to help unload it. A runway was built out of crossties and in a matter of a couple of hours Mr. Kreuger's very poor investment again rested on terra firma.

As I recall it now, it was a beautiful thing, painted brilliant red which would knock your eyes out at a hundred yards. Peerless. I believe it was called. However, Mr. Peerless had failed to equip his machine with any of the comforts, or some previous owner, of which there had apparently been many, had removed them. Anyway, there was no body upon the thing, only the running board, hood, steering wheel and some works, which the more

Work is progressing rapidly on a $500,000 housing project for the elderly at Livingston. The project will contain 16 apartment units - 14 one-bedroom apartments and 2 two-bedroom apartments. Owned by John Bruner of London and Jerry Rickett of Corbin, the project is expected to be completed this year. It will be named Livingston Manor Limited.

Broadhead postmaster named; open house set

Barbara A. Russell, a city letter carrier at the Lexington Post Office since June 1983, has been appointed postmaster at Broadhead, effective Mar. 29.

The appointment by Regional Postmaster General Fletcher F. Ford was announced by Charles Edmiston III, MSC Manager/Postmaster of the Lexington Sectional Center, to whom Ms. Russell will report.

"We welcome Ms. Russell to the Lexington Sectional Center as the postmaster at Broadhead, and are delighted that she has been selected to head up postal operations there," Mr. Edmiston said, adding that he would administer the oath of office in the new post office during an Open House to be held from 1 to 3 p.m. Mar. 27.

Ms. Russell succeeds Frank Johnson, who was named postmaster at Jackson last November. In the interim, Ben Culbertson and Peggy Baker have acted as the officer-in-charge. Mr. Culbertson was returned to his regular position of rural carrier at Salvisa and Mrs. Baker will return to Lexington and resume her duties as a personnel assistant.

Ms. Russell, a native of Henderson, began her postal career as a distribution clerk at the Frankfort Post Office in 1982. As a postal employee, she has held several temporary positions, including the officer-in-charge at Livingston and customer services representative at Frankfort.

Unmined mineral tax on General Assembly docket

Two bills that would directly affect Rockcastle County and other counties in Kentucky appears headed for decisions in the Kentucky General Assembly.

One bill would levy property taxes on unmined coal. The other would raise the gasoline tax by as much as five cents a gallon to help pay for Kentucky's deteriorating highway system.

The unmined coal tax has passed the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee and now goes to the House Rules Committee for action. If it passes the rules committee, it will go to the House for a vote.

State Rep. Danny Ford of Mt. Vernon voted against the unmined coal tax in the appropriations committee.

The gas tax bill passed the House Tuesday 62-38. It now goes to the Senate where its chances are considered good. Rep. Ford voted for the gas tax.

Supporters of the coal tax say the measure would help local governments in coal producing counties to provide better services of all kinds.

But the coal industry opposes the tax saying it would be too costly, unfair and difficult to administer.

Under the bill a property tax would be levied in four categories termed "mineral resources":

Active mining property, or that covered by mining permits; active reserves, including minerals near an active mining property that could reasonably be mined within 10 years; inactive reserves, defined as those severed from surface ownership or controlled by people or companies engaged in the mineral-leasing business but not yet qualifying as active mining property or active reserves; barren or unminable resources, including minerals under land used for park, housing, or commercial and industrial purposes, under farm-

Clontz withdraws; Lambert still in court race

Mt. Vernon Attorney Carl Clontz has withdrawn as a candidate for a seat on the Third Supreme Court District.

Clontz said this week he had directed that his name be removed from the list of candidates who will seek the seat of retired judge, Calvin Akers.

Gov. Martha Layne Collins has appointed Manchester attorney John D. White to fill the eight-month unexpired term of Justice Akers who plans to join a private law firm in London and Manchester. White is not a candidate for a full term beginning in January.

Clontz reported he would have continued as a candidate had he been chosen to fill the unexpired term.

His withdrawal leaves Attorney Joseph E. Lambert on the May primary ballot. Lambert is currently in private law practice in the firm of Lambert & Lambert of Mt. Vernon.

Others on the non partisan ballot are Circuit Judge Charles B. Luker of London; Attorney Morris R. Butler of Greensburg; and Attorney Norma Adams of Somerset.

The two candidates receiving the most votes will face each other in the November General Election. Lambert, 37, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Lambert. He and his wife, Debra Hembree Lambert, have a son, Joseph Patrick. Attorney Lambert is a graduate of Georgetown College and the University of Louisville

College of Law.

He is a member of the Kentucky Bar Association, American Bar Association, Association of Trial Lawyers of America and the Kentucky Academy of Trial

Indict Burns on 20 counts

Among 16 persons indicted after a three-year investigation into corruption and other crimes in Eastern Kentucky were three from Pulaski County—Attorney Lester Burns, Jr., Dr. Bill Davis of Burnside and accountant Herbert Rich.

Burns was arrested Friday at his house in Florida.

A familiar face in Rockcastle County and a former gubernatorial candidate and local commonwealth attorney, Burns is charged with 20 counts of conspiracy and mail fraud. If convicted of all the charges, he could receive 100 years in prison and/or fines totaling $200,000.

Another indicted by a federal grand jury in Lexington was former State Police Commissioner Marion Campbell and several Morgan County officials, including the sheriff and district judge.

Burns is reportedly charged with three insurance fraud cases involving allegedly stolen or destroyed vehicles. One indictment charges him with five counts of mail fraud and one count of conspiracy; another, five counts of mail fraud, and one count of conspiracy; and another, eight counts of mail fraud and one count of conspiracy.

Burns and Dr. Davis are named in one of the indictments for allegedly trying to defraud the National Casualty Co. of Scottsdale, Ariz. and the National Indemnity Co. of Omaha, Neb. of nearly $1.1 million.

Rich and Burns are charged in an indictment that they allegedly tried to defraud Aetna Life and Casualty Co. by filing a fraudulent claim of theft on Rich's 1982 Chevrolet.

Heirs still claim fortune in oil lease controversy

Several members of local families may have a share in an estate worth, reportedly, in the neighborhood of $1.9 million.

A federal lawsuit was filed in February in Texas by John Howard Meadows of Tennessee and others against Amoco Products Co. and others, claiming that he and the 18,000 people he represents are Meadors' heirs and are entitled to their ancestor's (James Meadors) interest in the Spindle, top oil fortune.

According to Linda Foster, local genealogist who spent two years researching one line of the family for Mr. Meadows, local families with an interest in the estate include Leger, King, Stephens, Worley, Hubbard, Meadows in the Conway area, and the Parrett family.

Mrs. Foster researched the line of Rhoda King, a sister of James Meadors, who married William Leger. The brothers' and sisters' heirs are involved, Mrs. Foster said, because they were part of the original transaction. Three previous lawsuits have been dismissed by a U. S. District Judge who said the family lost whatever rights to interest in the land they might have had by waiting more than 70 years to file a claim. But, Meadows said Meadors, who was mentally ill, was not capable of filing any claim on his land.

However, Mrs. Foster said they felt this case stood a good chance of not being dismissed because of documentation now at hand.

James Meadors was a surveyor and oil driller in Texas who should have died a millionaire, say those who claim kinship to the early 20th century oilcrafter.

Instead he died an insane, alcoholic pauper in an Ohio hospital.

The lawsuit says Meadows received one-eighth interest in the Spindletop oilfield in 1911 in repayment for his services and a $10 fee but did not record it until 1931 because he "feared" for his life due to threats by people believed to be oil company person-

Help with math team appreciated...

Dear Editor:

I would like to publicly thank several people who helped me in working with the Brohead Elementary Math Counts team. These include Mr. Wells and Mr. Vanzant from Rockcastle County High School, Mrs. Mary N. Cash of Brohead, Janice Miller and Shonie and Greg Long of Ft. 3 Brohead, who all helped me with actual math problems.

Others who were helpful in allowing for a flexible schedule in testing students for the team, were sharing information and words of encouragement include junior high teachers Kathy Bradley, John Hamm, Patsy Morgan and Pam Martin; librarian Nancy Parkerson; teacher Shirley Martin; principal Tom Payne; gifted education coordinator Sue Hamm; and challenge teacher Carrie Hedrick.

It takes a team to make a team. Each of you shares a part in the success these students had in winning the regional Math Counts competition. From them, and from me, thank you.

Sincerely,

Betty Jo McKinney

Should reinstate 7th & 8th grade tourney

Dear Editor:

I am writing about the Brohead Invitational Tournament which was held a few weeks ago.

I read a letter in your paper last week from David Brock. His words made me very sad. All communities need more heralds such as he.

However, I would like to comment on a statement made during the BIT with which I must disagree. The comment was made by Mr. Bill Riddle, former RCHS coach and "Master of Ceremonies" for the tournament. Before presentation of awards, he said that the BIT was "Not a Brohead School tournament, but a Rockcastle County tournament."

I disagree. This tournament does not benefit the other elementary schools in the county. The winner does not receive a "county" trophy, but a "BIT" trophy. If anything, it "costs" our other schools money in order to participate when they pay gas for the bus, the drivers' fees, etc.

I think it is sad that we have allowed the BIT to crowd out or eliminate the Rockcastle County 7th and 8th grade boys' tournament. In the final games of the BIT, our county was represented by only one team - Mt. Vernon. How much better if all four schools could have been competing and received the recognition they deserve. In the county tournaments in the past, they were able to do this.

I don't think the BIT Committee should schedule their tournament to interfere with a Rockcastle County tournament. I say we should bring back the 7th and 8th grade boys' tournament for our young men. It should be given our first priority so all four elementary schools can participate in it and then play a BIT if so desired.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Grace Boggs
Livingston

RCHS coaches did good job this season

Dear Editor:

It is me, David, again. I think it would be fair. I wrote an article about the football team and coaches Tom Larkey, Tony Saylor and Jerry Riddle, and I believe David Riddle. A gentleman could not interfere with a Rockcastle team. This gentleman's name is David Perkins. His two assistants were Gary Scott and David Riddle.

Depending on last night's game in the 13th region at Middlesboro, Mr. Perkins "took Rockcastle to the regional tournament for the first time in 6 or 7 or 8 years. I believe William (Bill) Riddle, if I am not mistaken, was the last RCHS coach to take a team to the regional tournament. I don't think Roscoe Denny or Mike Appleman did. If I am mistaken, would someone please correct me. David Perkins did a splendid job with the young Rocket team. Not only him. Gary Scott and David Riddle, and his coaching staff are to be congratulated although Rockcastle County had a losing season.

Rockcastle next year will miss Benny Blanton, Scott Parrett and Tony Harrison.

David and Becky Perkins, have a nice summer. Come next December it will be basketball season once again.

Rockcastle County to be featured on special WLEX-TV program Mar. 22

Rockcastle Countians will have a chance to see a one-hour television profile of their community on Sunday at 7 p.m. on WLEX-TV's "Kentucky Life."

How do people of Rockcastle County feel about living here? Are they satisfied with the educational system? What about health care, recreation, government services and religious life?

Program Producer Kamille Brookbank and the WLEX-TV

Schools will participate in state attendance program

The Rockcastle County School District will participate in Kentucky School Attendance Month, a statewide competition to increase pupil attendance during the eighth month of school. The eighth month will begin on March 20 and run for twenty consecutive school days.

Governor Martha Layne Collins, Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald, and the Kentucky Association of School Administrators proclaimed Attendance Month to emphasize the importance of pupils being in school.

The Rockcastle County School

Special Projects production unit have been talking to people in Mt. Vernon and the surrounding environs of Rockcastle County since February, getting answers to those and other questions, and recording the people's impressions of the place they call home. "Kentucky Life" will focus its cameras on all facets of life in Rockcastle County as seen through the eyes of the people who live and work here.

According to WLEX-TV Production and Special Projects Manager Bill Crawford, who is also host for this month's program, the goal of the program is a simple one. He says, "We want people, at the end of the program, to reflect on what they've seen and say, 'Gee, that's a great place. I'd sure like to live there!'"

"Kentucky Life in Rockcastle County" will be presented Saturday evening at 7 p.m. on Channel 18.

System requests all parents to make a cooperative effort in making this eighth month a high attendance month. Special rewards and incentives have been promised to the students for their cooperation. Local businesses and businessmen are participating to encourage higher attendance which will enable students to be better prepared for the business world. Also all schools are making a special effort this month and we extend this appeal to all parents and students will respond with equal enthusiasm.

Following the competition, an awards ceremony will be held at the State Capitol for all school districts that achieve excellence in school attendance for the month. Criteria will be the percent of students in class and the percent of improvement in attendance.

Students will receive an official certificate for perfect attendance signed by the governor and the state superintendent. Schools that record above 98 percent attendance for the month will also receive a special award.

Best Local Car

learned of our citizens declared to be an engine. Few of us knew that an automobile was supposed to have a body, so it was not missed. A floor was soon laid out of planks, a few asserted soap boxes nailed on for seats and the car was ready for service.

Then there arose a pressing need for some party who could start the machine, preferably someone who could stop it as well, should the occasion arise. A canvass of the crowd disclosed the fact that Fred Owens was the only man present who had ever attempted to operate anything more complicated than an egg beater, so Fred was elected.

As Fred began to tinker and crank, all but the most foolhardy withdrew to the surrounding knolls, but as time passed and nothing unusual happened, quite a number ventured back. A great deal of poor advice was proffered before some mental giant suggested that the thing might need fuel. The gasoline tank, seen located and the top unscrewed, whoroped several bats and some moths flew out, and the tank was found to be quite dry and dusty inside.

Two gallons of gas for 25 cents was located at Adam Bryant's grist mill, Supplied with gas, the old Peerless responded nobly, and kicked up a fuss second to none before heard in these parts.

Clouds of smoke arose and horses broke their tethers a mile away. The crowd dispersed with great singleness of purpose, several hanging up new records for the hundred yard dash. It was bedlam.

Fred Owens eventually conquered the Peerless and throttled it down to a dull roar. Boys were sent down Main Street to shoos the crows and hogs out of the way, and Mr. Vernon's first home-owned automobile lurched, painfully but maestically, down the street, to the accompaniment of hearty cheers.

The afternoon was yet young, so a general holiday was declared by common consent. It could as well have been declared that morning for business was at a standstill. Stores were closed and everybody rode their automobile ride.

Many willing hands and some hasty engineering made Main Street passable from the Rockcastle Hotel to Uncle Billy Poynter's store, a sixteenth of a mile if it was an inch. The gasoline gave out before everyone had a ride, so some of the boys went to Broadhead on a railroad hand car and got three more gallons of gasoline from the pump house.

The kids mooched a lot of extra fun, of course, but every one had his turn and it was all more fun than a camp meeting. The only thing to mar the occasion, as I recall it, were a series of delays to let the engine cool off. The delays were bad enough, but some leading citizen always took advantage of the delays to make a speech.

There was no effective office in the town, which Mr. Krueger could not have had by unanimous vote and Fred Owens? Why he became the town idol. Nobody had suspected that we had a man right in Mt. Vernon who could run one of them new fangled contraptions. Thinking back over it now, I doubt if Fred himself suspected it until that day.

For the record, Krueger was the uncle of Mrs. Henry Cox and Christine Krueger, both of Mt. Vernon. It should also be noted that about the same time Krueger brought his car to town, Logan Bryant also brought a car to Mt. Vernon, but it is generally believed that Krueger had the first car.

land or timberland, and in mineral nature.

The valuation of the property under which the new rate would apply would range from high values for active mining property to small amounts of barren or unminable lands.

The state now gets the first $177 million collected from the coal-severance tax, then allocates the remainder to coal counties on a 50-50 basis.

The bill calls for the state to spend about $11 million a year to find and increase assessments on unmined coal.

Under the bill to increase the gas tax by five cents a gallon, the bill would also impose an annual fee on trucks to replace the weight-distance tax. The measure would generate an estimated $28 million a year for the road maintenance local governments receiving about $30 million of the extra revenue.

As now being considered, the amount of the tax would be tied to the wholesale price of gasoline which has decreased dramatically in recent months. For every two cent decrease in gas prices, the state would impose a one cent tax up to a maximum of five cents a gallon.

The bill would also charge the owners of trucks weighing 60,000 pounds or more an annual fee of $150 to $200 to replace the weight-distance tax.

eligible to vote: Only one vote per burley tobacco producer is permitted. Quotas were first proclaimed on the 1983-85 crops and were approved by a 97 percent majority.

Burley tobacco is grown primarily in Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia.

The Rockcastle Co. ASCS office urges all eligible voters to please vote Mar. 27 as the deadline: votes premarked after that date will not be counted. On Apr. 1 the votes will be counted at a public meeting in the Rockcastle County ASCS office.

nel and by the fact that James Meadows' afraid that his father, Joseph Cain Meadows, would claim or dispute his rights in the lands. The said deeds were recorded when Joseph Cain Meadows was near death in March 1931.

Meadows' lawsuit does not specify damages, but asks the court to order five oil companies to release all of their financial records to determine the true worth of the Spindletop estate and the family's percentage.

Meadows said he has invested the past five years of his life and more than $200,000 of his own money into researching his genealogy. He has become a guru of sorts among people throughout the United States and Canada, who believe they are entitled to part interest in the Spindletop oilfield.

He has held several meetings in Tennessee, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky-most of which have drawn hundreds of people to talk about the family's research and plans for the lawsuit.

Although Meadows says he and other family members have accepted donations from the other alleged heirs and have required them to give him power of attorney, he denies using the money and legal powers for anything but research and travel expenses associated with the lawsuit.

RECORDS-HOW LONG?

Organizing, filing and retaining old records is a burden for many businesses and households.

Cancelled checks- 5 years; bank deposit slips - 5 years; bank statements - 5 years; tax returns - permanent; expense reports - 5 years; entertainment records - 5 years; financial statements - permanent; contracts - permanent; minutes of meetings - life of company; corporate stock records - permanent; employee records - period of employment, plus three years; depreciation schedules - life of business plus three years; real estate records - permanent; journal and general ledger - life of business plus three years; inventory record - 5 years.

The normal statute of limitations on federal returns is three years-Under some circumstances, it is six years and, if you fail to file a return or there is fraud involved, the statute of limitations does not close.

This means that the Internal Revenue Service, under normal conditions, would audit your return any time up through three years. Since the statute of limitations in some states exceeds the federal statute, you should allow your years of retention to the longer of the two statutes.

In deciding your own record retention schedule, consider keeping it definitely those records which cannot be recreated by any other office, institution or governmental unit.

Your Child's Health

by
Dr. John Payne

Excessive sleepiness during the day in children is a problem often faced by school teachers and sometimes referred to doctors. This is a complex issue and often can't be easily answered. Physical causes such as tonsils and adenoids so big they obstruct the airway, seizure disorders and narcolepsy are often blamed. However, non-physical causes are much more common.

Probably poor bedtime habits are the most common reason for falling asleep in school. This should be easily remedied unless the home situation is so disruptive with loud TV, fighting, etc. that the child can't sleep. Children may use excessive sleep to shut out problems. Children often fall asleep to avoid anxiety about a divorce, move to a new school or psychiatric illness in a parent. Such behavior has been noted as young as eight months of age. Sleepiness in teenagers may be from similar coping behavior, or may indicate drug abuse. Narcolepsy is a rare condition (2 out of 10,000 children) in which the patient cannot help falling asleep due to some abnormality in the nervous system. Parents sometimes think their child has this problem and want tests run for it. However, it is so unusual that it is better to look for the more common problems first. The question of what age is "right" bedtime at what age is hard to answer. Some children require more sleep than others. Some seem to get along quite well on seven hours and some require 10 or 11. Family schedules of mothers working late shifts, etc. must be taken into consideration. There is a small correlation with requiring less sleep and being extra smart, but not enough to let Junior talk you into staying up late because he is sure he is a genius.

Nervousness

Everyone would recognize "nervousness" or being "up-tight" as physical signs of stress. Almost anyone you ask would tell you that having an ulcer is another sign of stress. Ulcers and uptightness also occur in children, of course. Doctors recognize a condition called "Little League tummy" to describe ulcer like or stress symptoms due to pressure in juvenile sports.

However, most people would not recognize that such conditions can be caused by stress. At least in a number of times of stress if not caused by it. Doctors now realize that the body's production of IgA, an immunologic defense against infection, is decreased greatly during stress. Other physical and chemical changes occur as well during stress.

In a study in Boston step throats were found to be significantly more often in children following family stress such as a parent losing a job or an impending divorce. One girl developed a strep throat the day she was to be confirmed in the Catholic church even though her three siblings did not. She had received much harsh criticism from her parents over not doing well in catechism classes leading up to this event.

Other studies have shown that up to 50 percent of late night calls to family physicians come after some stressful family event such as a fight. Often the caller does not relate this problem, but rather discusses some minor illness in a child or other family member. They are really looking for help or for access to professional help such as counseling. In general, if you don't assume he has some dreadful disease or is a natural born wimp. Look to family patterns and stress levels and see if your child's frequent illnesses may be telling you something more important.

The Medicine Chest

By: Tina Cain Hasty RPH

This week, being National Poison Prevention Week, would be a good time to brush up on emergency first aid for poisoning. The first and probably most difficult step is to remain calm. The second step varies depending on the type of poisoning. If the poison is swallowed, the victim should drink a full glass of water if conscious. If the poison is on the skin, remove the victim's clothes, rinse the skin with water for 10 minutes, then wash with soap and water. If the poison is inhaled, move into fresh air and ventilate the area. If the poison is in the eye, gently rinse for 15 minutes with water (body temperature).

The third step is to call the Regional Poison Center (1-800-722-5725). Information you should have ready, if possible, includes your name and phone number, age of the victim, name of the product, amount of the product involved, time of the poisoning and any symptoms. The consultant at the center will give you further directions.

With many poisons, it will be necessary to empty the stomach of the victim. Having ipecac syrup, a medicine to induce vomiting, in your home may save you a trip to the emergency room. Ipecac syrup can be purchased without a prescription and is not harmful if used properly. But it should only be used when recommended by the poison center, your doctor, or pharmacist because sometimes it is more dangerous to cause vomiting than to leave poison in the stomach. Vomiting is a definite no-no if the victim is unconscious, having convulsions, has swallowed a strong irritant (acid or corrosive) or has swallowed a hydrocarbon (gasoline, kerosene, etc.).

If you have any questions about poison prevention or treatment, check with your doctor, pharmacist or the Regional Poison Center.

- Eat foods with adequate starch and fiber?
- Avoid too much sugar?
- Avoid too much salt?
- If you drink alcoholic beverages, do you do so in moderation?
- With careful planning, these guidelines can be followed. A variety of foods will supply the necessary nutrients and energy to maintain desirable weight.
- If you have too much weight, then the portions must be reduced. To lose weight, you must take in fewer calories than you burn. This means you must choose foods with fewer calories, exercise more, or both.

- Here are some tips for reducing calories.
 - Choose lean meat, fish, poultry and dry beans and peas. Use low-fat or skim-milk products and be moderate in the use of egg yolks. Remove the skin and fat from poultry before cooking. Trim the fat from meat. Broil, bake, boil or steam instead of frying meats.
 - Avoid foods with large amounts of sugar. Read labels on food packages to find out about sugar. If the words sugar, sucrose, glucose, maltose, dextrose, lactose, fructose, or syrups appear first, you know there is a large amount of sugar.
 - Reduce salt intake. Learn to use less table salt and enjoy the flavor of unsalted foods.

EATING PATTERNS CAN BE CHANGED

(Third of four parts)

In the past it was thought that people didn't change food patterns very much, but surveys are revealing that Americans now are changing their food habits.

According to a report in FD Consumer, Americans are much more health conscious today and are more careful in making food selections. A 1980 USDA survey revealed that three out of five households had changed their eating patterns for health reasons. There has been an increase of consumption of poultry, low-fat milk, fresh fruits and vegetables. There has been a decline in consumption of eggs, coffee and whole milk.

Many people seem to be trying to eat fewer foods that are high in calories. They also are trying to reduce cholesterol and salt. Even so, the picture is not all bright.

Many Americans want to lose weight, but they still drink and eat too many foods that are high in calories for the number of nutrients such as soft drinks and beer.

Have your food habits or those of your family changed in the past five years? Check your eating habits against the Dietary Guidelines for Americans and see how they stack up. Do you:

- Eat a variety of foods?
- Maintain desirable weight?
- Avoid too much fat and cholesterol?

Missionary Society holds February meet

As usual, the Brodhead Ladies enjoyed being in Betty Machal's pretty home in Mt. Vernon. In fact, we had so much to discuss we didn't leave until 10 p.m. It was the second Tuesday in March, the usual meeting date.

First Barbara Watson presented the lesson on "Fruit of the Spirit." Love, joy, peace, goodness, meekness, self-control, etc. is what we can reap from the Holy Spirit. We should strive for tranquility with God.

Second, Mrs. Sally Mullins read minutes and gave the treasury report before she read a "Report of Work" in Missions done by Mike and Brenda Diskin in El Paso, Tex. and Mexico.

Emily Glovak, the vice president, asked for old business and then new business in absence of the president, Ella Mae Martin, Loraine Newmar and Mae Boodie Basket.

Vote was taken to order "Get Well Cards" to send as part of their mission work. Decision was made to send Grundy Christian Home old eyeglasses and ready-to-wear clothes.

They agreed to help in April 15 through 18 revival and V.B.S. in July, 7 through 11 as much as possible in their Brodhead Christian Church. They expressed their appreciation for Donna Masters and Beverly McClure's willingness to take care of the nursery.

They missed the president, Ella Mae Martin, who is ill, and Lou Payne, who wasn't able to come.

An egg tree, rabbits, ducks were decorations in the Machal's home as well as St. Patrick centerpieces for the tables.

They sat at two tables and enjoyed Ribbon Sandwiches, dip, chips, nuts and green pie.

The Group was glad Ruth Shivel got over a cold, attend-and that Margie Shivel didn't have to "nurse" March 11 and came to worship and socialize with the group.

April's hostess will be Willie Lawrence and Elizabeth Mullins has the lesson for the Ladies Aid Missionary Society.

During a lifetime the average human heart beats two and a half billion times.

Boggs said entry to the building was gained through a ceiling junct.

In the theft, approximately $1,600 in Case XX pocket knives was taken along with $2,200 worth of video cassette rental movies and about $500 in miscellaneous items including luggage.

Special job training project for unemployed coal miners

Gov. Martha Layne Collins announced a special job training project for unemployed coal miners in Eastern and Western Kentucky.

The project, which begins Apr. 1 under the auspices of the Cabinet for Human Resources, is open to Kentucky coal miners who have been laid off within the last three years and who have not been able to find suitable employment.

It will offer assistance to miners in obtaining vocational education, on-the-job training and remedial education for earning a General Equivalency Diploma, as well as help in a number of other areas. In some cases, limited money will be available to assist a miner to move to an area where he has located a job.

Gov. Collins said the program is designed to build on a miner's existing abilities. "By the very nature of their work, miners have often mastered a number of skills," she said. "These include carpentry, welding, and repairing sophisticated equipment—all of which are skills that can be used in all kinds of jobs. With this program, we hope to assist more miners find ways to take full advantage of their existing skills to find other work."

"Many coal miners have been committed to earning their living in the mines. Now, because of the coal economy, they are forced to look at other professions. We're able to help them find that other job," said Human Resources Secretary Al Austin. "These are people who have proven work records. In addition to their skills, they offer employers dependability and dedication."

Miners eligible for the program, which will be funded with an $800,000 grant from the U. S. Department of Labor, can apply at existing or new dislocated worker centers in Corbin, Harlan, Hazard, Henderson, Madisonville, Middleboro, Pikeville and Prestonsburg.

Employment Services Commissioner James Daniels said, "These eight centers will accept applications from and will recruit miners laid off as far back as 1983. If a miner lost his job through a cutback mine closing and hasn't been able to find an adequate job, he or she is qualified to apply."

Daniels said four new dislocated worker centers will be established in the department's local offices in Harlan, Hazard, Prestonsburg and Pikeville. Special services will be added at existing centers in Henderson, Madisonville, Corbin and Middleboro.

Daniels said coal mine operators who anticipate shutdowns or layoffs may secure immediate services for their employees by getting in touch with one of the department's local offices.

The department will add a Quick Response Team worker specializing in serving unemployed coal miners when the team responds to a mining layoff.

"My Old Kentucky Home" To Be Aired on KET

The music of Stephen Foster is familiar to the people of Japan—the children even study it in school. In September of 1985 the music of Stephen Foster Story, an outdoor musical which has played for 27 years in Bardonia, was invited to tour in Japan, and a tape of that musical tour will be aired on KET "My Old Kentucky Home," Japanese Perspective, will be aired Wednesday, March 19, at 9 p.m. (ET, 8 p.m. (CT).

Each year more than 300 people audition for this three-month production and 55 are chosen for the cast. The 1985 cast is the first to ever perform the musical outside of Bardonia in 27 years. The 19th century costumes were taken to Japan, and the sets were duplicated there and transported to the cities where the cast performed. The television production was seen on 31 Japanese stations.

Headed by Stanton Garr, as Stephen Foster and Colette Delaney, as Jane McDowell, the cast performs all of the familiar Stephen Foster melodies, and many lively dances are also included in the program. The commercials which ran in Japan, including Kentucky Fried Chicken and Coca Cola, have been left in for the Kentucky audiences, as have scenes of the rolling green fields of Kentucky which introduce the production.

"My Old Kentucky Home: A Japanese Perspective" was produced by TV Asahi, Japan.

If you can read this . . .

Those of you reading this newspaper are fortunate. There are many people around us who cannot read; that is, they are functionally illiterate. Functionally illiterate adults are unable to earn a decent wage, read their mail and bills, or help their children in school.

Imagine what it would be like, eating what everyone else eats at a restaurant because you do not want them to know you cannot read the menu; or refusing a job so no one will find out that you cannot fill out the application; or always being afraid that someone will ask you to read something and will find out that you cannot.

People do not have to be non-readers! Most often, non-reading adults are intelligent, but do not read because they did not have the opportunity to learn.

You can help eliminate the problem of illiteracy in our country. If you know someone who cannot read but would like to learn, call 256-4810. One-to-one private tutoring is available at home or in our office. Lessons are free and completely confidential.

Are You Narrow-Minded in Religion?

Are you narrow-minded or broad-minded in religion? Some preachers have been told, "You're just too narrow-minded." In today's society, you have to be more broad-minded. Is this true?

Surely we should all appreciate the value of TRUTH. Is truth broad or narrow? Suppose I asked you, "How many inches are in a foot?" Or, "What year was our Declaration of Independence signed?" How many correct answers could be given for each of these questions? There are many WRONG answers, but only one RIGHT answer. Truth is narrow, but error is broad.

What about Jesus? Was He broad-minded or narrow-minded? Matt. 7:13-14 He said, "Wide is the gate, and BROAD is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat. Because strait is the gate, and NARROW is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." In religion, as in other areas of truth, narrow, but error is broad.

For example, does it matter which god we worship? Eph. 4:6 says there is "ONE God and Father." There are many false gods, but only one true God. Truth is narrow; error is broad.

Again, some say, "It doesn't matter what you believe as long as you're sincere." But Eph. 4:5, the same passage that says there is one God, also says there is "ONE faith." There are many ways to be wrong, but only one way to be right.

Finally, some say, "All the churches are going to the same place, just by different roads. Therefore you should join the church of your choice." But again the same passage in Eph. 4:4 says, "There is ONE body, and the body is the church (Eph. 1:22-23; 1 Cor. 12:20). Truth is narrow; error is broad.

Are you narrow-minded or broad-minded in religion? You are cordially invited to worship with us at the Providence church of Christ and participate in New Testament Christianity. We speak where the Bible speaks, and remain silent where the Bible is silent.

Oakwood program recognized as national model

Oakwood Intermediate Care Facility, in Somerset has been recognized as a national model residential program for the mentally retarded.

The designation was made by the U.S. Department for Health and Human Services.

Oakwood has been listed as one of the more outstanding facilities in the nation, said Commissioner Dennis Boyd of the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services.

Because of its designation as a model program, teams from similar facilities across the nation will be encouraged to visit Oakwood and examine its methods and services provided to the residents.

The designation was made after a monitoring survey by the federal Health Care Financing Administration, a branch of HHS.

"It is obvious that great efforts are being made by the staff of Oakwood to achieve an excellence of programming," said Clarence J. Boone, associate regional administrator in the HCA, Division of Health Standards and Quality, which conducted the survey.

Boyd praised facility director Harold Cole and Oakwood's entire staff for the accomplishment.

"This honor should be especially significant to the families and friends of Oakwood residents," he said. "We've been saying for some time that Kentucky is continuing to lead the country in seeking to improve the quality of life for the mentally retarded person. It's nice to receive national recognition for those efforts."

The honor represents another step in Oakwood's quest to become the best "home" it possibly can for its 420 residents, according to Cole.

In December, we were accredited by the Accreditation Council on Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities," said Cole. "We have also received consecutive 'superior' ratings from the state Division for Licensing and Regulation."

To dispel the image of a mental retardation facility as a dreary, institutional houses, its residents in cottages where they take care of their own areas and can enjoy many activities in the cottage's game rooms. Cottages are supervised 24 hours a day to

Fairview

By: Mrs. Hubert Chasteen

Rev. Harvey Penson filled his regular appointment at the Fairview Baptist Church, Sunday, March 9, with good attendance. Sunday School attendance was 135 for which we are so thankful.

Well, after some time I'm glad to be able to write my news column again. But in the meantime, death and sickness has entered many homes and caused much suffering and sorrow.

We extend our deepest heart-felt sympathy to the families of Ira Reppert of Crossville, Tenn., John T. Stephens of the Scaffold Cane area, Dan Moore of Berea, Bill Dean of Vandalia, Ohio and Buford Holbrook of Dayton, Ohio. May God bless and comfort their loved ones in their sorrow.

All of Ira's brothers and sisters were in Crossville for visitation Thursday night, March 6, and attended the funeral on Friday, along with around 30 other relatives who had arrived that day. Bless his heart, he was a dear, sweet brother. I loved him so much, and we are going to miss him. I had talked to him by phone the week before he died, and we had planned on going back to see Everett's family in Illinois soon. But God called him away Wednesday morning, March 5, and now he is with Mom and Dad and our other brothers and sisters in Heaven. I just thank God for letting him be my brother and for the love we had for each other. (Cora, you and the children have my love and prayers. God bless you.)

We will also miss Mr. Stephens. I've known him most of my life and he has always been a good neighbor. We have always loved him and his family.

Please remember to pray for all these who have lost loved ones. There is much heartache, sorrow and trouble in our world today, and we all need to love and pray for each other.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cope last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Hensley and Mrs. Helen Powell and grandchild.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Chasteen last Friday were Eugene Alexander and son, Kenneth, and Rev. Davidson and daughter, Jenia.

Tip Reppert and son, Ronnie, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Estil Saylor of Lynn, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. Junior Chasteen and son, Rodney, of Berea visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Chasteen, and his sister, Darlene Church, and her daughters last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Scoria visited his relatives in Virginia a few days. On their way home they stopped here to see Aunt Edith Mullins, and had supper with Hubert and me, and then spent the night at the home of her brother, Tip Reppert, and family last Wednesday.

On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Alexander visited Mr. and Mrs. Edd Gabbard of Berea and visited Bradley Mullins in the Berea Hospital and Mrs. Charlene Hall in Pattie A. Clay Hospital in Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cope of Dayton, Ohio spent last weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cope, and attended church at Fairview on Sunday morning. On Sunday, March 9, those who visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Jett of Jackson were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Alexander and Kenneth and Mrs. Jewell Davidson and children.

Bernie and Dorothy Stephens and daughters, Ami and Jenny, of Taylor Mill, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stephens, of Rockford, in the Scaffold Cane area. Others joining them at the Stephens home Saturday night were Tom and Lora Lee Mink and daughters, Sherri and Ginger, of Brindle Ridge; Donnie and Joyce Stephens and daughter, Michelle, of Rockford; Heather Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Reynolds, also
