Card of Thanks

Card of Thanks
Dear Rockcastle County
The family of Kenneth Alexander would like to take this opportunity to thank our many friends, neighbors, and relatives for the love and compassion they have shown us during our labor Day tragedy.

I guess it takes a tragedy sometimes for a person to realize just how much another person is thought of. Our family would like to thank the Rockcastle Ambulance Service, Fire Dept., and Rescue Squad. We would like to thank the many people who sent flowers, cards, money, food, telephone calls or their time to help get us through the crisis.

Our family thanks Reppert Funeral Home for an exceptional job well done. They were very professional, but sympathetic.

The Fairview Church and its members will always hold a special place for the wonderful things they did for Kenneth, before he died and in her for the had lived until January he would have attended Sunday School 14 years in a row without missing.

Our family thanks Reppert Funeral Home for an exceptional job well done. They were very professional, but sympathetic. Brother Harvey Pensol and Brother John Dodson we thank for the beautiful words they spoke at Kenneth's funeral and the Spiritual Light Singers for their beautiful words in song.

We thank the Young Farmers of America for being honorary pallbearers and for helping in the field. You see they and other people in the community came and sowed the alfalfa field for us which was what Kenneth was doing at the time of the accident. There were other people in our community who helped get in other crops for the family, we thank them as well.

Kenneth's Sunday School class will be remembered fondly as holding a special place in Kenneth's heart and for being honorary pallbearers.

We knew Kenneth was very special to our family, but we didn't realize how special he was thought of in the community. As we walked to the cemetery behind the casket if one pallbearer needed help there was always another person there ready to step in and carry Kenneth to his final resting place.

We would like to finish this letter by letting every one know that Kenneth died very happy. Why? Because although his vision was impaired he could still drive a tractor and farm. He did doing what he loved to do best, driving a tractor and farming. We hope each one of us will be that blessed. In closing, please if we've left out anyone that helped in any way we thank you too.

The family of Kenneth Alexander

Townsend said, "Once settled, these insects will remain inactive and unnoticed until the move back outside in the spring."

Look at their faces, how they smile,
With so much love down deep inside.
Our love for you both doesn't always show,
But it's always there, you both should know.
You do so much in so many way,
We love you both each and every way.

Public hearing for health department building set for Friday at 3 p.m.

By: Ray McClure

A public hearing will be held at 3 p.m. Friday in the Rockcastle Courthouse District courtroom to solicit public comments on a proposed new Rockcastle County Health Department Building.

Total cost of the building is estimated at $350,000 and would be constructed on an acre of land contributed by Attorney Jerry Cox adjacent to the new Rockcastle County Comprehensive Health Care Center.

The new location would bring together the Health Department located in downtown Mt. Vernon, and Home Health, located in the Dollar General Store Building on Main Street. With the Comprehensive Care Center already in that area, all county health services would be together in the one area.

Jerry Cox, a member of the Rockcastle Health Department Board, reported the board voted at its April meeting to investigate the possibility of constructing a new building on the land he contributed, but said that does not mean the building will be constructed.

"We're just looking at the feasibility of a new building and funding that might be available," he said.

A Community Development Block Grant will be applied for to fund $200,000 of the needed amount, leaving $150,000 that could come from sale of the Health Department building or sale of the lease on the building that is in effect for 99 years. The county owns the land on which the building sits, but the Health

Renfro sewer bids opened by council; Mt. Sterling firm is apparent winner

An apparent low bid of $489,851 to construct a sewer line from the Mt. Vernon sewer plant through Renfro Valley was made by Kenny Inc. of Mt. Sterling when bids were opened Monday night at a meeting of the city council.

The bid was $84,554 under the next low bid of $574,405 made by Manlon Inc., of Manchester.

A total of seven bids were made. The bids ranged from the low bid by Kenny Inc., to a high of $767,656 by Jim Shaggs of Bowling Green.

Other bids were $682,510 from Smith Contracting of Lawrenceburg; $631,413 from Environmental Construction of Lexington, and $587,492 from Kinder Construction Co., of

Debts forced ConTel/GTE merger, officials say

Debtors from acquisitions by ConTel Corp., forced the company into selling its holdings to GTE Inc. (General Telephone), according to company officials.

The merger is expected to take place about the first of the year. GTE will pay $5 billion for the company which operates in several Kentucky counties including Rockcastle, Laurel, Clay and Knox.

In Kentucky ConTel's 69,558 customers will join 321,638 GTE customers which includes Lexington.

ConTel to issue more shares, reducing earnings for each share, to raise the $400 million.

Wohlstetter said that GTE then "came back through the same director and said, 'Why do you want to sell stock at a price like that?'"

This second approach was also tempting to ConTel's board because of GTE's willingness to issue 1.27 shares for each share of ConTel stock, so that the annual dividend received by ConTel shareholders would climb to $2.01 from $1.10, Burnham said.

Wohlstetter noted that ConTel was a regulated telephone company with fairly cautious shareholders who expected regular dividends.

Ky. 461 has spring completion date

The last leg of Ky. 461 through Rockcastle County will not likely be completed until sometime in the spring, maybe later.

That gloomy prediction was made this week by George Reed, at the Kentucky Department of Transportation in Somerset.

A bid of $1,891,284 for work on the project has been awarded to Elmo Greer and Sons of Laurel County, but a work order has not been issued in Frankfort.

The project was bid a second time when only one bid was made.

PSC says little hope for more water in county

By: Ray McClure

Although a negative report has been made on setting up another water district in Rockcastle County, County Judge/Executive Roland Mullins still plans to proceed.

And by law, the Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) has agreed to set a formal hearing date before the commission to discuss the project.

"While the conclusions drawn by Arnett (Robert N. Arnett of the PSC staff) are negative, we still need to proceed," Judge Mullins said.

In making his report, Arnett admitted there is a definite need for another water system in Rockcastle, but the cost of constructing, operating and maintaining a water system as proposed will necessitate substantial grant money and low interest loan money in order to make the project feasible.

Arnett estimated the cost of the system at $7 million, and noted it would furnish water to between 560 and 670 homes that have no service.

The proposed system service area consists of about 44 square miles with an estimated population of 1,860, included are the communities and areas of Lanero, Three Links, Climax, Jep Hill, Sand Springs, Cedarville, Pongo, Sand Hill, Wabd, Flat Gap, Clear Creek, Brush Creek

McDaniel seen in Sand Hill area before Labor Day

Escaped fugitive Wallace McDaniel was spotted in Rockcastle County before Labor Day and U.S. deputy Marshal are working the Jackson County area for leads in the case.

McDaniel, a former Manchester police chief, escaped August 19 from the Rockcastle County jail after using a smuggled gun to get the drop on deputy jailer Margaret Kirby.

Deputy U.S. Marshalls David Hines and Mike Walters are working all local leads and are asking the public for any information which might prove helpful in apprehending McDaniel.

A reward is being offered for information. Anyone with information may keep their identity confidential.

The hotline number for the Lexington office is (606) 233-2513. There is also a London office which may be reached at 864-6993.

"Evidently he laid low in Rockcastle for about two weeks," Hines said. "The way it looks he stayed in the woods for about two weeks."

McDaniel is an accomplished outdoorsman and is considered armed and dangerous.

Walters said McDaniel was last seen wearing a short gray beard in the Sand Hill area of Rockcastle County.

McDaniel is 5'11" and weighs about 185 pounds. He has blue eyes and gray hair and has a very large nose.

"There hasn't been a sighting of him since the Friday before Labor Day," Hines said.

It is also possible that McDaniel obtained a ride out of Rockcastle where he may have made other connections.

"We have other leads that we've had checked in other states," Walters said.

McDaniel was serving a federal sentence of 30 years at the Federal Correctional Institution in Milan, Michigan.

He would not have been eligible for parole from federal prison for 10 years. He was in Rockcastle jail awaiting trial on marijuana growing charges in Jackson County.

Another plastics plant opens in Nevada

Mount Vernon Plastics Corp., a subsidiary of Reynolds Metals Co., opened a $15 million plastics thermoforming plant in Sparks, Nev. It will employ 150 people by year's end.

The 128,000 square-foot plant will produce a variety of products, including injection-molded plastic overcaps for canned coffee, margarine tubs, canned nuts and tennis ball cans; thermoformed plastic containers, and plastic microwave trays.

Mount Vernon Plastics operates as a unit of Reynolds Flexible Packaging Division and has sales of about $50 million.

The plant in Mount Vernon, that is similar to the new Sparks facility, employs more than 400.

Sworn in as Mt. Vernon city councilman Monday night was Clark "Joe" Mullins, right, who replaces William Cash who resigned. Swearing him in is Trial Commissioner Robert E. Robinson.

Charting Rockcastle

By: Richard Anderkin
Managing Editor

It is surprising that more Rockcastle County school children have not grown up to be salespeople. After all they have had jobs of experience at the job.

For years children in our schools and in most other school systems across the state have sold everything from popcorn to pictures of the last supper.

Of course the money was needed for all types of special projects because in most counties, especially rural ones, there was not enough money coming from the state to take care of all the school system's needs.

The money was used for all types of projects including school trips, athletic programs, etc.

But, that should no longer be the case. School districts will have enough money to operate on. That is if they do it properly and Rockcastle is one that usually does manage their money well.

Last week in Powell County their board of education voted to disallow anyone door-to-door solicitation by Powell County students. The Superintendent in Powell County said that it was his goal to "fully fund" education in Powell County.

I think the superintendent in that county is right about his wishes and I know the taxpayers of the county will appreciate the new board policy.

Although I know it was needed in most Kentucky counties I have always been against putting school children on the street soliciting money and that is all it comes down to.

With the latest increases in funding from the state there is absolutely no more cause for our children to have to sale stuff to raise money.

I think the local board will agree, because at their last meeting they voted to do away with the textbook rental policy at the high school. Superintendent Bigge Towery Jr., said that the program only brought in about $8,000 to $10,000 a year and that he felt the school system could afford to do away with the rental fee.

He said that parents pay enough taxes to support schools and should not have to bear the brunt of renting books as well. Of course the board agreed with him.

RFA-
Unless you are a University of Kentucky sports fan you probably can't relate to the next few comments, but it is a subject I have felt strong about from the beginning and I can't believe the Herald Leader or Courier-Journal haven't said something about it.

Eric Manuel was the victim in all of Kentucky's problems. No one else, Eddie Sutton and all of the assistants were casualties as well. But Sutton and his coaches were and are adults and should be responsible for their actions.

Manuel was accused of cheating on his college entrance exam by the NCAA and has therefore been banned from playing in Division I basketball. Anybody that believes Manuel came to Kentucky and cheated on the ACT test all by his lonesome, is as naive as the same people that think Emory Freight Lines set up Dwayne Casey.

You know the story, a package going to star recruit Chris Mills, broke open and $1,000 fell out. Mills however will get to play Division I basketball this season after setting out his last season.

He got paid, or at least his father did, and he still plays, while Eric Manuel plays.

Surely the NCAA is not so naive that they think a 17-year-old black kid from Macon, Georgia could come to Lexington and set himself up to cheat on the ACT. He had help, probably from other members of Eddie Sutton's coaching staff.

Sutton by the way has taken the head coaching job at Oklahoma State and most of his assistants have gone with him.

Eric Manuel was simply doing what he was being told by adults who should know better.

I hope Manuel gets a chance to play in the NBA one of these days, because he was certainly that kind of talent, and should have the same opportunities as fast Eddie and Chris Mills.

One very good thing to come out of Sutton's dismissal at U.K. is the fact that Big Blue fans no longer have to watch his son attempt to play basketball on a level where he has no business.

It should have told U.K. fans something when Sutton not only recruited his son, but then allowed him to start and play in front of people much better.

At least Rick Pitino had enough basketball knowledge to not let the kid play.

If he was so good why did he not play anywhere when his father did not coach. Simple, no one wanted him and now the poor old Oklahoma State fans have to put up with his lack of ability. Better than us.

Dear Editor,
Livingston Elementary cheerleaders and sponsors would like to thank everyone who helped in any manner toward the purchasing of their new cheerleading uniforms for this school year.

Thank you so very much! Jerry Reynolds for all the time you spent organizing the softball league tour, seeing that the field was ready and for letting us know that you truly care about Livingston and the students. Jerry offered to help us without being asked. He volunteered many hours for us, and we know without him this tournament would not have been possible. Thank you again, Jerry. We will forever be grateful.

Thank you Druthers Restaurant and Danny Settles for your very nice contribution. Thank you for not only helping Livingston athletics, but for all the many contributions you make for the entire Rockcastle County School System. You have been a leader in helping in so many ways for the schools and students of the entire county since you came to Rockcastle County. We appreciate your attitude of being glad to help whenever you see the need as important for the betterment of our schools, children and the community. Thanks again Danny Settles and Druthers.

Thank you Bill Jack Parsons and Roundstone PTO for giving Jerry Reynolds permission to use your field for the tournament.

Thank you Save-a-Loi grocery. You too have always been willing to donate to Livingston when we asked. Thank you for the winners, candy, buses and soft drinks. We appreciate your help.

Thank you Foodtown, FoodFair, Fain's Furniture and Brothead Fitness Center for your contributions.

Thanks to all of the teams that signed to play in the tournament. Grace Baptist Church won first place. Wally's Pub of London came in second and Delas' Rose of Jackson

Thank you Ronnie Cash for allowing the cheerleaders to sell prints of the Livingston School during Livingston Homecoming. Thank you Melody Salyer and Darlene Mink for donating your time and effort to help our squad in any way you could. Thank you to the parents for donating soft drinks, buses and baked goods to sell during the past nine months. We hope that we did not, by mistake, leave out anyone who helped us in any way. If we did, thank you too. Livingston Cheerleading Squad and Sponsors

Dear Editor,
It seems to me that I've developed a case of vertigo, from thinking about Saddam Hussein, Mikhail Gorbachev, King Fahd of Saudi Arabia, our hostages under guards of the Iraqis, the Persian Gulf Crisis, first and foremost, our young men, who are sent there to live, fight, die or do the best they can. The hot desert sands, never any refreshing cool air, very little water. I doubt if buffalo,

I couldn't take it as a teacher. I tried it long enough to find that out and now that school is back in session I don't envy teachers all that time they had off back in June, July and August. I have one teacher friend who has been back in the classroom for three weeks now and he already looks ten years older than he did on Labor Day. Teaching is, by far, the most difficult thing I've ever undertaken and I'm not very good at it. It simply requires a level of patience that I can't reach.

I wish that every parent with a child enrolled in school were required to spend one whole day with that child during a school day. I'm talking about the bus ride, homework, cafeteria -- the whole nine yards. Parents need to be required to be students one day each year right in there with the kids. Parents of teenagers ought to have to go three times.

That would end all this yap about teachers getting pay raises and would squash, for once and all, any notion that teachers don't need a three month vacation. When parents can't put up with their kids for three months, why should they expect that teachers can do it for nine.

Strangely enough, I never thought about being anything other than a teacher when I was in college. If I were to take the time to consider my ten favorite heroes, eight or nine of them would be teachers. In fact, I just had a letter from one who taught me English 4 in 1967 and who will be 79 years old a little later this month.

Mary Ann Adams still has handwriting that defines the cursive standard. Remember those alphabet cards that used to hang over every blackboard in every school? The teacher would point to them and you were supposed to make your letters as close to those as possible. Mrs. Adams is the only person I know who mastered the art and that's what a letter from her is. Art. Beautiful to look upon as well as read.

But that's not the reason I remember her from events that happened more than 23 years ago as though they were yesterday. Learning from her was fun. And when it wasn't fun it would at least be two other things. It would be different and it would be interesting. I remember saying and days after school along with three or four class mates, to voluntarily construct a card table scale model of Shakespeare's Globe Theatre.

I'm still not sure that Shakespeare was the genius that literary scholars hold him up to be, but she had me reading the stuff he wrote and debating it and even memorizing it. And I thoroughly enjoyed the process.

I wanted to enter the teaching profession because I walked other kids to experience learning the way I did in senior English. And I wanted to enjoy teaching the way that Mary Ann Adams did.

I also wanted the notoriety. Even before I reached high school, Mrs. Adams had a reputation that pervaded the lower end of Letcher County. She just did things that were different enough to get attention but not radical enough to get her in trouble. She also had the type of personality such that anything she wanted to do, she'd stand right there until she took a drink or died of thirst. She'd put some sugar in the water and if that didn't work she'd use salt. In her classroom, students learned to drink knowledge because she knew how to make them thirst for it. And I wanted to be just like her.

She did not accept the popular philosophy that one can lead a horse to water, but not make him drink. She'd stand right there until she took a drink or died of thirst. She'd put some sugar in the water and if that didn't work she'd use salt. In her classroom, students learned to drink knowledge because she knew how to make them thirst for it. And I wanted to be just like her.

rhinoceros, or any other kind of tough animals would survive in such a land as that is.

I personally don't place much credence in Mikhail Gorbachev and the plans that he had planned the summit with Mr. Bush, in Finland on Sunday, September the ninth.

I can't help wondering what stops Mr. Gorbachev from collecting what he wants from the U.S.A. and later appealing Saddam Hussein, by sending his magnificent set of arms to aid the Iraqis to win, sharing one half of the oil, he will be well heeled by U.S.A. food and money.

Before my vertigo develops into a more serious ailment, I have to clear my mind. Simply enjoy the signs of a new autumn season, look out my big window, to see the great masses of Black Susans and Goldenrods, enjoy the misty sunlight through the trees, the only thing an old lady who has been through several war times and prayed through them so I think, take a nap and rest myself. snake in her seventh grade classroom at Letcher Grade School. Keep it there all the time, they said, in a big glass thing. I was in the eighth grade at Blair Branch at the time and it was all we talked about. You could keep a pet ground hog or coon or squirrel for a pet, but snakes of any size start or color were not something that anyone would want in their house.

So when Blair Branch took on Letcher in a field meet at their place, I went along to enter the high jump just so I might have a chance to see that snake. Sure enough, we got a tour of the school and when we got to Mrs. Adams' room, there it was. Nobody was starting at or paying it any mind. I still don't think that I could have gotten a thing done for worrying about that snake getting loose, but it wasn't bothering anybody else. And that's the point. There's nobody so much sense in being afraid of snakes, particularly if they're not poisonous.

She had homes' nests, old tree stumps, sea shells, big clumps of moss and all manner of dried wildstrubbery like sumac and pine branches hanging all over the walls. Desks

Dear Editor, Today is September 13, 1990. I had awaked to a very cool day. It may start to look like Thanksgiving time. I brewed a cup of instant coffee as I dressed. I rushed out and locked my door. I took the elevator downstairs and out the door. Eager to walk my two miles. I wanted to write. Writing is my greatest love. The big driveway was a third of a mile long. I walked three round trips and came to sit on the patio which is full of metal chairs and tables with umbrellas and two pine trees sit in the center of the patio.

Cogitating about my trip this day to the ophthalmologist. I needed treatment on an eye that had had a cataract and been removed, and had a film grown over it.

I heard a crow. I usually get emotionally ecstatic, when I hear a crow. The first thing I remember when I hear a crow is when I was seven years old in the second grade at school, I read a lovely poem. It goes like this: Caw Caw, called a crow Spring is here again I know, just as sure as I am born There's a farmer planting corn.

I thought to myself, that little bird may be lost in time. Or is it I who is lost in time?

An aged senior citizen came out on the patio and sat down. He asked me what was writing. I told him.

He told me that when he was a young man, he was a county sheriff. He parked his squad car on a county road to watch for speeding cars. Not much action around there, when he heard a crow. It cawed a few times, the old fellow said, he had an idea.... He took his loud speaker and called out. Caw Caw. It sounded just like the crow. The crow said, Caw Caw.... A farm lady came along and, asked the sheriff what he was doing. To cover his embarrassment, he said, 'Hello', 'I'm just talking to a friend'.

Thank you sincerely, Margaret Dyehouse 1-513-281-6051

HAVE YOUR PRESCHOOLERS SCREENED!

A screening test is now the first step your child will begin in beginning his or her school experience. The Rockcastle County School System will be conducting a Preschool Screening Friday, Sept. 28. This service is conducted with one idea in mind - to begin children on a successful journey through school!

WHAT IS A PRESCHOOL SCREENING?

The screen test is administered as a series of "games" for the child to play. However, it is an evaluation of preschool learning skills in the following areas: eye-hand coordination, total body coordination, listening skills, following directions, working with other people, and communication skills.

WHY SHOULD I HAVE MY PRESCHOOLER SCREENED?

This is one way of finding and seeking help for preschool children who may have special needs. Screening results will give educators an indication of how well the child is developing in comparison to other children of the same age. Results can give an indication of whether your child may be gifted, have a silent developmental delay, is developing as he or she should, or if there may be a handicapping condition. It is also a good experience for your child.

WHAT DOES IT COST?

The screening is a FREE service provided by the School System to every child living in Rockcastle County.

WHO IS THE PRESCHOOL SCREENING FOR?

All preschool children ages 3 and 4 who are living in the Rockcastle County school District.

HOW LONG WILL THE SCREENING TAKE?

The actual screening will take approximately 30 minutes.

DATE, TIME AND PLACE

Preschool screening will take place Friday, September 28, 1990. Screening stations will be set up at the Family Life Center, which is located 2 miles north of Renfro Valley on the right, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Looking backward through pictures

Recently I had a request for a picture which I never did find even after digging through a fifty year plus collection of memories.

Even though I never found even the series of pictures I was looking for I did find enough reminders of the past to cause me to go into the world of yesterdays. That's where my mind has been for the past few days.

I'm a strange person maybe but I do hate to get caught up in someone else's dream world of pictures and feel obligated to look at people and kids and relatives of these people whom I've never met and never expect to.

Now if you are a person who doesn't like to look at other people's kids or read about them you can fold up your paper this week for that what I'm going to write about.

Just like a bunch of loose pictures it will probably be all mixed up. Each picture I picked up caused a new emotion to appear.

I could do a whole series of articles on pictures alone. I could take you on a tour of the eastern states in the fall when colors dominate the scenes. I could take you to the Great Lakes where the water was smooth as glass as the ferry glided across it, or to Florida where the white caps beat on the beaches.

Some day I might do that. But for now I'm going to allow you to enter my private life and share some of these joys of looking backward to when we held our first baby in our arms. Then we will meander through a few more.

Here is the first picture of Judy, my first baby, all dressed up in her fancy little sweater and booties and frilly dress. She was the bit of humanity I was going to use to show the world a perfect child could be raised by an ignorant parent. You see, I didn't realize this bit of humanity had a personality of her own. Since guide books didn't come along with her I thought my way would automatically make her what I wanted her to be.

How very wrong we can be some times in our ignorance.

Now I see a little bitsy girl standing in the yard, bare foot, holding a little baby chick in her hands.

And here is one Dr. Arthur Cooper took of her standing in the doorway. He was babysitting her for a couple of hours while we ran an errand for him. When she awoke from her nap and came to the door he said he just couldn't resist getting a picture of her standing there. Her curly hair was tousled, her dress was wrinkled, her feet bare and her eyes still heavy from sleep and her thumb was held securely in her mouth. He was surprised she woke up to find a stranger there and didn't cry.

Further along in my search I picked up one of a little boy. The smile on his round little face made me want to hug the picture. There is so much trust in the smile of a little kid when one looks straight up at you and allows you to snap a camera in his face.

There is a gap in my picture taking for a few years and I remember loaning my camera to a neighbor and she never returned it to me. (I had to wait a few years before I could get another). Therefore I don't have much of a record of Rod as a little boy except a few taken by a professional which are very good. They show his features even better than the snapshots. Especially his sweet smile. So, the next one I pick up is of a long legged little boy holding on to the hands of a little girl. Polly and Rod. From this day on many of my pictures include these two. She was his shadow. They grow so fast at this stage one day they are in rompers and the next they seem to be wearing dad's britches. Here he is, all arms and legs and again holding on to Polly's hand. She is three or four and he is a gangly ten or twelve years old. What a clean cut little guy he is, smiling down at the little sister he adores, and who adores him. Their shadows are funny looking and grotesque as they reach all the way across the yard and all but hide the faithful dog beside them.

Now here she is all dressed up in her best dress, hat and purse, that her dad had bought for her. Stubby, our beloved cocker spaniel is at her feet.

There seems to always be an animal in the pictures I look of them. Rod was a teeter before I realized it and here is one of him on his bike with Stubby close by and Polly not to be out done by Rod and his bike is also there on her little tricycle. She had really out grown it but still tried to ride. Her blonde curls are peeking out from a little hat she had trying. This next picture is of one where she must be imitating her dad, she has on his cap with the ear muffs pulled down over her curls and ears till they almost hide her face and his jacket she has put on that little three or four year old frame is dragging in the mud. Even the sleeves are dragging. An impish grin shows in the part of the face visible.

Even though our yard wasn't well manicured then, we kept it cut down enough so all sorts of games could be played there. A teeter totter with two happy little girls shows up in one picture. Polly and her little cousin Donna seem to be having a great time.

The croquet court in one section was a great place to catch a picture of neighbors playing the game. Most of them have long since gone on.

Well, here is one of my three children all grown standing in front of the Buffalo School they had all attended at one time. This is a treasure and will prove to future generations a one room school can turn out quality education. Since that picture was made the building has been torn down.

Polly and Rod didn't exclude Judy from their lives by any means. Here they all three are all dressed up ready to go to Sunday School or that's the way they look anyway. That's about the only time they had a cause to put on a pretty dress and a nice pair of slacks. Of course they had to walk a couple of miles to get there so Judy didn't have on high heels.

Mat is in a few of these but he

The Mount Vernon Signal, preferred not to be in these casual snaps. Later he relented and I have many of him with the kids and grandkids.

I wasn't so concerned about my looks and here I find one with my girls beside me. One on each side. Judy was in high school that year and Polly hadn't begun yet.

Now I find one that nearly broke my heart the day it was made, as well as making it swell with pride. It's of Judy standing at the front gate with traveling bag, purse and jacket held firmly in strong hands. She is so pretty standing there with her back to the house which will from now on only be the place she will come back to visit. It's never the same again. It seems such a short time from the time this picture was made that she was a Thursday, September 30, 1990 P-A5 little girl walking the two miles to the one room school. Then a shorter time lapse and she was graduating from Shopville High School as salutatorian and coming away with the D.A.R. Award for good citizenship. Now, here she stands tall and proud on her way to college.

The very next picture is of Judy and Rod together and he has grown taller than she. He has on his Shopville letter jacket so he must now be a senior and she is home on a break from college. In the back ground I see Polly looking on out of the car window with a pensive look on her face like she may be thinking, "someday maybe I will be big too."

AARP holds meeting

The regular monthly meeting of Chapter 3215 was held Friday night Sept. 14, 1990 at the library.

Shirley Cummins was the guest speaker. She spoke about some of the benefits of belonging to the Senior Citizens of Rockcastle County. It is an organization separate from the A.A.R.P. but, like the A.A.R.P. is for the benefit of our senior citizens.

She also explained how the transit system works and how it has grown from one bus to 17 vehicles for use in several counties. Thank you Shirley, not only for your participation at our meeting but for the good work you are doing. The main topic of our business meeting was about the upcoming forum, about our health care problems, to be held at the red barn at Renfro Valley, Oct. 11, beginning at 9 a.m. and ending at 3 p.m. This forum will be the first in the state and is called, 'Wake Up Kentucky.' It concerns the health care problems we are all facing, old and young and is sponsored by the national A.A.R.P. one of the biggest organizations in the world.

This will be the first of many forums held nation-wide to give people the chance to voice their opinions on what to do about our health care problems.

Please be at the Renfro Valley red barn early on the 11th day of October. The registration begins at 9 a.m. We would like to have some of the local people registered before the buses begin to arrive from other counties.

Sweet and Sour

had just delivered his Valectory speech. He will be off to Berea soon also.

Polly is growing up fast and all her pictures show her to be following in their footsteps. Graduation from the eighth grade shows her to be taller than her teacher, Miss Powell.

Here is a fun one of Polly on fresh-man day at Broadhead High, she is dressed up from the rag bag I think. Since Judy's and Rod's days at Shopville a road has been built so Polly can attend school in her own county.

I find one of Polly and her dad working on some project. She has transferred her companionship from Rod to her dad now. And they both love it.

Next one I find is of Polly on her high school graduation night. The one I'm looking at is of Judy, who is now established as a clinical psychologist, on one side and Rodney in his Air Force uniform on the other side, she is dressed in cap and gown. She also has been accepted at Berea and will be leaving home come fall.

Empty nest time for us makes us begin making plans for our future. Proud moments come when we go to Judy's graduation from Bowling Green Ohio's graduate school where she walked off with honors. Pictures show the tired looks from the hours of study and work she had put in.

I'm extremely proud of the picture of me pinning Rod's wings on his shoulder the day he graduated from officer's school. This made him a Lieutenant in the Air Force.

The last one I'll speak of here is the one of Pat standing so proudly beside Polly at her graduation from Berea. The last of our kids had finally made the grade.

Open House at Barbourville

The Kentucky Commission for Handicapped Children will host an open house on Sept. 21, from 2 to 4 p.m.

The outpatient clinic is located at 219 Ballard Street in Barbourville. The clinic serves Bell, Clay, Harlan, Jackson, Knox, Laurel, Rockcastle and Whitley counties.

The open house will provide an opportunity to tour the clinic, view a presentation of a sound/slide show, and answer questions.

A special request will be made for help in identifying eligible children birth through twenty-one whose parents are unable to pay for care or only able to pay for portions of the vital health care they need.

The event is taking place during a three month statewide awareness campaign to promote the services of the Commission, an agency having thirteen permanent offices across the state.

For more information, call the Barbourville office at (606) 546-5109 or the Louisville headquarters at 1-800-232-1160. The open house is public and free.

"What Saith the Scriptures"

We continue our study of the church that Jesus built (Mt. 16:18), by looking at the 4th act of worship from Ac. 2:42, prayers.

Praying is something that is done privately as an individual and something that we can do when we come together. Jesus said, "But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy father which is in secret; and thy father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly," Mt. 6:6. So we see that praying to God is to be done individually, "in secret," that is without display and publicity, to the seeing of men.

But, prayer is also something that is to be done when saints assemble together. In Ac. 4:23-24, we read about Peter and John leaving the chief priests and elders, and going to their own company. They reported what had been said to them, "and when they heard that, they lifted up their voice to God with one accord, and said," "It goes on to record their prayer in vs. 24b-30.

Then vs. 31 says, "And when they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled together." Notice that they were assembled together, and that they had prayed with one accord. Some religious groups when they "pray," when they assemble together, all pray at the same time, saying different things. Yet here we see there is to be "one accord," all praying the same thoughts and desires unto God.

Ac. 4:31 says they were praying, and vs. 24 says they lifted up their voice to God, which is a good definition of prayer; prayer is talking to God. God talks to us through his word, and we talk to God in prayer. Jms. 5:16 says, "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." Yes, prayers can alter and change the course of actions, the outcome, the future. James cited the example of Elijah's prayer in Jms. 5:17-18 to prove that prayer does and can accomplish our desires. Jesus taught us to always pray and not to lose heart, Lk. 18:1ff.

Prayer is the privilege of the children of God, not the impenitent and wicked, "for the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers; but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil." 1 Pet. 3:12.

Are you seeking to serve God, friend?

You don't buy electricity the way you buy melons

...but even if you could—with our low rates, you wouldn't need to!

If you like good value—and who doesn't?—you'll appreciate that KU's electric rates, residential, commercial and industrial, are some of the lowest in the nation. And we haven't had a rate increase in eight years. In fact, we've had two rate reductions in that time.

A recent survey by the National Association of Regulatory Commissioners showed that KU's residential rates were among the 10 least expensive of 188 service territories of major regulated electric utilities in the U.S.

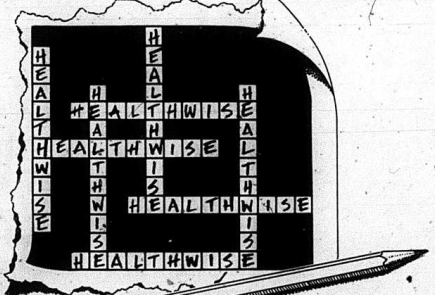

But providing low-cost electricity isn't all we're concerned about. We're in favor of an improved quality of life. Over the years, we've spent millions of dollars on environmental controls—such as electrostatic precipitators and clean-burning fuel—and other measures to help protect the environment. As time goes on, environmental costs will continue to rise. But we're optimistic that together, we will shape a bright future.

Burke-Hurd Reunion

The Burke and Hurd reunion was held Sunday Sept. 2, 1990 at the Family Life Center at Renfro Valley.

The oldest was Dave Burke who is 83 years young. Dave lived most of his life in the Mt. Vernon area but now lives in Indiana.

An auction was held and donations given to raise money for cemetery up-keep. There was a large group who attended the reunion. Lots of good food and good conversation were enjoyed by all. The cameras and VCRs got a real work out.

We look forward to all getting together some time and some place next year. We apologize for the music being so loud and will move it back outside, as it has been in previous years.

We want to thank all the people who bring the music and sing. Thank each and everyone who helped with the reunion. See you next year.

Rockcastle County and UK share heritage and commitment

Rockcastle County and the University of Kentucky enjoy a long-term relationship that stands as a solid foundation for the future, according to figures released today by the university.

That relationship is illustrated most notably by the number of Rockcastle County residents who have chosen UK to help them prepare for their careers, says Charles T. Wehling Jr., interim president. "We're very pleased more than 120 people now living in Rockcastle County earned their degrees at UK," Wehling said.

Included in that total are 13 in the teaching profession, seven with degrees from the College of Engineering, five social workers, four lawyers, two dentists, one person with an architect degree, one librarian, and one who is now a doctor.

That same heritage is being passed on to the next generation. Last year, 35 students from Rockcastle County were enrolled at UK's Lexington campus along with one who chose correspondence courses through the Independent Study Program. This spring, and closer to home, 57 students from the area studied at Somerset Community College, one of 14 schools in the UK Community College System.

Keeping up with new technology and procedure prompted four local residents to enroll in the medical and engineering continuing education programs at UK last year, while many area businesses received counseling from the Small Business Development Center.

One Rockcastle County High graduate distinguished himself by earning two academic scholarships to attend UK. Chad Abney was first awarded a Presidential scholarship, valued at $7,500 over four years, then a Commonwealth scholarship, valued at $10,000 over four years. Helping Abney acquire these valuable awards were his college entrance test scores which put him among the top 8 percent of all graduating seniors in the nation.

Management skills have also been noticed and rewarded. Because of the leadership abilities demonstrated in her extracurricular activities, Fort Wright's Suzanne Ewing was selected to serve as a resident advisor over 30 UK students. R.A.'s are expected to respond to emergencies during their 20 hours a week of "on call" duty.

But honors, degrees and scholarships aren't the only way of measuring the Rockcastle County and UK commitment to each other. The local extension office, a branch of UK's College of Agriculture, made more than 29,000 service contacts last fiscal year. And, as part of a commitment to community service, county agents supervised the projects of seven active Rockcastle County homemaker clubs and 856 members of 4-H.

Several of those projects and contacts centered on the search for alternative cash crops for the area. With the aid of experts at UK local farmer Bill Gene Sigmon, this is now a believer in vegetables. "This could be my last year for tobacco. Vegetables bring in just as much money and the harvesting labor is cheaper," Sigmon says.

Sigmon has already collected over 120 bushels of green beans this summer. He credits new methods, such as the use of plastic and grip tape, effective disease controls and proper chemical treatments, in helping increase his vegetable output.

With 35 dairy farms in Rockcastle County, much attention is given to heat stress in cattle. Two years ago, after a strong recommendation from a local barn builder, dairyman Hal Hunt sought advice from UK. One of the school's experts visited Hunt's farm and supervised the layout of the area's first "free-stall barn with an open-ridge roof."

Hunt and others now consider the project an overwhelming success in keeping dairy cattle cool. "I would recommend UK's experts to anyone. With their help I've greatly increased my production and my profits," Hunt says.

Echoing Hunt's enthusiasm for UK's development is Wesley Mayes, who just last summer built the second "free-stall barn" in the county. "If I hadn't gone this route I would've gotten out of the business. It's made that big a difference in my operation."

Three Rockcastle County natives express their support of the university by contributing financially through the UK Fellows program. UK Fellows are persons who have contributed or committed to contribute $10,000 or more to the school.

One of these is 1971 graduate Dr. Orson L. Arvin who refers many of his patients to UK's Medical Center. "I feel that with the excellent training I received during my years at UK and the continuing education programs they offer, my patients are getting the best care available," Arvin said.

UK's facilities do play an important role in the physical and mental well-being of many Rockcastle Countyans. The Alberly/B. Chandler Medical Center provided medical assistance to area residents 1,934 times during 1989. Eleven of those visits were made possible when the hospital's technically equipped helicopter transported patients from the county to the campus in Lexington.

Artist Ruth Hazzard begins residency in Rockcastle County

Noted painter Ruth Hazzard, whose pictures hang in museums and private collections in Kentucky, the Southeast and the Southwest, will be Artist-in-Residence at Mount Vernon Elementary School during the 1990-91 school year.

Hazzard will be working with grades 5-8, according to site coordinator Claudimma Cash. In addition, she will work on curriculum development with teachers at three other elementary schools.

In addition to her painting, Hazzard is a certified teacher in Kentucky, and is a graduate of Eastern Kentucky University, where she is now pursuing an advanced degree. She is the mother of five children, three of whom live with her in Berea.

Ms. Hazzard shared in a recent interview, "When children have creative outlets they are better prepared for life. I hope to help Rockcastle County prepare a basic elementary art curriculum to compliment their already excellent secondary art program."

Coordinator Cash agrees, adding, "This will also give students and parents a chance to see that art as a profession can be as rewarding and profitable as careers in other fields."

The residency is being funded jointly by the Kentucky Arts Council and the local school board.

Karate Instructor joins Teen Center staff

Michael Durham, known locally as an instructor of karate and as a substitute teacher in the public schools, is the new full time youth worker at the Rockcastle Teen Center. He will be offering Goshin-Kan-Do instruction twice a week at the Center at no cost. He describes Goshin-Kan-Do as a hybrid form of karate which lends itself to more informal classes. Participants need only wear loose, comfortable clothing.

Junior highs will have the center to themselves on Friday nights from 7 to 9:30. Games and dancing will be featured but the program may vary from week to week. The staff will be distributing flyers to the Broadhead, Mt. Vernon, and Roundstone Elementary Schools to promote the program. Parents are encouraged to come in to meet the staff and see the center when they drop off their sons and daughters.

Last Saturday's car wash was a success, thanks to all the townspeople who dropped by. Teens who participated, earned enough to cover their admission to Kings Island on Oct. 6. The trip is open on a first-come sign up basis. Permission slips and a $10 deposit are required by September 29.

Beginning this week, a formal tutoring schedule will be set up for those who request it. Students, teachers and/or parents may request a time

Around Brodhead

By: Mary McWhorter

I had a very, very enjoyable weekend in London with my son, Gervis Singleton and wife Carol and their sons, Gervais Craig Singleton of London and Allen Singleton and wife Hazel and their son Christopher Allen and daughter Kaylan of Georgia. They came for me and Gervis brought me back. I also had the pleasure of visiting with Hazel's mother, sister and brother, a short time, went to church with Carol for morning service and with Gervis on Sunday evening, as he was called out Sunday morning to the funeral home. Sure was good to be in services with Rebecca Carey, and others former Mt. Vernon residents, whose son is on foreign soil. His address is James B. Carey L.A.O. F.O.B. (HHC Discob) 101st Airborne Air Assent. APO New York 90309 (If you send a card be sure to add Operation Desert Shield) As I am sure he will appreciate them and share with others whom we do not know or have their address.

He volunteered to go to protect us so let's all pray for him and all others, also pray for the enemies that they will learn we can be friends without war if we will only trust and obey our Saviour. He died for all of us, whether black, white or else. My prayer is we all love and obey and not be too greedy.

I sure enjoyed a good lunch and visit with Brenda Bradley one evening last week. She took me to her house and brought me back, couldn't ask for more. It's good when young people feel sorry for old people.

Harold Harness of Florida and his mother Mrs. Laura Harness of Crab Orchard, were recent visitors of Mrs. Fannie B. Albright. Fannie also visited with Mrs. Sarah Cable and her daughter Mrs. Helen Asher and daughter Sarah of Salisbury, Ind., at the store where Mrs. Cable used to operate.

Mrs. Julia Hunt and daughter, Mrs. Janie Cromer, were in Lexington for Janie's checkup with her doctor and got a good report for which we are all thankful. Recent visitors of Sophia Barker and Verna Barker Britten were Mrs. Helen Asher and daughter Sarah and Mrs. Sarah Cable, Odell and Norma Wilson and son Rodney, who spent two weeks and will be moving to their new home on Highway 70 East.

Western Water Distressed Customers

By: Wanda Burton
We used to have water
Most all the time
Occasionally it was off
If there was a break in the line

This year has been different
It's off part of most every day
Not enough for a shower
And not any for play

We turn on the faucet
There is not even a stream
It will blow your temper
Make you want to scream

Come home from work
There is not a drop
And supper has to be got
Not enough water to mop

When I was a child
We carried our water
From a spring under the hill
Guess we should live there still

Now the good Lord has blessed us
Sent plenty of rain
The lake is full
I just don't understand this thing.

We pay our bill
Don't let it be late
For we know our fate
But doing without water I hate!

Some days we have
Just a dribble
Might take a minute
To fill a thimble

Now we must boil it
To keep it fit
Wish someone would help us
Folks we're in a fix

Up early on Saturday morning
The laundry must be done
Dish washer full of dishes
But the water it won't run

Now sometimes are worse
Like the comedy you can't flush
Then some wonder why
We stir up a fuss

So please try to fix it
Whoever is to blame
For living without water
We're all going insane

Other visitors were Donna and Shirley Ray Cable, Carter Cable and wife Ina of Mt. Vernon and their son Rick of California.

Mrs. Mina Lundy and Kurt and Mrs. Vera Wolfe of Dayton, Ohio spent a few days with Galiff, Neil, Patrick, Ann and Chris Craig and Jewell Parsons.
Billy and Madge Harp and grandson Russell of Middletown, Ohio were recent visitors of Nina and Billy Murphy Cash, Marshall and Ruby McKinney and Blondell Harp.

Nina and Billy Murphy Cash and Ruby McKinney were in Middletown, Ohio attending the wedding of Rexford Harp, son of Billy and Madge Harp.

Bob and Betty Lear and Robert were recent visitors of Elva Mobley. After Sunday evening church services at Providence a group gathered at the home of Pretsel and Bonnie Brown and enjoyed a gospel singing and eating. Well, here I was in London and missed it, guess they will have to have another one.

Clyde and Ruby McWilliams were recent guests of Pretsel and Bonnie Brown.

The Busy Bee Homemakers held their organizational meeting Tuesday night, September 11. The meeting was called to order by Vickie Tyler. Our lesson was on "Time Management"; we all agreed as soon as we found the time we would try the helpful hints from the lesson.

Wynona Isaac gave those present an IQ test. A sample question from the test was "How far can a dog run into the woods?" Through much laughter, we found we weren't nearly as intelligent as we thought.

New officers elected were president, Wynona Isaac; vice president, Edith Lamb; secretary, Vickie Tyler; treasurer, Carolyn Hunt; blood drive/health chairman, Jody Johnson; and devotional chairman, Effie Anglin. A door prize was given to the member bringing the most guests to the meeting, Anne Tyler was the winner of that prize.

Ask the Vet.....

By: Dr. John Paul

Dear Dr. Paul,
From time to time, my cat throws up after she's eaten and there seems to be no reason for it. My vet says to give her a lubricant/laxative, that she probably just has hair balls she can't digest or pass. She continues to have the problem, though. Can you give me some advice?

Cats are very fastidious creatures and do a good job of self-grooming, which includes licking themselves. As a result of this practice, cats may swallow considerable amounts of hair, especially long-haired cats. Some of the swallowed hair tends to ball-up in the intestine and cause a variety of gastro-intestinal disturbances including constipation and vomiting. There are several commercial preparations that serve to lubricate the intestinal tract to aid the passing of hair balls. Dabs of margarine or butter also can be smeared on the front legs of most cats, when the cat licks these substances, they will also serve as lubricants.

Dear Dr. Paul,
I recently bought a five-year old mare that I'm pasturing on grass and I also supplement her diet with oats and hay. My neighbor says I need to be careful or the mare will founder. What is founder and how is it prevented?

Founder or laminitis is a serious disease of horses and is a common cause of lameness. The intricate cushioning mechanism inside the hoof is affected, and the horse experiences great pain. Often, the horse appears to stand on its heels to take weight off its feet. The coffin bone in the hoof, which is comparable to the tip bone in our fingers or toes, rotates downward and may come through the sole of the hoof. If a horse survives an acute attack of founder, the hoof wall will become marked with prominent rings and the toe often becomes very long and seedy. Founder can be caused by a number of events including obesity and overeating, jumping or fast workouts on very hard surfaces, or as a result of a systemic disease such as colic or pneumonia. Knowing the causes of founder and using good judgment along with good veterinary care will help to prevent this condition.

Dear Dr. Paul,

My veterinarian says some of my cattle are suffering from grass tetany and that I should supplement the whole herd's feeding program with magnesium. What do you think?

Grass tetany usually occurs in lactating cows grazing lush, rapidly growing grass which is low in magnesium. It can also affect housed cattle being fed diets low in magnesium. Occasionally animals will die suddenly without clinical signs; however, cows usually show signs of restlessness and a high stepping gait with stiffness. If startled or stressed, the animals are likely to go down and go into tremors or severe spasms. In severe cases, magnesium salts should be administered intravenously.

Bugs like it indoors in winter months

Autumn may seem like it is months away because of the unseasonably high temperatures the state is experiencing, but when days grow shorter and the mercury starts to drop some six-legged creatures will start scurrying for protected areas.

Some people may become concerned if insects seek their homes or buildings for their winter protection. But according to a University of Kentucky Extension entomologist, the insects are no more trouble than a "couch potato."

"As with all good 'couch potatoes', these individuals tend to remain inactive and generally are a mild nuisance rather than a severe problem," said Lee Townsend, an Extension entomologist in the UK College of Agriculture.

Species that may turn up in buildings include:
* Boxelder bugs are one-half of an inch long black insects with narrow red lines on the back. They have sucking mouthparts and a relatively long antennae on the head.

Boxelder bugs can be seen congregating on outside walls, and they often are a problem where boxelder bushes are present, Townsend said.

* Elm leaf beetles are one-fourth of an inch long, yellow to dull green beetles with a dark stripe down each side of the hard front wing.

"Generally, these insects come from nearby elm trees," Townsend said.

* Soldier beetle larvae are elongated, somewhat flattened one-inch long body with a black, velvety texture to the abdomen and a brown head.

"Normally, soldier beetle larvae occur under rocks and ground litter," Townsend said. "They also may be present in relatively large numbers in basements or garages."

* Face flies cluster flies are a little larger than a house fly. These flies can be seen on outside walls and around windows. Cluster flies also have fine golden hairs on their body and lethargic movement. Townsend said it is best if these insects are outdoors. Control results also are best if insects are hit directly by the spray. "Soap sprays or pyrethrin insecticides will provide good control by direct contact," he said.

At local courthouse

Conference is deemed success

By: Ray McClure

There are available agencies in the area that are willing and able to help beginning business people to succeed, and to help those already in business.

That information highlighted a Rockcastle County Economic Development Conference last Thursday at the courthouse that featured professional people from around the state.

With a theme "One job, one paycheck," the conference drew about 150 persons interested in various phases of business.

After talks by the 10 participants, County Judge/Executive Roland Mullins, who devised the conference, said it "only scratched the surface."

"These professional people have many helpful ideas and they readily offer their help and expertise. You should call on them if you are in need of assistance in your business. They'll be happy to help."

The speaker was Norris Christian, director of the Kentucky Economic Cabinet, Division of Small Business, who offered his division's help to those in need.

He said starting a new business from scratch is the most difficult way to begin, especially if the person is not thoroughly familiar with all aspects of the business, and often, even then, the details can be overwhelming.

"If you are determined to start your own business from scratch, you must be certain that the business opportunity does exist," Christian related. "Once your idea has been justified as a genuine business opportunity, you can concentrate on getting your idea off the ground."

He stated his department would help in any way possible, "but no one can tell you what kind of business to start. Only you can do that."

Don Snyder, director of Eastern Kentucky University's Small Business Development Center, explained business operations, and the pitfalls, and advised those starting a new business to get all the details and to remember that one fourth to one third of all businesses started this year will fail. He warned the new businessman or woman to take into account inflation that "plays an important part in success in business."

Two local bank executives, Jess Bullock, president of the Bank of Mt. Vernon, and Branch Johnson, security officer for Citizens Bank, told those present their banks will do everything possible to see that the new businessman or woman will succeed, and to help in any way to encourage progress in the county.

Charles Nantz, counseling supervisor for the Kentucky Department of Employment Services at Corbin, advised new business people to take advantage of his department's employment services.

"We try to get employees for employers," he said. "We have a file of available persons and we will be happy to give you information on persons you need in your business."

He said his department is involved in job training, tax information, and administers employment programs.

Economic development in the area is now Cumberland Valley Area Development District (CVADD) helps was discussed by Tim Schwendeman, development specialist at CVADD.

Schwendeman said his organization is available for help to cities and counties, and to encourage economic development in the area, including job training, start-ups and expansion.

Brenda McDaniel, vice president of finance for Kentucky Highlands Investment Corporation in London, discussed Highlands' various financial programs and presented a film on the corporation.

She also reminded those present of the help her firm has given to Rockcastle Industrial Park development. Linda Jones, industry representative of the Southern Kentucky Economic Corporation (SKED) pledged her help with such items as business and industrial locations, expansion plans, labor contracts, community evaluations and site selection.

She also was mistress of ceremonies for the conference.

The news of the day came from Rick Bates, executive director of the Southern Kentucky Tourism Development Association, who said tourism is of great importance to the area and that a regional information center at Renfro Valley is still in the works, but he did not pinpoint a location. Most of the available land for a center probably belongs to Renfro Valley folks.

Bates reported that in 1989 Rockcastle received $8 million in revenue from tourists which provided 274 jobs.

"That has a decided impact on the county," Bates stated. "We should all decide what we have to sell, do an inventory and then concentrate on doing it."

"Tourism," he continued, "must involve all citizens. You'll be surprised how the community can pull together once you start."

He advised all citizens to paint-up and fix-up. "Remember, the first impression of a city by a tourist is a lasting one. This community is on the verge of exploding because of Renfro Valley and the many important highways. Take advantage of it. Make the future pay off."

Pepsi Cola sued by local couple

A suit has been filed in Rockcastle County Court by a Copway couple charging Pepsi Cola Bottling Co. of Corbin with negligence.

Linda and William O. Eden claim on July 21, 1990, Linda suffered severe blistering of the mouth and gums after she drank a Mountain Dew soda pop.

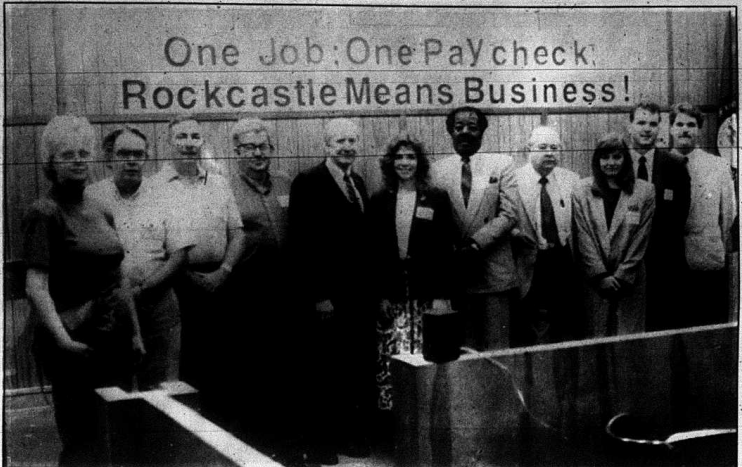

"They claim they checked the soft drink and found a 'foreign substance'." As a result, she became ill and suffered bodily injury, permanent impairment of her power to earn money, pain and suffering.

She asks for a sum "exceeding the minimum amount necessary to invoke the jurisdiction of the court." She asks for a jury trial.

In a later ruling, the court asked her physician to prepare a report outlining plaintiff's symptoms and laboratory tests.

Debra Hembree Lambert is attorney.

Several local business people and many distinguished guests turned out for the first annual Rockcastle Economic Conference at the local courthouse last Thursday. Some of those attending were Elsie Jones, Lee Bivens, Jim Earl Hammons, Howard Bullock, Don Snyder from EKU, Linda Jones from the Southeastern Kentucky Economic Development committee, Norris Christian from the Commerce Cabinet, James Lambert, Brenda McDaniel from Kentucky Highlands, Wayne Gregory and Tim Schwendeman.

Hospice now offering services in Rockcastle County

By: Richard Anderkin

Terminally ill patients and their families are faced with many burdens—financially, emotionally and psychologically.

But a Richmond based organization is working to help ease the pain. Carlene Livingood, acting director of a hospice organization that serves a five county area, which includes Rockcastle said this week that the organization is now offering services for the terminally ill in Rockcastle County.

Mrs. Livingood said that presently five people are being served in Rockcastle.

Hospice is a non-profit organization which allows a terminally ill patient to live his/her last days at home by providing medical, counseling and pastoral services.

To be eligible, patients must be diagnosed with a terminal illness and must be referred to hospice by a family member, friend or doctor. The only requirement is that the patient be approved by their physician for the program, according to Mrs. Livingood, who said that her hospice organization serves 50 patients in Madison, Jackson, Estill, Lee and Rockcastle Counties.

"Our whole idea is to compassionately care for the terminally ill," Livingood said.

She added that the hospice services allow people to live out their lives at home instead of a hospital room.

"A person should have the right to go home and be around family and friends during their last days," Mrs. Livingood said.

Hospice makes that possible by providing 24-hour on-call and medical and support services to the in-home patient and family.

Services offered include: medical care by a doctor, nursing care, counseling, several types and therapy and pastoral care. Mrs. Livingood said that hospice will work with an individual's own pastor or preacher when that individual so desires, but that Wendell Romans is presently the hospice minister.

"A lot of times, our work is more with the family than with the actual patient," Mrs. Livingood said.

Hospice offers a unique bereavement program which provides counseling and other support services to families several months after the loss of a loved one.

The program helps families cope with the loss and go on with their lives.

"We try to reach the physical, emotional and spiritual aspects of it," she said.

Perhaps the most important aspect of the program is its availability regardless of a person's financial situation.

Development groups to be housed together in new building

Plans for a building that will house four development groups organized to improve the economy in 27 Southern Kentucky counties were unveiled at a meeting of 200 community leaders in Somerset, September 10.

The building, to be part of the University of Kentucky's Somerset Community College campus, will house the Southern Kentucky Economic Development Council, the Southern Kentucky Tourism Development Association, the Forward in the Fifth educational development programs and the Southern Kentucky Agricultural Development Association.

"We take people regardless of their ability to pay," Mrs. Livingood stressed. "Many of our clients are simply unable to pay for whatever reason, but that will not keep them out of the program," she said.

In most cases, Medicare, Medicaid or a patient's personal insurance will pick up the costs associated with the program, Mrs. Livingood said, but not always.

The program covers any terminal illness, including cancer, heart disease and other life-ending illnesses.

On October 11, during a national meeting of the American Association of Retired Persons, the local volunteers of Hospice will have an informational booth set up at Renfro Valley for persons interested in getting more information about the program.

Arts and Crafts Fair at Manchester set for Sat., October 6

The Manchester Younger Women's Club will host their annual Handmade Arts and Crafts Fair Saturday, Oct. 6, from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. at the Rawlings and Stinson Park.

The craft show is open to the public with booths of items to sell. Anyone interested in setting up a booth, should contact: Scarlett Ryan, at 598-5779, or any other club member.

Entertainment will be provided throughout the day as well as all kinds of delicious homemade foods. Come have lunch or breakfast and spend the day with us and feel good about supporting local charities by purchasing beautiful handmade crafts. Rain or Shine!

gram. Mrs. Livingood said that her organization is presently looking for a volunteer to work in the Rockcastle office a few hours a day to take calls, but that right now anyone interested in the program should call 624-8820. That is the Richmond office.

Sheriff's report

A Rockcastle woman was shot in the leg by one of two men that fired several rounds from a shotgun and rifle into a house on Trace Branch.

Geraldine Lawson Allen told sheriff deputy Darrell Doan and State Trooper Craig Sutton that several were in the house where she lived or was staying, belonging to Iverene Bond when the shots were fired into the house and through windows, about 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

She told police she did not know which of two men did the shooting, but one was from Owsley County and the other from Jackson County.

Deputies found and destroyed 300 marijuana plants growing in plots in the Renfro Valley and Crooked Creek areas.

To date, according to Gov. Wallace Wilkinson's drug task force, a total of 6,676 plants have been destroyed this year in Rockcastle.

Also on airport board

Add another member to the Rockcastle Airport Board.

The name of Floyd Stokes of Mt. Vernon was inadvertently omitted in the list of board members that appeared in last week's Signal.

Heritage Craft Festival set for this weekend in historical Renfro Valley

The first annual Heritage Craft Festival will be held this weekend at beautiful Renfro Valley.

This juried crafts festival will highlight over 50 professional craftspeople from at least eleven different states. The craft exhibits, ranging from very traditional crafts to more contemporary crafts, will be set up in Renfro Valley's Festival Grove. The development of Festival Grove is part of the booming expansion of Renfro Valley, nationally recognized as a center for country music entertainment for over 50 years.

Woodworkers, weavers, basket-makers, quilters, jewelers, carvers, designers, potters, and musical instrument makers will be in Renfro Valley for this first annual Heritage Craft Festival. This Festival is expected to be one of the most popular craft events in Central Kentucky," said Don Page, Director of Special Projects at Renfro Valley.

Some craftspeople dressed in period costumes will add a traditional atmosphere that is the hallmark of this event. Many recognized craftspeople will be exhibiting at the Heritage Craft Festival September 21-23. Two world famous woodworkers from Kentucky, Homer Ledford and Warren May, will be displaying and demonstrating their handmade dulcimers and other wooden items.

Demonstrations will take place throughout the three day showcase of the finest handmade objects available. Cathy Cunningham from Sardina, Ohio will give a sheep to shawl demonstration. She will bring her angora sheep which is sure to be a favorite with children as well as adults. Other demonstrations ranging from pottery to broommaking will be part of the many activities taking place in Renfro Valley's Festival Grove.

Renfro Valley's Festival Grove creates a perfect setting for a craft show of this quality with lots of trees for cool shading, two open stages for entertainment, and lots of food with a festival flair.

5th straight win Rockets beat Harlan 27-13

By: Richard Anderkin
The Rockcastle County Rockets and Rodney Dangerfield have one thing in common, they get no respect.

After upping their season record to five wins and no losses Friday night, the Rockets are still ranked just 33rd in class and football in the state of Kentucky by the football Gods. But regardless of their ranking, the Rockets continue to roll over their opponents with relative ease.

Harlan was the latest victim as they lost to the Rockets Friday night 27-13.

Getting off to a slower start than usual, the Rockets did not score until the second period when sophomore J.D. Harris rambled in from the seven and Curtis Cotton added the extra point.

The same combination struck again in the second period when Harris ran the ball in from the four and Cotton's kick was good.

Still in the second period Junior quarterback Scott Parkey hit, William Hellard with a pass that was good for 56 yards and another Rockcastle score.

Rockcastle led 21-7 at the half, but Harlan closed the gap to 21-13 early in the third period when Chris Bingham scored on a 64 yard pass from quarterback Mike Bradford. J.D. Harris' three yard run in the third period would end the scoring for both teams as Coach Tom Larkey's

Hunting and fishing news

The Sport Fish Restoration Act and the supplemental "Wallop-Breaux" excise tax (included in the price of fishing equipment, trolling motors, fish finders, motorboat fuels, etc.) have produced nearly $500 million which is divided among qualifying states. The money is used for projects such as lake reclamation and acquisition, and boat landing and pier construction. These monies also fund countless research and inventory projects necessary to improve fishing.

This year, Kentucky will receive more than $2 million in Wallop-Breaux federal funds. Over half that amount will be spent to upgrade department-owned fish hatcheries, expanding the capabilities of those facilities to produce black bass, walleye and catfish for release. These monies are also used to fund the management of state lakes and to provide landowner assistance for privately owned waters. More than a

It's these dollars that hunters and anglers spend by choice -- which are at work today insuring that all types of wildlife-related recreation will remain an integral part of the Kentucky way of life.

Saturday, Sept. 22, is National Hunting and Fishing Day. It's a day set aside to recognize the more than 60 million American sportsmen who support preserving and protecting our natural resources.

The Redskins gain yardage against the Wildcats in Thursday night's Little League Football action at Roundstone. The Wildcats went on to beat the Redskins 12 to 7. A complete rundown of scores will appear in next week's Signal.

tion, according to Hal Rogers, U.S. Congressman from Kentucky's fifth district.

The building, which Rogers described as a multi-purpose structure, will include a 750-seat theatre, trade show facilities as well as the offices for the four development groups. Groundbreaking is expected this winter.

Also at the meeting, Paul Deaton, area Extension agent for agricultural development, who is associated with the Southern Kentucky Agricultural Development Association, announced a pilot project that will consist of three centers for global trade that will be part of the group's economic and agricultural development plans.

The three locations, which are described as "going global centers" will provide computer linkages between Kentucky producers of agricultural and other products and international buyers. It will be part of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture's efforts to promote trade.

Electronic centers will be in Somerset, Lexington and Louisville and will provide a variety of information to enhance the export of Kentucky products, he said.

Deaton said that Kentuckians who want to export products will be able to access information gathered about potential buyers, including their product specifications and credit arrangements.

Spies caught one for 5.

On the defensive side, Curtis Cutton led the Rockets with three spin tackles and six assists. Scotie Hines had two tackles and four assists. Jay Brown had two solos and three assists. Kevin Goff, Darrell Sizemore, William Bullens, J.D. Harris, Mike Spires, Jason Kirby, William Hilliard and Scott Parkey all had tackles.

This week the Rockets travel to Barbourville to take on Knox Central.

Coach Larkey said this week that it's always tough to play Central on the road and he expects Friday night's game to be a close contest. However, given the two schools records and the way Rockcastle has handled other opponents, they should come away with their sixth win in as many tries.

GTE already has laid off some employees.

GTE has 2,071 telephone employees in Kentucky, including 1,100 in Lexington. The company also has a number of employees based in Ashland and Elizabethtown.

Contel has 220 workers in Kentucky, with 125 in London.

In another action, a rape in the first degree charge against Floyd D. Bell of Mt. Vernon was dismissed by Judge Daniel Venters.

Attorney Lambert asked that the charge be dismissed because she was unable to confer with the victim for the past few months.

Judge Venters set for trial cases against Benny Stevens of Cranks and James Bowling of Hamilton, Ohio for robbery in the first degree.

The cases will be heard on Nov. 12.

The two men, now serving time in Kentucky State Penitentiary at Deville, are accused of robbing Catina Hasty at Mt. Vernon Pharmacy on Dec. 1, 1989, at which time drugs and a gun were taken.

"New Health Dept. Bldg."

Department owns the building.

The Health Department claimed for some time it does not have enough room in the present facility and that parking is a problem. Cars often park over on the sidewalk in front of the building and pedestrians have to walk out into the street.

One report that the City of Mt. Vernon might be interested in the building for a city hall, or some other use, drew a "no comment" from mayor Gary R. Cromer.

Mayor Cromer said he did not have enough information to comment on the building.

Former County Judge/Executive Hubert Thacker did have a comment. It was under his administration that the land for the building was obtained.

Thacker said he opposes any idea of moving the department to a new location. He called the move unnecessary and a waste of tax money, apparently meaning tax money that goes into grants made by the government.

He said the proposed location is out of the way and it is difficult to get in and out of the area.

County Judge/Executive Roland Mullins said the decision to apply for funds to study the feasibility of the project and the financing was a decision for the Health Department board of directors.

All the county would do would be to give its blessing to a change in the lease, if that was the decision, or sale of the building, but the county would not be involved in the details of the transaction.

Written comment on the application will be accepted at the office of the county judge/executive through Sept. 26.

A date of Jan. 21, 1990 found in an advertisement in last week's Signal should have read Sept. 21, 1990, according to Jim Cass who represents Cumberland Valley Area Development District which will handle the application. It was through his office that the advertisement was composed.

"Hunting and Fishing"
(Cont. From B2)

McCormick, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "It's a way of saying 'thank you for footing the bill' to the sportsmen of the Commonwealth."

It is by design, not accident that Kentucky enjoys an abundance of game and fish. Without care from wildlife agencies, sportsmen and conservation organizations, many kinds of wildlife would be in trouble.

A quick look around will tell you that the places wildlife need to survive are rapidly vanishing. More and more habitat disappears each day from commercial and industrial expansion.

It is largely sportsmen who help protect what's left -- for all to enjoy. And, it's the dollars they spend on licenses and sporting equipment, not state tax money, that makes wildlife conservation possible.

The white-tailed deer is probably the best example of a wildlife success story. At the turn of the century there were less than 500,000 white-tails remaining in the United States, a relative "handful" in Kentucky. Today, thanks to sound management programs and the revenues generated by sportsmen, the Commonwealth is home to well over 300,000 white-tailed deer -- while more than 12 million roam America's forests and fields.

In addition to their direct support of conservation programs, hunters and anglers bolster the overall economy through the money they spend in pursuit of their favorite outdoor activities.

"In Kentucky, hunting and fishing related expenditures contribute over $1.5 billion annually to the state's economy," according to Commissioner McCormick. Deer hunters alone account for $35 million each year.

Check-list necessary for farm safety

Accidents and work-related illnesses bring misery to many Kentucky farm families and workers. They also waste human and economic resources.

Larry Piercy, safety engineer with the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture, said accident prevention on the farm is to a large extent developing the ability to perceive risk or danger and then knowing how to deal with it.

National Farm Safety Week, Sept. 16-22, is a good time to reflect a few moments on what Kentucky farmers can do to reduce the hazards associated with their work place, he said.

"Changing unsafe practices and habits and adopting ways of doing things that minimize the likelihood of injury can help farmers avoid those hazards that can't be removed," Piercy said.

At best, farming is one of the most hazardous occupations in the country, he said. The death rate of 42 per 1,000 workers on the farm is much higher than the nine per 1,000 workers for all occupations.

Piercy offered a checklist that

Kentucky farmers might use to evaluate their own farms from a safety perspective. Any "no" answer could mean a hazardous situation, he said.

*Are stairs and steps in good condition and have sturdy handrails?
*Is there plenty of light in all areas of the house and outbuildings?
*Do you have fire extinguishers and smoke detectors? Do you test detectors monthly to make sure they work and change batteries when needed?

*Is your electrical system ade-

Cover crops can save soil and price supports

Use of cover crops on highly erodible land is essential this year for maintaining eligibility in USDA programs including price support for tobacco. According to requirements of the 1985 Farm Bill all highly erodible land must be covered by a Conservation Plan by January 1, 1990.

In Kentucky, on tobacco fields less than 2 acres, the use of cover crops, rotations, and across the slope planting constitutes a conservation plan. The regulations also require the landowner to be actively applying the plan to stay eligible for USDA programs, including price supports on tobacco.

Cover crops are a very critical part of actively applying your conservation plan. Considering the cost of putting out cover crops it is an inexpensive way of saving topsoil and your tobacco price support.

Dateline: Experiment

A Weekly Report from Fifth District Congressman Hal Rogers

Were You Counted? It Is Not Too Late!

An undercount of Kentuckians in the Census could cost our state millions of dollars in lost federal projects and programs, and perhaps even one of Kentucky's votes in Congress.

Statistics gleaned from the Censuses are used by dozens of federal agencies to parcel out funds for a wide range of vital programs. Support for the Head Start education program for preschool-age children is determined by the Census. So is the funding for billions of dollars worth of highway programs. The same is true for agriculture experiment stations, low-income housing repair programs, wastewater disposal projects for rural communities, Job Training Partnership Act funds, drug control initiatives, and more—all of which are important to Southern Kentucky.

If the Census misses any Southern Kentuckians, these programs and dozens more programs will be cut in our region.

Clearly, everyone must be counted.

The good news for our state is that if the Census never reached you, either by mail or door-to-door, it is not too late to be counted. Before September 30, everyone missed by the Census should call this toll-free number and get counted:

1-800-999-1990.

To give you an idea of how much our region could lose from an undercount, the mayor of Baltimore conservatively estimated that $800 in federal funds and programs was lost each year for every citizen missed in the 1980 Census, $8,000 per person over ten years. These Census undercount losses add up quickly. The mayor figured that because the 1980 Census missed 23,000 residents, Baltimore lost $232 million in the 1980s, which it needed to help create jobs and build schools.

Southern Kentucky simply cannot afford losses on such a massive scale, especially when the remedy is as simple as ensuring that everyone is counted in the Census.

The second peril of an undercount is that Kentucky is in grave danger of losing one of its votes in Congress. On the battles that are important to Kentuckians—education and agriculture, coal, jobs, and education—just to name a few—I can say with confidence that we Kentuckians need as much representation in Washington as we can get. In the House of Representatives, Kentucky has seven votes out of 435, and it would do the people of our state great harm if we only had six. None of our votes in Congress should go to represent the interests of big states like Texas or California. If every Kentuckian is counted, I believe our full representation in Congress will remain intact.

Without a doubt, Southern Kentucky needs a fair, accurate Census count.

If the Census missed you, please call the Census Bureau toll-free at 1-800-999-1990 and get counted. If you were counted, make sure your family and your neighbors have been counted as well.

Time to be counted in the Census is running short, and Kentucky is counting on you.

Water Line Clean-Out

Cleaning out the water lines in the city got under way Monday night when members of the Mt. Vernon Volunteer Fire Department and city employees opened fire hydrants throughout the city. First water pouring from the above hydrant was brown and had an unpleasant odor. Residents of Lair St. have been noticing a brown substance in their water and one residentsbrought in a water jug with mud visible where it had settled in the bottom. There are about 80 hydrants in the city.

"Checklist for Farm Safety"

- quate to your needs?
- *Are power lines that serve out-buildings either underground or high enough so tall machinery can safely clear them?
- *Are electrical appliances, tools and equipment properly installed and grounded?
- *Are chimneys clean and open?
- Are venting flues for gas appliances sound and leak-free?
- *Are flammable liquids in ap-

- proved safety containers?
- *Are flammable liquids in approved safety containers?
- *Are hazardous locations such as grain bins, silos, manure storage and animal quarters protected to keep children out? Are ponds fenced?
- *Do tractors have roll-over protective structures (ROPS)?
- *Do you have appropriate personal protective equipment such as hard hats, safety eye wear, safety shoes or hearing protectors to help prevent injury when needed for various jobs/

"This checklist may help identify many unsafe farm conditions," Piery said. "However, no checklist can possibly point out every hazard or unsafe condition. The important thing is for each farmer to put safety high on his list of priorities so that he thinks safety with his every action."

PSC says water expansion not feasible and Spiro. Sources for a water supply include Mt. Vernon, Northern Rockcastle Water District, Western Rockcastle Water Association, Brothead, Livingston, and Jackson County Water Association.

According to FmHA guidelines, the new association would use 104,809 gallons a day or 3,144,284 gallons a month. The system would require 4 pumping stations, 5 water storage tanks and 5 hydro pneumatic stations. Estimated operation and maintenance expenses for the first year are $169,900.

The report reveals that if each customer of the proposed system contributes a service connection fee of $250, then $152,000 would be available for funding the project. To amortize the remaining $6,848,000 loan and cover operating expenses, about $610,000 annually would be required. This would translate to an average water bill of about $84 a month or about $20 per 1,000 gallons of water used by the customer.

The project would also seek funds through customer contributions (as noted), bond issues, loans, state and local government and federal grants.

In conclusion, Arnett stated the project "does not appear to be the most feasible alternative for obtaining water services for potential customers in the area and in my opinion should not be established."

Persons interested in the project should be aware of the forthcoming hearing date to be set by the PSC.

Out With the Old

I am somewhat troubled by the younger generation's sense of loyalty. A little more than six months ago, our 10-year-old daughter was star struck over a certain kiddie rock group, one that appeared to be taking the younger generation by storm. While I thought Julie was a little young to be into that sort of thing, I checked out the group and learned its members were not into drugs or other weirdness. So I raised no serious objections.

In fact, my husband even took his life in his hands one night to accompany Julie and a friend to a concert, after which he was unable to hear for approximately one week. (The screamin' teenies, not the music; caused his deafness.)

Just the other day, however, I found Julie in her room drawing moustaches on the faces of her idols. Then she ripped up the poster—the one she just had to have—and tossed it in the trash.

"Yuk!" she said, detailing for me the faults of the young men.

Now, I have no quarrel with her new assessment of the group. Perhaps her taste has improved. But I doubt it.

What seems more likely is that the old group is now "out," soon to be replaced in her heart by some new idol.

I can't figure out whether such fickleness is a sign of her age or a sign of the times. When I was 10, my heart still belonged to Daddy.

But a few years later it was captured by the "Fab Four," never to be relinquished.

I remember as though it were yesterday the Sunday night that I saw the Beatles for the first time on the Ed Sullivan Show, my parents in the background chiding their long hair. My loyalty to them never wavered from that moment.

All through high school and college, through each of their "phases," my Beatles record collection grew and grew. They had a song for every feeling, for every teen-age mood swing and, much later, even one for my wedding.

To this day, I accompany much of my window-washing and floor-mopping. I'm sure that Julie knows the words to more Beatles songs than to those on today's top-10 charts.

So I had some trouble identifying with Julie's flights of fancy—until I remembered that there was one other heartthrob for me before I settled for eternity into my "Fab Four" frenzy.

I can't recall what he looked like, but I believe he wore white bucks.
