Autopsy results pending Investigation underway in child's death

By: Richard Anderkin
Investigators were still trying to determine Tuesday how a 2 1/2-year-old baby died Saturday, possibly after being burned by a bleaching agent.
Cody Alan Leger, of Mt. Vernon, died at 1:12 on Saturday morning at the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington.
Fayette County Deputy Coroner Charles Howell, said Tuesday that results from an autopsy were not completed and that it would be several days before he could make a ruling on the cause of death.
He did say that at the time of his death, the child had first and second degree burns over 68 percent of his body.

"Whether it was the bleach, a stronger bleaching agent, a chemical or boiling water, I just don't know at this point," Howell said.
It was first believed that Leger had come in contact with Chlorox Bleach, which had caused the burns on his body, but Howell said Tuesday that the medical examiner who performed the autopsy said it was highly unlikely that Chlorox caused the first and second degree burns.

Howell said that all of Leger's medical records had been subpoenaed and that he was conducting a thorough investigation into the case, along with Mt. Vernon Police Chief William Mink.

Mink confirmed Wednesday that

Eight injured in accident

Eight persons received multiple injuries Friday on I-75 in a two-car accident when one of the cars changed lanes causing both to wreck.

According to a state police report, eight persons were in two cars when the accident occurred.

Police said a southbound car driven by Timmy L. Gross, 20, of Modara, Ind., suddenly turned left in the path of a car driven by Donald E. Horn Jr., 36, of Middletown, Ohio. Both vehicles traveled into the median. The Horn car ran into the northbound lanes and turned on its side blocking traffic. Three passengers were ejected from the car.

State trooper George Cloyd and sheriff deputies investigated the accident.

Unemployment rate drops here

There were 803 persons unemployed in Rockcastle during February and that was 28 less than February 1990, according to records supplied by the Department for Employment Services.

In the past year, unemployment in the county seems to be between 9 and 10 percent despite a recession that sent some counties soaring.

In February 1990 the percentage rate in Rockcastle was 10.1 unemployed. It now stands at 9.2 percent in February the same as in January 1991.

For the record in January 1991 the complete labor force in Rockcastle was 8,672 with 7,876 employed and 796 unemployed. In February, there were 8,693 in the labor force with 7,890 employed and 803 unemployed.

Back in February 1990, there were 8,229 in the labor force with 7,398 employed and 831 unemployed.

Storm Damage

Lake Linville boat dock operator Jimmy Hale and others survey the damage to the main building at the dock. Tuesday afternoon's storm ripped the roof off the building and destroyed most of the contents.

Linda McWhorter prepares to look at the damage done to a trailer that was overturned just north of Renfro Valley by the severe storm that hit the county Tuesday. McWhorter's sister, Nancy Kirby, was preparing to move into the trailer in a few days. Ironically Mrs. Kirby lost her home to a fire last week.

The roof on the main building at Renfro Valley was completely ripped off by high winds during Tuesday's storm. The majority of the roof came to rest about 60 feet from the building site.

Property damage extensive

Severe weather hits Rockcastle

By: Ray McClure

High winds accompanied by heavy rain pounded Rockcastle Tuesday afternoon damaging homes, destroying barns and downing trees and power lines.

There were no reports of injuries but there may have been some when all the reports are made.

One casualty was the Lake Linville boat dock building that was destroyed, but the suspected tornado left a trailer and the VFW Post nearby undamaged.

The trail of the storm came primarily from Pulaski County where homes and businesses were destroyed. The roof was ripped off Woodstock Elementary and a wreck was reported on Ky. 39 at the height of the storm but it could not be confirmed.

Heaviest damage in the county appeared centered in a line from Otawa to Brindle Ridge.

Larry Thompson reportedly lost two barns, Henry Hayes lost three barns, William I. Norton lost three barns, had damage to a tenant house, and a cow was killed when the wind picked it up and slammed it back on the ground. In the Willalla area, reportedly Bobby Lee Taylor lost a barn and part of the roof of another.

On Copper Creek Road, Ronald Carpenter's greenhouse was blown away when the wind suddenly roared across his farm.

"My wife and I were in the yard when it struck," Carpenter said. "We thought we were going to be blown away."

Revealed at housing conference

Money available for local housing

By: Ray McClure

Spread the word: There are funds out there for those who want a home of their own. Just look around.

That was one of the goals of a Housing Conference held Friday at the Rockcastle Courthouse.

Spreading the word were eight directors, and/or others, who are willing to discuss loans for homes and the steps to take to get one.

"This conference is to get info to people who have a hard time getting standard housing," said County Judge/Executive Roland Mullins in his opening remarks at the afternoon conference, "and also to reach people in general with the info that there is money available. You only have to look for it."

Kenneth Arterburn, district director of the Farmer's Home Administration, told the group FHA has money for all kinds of projects.

On that note, he reported a multi-housing project for the elderly is still in the mill for Brodhead, but gave no construction date.

That project is located near Brodhead Fairgrounds and owned by Sybil Lunceford.

He also reported a 24 unit for families on the Ky. 461 bypass is under consideration but had no dates on construction. He said the FmHA hopes to have the Brodhead project in the process this year.

The conference, aimed at realtors, builders and all related groups, was a four-hour exercise aimed mostly to the methods to get money.

Developing a low cost, non-profit owner, occupied housing program was the topic for Dwayne Yost, director of the Kentucky Mt. Housing Dev. Corp. which has built many homes, remodeled many, at low cost.
He said all major housing programs in the non-profit area should have a good board of directors, people who like to help, working together, with a wide base of support, and a fiscal responsibility and accountability.

Anna Jean Tackett of the Kentucky Housing Corporation, described funding and resources available from the corporation.
She said the corporation has funds for the elderly, such as remodeling.

Jesse Amburgey, executive director of the Kentucky Community Action program (KACA), said his group is made up of 23 agencies of all kinds with help in housing for low income families such as weatherization, home repairs and a limited number of home loans.

Daniel Boone Development in Rockcastle is part of the KACA program.
Joe Johnson, field office manager at Corbin, Kentucky Department of Employment Services, spoke about unemployment in the district and explained how his department can reimburse employers for on-the-job training and the departments dislocated worker program.

Dave Lollis, of the Appalachian Housing Federation at Berea summed up the conference.

"We all must work together to

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor,
In the rush and hassle of everyday life it seems that young or old we tend to forget or let things slip easily. In last week's letter to the editor concerning the people who gave their support toward the funeral expense of little Darion Taylor, I left out several fine people here in the Livingston area who are so willing to help in any need in our community. So I would like to say to Lena and Charles McClure, Wayne and Carolyn Carpenter, Gladys Smith and Carrie Loudermilk I am very, very sorry for this mistake because I know you didn't even hesitate when I asked you so please forgive me for this mistake, I surely didn't do it on purpose.
Love you,

Project Graduation

Dear Editor,
We would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who helped to make the Benefit Show for Project Graduation a success.
A special thanks to "The Strait Shot Band" for donating their time and talent for this benefit, Renfro Valley Folks for the barn, The Mt. Vernon Police Department and the Rockcastle County Sheriff's Department for security, Convenient Food Mart of Mt. Vernon, Carters Market, Foodtown and E.C. Porter for their donations. Also thanks to everyone who helped sell tickets, serve and clean up and those who bought tickets. Your efforts are greatly appreciated.

Project Graduation Committee Members

Dear Editor, senior parents and friends,
Graduation time is quickly approaching. Project Graduation was started four years ago in order to avoid the disastrous results which can occur when one mixes drinking and driving. We will be having a "lock in" fun filled night of entertainment at the high school following graduation for our seniors.

The cost of prizes, cash prizes and food takes money to provide these things.
Project Graduation will be having a yard sale to help make money to go toward these expenses.

If you are a parent, citizen, or friend and would like to donate items to the yard sale to go toward the expenses for Project Graduation, it would be appreciated.

If you would like to donate please contact Alma Kendrick (256-4075) after 5 p.m. or Linda Burton (256-2318) after 3 p.m.

If you need items to be picked up please call.

We want our seniors to have a wonderful and safe graduation. We would appreciate any help you can give.

Thank you,
The Fundraising Committee
(Cash donations are more than welcome)

Dear Editor,
First of all, we have the best Sheriff's Department in Rockcastle County that we have ever had, statistics prove the fact.

In regards to the past letters criticizing and complaining about the Sheriff's Department: #1 The individual from Broadhead who said they could not contact the Sheriff's Department at 5:30 a.m. Sunday. The reason no one responded is simply because no one was contacted about the complaint. Deputy Miller and myself were out working at the time and we were not informed to go to Broadhead to the Lunces. Why we were not contacted I do not know. It could be because of the lousy radio system we are forced to use, sometimes you can't even talk from one end of town to the other because of interference of other stations using the same channel. Just ask anyone who listens in on a scanner and they could tell you this is true.

In regards to letter #2: Lillian Vole is very badly mistaken about no one from the Sheriff's Department responding to her call. Jack Fortner, Deputy Darrell Doan, K.S.P. Sutton, another city police officer and myself all arrived on the scene at the same time. In regards to the warrant they got for someone on the complaint, the person went to Ohio and when he came back he was promptly arrested. Lillian Vole wrote her letter because we arrested Lillian Vole on a warrant just last week.

In regards to both letters, why didn't the Lunces or the Voles call or stop in at the Sheriff's office to speak with us about their complaint. After all, we are not perfect, who is? We can not please everyone all the time, can you? If this is the attitude of just a few, it can be overlooked. I'll probably be fired for saying this, but the city police and state police make way more money and have benefits, etc., we don't have any. City and state work their shift of eight hours and go home. For the past three years I have put in from 10 to 20 hours a week overtime with no pay, just to help out. Maybe I should just work my shift, go home and not come back out till my next shift. Who ya gonna call then, Ghost Busters? Also, the Kentucky State Police do not have any one on duty 24 hours a day either.

Thank you,
Deputy Sheriff Phillip Chesnut

Dear Editor,
I would like to give a little update on current events of Christian interest as I do from time to time. I also want to thank the newspaper and the editor who have never failed to print any of my articles.

Can you imagine Bibles being banned from the public school classrooms throughout America? Does this sound like a bad dream? For Christians, it should sound more like a nightmare. The United States Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit has recently authorized and approved the action of school officials in Denver, Colorado. Two books were removed from a classroom library which contained over 230 assorted volumes. The two "dangerous" books were entitled The Bible in Pictures and The Life of Jesus. The books on American Indian religions and the Greek gods were allowed to remain on the classroom shelf.

Jordan Lorence, a Constitutional lawyer with Concerned Women for America, represented the teacher whose books were removed from the shelf. Jordan accurately described the way in which the school officials treated the banned books. He said, "They treat these books like asbestos in the ceiling tiles - like hazardous waste."

It almost goes without question that if the banned books had been written by Greek philosophers or a New Age guru, the civil libertarians would be screaming censorship! The world believes that Christians can be treated like second-class citizens. Ken Roberts is the classroom teacher involved in this case. He asked the principal why it was appropriate to teach about the Navajo Indian rainbow goddess and prayers made to her. Mr. Roberts testified at the trial that the school principal replied that teaching about the rainbow goddess was appropriate because it was a part of Indian culture and that "they were not praying to Jesus."

It all started when a parent wandered into the classroom of fifth-grade teacher Kenneth Roberts. There he eye fell upon a bookcase. Most of the books were at the level of "The Care and Feeding of Gerbils," but what! What did her eye behold but "The Bible in Pictures" and "The Life of Jesus." She was aghast. She ran to the office of Principal Kathleen Madigan to report the horrid sight.

Ms. Madigan "entered the classroom perused the two books, and directed Mr. Roberts to remove them.

Then Ms. Madigan visited the school library "and removed a Bible from the shelves." Having wiped out the last trace of potential Christian influence from the school, Ms. Madigan threatened Roberts with disciplinary action if he got out of line again.

A visiting mama saw two books and had a hissy. The principal went into complicitous. The school board fled to the mountains. Then the ACLU and the Anti-Defamation League got into the act. The Concerned Women for America leaped to the defense of an overwhelmed teacher. Everyone wound up in federal court.

The case went to the 10th Circuit. On Dec. 17, the appellate court voted 2-1 to affirm. Judge Monroe McKay, writing for the majority, concluded that school officials had acted properly "for the valid purpose of preventing Roberts from promoting Christianity in a public school."

If a book with pictures of Bible characters in it caused this much commotion I wonder what would have happened if they had made one of those Bible characters the school mascot. They might have really had trouble. This case is being appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Dear Editor,

We the people, first and always, do we have a dictator? Did we have a chance to make a decision regarding the war? Did we win? If so what did we win? Depression? Fall-off in employment? What about the young mother who was killed by a scud missile? Leaving husband and baby. What was that worth to us? What about the loss of oil, which all was fighting for in the first place.

What about the black smoke pollution filling the sky, blotting the sunshine? What about our loss in billions of dollars in planes and guns? Young men's sweat and blood, digging trenches for their safety and some of them dying any way. What kind of gain is that? What about the young families left to rear their children alone and on welfare. What about all of the tragedies, too numerous to write.

What about the one evil culprit, who started this fiasco? Will he be left free to a life of health, wealth and happiness, enjoying his home and family? Will he continue to hang, starve, torture innocent mothers and babies? How can we say we won the war while the same thing is happen-

Points East

Here I go causing myself more economic hardship again. There are you see, some folks in the newspaper business who don't carry my column when I gripe about politicians. That means I don't get paid. I figure Wallace Wilkinson has knocked me out of at least a hundred dollars over the last year simply because I've brought his name up in print.

But it seems noteworthy this week to point out an interesting item on the Kentucky political scene. For the first time in my memory, by golly, we have more Republicans running for Governor than we do Democrats. I wish someone with a little time on their hands would perform the research to determine the last time that happened and drop me a note in the mail.

Of the four Republicans running, two have signed up on the Democratic ticket. I've seen two prominent Republican Cadillacs with Brer Horse stickers on their bumpers this week and believe it or not, I've actually spoken on the phone with a woman who told me that she had changed her registration so she could vote for Marthy. Seems her husband is in the bridge building business and they've already paid the Wilkinsons for contracts they expect to be getting through 1996.

The Wilkinsons, though, have finally gotten caught in one that they can't lie out of all that easily. Wallypoo's greatest criticism of Brer Horse has to do with his switching parties. He should have spoken to Marthy about her affiliation before he started singing that mud. When the press first asked Marthy if she had ever been a Republican she actually responded, and this is a direct quote, "Not to my knowledge."

One of these days, the old saying about lying like a dog is going to be changed to lying like a Wilkinson. We're talking whoppers here.

When she was shown the voter registration card she had changed in 1983, her memory suddenly aroused itself and everything came back to her. And what a recollection!! Marthy then proclaimed that becoming a Democrat was just like getting salvation. I'm not making this up. It's already been on television and in the big state papers.

I'm here to tell you that if becoming a Democrat and getting salvation are the same thing, he'll be looking better all the time. Gonna be two many liars hanging around the pear gates to suit me. And before you jump on me, I don't mean to imply that all Democrats are dishonest. I've been a Democrat three times myself. It's just a certain group from Casey County that I'd rather not share the hereafter with. I may register Democrat again just to see if I missed out on the divinity the last few times. Besides being a Republican sure isn't getting me any closer to God either.

Please tell me if I'm wrong about this. Is there actually somebody somewhere who believes that Martha Wilkinson can't remember being registered Republican? Are there actually citizens of this state who believe that the bigger a liar one is, the more qualified to be Governor of Kentucky? Will someone—anyone who intends to vote for the Wilkinsons again—please call me up and tell me why they're doing it. I already know one, but I'm talking about folks who don't get kickbacks.

Marthy is spending hundreds of thousands of dollars right now to pay for a political advertisement in which she promises that she will see to it that big campaign contributions from folks with big state contracts will become illegal. The very money being used to pay for that advertising has been provided to her by people to whom her husband has provided lucrative business with the state of Kentucky. Is there anyone out there who believes for an instant that Marthy is going to bite the hand that feeds her?

Some Brer Horse people have also been in touch with me with an unjust accusation. I did not say that Berrerton Jones was dishonest. He just married so much money he doesn't have to be. I need for Loretta to get up in the horse business myself. I did say that he is incredibly incompetent when it comes to decision making. I don't believe he's capable of leading a Cub Scout pack and he's winding around in this campaign as though he were a candidate for prom king instead of governor. I suspect that the reason he's made so much money in the horse business is because he has refrained from betting when he's at the track. He's incapable of deciding which horse to bet on and he's also afraid the others will get mad at him.

How on earth would Berrerton Jones put together an administrative cabinet? Let everybody who wants to be Transportation Secretary draw straws? How's he gonna figure out which roads to fix without making somebody mad? Brer Horse can't stand for folks to be mad at him and yet he wants to be governor. Isn't that reason enough to also question his sanity?

"What Saith the Scriptures"

Tornadoes are a powerful and destructive force in nature. They should be feared and respected for their awesome display of power, that can become very easily deadly. We are in the season when most of our tornadoes will occur, if we have any at all. Yet, it is ironic that a lot of people have a great respect and fear for a tornado's destructive power (and rightly so), yet will not fear and respect the one who has the power to destroy both soul and body in hell." Mt. 10:28. People will make all kinds of preparations to avoid the destruction of a tornado that may or may not come, yet will make no preparations for the wrath that is most definitely to come, II Thes. 1:7-9.

Jesus has promised that he shall return to this world, "And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." Jn. 14:3.

Jesus is most assuredly coming again. Are you ready for his return? Jesus is coming in flaming fire, "At that time you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." II Thes. 1:7-8. Have you obeyed the gospel yet?

A tornado may come your way, and you can still avoid its destruction to your life by getting in a storm shelter or basement, thus escaping its power. But there will be no escape of the coming of the Lord. For when they shall say, peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as a travail upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape." I Thes. 5:3.

Does it make sense to fear the slim chance of a tornado and totally ignore the 100% chance of the coming of Christ and of judgment? And even if a tornado should come our way and we could not get to a basement or shelter in time, what is the worst it could do? Only destroy our bodies, it cannot kill our souls. But, God can destroy both body and soul in hell, thus he is the one that we should really fear! Mt. 10:28

Establishing and maintaining credit is important for women in the 1990's

Women should be concerned about establishing credit on their own, instead of using their spouses' account. Establishing a good credit rating is very important. If a woman is divorced, separated, widowed or faced with financial emergencies, she can avoid many problems by having established her own credit rating.

Many women do not have a credit record because they are listed with credit bureaus in a joint file with their husbands.

Women must assume some responsibility in learning their credit rights and establishing their own identity. Obtaining a good reputation can be accomplished by:

- Opening a checking and savings account in your own name.
- Applying for a single-purpose credit card, even if you don't use it.
- Borrowing cash from a bank or a credit union.
- Safeguarding your credit by repaying on time.

As long as you are employed or have sufficient income, you should be able to establish and maintain credit. But with the freedom and convenience comes danger -- the temptation to overspend.

Other problems are credit card loss or theft, and billing errors. Neither problem should be ignored, and the creditor should be notified immediately.

If you are faced with the loss of a job, heavy medical bills or other emergencies, notify the creditors as soon as possible. Do not just stop paying bills without an explanation. By talking with the creditors, a realistic payment plan can be worked out. Most creditors are more than willing to adjust payment plans -- provided you are still a good credit risk.

Finally, I am encouraged that a fellow who intends to vote for Scotty Baesler called me up from Pineville. Said he was working hard for him. It's no secret that I'm a Baesler fan even though I neglected to get the salvation that would have enabled me to vote for him. I just believe Scotty is honest, competent and willing to roll his sleeves up and go to work. That sets him apart from the rest of the pack and those are traits that I admire. Unfortunately, nobody like that has ever been elected governor of this state.

Anyway, the guy from Pineville said that if I really wanted to help the Baesler campaign, the best thing I could do right now is to be quiet about my endorsement. He said he'd run into two or three Bell Coumians that thought about as highly of me as I do the Wilkinson family.

"The more you brag on Scotty Baesler", he said "the more you're hurting him with some people."

Maybe I should shut up, Ralph King and I have a snow pea crop to get in the ground. I don't need to be angering any potential customers.

KENTUCKY EDUCATION REFORM ACT OF 1990 ROCKCASTLE COUNTY PRESCHOOL PROGRAMS ONE YEAR AFTER IMPLEMENTATION

The Kentucky Education Reform Act of 1990 made preschool education an important part of Rockcastle County's total school program. The preschool programs focus on the physical, intellectual, social and emotional development of children ages three to five.

The preschool programs offered by the school system have the following components:

- preschool services for eligible children at no cost to the parent
- activities that develop creativity and thinking skills through play
- partnerships with the parents through parent education
- cooperation among programs with other agencies to provide services
- development and health screenings

The Rockcastle County School District has served two populations of preschool children during the 1990-91 school year. We served 37 children who meet the four year old at-risk requirements and had enough space to serve 20 other four year olds in the program who did not meet the eligibility requirements. We also provided some type of services to 87 children in the preschool handicapped program (such as speech, home tutoring, etc.). We have been very pleased to have provided services to 144 children and are looking forward to serving more than this during the 1991-92 school year. It is our goal to serve as many four year old children as possible regardless of income eligibility requirements.

Our eligibility requirements (mandated by KERA as priority) are:

FOUR-YEAR-OLD PROGRAM
• children must be eligible for free lunch and be four by October 1
• developmentally appropriate program for 1/2 day 4 days per week

3-5 HANDICAP PROGRAM (SPECIAL SERVICES)
• children with disabilities
• age 3 or above
• mainstream, center-based, and home-based models for services

• related services (such as speech, physical therapy, etc.)

We have been very pleased with the involvement of our preschool programs with the community. Our preschool children have taken trips to the fire station, Renfro Valley, the Senior Citizens Center, and are planning a trip to a farm.

Another component of our preschool programs that we are very proud of has been parent involvement. We have conducted many home visits in which we have gotten to know families and not just children. We have conducted two parent workshops on "Tips for Holiday Survival" and "Nutrition," and we are planning an All Day Parent Workshop on April 19, 1991.

If your child would qualify for either of the programs provided by the school system or if you have any questions about the Early Childhood Programs, please contact the Rockcastle County Board of Education and ask for Tammy Gabbard.

4 year old preschool children of Brodhead had an Easter egg hunt at the Senior Citizens Center on March 28th.

BASIC ARTS

Kentucky Education Reform Act calls for more attention to basic art skills. The following is an overview of our Basic Arts Program for 1990-91:

- * Additional elementary music specialist
- * Nine month Artist-In-Residence (visual art)
- * Lesson Plans for Primary Level including the six goals of the Common Core of Learning furnished by KDE, KAC and KAAE. Grades K-3 (these will be evaluated in April).
- * "Images From the Mountains" traveling art show from Appalshop, Whitesburg, Kentucky.
- * Clay Projects at the four elementary schools.
- * Staff Development for teachers K-4 in Drama-Dance.
- * Two productions from the Lexington Children's Theatre - "Tales From Edgar A. Poe" and "Uncle Wiggly."
- * Teacher Incentive Grant (TIP) for Mt. Vernon Elementary Grade 5.

Several of our schools have applied for an Artist-In-Residence for next year and plans are being made to continue coordinating our basic arts program from the district level.

Students learn concept of positive and negative through movement and space. Part of our Basic Arts staff development for teachers.

Internationally competitive schools are goal of Kentucky

By Thomas C. Boyesen
Kentucky Commissioner of Education

My clearest impressions of Kentucky thus far have resulted from my visits to classrooms in Rockcastle County to Northern Kentucky to Paducah and several places in between. Most impressive were teachers—their dedication, their energy, their caring.

Everywhere I encountered a genuine sense of pride in the work they were doing and in Kentucky's bold leadership in national education transformation.

At the same time, I sensed a concern about the magnitude of the changes facing all of us. Let me say three things about that.

First, nothing in the Kentucky Education Reform Act of 1990 is entirely new. The beauty of KERA is not in its innovation; rather, it is in the way KERA has meshed proven educational practices into a comprehensive, seamless whole.

Everything in KERA has been attempted successfully somewhere. Some of you and some of your schools are already practicing or know about many of the practices promoted within KERA. If you're not doing it, a colleague somewhere—maybe in a school just down the road—is successfully using techniques that will become standard under KERA.

Second, KERA is flexible both in what it requires and in its timelines. After this July's deadline of one school in each district is met, schools have until 1996 to decide when they will adopt school-based decision making. We will set school and student performance standards next year, but it will be 1996-97 before they will have consequences. That gives us time to adjust and adapt, to fail before we ultimately succeed.

Third, KERA makes an unprece-dened commitment to professional development—nearly $5 million during the first two budget years. That will give us a good start. If your district isn't doing it already, next year it will join a consortium of districts to provide multi-district programs. And within a year, we will have regional professional development service centers in operation.

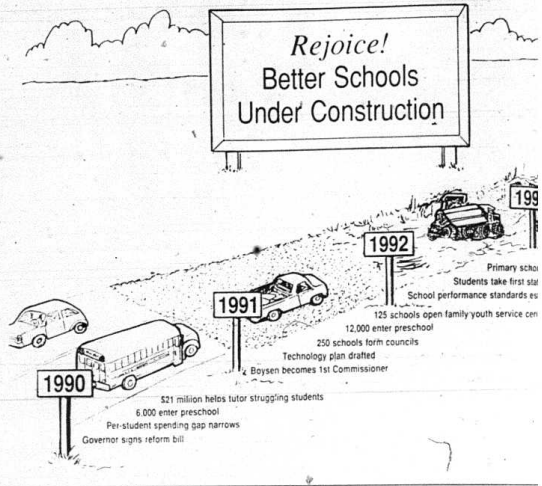

My goal for Kentucky is internationally competitive schools by 1995-96. To achieve that, we must have the world's most effective practitioners in our classrooms. And that's the goal of our professional development initiative: the world's best teaching corps.

With the energy, caring and commitment that I have observed in our classrooms, I know we can make it happen everywhere in Kentucky.

Rockcastle County Successfully Implements Education Reform

One Year into the Future

TESTS: Changes play critical role in school reform

The 1990 Education Reform Act listed six major learning goals and charged the council with deciding specifically what students need to know and how to measure it.

- GOAL #1 Use basic communication and math skills for purposes and situations similar to what he/she will encounter in life.
- GOAL #2 Develop student's ability to apply core concepts and principles from mathematics, the sciences, arts and humanities, social studies, practical living studies and vocational studies to what he/she will encounter in life.
- GOAL #3 Develop student's ability to become a self-sufficient individual.
- GOAL #4 Becoming a responsible member of a family, work group, or community.
- GOAL #5 Develop student's ability to think and solve problems both in school situations and in a variety of situations similar to what he/she will encounter in life.
- GOAL #6 Develop student's ability to connect and integrate experiences and new knowledge from all subject matter fields into his/her own existing knowledge base.

The state school board and a consulting firm will devise the actual tests, which will be given to students in grades 4, 8 and 12 annual starting next spring.

The stakes are high for schools. Starting in 1994, the results of the tests will be used to reward or discipline schools.

In schools where students improve upon earlier test results, teacher and other school employees could be rewarded with salary bonuses. In schools where students falter, jobs and control of the schools are at risk.

Students will need to know the basics - reading, writing, math, science and social studies. Arts and vocational studies are also included.

But, students will also be expected to learn to think, listen, make decisions, solve problems and be self-sufficient.

To measure how well students have mastered skills, the state will probably use three kinds of tests, including:

Paper and pencil tests - Like standardized tests for years and criticized for their narrowness, it tests will rely on multiple-choice questions. Ur standardized tests, the new tests would include short answer, fill-in-the-blank and essay questions.

Performance tests - Students will be given a task to complete in a prescribed time, such as perform a laboratory experiment or writing an impromptu and presenting it in a speech.

Designing an alien and conducting an interview with the alien is an example of a performance test. Eighth graders that would show their knowledge science systems, as well as their skills in reason, thinking and public speaking.

Portfolio tests - Students work on projects, use over weeks or months, than can be used to show much they have learned.

Making a videotape about Kentucky's ending species is an example of a portfolio test for ci graders that shows their skills in gathering info; and developing ideas.

Parents and teachers would rely mainly on paper pencil tests to chart the progress of individual student. Performance and portfolio tests would be used exclusively for measuring how well schools and tests were performing.

Other states are using performance and portfolio but none are using them for as many grade level subjects as Kentucky plans.

KERA '90: History of the First Year

Finance: The poorest district catch up

-  The new SEEK formula provides 25 percent increases in state aid to the poorest local school districts, only 8 percent to the wealthier ones. The gap in pre-student spending—a major impetus of reform—begins to close as 81 districts receive state aid increases of at least 20 percent.
-  All districts increase their local effort to the equivalent of at least 30 cents per $100 of local assessed property valuation. Nearly all districts raise their local effort above the 30-cent level to qualify for additional state aid.
-  Districts use the new money to pay competitive teacher salaries, eliminate student fees, reduce class sizes, hire new teachers and counselors, renovate buildings and buy more instructional materials, including computers.

Programs: The neediest children get attention

-  In the spirit of KERA's "all children can learn" philosophy, new services are directed to the students who are most likely to fail.
-  6,000 additional 4-year-olds from families eligible for free school lunches begin pre-school in 130 districts. The $18 million program nearly doubles the number of "at-risk" 4-year-olds in preschool programs, including Head Start.
-  All districts begin Extended School Services programs to provide extra instruction to struggling students in all grades. The $21 million effort includes before-, after-, Saturday-, and summer-school programs for an estimated 130,000 students.
-  Districts prepare to establish 125 family or youth service centers at schools with high proportions of "at-risk" students. The centers will coordinate state and community social services for students in the schools.
-  The Council on Education Technology prepares a plan for making modern instructional and management technology available to every school and school district by 1996.

Changing the System: Parents, teachers, professionals gain

-  Teachers at an estimated 150 schools in 50 districts initiate school-based decision making programs. Next year school councils at some 250 schools will begin making decisions about curriculum, staffing, and other key educational matters.
-  Under the leadership of the Council for School Performance Standards, 450 educators and citizens are determining what students should be able to do by the time they complete the 4th, 8th, and 12th grades.
-  The group's decisions will provide the basis for a new state-wide curriculum framework and a new performance-based student assessment program.
-  A teacher-dominated Professional Standards Board begins the process of establishing new teacher training and certification standards for professional educators.
-  Thomas C. Boyesen, a Californian with 20 years experience as a local and regional school superintendent, is appointed the first commissioner of education effective January 1. A new 11-member State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education is confirmed by the General Assembly in February and takes office March 17.

KENTUCKY EDUCATION REFORM ACT OF 1990

The state school board will discuss the council report next month and vote on soliciting bids from consulting firms to design the tests.
The council and its committees of educators, which have been working on the report since September, will hold a series of regional hearings to get feedback on the report.
Hearings for educators are scheduled April 11-30 and meetings for parents and others are set for May 20-24. The council will consider suggestions from the meetings as they prepare a final report, which is expected to be completed by November.

Sample assessment task

Garbage Strike in Grinchville:
Grade: 8
Discipline area: Science
Valued Outcome: Students complete assessment tasks in which they use and apply the subconcepts of change, patterns and systems to authentic situation
Mode of presentation: Written report or oral presentation with illustrations
Description of assessment task: The community of Grinchville is in the third week of a garbage collectors' strike. Trash, including waste food material, is accumulating on curbs, in back yards, and in storage areas of homes throughout the community at an astonishing rate. What populations are likely to increase due to the garbage strike? What is the potential effect of these population increases on the human population of this community? What controls should be enacted if the strike continues for another four or five weeks? What is likely effect of the garbage collectors' strike on ground water supplies?
Performance criteria: • Extent to which population changes are explained (type of organisms, effect of human populations)
• Extent to which knowledge of populations is applied to real-life problem (economic losses, disease potential, effect on human life)
• Extent to which connections of surface pollution to ground water contamination is explained

Superintendent's Message

Bige W. Towery, Jr.
Superintendent - Rockcastle County Schools

It is hard to believe that a year has passed since Governor Wallace Wilkinson signed the Kentucky Education Reform Act of 1990 into law. But looking back at the Rockcastle County Schools, it's hard to believe that we have done so much in 12 short months. We've had a busy and productive year.

The biggest impacts resulted from:
(a) the new monies available to us through the new SEEK formula. For the first time in our history, we now have a state school finance system that treats students in all areas of the state fairly in the distribution of state school aid.

As a result of SEEK and additional local support, in our district this year we have been able to make several critical improvements. We have increased teacher salaries by 10 percent, eliminated most student fees, reduced class sizes, made many facility improvements district wide, purchased needed instructional supplies, social studies and science equipment and computers for all schools, and expended extra funds in the fine arts area by employing one additional elementary music teacher and providing additional resources and activities for our children.

Over the next four years, SEEK promises to provide us the resources we need in this community to give our students the kinds of opportunities that some students in other parts of Kentucky have enjoyed for years.

(b) preschool program for 4-year-old students. Through this new state program, we are now serving 52 students and their families at two (2) locations. This program is preparing many of the 4-year old children in Rockcastle County to be successful students and to compete equally with other students when they enter primary school.

In the long run, this program will reduce the number of failing students, cut our dropout rate and help ameliorate the societal problems of crime and drug and welfare dependency.

(c) the Extended School Services program. Through this new program, we received extra funds to offer tutoring programs for students who needed extra assistance. We offered these services at all sites after school. This summer we will also be able to expand summer school programs to elementary students; students who might have risked failure will continue normal progress in school.

We are proud of our accomplishments this past year, and we sincerely appreciate what the new reform law has enabled us to do in Rockcastle County.

But we are also looking ahead to next year. This fall, we will be able to expand the pre-school program, expand our extended school services, begin school-based decision making in at least one school, and perhaps establish a family/youth services center in our district.

In order to prepare our teachers and administrative staff for the changes that are coming over the next few years, we will expand and improve our professional development programs.

The primary challenge before us here and across the state is to maintain the pace of change. While the reform act imposes change upon us, to a large degree than ever before it allows schools, districts and communities to decide locally how to meet the challenges.

In this process we need continued community support, but we also need community involvement. They are your children and grandchildren. They are your future employees, customers and neighbors. Always feel free to let us know how we can do a better job of preparing them to be successful adults.

I wish to convey my appreciation to the teachers, administrators, parents, citizens and students of Rockcastle County for the support extended to our schools in this time of major change. I know that such change required significant readjustment and sometimes it is a bit painful to give up the old and accept the new. I commend our staff on the attitudes they have maintained. You have been cautious in approaching some of the changes but you have never become negative to the fact that we have to change the manner in which we operate schools.

I look forward to the next few years which will be so critical. When the reform has been totally implemented by the 1995-96 school term, I want Rockcastle County to be listed in the ranks of those districts who attained successful implementation.

PRIMARY EDUCATION CHANGE IMMINENT FOR STATE'S SCHOOLS

The jarring ring of the last school bell in May will signal the start of a dramatic transformation of Kentucky's elementary schools.

A new way of teaching and learning is coming to kindergartens and first-, second-, and third-grade classrooms.

The evolution, ordered by the 1990 Education Reform Act, has begun in a few schools. This fall, many more will start the shift. And by the 1992-93 school year, each of the state's 874 elementary schools must change its ways.

It's called a primary school and here's a glimpse of what's ahead:

• The lines that divide the early grades will be erased. In many classrooms, 5- and 8-year-olds will study side by side.

• The sights and sounds of classrooms will change. Silence isn't golden in primary school. Noise is the norm as students help each other learn.

• The staples of schools such as textbooks, workbooks and mimeographed worksheets will be used more sparingly. Students will learn by doing—for example, counting plastic tiles to learn math basics.

• The lessons won't be taught in hour-long chunks of reading, writing and arithmetic. Students will learn subjects, often several at once, through real-life examples.

Why are we changing the organization of elementary schools?

Educational reform of one type or another is under way across the United States. Educators, business representatives and elected officials all realize the urgency of a higher success rate for all students.

Educational research as well as common sense supports the fact that students learn and develop at varying rates. The current system of placing students in grades ignores the maturation process that fluctuates greatly in early development.

This system frequently produces frustration, boredom or feelings of defeat for young learners. During the initial school years when a child's future attitudes about learning are forming, it is imperative that we make every effort to guarantee successful learning experiences for everyone.

The futur of our nation depends upon a reliable educated workforce. The skills required for the twenty-first century are unlike those expected of past workers. Educators must do a better job of educating all students. We must prepare students who will be adult learners. As Dr. Robert Anderson, a noted national educator, has stated, "When we examine schools across the country, the one common element that all schools share is grades."

Will students receive grades?

Student progress in the primary program will be assessed. We must hold educators, parents and students accountable for learning. Expectations for students will always be high. There may be some changes in the ways that learning is evaluated and reported; however, it is still necessary to monitor and inform parents and our community of student success.

Will students at six years old be expected to perform at the same level of seven and eight year old students?

Definitely no! The purpose of a primary program is not to frustrate students. The advantage of a primary program is the early exposure to learning experiences and the opportunity to participate in advanced learning experiences when appropriate. The highlight of a primary program is the recognition that not all students of any age learn at the same rate. The primary program facilitates learning for all students of all ages by accepting the many differences between students as a group and within students individually.

The primary program encourages the strengths of students and supports weaknesses until students are developmentally ready for the expected learning experience.

Will eight year old students be sufficiently challenged?

All students regardless of age benefit from the primary program. There is no ceiling on the amount of learning possible since students do not use third grade books, or second grade books or first grade books. Teachers are expanding their knowledge and use of curriculum and instructional material to accommodate the learning needs of all students. Skills are taught in a variety of methods to ensure a higher success rate for students. Students have more opportunities to be active learners. The primary program provides more flexibility for enrichment and advancement.

How will we know that students are ready to enter the fourth grade?

The state of Kentucky, along with the Jefferson County Public Schools, is currently developing learning outcomes and methods of assessing whether students are meeting the outcomes. Nationally recognized assessments will be given students to determine if our students have successfully completed the primary program. We have a mandate from our legislators that requires students to be prepared prior to entering the fourth grade. Primary teachers will be held greatly accountable for student learning. Benchmarks will be provided parents, teachers and the community to determine if all students are making sufficient progress.

'In Memory'

This is in memory of my brother, Michael Ledford, who died April 17, 1983, at the age of 32, due to a lack of immediate medical help. He will always be remembered by those of us who loved him dearly! It doesn't take some long to forget and go on with their lives but my life has never been the same since he died, and it never will.

God's Flower Garden

It's hard to lose the ones we love. To see them pass away.

The kindest gone,

But if we had a garden,

With roses fair and bright,

We'd often pick the loveliest,

And think it to be right.

And so it is with Jesus.

In His heavenly garden here,

He often picks the loveliest.

The ones we love so dear.

The flowers that are picked by Him,

Will never fade away.

We know they'll live forever,

And we'll see them some sweet day!

Sadly missed by sister, mother, niece and nephew, aunts and uncles

Rockcastle County Homemakers and Central Kentucky Blood Center asks residents to do their part for the Mt. Vernon community by donating blood on Wednesday, April 24 from noon to 7 p.m. at the Agricultural Services Center.

Regularly scheduled blood drives are essential for effective management of blood and specialized components in CKBC's 57-county services area. Red cells, the component most frequently needed, can be stored for only 35 days. Platelets, another component regularly needed, must be transfused within five days after being donated.

Blood drives like the ones sponsored by Rockcastle County Homemakers help provide a steady blood supply to the patients in local hospitals. With the group's support, CKBC strives to maintain an inventory of 2,000 units of blood and blood components.

Do your part at the blood drive on Wednesday, April 24th. For more information, contact Rebecca Durham at 1-800-432-9528.

Participation in the Honors Program allows students opportunities for special study and for one-on-one interaction with professors in various fields.

Teen Center Perspectives

By: Ginny Gilpatrick
Rockcastle Teen Center

It is easier to become blinded to the differences which often separate groups when all individuals are involved in a common purpose. This is what happened last weekend when sixteen white Rockcastle youth joined thirteen black Garrard Teen center youth at Camp Andrew Jackson in McKee.

While friendship groups and couples maintained their comfortable alliances initially, the day and a half was structured to insure interaction. And it worked. Of course the perfect weather energized the group as they joined in swimming, canoeing and fishing as soon as they hit camp. Before dinner the teens were led in "Breaking Down Barriers," a time in which preconceived ideas about the other ethnic group were aired and responded to. The evening program, "Digging Deeper", involved a challenging hike to Wind Cave. In places the trail is treacherous and it was necessary for each person to consider the others in sharing lights and holding hands. About half way the group actually went through the cave, led by some Boy Scouts who were fortuitously camping there.

Much of the success of the weekend can be attributed to the Camp Director, Bill Lynch, who has almost single-handedly contrived and constructed a vast network of trails and "challenges" surrounding the camp. "Pulling Together" and "Climbing Higher" involved two hours in the morning and two in the afternoon during which teens worked in mixed teams to solve a series of problems to get their team members successfully through the challenges. For example, they were confronted with a series of strategically placed cinderblocks and two 2x4's. They needed to figure out how to get across the "quicksand" field utilizing these props. Trial and error, suggestion, and creative problem solving engaged the whole group, and they eventually figured out the "T" formation with the boards resting on certain blocks that would be used to relay the entire across.

On the side of a wooded hill were numerous barriers made of rope, wood, and/or tires which required cooperative lifting and sharing of strengths and positioning of team members for the success of each person. Cooperation was the key word as each challenge was met and the teens became more adept. Their pride in themselves, and their praise of each other were well-deserved. Camp A.J., run by Christian Appalachian Project, is now accepting summer registrations for boys and girls ages six and one half to fourteen. The fee for an entire week is only $5. This includes three nutritious meals a day, overnight accommodations in a dorm with modern bathroom facilities, and the wonderful program, some of which is described above. The waterfront is safe and inviting. Applications are available at the Teen Center, or you may phone 256-4810, or 287-7073, for more information.

Three residents among EKU's Cooperative Education Program

Three Rockcastle County residents are among approximately 350 Eastern Kentucky University students participating this spring in EKU's Cooperative Education Program. EKU's co-op students apply principles and theories learned in the classroom to practical, on-the-job situations.

"TIGER PAUSE"

classes, for 4th - 8th grade students, will be taught by Patty Himes at the Harry Sparks Vocational School. Classes are limited and will be filled on a first come - first serve basis. This would be a great opportunity for our students to gain computer knowledge.

Participants also receive a salary from the participating employer, which may help to defray college expenses.

They may also earn academic credit for their work.

Those from Rockcastle are: Janis Lynn Durham, Livingston, working at Charter Ridge Hospital, Lexington as a psychology intern; Gregory Scott Philbeck, Mt. Vernon, working as a relief security guard at PPG in Berea, and Katherine Susan McIntosh working at Madison County Solid waste Disposal. "Cooperative education provides exceptional opportunities for students to gain experience outside the classroom," said Ken Noah, director of cooperative education at EKU.

He said many people don't realize that the majority of co-op students are paid for their working hours in addition to the academic credit they receive.

Since EKU's program began in 1973, more than 9,500 students have been placed with employers in Kentucky and throughout the United States, Noah said.

Eastern Kentucky University serves more than 15,300 students on its 350-acre Richmond campus, throughout its 22-county extended service area, and beyond.

"TODDLER DEATH"

his department was conducting a complete investigation of the death, but he would not speculate as to what caused the child's death. "We have brought in a Kentucky State Police detective to help us with the case, and we will work closely with the Fayette Coroner's office as well," he said.

Cody Alan Leger was found burned about 11 a.m. Friday in his mother's home in Rockcastle Villa Apartments, just off Ky. 1326 in Mt. Vernon.

Howell said that the child's mother, Alfreda Leger, told him she was doing laundry that day, using a new one-gallon jug of bleach.

She used the laundry in the apartment complex, and then went to talk to a friend in the neighborhood who had fixed her car, Howell said.

Investigators don't know how long she was gone.

Howell said a friend yelled for Leger to go back to her apartment. When she got there, neighbors were washing the child in a basin. He had severe burns on his back, the back of his legs and arms, and on his face.

Leger noticed a strong smell of bleach, Howell said. The jug was on the kitchen floor, and there were some bleach spots on the carpet. She took the child to Rockcastle Hospital, where a physician became concerned about the boy's eyes and sent him to the University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center in Lexington.

But he apparently did not sustain any burns to his eyes and was taken back to the Mt. Vernon hospital and admitted.

Just before midnight, he began having problems breathing, Howell said, and was flown back to UK, where he died.

Howell said that he is also checking into why the child was taken back to Rockcastle Hospital after being taken to UK the first time, "if indeed that was the case," he said.

Cody Alan Leger was born in Somerset November 19, 1988.

In addition to his mother, survivors are his maternal grandparents, Carl and Linda Stewart of Pine Hill and his maternal great grandmother, Pearl Falin of Mt. Vernon. Also surviving are three uncles and one aunt.

Services were April 9 at Pine Hill Missionary Baptist Church with Bro. Carl McCray officiating. Burial was in the family cemetery at Pine Hill.

Arrangements were by Dowell and Martin Funeral Home.

Dairy Queen, Days to open

Build it and they will come, or at least they hope so in Renfro Valley. Take a Dairy Queen, Days Inn and Denny's and what you have are the three components of a multi-million dollar business project at Renfro Valley.

After nearly a year of work, Dr. Dale Coffey announced this week that Dairy Queen and the Days Inn will open soon at Exit 62.

Construction on a Denny's Restaurant is slated to begin sometime in May or early June.

Coffey, a local dentist, heads a group of investors, who began work on the project in February 1990, after they purchased the 3.8 acre site from Mabel Reppert Burdette.

"When we bought the site we had intentions of selling it to a fast food company or other investor, but things have changed just a little since that time," Coffey said with a smile Monday.

When Days Inn opens it will be one of the largest motels located along I-75 between Lexington and Knoxville.

The 100 unit motel is scheduled to open May 15. Jeff Vanhook will manage the motel.

Renfro has new Sunday gospel show

The Renfro Valley Folks are starting their 1991 season off right with the introduction of a brand new show for gospel music fans.

The Renfro Valley Sunday Gospel Show will take place every Sunday beginning this Sunday, April 14. (The only exceptions will be those Sundays reserved for Special Gospel concerts like the Gold City Quartet and Chuckwagon Gang concerts).

"Several people have requested that Renfro Valley incorporate more gospel music into their programming," says Michael Bryant II, Assistant Marketing Director and Gospel Music Promotions Coordinator.

Blackfire Coal fined

The Kentucky Department of Natural Resources has levied a penalty of $28,500 on Blackfire Coal Company of Lexington for violation of surface mining regulations.

An additional penalty of $5,000 was also levied for failure to comply with the department.

The department cited improper construction of hollow fill and terraces at an abandoned mine site in the Livingston area.

The order listed the company's former address as Mt. Vernon and owners or operators as Tim Montgomery and Andy Palmer.

Dr. Dale Coffey heads a group of investors who are opening a new motel and two restaurants in Renfro Valley.

Voter registration light in Rockcastle

Only 87 persons have registered to vote in the past year, and of that number, 52 since the November 1990 election, according to figures in the office of County Clerk Norma Houk.

As of this week, a total of 8197 are registered. A year ago the total was 8110.

Of those newly registered, 37 are Republicans, 13 Democrats, and 2 Independents.

County totals by parties at the present time are: Republican, 6,576; Democrat, 1,589; Independent, 22, and other, 10.

Statewide, only 1,854,392 registered voters are recorded with the state Board of Elections as of February, only 77 more than after the November election.

In Rockcastle's magisterial district 1, as of October 1990, there were 320 Democrats and 1,090 Republicans; in District 2, there were 222 Democrats and 16,662 Republicans; District 3, there were 617 Democrats and 1,223 Republicans; District 4, there were 201 Democrats and 1,262 Republicans; District 5, there were 218 Democrats and 1,302 Republicans. Repeating, the district figures were as of October 1990.

New microvote machines

The county has received its new Microvote Voting machines and they will be in use in the May primary election, according to County Clerk Norma Houk.

There is a practice machine set up in Clerk Houk's office for voters to practice along with brochures explaining the voting process.

Voters are encouraged to see the machine before election day May 28.

There were 1,932,176 voters registered at the time of the May 1987 primary. Of those, only 758,955, or 39.2 percent, actually voted.

Another factor that could further reduce the number of registered voters by the time of the primary is a "Purge" being conducted in every county in the state.

The purge, brought about by a new state law, requires clerks to check the addresses of voters who have had a change of address and remove those of voters who have either died or moved away.

Rockcastle County Clerk Norma Houk and Joe Bolton of the Kentucky Election Service

Those figures were not included in the February count, but Ehrler said they would be offset by registration drives occurring around the state.

Secretary of State Bremer Ehrler said he was not surprised at the number. He said he thought the hotly contested Democratic and Republican primaries would boost registration between now and the deadline.

New voters may register for either party, but registered voters who try to switch parties must forfeit their vote in May.

See a picture of new voting machine and read instructions - Page A-4.

According to the Urban Studies Center at the University of Louisville, there are 2,530,372 people of voting age in Kentucky.

State approves Rockcastle's rural secondary road program

Secretary of Transportation and Commissioner of Highways Milo D. Bryant has announced the approval of the 1991-92 Rural Secondary Program for Rockcastle County.

The program consists of funds for maintenance and traffic improvements as well as funds for additional road improvement projects to begin soon.

"I am looking forward to the new fiscal year and to continuing my efforts in keeping Kentucky's transportation system one of the finest in the nation," Bryant said. "Governor Wilkinson and I are anxious to get started on this new Program for Rockcastle County and we hope the funds provided and the projects included will benefit the residents in that area."

Included in the Program is an estimated $300,000 for the maintenance of over 116 miles of state roadways and two additional road improvement projects. Among the projects is the placement of blacktop repavement on portions of Sand Springs Road, (KY 1249) and Brush Creek-Orlando-Cruze Ridge, (KY 1912). The state will also provide funds for the replacement of initial blacktop on a portion of the County Line-Climax Road, (KY 2614). All projects will be accomplished by contract and will be advertised for bids as soon as possible.

The entire Program, according to Bryant is estimated to cost a total of $528,013 and will be funded through the Rural Secondary Account. Bryant went on to explain that the funds provided for the Program are made available through the collection of state motor fuel taxes and are distributed to each county based on population, land size and rural road mileage.

Rockets lose two on the road

It took the best pitching the opposition had to offer to down the Rockcastle County Rockets' baseball team this past week. Estill County started their ace Monday to finally nip the Rockets by one, 7-6, while Whitley County did the same to walk away with a close game Tuesday, 4-2. Both games were on the road.

Rockets' head coach Ryan Riddie said after Tuesday's game that he felt his team played some very competitive baseball during both games. He noted that the Rockets made some mental errors but praised the team in their overall performance.

Junior starting pitcher Chris Ponder put in another good day on the mound for the Rockets against Estill, Monday. Ponder, who is 1-1 with a win against Whitley earlier this year, went the duration while only giving up four of Estill's seven runs. The other three came on Rocket errors.

The Rockets led through the first five innings by out hitting Estill, 9-5. And again the Rockets began early by popping their first run in the first inning. Micah Parkerson set up the first run by gaining a free ticket with a walk to first base. Parkerson followed by stealing second and crossed the plate when clean-up hitter Jon Saylor sacrificed with a fly ball to centerfield.

The Rockets sent three more runs across the plate in the top of third to take an early, 4-0 lead. Jason Payne, Parkerson and J.D. Bussell were all able to round third and score as the Rockets had a big inning consisting of a walk, fielder's choice, four singles and a double.

But two fielding errors by the Rockets in the bottom of the third allowed Estill three runs, instead of only one, to tighten the score at 4-3. Two silent innings followed by both teams before the Rockets added two more runs to up their lead to 6-3. Jason Kirby, who walked and Curtis Cotton, who singled, headed for home on a Chris Newland base hit followed by an Estill County throwing error.

However, a four run inning by Estill based on three walks, a balk, a single and an error, sent the game, dominated by the Rockets, in the wrong direction for a 7-6 loss.

Of course, Riddie, who agreed that the Rockets should have won, remained optimistic after the game and said, "with a young team you never know, you just have to take one day at a time and learn from that particular day."

In Tuesday's game at Whitley County, the Rockets found themselves on the losing end again as Whitley avenged their 9-3 loss to the Rockets earlier this year with a 4-2 victory.

Quarterback Club looks promising for Rockcastle's football fans

An idea stemming from Rockcastle County High School Rockets' head football coach Tom Larkey appears very promising for local football enthusiasts.

The now implemented Quarterback Club, which will work toward uniting parents and fans in support of the players, held its first two meetings and elected officers during the month of March at the high school.

Newly elected officers are: Larry Carter, president; Jim Bussell, vice-president; and Sherri Cash, Secretary.

"Some of our objectives," said Larkey earlier this week, "are to get the parents of the players and other people interested in our football program involved in a more direct way."

Michael Shaffer, who is 1-1, pitched another solid game but found himself the victim of a pitchers duel.

For the Rockets, who are averaging an impressive 10 runs a game, the bats just weren't there. The Rockets managed only four hits through the ballgame and never really appeared threatening from the plate.

As for Whitley, they scored one run in the second inning, one in the third and topped their scoring off with a two run shot over the left field fence in the fourth.

On the other hand, the Rockets managed their only two runs by working hard. Payne got the first run in the third inning by stealing his way from first base to home after he singled. The other came in the sixth when Parkerson singled and then scored on a David Sargent triple.

With the two losses, the Rockets are now 2-3 on the year.

"We will work together with our football boosters and promote different activities to bring more attention to our football players," added Larkey.

But, the main objectives for the club, which includes about 20 members thus far, is to organize several fund raisers, throughout the year, to pay for the player's camp fees, food for the away football games and any other items they deem necessary.

One such program already planned is the annual football picnic. The club will host this year's picnic Friday, April 26 at the Christian Church Camp in Brodhead.

However, the picnic is only one of an array of topics and ideas discussed by the club and many more are on the way.

So, for a football program that is already a huge success, it's only going to get better.

KDFWR to cancel KY - TN reciprocal License

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (ADFWR) has begun the process to dissolve the reciprocal license agreement existing between Kentucky and Tennessee for sport fishing and waterfowl hunting on bordering sections of Kentucky Lake.

According to Don R. McCormick,

KDFWR commissioner, the agreement will expire April 17, 1991. McCormick cited the difference in Kentucky's and Tennessee's regulations for this portion of the lake as basis for dissolving the agreement.

"The department and Kentucky anglers are very concerned about maintaining quality fishing opportunities in this portion of Kentucky Lake," said McCormick.

"Since there is such a difference in Kentucky's and Tennessee's management objective and the corresponding laws needed to achieve those objectives, the only feasible choice is to dissolve the agreement," McCormick added.

McCormick further states that abolishing the agreement ensures that Kentucky regulations will be followed in the Kentucky portion of Kentucky Lake.

"This will allow the KDFWR to meet its obligation to Kentucky anglers by increasing the effectiveness of fisheries management on Kentucky Lake," said McCormick.

Approximately 22,000 of the 30,000 acres within the reciprocal zone area actually lie in Kentucky. This portion will now be strictly governed under Kentucky's size and creel limit laws.

The area formerly in reciprocal zone on Kentucky Lake included the waters between the Highway 68/80 bridge (Egger Ferry) in Kentucky and the Highway 79 bridge (Paris Landing) in Tennessee.

Dissolution of the reciprocal agreement means state boundaries and markers will be established for Kentucky Lake waters near the Kentucky-Tennessee state line. Anglers must be licensed in the state where they fish, and follow the appropriate regulations.

The cancellation of the agreement with Tennessee for Kentucky Lake also includes the abolishment of the reciprocal zone on Dale Hollow Lake under the same terms. The agreement between the two states establishing reciprocal waters included both Kentucky and Dale Hollow lakes.

Farmers should scout fields for signs of alfalfa weevils

By: Tom Mills
County Extension Agent
for Agriculture

From now through early May, alfalfa growers should scout fields for alfalfa weevils. It is important for growers to scout fields at regular intervals, at least once a week. Alfalfa weevil is the major insect pest of the first cutting of alfalfa. This is not a situation where a grower can walk through a field one time and decide whether or not there's a problem. Surveys thus far indicate we will have an average year in terms of alfalfa weevil numbers. While we do not anticipate large numbers, some fields may benefit from treatment. Alfalfa growers should consider three factors - plant height, number of larvae, and degree days - in scouting fields to determine if insect numbers have reached an economic threshold. When a plant is fairly short, smaller insect populations can cause more damage than when it is tall and can support more larvae. To determine the number of larvae, growers should cut 30 stems from each field, regardless of its size, and count the total number of larvae.

The number of degree days is important because temperature ac-mutation, the more developed the larvae become.

U.K. entomologists advised alfalfa growers to keep up with degree day information from their county Extension office and use the scouting procedures outlined in "Insecticide Recommendations for Alfalfa and Corn, to B-6"

CHARTING ROCKCASTLE

By Richard Anderlkin
Managing Editor

In a recent poll by Knight-Ridder news service, parents, coaches, players and others associated with Little League were asked what the number one problem was in Little League. The answer: Parents.

As we get ready to head into another year of Rockcastle County Little League, T-Ball and Senior League sports, all of us parents should keep in mind that the entire program is actually designed to entertain our children.

Throughout the years I have seen some nasty scenes over things that really did not amount to anything at all. But as parents, myself included, we think it is our God given right to stand up to anyone or any organization that may be treating our children unfairly. And it most definitely is. It happens from time to time, but in what is suppose to be a civilized country, there are ways to handle such problems, without embarrassing or harming the children.

Many times I think that too much emphasis is placed on sports, and this comes from a very sports minded father, but I think that sometimes out of us forget just how important education is to any community.

After all how many Rockcastle cantinians do you see making a living playing a sport and while on the other hand, every aspect of our lives is affected by what we have learned in the past and what we hope to learn in the future.

Sports activities are no doubt a part of any well rounded education.

Education in our school systems is getting better, but there is still something missing and I'm not even sure that it has anything to do with our schools per say.

There is an element of our society in this county that doesn't want to improve their situation, don't want to get off welfare, pull themselves above the poverty level. Quite honestly they think that it is the way it is supposed to be. They have been living that way so long, that they don't think there is any other way. But our county school system is doing what it can to help change all of that. The early childhood programs mandated by the Education Reform Package, can't do anything but help and public awareness concerning education is higher now than ever before.

When you get all upset because your son or daughter was thrown out at first base and you thought he was safe, think about getting more upset that he or she did not make the honor roll during the entire school year.

mile-an-hour in gusts. Although there was a sudden burst of rain, it measured only .11 of an inch at Cox Funeral Home weather station.

In other sections of the state several tornadoes were reported with heavy damages. Berea had considerable damage to various buildings. In Somerset, the roof was blown off Goldenberg Furniture Store.

In reference to the Lake Linville boat dock. The city owned dock area is up for lease and will continue to be, according to Mayor Gary R. Cromer. "When we have an insurance settlement we'll take care of the building," the mayor reported. It may be an inconvenience for awhile, and we hate to lose the building, but it won't affect the lease.

The city will continue to take bids which are to be opened at 7 p.m. April 22 at city hall.

Many residents in the area had damage, but the Signal was unable to assemble all the information before press time Wednesday.
