

Mike Hansel relaxing while off duty in Vietnam.

several were killed, many wounded," Hansel remembers.

"Most were real good friends of mine," he said Monday. "I don't know if they lived or not."

That was on Christmas Eve of 1969, and the incident left a permanent impression on Hansel. He named his son Pat, for a man he knew on that patrol.

His unit was to sweep a section of road, looking for mines that may have been placed there the night before. He had nightmares, he said, for about 10 years, but feels he has since gotten over the hardest-hitting part of the emotions remaining from his Vietnam days.

Civilians planted those mines, he said. "We didn't kill civilians," he promised. "But, civilians did that to us. They were shrapnel mines, and they'd self-detonate as we'd pass them." Anyone caught in the middle was almost certain to be hit.

Hansel never made it into Saigon, the center of U.S. operations in Vietnam, before and during the war.

Instead, when his unit got a break, they went to Chuchi, a base camp that was all military.

There, men could relax a little, get a haircut, visit the post exchange and buy a few small items that helped make life a little more livable.

Hansel and his friends would make it in there "every six to eight weeks," he explained.

"They were called three day stand downs. We'd get in early the first day, then leave late the third day."

That gave his unit only one full day to enjoy the relative luxury of the camp.

The rest of the time was spent out in the bush, either bivouaced or on patrol.

But, that base camp "was like New York City to us. There were recreational facilities, where we could play basketball, sleep in a bed (actually a cot)," get something to eat or drink.

His unit even had to walk a lot early on during his tour. "Later on, we got to ride out to where ever we were going in helicopters," he explained.

But, when his unit was there, at first, "We walked almost everywhere. We'd walk so many thousand yards in any one direction" when on patrol.

He remembers that every day

He said he isn't sure whether the healing process in this country is complete yet, or not.

Certainly, there have been other incidents that have tried the mettle of this country.

There are almost certain to be others.

At least one latter day author, Gordon Prange, the late University of Maryland history professor who wrote a series of books on the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, says that the only modern comparison of attitudes after Pearl Harbor comes with the hostage crisis.

But, he noted, even that resolve to do something to restore order, north when compared with the American attitude and shock at the outbreak of our involvement in World War II.

But, Cromer is sure that the Vietnamese people he met didn't want American troops in their country.

Even at that, he knows, "They liked our money and material things."

But, healing?

"That has to be on an individual basis," he pointed out.

Since individuals react to different stresses at different temperaments, perhaps that helps explain why so many Vietnam vets still have problems with what they saw, did, or believed during that tumultuous decade of war, a war against those from without, and with those from within.

Floyd Baker

out in a (fox)hole."

But, as a Korean vet, Baker sees some similarities between his battles and those of the Vietnam vet.

"Korea was a politically motivated, no-win war," he says flatly.

"I think the political system (of no-win wars) started in Korea."

He also remembers getting very little respect from his fellow countrymen when he returned to civilian life.

But, there wasn't the continuous, civilian broil and uproar over what was going on there.

He thinks the on-going anger of the civilians during the Vietnam War was a major difference in the situations for the vets of the two conflicts.

"Vietnam had more stress than Korea. In Korea, we had a front line. The enemy was there, and those who were friendly were behind us. In Vietnam, you didn't really know who the enemy was."

But, Baker was honored for his participation with battle ribbons and other service ribbons, including one from the Korean government.

There are other major differences between Korea and Vietnam, even now.

American troops are still stationed in Korea, serving as part of a "watch dog" force saddled with the problem of keeping peace between South and North Korea.

Parols walk the outer limits of the DMZ (the demilitarized zone), a stretch of ground all the way across the country at about the 38th parallel, which separates the two ideologies.

American troops are still on full alert, and subject to being fired upon at any time.

The duty is often monotonous, even with the constant dangers.

And, every so often, someone dies, needlessly, as two clashing ideologies continue to tear at the fabric of a struggling nation.

Essentially, Korean War vets feel they proved nothing.

Elmer Alcorn

missions of mercy in the area. Missionaries who were captured or hiding from the Japanese had to be helped.

"We carried some missionaries out of the mountains at Hollandia," he retold. "They were poor people. Many of them were women."

At Leyte, Alcorn believes he was in the second wave of troops to hit the shore.

"I saw MacArthur come in," he said. "There were so many photographers around him, it was a sight. He came right up through that water, waist deep."

Alcorn was wounded in the battle for Ormoc Valley. "I was shot through the jaw," the now-72-year-old reported last week. "I lost my right eye, and I was also hit in the arm."

That ended the fighting for him. He was evacuated all the way back to the United States after that.

But, he can still remember fighting his way down a beach road to Tacloban, the capital of Leyte.

"On the road, right there, Japs were dead and as thick as you could see. Some died standing up, holding their rifles in their arms."

Ormoc, itself, was almost a disaster for U.S. troops.

Intelligence missed an estimate of the number of troops there.

"We thought we had wiped them out," Alcorn said. "But, they had landed 10,000 more."

His tour in the Philippines in 1944 seemed destined years before.

Alcorn had joined the Army on Sept. 11, 1941, almost three months before the attack on Pearl Harbor.

He was stationed at the Presidio, which sits almost under the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco.

"I was just out of basic (training)," he remembered. "We were scheduled to go to the Philippines in late November, and we were already loaded on ships to go."

But, with the attack on Hawaii and in the Philippines, the 24th was diverted to Hawaii on Dec. 17, then on to Sydney, Australia.

The troops were put on crowded trains for a trip to Rockhampton, near Darwin.

"It was like a cattle car," he said of the trip. "We were in full field packs, and we felt like a bunch of stock."

And, that was after a 21-day trip from Hawaii to Sydney.

He was back in the states before the end of the war scemed hot and wet, and that living conditions were minimal. But, because most were young, they accepted their lot to a degree. "There were some things 19-21-year-olds would do that a 30- or 40-year-old man would not put up with," he explained.

Hansel said he knew about the protest going on over here, but that he never had any personal confrontations with any of the "peace movement," as other servicemen did.

He said he also knew that many men were fleeing to Canada to avoid being sent to Vietnam.

"I couldn't (do that)," he said. "I'd go (to Vietnam) again, but I can understand."

Today, Hansel houses and feeds his family through his job with Kentucky Stone. He works in both Rockcastle and Somerset, depending on what needs to be done.

He thinks he's lucky to come from a small town where the politics of the war, and the war's treatment of those who fought was gentle and understanding, completely unlike some of the big cities and college towns where protests were the order of the day.

Even at that, Hansel is unsure at exactly what point in recent years he realized that the attitude of the American public began to change about the military, and the men within the military.

He says he simply isn't sure there was a point of realization.

Gary Cromer

Nov. 20, 1967, and didn't get back until Nov. 25, 1968.

During that time, his daughter Michelle was born.

He didn't even get to see her until she was 14 months old.

But, unlike other vets of the era, he thinks he saw a definite change of attitude towards servicemen and the military during the Iranian embassy hostage crisis.

He said he thinks that when some troops were killed out in the Iranian desert, trying to set up a rescue of the 53 Americans being held by zealot factions of the Shiite Moslems taking power in Iran at the time, then Americans began to return respect for the uniform.

"It was a failed attempt," he said. "But, at least, we had decided to do something."

FHA trips turns into movie chances

Danetta Ford, Lisa McClure and Cheryl Youcum took the opportunity to walk around Old Town in Albuquerque, N.M., following a Mexican ensemble that was part of the filming of a movie, "Sparks," which will be released in March. If the film's editors choose, the three girls will appear as "extras" in the movie, with the right cutting and editing of the film. They are RCHS students who were on a FHA trip over a week ago.

The FHA girls went to the meeting to exchange ideas and to meet others from around the country with similar interests.

Among the things brought back were ideas for:

- a peer education group, which would set up a mechanism for fellow students with problems to seek help from other students.

- Adopt-a-Road. The FHA would actually adopt a stretch of road, and see to it that it is cleaned up on a regular basis.

- Adopt-a-Grandparent. Students would find a senior citizen that might need, or like, some companionship, and make regular visits to that person. The visits could include any number of appropriate activities.

- Develop a plan to fight illiteracy in this community. Several organizations are already trying a number of ideas to help area citizens learn, or improve reading skills.

Stevens pointed out that the theme this year was "Make a Difference," and the ideas involved both individual and group efforts.

The local chapter of the FHA was to have met Wednesday afternoon to discuss these new ideas, and to update on projects already planned.

The whole FHA crew stops for a picture in front of one of the buildings at Tazoo, as they visited there following an FHA session near Sante Fe. It was the farthest a group has traveled during the school year from the county high school. A group of seven girls and seven adults made the five day trip, returning on Halloween.

NOTED SCHOLAR TO SPEAK ON MULTIPLE PERSONALITY DISORDER AT EKV NOV. 8

A well-known scholar on multiple personality disorders will speak at Eastern Kentucky University on Nov. 8.

Dr. Henry Grubb of Eastern Tennessee State University will speak at 3:30 p.m. in the Kenamer Room of the Powell Building.

His appearance is sponsored by the EKV Department of Psychology. The title of this talk is, "Multiple Personality Disorder and Pseudo-possession."

The colloquium is free and open to the public.

Three Rockcastle County FHA officers may -- that's may -- appear briefly in a movie due to be released in March.

While on the recent FHA leadership conference trip to Albuquerque, N. M., some of the girls joined in a group of tourists who followed a Mexican ensemble around Old Town, an Albuquerque tourist trap.

The group was playing as a part of the movie "Sparks," starring Victoria Principle and Ralph Waite.

Among those who decided to take a chance on breaking into the movies were Danetta Ford, Lisa McClure and Cheryl Youcum.

That part of the FHA trip was completely a surprise.

"We just happened on the scene," is the way accompanying teacher Jim Cox and sponsor Jane Stevens both put the girls' good fortune.

The group, which consisted of seven students and seven adults, got that chance because the group stayed an extra day to sightsee, with the prior planning help of principal Ronnie Cash, who also made the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Thomas Darst, Jr.

Virginia Hunt weds Michael T. Darst, Jr.

Miss Virginia Lee Hunt and Mr. Michael Thomas Darst, Jr., were united in marriage on June 17, 1989 at 2:00 p.m. The double ring ceremony was celebrated at the St. Mildred's Catholic Church in Somerset. Father Tony Stevenson officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, William E. Hunt, the bride was the epitome of romantic elegance as she was attired in her satin gown designed by Venus. The gown was highlighted with applied embroidery from the top of its wedding band edged cathedral length train. For her hair, the bride selected an ivory satin hat which had a pleated crown accented with rows of lace and beading.

It was trimmed with a full blusher. One side of the hat was upturned to display floral and bead trim. Sprays of pearls fell forward to softly frame her face. The cathedral length train from the hat added a dramatic touch as it extended the length of the train on her dress. As an accessory, the bride chose to wear a platinum filigree necklace which had belonged to her great grandmother. She chose to carry a bouquet which was designed in keeping with the romantic elegance of her attire. It was composed of traditional wedding flowers with the flowers and ribbon cascading down the front of the dress.

Mary Alice Hunt, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She was attired in an aqua Tinasatin dress styled after the antebellum era. Highlighting the dress was a front boat neck with a cross dyed lace bodice. The back bodice scooped to a very low cut, with both front and back having a basque cut and soft side shirring. The three-quarter length full shirred sleeves accented the shirring on the bodice. Completing the look was a large bow at the end of the back basque waist forming a bustle effect and ending in a full floor-length skirt. Her face was trimmed with crownless aqua picture hat of Tinasatin and illusion and further accented with beading and illusion.

She chose to accessorize her dress with a heart shaped locket which was made of aqua stones. It was a gift from her father to her mother when they were married. The maid of honor carried a bouquet which was designed from pastel traditional wedding flowers and was trimmed with aqua and ivory ribbon. Like the bride's bouquet, it was arranged so that the flowers and ribbon cascaded down the front of her train.

Janet Carter, Janice Cromer and Ann Abney, all cousins of the bride, served as bridesmaids. They were attired in dresses identical to that of the maid of honor. The dresses were designed by Jordan. They carried nosegays made from the same traditional pastel flowers as those of the maid of honor's bouquet.

Flower girls were Misses Angela Owens and Bobbi Jo Barr, cousins of the bride. Their dresses were designed by Bridal Originals and were candle-light ivory Tinasatin with sweetheart necklines and tucked short sleeves which were attached to a basque bodice. Their floor length skirts which ended in a train in back completed the look. At the end of the basque, in back, was a large bow. They carried ivory baskets which had been trimmed with aqua ribbon and wore aqua flowers in their hair.

Bryant Christopher Ray and Edward Hunt Ray IV, cousins of the bride, were ring bearers. They were attired in ivory tuxedos which had tails as their finishing look. Their attire was accented with aqua bow ties and cummerbund. An ivory rose graced their lapel.

The groom was attired in a navy tuxedo with tails. The tuxedo was a Dior design and was accessorized with a navy bow tie and a tan vest to complete the look. He chose to wear an ivory rosebud boutonniere to complement his ivory shirt.

Mr. James Hester, of Letchfield and friend of the groom, served as his best man. He was attired in a navy tuxedo. He chose an ivory shirt and completed the look with a navy bow tie and cummerbund. He, too, wore an ivory rosebud boutonniere.

Dale Darst, Raymond Darst and Billy Darst, brothers of the groom served as groomsmen. They were attired identically to the best man.

The mother of the bride was attired in a floor length chiffon dress of cornflower blue. The straight style of the dress was accented with a round neck which fell to an overblouse top and three-quarter length sleeves. The overblouse top ended at hipline with a small shirring on one side. This was accented with a fabric flower and two long sashes. She completed the look with dyed to match shoes. Her shoulder carried two white Catelva Orchids.

The bride was escorted down the aisle to the traditional "Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin." Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Mary Hraniky on piano and organ, Mr. Raymond Hraniky on guitar and vocals. Assisting on vocals was Mrs. Kathy Hall. Selections included "Hand in Hand We'll Walk Together," "To Me," "O Promise Me," "I Love You Truly," "Time in a Bottle," "Ave Maria," and "Rainbow."

The Lord's Prayer and "Forever You Go" were used during Communion. Servers were Jonathan Niles Hansford and Michael Lee Simpson.

Mrs. Onna Kaye Owens, cousin of the bride, kept the guest register with Jeffrey Owens and Zachary Owens, cousins of the bride, distributing the rice bags.

Mrs. Earl Ford, cousin of the bride, served as coordinator for the wedding.

A reception followed the ceremony. The three tier wedding cake sat atop a fountain and was graced with a stairway on each side. Ascending the stairways were miniature bridesmaids and groomsmen who were color coordinated to those in the wedding party. They were enroute to meet the bride and groom atop the anniversary layer of the cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery Miller Harmon

Miss Machal weds Mr. Harmon in ceremony at First Christian

Alicia Monique Machal and Jeffery Miller Harmon were united in marriage September 23, 1989 at 3:00 p.m. at the First Christian Church in Mt. Vernon, Ky.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Bro. Larry Harmon, brother of the groom. Also officiating was Bro. Eddie Hammond, Minister of the First Christian Church.

The altar was decorated with a fifteen candle arch candleabra in the center, with eighteen candle special candleabras on each side all decorated with springria, leatherleaf and purple and lavender bows, between the center candleabra and the spirals sat baskets of live white gladioli, purple carnations, lilies breath and greenery and each basket decorated with large purple bows, above the altar and on either side hung a huge purple and lavender bow with streamers, on either side of the back podium were two large palm plants decorated with large purple bows. To the right of the front podium stood the unity candle decorated as the other candleabras.

Beneath and to the right of the podium stood a huge twenty candle tree candleabra, decorated with purple-silk roses, miniature lavender silk carnations, spring rice and leather leaf and a large purple and lavender bow with streamers. Attached to the electric candleabras on the windows were large purple bows with lavender centers with long streamers. Each stained glass window was decorated with spring rice, leather leaf, plumosa, silk white, purple and lavender carnations centered with a purple and lavender candle, the organ and piano decorated the same as the windows and the pews decorated with purple bows and streamers.

The pew in which the bride and groom's parents were seated was decorated with pew candleabras each one holding three candles covered with three glass globes.

As the guest entered from the two entrance foyers they were invited to sign the guest registry attended by Cynthia Wolfe. The guest book stand was decorated with a purple and lavender bow, and on either side stood brass plant stands holding purple lilies, containing purple bows and streamers.

A program of wedding music was presented and accompanied by Miss Jamie Cox, pianist/organist, Anthony Machal, brother of the bride, and Jamie Cox presented solos and duets. Selections included "Up Where We Belong," "Glory of Love," "After-All," "Through The Years," "Always," "Lady" and "My Only Love."

The bride's and groom's mothers were escorted in during the solo "Sunrise Sunset." Each mother separately being escorted to the unity candle stand and each in turn lighting her unity candle.

During the duet of "Endless Love" the candle lighters Bill Tovey and Mike Kelly approached the altar and lit the remaining candles in the altar candleabras, followed by the rolling out of the aisle cloth.

"The Lord's Prayer" was presented (Cont. to B11) acappella by the bride's brother shortly after the bride's father escorted her to the altar and just before the ceremony began. "The Wedding Song" was presented by Anthony during the unity candle lighting by the bride and groom.

The bride escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, chose for her wedding a floor length gown by Bonny of California an heirloom edition imported from India was fashioned in princess style, designed in white bridal satin, featured a V-shaped front fitted bodice on which was gathered a long full flowing skirt, the hemline scalloped of imported lace, was accented with pearls and pearlized sequins along with pearls encircling the lower skirt. The sweetheart neckline was etched with floral appliques and pearlized sequins, the entire bodice heavily embellished with pearlized bugle beads, sequins, seed pearls and pearl tear drops in floral design.

The set in leg of mutton style satin sleeves were embellished with pearls and lead into tapered embroidered tulle enhanced with pearls and pearlized sequins with covered button closures at the wrist. The back bodice was scooped low and etched with floral appliques and enclosed by six strands of draping pearls centered by a pearl rosette. A large satin bow enhanced with pearls and pearlized sequins in floral design and pearl rosettes complemented the detachable cathedral train fashioned of bridal satin, imported lace inlays and scallops each applique and decorated with pearls and pearlized sequins. Beginning at the lower back bodice were two double satin borders leading into the royal designed cathedral train which were heavily accented with clusters of tear drop pearls. The bride's headpiece was a white satin accented style hat embellished with pearls and pearlized sequins. The back of the hat was fashioned of large double puffs of tulle and satin pearl covered rosettes, followed by a shoulder length double tiered veil bordered completely with pearls.

The bride carried a live cascade bouquet of white roses, miniature white carnations, stephanotes mixed with tulle puffs accented by wired pearls shaped into hearts, finished with white satin streamers and strings of pearls.

Serving the bride as her maid of honor was Caroline Machal, cousin of the bride. She wore a floor length gown of lavender satin which featured a heart shaped neckline, the sleeves of satin puff style were elbow length finished by lavender tulle that shaped into a V at the wrist, the low scooped back bodice was accented by a large satin bow followed by layered satin ruffles that draped to the floor, she wore dyed to match satin heels that were accented by a satin bow, her jewelry was pearl earrings encircled by tiny rhinestones, a gift from the bride. Her headpiece gowns the front skirt in hi-low styling and the back skirt floor length, the V-shaped front bodice featured a heart-shaped neckline, the sleeves the same as the maid of honor, the lower back bodice accented with a large satin bow followed by layers of ruffles to the floor with dyed to match heels accented with a satin bow. Their headpieces were matching tiaras, they also wore pearl earrings given to them by the bride. They carried nosegay bouquets of live purple roses, lavender carnations, babies breath, leatherleaf, mixed with tulle puffs and finished with lavender ribbon streamers.

Holly Machal, cousin of the bride, was Junior Bride, she was dressed in a floor length white satin miniature bridal gown, with a detachable train. The front bodice was accented with lavender appliques, the sleeves were set in short puffed sleeves, The detachable train featured large scallops to resemble the brides train, her headpiece was a halo of babies breath finished in the back with large tulle puffs, white satin slippers completed her attire. Her jewelry was a pearl bracelet, a gift from the bride. She carried a silk nosegay bouquet of white roses, babies breath mixed with tulle puffs.

The flower girl was little Miss Kari Craig. She was dressed in a floor purple satin gown closely identical to the bridesmaids and wore a matching tiara headpiece, dyed to match ballet slippers completed the attire. She also wore a pearl bracelet, a gift from the bride. She carried a white wicker basket filled with lavender petals, decorated with purple bows and ribbon streamers and adorned with loops and strings of pearls. She wore a purple carnation corsage.

Jordan Stratton, cousin of the groom, served as ring bearer. He wore a black Pierre Cardin tuxedo with tails, a purple bow and cummerbund. He wore a purple rose boutonniere, the white satin ring pillow he carried was also accented at the bride's mothers wedding.

The bridegroom was attired in a white Pierre Cardin tuxedo with tails, white satin bow tie and cummerbund. He wore a boutonniere of live white roses and babies breath.

The six groomsmen and ushers attire was the same as the best man except they wore purple bow ties and cummerbunds and some boutonnieres. They were: Anthony Machal, Mike Kelly, Chris Comelius, Ryan Loudermilk, Bill Towery and Jeff Ham.

The bride's father wore an identical black tuxedo except he wore a black satin bow tie and cummerbund and a live white rose boutonniere.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother chose a dress of purple lace lined with purple satin, the skirt in hi-low style similar to the bridesmaids, the V-neckline was accented with a lacerosette, dyed to match satin heels completed her attire. She wore a wrist corsage of live purple roses, babies breath mixed with tulle puffs and wired pearls shaped into hearts, trimmed with purple tulle.

The groom's mother wore a paiseley print of purple, aqua and navy, the

The cake was decorated with live flowers like those used in the bride's bouquet.

After a honeymoon in the Bahamas, the couple is residing in Somerset where the groom is employed as a sales representative with Knoxville, Door and Mill work and the bride is a teacher with the Rockcastle County Schools.

Pre-nuptial activities included a household shower given by Mrs. Charles Carter, Mrs. Janice Davidson and Mrs. Sharon Palmer.

Mrs. Earl Ford of Turkeyfoot Drive in Lexington entertained with a bridal luncheon at her home.

A personal shower was given in honor of the bride-elect by the board members of KEA-Central.

A miscellaneous shower was given by the sisters and sisters-in-law of the groom in Letchfield.

The rehearsal dinner was given at Somerset Lodge in Somerset.

LIGHTS FOR LIFE

Providing emergency medications for patients who could not otherwise afford them will be the goal of Berea Hospital's third annual Lights for Life program. According to Judy Stammer, chair of the hospital board committee responsible for the program, "Many families can't afford to buy medicine for sick children or need help when their medical cards won't cover the type of medicine they need. The purpose of our program is to help them get the medicine they urgently need. Then, for ongoing problems, we will help them locate other sources of help."

For each $10 donation, a light will be lit on the Christmas tree in front of the hospital. The lights will remain on from the Lighting Ceremony on December 1st through the 1st of January. To make a donation or for more information about the program, please contact the Human Resources Office of Berea Hospital, 986-3151, extension 560.

bodice in dropped waist style, accented with a white lace trimmed collar, she wore Nancy accessories, her corsage was white roses, babies breath, mixed with tulle puffs.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. The bride's table featured a six-tier cake, divided into three tiers on each side separated with columns. The cake was decorated with purple and lavender roses. Across the top two tiers was an arched lattice stairway, the bride and groom centered on the stairway with the bride's attendants on either side of the stairway, the groom's attendants standing on each tier, directly beneath the stairway was a flowing fountain accented with miniature satin lavender and purple roses with tulle puffs, the wedding cake was surrounded by leatherleaf and babies breath, the table was enhanced with a lace table covering over purple linen, purple tapers encircled with lavender and purple silk carnations and greenery completed the table decor. Behind the bride's table hung lavender and white wedding bells and purple ribbons beneath the bells. The reception room was decorated throughout with purple and lavender tapers, matching wedding bells and streamers. Pictures of the bride and groom through their childhood were displayed on the wall, also pictures of the bride's grandparents and her mother's wedding pictures were displayed on a special table.

If everyone knew what was happening at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky, we wouldn't need this ad.

Things are changing at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky. What was considered good performance in the past won't cut it in the present. We're working to get better.

In June, a new president, Steve Bow, took over the reins. He talked with employees about how to make our company better. He talked to customers: the ones we have, the ones who left, and the ones who never tried us. Now, we've begun turning those words into actions.

"We've got a real challenge ahead of us. It's up to every employee to energize our company...to make it more proactive, more customer-driven than ever before."

That philosophy is sparking a company-wide revolution. We're streamlining claims procedures for more efficient processing. We're breaking our customer service folks into smaller, specially trained teams so they can answer your questions more quickly. And there are more changes coming.

"I want to see this company move back to its original value system, a system of caring for the customer, and a belief that the customer is important. In our rapidly changing, complex and competitive world of healthcare, it is even more important for us to get back to personal service and products designed to fulfill customers' needs."

Changes were needed. Changes are being made. Choose us again, or for the first time. And choose the company that realizes good isn't good enough anymore. Call Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky or your independent agent.

Good Isn't good enough anymore.

Mullins beats Craig for County Judge

By: Richard Anderkin and Ray McClure

Roland Mullins, former Mt. Vernon mayor and retired executive director of the Mental Health/Mental Retardation Board at Corbin, won an overwhelming victory for Rockcastle County Judge/Executive in Tuesday's election.

Mullins, defeated Democrat Gallif Craig, retired executive director of Cumberland Valley Area Development District, by 1,483 votes, 2828 to 1345.

In fact, Craig carried only two precincts, West Brodhead and Brown.

The vote in West Brodhead was Craig, 282; Mullins 254. In Brown, the vote was Craig, 229; Mullins, 181.

In a campaign dubbed "nice" by many, the two candidates kept a low profile the entire campaign but campaigned vigorously. Only on one occasion did it appear there might be controversy, but it never materialized.

It was obvious from the start of the vote tally that Mullins was headed for a two-to-one majority when the absentee ballots were counted. That vote was 54 to 24 in Mullins' favor.

Mullins will take over his new job in January from County Judge/Executive Hubert Thacker who did not run for another term. Judge Thacker served two separate terms in that office.

When Mullins takes over, he will have two new magistrates and three incumbents.

In District I, first time candidate Republican Charles D. Holbrook defeated Democrat Tom Wallin by 107 votes. Holbrook received 404 and Wallin, 297.

Holbrook carried on a spirited campaign catching the public's eye in the Signal with advertisements showing a monkey he named Boom-Boom. There were 16 write-in votes for

Cromer re-elected as mayor

Incumbent Mt. Vernon Mayor Gary Cromer won a 188 majority victory over his opponent incumbent Mt. Vernon Councilman Tommy Bussell in Tuesday's election.

The mayor, owner of Appalachian Medical Equipment Supply in Mt. Vernon, had been expected to win. He received 408 votes. Bussell got 220.

Mayor Cromer will have four new councilmen when he takes office in January. Three incumbent councilmen did not seek reelection, Earl Nichols, Billy ray Doan and Billy Swinney. Councilman Bussell was a mayoral candidate.

Seven council candidates were on the city ticket with six to be elected. Billy Doan with 222 votes was low man in the voting and was not elected.

Winners of seats on the council and the number of votes they received are: Lloyd Cain, 427 votes; William Cash Jr., 354; Arthur "Oat" Bond, 338; Bobby Bailey, 303; incumbent Clarence Kirby, 280; and incumbent councilman Wayne Adams, 278.

Mayor Cromer replaced Mrs. Elizabeth Baker as mayor when she resigned due to the illness of her husband, Bob. Cromer will serve through

8 Grand Jury indictments

Eight indictments have been handed down by a Rockcastle County Grand Jury in recent days.

Three involve Dewayne Singleton, 25, of Carter Dr., Mt. Vernon.

Singleton is charged with arson in the first degree involving starting a fire with intent to destroy or damage the home of Glennis Miller of Mt. Vernon.

Two other indictments involving the Miller arson have been handed down but the two have not yet been arrested.

Singleton is also charged with receiving stolen property over $100 by having a 1982 Chevrolet van in his possession that had been stolen from Joel Bailey of Berea and arson, second degree, for setting fire to the Bailey van.

Another charge against Singleton is receiving stolen property over $100 by having in his possession a 1986 Dodge Aries owned by AAA Car Rental. Added, is a charge of arson, second degree, for starting a fire to destruction or damage the Dodge Aries. Floyd Bell, 36, of Mt. Vernon is charged with the Oct. 21 rape in the first degree, a Class B felony, for a 19-year-old Berea woman.

He was arrested and posted bail on Oct. 25. Bail was ordered at $15,000 cash/property.

Daryl Dewwayne Kyles, 24, of Lexington and Michael Ray Lambert, 37, no address given, were arrested together on Oct. 20, while in Rockcastle County driving a 1988 Chevy/Corvica, owned by Stephanie Godby of Lexington.

Arresting officers received a tip via police radio and stopped the two when they spotted the vehicle.

The two were indicted for receiving stolen property over $100 for having in their possession the Godby auto.

Troy Russell Kirby, 23, of Mt. Vernon was charged in the theft of a lawn mower over $100, from Dale Bradley.

Wayne Clay Lear, 36, of Lancaster was indicted for flagrant non-support of his child. The paperwork in the case says he is over $1,000 behind.

Voter turnout is light

The turnout in Tuesday's election was "down" considerably to what it was in the May primary, according to records in the Office of County Clerk Norma Houk.

There were 4399 voters Tuesday, or 48 percent of those eligible to vote.

In the May primary, 5189 voted or 60 percent.

The weather was one factor mentioned as keeping voters at home. But a lack of interest may have played the major role.

School board lets bids for new MVES desks, chairs

By: Jim Griech

Bids for five items of student furniture to be used in the new Mt. Vernon Elementary School building were awarded by the Rockcastle County Board of Education Tuesday night.

Virco got the bid for three sizes of stacking chairs over two other companies and a second bid by that company for a cheaper chair.

The three chairs, designed for the wide variety of sizes in students found in the lower grades, will cost $22,925, $31,74, and $32.75 per chair.

Superintendent Bige Towery said that a committee which ordered furniture for the school deliberately stayed away from the cheapest products available, trying instead, to pay a little more for more wear from the equipment.

Virco's winning bids were the middle priced bid in each of the three size categories. Southern School underbid Virco on each sized chair.

However, Towery also explained that the board decided not to use equipment made with soft plastic materials.

Southern School did win the bid on open front desks and chair desks over Hadden and Virco.

The open front desks will be used in the lower grades, the chair desks in the upper grades.

Towery also reported that changes that may have been required in the on-going construction of the new building have totalled just $2,378 more to date.

He called that sum amazingly low in light of the original $3,681,000 price tag on the construction project. The Board also heard Towery explain that the state board of education refused one change in the construction plans for the Roundstone addition.

Plastic partition changes were previously approved to provide privacy in stalls in bathrooms incorporated into the new construction.

The total savings would have been about $3,500. But, the state board has notified Towery that the original heavier partitions, at a cost of $7,155, will be required.

A final inspection is scheduled for next Friday, Nov. 17, except for a science room that still needs case-work done to it.

Towery told the board that plans now call for occupying the four new rooms right after Thanksgiving, and a possible board meeting at Roundstone is set for January.

In another construction matter at Roundstone, the board agreed to have Branscum Construction put in ceiling tile at Roundstone in hallways and offices that previously had asbestos-related tile removed.

The cost of $6,283 will include new lights and a dropped ceiling in those halls, making for a much brighter school building atmosphere.

In a final construction-related matter, the board approved an insurance premium of $4,550 through the Kentucky School Board Insurance Trust Fund to cover the new Mt. Vernon building. The premium will cover the building until it is completed. At that time, the new building will become part of the board's regular insurance package on its buildings.

Tammy French, the teacher-coordinator for the new early childhood education program, presented the board with an overview of the situation in Rockcastle County.

So far, she said, about 100 children who are already in Kindergarten, or in pre-school programs, have been screened for speech, concept, and motor skills abilities.

The program is gearing up for 1990-91, when systems will be mandated by law to provide pre-school testing and help for children who are handicapped, or who may be behind in some of the basic skills needed in early grades.

French said that eventually, her program will try to encompass all students in ages 3-5, and not just handicapped children.

Law 99-457, passed in 1986, mandated the extension of testing services to children ages 3-5, instead of the previously mandated ages six.

She said that the biggest problem testing has uncovered is in the area of speech problems and motor skills.

French said that Rockcastle will apply for a federal STEPES (Sequence Transition into Public Schools) that will be awarded soon.

Fourteen will be set up in Kentucky, and she said, Rockcastle wants to be one of them.

More screenings for pre-schoolage children will be held in March and June, 1990.

Other business, the board:
• Hired substitute teachers Tammi Sue Howard, Lisa Raines and Larry VanHoose.
• Reviewed wording on a school trips policy allowing the superintendent.

Dear Editor: I don't know if anyone every heard of borrowing fire. My uncle and nephew Robert Collins grew up together, in the foothills of Kentucky, a place called Pine Branch about four miles from Livingston. As I was at his house one night, he had to go about two miles across a hill to his grandparents to borrow fire. It was black dark. He wanted me to go with him. I was about eleven years old and he was about eight years old. Well! he never heard of that, but of course I went as usual. But I laughed at him and wondered how he would get it home. But Robert got the fire and got it home. I was so scared, but Robert wasn't. I was amazed how he got that fire home, that was the last time I borrowed fire. But me and Robert parted when he was fourteen. I went to Spartanburg, S.C. Robert remained at his home in Kentucky. It was 17 years since I had seen Robert, then one day here came Robert. Robert and I again! But he wasn't coming to borrow fire. He was coming for a nice visit. He had served four years in the United States Army and fought in World War I.

He was a very handsome young guy, married with a nice little family. Me and him talked about that night we borrowed the fire. Robert has passed away now, but the memories still linger on. He was so brave. This is a true story.

Dear Editor: By purchasing a Christmas tree, light or decoration through "Love Lights a Tree", Rockcastle residents have an opportunity to honor a special person during the holiday season and aid in the crusade against cancer. Sponsored by the American Cancer Society, Rockcastle County Unit, the Love Lights a Tree project is designed to raise money for cancer education and research, according to Lu Ed Nielsen, President of the Rockcastle Unit.

Donations in honor of, or in memory of, a special person can be made throughout the holiday season, but a special ceremony to launch the project for Rockcastle County will be held at Rockcastle Hospital. The time and date will be announced in the near future.

"This is a wonderful way to recognize a special person in your life and to know you are doing something positive in the battle against cancer," Lu Ed said.

Each honor or, in the case of a memorial gift, the honoree's family will be notified of the donation and will be invited to the special ceremony at the tree where their light or ornament is hung. Names of all honorees for the tree will be recognized. Donations can be made at the tree location, at the hospital, or by sending a check to the American Cancer Society Office at P.O. Box 540, Mt. Vernon, 40456, or call 256-9315.

November is National Diabetes Month

Health center has free blood check

Everyone who is at risk for diabetes should have their blood-sugar checked. The Rockcastle County Health Center will be doing free blood-sugar checks for anyone at risk from November 13 through November 17. Please call 256-2242 for more information. The following is a list of risk factors and warning signs: Who is most likely to get diabetes? People who are overweight, people with a family history of diabetes, people who are 40 or older, blacks, hispanics and native Americans. The warning signs of diabetes: For insulin dependent (symptoms usually develop rapidly), frequent urination (including frequent bedwetting in children who have been toilet trained), excessive thirst, extreme hunger, sudden weight loss, weakness and fatigue, irritability, nausea and vomiting.

Warning signs for non-insulin-dependent (symptoms usually develop gradually); any of the insulin-dependent symptoms, blurred vision or any change in sight, tingling or numbness in legs, feet, or fingers, slow healing of cuts (especially on the feet), frequent skin infections or itchy skin and drowsiness.

A Weekly Report from Fifth District Congressman Hal Rogers

Minimum Wage Increase Meets Needs of Workers and Businesses

Today's minimum wage is not what it used to be. The last minimum wage increase was in 1981. We set it at $3.35 per hour. However, inflation, the most unfair tax of all, has cut the purchasing power of that $3.35 to $2.14 today. A minimum wage earner working a 40-hour week receives a paycheck of $134.00 in 1981 dollars, but its worth today has been whittled down to only $85.60!

I believe it is time to make an adjustment. That is why I voted last week in the House to increase the minimum wage to $4.25 over the next 17 months and establish a "training wage" for teenagers. In the whole of America, only 8 percent of minimum wage earners are heads of households—breadwinners for families. But in Southern Kentucky where jobs are scarce and one of eleven workers is unemployed, much more than 8 percent of our workers are supporting families—just barely—on the minimum wage.

This increase could have been put into effect months ago but for the liberals in Congress. You might remember that President Bush proposed an increase of the minimum hourly wage to $4.25 shortly after his inauguration. The liberals, though, nixed the President's plan in favor of a much larger increase that would have forced employers to lay off thousands of workers, costing many jobs in Southern Kentucky and 750,000 jobs nationwide. The liberals' outrageous minimum wage would have weakened the beast of inflation, which would impoverish our many retirees and Veterans who live on fixed incomes. Fortunately the President quickly vetoed the liberals' plan, forcing Congress to establish a fair minimum wage rate that small businesses could afford, while restraining inflation.

Six months after the President's veto, Southern Kentucky's businesses and minimum wage workers can all be pleased with what Congress and the President have wrought. The wage increase to $4.25 an hour gives our hourly laborers a better way of life for themselves and their families. But the increase is gradual and modest enough to keep the jobs of Southern Kentuckians intact, and the labor costs of our businesses under control.

While many minimum-wage earners in Southern Kentucky are heads of households, many more are young people in high school and on summer jobs. Our small businesses working to keep their prices competitive can hardly bear the cost of training these young people at the full, higher minimum wage. To give small businesses incentive to hire our young people while motivating teenagers to stick with the job, the new minimum wage plan establishes a three month "training wage." Teenagers with less than two months of job experience will earn $3.35 when the minimum wage rises to $3.80 next April, and $3.61 when minimum wage reaches $4.25 in April 1991.

Setting the minimum wage is a tricky proposition. Too high, and many people will lose their jobs, and our businesses will be uncompetitive. Too low, and our minimum wage workers who support families will watch their children go hungry. The right minimum wage for our times is $4.25—a victory for the President, for our minimum wage workers, and for our small businesses.

Sometime during the last ten years I stopped worrying much whether or not UK or the Reds won a ballgame. I watched every game of the major league baseball playoffs and every game of the World Series. It would have been nice to see the Cubbies go all the way because they are such all American underdogs, but I watched right on after they lost out. I tokeky rooted for Oakland up the fourth game, then I switched over to San Francisco because I wanted more baseball. I really didn't matter much who won.

Ten years ago I would have been

Accidental Discovery May End Obesity

Suppresses calorie absorption
SWEDEN—Medical researchers at the University of Kuopio, in Finland, have discovered (accidentally) a new weight-loss formula. The new discovery appears to be an over-weight individual to lose pounds and fatty tissue without conventional dieting or exercise.

Scientists made the discovery while searching for a formula to lower cholesterol. In a controlled study a test group of people, cholesterol levels remained unchanged but the doctors were astounded to find that every patient who used the formula lost weight. The published report of this study stated, "A highly significant decrease in body weight was seen" in patients who received the formula.

The formula was then tested at another prestigious European university hospital. Again, all patients lost weight even though they did not eat any drugs or stimulants. When taken before meals it bonds with the food you eat and "ties up" calories, especially those from fats, suppressing their absorption.

A significant portion of the calories ingested therefore pass through the digestive system unabsorbed. The body has to get energy to replace the lost calories, so it starts to burn stored fat, which can result in rapid body weight loss. Clinical testing has verified the safety of this formula for long-term use.

The formula is marketed in capsule form in the United States under the trade name Cal-Ban 3000. A firm located in Tampa, Florida has the exclusive North American distribution rights. A review of the customer files of this company revealed the names of hundreds of people who have lost as much as 20, 40 or 80 or more pounds overall with Cal-Ban 3000. This appears to be a golden opportunity for people who are plagued by fat and realize that they can't seem to lose by conventional methods.

Cal-Ban 3000 is reasonably priced at $19.95 for a 3-week supply and $38.95 for a 6-week supply. Postage and handling is $3.00. VISA, M/C, AMEX and COD orders are accepted. To order call TOLL-FREE 1-800-237-2722 or purchase locally at Saver Pharmacy, Route 4, Richmond St., Mt. Vernon, KY. Call today to begin the pleasant transformation from fat and flab to the slender firm body you want! trying to organize a mob to burn the NCAA headquarters and lynch UK President David Rosselle for what they were collectively doing to the basketball program. In fact it has been ten years since I printed up 500 bumper stickers that read JOE'S GOTTA GO the day after the Cats blew a game to North Carolina, a loss that I attributed to Joe B. Hall's shortcomings as a coach

Somewhat or another, D.G. Fitzmaurice who was then the Lexington paper's sports columnist got hold of that news and my bumper stickers were written up. I was interviewed by four radio stations—big ones—from Louisville, Lexington, Bowling Green and Knoxville the next day. You know about these deals where they call you up and conduct an interview that is being broadcast even as you speak like on swap shop. In these interviews I acknowledged that I didn't think much of Joe's coaching and then I told people how they could order bumper stickers.

A bunch of people in London where I was living at the time got mad about it because Coach Hall had close personal friends there and they were embarrassed that he was being publicly criticized by someone they lived close to. But the mail rolled in. I had to get help stuffing envelopes with bumper stickers and wound up getting four batches printed before folks lost interest.

The point is that only a few years ago I took sports pretty seriously. I wanted to yell and get involved. I didn't want to be wasting my breath on a losers' either. But over the last couple of years I simply haven't cared much. The strongest emotion that I felt when UK went through the NCAA sanction and offered up Eddie Sutton as a sacrifice was amusement. And Pete Rose, my greatest hero in all of sports—not a protest did I utter in his defense. I'm almost ashamed of myself.

My wife told me during the SEC basketball tournament last spring, that she thought I was finally growing up. "You're either learning how to lose gracefully or you're losing interest," Lorecia said to me right after a game that would have ordinarily rendered me emotionally unbalanced for days.

My reaction at the end of the game had been something sensible like, "Maybe we'll get 'em next year. Ho hum."

"You aren't sick are you?" she wanted to know. "You're acting all grown up and I like that in a man," she added because she had just finished reading an article in Woman's Day magazine that had to do with reinforcing desirable behavior in the husband species. A few months later I finally did something else that she approved of and she made the same remark. I have this feeling sometime that she's watching me like a hawk just in case I do something she can reinforce. Bless her heart. She never gives up.

Actually our kids have probably been more responsible for my change in attitude toward organized sports than anything else. Jennifer and Chris have both been on ball teams that didn't really set their leagues on fire over the last couple of years. I've seen both of them very distraught and humiliated after losing ball games and I've had to try and help them get things into a proper perspective.

It's just a game. You're supposed to have fun. I had a great time watching you play. It doesn't matter that the other team scored more runs. You did well. I told Chris after practically every little league game I watched him play last summer. Jennifer's basketball team last season won most of the time, but when they lost it was like the world was crumbling. I'd tell her the same things even though my counsel was falling on deaf ears. However ridiculous this may sound, I have observed that it is far easier to deal with losing if one is on a team that loses often than it is on a team that generally wins.

The fact of the matter is that it is enjoyable to watch the kids play ball. Period. It is not enjoyable to watch them mentally suffering over something as unimportant to life on earth as losing a ball game. It's even more sobering to realize that I've been doing it all my life and it hasn't changed a thing.

The corner with all the yarn stacked up and overflowing its basket became stifling. Too much of anything can become a bore and make one drowsy.

So, my little old car beckoned to me to go for a ramble over the country side. When it beckons I begin to pack. Would you like to go along? OK, here we go.

Where am I going? Well, I must wait and see where my car leads me.

I'm at least on the road again. It's fun too. This is the first trip I've taken for three or four years alone and it is a good feeling to realize I'm still capable to drive cross country.

I headed north toward Cincinnati and Michigan. From Mt. Vernon to Cincinnati was an exhilarating drive. Glorious sun drenched air filled the car, windows down, of course. The trees were all dressed in their very finest. Each vying for the prize of

Community Church Directory

First Christian Church organized in early 1800's

On a Monday morning in September, 1781, a huge band of six hundred men, women and children, along with their horses, wagons, household goods and cattle left Spotsylvania Court House, Virginia, headed west toward the mountains, following their leader, Lewis Craig. They were going to Kentucky -- taking their place in along historical line of migrations for reasons of religious freedom. Some of the six hundred were in the group because they were going to Kentucky anyway and had sought the protection of the larger band of travelers. Over two hundred, however, were members of Craig's Church in Spotsylvania County and most of the others were their friends and relatives who had chosen to go with them.

Recollections of the trip record that, in spite of the size of the caravan, it was strangely silent as it moved along the road. Probably each individual was thinking his own thoughts, and subjecting their parents and families -- perhaps never to see them again. Men were leaving the land they had worked since childhood for an unknown place, and subjecting themselves and their families to danger and hardships they could only imagine.

Hindsight tells us they should never have left in September on a trip that would take almost four months -- most of it in mountains and wilderness with no shelter or help to be found. But they had decided to go, had planned, and were ready, and so they left. They were a persecuted people in a country settled for reasons of religious freedom. The laws of Virginia forbade their beliefs, and Lewis Craig and others of their number had been jailed for preaching. There is no waiting for spring -- they went while they were of one mind to go.

At Fort Chiswell, nine miles east to the present town of Myhillville, they gave up their wagons, the land comfort, and also much of the furniture and "plunder" they carried. Thereafter, only the aged, the ill, and the small children rode; the little ones in hickory baskets hung from the sides of the horses.

Remembering it later, it was the terrible solitude, a loneliness almost palpable -- that was the most discouraging, misery producing feature of the wilderness. Indians, weariness, hunger, and cold sought their toll, but the travelers never forgot who they were. Sundays were a day of rest and regular services were held along the way. In December of 1781, they entered what is now Rockcastle County. For years, this was a milestone on the journey along the Wilderness Road, for they knew the worst was over. "G.W. Rankin, in his book, 'The Travelling Church, recounts their travels.'"

"Again the Pilgrim Church moved on about five miles north of Rockcastle River, where the buffalo pad led out toward the already famous Boonesborough, the pioneers entered Skag's Trace, so recently stained with the blood of murdered settlers, and followed this branch of the Wilderness Road to the place now known as Mt. Vernon. . . . There were Baptists. Close behind them rode Bishop Ashbury, the intrepid pioneer Methodist Circuit Rider. The Presbyterians were also among the early settlers. There were also those who called themselves "Christians" but -- would not be for a generation, but this was the root stock of the Christian Church and from such pioneer spirit it began.

The six hundred members of the Happy 50th Birthday

Nifty, nifty, and all that stuff! I'm not mentioning any names, but, someone (Shirley Burton) is having a birthday November 17th. So if you should see her, be sure to say "Happy 40th Birthday! wink, wink!"

MOM, When I was little, you were always there when I needed you. If I was wrong, you told me. But you also stood beside me. Your love and support were steady and strong.

There were times when we didn't agree, But I always knew you loved me.

Now that I'm grown, my your love and support are just as important to me. I need you as much as I ever have. And knowing you're there is a constant source of comfort to me.

You are more than my mother; You are my very dearest friend.

Happy Birthday, Mom Love, Sheila Benae

First Christian Church

Travelling Church" settled on Gilbert's Creek, near what is now Lancaster, Kentucky, in Garrard County, and from there they spread across the state, establishing new congregations as they went. Many of these churches were among the first to "reform" and call themselves Christian churches.

It is not known which of the early preachers most influenced the believers in Mt. Vernon to leave their former Baptist and Presbyterian connections. Alexander Campbell and his father Thomas had left the Baptist Church and started a new one in Pennsylvania and Western Virginia. Alexander had traveled through the county as early as 1797. "Raccoon" John Smith is recorded as having preached in what is now the Brodhead area, and to probably other places in the county as well. Barton stone had effectively broken with the Presbyterian Church when he and his followers signed "The Last Will and Testament of the Springfield Presbyterians" at a meeting on June 20, 1804, at Cane Ridge in Bourbon County. Perhaps some of the citizens of the county themselves had joined the thousands at the great revivals at Cane Ridge. More than likely, the change at Mt. Vernon was effected by the combined influences of all of these reformers who, though they began in separate places and developed independently, soon found that they had much in common. — indeed — they had much in common — in their approach to the New Testament Church as they envisioned it.

By 1830, the reform had taken place in Mt. Vernon, for in a meeting in December 1830, the Boone Creek Baptist Association dropped Mt. Vernon, along with Mt. Zion, Nicholasville, Liberty and Friendship, as a significant meeting at the Hill Street Christian Church in Lexington, the Christians and Disciples of Christ united in a common accord.

The next recorded mention of the Hill Street Church at Mt. Vernon was a report in the Christian Advocate of 1835. The above excerpt is taken from "A History of the First Christian Church, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky," by Linda Ramsey Ashley. It is but a small portion of over 100 pages compiled in her book. The history of our congregation is long and progressive. Our desire as a congregation can be summed up in the following:

The First Christian Church is one of our oldest churches in Lexington, a national Christian Churches. This fellowship of churches is the result of what has become known as the Restoration Movement. We use the term "restoration" rather than "reformation" because it is our goal to restore the simple, non-sectarian Christianity of the New Testament times. There are several thousand congregations in the United States belonging to this movement, numbering over a million members.

Without any man-made creed and having no denominational affiliation we are free to follow the Bible as our guide of faith and practice. We are not controlled or directed by an organization outside the local congregation. We believe that the church in the beginning, was just what the church as the Lord desired to have on earth. Our mission is not to be another denomination, but rather to urge all religiously concerned people to return to the simple plan of God as clearly presented in the New Testament. We believe this to be the solution to the problem we confront in our divided Christendom. We do not claim to be the "only Christians," we merely want to be "Christians only."

The terms of admission into membership in our church are: 1. A profession of faith in the Bible as our authority. 2. A baptism all can accept: Immersion (Romans 6:1-5). 3. A church can enter: Christ's church (Matthew 16:18). 4. A work all can do: Fulfill the Great Commission (Matthew 28:19-20). 5. A life all can live: The Christian life (Galatians 2:20). 6. A power all can have: The Holy Spirit (Ephesians 3:14-16). Come see us at the First Christian Church of Mt. Vernon, "Where Your heart knows the Difference."

have never been immersed are required to obey this command of Jesus to become members. We refrain from judging the worthiness of anyone to become a member or voting on someone's qualifications for membership.

The heart of worship in the New Testament Church was the observance of the Lord's Supper in memory of our Lord. This is why we make this service the heart of worship each Lord's Day (1 Cor. 11:23-26). All Christians, regardless of whether they are members of our church or not, are invited to share with us around the Lord's Table.

We urge you to visit with us, ask any questions you may have concerning the church, and seriously and prayerfully consider the possibility of becoming a member of Christ's church.

- In summary our plan is as follows:
 1. A name all can have: Christian (Acts 11:26)
 2. A creed all can confess: Christ (Matthew 16:16)
 3. A discipline all can follow: The Bible (2 Timothy 3:16-17)
 4. A baptism all can accept: Immersion (Romans 6:1-5)
 5. A church can enter: Christ's church (Matthew 16:18)
 6. A work all can do: Fulfill the Great Commission (Matthew 28:19-20)
 7. A life all can live: The Christian life (Galatians 2:20)
 8. A power all can have: The Holy Spirit (Ephesians 3:14-16)

Academic team drops 3, is 6-12

The Rockcastle County High varsity academic team dropped three matches last Thursday at Somerset, but the junior varsity won two of three the same day.

The varsity lost to Somerset 32-17, Garrard County 30-6, and McCree County 19-15.

Topping the varsity effort were Chuck Mick, who had six answers against Somerset, and Carrie Mullins, who also got six in the match with McCree. Chad Abney had four of the six answers against Garrard.

The varsity is now 6-12 on the year. JV's topped Somerset 24-14 and McCree 20-14, but were downed by Garrard 30-12.

Jason Wilson had 12 answers, Michelle Haman eight, during the three matches.

This week is doubly busy for the academic teams. Wednesday night, they were to have hosted a match against Casey County, Wayne County and Russell County.

Thursday, they are to face

Moticello, Wayne County and host Garrard County again.

This Saturday, county TV watchers can see the previously fought "In the Know" match against Danville at 2:30 p.m., on WLEX-TV, Channel 18 in Lexington. Rockcastle won 190-135.

The academic team will attempt to go further in the annual TV competition at 2 p.m., when they tape a second-round match at the station's studios, against Western Hills from Frankfort.

The TV team is Mick, Abney and Kevin Rowe, who is free from football practice and game responsibilities the rest of the fall.

Coach Janet Wells said that Rockcastle has advanced to the second round of "In the Know" three times before, but has never won the second match.

We said that Saturday's taping will be shown at a later date. The Danville match was taped on Saturday, Sept. 30.

Etc.

McGuire re-elected to seat as district judge

Second District incumbent Judge Walter F. McGuire survived a close race for another term as judge of Tuesday's election.

McGuire received 5130 in Pulaski County and 905 in Rockcastle for a total of 6035.

His opponent Paul Henderson got 4374 votes in Pulaski and 1080 in Rockcastle for a total of 5454, a total majority for McGuire of 581 votes.

First District incumbent District Judge William T. Cain was unopposed in his bid for another term. He received 675 votes in Pulaski. His vote total in Pulaski was not available.

In one other race, incumbent Thomas D. Emberton was unopposed for another term as judge on the Kentucky Court of Appeals. He received 496 votes in Rockcastle.

another term on the council.

Margaret Burdine got 32 votes in a fifth place finish with six candidates. Earl Baker was right behind with 21 votes.

Winning the four seats were Denver Howard with 58 votes; Terry Salyer with 53; incumbent Councilman Tomm Kidd with 40 and Billy Mason with 37, all newcomers to the council, except Mick.

Brown defeated Democrat incumbent Gary Scott by 151 votes, or 625 to 474. Scott initially replaced Doug Bishop, who resigned as magistrate. Scott later lost to Ricky Kirby for the remaining time left on Bishop's term. In the constable race in District 3, Republican incumbent Randall Stevens won reelection over Democrat E. Junior dateberry 459 to 178.

District 4 Republican incumbent magistrate Amos Burdette easily outdistanced his opponent Democrat Stephen C. Bullen by 211 votes. Burdette had 498 votes and Bullen, 287.

Donal Miller was unopposed for constable receiving 332 votes.

District 5 Republican incumbent magistrate Donald Bullock was unopposed in his bid for a second term. He received 413 votes. At one time, a former magistrate, Joe Clark represented the idea of mounting a write-in, but decided against it. Also in District 5, Eugene Senter was elected constable with 298 votes. He was unopposed. However, Larry Mounce got 25 write-in votes.

Also in the courthouse, the sheriff's race was not much of a contest. Republican Shirley Smith, Wildie farmer, defeated his challenger, Democrat David Bishop by over two-one. Smith received 2606 votes. Bishop got 1341. Smith will replace Clarence "Jib" Hasty who lost in the May primary.

Holbrook replaces Glen Ellison who chose not to run again.

Also, in District 1, Eddie Delaney received 244 votes for constable. He was unopposed.

In District 2, Republican incumbent magistrate Jack Bradley was unopposed. He received 484 votes to retain his seat on the court. Benton Bullock, who lost to Bradley, in the primary, got 137 write-in votes.

Jim King was unopposed in his race for constable, District 2. He got 364 votes. However, Wayne Mounce got 17 write-in votes.

In a close race for District 3 magistrate, newcomer Republican Clinton

Curing Country Hams For the Holidays

by Cheryl Willer

Country style hams, an annual holiday dish for Americans in the south, have been cured the same way for centuries. The first set foot on American soil.

Although it takes only a few steps to cure a country ham, the longest part of the process is in the aging. People may start soon to cure their own ham for such holidays.

Hams should be purchased in early winter to use ambient aging, a natural aging process performed for centuries that does not require refrigeration, said Warren Means, Extension meat specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. After purchasing a fresh, meaty short-cut ham from a meat packer or butcher, the curing and aging process begins immediately.

Hams should be purchased by weight. The oldest curing method, purchased twice as large as needed since they lose 50 percent of their weight because of bone and fat and in the aging process.

Hams should be chilled 24 hours before putting them into cure. In a dry sugar cure, the oldest curing method, use the basic ingredients which draws water from the meat and serves as a preservative. All other ingredients used in the cure mixture such as saltpeter, sugar and spices are color and softening tough muscle fibers.

The cure mixture most often used by University of Kentucky is made up of three ingredients: granulated sugar, barrel salt and saltpeter. To prepare the cure mixture, mix 2 1/2 pounds granulated sugar, 7 1/2 pounds barrel salt and two ounces saltpeter in a large bowl. Use one pound of mixture for every 10 pounds of meat. Divide the mixture into three equal portions for three separate applications.

Take one portion of the mixture and firmly rub it into the muscle fiber and pack it into a container to refrigerate at 38 to 40 degrees Fahrenheit. Five days later, rub the second portion of the dry mixture into the partially parched meat and put back into the refrigerator. Allow the meat to cure three more days and knead in the remaining cure mixture.

Two weeks, remove the excess salt from hams, weighing 10 to 12 pounds, and do the same for larger hams after three weeks. Hams weighing more than 21 pounds should be left in cure two days per pound. After removing the loose cure from the ham, place it in a large plastic bag and add an additional 30 days to allow salt equalization, so the salt content can distribute evenly throughout the ham.

Remove the ham from refrigeration and wash thoroughly with a brush in lukewarm water and prepare the ham for hanging. Let the ham drip and wrap it in two layers of heavy, unwaxed paper, such as a grocery sack, and place it in a loose knit cloth bag similar to cheese cloth, tied at the top. The paper keeps additional cure mixture next to the ham and also prevents the ham from being infested with insects.

The ham should be hung during January in a dry room such as a ventilated attic where outside air circulates freely. During the first six months the ham will be in the "wind-dry" where temperatures average about 40 degrees allowing the salt to penetrate the ham through the bone.

After aging, the ham experiences a drying time for 60 days during the "spring cycle," where temperatures range from 60 to 65 degrees.

Further drying takes place during the "summer cycle," when temperatures exceed 80 degrees. Hams must be dried for 160 days in ambient drying conditions. The aging and drying process ends near Thanksgiving.

When hams have aged, they should be removed from the bags and paper. Country style hams have some mold and dark color on them from the curing and aging. This does not affect the quality of the ham but it proves the hams have been properly cured. White spots in the meat also are not a sign of spoilage.

4-H Talk Meet

by John McQuerry

The County 4-H talk meet will be held on Tuesday night, November 21 at 6:30 p.m. at the Rockcastle County High School.

Each leader should have received detailed information concerning the talk meet and the number of representatives allowed for each school. The name, grade, birth date, address, teacher's name, school, and title of speech. This must be called in to the Extension office by November 15, 1989, 256-2403.

You know, the young people who get together. They're vocal and assertive, not quiet and passive. You may not know the others, the young who sit back and do not join. Some of these youth come from disadvantaged backgrounds, and for them, getting involved is not easy.

That's where you can help. As a volunteer leader in Extension, you can give much needed encouragement of youths of limited income, as a mentor and role model.

To become an extension volunteer, just call your Cooperative Extension Office at 256-2403. Help these young people make the right connections to the future.

A salute to veterans

Rockcastle County has sent men off to fight America's wars every time

Alvin Carpenter
World War I

By: Jim Griesch
Is he the only living World War I veteran still in Rockcastle County? "I don't think you'll find another one," says 94-year-old Alvin Carpenter. "I don't know who he is. As far as I know, I'm the only one in Rockcastle County."
The still-sprightly man who works in his garden many days a week, says he went to France in September, 1917, as part of America's First Division, with General John Pershing.
Officially, he was part of the 28th Infantry, he says.
The outfit was based near Chateau Thierry, and fought in the Argonne Forest.
It was there that Carpenter was slightly injured by a mustard gas burn on a hand, and more seriously wounded by flying shrapnel.
"I got seven pieces of shrapnel in me," he says matter of factly and directly.
Carpenter was one of those who turned up living in one of those terrible, muddy, dirty trenches which faced each other from across barren fields of the French countryside.
"It was rough," he said. "A bad life."

Elmer Alcorn
World War II

By: Jim Griesch
Elmer Alcorn fought through the "Green Hell" of New Guinea and onto the Philippines under Gen. Douglas MacArthur.
He was with the Sixth Army, 24th Division.
"It was a rough road to the Philippines," Alcorn remembered, 45 years later. "It was step by step from Port Moresby."
Foremost in Alcorn's memory are the battles for Hollandia, toward the western end of the northern coast of New Guinea, and the landing on Leyte, which began the liberation of the Philippines.
He didn't call New Guinea the "Green Hell," but he did say it was "bad enough."
Hollandia was one of the most masterful assaults of the second World War.
"We acted like we were going to land on another island, Los Negros," Alcorn explained. "The Japs moved out (from Hollandia) and there weren't many left."
While the battle was low key in terms of killed and wounded, it proved to be an important step toward the Philippines, which MacArthur had vowed to retake when forced to flee Corregidor by PT boat in March, 1942.
Hollandia became a major base for MacArthur, and the place also became embroiled in a controversy among officers about moving women to the front.
But, for Alcorn and the other "common" soldiers, it was a place where "we destroyed a lot of ammo, and captured a lot of oil."
He also remembered countless air raids, and the Japanese made several attempts to dislodge the U.S. Army from one of their most important bases.
"We knocked out a lot of airplanes," Alcorn said recently. "We had a ringside seat for the dogfights. One morning, the Jap bombers flew right over our positions."
"American troops also went on"

Floyd Baker
Korean War

By: Jim Griesch
Floyd Baker may be better known now as Commander of VFW Post 5908 at Lake Liville.
But, he is one of a number of Korean War vets around.
His whole three years of service was spent in during the war, and he served in combat as a rifleman with the First Cavalry Division.
He spent nine months on his first tour, then three months to complete a year after some time in Japan.
He saw action at Inchon, but after the May, 1951, landing, master-minded by Gen. Douglas MacArthur before he was canned by then-president Harry Truman, in one of the most unusual actions ever taken by a president in a shuffle of his general staff wartime.
But, the politics of the removal were not upmost on Baker's mind then.
He spent the entire winter of 1951-52 on the ground in Korea.
"It was bitter cold in January and February, 1952," he said. "It was minus 20 degrees, and stayed that cold."
As a rifleman, he remembers that he "slept outside, we didn't go inside. I spent one year of my life sleeping"

Tom Miller
20-Year Sailor

By: Jim Griesch
Tom Miller is now known as someone very active in veterans groups around Rockcastle County.
He is a 20-year "career" Navy vet, who served from the mid-1950s into the mid-1970s.
His story is a little unique because of his branch of the service.
"I spent 11 years in the Navy before I ever went to sea," he muses recently.
He was a Photographer's Mate First Class (E-6 to other branches), which is part of the story.
"Photographer's are grouped within a series of "air date" ratings, or job descriptions. But, PHS serve on a number of ships, especially large ones that carry admirals and their staffs.
Still, he was in over 11 years before being assigned to the USS Iwo Jima, an amphibious assault ship that looks like a small aircraft carrier.
He was aboard for only six months, then served three months aboard the training carrier USS Lexington for three months, and later aboard the command ship USS Mt. McKinley for almost three years.
Before that sea time, which came in back-to-back-to-back assignments, he was stationed at Guantanamo Bay (before Fidel Castro became dictator of Cuba), and ashore in Newport, R.I., Indian Head, Md., at Subic Bay in the Philippines, and in Washington, D.C.
After his sea duty, he was an instructor at Ft. Benjamin Harrison in"

Commentary: All of the heroes are not gone; they are still with us

Saturday is your day, veterans. Stand up and take a bow on November 11.
Does it seem strange to you, or have the late 1980's really been the best time to be a veteran since the late 1940s, when America and the world basked in the warmth at the end of World War II?
Throughout the 1950s, there was still a lot of honor in being a veteran, but from the late 1960s through the 1970s, there was a sense of anti-heroism in the United States, personified by leading actor Woody Allen, who seemed to always come out on top, despite being inept, silly, and ugly.
With the unglamorous end of the Vietnam War, being a veteran seemed to be a liability for too many. The war was the most difficult in American history, and the United States certainly claimed no victory in its efforts to halt what was essentially Vietnam's Civil War.
The American fighting man was put into his most deflated light since the country began.
Americans had a poor image of a serviceman, thanks to so much negative about the war.
Many uniformed men were embarrassed to be a soldier, sailor, airman or Marine.
Servicemen were at their lowest ebb since Congress instituted Veterans Day after World War I, to honor her fighting men.
World War I fighters were romanticized. America mobilized an Expeditionary Force under General John Pershing, and helped stop the Hun in the trenches and forests of France.
The United States mobilized for the war. It unlike any other country in the history of civilization. The World made this country the most powerful the world had ever known.
A thankful government and its peoples heaped rewards previously unknown by returning servicemen upon her heroes.
They were sent to college; most expenses paid, and this country became the best-educated in history.
Special financing was made available for homes, which began the suburbanization of America's big cities.
Unfortunately, in the next skirmish, America didn't win in Korea. The precedent was set. A major difference between Vietnam and Korea was public reaction.
While there wasn't much public outcry about Korea, the noisy minority proved its point about Vietnam.
Our political leaders were not trying to win an all-out war. Too many political decisions hampered any real chance to win.
The same thing happened in Korea.
But, the returning serviceman found that the "cool" and the rich had combined to denigrate those who fought in Vietnam.
Today, those feelings of bitterness and hatred toward each other are about gone.
The idea that it is okay to have heroes is commonplace again.
While the celluloid symbols of heroes from Hollywood are now mostly dead - John Wayne, Gary Cooper, a handful of others - the "real" heroes are still here.
The "real" heroes are those who fought their battles and returned to lead the way in civilian life.
The "real" hero might be the old man, working his garden in peace and quiet, living in retirement content with the knowledge that he did his best in a crucial time in the history of the world.
Or, the "real" hero might be the guy who simply does his job, whatever it is, and keeps his life in order. He may have already raised a family, and is about to retire and join the other fellow working in his garden.
Still, another hero might be the man who gets things done in any given community. He may be an elected leader. He may simply be someone with an ability to get things done. He could be the man who helps a community grow by drawing in business. He could be the man (or woman) who teaches the community's children the skills to advance in life.
Some heroes do not look like heroes. They are bent, broken, and lack the spring of step associated with American heroes.
Don't be fooled. Some of the old, best men in any town are THE"

Mike Hansel
Vietnam War

By: Jim Griesch
He hasn't been to "The Wall," yet, but Mike Hansel says "I want to. Eventually I'm going to go up and see 'The Wall.'"
Hansel is a combat vet who spent seven months out in the bush and boonocks of Vietnam, doing all of the dirty, tough jobs asked of Americans during the 10 years of "actual war" in that country.
He was there in 1969 and 70 as a part of the 25th Infantry. His main weapon was an M-16, and his M16.
Hansel walked "the point" on many patrols, but owes his life - probably -- to one time he did not.
"We had been celebrating a little the night before," he remembers. "I was sleeping pretty late, and there was a road sweep planned for that morning."
A friend volunteered to take the point for Hansel.
"Nobody in that patrol came back without at least a wound. Hansel's replacement never came back."
The whole platoon was hit, and"

Gary Cromer
Vietnam War

By: Jim Griesch
Count Mt. Vernon mayor Gary Cromer among the Rockcastle County Vietnam combat veterans.
Cromer was in Vietnam during the Tet Offensive, and was an artillery spotter stationed at Tay Nahn, near the Cambodian border.
Cromer said his job entailed marking off spots at three places around an artillery camp, providing ranges and points of references for the gunners.
His job called for his group to advance into no man's land to make the sightings, making the job one of the most dangerous in artillery.
But, technically, American troops weren't allowed into Cambodia, and did not go out until secretly filtered in years later.
"We watched the VC (Viet Cong) burn campfires in Cambodia, and we couldn't do anything about it," Cromer remembers even now.
The experience left him bitter for "10 to 15 years," he said.
He said he was "hurt, as much as anything else," by other things.
Among them was a confrontation with a member of a "peace movement" group at San Francisco International Airport, as he was heading home from the service.
He simply resented being hassled for being in uniform.
In a classic serviceman's story, Cromer said that he left California on"

Garland French
Vietnam War

By: Jim Griesch
Garland French fought his share of the battles in Vietnam, and didn't feel accosted by American civilians because of that until he was almost home.
He remembers feeling confronted by a taxi driver who refused to take him to the train station in Cincinnati from the airport, because the driver wanted $12, and French only had $9 on him.
He was in uniform, only hours from home, and stranded.
French asked the driver to take him to I-75, where he figured he could hitch a ride south.
The driver still wanted $12 to do that.
Mad as hell, French walked for two hours to get to I-75.
But, a passing sailor in uniform, coming this way, spotted French quickly, and drove him all the way"

Rockets blast way to 7-4 '89 record

By: Jim Griesch
The Rockcastle County High Rockets blasted away at Williamsburg in a 34-8 season-closing win last Friday.

It was "blast left" and "blast right" for much of the night for senior Dane Cox. He ran for 129 yards in 28 carries and four touchdowns in his final high school game.

"Here's what else the Rockets did that was so impressive:

- Scored on drives of 75, 90, 87, 95 yards.

- Opened the game with the longest scoring pass of the season, 62 yards.

- Ran for a total of 310 yards, passed for a total of 98 yards. Both represent the top effort in any game this year.

- Set a coach Tom Larkey era record for fewest points in a season, 116, and lowest per-game scoring average for all opponents, 10.55.

The win was also the first in three tries for Larkey over Williamsburg's Joe Rose.

The 62-yard bomb from quarterback Scott Parkey to end William Hellard, was a monster throw into Hellard's face mask.

"He took it over his right shoulder, in stride, at about the Williamsburg 30, at least 10 yards behind the nearest defender."

He bobbed the ball in his arms for about three or four strides (10 yards) before putting it, and the Yellow Jackets, away.

"I hit my mask," he explained later. "Then, I was going like this (as he juggled an imaginary ball between his hands)."

The score was off the "Rocket Special," in which the ends cross deep at times, and gets Cox free out underneath at the right side.

It was the same pass that Billy Todd burned Whitley County for 48 yards and a score the week before. This pass was to the left, not the right.

After delivering that first blow, the Rockets went to a slow torture for the Passing: Rockcastle -- Scott Parkey, 4 completions, 8 attempts, 1 TD, 98 yards, 0 interceptions. Williamsburg -- Mark Huddleston, 9-5-0-36; Bryan Rakes 1-0-0-0.

Receiving: Rockcastle -- William Hellard, 2 catches, 80 yards, 1 TD; Dane Cox, 2-18-0. Williamsburg -- Bryan Rakes, 3-8-0; Wade Rains 1-18-0; Darren Watkins, 1-10-0.

Their next possession, they drove it 90 yards for another score. Cox went in from a yard out on the 16th play. The drive lasted 5:54, and included runs of 10 and 12 yards by Cox, both on blast plays over left tackle.

In this formation, both tackles are together. Right tackle Scott Hines (6-4, 226) is just outside left tackle David Eaton (6-2, 218), giving opponents a lot of power to overcome.

Williamsburg couldn't. Cox also caught a big 11-yard pass from Parkey on third and eight at the Jackets 19.

Two plays later, Cox scored.

Cox got 90 of his yards on 15 blast plays to the left, including three of his season-high tying four TDs and his longest run of the year, 22 yards.

That run came on the 87-yard drive, which finished the scoring in the first half.

Cox got the long jog on the second play, from his own 15 to the 37, to get the Rockets out of a hole.

Later, he scored on third and goal from the one after an 18-yard pass from Parkey to Hellard put the Rockets in position to score at the nine.

That pass came on a second-and-18 play from the 27, forced by a holding penalty on a three-yard gain by Parkey.

Cox wasn't the whole show for the Rockets, however.

If he proved a back can have a blast by driving straight ahead, freshman J.D. Harris proved you can also be a success, even running in reverse.

Harris followed Cox's 22-yard gain on the third scoring drive with a 27-yard gallop around right end which put the ball on the Jackets 36.

Later, Harris ran the same reverse right on consecutive plays for 19 and six yards to get the Rockets out of a hole.

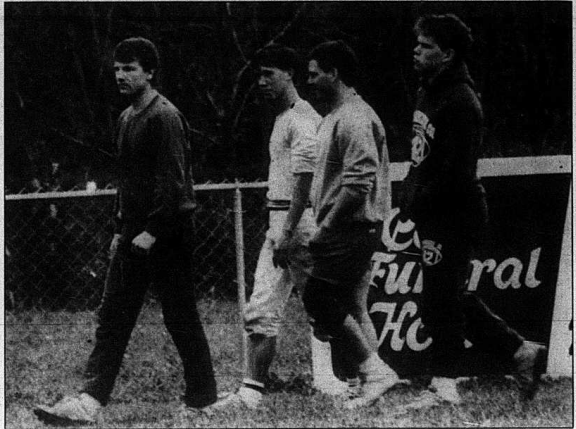

They used Harris's runs for momentum on the 95-yard drive.

His 19-yard run got them away from their own goal. They were third-and-10 from their own five when he broke it big.

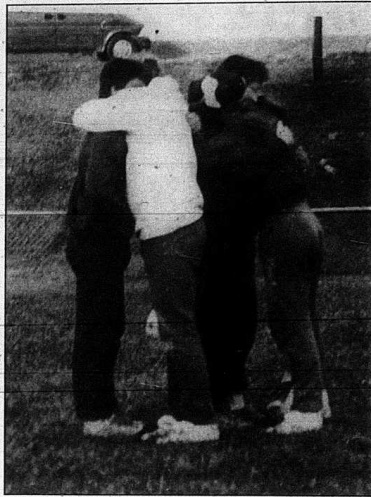

The six-yarder almost went for more distance, but one of the Jackets made a nice play.

After Kevin Rowe pushed his way up the middle for seven yards follow-

Just a closer walk with three ...

Different schools say good-bye to seniors in a variety of ways. At Kentucky, they sing or play "My Old Kentucky Home." At Tennessee, for basketball, they put a spotlight on players as they emerge from the dressing room. At Rockcastle County High, senior football players take a slow, solemn last walk around the practice field at the last practice. Last Thursday, Tommy Cromer, Jay Brown, Dane Cox and Kevin Rowe (top) made their walk. (At left) the seniors said good-bye to the coaches last. (Below) The rest of the team met the seniors in one end zone, at the end of their walk. And, (at bottom) in an annual event, a local minister gives a short speech to the team as it sits under a tree at one end of the field. This year, the speaker was Eddie Hammond, pastor at First Christian Church, Mt. Vernon.

NOTES: Pairings for all tournaments except first round of Pre-Season Tournament at Rockcastle County High will be announced later. The first round of the Pre-Season Tournament pits Mt. Vernon and Brodhead in one game, Livingston and Roundstone in the other, in Thursday's games. Tip off for the first game will be 6:30 p.m., with the second game to begin at about 8 p.m., given warm-up time for that second game.

Some schedules may not be completed yet, and additional games could be announced by some coaches at future points in the season.

Major tournaments are planned at both Livingston and Brodhead in January, while Brodhead will also play in the Paint Lick Invitational next week.

Junior High boys begin season with tourney

The boys' portion of the junior high basketball schedule leaps into action this Thursday with a two-day, four-game pre-season tournament at Rockcastle County High School. The first round is this week, with the consolation and finals next Monday.

That's just part of a busy week for both boys and girls at the junior high level here. Tuesday, the girls' "B" team tournament starts at Mt. Vernon, and the finals will be Friday, Nov. 17. Then, next Thursday, the "A" tournament first round begins at Rockcastle County High, with the finals the following Monday.

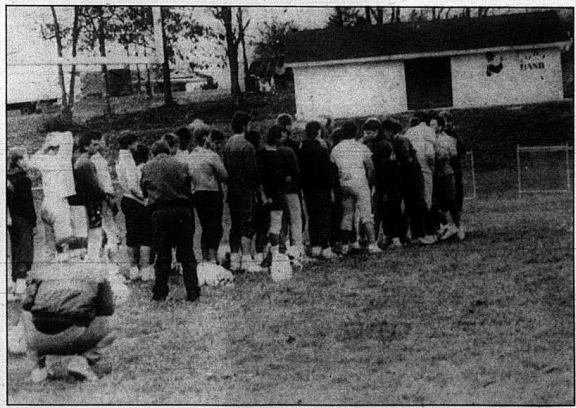

In addition to the local tournament, Brodhead is also slated for a tournament at Paint Lick Elementary in Garrard County.

The biggest tournaments of the year for local fans, of course, are the Lions Club Tournament at Livingston and the massive Brodhead Invitational. Both of the tournaments come in January.

After the Brodhead tourney, Mt. Vernon will be finished with its season, but the other three county schools will each have a game or two left.

The above schedules are not complete for all schools. Coaches say they plan to add at least a game or two at most of the schools.

Announcements of those added games will be made on these pages, as the coaches inform us of either added games, or games dropped to accommodate one schedule or another.

Rockets

ing the two reverses, Harris ran the same play for the third time in four plays.

This time, he reversed it back to his left, and picked up 15 more yards. In all, he had 82 yards in five carries.

That made the ball all the way to the Rockets 48.

Two plays later, Mike Spires ran the reverse to the right side for 10 more yards. That was his longest run of the season, and moved the ball to the Williamsburg 33.

From there, the drive was all Cox. He ran for four, then one more on third and six, following an incomplete pass.

On fourth and five from the 28, he picked up seven on a pass from Larkey, then broke it in for 12 to the nine for a first and goal.

The 12-yarder was on a dive out of the winged-T. It crossed up the Jackets, who were looking for Rowe or a reverse again.

Two plays later, Cox scored from the four to the six on his third TD.

He added one from three yards out with only 2:35 left.

The drive covered only 40 yards, and was set up by a failed pass on fourth and 15 by the Jackets.

The big play was a 21-yard run by Rowe to the three.

He may have scored on the play, but ran into traffic near the five, and actually bounced off Eaton, trying to block for him, and into the arms of the last possible Williamsburg defender.

Play stopped there for several minutes as a fight broke out at about the 10 yard line. It took five minutes for Phillip Ball's officiating crew to restore order, and another three or four minutes to let things cool down. Hines was ejected for the Rockets, while Williamsburg's senior tailback, Wade Rains, got the boot.

When those two went at it, several other skirmishes broke out.

Williamsburg coaches were on the scene fairly quickly, but when Larkey and his staff went out to help separate players, Ball was waving them back toward their own bench.

Curtis Cotton kicked extra points after all but the fourth TD. That tied his season's best effort. It also just missed a Larkey-era record 5 extra points in one game.

The kick he missed looked fairly close. When asked how close it was afterwards, he said, "It sailed somewhere around the (top of the) upright."

The defense also had some key moments.

They stopped the Jackets on downs at the Rockcastle five on the first drive of the second half.

They should have stopped the Jackets on their only scoring drive.

A fake field goal, in which players were downfield quickly for the Jackets, picked up a first down at the Rockets 35.

Rowe almost had a diving interceptions at the 20, but couldn't hold on to the ball when he hit the ground.

Then, the defense allowed a 12-yard pass on third-and-11 from the 31.

From there, Williamsburg powered in as Rains went the last yard on third-and-goal from the one.

The defense held Williamsburg to just 41 yards rushing on 16 carries the first half, and MINUS FOUR yards passing.

That came on a middle screen on the last play of the half. Mark Huddleston hit Bryan Rakes perfectly just past several on-rushing linemen.

But, Rakes was almost in the arms

McClure, Bray finish out of Red Man elite

Two Rockcastle fishermen ran out of "fishing luck" at the wrong time this week.

Ronnie McClure and Mark Bray, who had wound up 12th and 14th in Mountain Division competition in Red Man's "working man's" summer-long series of tournaments, did not figure in the regional tourney at Demopolis, Ala.

Bray had boat problems, and did not even get to fish. McClure was not among the top 50 of over 100 who fished.

Ted Grigsby, the Stanford man who is a member of the Rockcastle Bass Fishermen's Club, finished 17th with a total of 13 pounds, 13 ounces worth of fish landed. He had nine pounds, three ounces of that the first day.

The tournament was won by Robert Hamilton of Brandon, Miss., who landed 38 pounds, 11 ounces of fish.

Hamilton and a number of others are assured of a trip to next summer's All-American, at a site to be announced later.

McClure has fished at the regional and higher levels in Red Man competition in the last five years.

This would have been Bray's first chance at fishing in a regional.

Amy Parker (in white jersey, left, and right) was under constant pressure Monday night, during Livingston's junior high basketball game with Mt. Vernon. Putting on the pressure are Lady Devils Hope Carmack (54), Tabatha Bell (44) and Kim Kirby (42). Mt. Vernon won both the "A" and "B" games.

Draw made for girls junior high tourney

Livingston will meet Mt. Vernon, and Brodhead will square off against Roundstone in the county's girls junior high "A" Team basketball tournament at Rockcastle County High next week.

Those first round games are slated to begin at 6:30 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 16, with the losers and winners meeting in the consolation and championship games on Monday, Nov. 20.

In the "B" Team tournament, which will be sponsored by the Livingston Lions Club and held at Mt. Vernon School, the draw is much different.

Entirely different. Brodhead and Mt. Vernon will play at 6 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 14, with Roundstone and Livingston playing at about 7 p.m.

The championship and consolation games will be played at 6 p.m., Friday, Nov. 17, again at Mt. Vernon. In action Monday night, Mt. Vernon swept two from Livingston, with the "A" squad cruising to a 59-12 win, the "B" team by 26-21.

Mt. Vernon broke away from a 5-2 lead with 14 straight points until the end of the first quarter.

The Lady Red Devils stretched their lead over the Lady Blue Devils to 30-6 by the half, and the only drama left one more basket.

Tabatha Bell led all scorers with 27 points, followed by Kim Kirby with 11.

Rosemary Parker and Virginia

Slusher each had four for Livingston. Livingston's "B" squad outscored Mt. Vernon 12-6 in the final five-minute quarter, and cut the lead to 24-19 with about two minutes left, but never got closer as each squad scored one more basket.

Melinda Smith had 10, Brandi Chasteen eight for Mt. Vernon. Slusher had 10 for Livingston.

In a pair of games last Thursday, Mt. Vernon swept Brodhead.

In the "A" game, Bell outscored Cindy McCauley 24-13 as Mt. Vernon won 57-39.

Heather Kidwell added 12 for Mt. Vernon, while Amy Robinson had 11 for Brodhead.

The Lady Tigers had a 26-20 lead at the half, but Mt. Vernon put on a 16-2 spurt in the third quarter to wrestle a 36-28 lead, then outscored Brodhead 21-11 in a fast-paced last.

36 Acres, m/l, In Tracts & Personal Property

Sat., Nov. 11, 1989 10:30 a.m.

Brindle Ridge Section - Rockcastle County

LOCATION: Approximately 3 miles west of Mt. Vernon on Purrr Rigsby Road. Follow Hwy. 1326 (old Brodhead Road) approximately 2-1/2 miles to the Purrr Rigsby Road. Proceed about 1/2 mile to the auction site. Auction signs are posted.

The heirs of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clark have commissioned our firm to sell, at absolute auction, this well-located farm and personal property.

Tract #1 - contains 1.56 acres and is improved with the above pictured older 4 room house which is in need of repair. This tract has 284.29 ft. of road frontage on the Purrr Rigsby Road.

Tract #2 - contains 2.04 acres and is improved with the pictured 32x32 tobacco barn and has 285 ft. of road frontage along the Purrr Rigsby Road.

Tract #3 - contains 3.46 acres with 360 ft. of road frontage on the Mattie Hast road.

Most of all tracts #1, 2, & 3 is cleared tillable land.

Tracts #4-8 - range in size from 3.19 acres to 6.87 acres all having over 300 ft. of road frontage along the Purrr Rigsby road.

Tracts #4, 5 & 6 are wooded and tracts #7 & 8 each have some cleared land.

When combined, there is a total of 36.02 acres by survey, having approximately 10 acres cleared land and a basic tobacco allotment of 1265 lbs. All of these tracts have city water available. Dear Tobacco Farmers:

November 20th marks the opening sale date for the 1989-1990 Burley Tobacco Market. New London Tobacco Market has made several improvements to give you (the farmer) better service this year.

We will again have weighing in at two warehouses to save you unloading time. In addition, we will be receiving tobacco seven days a week. We are offering the service of storing for those of you who lack a place to keep it. The early tobacco will be fully suned and 24 hour watchmen available. We will officially start weighing tobacco Friday, November 10th. We offer to you three dry and well lit warehouses in which to sell your tobacco.

The same familiar key persons will still be there to accommodate you, as they have for many years. We are all tobacco growers and therefore we know your problems and will work to get you top dollar for your crops.

London Tobacco Market is proud of the fact that in 1988 we had the highest average in the entire eight state Burley Belt. That is proof enough that we strive to get you higher prices. Also, in 1988 we did not let any tobacco go to the pool, which has been true for several years now.

We will have buyers from all of the major tobacco companies, so it is easy to see why our competition would like to discredit us, as we have been far ahead of them in prices and service for years.

We would like to thank all of you who have been selling with us and tell you that we appreciate your business. To those who haven't done business with us, we invite you to find out for yourselves. We are large enough to serve you and small enough to know you.

In the "B" game, Mt. Vernon got 16 from Melinda Smith to roll up a 39-15 win. Donna Cash had six, Kristi Moore five, for Broadhead.
The second quarter proved disastrous for Broadhead's "A" and "B" teams in games Monday at Lancaster.
The "A" team led 9-8 after a quarter, but got outscored 8-2 in the second, then 21-10 the second half in dropping a 37-21 decision to the Green Devils.
Cindy McCauley scored 11 for the Lady Tigers.

And, for about the fifth time this season, the Rockets just missed a shoutout.

They got a blanket in the mud at Harlan. But, they gave up single scores to Russell County, Knox Central, Madison Southern, Whitley

County, and Williamsburg.

A shut out in any of those would have equaled a season mark of two zeros.
Only Pulaski County scored more than twice against the Rockets, getting four scores. Two of those came on runs of 95 and 80 yards: The 80-yarder was assisted by an uncalled clip.

He went down immediately, for the loss.

And, the Rockets may have been in line to hold Williamsburg's fans at bay a yard a rush in the half, except for a 32-yard burst by senior fullback Darrian Bowen.
Take away those yards, and Williamsburg was held to a net of only nine yards rushing.

Williamsburg had the ground, but the second half on the 82, but 37 of them came on a Rains run during the scoring drive.

The two long runs -- the two longest of the game -- were 69 of the team's total of 123 rushing.

Radio announcers who cover this Williamsburg all year noted that this was the first time that Jacket quarterback Mark Huddleston had been held to negative rushing yards.

"What Saith the Scriptures"

In Hebrews 12:14, we read "follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord." Holiness signifies a separation to God and a separation from the world, i.e. the domain of darkness which Satan is the prince thereof. God's grace teaches us that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world." Tit. 2:11-12.

Many people are out in the religious world preaching a cheap grace that demands nothing of its hearers. Yet the true grace of God teaches us, year, compels us to live a holy and godly, life as we saw in Tit. 2:11-12. Even in Jude's day men were turning the grace of God into lasciviousness. Jude 4. Those who preach the doctrine of justification by faith only, and the doctrine of one saved always saved, have cheapened the grace of God, which doctrines logically demands nothing of them. God's grace compels men to live a life of holiness. "Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God." II Cor. 7:1. How foolish to say that we can live ungodly, sinful lives, and the grace of God will cover up such without repentance. God has told us that the filthy garments are to be put off in Gal. 5:19-21, Eph. 4:17-5:12, Col. 3:1-16 and to put on the garments of Holiness in bearing the fruit of the spirit and being transformed into the image of Christ. That beloved friends, takes real faith to kill the old man and to put on Christ. That is the obedience of faith that the Book of Romans demands of those who would be saved. Rom. 1:5-16:25.

The road of holiness (Is. 35:8) begins by becoming a Christian. One must hear the gospel; believe in Jesus as God's Son, repent, confess the saviour with the mouth and be baptized in water. Rom. 10:17, Jn. 3:16, Lk. 13:3, Mt. 10:32-33, Mk. 16:16. This will get you on the road of holiness. Then when you fail as a Christian apply 1 Jn. 1:7-9 to find forgiveness. The end of way of holiness is heaven, are you in that way?

Alvin Carpenter

He carried a 1903 Springfield rifle as his main protection against the Hun, and the troops of Kaiser Wilhelm.

Does he feel like a hero now? Did he feel like a hero when he sailed for Europe, amidst a sea of women waving to the men manning the rails of the liners-turned transports?

"No," he said of 1917. "And, I didn't feel, too much, like one, when I come back. I done my part."

Carpenter lived through the Roaring 20s easily enough, but did not march on Washington, demanding a bonus in the early 1930s, when millions of out-of-work World War I vets asked their government for help. "I didn't go," he says simply.

But, he remembers the violence, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur led armored and cavalry troops through the vets' bivouac area, rousting the vets from Washington.

"He hurt a lot of people," Carpenter said late last week of MacArthur's success in putting down the unrest.

The 20s were also an era of peace and splendor, when governments attempted to ban wars forever.

Of course, that didn't work out.

No more wars?

"That can't be done," Carpenter says. "The Bible says there will be wars and rumors of wars, you can't stop it, unless people change their ways."

The Carpenter family is a history of proof that wars will continue to exist.

Alvin has outlived one brother, one son, and one grandson, all of whom served in combat for the United States.

His brother, Walter, fought through the Argonne Forest in France during World War II, almost retracing Alvin's footsteps from the war before.

His son, Warren G., Sr., also fought in World War II. Warren's son, Warren G., Jr., was in Vietnam.

Warren, Sr., died two years ago. Warren, Jr., who was awarded the Bronze Star in January, 1977, died seven years ago. Walter has been dead for over 20 years.

Alvin has a brother and a sister still living, as well as four grandchildren.

He's been married to his wife, Mattie, since Aug. 20, 1920, or for just over 69 years.

Alvin retired in 1970, after working at the Bluegrass Army Depot for 25 years.

Now, he has plenty of time to take it easy, to spend his time doing what he likes.

Those likes include hunting, fishing, and "digging my potatoes" in the garden behind his home on West Main St., Mt. Vernon.

Is Alvin Carpenter the oldest living veteran in Rockcastle County?

Indianapolis, at an all-services journalism and radio-TV school.

Because he was not at a naval facility, he was sent to the training center at Great Lakes, Ill., north of Chicago, to muster out.

While Subic Bay would ordinarily be among the most dramatic places Miller was stationed, he was there as part of a film processing crew during the Vietnam War.

"Duty was 12 hours on, 12 off, seven days a week," he reported last week.

Miller also attended schools in Norman, Okla., and Pensacola, Fla.

The Lexington he was stationed aboard is the same Lexington that recently had a training pilot killed when the pilot tried to land at too low an altitude, too slow a speed.

Ask any Navy vet. He'll tell you that 11 years without sea duty is a real trick for any seaman to pull.

Garland French

French was home, out of the service, ready to get on with civilian life again, at 7:30 a.m., on an August morning in 1969.

Average Vets bonus should be about $375, says state official

Jason LeMay, an official in the Kentucky Department of Military Affairs, says the average veterans bonus so far is about $375. That's for a combination of months spent in Vietnam from 1964 through 1975, and in service outside of the designated combat zones.

LeMay also says that 49,172 applications for the proposed bonus have been received in Frankfort, and of that number, 42,000 have been processed.

He said he expects to reach at least 80,000 applications for the bonus, which will be paid next spring.

"We'll definitely hit 80,000," he promised. "I'd like to hit 108,000."

That is the number state officials believe represent those eligible for the proposed veterans bonus.

Vets who served in Vietnam, or in one of the designated combat support positions from August 4, 1964, through April, 1975, are eligible for $25 per month. Those who served during that period, but outside of the Vietnam combat zone, are eligible for a bonus based on $15 per month.

To get the maximum bonus of $500, a vet would have to serve for 20 months in the war zone, or have been medically evacuated from the country at any time.

LeMay said that once the filing deadline is passed on Feb. 28, 1990, his department will present an estimated dollar figure to the state legislature. The legislature will then allocate enough money to pay the bonuses.

LeMay said his department wants to start writing checks on April 1, 1990, the first day set aside to do so.

That 108,000 eligible veterans figure is an estimated figure. State VFW totals show about 102,400 Vietnam vets in Kentucky, and about 250 in Rockcastle County. The VFW also shows about 1,700 World War I vets still living in the state, and 10 in Rockcastle. That number may not be right. World War I vet Alvin Carpenter believes he is the last WWI vet still living here.

The VFW shows 119,400 World War II vets in Kentucky, 320 in this county. And, there are about 35,900 Korea vets in the state, about 230 here.

VFW will lay a wreath at memorial at the courthouse at 11 a.m., Saturday

VFW 5908 officers are scheduled to lay a wreath at the memorial on the courthouse lawn at 11 a.m., Saturday, Nov. 11, in honor of the county's war dead.

It is a public ceremony, and anyone wishing to take part, or attend, may do so. The names of Rockcastle's war dead are chiseled into the stone of the monument.

Commentary

Imagine the guy who saved his platoon or company from attack. He's the soldier who captured important officers, and the information gained resulted in key victories.

He might be the sailor who saved dozens of lives aboard the USS Arizona at Pearl Harbor.

He could be the man who disarmed the charges the Germans had set under the bridge at Remagen, enabling General George Patton and his armored armies entrance into Germany in 1945.

He could be the fellow who stayed on Bataan, and paid an unbelievable price at the hands of his captors for three years.

He could have been the first infantryman ashore on Omaha Beach on June 6, 1944.

He could have been in one of the dive bombers that destroyed four Japanese carriers in a span of six minutes at Midway, forever changing the momentum of the Pacific War.

He might be the fellow who survived mustard gas attacks, the Argonne Forest or Belleau Wood in World War I.

He may be the man who survived Port, Chop Hill or Chosin Reservoir in Korea.

Or, he may have been someone who ordered close in bombing of his own position in Vietnam because it saved his life as well as his friends'. He may have survived the Tet Offensive, Ein Lai, or one of the countless skirmishes against a constantly changing enemy in Vietnam.

Even more recently, he could be someone who took part in the nightmare that is the Middle East.

Those are the men who FOUGHT when asked to do so.

Other veterans, a countless number, never saw combat. They simply served.

Whoever, whatever, veterans. Take a bow.

Citizens Bank Vice President Keith Smith, left, congratulates Luther Rose on his family's latest business adventure.

Estate
Auction
of the late Mr. Estle Bullock's
47 Acre Farm, more or less

Sat., Nov. 11, 1989
2:30 p.m.
Chestnut Ridge Section - Rockcastle Co.

LOCATION: Turn off US 25 just past Superior Food Market onto state road 3274 (Chestnut Ridge road) and proceed approximately 1-1/2 miles to auction site. Signs are posted.

In order to settle the estate of the late Mr. Bullock, his heirs have contracted our firm to sell this good Chestnut Ridge farm for the absolute high dollar.

The farm consists of 47 acres, more or less, of which approximately 24 acres is crop and pasture land the balance in woods. It is improved with a good 36x40 barn and another barn which is in need of repairs. City water is available. There is a basic tobacco allotment of 852 lbs. Being under fence, the farm is ready for livestock immediately.

Auctioneer's note: Although the property has been used primarily for farming operation, with its location near town and city water available, and being on the blacktop road, it does have some potential for dividing. There are several good home sites on the property. Be sure to look the farm over before sale date. Remember, it's an absolute auction, the last bid will buy.

Terms: 20% down day of sale, balance in 30 days with delivery of deed.

Businesses that don't expand, make changes and look to new avenues to attract the buying public all too often don't make it in a small rural community.

We certainly applaud the efforts of those individuals like Luther and Bonnie Rose and their family who are always looking for ways to fulfill the needs of their present customers and attract new ones.

That is evident by the Rose's most recent business adventure, Hair Creations by Lis and Les and the Brodhead Fitness Center. Both businesses are located adjacent to their already well established Rose's One Stop Grocery and Restaurant.

At Citizens Bank we are proud to have customers like Luther and Bonnie and congratulate them on the opening of their latest two businesses. Good luck!
