NEWS OF NUTRITION

Stress Can Lead To Nutrient Deficiencies

According to recent studies reported in Modern Nutrition News, stress is the leading cause of nutrient deficiencies, depleting the body of many essential vitamins and minerals.

Physical and emotional stress brought on by such varied factors as overwork, anxiety and illness uses up our body's reserves of magnesium, vitamin C, the B-complex vitamins, and other vital nutrients.

The problem is compounded by the fact that these nutrients play an important role in the regulation of stress, and a nutritional imbalance may reduce ability to withstand such pressure. The ensuing vicious cycle may produce insomnia, nervous disorders, diarrhea, fatigue, and depression. In fact, recent research indicates even some forms of heart disease may be caused by a nutrient deficiency.

Clinical studies conclude people who are vulnerable to stress must take particular care to avoid certain over-the-counter and prescription drugs, as well as alcohol and tobacco.

Nutritionists believe the ideal way to combat stress-related nutritional deficiencies is with a well-balanced diet: low in fat and cholesterol and high in fresh fruits and vegetables, legumes, whole grains, seeds and nuts. Such a diet provides a high level of most vitamins and minerals, subsequently increasing our tolerance of stress.

According to Modern Nutrition News, even with a healthy diet, many people may occasionally suffer from vitamin and mineral deficiencies brought on by excess stress. To further increase tolerance of stress and benefit overall health, many nutritionists recommend regular use of dietary supplements which contain a high potency B-complex formula, 400 milligrams of magnesium, one gram each of vitamin C and calcium, and lesser amounts of iron and zinc.

Four fires extinguished

Four fires, two of which were in cars, were extinguished by the Mt. Vernon Volunteer Fire Department during the week.

A car belonging to Robert Phelps was destroyed by fire on Clef Rock Road at Pongo on Dec. 27. The fire started after the car backfired through the carburetor.

Fire Chief John Cox, on his way to Lexington, extinguished a fire in a car owned by Ralph Powell of the Red Hill area. The car was on I-75 north of the Renfro Valley interchange. There was some damage.

The department made a second call within a few days to the home of Randall Vanhoose on Barnett Road on Christmas Day to extinguish a flue fire. The flue had been repaired after a previous fire several days ago.

It took two trips before a fire was extinguished in a garbage dumpster at Pine Hill on Dec. 26 and Dec. 27. It was the same garbage that had been dumped on the ground to be put out, but re-caught.

Rockcastle River was proposed again. It was not to be, again.

September

Livingston Homecoming was successful and well attended. A $9,000 garbage bill was handed fiscal court. It was to be one of many. Bones were found by David Mason in Red Hill area. Charles E. Richmond was shot to death on Conway Hollow Road. William K. Bullen asked Circuit Court for an injunction to prevent Bee Garbage from collecting in Mt. Vernon. Judge Venters rejected the request.

October

Mayor Roland Mullins notified the city council he would move out of the city and resign on Dec. 8. The guessing game of a replacement for the mayor began. More complaints filed by Bullen over garbage. Bee charged that Bullen franchise questionable. Shooting claims life of Randall Adams. Hundred of youngsters and many older rode the last passenger train through Rockcastle. U.K. Medical Center said the county owed a $71,000 bill. A new Family Dollar Store was announced for Westgate. The Mt. Vernon City Council chose Crawford and Crawford, engineers of Burnside, to oversee the city's $300,000 water project.

November

Joe Lambert, Rudolph Burdette, Sen. Wendell Ford were the voters choices in the general election. Rains began early in the month and was to continue off and on through November. Judge McGuire dismissed seven drunk driving cases. Magistrates surprised at the $97,160 price tag for county jail renovation that was urged by state. Renfro Valley barnyards came back under Lair family ownership. Dr. Rudolph Burdette honored by local farmers. Asbestos at the courthouse had to be removed the state said. Tobacco sales opened lower.

December

City employees bid Mayor Roland Mullins farwell. Fiscal Court voted to include cities in the county's garbage plan. Fiscal court voted to borrow money for jail renovation. Mrs. Elizabeth Baker was appointed mayor of Mt. Vernon by the city council. Santa Claus came to Mt. Vernon and Brodhead. Judge Venters voided Bullen's city garbage franchise. Fiscal court interviewed garbage coordinator applicants. Sons charged in murder of their father. John Dillingham. Bee Garbage got a privilege license in Mt. Vernon cities to be involved." Bishop explained, "But we must get this program started."

He suggested the cities have representatives at all planning sessions to discuss costs and other details.

Actually, that official notice to the cities informing them that within a year, if necessary, the cities will be part of the county's solid waste program is being composed. That was clear at a meeting of the fiscal court Dec. 23 when the court asked County Attorney James H. Lambert to draw up a letter to send to the three cities.

The court will designate someone to sign the letter before, or at the next court meeting on Jan. 6.

Mayor Baker confirmed she would designate someone to attend the meeting to represent the city and cooperate with the court.

The city may have its own solid waste problem soon. Bill Harby, a representative of Schimpfer-Corradino Associates of Louisville, told the council the city must make plans to transport dry sludge from the remodeled and expanded city sewer plant to an authorized landfill, if not in the county, then outside the county.

He said sludge removal had to be done regularly and the council should begin thinking about where to put it. He said it was no small undertaking.

The council discussed the Lake Linville boat dock at the meeting with current lessee Jimmy Hale whose contract expires Dec. 31, but who has until March to inform the city of his intentions to renew or give up the dock.

Hale told the council he would like to renew the lease.

Councilman Weint told state there would have to be some changes in operations at the lake, and more details written up concerning operations before a decision is made by the council.

Council. Fiscal Court, like all government bodies, got zapped by insurance premiums. Gatliff Craig retired from Cumberland Valley Area Development District after 17 years. Spout Spring got a new look, and the first draft of a garbage plan went to the fiscal court.

May

Mt. Vernon Police Commission grumbled over city's failure to act on suggestions. Livingston's impressive new housing for the elderly was well underway. A Negro cemetery on Richmond Street in Mt. Vernon was cleaned by volunteers. A final garbage plan got fiscal court approval. County agriculture agencies moved from the courthouse to the old Western Auto building. Drought conditions caught up with Rockcastle and a too-big blast damaged houses near the new Mt. Vernon bypass. Death claimed R.H. Hamm. On May 27, the signal was in the news when fire damaged the building in Mt. Vernon. Attorney Joseph Lambert won the primary for a chance at a seat on the Kentucky Supreme Court. He also won in November.

ries. Mt. Vernon Council began its planned annexation. Mark Bray was honored for heroism by the city, and later, by the governor. It was a hot, hot July but 6,000 turned out for Old Joe Clark's Bluegrass Festival at Renfro Valley. U.S. Senator Mitch McConnell visited Mt. Vernon, and Billy Riddle retired from teaching and coaching after 22 years. Brodhead 1986-87 budget was lower than the 1985-86. The Arts Council play was scheduled and the election campaign began. Tommy B. Burdette was shot to death on Conway Hollow Road.

August

A hassle over ownership of Lake Linville road (Oak Hill Road) began. Later, it was found it belonged to the county, not Mt. Vernon. The city started filling in an area on East Main Street to build a new fire station. The school budget was set at $6 million. Some Livingston residents opposed garbage collection in their city under the county plan. Miss Ruth McFerron died at her home, and a hay lift started in the county. Fire destroyed Willailla Feed and Supply. Natalie Pybas was chosen Miss Rockcastle. A dam on the Work slows on by-pass . . .

June

First rumor that the Seaboard railroad would abandon the line from Rockcastle Industrial park to Lebanon was heard. When and if, still remained a question at year's end. Several hundred turned out for an auto show at Renfro Valley. The county budget went over the million dollar mark. Former State Representative Harold DeMarcus died and Martha Wesley, Rockcastle 4-H agent let for her new post in Versailles. Former Rockcastle Attorney Edwin R. Denney died unexpectedly in Lexington. The fiscal court decided to use some of its state road money ($423,000) for administrative and salary purposes.

Tobacco markets will re-open on January 5th and when it is all said and done Rockcastle County farmers will have sold almost 2.5 million pounds of leaf, which will generate approximately 4 million dollars for this county. While that sounds like a lot and is, it is a far cry from three years ago when the same tobacco farmers would have brought nearly 6 million dollars into the county.

"That fact has affected everyone and not just the farmer," Ballinger said. "When you take two million dollars income from a county, our size it hurts," he said.

As far as leaving tobacco for next year goes, Ballinger thinks that most people will only pay around 50 cents a pound for the right to use someone else's card but he said that could vary from 40 cents a pound in some cases to 55 in others.

Year ends with 7 murders, 3 fatalities

By: Ray McClure

Rockcastle County set a possible record for murders in 1986 with a total of seven, the most since Billy Dowell became coroner 21 years ago.

Though murders were down, traffic fatalities were down with only three reported in the county during the year.

Most unusual and bazaar murder remains unsolved. The burned bodies of Jackie McHargue and Emma Ingrassia were found in the back seat of his burned out station wagon on Mullins Station Road in October. The mystery continues.

The only local person in a fatal accident was Danny Ray Coffey of Mt. Vernon who died when his auto struck a telephone pole on West Main Street in Mt. Vernon on Nov. 20.

In January, a new Kentucky Judge/Executive, Hubert Thacker, and five new magistrates took over direction of the county as the Rockcastle Fiscal Court.

They immediately found a major problem awaiting them, one that still haunts them as the year comes to an end.

The court took over under a state mandate to solve the county's garbage problem, or else. During the year a plan was devised and approved by the state. At the end of the year, the court had begun to implement the program that is now a year behind schedule.

A month by month account of news stories are noted below:

January

In January, construction began on a truck plaza at the Renfro Valley interchange. It opened late in the year. The flu bug struck in January keeping scores of youngsters out of school. The city of Mt. Vernon got more grant money for its $1.9 million sewer project. The first snow arrived late in the month. It was light. Rep. Danny Ford saved a choking legislative employee by using the Heimlich Maneuver on the Kentucky House floor.

February

In February, Brothead was named in a suit over an arrest at the fair, and work began on the Ky. 461 bypass around Mt. Vernon. On Feb. 9, Jerry Glen Bryant was killed accidentally by a gunshot at a Mt. Vernon home. The heaviest snow-eight inches came on Feb. 12. Tests of an area near Pine Hill where a landfill was proposed proved Livingston water could be easily contaminated. Mrs. Gettrude Hilton sold her home on Richmond Street for a drugstore. It was under construction at year's end. Value of county crops was estimated at $13 million.

March

In March, work began on the

Mt. Vernon sewer system expansion. Forest fires began in the county with several reported by the end of the season, burning over 500 acres. The old caboose at Mt. Vernon was reported rusting away and refinishing was planned. It was still rusting at year's end. Former Commonwealth Attorney Lester Burns was indicted on 20 counts of fraud. He's still in court. Work began replacing two bridges on U.S. 150 near Brothead. They were in service in December. Rockcastle County Hospital got a new X-ray system.

April

Sheriff Clarence Hasty berated Christian Appalachian Project for failure to pay taxes. It didn't help. The City of Brothead revived a planned new fire house. It was completed late in the year. First thoughts of annexation surfaced in the Mt. Vernon City

In the weeks ahead

And now, 1987. What's in store for the county during the year? The few residents we asked for predictions, did their predicting with caution:

During the coming year, the public will hear more and more about solid waste (garbage) as the fiscal court wrestles to get its plan under way, and at the same time please the Kentucky Environmental Cabinet.

There'll also be news on the county jail which the state says must be remodeled, or closed, or something.

Watched will be new Mt. Vernon Mayor Elizabeth Baker to see how she handles her new position.

There'll also be a lot of talk about races for Governor of Kentucky, Commonwealth Attorney for Rockcastle-Pulaski, and Rockcastle Circuit Court Clerk, followed by a spirited campaign.

A new Ky. 461 bypass will be completed around Mt. Vernon and there'll be less boat traffic through the city. Renfro Valley could have its biggest year in years.

Mt. Vernon will have at least two new stores—Family Dollar Store and Fire Aid Pharmacy. Maybe, another small factory will locate in the Rockcastle Industrial Park, maybe.

Mt. Vernon will annex several areas to the city. A new elementary school at Mt. Vernon could get under way during 1987.

Gatherings of various kinds will have considerable success, including the Little World's Fair, Old Joe Clark's Bluegrass Festival, Lasses Makin' Festival and Livingston Homecoming.

The summer will not be nearly as dry as 1986, the Weather Service believes—or guesses.

Magistrates paint gloomy picture: court operates on borrowed time

By: Ray McClure

The county "will be over $42,000 in the red by July," and "operating on borrowed time," county magistrates sadly informed the Mt. Vernon City Council at a pre-Christmas meeting Dec. 21.

The "red" had nothing to do with Christmas. It was red ink. Magistrate Doug Bishop was talking about, brought on by the $8,000 a month, sometimes more, the county has to spend to transport garbage to a Laurel County landfill.

The magistrates visited the council to ask for the city's cooperation, and to become a part of the county's solid waste management area.

Magistrate Bishop, speaking for the magistrates who attended (Donald Bullock, Amos Burdette, Glen Ellison) told the council the county must have Mt. Vernon, Brothead, and eventually, Livingston in the county plan for economic reasons, and the court hoped the cities would cooperate to make the county plan workable.

"We are not trying to force you to do anything," Bishop said. "But in order for the plan to be acceptable to the state and to a franchisee and be successful, the cities must be involved."

He said the court inherited the garbage plan from the previous court that had been mandated by the state to come up with a plan. That plan cost $16,500 that went to Cumberland Valley Area Development District at London to devise a plan the state would accept. He stressed again the program could not be managed profitably for the county and the person who bids the franchise unless the cities are part of it.

"We have reached the point where the money we must spend to have garbage removed from dumpsters is draining the county," he noted, and indicated the county is at the breaking point financially.

"We must get the program under way as soon as possible," he concluded.

Mayor Elizabeth Baker told the magistrates the city would cooperate and work something out with the court. But she said she and the council would like more details, including monthly charges, before agreeing to the city's request.

Councilmen Tom Welch, Jerry Pensol and Les Harris, the three councilmen who attended the meeting agreed with the mayor on more details.

They were also skeptical that a voluntary plan for the county would work under any conditions.

Councilman Welch said he doubted very many residents would pay to have their trash hauled off unless forced to, or that there would be enough residents who would volunteer to satisfy the state.

The state is talking about 80 percent compliance eventually. "But then, I guess you'll take us in anyway," Councilman Harris remarked.

Bishop conceded that after a one-year official notice the county could, under State Statutes, include the city in the program.

"But we must try to force

Tobacco again major county crop

By: Rick Anderkin

By the time everyone got through with the local tobacco farmer's check, most county growers got home with an average price of a $1.48 per pound, according to the Agricultural and Stabilization Director Harold Ballinger. Ballinger said Tuesday that approximately 85 percent of Rockcastle's tobacco farmers have sold their tobacco and that the average price paid for the leaf was $1.58, which was pretty good considering the state average was just below that.

The federal price support, which was cut by three cents a week before tobacco markets opened across the state, was $1.45 and Ballinger said that only about seven percent of the burley crop has gone into the government pool with the rest being bought by the tobacco companies.

The reasons most farmers got their tobacco actually brought were higher selling fees, this year and having to pay to support the government pool. But overall Ballinger said that he thinks most tobacco farmers were somewhat satisfied with the price.

"Of course they would have liked to have gotten more but I think most farmers got about what they expected and were counting on," he said.

Basically the tobacco program is on the upbeat. Ballinger explained, because the government pool is almost completely depleted and because new trade agreements have been worked out with Japan and South Korea and other common market countries.

"That is only my opinion, but I really think the tobacco program will stay in pretty good shape for the next five years, and I don't foresee any big changes next year," Ballinger said. "I think quotas, which were cut six percent this year, will remain the same and the price will be comparable to this year."

"You can still make money by growing your own tobacco if you

Area residents sound off on garbage

In 1987, a voluntary garbage plan will be put in effect county-wide. Do you approve of it and do you think it will be successful?

Kim Bond, Brush Creek, No. because I don't think it will provide proper service for the whole county. The program might work if they would but I don't think they will.

Charles Carter, Mt. Vernon. I think it ought to be mandatory. If they are going to have a good plan it must be mandatory. I don't think enough people will participate if it's not.

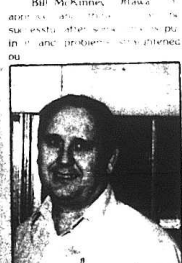

Dennis DeBorda, Parr-Rigby Road, No. because we have our own way of disposing of garbage and a lot of other people do too. So I can't think they will participate voluntarily.

Raymond Ballinger, Mt. Vernon. I'm not going to pay unless they force it. And I think that is the way most people feel. I don't have much garbage and I don't think a voluntary system will work.

Myrna Childress, Parr-Rigby Road. Yes. I think it would be a good idea. The county does need one, and I hope it would be successful and it could be if done properly. I would like to see this county take some interest in more things and we might as well start with the garbage problem.

Junior Owens, Burr, No. because it would not create any advantage for people who always take care of their own garbage.

John Hedge, Mt. Vernon. I've not studied the plan enough to know whether it could be successful or not. But the county does need some kind of uniform garbage plan.

Rogers sees Far East markets being opened to products from U.S.

Fifth District Congressman Harold Rogers said Far East Markets are beginning to open to American-made products because of concern over possible trade legislation in Congress.

Rogers, who just returned from a nine-day visit to Korea, Taiwan and Thailand, said Asian trading nations are responding to what he called "the fear of trade retaliation" from Washington.

"These countries saw that last year, we very nearly passed a major textile trade bill which would have reduced Asian exports of clothing to the United States," said Rogers. "And with the new Congress coming in next month, they see those pressures for action growing."

Rogers said both Korea and Taiwan have recently agreed to open their markets to American cigarettes and tobacco, but said it remains to be seen how much that will help Kentucky tobacco growers.

"After so many years of barring American tobacco products, it will likely be some time before we see major improvements in our tobacco sales," Rogers said. "But I pushed each nation's trade leaders to buy more Kentucky and American tobacco and coal, so that we can reduce the trade deficits we have with those countries."

While in Korea, Rogers gave a speech to Korean trade interests, urging that nation in particular to buy more American coal to offset Korea's $4 billion-a-year trade surplus with the United States.

Rogers was part of a 10-member congressional delegation which went on the Asian trip.

Farm Credit Services will consolidate offices Jan. 5

Effective January 5, 1987, local P.O. and Federal Land Bank borrowers of Farm Credit Services in Rockcastle County will be served from the office located in London. The London Farm Credit Services Office is located at 1106 S. Main and the phone number is 945-598. Members will have the option of having their loans serviced at the Farm Credit Services office in Somerset if that would be more convenient for them.

The move to close the Mt. Vernon office is being made to improve the efficiency of Farm Credit Services through reducing operating costs and to be in a better position to offer the borrower lower interest rates.

According to Joseph E. Hafley, Chief Operating Officer of Farm Credit Services, Southeast Kentucky, "the consolidation of offices is part of a two-year plan to respond to the crisis in the agricultural economy and the high interest rates. The move will not affect any current member's loan structure in any way and we feel confident that the quality of service will be maintained."

Hafley stressed that while there will no longer be a business office in Mt. Vernon, loan officers will still be available to work with local customers on an individual basis. "We're not trying to withdraw our operations in Rockcastle County. There just won't be a building there," he said. "We still want to be accessible and serve the financial needs of the community," added Hafley. In fact, Hafley said they plan on making a more personalized effort to fulfill their borrowers' needs by traveling to their homes at the customers' convenience.

Loan Officers Gary Allen, Gerald Gilbert and Barry Turner, Branch Assistants Jewell Hansel, Pat Baker and Daisy Block, and Branch Manager Charles Cornett, will be available to service local customers.

Farm Credit Services is a member-owned financial cooperative which provides short, intermediate and long term credit and financial services to farmers and rural residents.

Free trees being given by foundation

The National Arbor Day Foundation is giving ten free trees to people who become Foundation members during January, 1987.

The free trees are part of the Foundation's effort to promote tree planting throughout America.

A Sugar Maple, White Flowering Dogwood, Pin Oak, White Pine, Red Maple, Birch, American Redbud, Silver Maple, Red Oak and Colorado Blue Spruce tree will be given to members joining during January.

These trees were selected to provide benefits every season of the year: lovely spring flowers, cool summer shade, spectacular autumn colors, and winter berries and nesting sites for songbirds, according to the Foundation. The six to twelve inch trees will be shipped postage paid with enclosed planting instructions at the right time for planting this spring. The Foundation makes its spring shipments between February 1 and May 31, depending on the local climate and this year's weather.

"The National Arbor Day Foundation, a nonprofit organization, is working to improve the quality of life throughout the country by encouraging tree planting. The Foundation will give the ten free trees to members contributing $10 during January. To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, a $10 membership contribution should be sent to: Ten Trees, National ArborDay Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by January 31, 1987.

First sign-up period of year for ACP is Jan. 1 - Feb. 15

The first 1987 sign-up period for the Agriculture Conservation Program (ACP) is Jan. 1 through Feb. 15, according to Berton Bullock, chairman of the Rockcastle Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee (ASCS).

Bullock reported that practices available to the farmers of this county include seedings, water conservation and forestry practices. A more detailed list of the practices available for this period is available in the county office.

Seeding practices, both new seedings and renovations must first have a current soil sample in the County Extension Office before signing for cost-sharing.

Bullock further stated that since Rockcastle County under new variable cost-sharing method, all requests will be evaluated at the end of the sign-up period and only those practices which obtain the most conservation such as to the saving of soil will be as high as 75 percent of the actual cost of the practice under this new variable cost-sharing method.

All requests must be filed and approved by the ASCS Committee prior to the starting of work pertaining to the practice.

Participants receiving approvals of ACP-245's are urged to carefully read the ACP-245 request form and to do the work according to the instructions contained therein. Special attention should be given to the extend approved block of the approved ACP-245 as this could differ from the extend requested.

Bullock urged Rockcastle County farmers interested in applying for ACP cost-sharing practices to bring their soil samples to the county agent's office as soon as possible. A soil sample must be turned in to the county agent's office before signing up for a cost-share practice.

family finances

Back in colonial times, and well into the 19th century, money for paying medical bills was often hard to come by, especially in the rural areas of our country. Therefore, the old country doctor was often paid for his services with livestock or some other products from the farm.

These days, many government workers have found an easy and reliable way to get quality medical care for less. It's through the Alliance Health Benefit Plan of the National Alliance of Postal and Federal Employees. It offers a prescription drug program, increased coverage for dental exams, exclusive dental services, expanded maternity care benefits, expanded full coverage for hospital care, accident insurance and more. Problems in rural schools discussed on "Headwaters"

"I'm What This Is All About" presents a look at the complex issues that face parents and educators in rural schools when it airs as part of the "Headwaters" series Tuesday, Jan. 6, at 7 p.m.

Produced in conjunction with a rural West Virginia parents group, "I'm What This Is All About" examines issues facing the rural school today: consolidation, taxation and funding, patronage in school systems, education of children with special needs and parent and community involvement.

Betty Jones was hired by the Lincoln (W.Va.) County Board of Education in 1968 to teach at Hamlin Elementary School. "I was very shocked when I first went into the school," she says. "Dogs came into the building and flies were everywhere."

Jones later became principal of Hamlin Elementary and saw a great need for improvement. She made the teachers start grading papers and grading student performance. The school decided to stop grouping the students by ability because it was felt that students could learn from each other and segregation by ability also eased social disadvantages.

Not everyone liked the changes Jones implemented. In 1981, Jones was sent before a hearing of the Lincoln County Board of Education. Despite support from the parents of children who lived in the rural areas, Jones was found guilty of such charges of misappropriation of funds, using supplementary texts and not implementing the county reading program. She was demoted and transferred to another school.

A reporter who covered Jones' story, Beth Spencer, said that the Jones case sparked similar issues in the area. "Everything seemed to go back to the education issue and control of the education establishment by politicians," she said.

A parent in Lincoln County brought suit because her child attended a school where she never crossed the playground. Seven years later, Judge Arthur Recht rendered a decision that "the West Virginia schools simply did not conform to a high quality system of education" and ordered a complete reconstruction.

However, Linda Martin, a Lincoln County PTA member, says she knew there would be trouble when the State Department of Education was put in charge of the reformation. Instead of reforming the school system to focus on the needs of the children, she says the board decided to build a few more schools and institute consolidation.

At the Third Anniversary rally of the Recht decision, teachers and parents from rural areas spoke to crowds about their frustrations and about the treatment their children receive. The parents' group stand is that the Recht decision was correct in stating that all children deserve a first-rate education, but something happened when the State Department of Education was allowed to administer the reformation. Local and state administrators deny allegations made by parents and teachers, and say their frustrations have no basis.

"Headwaters" is produced by Appalshop, a non-profit media arts center located in Whitesburg. It is funded in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

DAR news

The Rockcastle Chapter DAR met on Tuesday, Dec. 9, at the home of Mrs. Jeffrey Stephen Owens with Mrs. Owens, Regent, presiding.

Master Jeffrey Owen, age 7, opened the meeting by playing "We Three Kings of Orient Are" on the piano.

Miss Mary Alice Hunt was elected delegate to the Ninety First Annual State Conference of the Kentucky Society DAR to be held in Lexington in March. Mrs. Wallace Williams and Mrs. Raymond Towery were elected alternates.

Reports for State and National Committees were discussed. It was reported that Miss Janie Ramsey, chapter chairman for DAR Service for Veteran Patients committee, had made 100 lap robes for patients in the Lexington V.A. Hospital.

The National Society DAR supports two school, in the Appalachia area - Tamassew DAR School in South Carolina and Kate Duncan Smith DAR School in Alabama which is the only junior-senior high school in a 100-mile radius. DAR members also contribute to four other schools in form of clothing, gifts and scholarships. The hostess, assisted by her sisters, Mrs. Gary Cromer and

Mrs. Michael Barr, served delicious refreshments. The beautifully decorated house added to the enjoyment of the evening.

License fees up slightly for 1987

The start of another year marks the time hunters and fishermen across the state usually head to the county courthouse or a sporting goods store to purchase hunting and fishing licenses for the new year.

During the March 1986 meeting of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Commission, fees for resident hunting, fishing and combination licenses were increased $1 over last year. A 1987 hunting license costs $8.50, fishing license $8.50 and combination license $15.

A few changes were made in the types of licenses offered by the department, especially to non-resident sportsmen. A non-resident annual hunting license will cost $75 for the 1987 season, an increase of $35 from the 1986 fee of $40.

Instead of a three-day hunting license for non-residents, however, there will be a five-day hunting license available to non-residents for $20. This will allow sportsmen from other states to visit Kentucky and hunt for a week instead of just a weekend on this type of special license. Many times five consecutive days may be better than three, simply because one day of bad weather can ruin a three-day trip, yet with a five-day trip a sportsman can usually salvage a decent hunting experience.

The five-day hunting license will be handy particularly for those four- and five-day weekends at Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's. Hunters who live out-of-state and take their two-week vacations in Kentucky during a specific season will find purchasing two five-day licenses both more convenient than the three-day and less expensive than an annual license.

Fishing licenses for non-residents have received some similar changes. In place of three-day and 15-day fishing licenses, there will be only a 10-day license for sportsmen who do not want to purchase an annual non-resident license. The 10-day license costs $10.

Hunting and fishing have always been bargain pastimes. Residents can enjoy either or both for the entire year for about the same as it would cost to go out to dinner and take in a movie just one time. There aren't too many leisure activities we can engage in over a year's time for under $20.

Hunting, fishing and the simple pleasure of the outdoors are things every person should have the opportunity to experience. (Cont. To 7)

PATCH OUT FOR WINTER DRIVING HAZARDS

The potential for hazardous motoring conditions in winter, caused by poor visibility through the windshield, can be minimized if the car owner takes proper precautions.

"The build-up of ice and snow on windshield wipers annually hampers driving visibility for millions of Americans," according to Larry Koles, assistant director of technical programs for Anco, a manufacturer of windshield wiper products. "Crucial decisions—like when to stop or whether to pass a car—depend on a driver's ability to see clearly and make critical split-second judgments."

In fact, Koles said, 90 percent of driver decisions made behind the wheel are based on vision.

One product on the market, rapidly gaining in popularity with American motorists, is the specially-designed winter wiper blade. The wiper is covered with a rubber "boot" which keeps moisture away from the working parts of the wiper, allowing it to move and clear more easily, even during snow and ice storms.

Use of winter blades has grown over the last six years from 6 percent of the automotive population to 10 percent, with higher usage occurring in the northern and eastern portions of the country, Anco stated.

In a report issued this year, a testing committee of the National Safety Council has concluded that winter windshield wiper blades are superior to conventional winter wiper blades and ice chasers.

Members of the Council's Winter Driving Hazards Committee made side-by-side comparisons of the blades during four months of winter driving. Nearly 70 percent of those performing the tests—all familiar with cold weather testing procedures—said winter blades were better than regular wipers. Of those participating, 88 percent acknowledged that they had experienced problems in past winters with the wiper quality of regular blades.

To assist motorists in preparing to handle the visibility challenges of winter, Anco offers six safety suggestions:

1. Windshield wipers should be examined periodically and cleaned with soap and water to improve their effectiveness. They should be replaced at least once a year, and a good time is just before the winter weather begins.
2. Consider using winter wiper blades, designed especially for snow and ice conditions.
3. Make sure the windshield washer reservoir is filled, and in winter, be certain antifreeze has been added.
4. Wipe road grime or snow and ice from headlights and taillights, so you can see and be seen by other motorists.
5. Clean snow from all portions of the car, so it won't blow right back on windows when the vehicle begins moving.
6. When first starting a car after a freezing rain or snow, don't immediately turn on the wipers. If they are frozen to the windshield, the rubber on the wipers may be torn away or the wiper motor harmed. Gently lift the wipers from the window first, making sure tiny pieces of rubber are not torn off. Often a plastic credit card, slid carefully under the edge of the wiper will loosen it.

Rockets lose to Monticello in Wayne County Invitational, Saturday 82-48

Junior point guard Tim Hodges drives for the basket in an earlier game this season. The Rockets lost their third game of the season Saturday to undefeated Monticello 82-48. Hodges and the rest of the Rockets had several turn-overs in the game after Monticello put on a full court press. Also pictured above is Senior Johnny Kirby, No. 44, who scored 20 points in a losing effort. The Rockets were behind by only 6 at halftime but the second half press proved their doom. The girls' next game is Saturday at home against Madison Central and the boys will play Tuesday night at home against Corbin.

Health Bound Year 'Round

By: Jon M. Strauss, M.D.

"But, Doc. I can't understand it! I never eat anything! How come I am overweight? How come I am not losing weight?"

I find that people spend a lot of time thinking about their weight. They think about it, but it's really too embarrassing for a lot of people to talk about. That's why when people come to talk to me about their weight, I really try to be careful about what I say. At the least little hint that I think that there is something funny or ugly or bad about being overweight can be very hurtful.

I want to be honest though. So, when someone tells me they are not eating anything and not losing weight, there is really only one thing I can say: "Impossible." Plain and simple. It is impossible to eat nothing and not lose weight.

"Well O.K." (they back off a little bit) "I don't mean nothing, but I don't eat much!" Even so, it's still too much! If you aren't losing weight it is still too much. A lot of people don't believe me when I say this. They look at me like I am kidding but I am not.

I guess most people want to believe that there is some strange disease in the world which makes people heavy. Well I am here to tell you that it just ain't so. The fact is, there are only two ways to gain weight: eating too much and not exercising enough. When I try to explain this, I like to compare people to cars.

gas and they go. With people, you give them food, and they go. When a car runs out of gas, it stops. When people run out of "gas" they stop. If you give a car too much gas, it will spill out of the gas tank, but, if you give a person too much food the food doesn't just run out of the other end. It gets stocked away, in fat cells, for a rainy day. That is how most people gain weight. Oh, I will admit there are exceptions.

Take fluid weight gain for example. I don't know how many people come in to tell me they think they are gaining weight from fluid. This is horse feathers. The average person will gain or lose no more than 5-6 lbs. of fluid. The body doesn't hold on to any fluid longer than this. It can't. It will pass the extra fluid unless you have got bad kidneys, liver or heart disease and let me tell you, these diseases aren't hard to mistake. If you have got them, we will know it.

Getting back to cars, it is important to realize that just as cars are different, so are people. On the one hand you have got your racing car. These cars guzzle lots of gas, go very fast, run out of gas very quick. We all know people like this. They are usually thin as rails, always eating but always on the go too! These are the ones who people look at and say "eating can't have anything to do with weight. Look at how much they eat!" But these people need to eat because their engines are always racing.

Then you've got your economy model. Not a lot of pickup in these models but that's O.K. because a little gas will take them a long way. O.K., that is for cars, not necessarily for people. In your low "pickup" economy person a little food goes a long way and unfortunately mealtime "gasup" comes too soon. These people don't have to eat much to gain weight because their engines are in low gear.

I don't want to give you the wrong idea, there are actually diseases that tend to make people gain weight. But it's not what you think. You don't gain weight because these illnesses cause the mysterious overproduction of fat. No. But what happens is that these illnesses cause people engines to slow down so that you could have been a racing car type, guzzling the food whenever you like, then, whom! You get sick and all of a sudden you are not moving so fast. You become more like an economy model. You do less so you need to eat less.

If you continue to eat the same amount as before, you gain weight! The point is that the weight gain still comes from the change in eating and activity and not primarily from the disease.

So where does that leave us? Lots of people are overweight. They are not sick. They eat too much for the exercise they get. So then they ask "How do I eat less?" I tell them "That's a tough question." I will deal with the answer in my next article.

ence. However, the management and regulation of these resources is necessary to help assure the continued availability of opportunity for the sportsman and outdoor recreation lover. The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is the state agency responsible for managing and regulating hunting and fishing, yet its activities would be practically impossible without the aid of sportsmen.

When anglers and hunters purchase licenses, or commercial fishermen buy gear tags or musseling licenses, they are in effect paying for conservation and management of the resources they use for either enjoyment or a livelihood.

The opportunities for either sport can be as good or bad as sportsmen make it. Kentucky has long been considered the sportsman's paradise -- a Happy Hunting Ground. If you will, it is through the sale of hunting and fishing licenses we are able to help continue what nature began many years ago.

Fortunately we have not had too much problems with AIDS in this area compared with problems in other parts of the country. However, with the expected spread of this disease over the next few years and concern over its introduction into the heterosexual population it is obvious that our teenagers need to know more about it. In San Francisco over 1300 teenagers were given a questionnaire about their knowledge of the condition. Since this city has such a large problem with AIDS it was assumed that youth there would have more knowledge about it than elsewhere. What was learned was that even in San Francisco teenagers were woefully uniformed about AIDS. 92 percent knew it could be caused by sexual intercourse but only 60 percent knew use of a condom would reduce the risk. 40 percent thought you could catch it from use of someone's hairbrush or comb and 25 percent thought shaking hands could spread it. Only 50 percent knew it is now considered incurable. However, 88 percent wanted more education about it in schools.

This last point is important as it is likely that education on prevention is going to be the best and only means of slowing its spread over the next several years. We should all be concerned and push for more education on the subject in our schools.

Energy Efficiency May Save You Thousands

Many homes built today are very energy-efficient, but don't take that for granted. There are important energy efficiency features to consider such as proper levels of insulation, and caulking and weatherstripping of window and door frames. Does the house have storm windows and doors, or insulating glass and thermal doors?

Also, notice the orientation and shading of windows. Southern exposure windows can capture sunlight in the winter and help to heat the house, but make sure they are shaded in the summer so direct sunlight does not enter and heat up the house.

Probably the most important feature to consider when examining a home for its energy-efficiency is the type of energy used to fuel major household appliances. Second only to a homeowner's concern over high monthly-house payments is the concern over unmanageable monthly energy bills. The energy used may make a difference of thousands of dollars in terms of total energy costs.

A recent study indicates consumers have a preference for gas based cost, value, and efficiency. And if you are looking to build or buy a home beyond natural gas service you can still enjoy the benefits of gas by using propane gas.

Using propane gas rather than electricity for heating, water heating, cooking and clothes drying could reduce your monthly utility bills enough to be able to qualify for a mortgage on a more expensive home.

According to Department of Energy (DOE) appliance testing procedures and Representative Unit Costs of Energy, a home using propane gas for heating, water heating, cooking, and clothes drying on the average will spend $1,200 a year, or $100 per month in operating costs.

A home using electricity for the same applications will spend an average of $2,386, or $198 each month. Using propane instead of electricity results in savings of nearly $100 per month, or nearly 50% on your energy bills.

Today, more and more lending institutions are considering utility costs when evaluating a buyer's capability to purchase. With lower monthly utility bills realized with propane a buyer could qualify for an upgraded or more expensive home.

Monthly savings of $100 in energy costs could translate into a buyer's ability to qualify for a home worth $10,000 more than if he purchased an all-electric home.

A prospective home buyer should think carefully about the fuel he'll be using. If he makes a mistake he'll be paying dearly for it month after month.

We're proud of our 80th Anniversary

1907 - 1987

Back in 1862, when Mr. William H. Cox opened his wagon-making shop in the Wellhoop section of Rockcastle, he probably had little idea that his craftsmanship in making caskets for families who requested them would lead to a business that has been operated by his descendants for the next three generations. The Cox Funeral Home was established in 1907 by William A. Cox in the first Cox Funeral Parlor which was above what is now the C.C. Cox Hardware Store.

Later, the funeral parlor was moved to the building now occupied by Mt. Vernon Printing and was operated by W.A. Cox, his wife, Lola, and their son, W.H. Cox. In 1946, the business was moved to its present location. Buddy Cox has continued to serve Rockcastle County families, along with his wife, Shirley, his mother, Berneice and Garry R. Hansel. The goal of the Cox Funeral Home is the same as it was back in 1862, offering the very finest quality of service possible. We are proud of our tradition of funeral service and this pride is manifested by the quality service and professional excellence shown by our dedicated staff toward our community.

I just don't understand Judas. I wish I knew what motivated him to sell the Savior for thirty pieces of silver. Perhaps it was anger, greed or discontent. In the end, it really doesn't matter. Whatever the motivation, the deed was done. It troubles me that he committed suicide. How could he have lived with the Savior for so long and not grasped the willingness of Christ to forgive "ALL that labor and are heavy laden" with the burden of sin? (Matt. 11:28-30). It just didn't have to be. It didn't have to end this way for Judas. Jesus' action on behalf of Peter, Thomas and Paul tell me that must be true.

He forgave Peter who cursed and swore in his denial. What a difference a few hours can make. From the mountain top of vowing allegiance to the valley of denial can be a mighty short distance. This burly fisherman went out and "wept bitterly" (Matt. 26:75). But then he did something even better: he pulled himself together and spent the remainder of his life in service of the Lord whom he had once denied. And, true to His word, Christ FORGAVE him.

He forgave Thomas who was stubborn in his unbelief. "Except I shall see in His hands the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I WILL NOT BELIEVE" (John 20:25). How like Thomas we often are - willing to believe and obey but only on certain conditions, and we will set the conditions! But Thomas came to believe, and that without reservation. And, true to His word, Christ FORGAVE him.

He FORGAVE Paul, who, with a passion we can hardly imagine, persecuted the church of our Lord. Paul never could erase the scars in his mind of what he had done to his Savior. He would style himself "the Chiefest of sinners" (1 Tim. 1:15). In agony, he would cry, "O wretched man that I am! Who shall deliver me..." (Rom. 7:24). He knew the answer. True to His word, Christ FORGAVE him.

Peter the denier, Thomas the doubter, Paul the persecutor and it could have been Judas the traitor. Thank God that when we deny, when we doubt, when we by our sins, persecute the church, and yes, even when we sell our loyalty to the Savior to gain a few more of this world's trinkets or garner the favor and accolades of our fellow-man - even then, we are invited to come home. Genuine repentance can open the doors of heaven. It did for Peter, Thomas and Paul. And it can, no matter what your sin may be, for you as well. "And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely" (Rev. 22:17). CHRIST FORGIVES SINFUL MEN!
