So they took the time to talk with Cindy about drugs. They realize that in today's world she has probably already been approached by someone attempting to lure her to start using uppers or maybe something even more dangerous. They told Cindy what drugs can do and how they can affect her future chances of having a productive life. Now she can make the right decision if she's ever confronted with it. Now that the vote is over

Hopkins, Jones, Patton, Goss still alive

By: Ray McClure

Rockcastle voters did it again. They picked losers in Tuesday's primary election.

When the county votes tallied, Republican gubernatorial candidate for governor, Larry Forgy had defeated Larry Hopkins, 1,181 to 725, and Democrat Scotty Baessler had defeated Brereton Jones 384 to 179.

Statewide, Hopkins was the winner over Forgy in a close vote, 81,117 to 77,070. Jones defeated Baessler 183,618 to 149,017. Jones' majority is the largest primary vote for a Democrat candidate for governor since Julian Carroll in 1975.

In the Lieutenant Governor race, Democrat Paul Patton defeated Fred Crowan, 143,829 to 101,915. In the Republican race, Eugene Goss defeated Lawson Walker, 55,363 to 51,646.

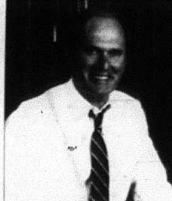

In Rockcastle, Walker defeated Goss, 762 to 482. Although Forgy was aligned with Goss on the ticket, in Rockcastle, voters chose Walker who was aligned with Hopkins on the ticket.

There were those who were happy with the results statewide, especially Alonzo McCollum, Rockcastle Republican chairman, who supported Hopkins. But McCollum couldn't have been happy with the Forgy landslide in the county. Forgy even carried McCollum's precinct, Roundstone, 90 to 49. Hopkins did carry one county precinct, Orlando, by a 4 votes 41 to 37.

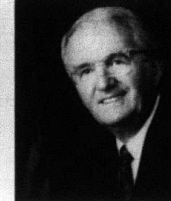

One other Democrat candidate for governor got votes, 5.3 percent. Gatewood Galbraith, the "marijuana man," got a statewide total of 25,698. In Rockcastle he got 50 votes.

It was indeed a tight election. Only 37 percent of the 1.2 million voters in Kentucky went to the polls. In Rockcastle, 2,666 voted for a total of 32 percent. There are 8,284 registered county voters. Voter participation has shrunk statewide in recent years.

There were several guesses as to the causes for the low turnout this year, including negative television advertising, no hot issue as the lottery was in the Wilkinson/Harper election. Incidentally, in that election Rockcastle was one of the few counties giving Republican John Harp a majority.

Brereton Jones

Larry Hopkins

One surprise was in the Democrat gubernatorial contest. Dr. Floyd Poore carried the heavily Democratic first district, but even there Jones got a good vote. In Central Kentucky Baessler carried most of the counties surrounding Lexington, but even in Lexington Jones picked up major support. It was in Louisville where Jones made heavy inroads on Baessler.

It was in the sixth and seventh districts where voters gave Jones and "native son" Paul Patton big majorities. Some suggested a deal was made between Jones and Patton.

So, the November election will see a West Virginia native and Republican turned Democrat Jones.

On courthouse lawn VFW members honor dead servicemen

By: Ray McClure

Members of VFW Rockcastle Memorial Post 5908 gathered at the county courthouse Memorial Day to remember the servicemen who gave their lives for their country in World War II, Vietnam and Korea.

Those who participated in Desert Storm were also remembered. But it was only VFW members who came to the ceremony, eight of them. There were only three citizens who were not post members.

opposing Michigan native and Democrat turned Republican Hopkins opposing each other.

In other races, one of the biggest majorities came in the vote for Democrat for Secretary of State where Bob Babbage, grandson of former Democrat Governor, Keen Johnson of Richmond, defeated Gerald Benson 239,004 to 57,986. In the auditor race, newcomer, A. B. "Ben" Chandler, grandson of former governor Happy Chandler, defeated Robert Mead CPA, 208,644 to Mead's 149,626.

To finish the Democrats in the Attorney General race, Chris Goodman of Louisville defeated John Lackey of Richmond. In the treasurer's race, former treasurer Frances Jones Mills is the apparent winner in a close race.

Another big Democrat vote was in the Agriculture Commissioner race where Ed Logsdon of Winchester defeated Michael Gibbs of Spears, 110,165 to 48,646. In the Superintendent of Public Instruction race John Stephenson was the apparent victor. That office is "in name only."

To complete the Republicans, in the Attorney General race, Tom Handy of London had no opposition. In the Auditor race, Betty Holmes, the winner, Secretary of State nominee is Dexter Wright, GOP treasurer nominee Don Bell. Agriculture nominee is Leonard "Black" Beasley, Superintendent of Public Instruction nominee is Donna Shedd of Anchorage.

Other GOP winners in Rockcastle were: Secretary of State, Dexter Wright; Auditor, Betty Holmes; Treasurer, Don Bell; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Gilbert Woodley; Agriculture Commissioner, Kenneth Evans.

Other Democrat winners in Rockcastle were: Secretary of State, Bob Babbage; Attorney general, John Lackey; Auditor, A. B. Chandler; treasurer, Frances Jones Mills; Superintendent of Public Instruction, Foster Jones; Agriculture Commissioner, Ed Logsdon.

In the railroad commissioner race, the winner in Rockcastle is J.E. Combs, in a four-way race. Other district battles for that office were unavailable.

John Lair book to be published

At Last! The long-awaited book on Rockcastle history that the late John Lair was writing is expected to be on the bookshelves in early August, according to Ann Lair Henderson.

The book will likely be published by Berea College Press, at least the book has expressed a marked interest in the book. Its title will be Rockcastle Reollections.

Regardless whether Berea publishes the book, it will be published somewhere since the manuscript has been called, Mrs. Henderson stated.

Many calls and letter from across the area and other states have been received over the past few years concerning the book that Lair started in 1970, but was unable to continue after 1977.

Mrs. Henderson said the book is essentially an early history of Rockcastle, from early time to about 1920.

The six by nine inch book, compiled and edited by J. Allen Singleton of Eastern Kentucky University, will contain pictures and will be about 200 pages. It may disappoint some residents with Rockcastle family connections since it does not contain the complete genealogy of county families that was expected.

Mrs. Henderson said a second book containing the complete genealogy of families is now being considered. If Rockcastle Reollections is a success.

Singleton spent several months compiling the book and even years thinking of its contents. He read many articles written by Lair, in Ralph Griffin, Mt. Vernon businessman and historian, and James Martz, highway engineer. From the writings he compiled the history.

The book will be out in time for the Kentucky Bicentennial celebration in 1992. It will be submitted to the Bicentennial committee for consideration of support. Estimates are it will cost $14.95, or $12 if ordered pre-publication, plus a shipping and handling fee.

A coupon to order the book will be in a future issue of the Signal. Among the contents of the book will be: explorers; hunters and land speculators; early settlers; early houses; frontier life; Revolutionary War veterans; early routes in Rockcastle; modes of transporting goods.

County gets state grant

A total of 36 counties have been recommended by the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet to receive a prorated $326,652 for assistance in preparing their solid waste management plans, including Rockcastle.

Each will receive about $10,000. According to County Judge/Executive Roland Mullins, the money will be used locally to update the county's plan that has already been adopted by the state.

Judge Mullins said he did not believe Rockcastle would have to make changes in the county plan. "We are in line with new state laws passed by the last legislature governing solid waste," the judge stated.

The Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet has allocated $800,000 in the 1990-92 biennium to provide solid waste planning funds to counties. All funding recommendations must be approved by the Finance and Administration Cabinet.

To receive funding, a county must sign a contract with the Kentucky Division of Waste Management, verifying that it has a universal collection system in which all county residents have access to a garbage collection and disposal system. A universal collection system must be sanctioned by a county ordinance before that county is eligible for

Our Readers Write

Dear Mr. Hurst,
I feel that the Lord has led me to write this letter to you. I am not a member of the Mt. Vernon Nazarene Church. But I am concerned.

Word has it that you have decided to stay as pastor. What is wrong with you, man. Are you waiting for the doors to close permanently before you resign. If you left they might have something to build on. When you members ask someone to church, they won't come because of you. They always say "Is Hurst, still there?". It seems the Lord has tried to tell you, if you try to break your foot, then you broke some ribs. What is the Lord gonna have to do, kill you, to get you out of that church? Maybe you are a man of God, God bless you if you are. But if you're not close enough that you can't hear what the Lord is telling you, then you don't need to be a pastor anyway. The Lord surely don't want a church to just close down. I've seen your members struggling and praying that you would resign. If the flocks not fed, then they'll wander away. Let me ask you this what has happened to all those people that were there when you first came? You had better think about this and listen to what the Lord is telling you, and for God's sake, Man, resign! Give the church a new start! These people are willing to work, there are lots of good people in that church. But they're just drying up! I pray that you'll see the handwriting on the wall, and get out, while there might be a small flame left. And know my God will listen to my prayers and answer them! Leave now, and God will bless you and the church.

Dear Mr. or Mrs. Anonymous:
Received the above letter from you May 25, 1991 postmarked by you. I regret to have to reply through the public newspaper, but since your letter was anonymous I have no other choice. This is not a letter of malice but is for the benefit of the honest and sincere people. If these kind of things are being spread through the community I am like the Apostle Paul told Titus that the mouths that spread this kind of stuff should be stopped. There are many things in your letter I find untrue and others that I can't accept. You claim that the Lord led you to write this letter, I can't buy that the Lord would lead anyone to write an anonymous letter and that he sure wouldn't be a week late in getting it out. Approximately 4 weeks ago I received a letter from my DS (District Superintendent) that he would recommend me to take the pastor for another year with a statement enclosed to sign whether I would accept the pastor for another year or reject it. In a meeting with the local church board I rejected to them that I had received this letter and asked them to pray for a certain amount of days whether they wanted me to remain as pastor or they wanted me to ask the DS to get someone else. When we called them back all the board members were present except one who had to work. We asked each one individually if they wanted me to stay as their pastor, each one either answered audibly in the affirmative or negatively. I was the only one who said "no". I mailed my letter a week prior to so-ceiving your letter, so therefore I don't think the Lord would have been a week late. You say that you are not a member of the Mt. Vernon Nazarene Church but you are concerned. First, you have the name wrong in the Mt. Vernon Church of the Nazarene. I also question your concern for the church because if you were concerned you would be a member and be working. Therefore to me being an outsider you are nothing less than a busybody. According to Paul's writing to Timothy in 1 Timothy Chapter 3, God doesn't take very kindly to busybodies. Your question, "If I'm waiting for the doors to close permanently before you resign," quite to the contrary, the Lord led me here to be the pastor and I'm waiting for word from him to tell me to leave. As far as the members when they ask someone to church they ask "Hurst is still there?". When I first came there and invited people, they wouldn't come because someone in church had wronged them and now when they are asked they say they won't come because someone has talked about them. Excuses, Excuses! Some of these that ask if Hurst is still there is the ones that have led about Hurst or lied to him. As far as the Lord trying to speak to me through a broken foot or broken ribs, remember that Elijah stood when the great wind passed and rent the mountains and broke the rocks and the Lord wasn't in the wind and the earthquake came and the Lord wasn't in the earthquake and the fire

KET features trio of Bill Moyers specials in June

Are our lives self-filled prophetic of others' predictions about us? Did the media divert America's attention from crucial domestic issues during the Persian Gulf War? Do religious beliefs affect the way humans treat the environment? This month, Bill Moyers challenges viewers to re-examine issues and attitudes—both political and personal. These provocative questions are explored on KET beginning with Moyers' Your Mythic Journey with Sam Keen at 8 p.m. Monday, June 3.

away -- The man that supplies the groceries has nothing to do with people's appetite. If people won't give up the habits of the world and the lust for the world they won't have a good appetite for spiritual things, therefore it would be impossible to feed them. Your statement about the people of the church drying up -- We must state again that they might be praying amiss, instead of praying for their pastor to resign they might pray for their pastor and the showers of blessings on their own soul. The statement that your God will listen to your prayers and answer them -- Can't understand why you had to write me this anonymous letter then. So if you'll come and get in and work and let the inactive members to work maybe the Lord would build up the fineness of the church so that next year you could support a young pastor and his family and then maybe we could all be doing something for the Lord. You can respond to me through the mail without me having to respond in the public newspaper if you have anything else to say. I'll be watching all the walls for the handwriting. I was encouraged by your letter. I always like to know how people feel about me. So we will be praying for you.

Sincerely,
Rev. Charles C. Hurst, Pastor

Dear Editor,
The American Heart Association of Rockcastle County wishes to thank Billy Hiett for his efforts in supporting our "Cardiac Arrest" program and being our "Judge."

Heart disease is responsible for forty-six percent of all deaths in Rockcastle County. The "fines" that are paid for "Cardiac Arrest" warrants issued this week to citizens of Rockcastle County will help fight this number one killer.

Thanks again Billy Hiett, and the fine folks in Rockcastle County who are joining in the fight against heart disease.

Yours truly,
Sue B. Ward

If we Kentuckians are lucky, C.M. Newton will still be a healthy man four years from now. If we are even luckier, the folks who convinced him to come back to UK will also have convinced him that he has an even higher calling than heading up the University's Athletic Department. I realize that a lot of people think that Coach Newton's current job is the most important one in our state, but I keep thinking about what the Governor's office could be if it fell into the right hands.

Wouldn't it be nice to know that C.M. Newton was in charge of Kentucky Government? Wouldn't it be a peaceful, easy feeling? I'm dead serious, by the way.

I began work on a column, when it became apparent that Wallypoo had sickened Dr. David Roselle to the point that he had to vacate the university's presidency, suggesting C.M. become president of UK. But Wilkinson had his old political crony, Charles Wethington, pegged for that job a long, long time ago and it happened before I could get in my plug for Coach Newton. I still believe that replacing Roselle with Wethington is the equivalent of trying to get someone work done with a Tonka toy when you've just had the biggest bulldozer Caterpillar makes on the job.

Rumor on the street in Lexington this week is that Charlie intends to return the favor by hiring Wallypoo to teach at U.K. when he vacates the mansion. The course will be called Political Reality in Kentucky and instead of paying tuition, everybody in a student's immediate family will be required to contribute $10,000 to The Wallypoo for Gov in 1995 campaign. They're figuring 8,000 housewives will sign up for the course the day it's announced.

But if ain't gonna happen for a few months and this piece is supposed to be about drafting C.M. Newton for governor anyway. And I want some of you all who know him to start work on it right now.

Here's part of the platform. C.M. should refuse to take campaign contributions period. All he needs to do is put his name on the ballot and call a few press conferences. In fact, that's all any candidate ought to have to do if he or she stands for something. I guarantee you that Gatewood Galbraith has just as much name recognition as any candidate who ran for Governor this year and he achieved it for less than $100,000. The rest of the crowd was spending millions on propaganda that most people ignore anyway and all they've accomplished is one heck of a mess on the countryside.

The second plank of C.M.'s platform would consist of a promise to bring to state government the same level of honesty and integrity that he has brought to athletics at the University of Kentucky. He can put some meat on that skeleton when the time comes, but that's really what we need in a governor more than anything else.

I don't care how he stands on abortion or corporal punishment in the schools. I don't care what he thinks about collective bargaining or pay raises for state employees. I don't care what he thinks about machine guns and the death penalty. I just like the way he operates.

UK just lost some hotshot, 6'10" rope-a-dope basketball recruit because an NCAA rule was broken during his visit to the campus. The kid went to a Derby party more than 30 miles away from Lexington and the rules say you can't do that. It's a stupid rule, but from my observation there's not much sign of intelligent life at the National Collegiate Athletic Association on a number of other fronts.

That's beside the point. The point is that a few years ago, UK would have hired a slew of lawyers and tried to figure out how to keep the kid. C.M.'s position on the matter was fairly point breaker. He doesn't want any rule breakers. He didn't make any excuses. It was obviously embarrassing, but he fessed up and he's told the NCAA precisely what happened.

Wouldn't it be wonderful to see the same thing happening in government? Wouldn't it be nice to know that you had somebody in charge who isn't going to cover up anything and trade your birthright for a load of gravel?

Coach Newton has taken over an athletic department that was on probation for cheating, scamming, and cover ups that mirror the way state government is run. Instead of following the rules, our politicians spend the bulk of their time bending and breaking them and it has been UK's style to follow that precedent. In less than three years, C.M. has restored credibility to UK and hired, at fair salaries, the two best coaches of football and basketball in the country in spite of the institution's and the state's reputation.

What if he could recruit and hire people of the same calibre to run the Departments of Transportation, Human Resources, Health, etc? I believe that if we gave him the opportunity, he could and would.

So if any of you all know C.M. personally, tell him that I'd be glad to take a couple of weeks of vacation time to do his press work and Loretta

Strawberries held out winner in nutritional battle with bananas

Strawberries win the nutritional battle with bananas -- the most purchased fruit in America, according to a University of Kentucky food and nutrition specialist.

Based on amount purchased, bananas are America's favorite fruit. But if you compare one cup of strawberries with one raw banana, the berries come out on top nutritionally. The banana has about 2 1/2 times as many calories, one-eighth as much vitamin C and slightly less than half as much dietary fiber as a cup of strawberries.

Other positive contributions strawberries make to the nutrient content of your diet are nearly 4 grams of dietary fiber and fairly high amounts of folic acid (A B vitamin) and vitamin A. They also contain a lot of potassium without adding sodium. This is a plus for people with hypertension or those trying to omit sodium and add potassium.

The banana does top strawberries in potassium content. The banana is known for a high potassium content. One raw banana contains nearly twice as much potassium as a cup of strawberries.

Although there is no set Recommended Daily Allowance (RDA) for potassium, the adult requirement is thought to be about 2,000 milligrams a day. Eating the recommended five servings of fruits and vegetables daily would easily supply this requirement without concentration on any one food item, such as bananas.

Strawberries fit easily into a low-calorie diet, since one cup provides only 45 calories.

will haul him around in the station wagon so he can make a few public appearances. We don't want him littering up the roadsides and the airwaves with a bunch of garbage that costs all that money. We just want him to sign up to run for Governor in whichever party he likes best. And we want to see him elected in 1995.

Gardening tip: Alice Banks of Bowling Green says that half a cup of any dish washing detergent mixed with two gallons of water is just as effective in keeping bugs off your veggies as all that expensive insecticide. Not only that, but it's not poison and you don't have to worry about getting cancer. Alice also suggests that you add four tablespoons of epsom salts to the water and it will fertilize your plants at the same time. We've heard all these testimonials about salts on pepper and tomatoes. She says she puts it on everything.

brown. Cool to room temperature. Combine yogurt, honey and vanilla in medium-size bowl. Stir in oats and chopped strawberries. Spoon into 4 serving dishes and top each with a whole berry. Contains 189 calories, nearly 3 grams fat, 7 milligrams cholesterol, 2 grams dietary fiber, 28 milligrams vitamin C and 220 milligrams calcium per serving.

Hines takes second in shot and fourth in discus in Class 2A track finals

Senior Scottie Hines, just as last year, came so close again this year to a state title in Kentucky's Class 2A track and field competitions, held at the University of Kentucky this past Saturday.

Hines, who finished second in the shot and seventh in the discus last year, placed second in the shot and fourth in the discus this year.

Boys' track and field coach Tom Larkey said that Hines' throw in the shot during the state competitions would be hard to beat in the future. Hines' throw was 49' 1 1/2", which easily marked a new record for Rockcastle County, also surpassed his throw of last year by nearly two feet and placed him seventh out of 24 boys in the overall standings throughout the state in all three classes (1A, 2A and 3A).

"It was definitely his best throw ever," Larkey commented.

Freshman Jerry Ingram of Harrison County won the shot with a throw of 54' 9 1/2".

However, Hines' fourth place finish in the discus with a throw of 137' 9" was rather disappointing.

"If Scottie could have had a good day during the state competitions like he did in the sectionals, he would have won the discus," Larkey said. Steve Funk of Simon Kenton won the discus with a throw of 141' 3", however, Hines' throw during the sectionals measured 144' 9".

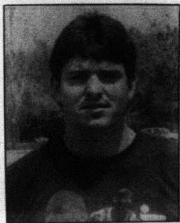

Another entry for Rockcastle was junior William Bullens, who did not place in the finals of the state but did finish eighth. Bullens jumped 19' 3" in the long jump and came up a foot short of his sectional jump of 20' 5".

Larkey said that Bullens had hurt his back on one of his jumps during last week's sectionals and that he didn't get to practice all week before the state finals.

"Not practicing all week affected Bullens," Larkey stated, "but however we're real pleased with both Bullens and Hines."

The boys, as a team, finished 16th out of 52 teams that entered last Saturday's competitions.

Another good finish for Rock-

castle was on the girls' team. Freshman Lisa Spencer didn't place but accepted a respectable seventh in the 400m dash with a time of 1:02.98, while also setting a new Rockcastle record.

Girls' track and field coach Tammy Cox stated that she was very pleased and very proud of her girls throughout the season and to the state. Of course, Cox also commented that Spencer would be around for three more years.

The most disappointing moment during the day was when the 1600m relay team (Amy Thacker, Traci Phillips, Spencer and Michelle Mullins) was disqualified for a false start.

According to state rules, one false start eliminates any individual or team from their respective competition, unlike the regionals when they are allowed two.

Apparently, Rockcastle's lead runner, Thacker, was called for the false start when she moved three inches before the judge fired his gun to begin the race.

"I don't agree with the ruling of one false start," said Cox.

Cox said the apparent reason for Thacker's false start was that the judge hesitated before he fired the gun. "But of course it happens sometimes," she said.

Cox added that Thacker has never false started before in any meet this year. "It's just part of it but I'm still happy to know that our mile relay team is in the top eight in the state of Kentucky," she concluded.

Andy Hale of the Pirates hit a three run homerun in the bottom of the first inning, Tuesday at Thacker Field, to lead his team to a 17-7 win over their Minor League opponents, the Orioles. The Pirates are leading the league while the Orioles are tied for second.

Expos, Padres and Pirates lead leagues

In Little League action this past week, beginning in the Major League at Thacker Field last Thursday, the Cardinals took a great ball game away from the Reds by scoring two runs in the bottom of the sixth to come from behind and win the game, 9-8. On the same night at Roundstone, the league leading Padres notched their seventh win by a 11-5 margin over the Twins.

Friday's action saw the A's defeat the Cubs, 8-3, at Thacker Field and the Reds edge out the Pirates, 11-7, at Roundstone.

The Pirates pulled out an upset over the A's in Saturday's first game, which was scoreless through four complete innings. The Pirates punched in two runs in the fifth and three in the sixth to top the A's, 5-2. And rounding out the week for the Major League were the Cardinals thrashing the Twins, 14-2, in Saturday's second game.

The only score for the Minor League was last Friday's game between the Orioles and the Bears. The Orioles trounced the Bears, 17-5, at Thacker Field.

The Indians kicked-off the Senior League action last Thursday, also at Thacker Field, with a big 18-8 win over the Reds. During the same night at Roundstone, pitcher J.D. Bussell led the undefeated Expos to victory, 4-3, over the Dodgers in one of the week's best ball games. The Expos also rounded out the week by defeating the Indians, 12-3, at Thacker Field, Saturday. Gregg Goff highlighted the game for the Expos with a grand-slam homerun.

Homerun leaders (all with one) for Senior League to date are Jason Payne and Greg Bowman of the Pirates, Jon Martin of the Dodgers, Brian Carter of the Reds and J.D. Bussell and Gregg Goff of the Expos.

Homerun leaders for Major League to date are Brad Helm of the Padres, three; Mark Todd of the Twins and Josh Blanton of the A's, both with two and Brian McMullen of the Twins, Blake Childress of the Cardinals and Jonathan Northern of the Reds, all with one.

Senior League standings are: (1) Expos, 3-0; (2) Pirates, 1-1; (3) Indians, 2-2; (4) Dodgers, 1-2 and (5) Reds, 0-2.

Major League standings are: (1) Padres, 7-2; (2) Cardinals, 6-2; (3) A's, 6-3; (4) Twins, 5-4; (5) Reds, 4-5; (6) Pirates, 2-6 and (7) Cubs, 0-8.

Minor League standings are: (1) Pirates, 5-1; (2) Bears, 4-2; (2) Giants, 4-2; (3) Orioles, 4-2; (5) Angels, 1-5 and (6) Cubs, 0-7.

Free fishing available in state

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is offering free fishing days June 1 - 2, allowing everyone the opportunity to sample the fun and excitement of angling. Free fishing days means anyone, regardless of their age or where they live, may fish Kentucky waters without a sport fishing license. Anglers must still observe size and creel limits, as well as all other regulations that govern fishing in Kentucky. Free fishing days are observed each year on the first weekend in June and are designed to promote recreational fishing by introducing persons of all ages to this healthy, wholesome and relaxing outdoor sport. The free fishing weekend also is an excellent means of showcasing the commonwealth's outstanding sport fisheries.

Ridomil-resistant blue mold: A concern for tobacco growers

By: Tom Mills
County Extension Agent for Agriculture

Isolated cases of Ridomil failure in Georgia, Florida and South Carolina and laboratory-confirmed resistance in Georgia and Florida has increased concern about establishment of blue mold in tobacco plant beds and fields.

As of mid-May, neither Ridomil-sensitive nor Ridomil-resistant strains have been found in Kentucky or adjacent states, according to Bill Nesmith, extension specialist in the UK College of Agriculture. However, the disease is moving north. Blue mold is potentially the most serious disease tobacco growers face because it can become widespread and destructive so quickly under ideal conditions.

A particular concern is that laboratory tests of Georgia and Florida specimens proved that some strains of the fungus were highly resistant to Ridomil. Some fungus samples taken from sites where Ridomil control was poor tolerated more than 1,000 times the fungicide dose that had controlled the pathogen in previous years.

Both sensitive and resistant strains could move into Kentucky for several reasons, including early season blue mold development to the south, use of transplants from southern production areas in Kentucky, and earlier-than-normal transplanting dates. Tobacco growers must take every precaution available to prevent establishment of blue mold in the crop.

Seeding tobacco is very susceptible to blue mold, so a key to controlling blue mold is to prevent buildup in the plant bed. A combination of Ridomil plus a protective-type fungicide, such as ferbam and mancozeb, should be used regularly in plant beds to control normal and Ridomil-resistant strains. Be sure to follow label instructions about mixing and application time for these materials.

In tobacco fields, applying Ridomil preplant (1 to 2 quarts per acre) and layby (1 quart per acre) should control Ridomil sensitive strains. However, if resistant strains become established, this spray program will select for the resistant strains while killing the sensitive ones allowing resistant strains to build up.

To prevent resistant strains from developing in the field, growers may need to include fungicides with a mode of action different than Ridomil to the spray schedule. Ferbam and mancozeb are labeled to support field use in Kentucky. These protective fungicides will help control blue mold if applied often while plants are small and before blue mold arrives in the field.

Another dilemma growers face is tobacco manufacturers' concern about residues from the protective fungicide sprays and the impact it has on selling tobacco in foreign markets. Tobacco product manufacturers are especially concerned about use of EDBC-containing fungicides in the field.

Growers should limit use of EDBC-containing fungicides to areas where Ridomil resistance is confirmed and only to use the products early in the season when small plants can be covered thoroughly. Widespread use late in the season or after the disease is well established does little to control blue mold and can leave high residues on leaf.

Ferbam is a labeled protective-type fungicide that does not have an EDBC residue. However, it does not control blue mold as effectively as mancozeb.

Two cultural practices that help control blue mold are destroying plant beds promptly and using lower plant populations in the field. Research indicates that the wider the row spacing, the less blue mold damage. Of course, lower plant populations do reduce total yield potential, but lower plant populations would be advantageous should Ridomil-resistant blue mold invade Kentucky tobacco fields.

Tobacco growers should watch for local blue mold advisories and report any problems to the Extension Office. Timely reaction is more critical than in the past because of the emergence of Ridomil-resistant strains in other states.

Fire blight reported on apple and pear trees

Fire blight symptoms on new shoots of apple and pear trees have been reported statewide this month. Producers need to be aware of the cause of shoot blight and that it could worsen over the summer.

Infections of succulently growing vegetative shoots often result in a characteristic "shepherd's crook" symptom. Frequently, the disease appears to have entered a shoot through dead flowers. Leaves of infected plants wilt, leaves and stem turn gray, then brown, and shoots finally appear dried up and dead.

Warm, moist weather in early and mid April just before and during bloom of these pome fruits provided ideal conditions for fire blight infections. Predictable fire blight symptoms have followed, and the damage appears to be serious statewide.

On smaller trees, prune off affected areas 6 inches below dead shoot. Rinse cutters in a 10 percent Clorox solution after each cut to avoid spreading the bacteria to new cuts. Additional protection is available through spraying Streptomycin. However, on heavily affected trees a dormant treatment of copper sulfate next spring may be needed to prevent the recurrence of fire blight. For more information, contact the County Extension Office at 256-2403.
