An unusual sight recently was the use of Cox Funeral Home's horse-drawn hearse in the funeral of Frank Hensley of Mt. Vernon. Mr. Hensley had always driven the hearse for Cox on ceremonial occasions and had requested it be used at his funeral. The last time the hearse was used in a funeral was in 1930 for the funeral of Bud Cox's great grandmother. Mr. Hensley was buried in Mareburg Cemetery. adv.

Renfro will be annexed

U.S. 25 to the I-75 overpass at Renfro Valley. A second annex from the overpass along U.S. 25 to the Norma Mullins property at the bottom of Green Hill Hill.

A second reading of the two ordinances will be held Friday and will take in the two areas upon publication in the Signal next week.

It was the second time the Renfro Valley area has been on the council's annexation agenda. The Renfro area was on the first ordinance proposed by the city, but was a separate section from the other areas adjoining the city that had been scheduled for annexation.

However, following a first reading of the original ordinance, the council reversed itself on a second reading and voted to put the annexation of areas other than Renfro Valley on the November ballot, but to go ahead and annex Renfro Valley since there was no opposition.

The Renfro Valley section brings in all of the Renfro Valley entertainment complex, service stations and residents along the route. Derby City South Truck Plaza, KOA campground and radio station WRVW.

Earlier, the city had planned to annex only to the I-75 overpass at Renfro Valley, but owners of Renfro Valley Folks Inc. asked to be brought into the city, and also to be allowed to hook on to the city sewer when it becomes available.

As noted, the second annexation of areas around Mt. Vernon will go on the November ballot. But, unlike the original ordinance, some owners of property in the areas to be on the ballot may not get to vote.

According to state annexation statutes, only persons owning property who actually live in the areas to be annexed can vote. Some persons who own property in the area live in other areas of the city and county.

salaries at $101,000; insurance at $31,000; and seasonal fees at $15,000 and Utilities, $12,000.

Most revenue in the General Fund comes from property tax receipts which totals $65,598 and franchise taxes at $25,000.

Most money in the Water department comes from the sale of water at $375,000, with expenditures for salaries at $136,000.

Revenue in the Sewer Fund comes from customers at $280,000 with most money expended for salaries at $63,000. Depreciation in the fund is $92,500 and interest at $54,558.

Before the budget was discussed, Mayor Gary R. Cromer called an executive session of the council for a discussion of personnel. Whatever the discussion resolved, no vote was taken when the council reconvened. State Rep. Danny Ford and Clarence Carter asked the council to lend support to get the Kentucky Division of Water to lift its ban on water line extensions in the county. There is an indefinite suspension on extensions. Rep. Ford said the ruling stagnates growth and progress in the community and prevents further development.

The state halted extensions in March, noting the city water plant is producing at near capacity and would be operating continually at capacity as the peak season in the summer. The city furnishes water to Broadhead, Western District and Northern District. Livingston has its own water systems.

Mayor Cromer told Ford the city and state officials have gone over records from the water plant and it was the state's decision to put the ban into effect.

The mayor estimated it will take about $1.8 million to upgrade the water plant, with that figure changing from time to time.

We have spent tons of money just to keep the plant going," the mayor said, "and we are governed by others in plant operations," meaning the state Division of Water.

Carter told the council he will go to Frankfort if necessary in an effort to get a water line to a subdivision he is developing on the north side of town. He said the project is dead until water can be piped to the area.

Carter said he thought people living in the city should be able to get water before others in Lincoln and Pulaski County. Western District furnishes water to some residents in those two counties.

Carter also questioned figures on water usage at the plant, figures he received from the mayor during the meeting.

In other business, the mayor told the council he hopes a radio dispatch system will be working by Aug. 1. It will take over the job from Jailer Billy Kirby who has operated the system for several years, but declined to continue.

The mayor also told the council as soon as signs are received parking meters in the city will be covered allowing for two-hour free parking. The council voted earlier to cover the meters.

Wayne Bullock, representing the All American Club which has been cleaning up trash from streets in the city, asked the council if it would be permissible to adopt Newcomb Avenue into the program.

Mayor Cromer complimented the group for their efforts, as did Bernice Wilson, in her case as letter. Mrs. Wilson complimented the clean-up done at the senior citizens housing project behind city hall, and invited the council to come and take a look. The 1989-90 city audit will be done by Garska, Lawton and Clontz, accountants, at a cost of $5,450.

Rockcastle Hospital ambulance attendants prepare to transport Sarah Rose a Rockcastle Manufacturing employee, to Rockcastle Hospital Wednesday morning after an apparent gas leak at the plant forced it to be evacuated. Plant officials said the plant should re-open Thursday.

Court chooses annex architect

By: Ray McClure

A first look and discussion of a Rockcastle courthouse court annex was part of the business of the Rockcastle Fiscal Court at its regular meeting Tuesday.

Three architect firms made a pitch to be chosen to design the estimated $575,000 annex project that will house, circuit and district court and offices for Supreme Court Justice Joseph Lambert.

After hearing the architects, Chrisman, Miller, Woodford Inc., of Lexington; Randy N. Booher of London and Garland Vanhook of Stanford, the magistrates leaned toward Vanhook, and so voted when a motion was made to consider Vanhook as the architect. However, County Judge/

Executive Roland Mullins stressed that the court was not hiring Vanhook at this time, but would discuss further his ideas on the project. Also, the state will have to approve the

Manufacturing plant evacuated

Rockcastle Manufacturing officials closed the Mt. Vernon plant Wednesday morning when fumes from a gas well nearby blew into the plant or a natural gas leak occurred inside the plant.

Several employees became ill, and all employees were sent home until the problem is corrected, according to Plant Manager Tandy Pedigo.

Pedigo said that he did not think there was a gas line leak in the plant. However, Department of Emergency Services officials said Wednesday that there was apparently a leak and that crews from that office were at the plant Wednesday afternoon trying to find it.

Baker Engineering employees are cleaning the gas lines at the plant's well and Pedigo said that he thought that odor had escaped and blew into the plant. "The wind just picked up the odor and blew it over here on us," he said.

Pedigo said the problem should be corrected and employees back on the job Thursday (today).

He said some employees were not affected by the odor but others were, "so we just sent everyone home." But, some employees at the scene Wednesday morning said that there was a strange odor at the plant Tuesday as well and that at least three employees were vomiting then.

Eighteen employees were treated at the Rockcastle Hospital Wednesday and released.

Board votes in ten percent pay hike

By: Richard Anderkin

A ten percent increase in pay, roofing projects, summer school at RCHS and the hiring of new teachers were just some of items discussed at the four hour long marathon Rockcastle County Board of Education meeting Tuesday night.

The board voted to give all certified and classified personnel, except for contract haulers, in the local system a ten percent increase in pay for the coming year.

The move, which cost the local system over $600,000, was one of the changes mandated by the recent education reform package passed this Spring by Kentucky lawmakers.

With the increase in pay, a teacher in the Rockcastle school system with 20 years experience and a Rank 1 will be paid $31,500, a year.

Beginning teachers with no experience will receive $19,300.

Teachers in the school system with a Masters Degree and 20 years experience will be paid $29,000. All hourly employees will also receive the ten percent increase as will bus drivers.

June begins with heavy rainfall

June got off to a wet start early Sunday when 1.23 inches of rain fell at Cox Funeral Home weather station.

The storm that dumped the heavy rain on the area was accompanied by heavy thunder and lightning.

The front that brought the rain left cool temperatures behind. It was 51 degrees early Tuesday.

July 1 deadline for leasing tobacco

The Rockcastle County ASCS Office wishes to remind all burley tobacco producers that all burley tobacco leases for the current year must be completed by both the lessee and lessor in the county office by July 1st.

Remember July 1st is the deadline. No extensions will be granted!

Vernon eventually drains into the sinkhole behind the Mt. Vernon Elementary school, thus raising concerns that sink hole clogs up 32 houses in the general area would be flooded, according to local soil conservationist Dave Edwards.

Edwards told board members Tuesday night that his superiors were concerned about possible flooding in the area which could cause the U.S.D.A. to be sued by local residents, since they are the ones doing the work on the project.

The $20,000 project will clean up the three acre area around the sink hole, provide for a spillway and a trash guard and generally improve the looks of the area.

Board members voted to go ahead with the project which has been scheduled for quite sometime, although they did agree to sign a document making them responsible for any problem with flooding.

School test scores up from last year

By: Richard Anderkin

A smiling Bige Towery Jr., reported to the Rockcastle County Board of Education Tuesday night that test scores in Rockcastle County schools were higher than a year ago. In some instances much higher.

Towery's announcement came during the regular meeting of the board Tuesday night at the central office.

A year ago Towery, the local superintendent, said that if test scores did not improve he would consider resigning from his position.

But, test scores did improve, dramatically from a year ago.

"I think we had a very good school year and now we have some statistics to back that up," Towery said.

"We made significant progress this year and we will work hard to see that the improvements continue. We are very pleased," he said.

Of the four mandated grades from which scores were calculated, seventh graders and tenth graders did the best, while scores in the third grade still lagged behind.

58.9 percent of all students in the tenth grade on the Rockcastle County school system scored at or above the national average. That compared to 51.7 percent a year ago.

In the seventh grade, 57.7 percent were at or above the national average this year, up a dramatic 17.9 percent from a year ago, when only 39.8 percent scored at or above the national average.

Just as last year, test scores in the third grade lagged behind the rest of the system with only 47.6 percent of the students scoring at or above the national average. However that was up a significant amount from a year ago when only 34.8 percent of the students had average test scores.

52 percent of the students in the fifth grade scored at or above the average up from 44 percent a year ago.

Towery attributed the increases to better preparation on the part of school would enable several seniors to graduate who would otherwise not have.

The local school system is conducting the summer school with the help of Eastern Kentucky University and the Council on Higher Education.

Problems with the roof at Broadhead Elementary school and more problems on the roof at RCHS also got the board's attention Tuesday.

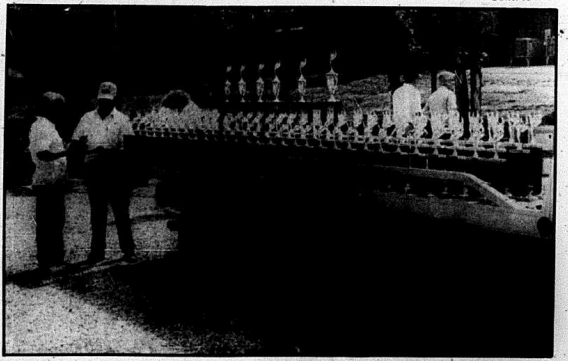

Director of Buildings and Grounds, Larry Hammond told board members that the portion of the roof at Broadhead that was not repaired a couple of years ago was now in poor condition and needed to be repaired.

He also reported that the high school's roof was once again in terrible shape and needed to be replaced.

The board voted to give Hammond and Towery the authority to do what they deemed necessary to fix the roofs and to also take care of any other facility need this summer.

Hammond said that a couple of the projects would be a new fence for

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor,
Not too long ago, I wrote about the tragic abuse of Nelson Mandela. He was working for the divestment of the A N C. Eventually he was accused and sent to prison. His wife was broken-hearted. She and her children were left to struggle for themselves. The two little girls were about four and five years old. The government mistreated them. Nelson was not allowed to write to them for six months. It is my opinion, that if it is the pigment in the skin that causes all of this trouble, I ask God to have mercy on all of the black countries in the world.
Today the Ethiopians are war torn and devastated. The little children are hungry, living in dirt and blood. Homes in shambles, they live in constant fear of being killed.
In 1936, the Italians invaded Ethiopia, using mustard gas to spray from mechanized units, to kill the black, bare-foot soldiers of Ethiopia. Haile Selassie was a most tragic hero.
Haile Selassie prayed that Almighty God might spare the other countries from the kind of suffering that had been afflicted on his own people. Millions of men, women and children had not only sprayed human beings but had sprayed animals and rivers, as well.
The Emperor asked representatives of the world government to come to Geneva to discharge the most painful of their duties. He asked "What am I to take back to my people?" In that same year, Selassie delivered his final plea for help. The League suspended all sanctions against Italy.
I have never been able to see where the black countries have been that are offensive, against any country. They are over-run any way. The abuse against them is totally unnecessary.
Whoknows: how long prejudice will prevail in this, the finest country in the world. President Abraham Lincoln struggled with it over two hundred years ago, but lost his life. There are the most wonderful opportunities in the United States. We don't need the kind of ignorance that breeds hatred and killing.

For the last two years we have had the Mt. Vernon Christmas Parade and purchased Christmas gifts for many children in the county who could not afford gifts. We could not do any of this without the help of the sponsors. Again we say thanks to the everyone who donated, judged and worked our car show.

Dear Editor,
A few words about the courthouse and the real nice job Mr. Mullins, our new judge, is having done.
Those two ladies he got to clean the courthouse floors and rest rooms, which is Myrtle Kidwell and Kathy Owens, are sure doing a good job. You can almost see yourself in the floors and the bath rooms are real nice and clean too. It is sure nice to have a clean public courthouse in a change.
Now if you drop your gum or cud of tobacco you can put it back in your mouth and not have to worry about the dirt. But to the people that put their butts on the floor, that's cigarette butts of course. Those people have no respect for what Myrtle and Kathy are doing.
So keep up the good work Myrtle and Kathy and Mr. Mullins.
I for one think the courthouse is looking good, real good.

Linda McWhorter
P.S.: The bathrooms don't stink no more, they are nice and clean. You could practically eat off the floors.

Dear Editor:
On Friday May 26, 1990 at 5:30 a flag and flagpole was dedicated to the city of Brodhead and its people. The flagpole was donated by Long Airox, the BVFD firemen erected the pole, and a flag was donated by their family of Mitchell Bussell who was a veteran. Someone however, has total disregard and disrespect for the symbol of our country, the life of a veteran, and the people of Brodhead. Late Sunday night May 28, someone cut down the flag and stole the flag which was dedicated to all the people of Brodhead/
Someone knows what has happened to the flag and a reward is being offered for information leading to the return of the flag and for the individual who took it.
In our small community we often have taken pride in that we knew our neighbors, you could count on people to help people, and community efforts have been appreciated. If anyone has any information about the flag, we appeal to you to please contact someone about it; if the fire department, the auxiliary or Joe Bussell. Please return the flag.

AUDIENCE OF THE 1990 GRADUATION EXERCISES:

I would like to say how much I appreciate everyone who attended the 1990 Commencement exercises at Rockcastle County High School. I know in the past our graduation had, as our local paper stated, been a circus. I had given much thought to changing the day of graduation or even going to an invitation only. I was very pleased this year and I think everyone who attended was proud of the exercises. Many people have told me how much better our services went, but I feel we still have some areas to improve in. This was just another example of when our people are asked for help, they respond with a positive attitude. Our goal was to honor the graduates, and I think everyone here did that.
Again, thanks for helping make our 1990 graduation exercises the best ever!

Respectfully,
Konnie D. Cash

We Have to Stop Poisoning Our River

An Essay

By: Jennifer Kaye Richter

In Letcher County, near the Virginia border, the mountains are higher than any place else in Kentucky. At the limestone base of one of these mountains a small spring gurgles cool, clear water from a crack in the earth. It is refreshing to drink and it is here that the Kentucky River begins its wandering flow toward the Ohio, more than two hundred miles away.

There are other springs just below this one and soon their waters join together and form a small brook. It descends down the mountain and out into a valley where it joins other little brooks. Within five miles of the springs the brooks have become a stream large enough to have a name. It is called the North Fork of the Kentucky River. By this time its water is already unsafe to drink.

Raw sewage, acid run-off from old coal mines, junked cars, and rotting garbage in its headwaters have spoiled the river even before it is large enough to get its name.

As the river winds through the rugged mountains in eastern Kentucky, other streams flow in and make it larger along the way. As it grows in size the amount and causes of its pollution increase too.

In the headwaters sewage gets into the river from a household here and there. But long before it leaves the hills the river passes through and picks up the human waste of whole villages and small towns. Sewer systems are often too old or too small to handle the needs of growing populations. They spill untreated wastes directly into the river. Landfills for solid waste often leak a variety of poisons into the river.

As it flows northward toward the Central Kentucky Knobs, the river gains tributaries that contain salty brine and other petroleum by-products from oil and wells. Silt and coal from construction, strip mining and from cultivation erode into the river and discolor its sand. Manure and even dead animals along with chemical fertilizers, herbicides and pesticides wash in as it passes through farmlands.

In the bluegrass region the river or tributaries flow through communities that have large manufacturing plants where it picks up a wide range of industrial wastes.

Yet dozens of communities and hundreds of thousands of people along the river also depend on it for their drinking water. They use it for recreation such as boating and swimming. They catch and eat its fish. Entire communities exist because they can get their water from the river. These same people are also the ones who cause the river's pollution problem.

Late in the summer of 1988 the beach at Fort Boonesboro State Park was closed. The river had so much bacteria in it that health officials decided it was unsafe for swimming. Of course 1988 was a drought year and dry weather was blamed for the river's problems. But in 1989 rainfall brought sewage and the beach was still closed. It was even dirtier than in 1988 according to the news media, but this time its condition could not be blamed on the drought.

The loss of one public beach may not seem very terrible. People can go to other places to swim and forget about the river. It doesn't seem to be a big deal. But perhaps it should be.

Perhaps people should be getting scared. The pollution that has made the river unsafe for swimming is not going to stop just because it has run the swimmers away. It just won't be noticed as much. Meanwhile the pollution will be getting worse every day.

The next thing we are likely to hear from health officials is that fish from the river are unsafe to eat. The fisherman may complain, but they will probably find other places to go and the pollution will continue to grow.

Finally the officials may tell us that the river water is becoming polluted with things that can't be taken out in a treatment plant. When people discover that the water has gotten so bad that they can no longer make it fit to use, the time may be too late to do anything about it. That's why we need to start cleaning up the river right now.

It has taken man nearly two hundred years to get the river in the pitiful shape that it is in. Cleaning it up may also take a very long time, but it is an effort that simply must be started soon.

We need to start at the tiny little springs in Letcher County and head down stream, not stopping until we reach Carrollton where the Kentucky empties into the Ohio. We need to go up every tributary along the way and find every source of pollution. Then we need to take whatever steps that may be necessary to stop that pollution from getting into the river. We simply must make it against the law to use the river as a sewer and a garbage disposal.

Nothing will work though until the people who use and live along the river look long and hard at what they are doing to it. They must come to realize that every time they harm it they are also hurting themselves. Our river is in pain and now some of us who live here are feeling hurt too.

Unless people stop poisoning the river it may be there very much longer. It may still be flowing, but the Kentucky River has taken about as much abuse as it can stand and still be useful to the people who take it for granted.

KENTUCKY'S WAITING CHILD

This active, delightful twelve year old is Annie. She enjoys skating, riding bicycles, and of course, chit-chatting on the phone. She would love to take piano lessons some day. Annie needs a home to call her own.

Kentucky has over 275 children waiting for an adoptive family. Like Annie, these children wait in foster homes, if they are lucky. Kentucky has a shortage of foster and adoptive homes for older children.

The Department for Social Services is looking for people who can make a commitment to children. You can be single, an apartment dweller, or have a moderate income. There is no fee charged for services.

If you want to make a difference in the life of a child, consider fostering or adoption. For information call:

Down Memory Lane

Today I'm making a trip down memory lane. I always like company when I go on a trip so why don't you come along. Of course you will have to choose your own lane to travel in. Mine is private and may not be as interesting as yours. All of us can go on this trip for it won't be crowded and won't cost a cent. After we've made our trip it would be fun to get together and compare notes on what we found along the way.

I think I'll go by way of the move back to Kentucky after World War II. I've shared a little about my first move to Kentucky now I'll share a little of my second move.

After building our home and adding a son, Rodney, to our family, as well as clearing land to farm and making a start living selling cull timber, we moved back to Cincinnati to work in the defense plants. World War II had begun and help was needed. Yep, I ran machinery at Wright Aeronautical. My specialty was an engine lathe. Mat worked there also for awhile then finished the war years at Willow Run, Mi. He was working at Phillip Carey's after the war when he decided he'd had enough of the city and wanted to head back to Kentucky.

At that time I think Judy was 10. Rod & I both were in school at Lockland and doing well. Judy was taking art lessons and everyone seemed to think she was an up and coming artist. Rod's school work in second grade was commendable enough for the teacher to give him extra assignments to keep him busy while the other children finished class work. She was a marvelous teacher and quickly recognized when a child was ready for a heavier work load. Any way we were well pleased with our life style and I guess I was lured into the idea it would be permanent. I'm sure there must have been signs of Mat's discontentment but I was so wrapped up in my own contentment I never once thought of this.

This house where I now live was the home he loved. He wanted to be back in his beloved hills and woodlands. Cincinnati, on the other hand, was my beloved home. With its street lights and sidewalks.

We could catch a bus or street car just a couple of blocks away and go almost anywhere in the area we wanted to. We didn't own a car for we really didn't need one. We would walk to church, school to the shopping area. The food store was only a few blocks away so it was nothing to carry our groceries home. We could go more often and that way keep fresher produce. Mat and the children had a small victory garden and that produced fresh summer vegetables. And for a treat to the kids he would take them to the swimming pool. It, also was close enough to be able to walk to in a few minutes and we used it frequently. Mat and I worked different shifts so we shared different hours of the day with the kids. My time was when the house-work had to be attended to and the kids had their chores to do as well as I. All of us had to pitch in. Then when there was time in our schedule we would do something for fun. One of these times was when I took them to Coney Island for a day. My niece Peggy, Judy's age, was visiting us so this was a very special treat. We went to downtown Cincinnati on the bus then boarded the Island Queen, the boat that ferried or cruised the people to and from Coney Island. It was a big paddle boat steamer and had entertainment on it as well as normal transportation for people to go to the park. Coney Island was a big entertainment park on the Ohio River. It was later moved to another area and was renamed King's Island.

The boat ride from the wharf down town up to Coney Island was a big part of the fun. But this day of which I'm speaking the park itself was the most fun for those three kids so when it was time to return at 6 p.m. they were not nearly ready to leave. And what mother is there that would refuse three pleading voices to stay till the next boat. We stayed. And the kids had more rides, myte fun houses, and more hot dogs etc. Then the beautiful fireworks ended the evening and we headed for the boat and home. While I listened to the band play and watched people in fancy clothes dance in the ball room three tired little kids sat beside me and soon dozed off. It wasn't nearly as exciting going back home as it was going to the park. We finally dragged us out our house about midnight and there but happy little kids tumbled into bed. I've never regretted missing that six o'clock boat and allowing these three youngsters to taste a bit of night life and I think they will always remember it.

Another treat I was able to give Judy and Rod was when I took them out for "A night on the town". The Albee Theater was the biggest and nicest theater in Cincinnati at that time and that's where we went. Its seats were all upholstered in dark red velvet and the aisles were carpeted in plush carpet so no one even heard you walking to their seats. I wanted my children to experience an evening in this atmosphere. So we chose the movie we wanted to see and took off all dressed up in our very best to see "How Green Was My Valley". The hustle and bustle of the beautiful and busy downtown area kept us busy for awhile just enjoying the lights shining from every window all the way from the top of the Carew Tower down to the boat docks. And the Fountain Square itself was worth the trip to see. The huge fountain with lights under it to make it glitter more, sprayed its foam over gorgeous flower beds all around. After a little while of feasting our eyes on this we went for refreshments which I told them was "cocktails". For who could ever go to the theater without first having cocktails. This little cocktail bar I took them to was a small but busy front office stand on Fifth Street. The cocktails were made from fresh fruit and every fruit imaginable was there to choose from Not only local varieties but exotics from the South Sea Islands, were there also. One could have as many varieties as he wished blended in the cocktail and then served from lovely frosted glasses. These were healthy delicious drinks and was exciting for a child to have just before going to the theater.

It was about this time I became aware of Mat's decision to come back to Kentucky and I was very unhappy about it. My life would all be changed. I would no longer be able to go to a church of my choice nor could I ever go to another movie. I would have to buy my groceries in huge quantities and not have fresh vegetables except in summer. And my children would no longer have art classes and advanced books to learn from. They would again have to walk the one and a half miles to school in all kinds of weather. I would have to go back to washing on a board and carrying the water from the spring to do it with. Again I would have to worry about keeping a fire burning in a wood cookstove. I would have no refrigerator and would have to use the spring house to keep the milk cool. And once again I would be separated from my family. Mom, Dad, and my brothers and sisters all lived in that area and we were a happy fan loving family that got together often to sing and enjoy ourselves. This would all be given up for solitude and hard work. But my wedding vows had been "whether thou goest I will follow." I don't take vows lightly.

So we began to make ready for the move. When someone came in answer to the ad, refrigerator for sale, I could show it for crying but made Mat close the deal. He emptied the food out of it and helped load it while I was in the bedroom remaining the fact I'd never have another one. You see, our place was still without electric, phones and food roads.

just going for walks. This was a busy neighborhood and I was missing it even before I left.

The day of the take of Judy woke up with a severe carache and while Mat began loading the truck he had bought for the occasion I took her to the doctor. He said no trip for her that day and maybe not for several. He was concerned it might be an inflamed mastoid. If so she would have to be hospitalized. So I took her to mom and dad and went back to help Mat finish up.

I remember so well the last things I put on the load. It was a glass wash board recently purchased, a lamp chimney for the oil lamp we had left behind and a dozen of eggs in the carton tucked into a niche. Mat's good panama hat was in the cab of the truck. I remember these because of later circumstances. When I put the wash board in a little cranny I said, with a lot of sarcasm and anger, be sure you take good care of this for it will be the first thing I'll have when we get there. Truer words had never been spoken.

Mat and Rodney began their trip sometime in the afternoon and I finished tidying up the empty apartment before I went to mom's and to see about Judy. This was early March and the weather was cold, blustery and uncertain. There had been deep freezes that winter and the spring thaws had begun just enough to make quaranters and over spruce that wasn't covered with pavement or sand. The roads and roadides that weren't paved were impossible. But the Kentucky hills were calling Mat and he had to answer their call.

About 9 a.m. dad's phone rang and I answered it. The faint little voice on the other end said, mommy. We've had a wreck. I couldn't quite make it out, it sounded so sweet and when I questioned, "Rodney, is that you?" Again he said, "Yes, we've had a wreck." I nearly dropped the phone in my fright and before I could ask where or how they were Mat's voice came on and told about the wreck. They had been crowded off the road by a large truck load of hay pressing them. The driver had cut back too quickly and Mat's truck was crowded over the edge and it tumbled down into the creek. He thought it did one complete roll over. But it didn't matter how many rolls it made, my two twins were safe and I had lost all my belongings.

Even though he told me over the phone that he had Rodney OK, and he would rather I didn't come down to look over. But it didn't matter how many rolls it made, my two twins were safe and I had lost all my belongings. Even though he told me over the phone that he had Rodney OK, and he would rather I didn't come down to look over. But it didn't matter how many rolls it made, my two twins were safe and I had lost all my belongings. Even though he told me over the phone that he had Rodney OK, and he would rather I didn't come down to look over. But it didn't matter how many rolls it made, my two twins were safe and I had lost all my belongings.

One phone call to my sister and she was at dad's house in minutes. We found Mat, quite pale and bedraggled looking sitting in the filling station where he had had the truck towed to. The wreck was between Williamson and Corinth. After being assured he wasn't injured we returned to Cincinnati with Rodney secure in my lap. A very shaken up and tired little boy.

The next day we went back to see what could be salvaged. This was when we saw my big iron chicken fryer broken in half. Iron bed smashed. A big iron heating stove smashed. It was completely ruined. Even because of canned vegetables and fruits were squashed as if an army tank had run over them. I had bought up several cases of food to see us through the growing and gardening season. I had also bought up a supply of linens and had them packed in huge hamper. They were soaked and scattered over the creek bank. This was not a place for a faint heart for it looked like we had lost everything. Then, there on the muddy bank I saw my glasses and heard without a scratch and close by the lamp chimney in its carton without a crack. Mat's hat and the dozen eggs in their niche were tucked in behind them in the niche where they'd been put. Miracles!

He brought the mess on down here while I had to go back to Cincinnati until Judy was released from the doctors care before I could follow. A few days later the three of us boarded a bus and headed back to the hills following the head of our house. We were loaded to the hilt with luggage and every conceivable possession could find to carry our personal belongings in that we had salvaged. We were able to take a bus at that time to within two miles of our home by changing at London from Greyhound to Shortway lines that ran between London and Somerset.

It was about 4 p.m. when we got off the bus at the end of our road about one and a half mile from home. I had no name then for it was just a barely passable dry weather road converted from a woods path and old wagon trail. No one dared to get in it in a vehicle in wet weather but Mat had managed to catch it dry enough or frozen hard enough to get his sal-ty belongings in with his brother, Leonard's help.

Since he had gone in it had frozen severely and thawed until now it was a two mile stretch of gooey sticky mud. And there was no possible way to avoid walking in it. I would like to see a movie of us three struggling up that hilly, rocky, muddy road with our arms full of suit cases, shopping bags and bundles. I'm sure it would be a prize winning cartoon. We were all dressed in our best clothes, as was the custom of that time when people went out in public. I had on a fancy dress of some kind and a long coat and cute little hat. Thank goodness I had worn shoes with sensible heels. They were called military heels and were only semi-high. My spike heels I had tucked away in my luggage. Judy also had on a dress and pretty red coat with hat to match. Her's was just plain boy's clothes, slacks and jacket.

Now this was the trio that had left Cincinnati that morning and got off the bus at Rockcastle River and headed up the mud road that is now 1249. No one could have recognized the three tramps that arrived about an hour later at the place that has been home ever since.

Rod weathered the muddy trek best for he was an active little guy and could shinny up a bank with his load of bags and such and stay out of the sucking sticky mud that was holding Judy and me back. I'd put one foot forward and get a hold and before I could pick the other one up the first step was slipping back. So that every step was really only a half step.

We couldn't set our load down to even change hands with them for there was nothing to set them on. Mine and Judy's dress and coat-tails were dragging in the mud as we'd step into a low place. My hat had become twisted and wastecing away and there was no way I could straighten it. I was tired, I was furious at having to move back to a place with conditions like this and once I looked longingly back to where the bus had let us off and thought of going back and waiting for a returning one. Then I realized they wouldn't let me on looking the way I did. So again I turned my face homeward and trudged on.

Soon there was space in the edge of the woods for us to set our load on and give us a rest break.

We made it home slightly before dark and found Mat and Leonard working on the place readying it for us. It had been empty for awhile and was in almost as bad a mess as the things we were moving into if they had dried the mattresses and had them on the floor for beds since the beds themselves had been destroyed. Two wooden horses holding some planks were being used for a table. I had just recently bought a lovely maple dining room suit that had been destroyed.

The stove to cook on was a step stove left by the last tenants. But they came and got it before we could get another one to cook on so once again I became a pioneer and cooked outside over an open fire till we could get the time to get one. We got a bottled gas one this time.

Of course that unharmed wash board was put to use immediately just as I'd said it would. All the filthy creek soiled linens I had packed with such care had to be washed, boiled and then ironed with the old "Sad Irons. It's always been said that good hard work is good therapy and will sweat the angers out. All of mine should have been cured then for there was enough hard work done getting settled back in to have cured a band of angry depressed people.

Bad year for Mosquitoes

Mosquitoes may be a real problem for Kentuckians this year, according to a University of Kentucky mosquito researcher.

"With the abundance of standing water for mosquito breeding have been created," said Jim Celik, a post doctoral scholar with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "Residents can help keep down mosquito numbers by eliminating the habitat favorable to the development of mosquitoes -- standing water, he said."

"If homeowners make sure standing water in gutters, buckets, old tires and barrels is drained or emptied at least once a week, the breeding ground for many mosquitoes is taken away. Adding top feeding minnows to larger pools also helps control mosquitoes. Cutting tall grass where the adult mosquitoes live will reduce the likelihood of them staying around to bite you," he said.

Between 30 and 40 species of the insect reside in Kentucky.

Jail and Bail set for June

The local Cancer Society's Jail and Bail activity has been cancelled until a later date in June due to the illness of Lu Ed Nielsen, president of the society's Rockcastle unit.

She urged residents to make plans to have someone "arrested" for "impersonating a public official," or some other reason.

The activity has had a successful past.

"I would like to thank the members of FBLA at Rockcastle High School for doing a residential drive and raising $67.50, and to the members of FHA for selling $124 in Daffodils for Daffodil Sunday, Mrs. Nielsen said. "These students and their sponsors are to be commended for their interest in community service. This is how good citizenship begins."

law provides that the United States government may take your farm unless you can affirmatively show that such unlawful conduct was carried on without your knowledge.

You should make sure that your land is not being used to grow marijuana. You can protect yourself by:

- 1) Checking the identity and references of any potential buyer or lessee.
- 2) Including in all leases and contracts language that allows you, or your agent to inspect the property at any time.
- 3) Inspecting the property regularly, and
- 4) Promptly calling the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration Office (1-502-582-5908) or the nearest Kentucky State Police Post if you suspect that marijuana is being grown.

Watch for the following indications that the people on your farm

- 1) Purchases made under false names.

Four hour meeting at school board Tuesday

Roundstone Elementary school and a handicap ramp at the central office.

Most first year teachers that were not previously hired by the board at earlier meetings were employed

Tuesday night as were two new teachers.

Jaime Leigh Cox was hired as the second elementary music teacher and Chris Cornelius was hired as a math teacher and assistant football coach at RCHS.

Towery told the board that the system's Basic Arts Committee had recommended that a second elementary music teacher be hired and RCHS principal Ronnie Cash had indicated that he needed an additional math teacher at the high school.

First year teachers re-hired were Kenwood Abney, Shannon Bales, Brenda Balingier, Lois Renee Burdett, Lucille Carlolus, Rebecca Fain, Lisa Johnson, Karen Powell, Michael Roark, James Ward, Chrystelle Beaver, who was also hired as the new head girl's basketball coach, Janice Miller and Susan Vanwinkle Reed.

In other business the board voted to approved G.E.D. certificates for: Nancy S. Bradley, Wanda L. Carroll, Pat F. Childress, Eva J. Clark, Peggy A. Dees, Wilburn Denney, and Joyce C. Kendrick.

Vanhook hired as architect for courthouse

architect. Vanhook did have the lowest percentage for his fee as architect at 6 1/2 percent of the project cost. Chrisman indicated his charge would be 7 1/2, and Booher, 7.

Chrisman was the architect on remodeling the county jail. Booher designed the Comprehensive Care Center in Mt. Vernon, and Vanhook was project architect on the Mt. Vernon Elementary School.

In drawings shown by Vanhook, the new annex would be joined to the present courthouse on the First Street side. First Street would be closed to accommodate the structure.

When asked by Judge Mullins, Magistrate Amos Burdette said it was his understanding that First Street belonged to the county.

In other action, bids were let on a bridge in Conway known as the Fairview/Claylick bridge, and a second bridge over Little Clear Creek.

Although all bids have to be checked to see if they meet state standards, Kay & Kay Contracting of London was the apparent low bidder on the Fairview/Claylick bridge at $40,500.

Seven S Contractors of Bardstown was the apparent low bidder on the Little Clear Creek Bridge at $50,750.

Karish Construction also bid on the two bridges, but when bids were opened, amounts for both bridges were $41,750. A representative from Karish said the dollar amount of one of the bids was a mistake and withdrew the bid on the Little Clear Creek bridge.

Bids were also opened on gasoline, asphalt, rock and culverts for the coming year. But all bids will have to be checked before being awarded.

Judge Mullins reported clean-up of trash dumps in the county is progressing well, but there has been a decrease in roads being adopted by groups for clean-up. The judge urged clubs and other groups to continue the clean-up of roadsides.

The court also adopted an Administrative Code for the county. It includes rules and regulations of nearly all phases of county government, such as personnel, financial management, purchases and contracts, boards and commissions, road department, and operation of the fiscal court.

THE LOVE OF GOD BLESSES
US WITH JOY OF SUMMER

With the spring and its beauty all over and done,
And the flowers beginning to fade,
And the temperature rise from the overhead sun,
While the trees give a welcoming shade,
It's a time of departure from worries and chores,
To enjoyment in every regard;
And the season of everyone moving outdoors,
To the beach or just out in the yard.
Let's remember our faith and its infinite worth,
As the wonders of nature appear;
And the love of our Father for life on the earth
When the warmth of the summer is here.

Mt. Vernon budget $213,626, up $32,000

By: Ray McClure

A General Fund budget of $213,626 to run the city for the fiscal year 1990-91 had a first reading and approval at a meeting of the Mt. Vernon City Council Monday night.

The General Fund budget is up $32,784 over the 1989-90 budget.

The city Water Department revenue and expenditures budget totals $398,530 with that money earmarked only for the Water Department. Last year the budget totaled $360,600.

The Sewer Department revenue and expenditures total $306,280, up from last year's $296,925.

Among major expenditures in the General Fund and Municipal and Economic Assistance Fund shows

City questions increase cost for cable service

A letter will be forwarded by the city to Falcon TV Cable questioning the increase in television rates in Mt. Vernon, Mayor Gary R. Cromer told the city council at its meeting Monday night.

The cable company last week announced it would raise basic rates by $2 a month plus a 30-cent copyright fee. Bills for June have been mailed and reflect the increase.

Whether the increase will hold up will probably have to be decided with talks between the city and company.

On August 1, 1989, the city signed a contract with the then owner South-corn Cablevision of Corbin that gave Southern an extension on its franchise for 10 years from May 9, 1993 to May 9, 2003.

The company agreed, and it is indicated in the ordinance, there would be no rate increase for 12 months from the effective date of renewal, Sept. 1, 1989.

The company also agreed to give Mayor Gary R. Cromer a 45-day advance notice of any rate increase. That was apparently not done.

The company also agreed to pay the city money equal to three percent of the gross revenue derived from basic cable subscription rates for its first year.

The second year, the city at its option may increase the franchise fee paid to the city to five percent of the gross revenue. All payments were to be on a quarterly basis.

Lulu Roman in Renfro Valley for June 24th performance

One of the five original cast members of the popular syndicated television show Hee Haw, will step onto the stage in Renfro Valley's new 1,500 seat barn to thrill our visitors with an exciting afternoon of gospel music on Sunday, June 24 at 3 p.m.

Lulu Roman, undoubtedly one of the funniest and most recognizable performers in country and gospel music has always been a favorite on Hee Haw where she plays the truck stop waitress, doing the jug band segment, singing a gospel song, or just being herself.

This concert is sure to be the most exciting gospel event at Renfro Valley in recent times," said Teresa Renner, Renfro's gospel activities coordinator.

Lulu has become a household name with her fun-loving personality that has been a part of the Hee Haw show since its beginning.

After becoming a Christian, Lulu began singing gospel music and she has certainly had a major impact on many people's lives and the gospel music industry. Her song "King of Who I am" with the well-known contemporary gospel music artist, Russ Taff, reached number one on the gospel charts six weeks after it was released.

Her first album with Word Records, "You Were Loving Me," won her a coveted "Dove Award" in 1985. Her single "Two More Hands," with Ricky Skaggs and Sharon White went to number one only a month after it was released.

Lulu's most recent project with Homelands Records, released the new chart climbing "Keys to the Kingdom."

Appearing on the program with Lulu is the Renners. This young family gospel group grew up only three miles from Renfro Valley and gained national recognition with their single, "Winner in His Eyes," which climbed high on the national charts.

Their most recent project was produced by the award winning composer and producer, J.D. Miller.

The Renners will touch your heart with original gospel songs ranging in styles from Bluegrass to Pop Country.

Also scheduled to appear is the well-known Renfro Valley artist, Dale Ann Bradley.

This young lady will fill your heart with joy with her crystal clear voice and unique country style.

Catch all the excitement of this great afternoon of gospel music.

Adult tickets are only $10.00 and children 12 and under are half price.

Pennington not guilty of growing marijuana on Level Green farm

Jurors deliberated half an hour before acquitting 66-year-old Fairbanks Pennington last Thursday in Pulaski County on charges stemming from a booby-trapped marijuana field found on his 332 farm at Level Green in 1988.

"I think the jury did a good job," the weathered farmer said before leaving the courtroom with friends and family.

Prosecutors asked related charges against his son, Gary Pennington, be dropped for lack of evidence. Gary Pennington was tried last November in Rockcastle Circuit Court on separate marijuana charges stemming from the same case. A jury acquitted him as well.

Former Pulaski Sheriff's deputy Jeff Aksherman narrowly avoided injury when he tripped one of the explosive booby traps while raiding the marijuana patch Oct. 19, 1988.

Defense attorney Jerry Cox hammered at the lack of direct evidence against Fairbanks Pennington, writing question marks on a blackboard during his closing argument to emphasize what he claimed were doubts created in the case.

"Nobody has denied there was marijuana on Fairbanks Pennington's farm. No one denies there were booby traps on Fairbanks Pennington's farm."

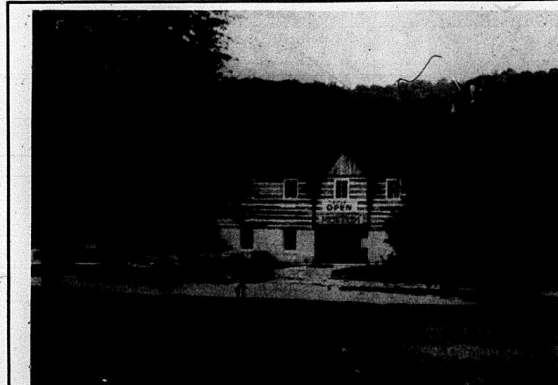

"(but) there's not one bit of evidence that Fairbanks Pennington cultivated marijuana. None. Not a bit," the Mt. Vernon attorney argued.

"They kind of want you to guess instead of relying on proof," he concluded.

John Lair Museum is now open in Renfro.

John Lair Museum Opens

Renfro Valley founder John Lair would certainly be proud of the new museum which has opened in the Renfro Valley complex.

The beautiful 17,000 square foot museum, named in Lair's honor, is a tribute to the history of country music, former and current Renfro Valley entertainers and, of course, John Lair. The man, who 50 years ago had a dream, that he could bring country music to a small Kentucky Valley.

Buddy Settles, owner of Settles Boot Country at Big Hill, a fan extraordinaire is largely responsible for the items in the museum.

Settles has collected country music memorabilia for over 20 years and has always been a fan of Renfro Valley and the late Lair.

For many years he had a mini museum at his business in Madison County, where he displayed such items that included a auto harp owned by Mother May Belle Carter to a motor bike once owned by Jerry Lee Lewis.

Settles isn't sure how he got the auto harp, but he bought the motor bike at a auction conducted by the Internal Revenue Service to pay Lewis unpaid taxes.

Both of those items and hundreds of more are on display in the museum, including a 1972 Cadillac owned by Merle Travis and Elvis Presley's 1975 solid white Lincoln Continental Limousine.

Renfro Valley management and Settles have been planning the museum, which is the former recording studio, ticket office and John Lair office, for almost two years.

Replicas of the original recording studios and radio station are included in the museum as well as a theatre with John Lair himself as the host.

Mr. Lair has been re-created by the same people that re-created the United States presidents in the Presidents Hall of Fame in Disney-world in Florida.

The theatre is located on the second floor of the museum, which is dedicated totally to Renfro Valley.

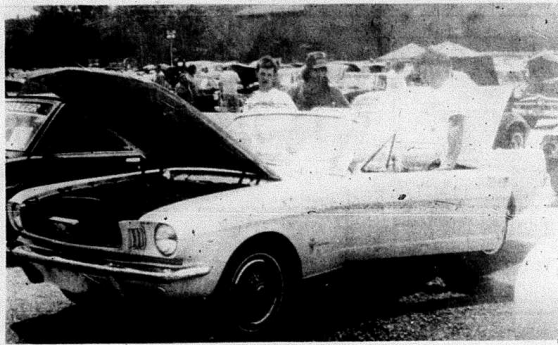

Besides Lair other Renfro entertainers honored in the museum include the former Baker Brothers, "Slim" Miller, Old Joe Clark and The Coon Creek Girls.

The museum is open 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Admission is $3.50 for adults and 2.50 for children.

Charting Rockcastle

By: Richard Anderkin
Managing Editor

There are some very upset people these days and rightly so. They are paying through the nose to watch television and they are being every reason to a certain extent about why the increases have occurred.

A regional manager for Falcon T.V., which recently purchased Southern Cablevision, the county's largest cable provider, gave every reason in the book for rate increases last week except for the real one, interest on the money they have borrowed.

If we only knew what amount was paid to Southern for each subscriber in the Rockcastle County area alone, it would shock us all. But I can tell you that what they paid was in the millions, around the two mark, I've learned.

And, State Representative Danny Ford said this week that he was highly upset because cable companies including Southern had lobbied legislators in Frankfort not to tax cable because, as he put it, it would cause an undue hardship on people that were living on a fixed income.

I think, and I'm sure Ford does as well, that the cable companies did not want to pay sales tax because it would be another expense for them and would hinder them from raising their prices as much as they wanted to.

Southern was also the company that delayed many Rockcastle counties from getting cable television service in Western Rockcastle County.

When another company secured a franchise for that area and wanted to start providing service, Southern officials screamed that they wanted a franchise as well because they wanted to serve everybody in Rockcastle County.

What they did in effect was throw a wrench in the whole works and I have pretty good information that they never intended to run any cable at the time. They simply did not want the other company to run it.

For those of us who live in the area it was frustrating to behold that we were going to receive cable again and again, and never receive any.

Most of the homes in that area are served now, at what I think is a reasonable rate, by another company, certainly not Southern or Falcon or whichever conglomerate has bought them in the past week.

There are those that have suggested, and I agree that Southern customers should rebel and have their service cut-off, or we should look for another smaller company to run cable into Mt. Vernon and surrounding areas. It wouldn't take over 300 or so cut-offs to make Falcon reconsider their pricing structure.

Cable is a luxury we can all do without, believe me I did for almost two years, and there is still the good old antenna where you can pick up three or four stations.

Noting what Falcon paid, this first rate increase certainly won't be the last.

Your basic antenna is about $40.00.

Southern denies bid rigging

Southern Belle Dairy of Somerset has officially denied charges by Kentucky Attorney General's office that it conspired with other milk suppliers to rig bids on contracts with Kentucky school districts and violated federal anti-trust laws.

Filing its answer in U.S. District Court in London to a civil complaint brought by Attorney General Fred Cowan, the company claims the lawsuit is barred by the statute of limitations and that the attorney general "has no standing to bring this action."

Cowan, who filed the suit in March on behalf of 119 school districts, including Pulaski County and Science Hill and Somerset independent schools, against 15 milk suppliers, contends that the defendants alleged illegal activities since 1986 have resulted in overcharges amounting to millions of dollars.

The lawsuit seeks compensatory damages, and automatically tripling of any damages awarded under anti-trust laws and to return the money to the affected school districts.

In its answer, Southern Belle denies that it acted to intentionally decrease regional competition by acquiring Spring Grove Dairy of Morehead in 1985 and Cumberland All-Star Dairies of Monticello earlier and that the alleged illegal activities have "substantially affected interstate commerce," as charged in the complaint.

Further progress in the case has been at least temporarily halted by another defendant, Flav-O-Rich Inc.

Viewer call-in featuring discussion of Kentucky's new education package onKET

Kentucky's new education reform package will be explained and discussed on School Reform Update 1, a live, two-hour call-in airing on KET at 8 p.m. Monday, June 11.

Last June, the Kentucky Supreme Court upheld a lower court ruling and found that Kentucky's public school system was unconstitutional.

In April, Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson signed new law that completely revamps the framework for public school curriculum, governance, and finance. The law takes effect July 13.

Panelists joining Producer/Host Ken Kurtz will be Sen. Joe Wright and Jody Richards, co-chair of the Education Reform Task Force Curriculum Committee; Sen. David Karen and Rep. Kenny Rapier, co-chairs of the Task Force Governance Committee; Sen. Michael R. Molepsy and Rep. Joe Clarke, co-chairs of the Task Force Finance Committee; Merle Hackbart, state budget director; and Sandra Gubser, secretary of the Workforce Development Cabinet.

During the program, viewers may ask questions by calling KET at (800) 866-4866. Phone-bank volunteers will write down viewers' questions.

of Louisville, which filed a motion March 26 for a stay of discovery, asking that a federal judge order a pretrial conference to implement a plan for management of pretrial discovery. Cowan has since responded, claiming that a pretrial conference is unnecessary.

Reportedly, Cowan is trying to get the consent of 119 school districts across the state, named as plaintiffs in a lawsuit he filed on their behalf against 15 milk suppliers, to allow someone else to represent them instead of the state's attorneys.

and forward them to the host and panel experts for discussion. Viewers may also leave their name, address, and phone number for a personal follow-up in case their question is not addressed during the broadcast.

Dr. Randall Clark performs first pulsoolith TM Laser Lithotripter procedure

Surgery at Humana Hospital-Lake Cumberland took another step toward the 21st century last week as Dr. Randall Clark, Urologist, performed the first procedure utilizing the pulsoolith TM Laser Lithotripter. Laser Technology is definitely the focus of the future when it comes to performing many surgical procedures," Derck W. Cimala, Executive Director, pointed out in making the announcement.

The Pulsoolith TM Laser Lithotripter is used for the treatment of gallstones, common bile duct stones and urinary tract stones," Cimala said.

Manufactured by Technomed International, the Pulsoolith TM was first located in the United States at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital in Philadelphia. Dr. Clark visited Thomas Jefferson University Hospital prior to the installation of the Pulsoolith Laser Lithotripter here at Humana Hospital-Lake Cumberland, and said that it represents the most advanced Laser Lithotripter presently in Kentucky. Using a photocoagulative effect, the Pulsoolith TM fragments stones by delivering energy through a flexible quartz fiber that is put in contact with the stone by using an endoscope.

The major patient benefit is that Pulsoolith TH is minimally invasive which means treatment of ureteral stones and kidney stones can be performed without the risk of heat damages surrounding tissue. The Pulsoolith TM is the newest addition to the Technomed International product line, which also includes the Sonoolith 3000TM extracorporeal shock wave lithotripter. "Dr. Clark has been performing procedures utilizing lasers for sometime in Louisville," Cimala concluded.

Kentucky Foster Parent Conference

Some of the Jackson County foster parents who care for abused and neglected children recently participated in a statewide conference to strengthen the benefits foster homes provide to these children. Kenneth and Bernda Goforoff, foster parents, were chosen as delegates to the 1990 Kentucky Foster Parent Conference, "Kentucky Families Together and Safe" sponsored in Louisville May 24 - 26 by the State Department for Social Services and the Kentucky

Foster Care Association. The Jackson County representatives to the conference heard from speakers including Christina Klotz, family and children's services advisor to New Jersey, Gov. James J. Florio, and Sue Donaggio, a New Jersey foster parent of 17 years who is the legislative chairperson for the National Foster Parent Association. Social Services Commissioner Larry Michalczuk said the conference participants took part in training sessions and panel discussions centering on professional relationships involved in foster care.

"We've learned that the best foster care situations -- whether temporary or covering months or even years -- are those which involve cooperation between the foster parents, the birth parents of the children involved and the department's child protection workers," Michalczuk said.

"I hope Rockcastle Countians will take the time to talk with our foster parents in the community and learn more about what they do, the benefits they find in helping one of our children and the dire need we have for more foster homes in every one of Kentucky's 120 counties," he said.

There is currently one foster home in Rockcastle County. Anyone with questions about foster care is invited to call the Rockcastle County Social Services office at 606-256-2138 or call toll-free 1-800-232-kids.

teachers, principals and instructional personnel as well as the high attendance rate in the system.

Last year the school system finished with a 95 percent attendance rate and Director of Pupil Personnel Buford Parkerson told the board that the attendance this year would be the same as last year or even a little bit better.

Parkerson also discussed the district attendance zones, which will be enforced much more stringently in the school system this year.

For the past several years school officials have allowed most students that wanted to do so, to cross the zone lines and attend the schools of their choice. However with cap sizes in classes being reduced by the state that will no longer be the case.

"It will take a very good reason for a student to cross lines," Parkerson said. "Our principals have said they will strictly enforce the guidelines and we will have to support them in their decisions," Parkerson said.

Parkerson cited Mt. Vernon Elementary as an example for the stricter enforcement of the rule. Last year 64 students attended Mt. Vernon who did not live in the Mt. Vernon school zone.

"Of course there will still be some students that will cross the zone lines, but we hope the number decreases significantly," Parkerson said.

If a student attends a school in another zone, they must attend school 6% of the time and attain passing grades. If they do not abide by those rules they will be placed on probation and or made to return to the school in the district where they live.

Pennington found not guilty of attempted murder, growing "pot"

Assistant Commonwealth Attorney Mike Henry charged that Pennington was guarding the marijuana during a confrontation with three men attempting to steal the plants.

The farmer, who testified he was checking calves in his field at the time, held a .22-caliber pistol while telling the men to get off his property.

"That's what Fairbanks Pennington was doing," Henry said. "His purpose was the same as the booby traps -- they both said get out of here."

Henry completed the case for Commonwealth's Attorney Benny Ham, who excused himself in mid-trial to take depositions from out-of-town witnesses in a civil case.

Tourism commission to be formed by city

In order to promote tourism in the city, the Mt. Vernon City Council passed an ordinance at called meetings Thursday and Friday to form a convention and tourist commission in the city.

The council designated the commission to develop and promote tourism in the city.

Mayor Gary R. Cromer told the council of various needs and requirements arise in the future involving tourism, the city needs a commission to represent the city.

No mention was made as to whom will be appointed on the commission.

Police found more than 100 plants growing along a pathway between a cornfield and a thicket on Pennington's farm, located near the Pulaski-Rockcastle County line.

Kentucky State police bomb experts testified that the patch was protected by at least three knee-high explosive devices, consisting of a blasting cap, battery, trip cord and highly explosive "det cord," a rope-like charge commonly used in mining operations.

Each device used a loop switch -- a method of wrapping wire -- to fire the charges. KSP bomb expert Larry Henderson testified that each bomb "would be like a small hand grenade."

Jurors watched a videotape of one of the bombs exploding.

Taking the stand in his own defense, Pennington denied any knowledge of the marijuana or bombs, claiming it was grown there by someone else. He said his son, Gary, and two grandsons, Jeff and Reggie Pennington, did most of the farmwork for him since he wasn't able to get around.

The marijuana was located approximately half a mile from his house, he testified.

Shortly before police raided the patch, Pennington said he'd seen several strange trucks near the farm, but did not report the suspicious activity to police. On Oct. 18, Pennington said he confronted three "hoodlums" emerging from a thicket on his property.

"I've had some calves stole and I was going down there to see if they were all there," he testified.

Pennington said he carried a pistol because of the coyotes in the area. One of the men, Victor Ball, testified they were at Pennington's farm to steal the crop. Angered that Pennington waved a gun at them, Ball said he reported the incident to the sheriff's office the next day and gave precise directions to the location.

Fairbanks Pennington had been charged with attempted murder and cultivating marijuana.

Friths surprised on 50th

By: Elizabeth F. Mullins

Ex-Brodheadians enjoyed their "Surprise" Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary.

Fifty years ago, Thelma and Ted Frith of Louisville repeated their wedding vows in the Brodhead Christian Church.

It was decorated with his sister Elnora's beautiful peonies!

On Thursday, May 31, at 6 p.m. many guests awaited Thelma and Ted's appearance at the Harmony Landing Country Club at Goshen.

When Thelma spied Byron Owens, Jr., before entering the club house she said, "Something is going on here. This is not just a dinner with our son and his wife."

She was right! Besides numerous friends, Ted and she saw their two granddaughters, Kettie and Chrisa Frith, their grandson, Alexander Harcourt and of course, their daughter Jane and her husband Davis Harcourt.

They had only expected to see their son Ted Robbins Frith and his wife, Patti, you see.

His sisters, Elnora Gray from Brodhead, Christine Stewart and Corinne Brooks of Louisville were there also.

D.A. Robbins, Thelma's brother of Brodhead, enjoyed the festivities. Her sister, Opal Wright and husband Jack of Louisville made their appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Smith of Mt. Vernon, Inez McKinney of Berea, Elizabeth F. Mullins and Byron Owens, Jr. of Brodhead, attended this celebration.

Dr. and Mrs. Guy W. Albright of Louisville and Mr. and Mrs. George Young of Indiana, ex-Brodhead occupants, took this chance to help their life-long friends celebrate.

Naturally numerous Louisville friends were there.

I know D.A. Robbins and partner, Teddy, enjoyed the music. It came from an instrument like one that played at Brodhead Little World's Fair when they owned and operated it.

Thelma started the dancing, however a friend asked for this privilege before her husband had a chance. A beautiful large flower arrangement by Jan, stood high in the center of a circular carpet filled with delicious food.

When the guests filled their plates with their course of eats, they sat at tables at one end of the room or they sat in chairs around the wall. Then came a "Call to order"

It was time for Thelma and Teddy to cut the yellow-iced layered 50th Wedding anniversary cake.

Their son, Ted R., presented a beautiful toast to his beloved parents as their daughter, Jane, grandson, two granddaughters, daughter-in-law, and son-in-law stood near by.

What a memorable sight for all the guests.

Thanks to Patti and Ted R., Frith and Jane and Davis Harcourt. This celebration will long be remembered.

Pre-Memorial Day Parade at Brodhead

By: Elizabeth F. Mullins

The raising of our American Flag was scheduled to take place in Brodhead's Town Park Friday, May 25th.

Ruth Bassell invited me to accompany her to this scene to witness this sacred event.

The donated flag pole stood near the park's shelter. The winds blew part of the plastic red, white and blue fringe that hung around the red but Brodhead Firemen Chief David Ott repaired it before the ceremony started.

Joe Martin, a veteran, presented an appropriate speech, as he stood near the red, white and blue floral wreath donated by W.F.W.

He thanked the grandchildren of Mitchell Russell for donating the flag that had draped over their father's casket. It will fly in his honor as well as to all Brodhead Veterans of any war fought to keep our U.S. A. free.

After Herbert Alcorn repeated an audible prayer for this privilege, etc., the flag was slowly raised. Cheers of joy and satisfaction followed. It was a beautiful sight! Old Glory flying to honor the vets.

The majority of this group enjoyed "The Singing" at Brodhead School's gym from 7 to 10 p.m., the same day.

Different church groups really put on a great festival of singing.

Portable key board pianos accompanied the spiritual songs. String instruments tones added to the entertainment. One young drummer kept time with singers as well as numerous violins.

Guess who sang two solos? David Brock!

I think Renfro Valley, Inc. could improve their musical program by any or all of the groups that added their talents to this yearly program!

And this Brodhead Homecoming event has no admission charge!

Brodhead Working Men's Home-makers had a refreshment stand in the building's hall, headed by Patricia Fleicher, president of the club.

These two events were fitting fore-runners for around 50 floats that rolled down Main Street to Castle Village and back to the school grounds to disembark in Brodhead the next day, May 26 from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

Clapping, bells ringing and cheers greeted each and every float.

I'm glad that I wasn't a judge of them. It certainly would have been hard for me to choose first, second, and third for prizes.

"What Saith the Scriptures"

We want to continue our study of the church Jesus has built, by studying the terms of admission into it.

In Ac. 2, we find the beginning of the church that Jesus promised to build. Peter preached to those folks the death, the burial and the Resurrection of the Son of God. The Deity of Jesus is, of course, the foundational rock upon which the church is built, as we have studied in Mt. 16:13-19. When these people were convicted or pricked in their hearts, that they were guilty; they cried out "men and brethren what shall we do?" vs. 37. Now if man has nothing to do with his salvation as some men erroneously teach, it would have been a perfect time for Peter to say, "Do? Do you want to nullify the Grace of God?" Of course Peter did not say such, because there is a part that man must do in order to be forgiven. In verse 38, we read, "Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."

Notice that Peter did not say just repent, nor did he say just be baptized, but he said Repent and be baptized! He tells us the purpose of repentance and baptism, "for the remission of sins." If we want remission or forgiveness of sins, we must obey the conditions God has laid down through the apostles. You remember last time we studied the fact that the apostles had the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven. And how that they would bind and loose things. Well, Peter used the keys of the kingdom by telling people what they had to do to be saved. In vs. 41 of Acts 2, we read, "Then they that gladly received his word were baptized; and the same day there were added unto them about 3000 souls." Then, in vs. 47b, we read "And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved."

When sinners meet the simple conditions of Salvation, believing, repenting, confession (Rm. 10:9-10) and baptism: the Lord will add every single one of them to the church that Jesus built. Friends, have you obeyed the Lord's conditions to be saved, and to become a part of Christ's Church? Why not do so today?

Burley growers recommend cuts in price supports to Yeutter

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter accepted recommendations Friday from burley growers to cut price supports for mixed grades and poor quality tobacco for the 1990 crop. Under the tobacco program, price supports represent the amount the U.S. government guarantees to growers if companies do not buy their burley. If no company buys the tobacco, the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association in Lexington buys it at the support price and sells it to manufacturers as needed.

Yeutter approved cutting mixed grades up to 9 cents a pound, dropping prices for poor quality grades up to 15 cents a pound and increasing 32 higher quality grades by up to 16 cents a pound. The top tobacco grade, called B1FR, would have a guaranteed price of $1.77 a pound. The 1989 rate for that grade was $1.69.

Tobacco growers hope the changes will encourage cultivation of high-quality burley for the growing export market. They also want to encourage stripping, which is the separation of leaves into various grades.

Farm land prices increase 12%

Kentucky agriculture land prices last year increased 12 percent statewide and reached pre-farm crisis levels according to an agricultural economist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The average per acre value of Kentucky farmland and buildings was $1,034 per acre, the first since 1983 that Kentucky land values had reached the $1,000 mark, said Craig Infinger, Extension agriculture economist.

Infinger explained that the 12-percent increase represents states bordering Kentucky, except for Virginia, where land prices increased by 18 percent. Ohio and West Virginia experienced declines in values of 1 percent and 9 percent, respectively. Other states contiguous to Kentucky and their changes include: Missouri (up 4 percent), Illinois (up 2 percent), Indiana (up 3 percent), and Tennessee (up 3 percent).

The large increase in Kentucky farmland is a result of the strong performance of tobacco, dairy and beef cattle over the past two to three years, he said. That means that pasture and cropland is worth more to farmers.

In addition, Infinger said, the substantial increase is an artifact of a national trend that was experienced about a year later in Kentucky than in many other states.

Although Kentucky experienced a large increase in land prices last year, Infinger said that farmers should not expect the trend to continue at the same pace.

"In large measure, the value of farmland reflects owners' anticipation of income and capital gains. Unless buyers of Kentucky farmland are expecting big increases in farm income or some other speculative factor, land values may reflect the rate of inflation for 1990—about 5 or 6 percent," he said.

U.S. SENATOR FOR KENTUCKY

Mitch McConnell

NO NEW TAXES

Over the past several weeks, rumors from Washington have spread that a tax increase is right around the corner. Doomsayers in Congress are pointing to the massive national debt and predicting a recession that will throw thousands of people out of work. They hope that by applying this kind of pressure to President Bush, he will go back on his promise of "no new taxes." As a fiscal conservative, I categorically reject the idea of solving the debt crisis by saddling Kentuckians with more federal taxes.

Earlier this month I signed a letter along with twenty-five of my Senate colleagues urging the President not to raise taxes. We also promised to sustain his veto of any new-tax legislation passed by the Democratically-controlled Congress; and with good reason. Today the federal debt stands at almost three trillion dollars. In order to pay this massive amount of money in perspective, imagine a stack of dollar bills reaching from the earth to the moon and back, then circling the earth. Just to pay the interest on the debt takes twenty-five cents of each tax dollar collected.

The only way to gain control of this fiscal nightmare is to cut government spending and thin-out our bloated bureaucracies. Although a hiring freeze is in effect at many federal agencies, there is a tremendous need to consolidate and streamline government services for maximum efficiency. Pushing against this deficit-reduction theory are the liberals who advocate a tax increase. The hypocrisy of new taxes can be seen in a recently-released study that shows exactly how tax increases are ultimately self-defeating. For example, every dollar in taxes raised in the postwar period (1946-86), Congress turned around and spent $1.58.

Although the debt picture is grim, there are some rays of hope. The apparent collapse of Communism in Eastern Europe means that we can carefully reduce and create a "peace dividend" which can be used to focus on domestic priorities. I have a plan in place that would use some of this money to fund a comprehensive health-care program to provide relief to low- and moderate-income Americans from skyrocketing medical costs. The rest of the peace dividend should go directly to reducing the debt.

The U.S. faces many economic challenges in the 1990's. If our country is going to remain a top competitor in world markets, then we must get our fiscal house in order. That means holding the line on spending and no new taxes!

Feeding Bossy right makes her cooler and higher milk yield Feeding Bossy right and giving her plenty of cold water will make Bossy a cool cow. And that means more milk during hot, summer weather.

"Cool cows give 5 to 20 percent more milk each day compared with cows that aren't kept cool during weather above 75 degrees Fahrenheit," said Donna Amaral, Extension dairy specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Dairymen can keep their cows cool—and producing more milk—by making sure they have access to cool, clean water, Amaral said.

"Studies in Texas have shown that milk production was increased by five pounds per day when the drinking water was cooled to 50 degrees Fahrenheit compared to 82 degree water," Amaral said.

Placing shade over waterers helps keep the water cool. Waterers need to be cleaned regularly to encourage the cows to drink more, she said. Warm pond water may discourage water consumption.

Feeding cows right will help them keep milk production up during hot weather. During hot weather, the amount of feed consumed by each cow may decrease. Thus, it is important to keep feed fresh before the animals to encourage feed consumption. Feeding a balanced ration also will help keep nutrient intake at adequate levels, she said.

"Feeding before the sun comes up and after it goes down when the temperatures are cool will help encourage cows to consume more feed," Amaral said.

Feeding ensiled feeds often prevents the forage from heating and can improve intake. Corn silage contains less fiber, which produces less heat when the cow digests it, Amaral said. That reduces the amount of heat the cow has to dissipate.
