"What Saith the Scriptures"

Paul in his sermon on Mars hill in Acts 17: 22-31, answers for us, 3 of life's great questions: Where did man come from? Why is man here? And, where is man going? Let's look for a few moments at these 3 questions.

First, Paul answers for us in vs. 22-26, where did man come from? "God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of Heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands." vs. 24. The true and living God is the one who has made the earth and all living things. We have not come into EXISTENCE by blind chance and dumb luck as the theory of evolution teaches. No, it was by the planning, thought and CREATIVE powers of God that we live today.

The second question Paul answers for us in vs. 27-29, why is man here? "That they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not far from every one of us." vs. 27. Man was created to serve the true and living God. Ecc. 1: 12-13 says that the whole duty of man is to fear God and keep his commandments. We can find God if we want to. The infidel cannot find God for the same reason the thief cannot find the policeman. Yes, we have been created to worship and serve our creator.

The third question Paul answers in vs. 30-31, where is man going? "Because he hath appointed a day, in which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; where of he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead" vs. 31. Yes, man is an accountable creature, someday we must stand before the judgement seat of Christ. WE shall be judged in righteousness, it will be fair and just. If we have turned to Christ in belief and obedience to him, we shall be saved from what is to come, Rom. 5: 9. If we reject God's favor (and only offer of salvation in Christ, then we shall die in our sins and be lost. In 8: 21, 24. Friends, it's up to you to respond to Christ's invitation of salvation, Mt. 11: 28-30. God has created you, you were made to serve God, and someday you will give an account of yourself, where do you want to spend eternity?

Towery announces new hirings

By: Richard Anderkin

Several positions in the Rockcastle County school system have been filled, according to Rockcastle School Superintendent Bige Towery.

Those hired include, James H. Cox, a biology and science teacher at the Rockcastle County High School.

Towery said that Cox's job will deal strictly with instruction at the high school.

Cox, who has taught in the local system for 26 years, was chosen over the other applicant, William Lynch, a history teacher at the school.

H. Allen Pensol, of Mt. Vernon was hired as the system's Basic Art's Coordinator, Pensol has a degree in art, with an emphasis in theatre.

Pensol has directed several plays for the local art's council and is also directing a production in conjunction with the local teen center.

"One of the mandates of the reform act was that school systems place more of a emphasis on art program," Towery said.

Kelli Pensol, a fourth grade teacher at Brodhead Elementary School, was hired as the school system's new technology director.

Mrs. Pensol will work with teachers and principals in implementing the new computer programs throughout the school system," Towery said.

The local school board recently spent several hundred thousands of dollars on computers for the system.

Mrs. Pensol will receive training from IBM this summer. Two new guidance counselors for the grade schools were also hired.

Mrs. Debbie Cummins, who has worked extensively in the gifted education program, will work at Livingston school and Mrs. Rose Brown, a guidance counselor in the Laurel County school system for several years, will work at Roundstone this Fall.

Loretta Powell will stay at Mt. Vernon as guidance counselor and Mollie Hamm will stay at Brodhead.

Fourteen interviews were conducted before an assistant transportation director was hired. Sam Siallsworth of Livingston was hired to replace Ed Reynolds, who is retiring.

Larry Hammond, who is currently director of transportation and buildings and grounds, was hired to replace Buford Parkerson as director of pupil personnel.

Towery said that Hammond was the only qualified local applicant. The recent hirings leave only two key positions presently vacant.

Three people, two from out of state and one from Somerset; have been hired to replace Buford Parkerson as director of pupil personnel.

Indictment returned for 2nd degree manslaughter

Ethur Damrell, 51, of Buffalo Hollow Road, Berea, has been indicted by the Rockcastle Grand Jury, charged with manslaughter in the second degree in the death of Roy Lee Roberts III.

The grand jury charges on April 28, 1991, Damrell "wantonly caused the death of Roy Lee Roberts III by giving him morphine tablets."

Damrell is also charged with trafficking in Schedule I controlled substance, narcotic, by giving Roberts nine morphine tablets.

A third count charges Damrell with giving three morphine tablets (trafficking in controlled substance) to Marja DeShannon Stott of Berea.

A fourth related count charges an "unlawful transaction with a minor in second degree" by giving, Ms. Stott three tablets of morphine, a person

Chase ends in accident

Rockcastle County Deputy Sheriff Darrell Doan talks with Rickie Bussell after he was arrested last Wednesday afternoon, following a chase in the Brindle Ridge area. Bussell was charged with DUI, attempting to elude, operating on a suspended license and wanton endangerment.

KSP arrest two for 39 "pot" plants

A total of 39 marijuana plants, two loaded revolvers, an automatic rifle converted to a machine gun, were confiscated at the home of Ricky and Beverly Madden on Ky. 1004, two miles south of Mt. Vernon.

State Police and Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Agents executed a federal search warrant. Madden, 32, is under indictment in Rockcastle Circuit Court for two counts of criminal attempt to commit

Two injured in Jeep accident

Two persons were injured early Friday when the Jeep they were riding in plunged over an embankment on Chestnut Ridge Road.

George G. Coleman of Mt. Vernon was in serious condition Wednesday at St. Joseph Hospital, Lexington, and Sherry Singleton Cameron of Mt. Vernon was in satisfactory condition at U.K. Medical Center.

A third man riding in the vehicle, Marvin Morris of Mt. Vernon, was not injured, according to deputy sheriff Ronnie Roark who investigated the 3 a.m. accident.

Deputy Roark said he was told the Jeep ran off the road. When driver, Coleman tried to steer it back on the road it went out of control and over an embankment.

Weather

A total of 293 inches of rain has fallen during June in Mt. Vernon as of Wednesday, according to records at Cox Funeral Home weather station.

Most fell June 1 and June 17. Other areas in the county may have had more or less.

The high to date was 88 on June 1. The low was 52 on June 8.

During special meeting Court approves violation notice

By: Ray McClure

A "notice of violation" that will be sent to persons considered violators of the county solid waste ordinance was approved at a special meeting of the Rockcastle Fiscal Court Monday.

The notice will advise the person of the circumstances surrounding the violation that has been observed. It will also indicate the required action to remedy the problem. For example, go out and clean up your mess.

The notice will also remind the violator of Rockcastle County Ordinance 90-3 which calls for a maximum penalty of $500 a day for each solid waste violation.

At the meeting, the court also approved new subdivision road requirements. Basically, the rules specify that the developer must dedicate to the county a minimum of 40-foot right-of-way.

Another of several requirements is that all subdivision roads must have a 2-foot shoulder on each side. There are also road foundation requirements.

The court voted to pay CB & S Construction Co., $35,100 the first payment for construction of the courthouse judicial annex. The payment leaves a $1,387,205 balance.

Now that the Transportation Cabinet has approved funds for construction of Otis Miracle Bridge over Roundstone Creek at Snyder, the court will rebid the project.

The bridge is estimated to cost about $51,250 including approaches.

The bridge was bid earlier but bids were returned to bidders unopened when some confusion developed.

The court gave final approval of the 1991-92 county budget following a second reading.

The budget totals $1,622,244 up slightly from last year's budget that tallied about $1,480,000. Appropriated in the new budget is $284,185 for the General Fund; $834,035 for the Road Fund; $386,652 for the Jail Fund; $75,324 for the Local Government Economic assistance Fund; $39,448 for the Economic Development Fund; and $2,600 for the Forests, Fire Protection Fund.

A complete budget was published as a public notice in the June 13 issue of the Signal.

Chase ends with wreck, DUI arrest

A chase that began at Castle Village in Brodhead and ended on Brindle Ridge with two wrecked vehicles, resulted in the arrest of a Brodhead man June 19, on several charges.

Rickie Dale Bussell failed to stop his 1977 Chevrolet flat bed truck when challenged by Brodhead policeman Joe Bussell.

According to Policeman Bussell, the accused was placed in the police car but tried to breakout the windows. He was then handcuffed and placed in leg irons along with body restraints. State Trooper Jack Lawless investigated the wreck. Also at the scene were Sheriff Shirley Smith and deputies.

Mrs. Collins was treated at Rockcastle Hospital and released.

Bussell was charged with driving under the influence, attempting to elude police, operating a vehicle on a suspended license and wanton endangerment in the first degree.

George Coleman of Mt. Vernon was seriously injured when the Jeep he was driving early Friday morning overturned after going over an embankment on Chestnut Ridge Road. According to the police, the roll bar on the jeep partially collapsed.

This all occurred in the parking lot of a local grocery store, and it probably occurs all of the time.

Unless some drastic changes are made in this county and in Southeastern Kentucky, children will continue to be raised in tragic situations, in poverty if you will, simply because their parents were probably raised the same way and they know no differently. They do not know there is a different way other than watching their mother or father waste what money they have on beer, while they go around hungry.

It sounds like a sad state of affairs, and in many cases it is. Parents will sell their food stamps at a discount, so they can buy beer and cigarettes, while their kids go hungry.

I'm not real observant at times, but I do notice things like this because of the kids.

With all of the state and school programs, especially since the implementation of the education reform act, these kids may indeed have a chance to rise above their deplorable situation, but chances are they won't. Chances are they will end up in the same sad state their parents are in.

In some countries there is a national birth control program, and the majority of the populace in this country think that is outrageous, but I'm not so sure some type of program is not needed in this country.

Support groups are fine, but you must have desire

The popular thing to do these days, if you have a serious problem or some other troubling situation in your life, is to join a "support group" where you can share your misery with several other people who have the same problem. The theory, and it does seem to work for many people, is that there's comfort in knowing that you are not alone in the world. And that the more people you have working on the same situation, the more probable are to solve it.

I haven't had any luck trying to quit smoking and I've participated in two different groups whose aim was to give up tobacco. I'm still smoking. On the one hand I didn't try very hard. On the other, nobody in either group was willing to go through the craving for me. Overcoming that craving you get about fifteen minutes after you decide to quit requires a lot of energy. I have trouble getting anything else done when I'm quitting smoking. You can talk about it all day long and it doesn't get a bit easier.

On the other hand, I haven't had a drink of an alcoholic beverage in three years and I can tell you matter of fact that I couldn't or wouldn't have quit drinking if I hadn't gotten hooked up with a group of people who already had and who met once a week to talk about it.

I once went through a divorce that caused me the most emotional suffering I hope I ever have to endure, and I found dealing with it to be much easier in a similar group that helped me to discover that there is, in fact, life after divorce.

So don't be getting the idea that I'm poking fun at support groups. Here in the bluegrass there are groups around for folks with numerous, specific illnesses, disabilities and conditions. People wouldn't go to them if they didn't work.

And that's why I'm trying to start a new one.

One of my buddies is starting a group for people who intended to vote for Martha Wilkinson. (He's hoping all seven of them will join.)

I want to start one for disillusioned Jeep owners. If that doesn't work, I'd like to hook up with a few more people who have chronic transmission failures and/or perpetual oil leaks.

I believe, however, that there are enough Jeep product owners around that we can put together a group of them with those specific problems.

Next time you're in a parking lot and you see a Jeep Cherokee, Wagoneer or Comanche pickup, go over and look through the window to see if it has an automatic transmission. Then look up under it and see how much oil has dripped out. Finally, take a deep breath and feel a sense of pity in your heart, because chances are very good that you share the vicinity with a greatly depressed person.

My Comanche came so equipped. It also had a nice sounding stereo built in that I enjoyed immensely for the first thousand miles that I drove it. I like to turn my Bluegrass up a notch or two higher than casual listening and join right in with the band. I can do that anymore, because I have to keep the sound low enough that I can listen for the transmission to begin making strange whirring sounds right before it dumps all the fluid down on the exhaust pipes.

Points East

By: Ike Adams

The first time that happened, I thought I'd taken a direct hit by a SCUD. I remember glancing into the rear view mirror and another pickup was right on my bumper. Suddenly it disappeared along with the bed of my truck into a dense cloud of gray smoke. I got off to the side of the road and the fellow behind me emerged from the cloud and pulled off in front of me. Pale as a corpse. Obviously shaken.

He told me that he thought I'd thrown a bomb at him because he was tailgating. He just wanted me to know that he was in a hurry because his wife was having a baby.

"Your first one?" I asked. "Yep." "There's a support group for first time fathers in Danville," I told him. "Believe me, you're gonna need all the support you can get in about three weeks." "Then I told him to go on, but to call a wrecker for me when he got to the hospital."

About thirty minutes later one showed up.

"Raymond had a boy," the driver announced when he pulled up beside me.

"Who?" I asked. "The guy who called me for you," he said. "Said tell you the baby was a boy and everything was alright. You scared him so had I think he's just glad to be alive."

That was two years ago. Since then I have become acquainted with every junkyard dealer in the Kentucky and southern Indiana, the proprietors of numerous transmission shops and every wrecker owner within a hundred miles of Paint Lick on a first name basis. Every once in a while I'll see a wrecker in the rear view and I figure he's just back there waiting. If he follows me far enough, chances are he's apt to get some business.

So lately I've been seeing sliding up to people when I see them getting into their Jeeps and starting a conversation.

"Nice vehicle," I'll remark. "They'll size me and try to figure out in their minds how much money I look like I've got available to sink into an automobile."

"Yeah. Real Nice!," they'll reply. "You studying about buying one cause if you are, I might be able to save you several thousand dollars. We need something bigger and the wife sort of has her heart set on a mini-van. I'd sell this very car for less than half what I paid for it."

That's when I tell them that I already have a Comanche that's driving me crazy with oil leaks and transmission problems.

"Not you too!" they'll exclaim and we'll get in a little tiff right there in the parking lot.

You see, most people who spend as much money as these things cost don't want anybody knowing they're not totally satisfied. Let me assure you that we can maintain a little confidentiality and everyone at work doesn't have to find out how sick your vehicle you really are. We can swap notes on where to find the best used transmission deals and perhaps we can find some comfort in crying on one another's shoulders. Get in touch if you want to sign up.

From My Window

By: Spencer Bengt

It wasn't a Copperhead or a Rattlesnake, but . . .

If you have been keeping up with the snake news in the Signal, you might have already noticed that a few whoppers have been killed thus far this year in Rockcastle County.

And if you are like me, then you shudder at the sight of a snake. Because bluntly, I hate 'em.

I've often wondered what I would actually do if I came head to head with a whopper. Would I run with great fear or stand up to the situation like a man? I found out that I would do both last week in one of my yard work sessions.

Actually, I had mowed the yard safely and then did a bit of weed eating without incident. Of course I killed a few small ground snakes while I was out, but I always do and keep my composure in the process, especially since they are no bigger than a regular lead pencil.

However, when I decided to do a bit of yellow jacket killing, things didn't go as planned. I've had a fairly large yellow jacket nest right near the steering column of my father-in-law's tractor. The thought of the nest being there really disturbs me, not to mention the sleepless nights I have to spend just thinking about it.

So off I go to my shed or my so-called work building. I grabbed a small glass of gasoline to fling at the yellow jackets, which does only a tiny bit of damage since you can't get close enough to really zero in on their nest. What next? I know, I'll hose them down with water as soon as I get my water hose. But little did I know the toughest thing I was going to have to do that day was get my water hose to the time that I walked back into my shed and routinely reached up to get the hose hanging on a nail. I just happened to glance up when I saw something bunched up on one of the rafters. I thought it was a huge wasp or nest at first since my shed was poorly lighted at the time but quickly came to the realization that a nest doesn't move.

Well, I stood there for a moment like a big idiot until I figured out that what was moving was a hamonogon snake and one so close to me. I even reached out and kiss it.

I have to say, it didn't take me long to do a complete 180 with a little bit of vocal noise and run like I'm winging the home. Of course I had planned at the same time.

I can directly into the house and directly to my lawful pistol, a very nice .22 caliber Ruger. My thought were that no snake was going to steal the entire rack and then beat it to a pulp to see what they can get out of it. Chances are whoever is doing the thieving is too sorry to work for an honest living and if anyone knows any information about who is getting the racks we will pay a $500 reward. That is, if it leads to their arrest. Forget the conviction, it seldom occurs in this county for any crime and stealing a couple of three newspaper racks probably wouldn't be considered a heinous enough crime for conviction to occur. We would just like to find out who is stealing the racks and at least try to get them convicted. Enough on crime.

A 12 pack of beer in the front seat and three kids in the bed of the truck, their ages ranging from 3 to 8, and their mother, (and I don't think their father) sitting in the front seat, is too often a familiar scene in Rockcastle County.

The kids looked like they had not been bathed in months. The mother and her friend looked like they could care less if they had been bathed or properly fed. All they seemed interested in doing

Poverty, crime I guess we have them

A Brohead resident called last week to inform me that he agreed with the comments in this column last week. He said there was certainly newsworthy things to write about, crime and poverty were two topics he mentioned.

Anyone that has lived in Rockcastle County for any length of time knows that we have plenty of both.

Just last week, two more of our paper dispensing machines were stolen from in front of two businesses in the area. About $15 in worth of racks, for about $15 in change. Fact is we would have gladly given a needy person the money, but doesn't work that way. A certain element would rather go to an all out effort to steal the entire rack and then beat it to a pulp to see what they can get out of it. Chances are whoever is doing the thieving is too sorry to work for an honest living and if anyone knows any information about who is getting the racks we will pay a $500 reward. Our Readers Write

Dear Editor,
As the director of a program that deals with persons who have been experiencing battles with life-controlling issues, I know there are so many persons within our state that are crying out for help.

Recently we have had a Walk-A-Thon to raise funds to purchase a multi-passenger vehicle. We raised about $1000 toward this need. The following Mt. Vernon businesses joined with us in helping to raise these funds: Young's Pharmacy, Hart's 5 and 10, and Mrs. Joe Shores.

On behalf of all the people you have helped through your contribution, thank you!

Teen Challenge of Ky.

Dear Editor,
We have just finished a very successful homecoming in Brohead. We would like to thank the following people for helping with flags this year: Mr. and Mrs. Don Cash, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Owens, in memory of all veterans from all wars, Mrs. Shirley Martin, Mrs. Lillian Collett, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bussell, Cash family of Brohead, S&J Hardware, The Willing Worker Homemakers for making "the flags" a reality.

Each year we have flags stolen. I sure hope whoever steals the flags fly them. The flag means so much to most Americans.

Rockcastle part of education cooperative

The Rockcastle County school district has joined the new Central Kentucky Educational Cooperative, a group representing 18 school districts and formed to meet requirements set by Kentucky's new education reform law.

Stephen A. Henderson, new executive director of the cooperative, was introduced June 19 at the University of Kentucky.

"Dr. Henderson is a perfect choice for our cooperative," said Ronald "Sonny" Fontness, Anderson County Schools superintendent and president of the cooperative. "He has the experience and the expertise we need to help us begin to implement the new law in each of our districts."

Henderson, who will serve school districts that together educate about 52,000 children, comes to the cooperative from the Kentucky Department of Education, where he has been associate superintendent for instruction. "The cooperative's most important goal is to improve the overall performance of the districts in terms of their educational achievement, generally through staff development and leadership training opportunities," Henderson said.

Under a cooperative arrangement, the districts will be able to take advantage of additional resources they might not be able to afford individually, he said.

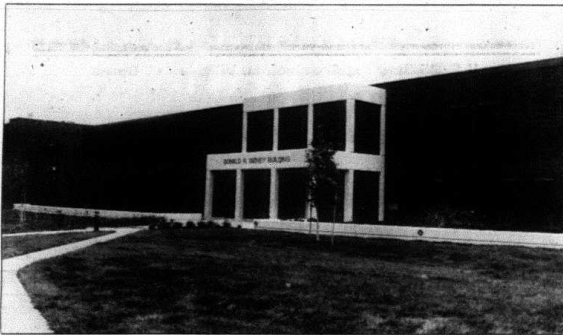

Henderson, whose salary will be funded through fees each school district pays to be a member of the cooperative, will begin work July 1 in the UK Taylor Education Building. The university is providing the cooperative with free office space.

"One of my functions will be to try to identify the kinds of things the university can do to help support the implementation of the Kentucky education reform act," Henderson said. Robert Hemenway, chancellor of university's Lexington campus, and J. John Harris III, dean of the UK College of Education, welcomed Henderson and the cooperative to campus.

Harris said having Henderson and the cooperative on campus will make it easier for the university to reach out to the districts. "This partnership will make it easier for us to work together," Harris said.

In addition to Rockcastle County, members of the Central Kentucky Educational Cooperative are: Anderson County, Berea Independent, Bourbon County, Boyle County, Burgin Independent, Clark County, Danville, Frankfort Independent, Franklin County, Garrard County, Harrodsburg, Jessamine County, Lincoln County, Madison County, Mercer County, Scott County, and Woodford County.

New building nears completion -- Construction of the Donald R. Dizney Allied Health and Nursing Building -- the first new educational facility to be built at Eastern Kentucky University in 12 years -- is nearing completion, and a formal dedication ceremony is being planned later this summer. The $5.4 million, 52,000-square-foot building includes 25 laboratories and classrooms, 46 faculty offices, conference rooms, and departmental suites. The new building and the adjacent Rowlett Building form a centralized instructional complex for the University's allied health and nursing programs. EKV is Kentucky's leading producer of nurses and other allied health professionals at the undergraduate level.

Teen Center Perspectives

"Possibilities" come in all forms. Last week this column stressed the importance of keeping your eyes open for possibilities around you in order to keep life interesting. A couple of weeks ago an example of this occurred at the Teen Center. Vince Bundeite, a senior at Lindsey Wilson College, walked in off the street looking for the possibility of finding a place within CAP to do his precious during the summer months. A long conversation and a few phone calls and forms later, Vince joined the Teen Center for the summer.

But Vince was not only a possibility-seeker. He has turned out to be a possibility-fu-fu-fulfiller with a seemingly endless number of talents which he is eager to share with the teens. His singing - acting ability immediately got him involved in the "Joseph..." production at the Center. During an

In days gone by when people tracked across the country the only way they had of knowing how far they had traveled was by the milestones by the way side. Every trail or road of consequence had a large stone or tripe of them as a marker for every mile they passed. And so it goes with life.

We have markers all along ones life span to allow us to look backward and review the way we have traveled through life.

During my recent visit to Judy's in Flint, Michigan, we looked backward on one particular path in our life and stopped for awhile at each milestone to reminisce. Judy is my oldest child and the mother of two of my grandchildren, Deno and Ann. I was in Michigan to attend the graduation exercises of Deno from the University of Michigan at Lansing.

The night before I left to return home Judy brought out a stack of picture albums and a couple of hours was spent reviewing the past twenty three years of Deno's life, or at least the part she had captured by camera.

Memories unfolded on every page and often brought a special thrill or joy or a pang of sorrow as we realized the changes that had taken place in our lives these past twenty three years.

The first big change was when she brought her first born to visit his brand new grandparents. We were in our mid-years and were in need of the fat laughing and sometimes mischievous baby in our life to bring some sparkle back into it. He did that and more too.

There is nothing that can take the place of the love one has for his own children but a grandchild can come pretty close to doing it. They can fill the empty space in our hearts that have been vacant so long. The time we didn't seem to have to do the fun things with our own children during their babyhood can now be found for our grandchildren, such as rocking, and tamping and pampering to our hearts content without the fear of the

Sweet and Sour

By: Zi Graves

We were afraid of spoiling our own and spoiling was a no-no back then. Judy once said, "Grandparents are for spoiling, parents are to train and discipline." That gives us more freedom to do with these children what we were destined to do with our own.

We must remember now that I am speaking of a time in history when our parents were much stricter with our children than parents are today and believed children were taught to be better people by being disciplined. It seemed to work too. None-the-less I wish I had used more of my time enjoying and playing with our own children when they were babies for they had no grandparents close by to do the spoiling even if they had wanted to.

The first picture I saw was of a fat little baby in his hospital bed that all grandparents receive and file lovingly away. Of course to me he was the sweetest and cutest one there. Then came the fun ones. Here was a laughing baby making a grandma happy by reaching up for her face. And one of a fat little guy gulping food as fast as I could shovel it into his open mouth. There were ones of him and grandpa playing games and walking on the plank fence. The joy on their faces showed clearly a bond of love had taken place.

When Deno was two another milestone was passed when his little sister Ann came into his life. The pictures of them together, he with his arms around this tiny bit of flesh and she with her tiny hands resting on his arm as they gazed into each others face is one of pure devotion. This love and devotion has lasted through their life.

Here is one of him and grandpa working on the house Mat was renovating. Mat showed him how to drive a nail and taught him how to use a rule when he wasn't much more than a baby. The mound of dirt next to the new basement he called his mountain and climbed it frequently.

They left Kentucky when he was five and his trips back to the farm as often as they could get away were always a high point in his life. He has always called this his real home.

When he was a teenager another milestone was laid and that was a traumatic one. His beloved grandpa was stricken with cancer. Deno could not easily accept this. The pictures of

Blue Mold is mostly controlled by Ridomil

Kentucky tobacco growers should consider the advantages of control and disadvantages of leaf residues before spraying mancozeb to control ridomil-resistant blue mold, said a plant pathologist at the University of Kentucky.

"Most of the blue mold confined in the southern tobacco production area is controlled by Ridomil," said Bill Nesmith, Extension specialist with the UK College of Agriculture. "But a Ridomil-resistant strain has been identified. So we're dealing with a situation that could involve both sensitive and resistant strains."

Nesmith said a few scattered lesions were found in southern Kentucky. Although recent dry weather should reduce blue mold activity at a critical stage in crop development, action could increase quickly with a return to wet weather.

"We are monitoring the situation in Kentucky and surrounding states through the North American Blue Mold Warning System," he said. "If resistant strains are confirmed, a special spray advisory will be issued through the county Extension office for mancozeb applications directly to the leaf.

"I urge tobacco growers to follow the preventive program used the last 10 years," Nesmith said. "And I suggest they wait until special foliar spray advisory is issued for mancozeb before spraying it on the crop."

"We certainly will not issue an advisory to spray until after weighing all factors - positive as well as negative," he said.

The positive factor is that frequent foliar sprays with mancozeb increase control of the Ridomil-resistant strain. Field research on burley tobacco has demonstrated that correct mancozeb application achieves control of blue mold, including Ridomil-resistant strains.

"Kentucky growers also must consider the negative factor of using mancozeb on tobacco," Nesmith said. "It can leave EDDC residues on cured leaf. These residues could seriously affect demand for burley tobacco, especially exports."

Tobacco leaf residues are a major concern in Europe, especially Germany and Italy, said Will Swell, Extension agricultural economist.

During the 1989-90 marketing year, Germany was the largest importer of U.S. burley tobacco, accounting for about 19 percent of total burley exports, according to Verner Grise, tobacco economist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Italy imported about 8 percent. Japan, the second largest burley importer, with over 15 percent, is also concerned with leaf residues.

While Nesmith advised tobacco "Marijuana arrests" growers to weigh the pros and cons of using mancozeb for Ridomil-resistant blue mold and to wait until a foliar spray advisory for mancozeb is issued, he said growers need to be prepared.

"We must be realistic and have a strategy in place should the Ridomil-resistant strain arrive in Kentucky," he said. "Tobacco growers should prepare equipment for foliar fungicide application if they intend to make these applications should a special spray advisory be issued."

"Having the proper equipment to spray foliar fungicides is critical to achieving control," Nesmith added. "Without proper equipment about all you will achieve is crop contamination without the benefit of acceptable blue mold control."

"If a spray advisory for mancozeb use is issued, Kentucky tobacco growers will have to make the final decision of whether to spray," Nesmith said. He predicted most growers will elect to ride out the threat rather than spray because they do not have equipment to apply mancozeb properly.

Nesmith also advised tobacco growers to maintain contact with their county Extension offices to determine if a special foliar spray advisory for mancozeb is issued.

Rockcastle County receives $180,000 resource grant

A task force has awarded nearly $9 million to 230 Kentucky schools to help disadvantaged students and their parents with the social services the families need and to comply with the education reform law.

Rockcastle County school system will receive $180,000 for both family resource and youth services centers.

The money is not for buildings, only for services.

According to Charles Terrett, vice chairman of the task force, students who have problems sometimes get lost in a tangle of social service agencies that are loosely linked, Terrett explained.

"This just streamlines it," he added.

"It keeps them from getting lost in an administrative ball of wax."

The centers will help students who have problems that hinder their education and may lead them to dropout of school, said Terrett, who also serves as Fulton County's school superintendent.

Family resource centers will help elementary pupils and their families find day care for preschoolers, after-school care for youngsters and classes on parental skills and health care.

Youth services centers will help middle and high school students and their families get job training, drug and alcohol abuse treatment, mental health counseling and health care.

Japanese Beetles sighted.....

If this was a movie it could be titled: Attack of the Japanese Beetles II.

The capture of a Japanese beetle last week on the University of Kentucky campus marks one of the earlier appearances of an adult beetle and may signal the start of another year of extended, heavy emergence.

The Japanese beetles are out two weeks earlier than usual, and there will be a three to four week wait before peak numbers are seen, said Ric Bessin, an Extension entomologist with the UK College of Agriculture.

This would also mark the second year in a row that a heavy hatch has occurred.

Bessin said the reason why Japanese beetles are such a problem in this area is because they were brought from the Orient to an area where they have no natural predators. This, in turn, allows for a build up in the number of beetles.

This could mean bad news for homeowners and growers alike.

For some homeowners, the beetle's larvae present lawn problems. The larvae damage the lawn by clipping the roots, resulting in large patches of dead grass, Bessin said.

The adults, which are three-eighths of an inch long and metallic green, can do the most damage to growers.

"The adults come out in large numbers and skeletonize leaves," Bessin said. "In corn they feed on the silks of the plant and can hinder pollination."

Japanese beetles feed mostly on thin, soft leaves by chewing out the tissue between the veins. The adults begin feeding at the top of a plant and work downward, he said.

Summer School News

Our second week of summer school began on Monday with a visit by Judge/Executive Roland Mullins and Mayor Gary Cromer who discussed how our city and county government operate. We appreciate the time they took to tell of the various aspects of local government.

On Wednesday we had an Awards Day. Awards were given to those who had perfect attendance and Academic Achievements.

For our trip on Friday we had the opportunity to travel to Frankfort. On the way we stopped at Eastern Kentucky University for an enrichment class where we listened to a lecture by Loyal Jones of Berea College about Appalachian literature. He shared some of his writings with us and told about his Appalachian heritage.

In Frankfort we went on a tour of the Capitol Building and the floral clock, and ate lunch at the Capitol Plaza Cafeteria.

John Rogers, our senator in Frankfort, met with us and spoke about his duties and the people he represents. We appreciate his hospitality as we listened while sitting in the senators chairs in the Senate Room. The second week proved to be very eventful, thanks to our guests and trip.

1,250 children participate in mouthrinse program

About 1,250 children in the Mouthrinse Program in Rockcastle County are growing up with healthier teeth because of the efforts by the Rockcastle County Health Center along with the Rockcastle County Secretary.

That's the number of Rockcastle County children participating in the Kentucky School Fluoride Mouthrinse Program, which is offered free of charge to elementary school students.

The Rockcastle County Health Department says that dental disease is the most preventable of all illnesses. Brushing, flossing and regular dental check-ups are important in preventing painful, disfiguring dental problems. The mouth-rinse program is an important part of dental care for many Kentucky children. Studies have shown that using fluoride mouthrinse offers additional protection against tooth decay which translates into fewer cavities.

Once a week during the school year, school children in the program rinse their teeth with a flavored fluoride solution. The fluoride mouthrinse works like fluoride in toothpaste. Applying it to the outer surfaces of the teeth helps strengthen the enamel and reduces the number of cavities.

afternoon hike with other staff and five boys, his intimate and sensitive knowledge of nature became apparent as he held the boys' rapt attention in explaining some Indian markings and the activities of some parent swallows in the shallow cave where they sat. He is currently making plans with Mike, the youth worker on staff, to take some boys on a wilderness camping experience. He is certified in rappelling and rock climbing and spent time in the Army before returning to complete his degree in psychology. Additionally, it turns out that he holds championships in roller skating, and he plays college baseball. He has an intense interest in the writings of the teens and has encouraged a couple of talented girls to continue with the Teen Center publication, "Inside Our Minds", during the summer.

Every program benefits from fresh ideas and leadership. The Teen Center has been blessed by a string of vital and inspiring possibility-seekers who "just happened" to make a phone call, or walked in at a crucial moment and were hooked. These people are too numerous to name (and there is always the fear of omission), but the phenomenon is remarkable. The message, though, is that there is obviously a master plan in operation which intends that lives and programs and efforts be rich. Possibilities abound to enrich us, and any of us can choose to seize them or overlook them. To seize an opportunity requires effort but is rewarding; to overlook an opportunity is easy. Risk is involved in taking action, but the risk in not acting on an opportunity is apathy and boredom.

Now he was developing into a handsome young giant and was beginning to rebel at the rules laid down by his elders. When high school graduation time came he wouldn't attend because in his estimation it was a mockery of what he had learned so he spent graduation evening in the library reading.

After graduation he spent a year in Germany at the Friedrich University perfecting his speaking of the German language. While there he finished his childhood and came back home a man, in looks anyway. But in reality he was still our little boy Deno just posing as a man. Another milestone been laid.

his home in my shed, especially when I have to go in it quite often.

So, with gun in hand and a pocket full of bullets, I was off to target practice. The only thing I wasn't sure of was what my target was. It was kind of dark so I wasn't for sure. Was it a copperhead, rattlesnake or blacksnake, it didn't really matter because whatever it was, it wouldn't be for long.

I finally reached my destination and sprung both doors open wide. Yep, he was still there and coiled up like a ball. However, the only difference this was the fact that I was going to surprise him like he had already surprised me.

I cocked the hammer back on my pistol, took aim and fired. Oh yes, a hit the first time and one that quickly grabbed Mr. Snake's attention.

The snake tried to crawl but fell to the floor and finally revealed his identity, a huge but harmless cow-sucker or blacksnake. Still, the facts remain, poisonous or not, no snake is going to roost in a place where I spend an ample amount of my time.

Although I hit him in the mid-section, he acted as if nothing was wrong with him. I know this because he attempted to crawl toward me with his head cocked back like he would have preferred eating me at that particular moment. Of course, that thought didn't appeal to me in the least bit.

So, here I go again, shooting off rounds like I was in World War II, not to mention filling my shed full of holes. At that moment, I was probably the worst shot in the world and believe me, the shed was the only thing I could hit.

Well, although I kept missing Mr. Snake while he was on the floor, I must have got my point across because he came to the realization that he had had enough and tried to get away. That's when I decided to act like a man and take charge of the situation.

The snake attempted to crawl in the back of the shed under some odds and ends I have stored there, and was moving rather quickly. He was half-way under when I pounced on him with my foot, thus putting, what I thought, my personal safety by the wayside. You see, I'm terrified of snakes.

For a snake that I would guess to be at least five foot in length, he sure was stronger than me and soon found a way to slip out from underneath my foot and sneak away back in a dark corner. Oh no, he was going to get away and force me to live with the thought that a snake that knows I was trying to do him bodily harm is holding up in my shed, waiting for me to return so he could return the favor.

I came to the decision then that I wasn't going to leave, if it took me a week, until I had this snake dead and out of my shed.

I ran back to the house and got my flashlight because I sure wasn't going to walk in the back and turn the light on, that was definitely out of the question. So, I turned my flashlight on and started looking, there he was, tucked back in the corner just inching along.

I waited with great patience, it seemed like an eternity, until Mr. Snake made his first and last mistake. He was trying to crawl back up on top. I don't know why, maybe so he could jump on me or something. Anyway, he put his head in plain view and that's when I forced myself to become calm and collective and fire my gun like I know how to do.

It took only one shot before Mr. Snake fell back to the ground motionless. Yes, I had hit my target to the tee, one painless and direct hit to and straight through the head. My job was done.

I now know and I hope that everyone who reads this column knows too, that if you ever reach for something you can't see very well, you better pay close attention to where your reaching because if you're not careful, you might encounter a man-eating snake. I did.

Doug Brock of Mareburg, professional photographer and hair stylist has announced that he will close Doug's Hair's Designs to devote all of his time to his photography business. Brock has operated a hair styling business in Brodhead for 24 years.

Doug Brock will close hair styling business after 24 years in Brodhead

By Spencer Bengé
It would seem as if it were "business as usual" if you walked into Doug's Hair Designs located on Main Street in Brodhead. People are still getting their hair cut and browsing over the vast collection of photographs on display, a routine many have enjoyed for many years.

However, come tomorrow (Friday) the doors to Doug's Hair Designs will be closed and the business that prospered for so many years, locked away too.

C. Douglas Brock of Mareburg, owner and operator of Doug's Hair Designs, has decided to retire after 24 years in the hair business. It's a decision Brock has pondered for some 10 years now and one that he can now make in order to pursue his new love, the world of photography.

"I feel like I've reached the goals I have set for myself," Brock said in a summary of his decision earlier this week. "I'm just fortunate enough to be able to change and set new goals," he added.

Brock's future plans are to devote 100 percent of his time to photography, a hobby that began in 1985 and worked its way into an obsession.

"I've always loved art," stated Brock. "I feel that I have the ability that you just can't learn."

Actually, the first photos that Brock ever took were make-over shots. He would snap a picture of clients before they had their hair cut and then another afterwards. From there, offers were made by Brock's clientele to buy the photographs.

And now, just 10 years later, Brock, 44, who is a 1989 graduate of Winona's Professional School of Photography in Chicago, Illinois, intends to open a fully equipped studio to work with the public, as well as continue his successful commercial work. A venture much like the one he took in the summer of 1968.

Brock was working for a factory in the mid 60's when he decided to attend barber school and open his own business. "At the time I was working in a factory, and I wanted to be my own boss and set my own hours," he said. "Since then I feel I've been one of the top stylists in the county (Rockcastle) that has demanded more for the quality of work done."

London KSP May report

Three motorists were arrested by State Police for driving under the influence of intoxicants in Rockcastle County in May, according to a report from the London post.

Police checked 181 complaints, assisted 21 motorists, investigated 12 traffic accidents, made 6 criminal investigations, made 6 criminal arrests, and had 30 persons attend a safety program.

Throughout the seven county district, 87 motorists were arrested for D.U.I., 1,219 complaints were checked, 191 motorists were assisted, investigated 164 traffic accidents, made 169 criminal arrests and reported 1,305 persons attended 27 safety programs.

Brock graduated from the Lexington Barber School in 1968, and soon after, bought his first shop, located in the Brodhead Fire Department's building, from Robert Machal.

"I called it Sportsman's Barber Shop," Brock said, "and I cut 26 heads the very first day, 16 were flat tops."

"I charged 75 cents for a cut back then, and I think I made around $26 that first day," said Brock with a smile. "If I had that same day today, I'd make around $140."

But prices haven't been the only thing to change in Brock's shop over the years. Another has been the atmosphere of his shop. Sportsman's Barber Shop originally opened as a small museum. It was lined from wall to wall with old arrowheads, stuffed snakes and various other types of artifacts that, much like today's photographs, kept Brock's clientele occupied during their wait for a haircut.

However, the biggest change that affected Brock, as well as Rockcastle County, came in 1978 when Brock turned his shop into a unisex business. Brock's pioneering of hair styling for both men and women brought many controversies throughout Rockcastle County.

Rockcastle County, at the time, was not ready for a unisex shop," Brock recalls. "Nothing was wrong with it, we were just behind the times."

Aside from the many obscene letters Brock received over his unisex shop, the newly founded shop brought quick fame. He found out that not only would he have to start cutting hair by appointment only but that he would soon have to relocate into a larger building to handle the overload.

Meeting scheduled to discuss history

The publisher of the new History of Rockcastle County has announced a special meeting will be held Tuesday, July 9, at 7 p.m. at the courthouse in Mt. Vernon.

A representative of Walsworth Publishing will be leading a discussion on local input for the book.

It will be announced that all Rockcastle County families are invited to submit a free 500 word story and photo, and that these included with stories about Rockcastle towns, villages, churches, clubs and organizations.

There will be no charge to the submitter of the articles. This will truly be a people's history! A book about Rockcastle County written by the citizens of (and these with roots in) Rockcastle County.

If you would like to be a part of this exciting venture, come to the meeting July 9, 7 p.m. at the courthouse.

The project has been acknowledged by the Rockcastle County Fiscal Court.

"That same year Brock purchased his present location, once known as Elder's Dry Goods Store, from Ed Elder and renamed his shop Doug's Hair Designs. "I remember that Elizabeth Mullins was the mayor of Brodhead at that time," said Brock. "She persuaded Mr. Elder to sell me the building at a reasonable price, something I appreciated by both," he added.

Brock also hired his first employee that year, his sister Linda Mason, who has worked at Doug's Hair Designs for the past 12 years.

And today while looking back, Brock, the present Master of the Masonic Lodge 566 in Brodhead and past president of the Young Republicans and Rockcastle County Chamber of Commerce, is the first to admit that the hair business has been a very good livelihood for him.

And when asked if he had any regrets, Brock replied, "I've made so many friends over the years, I've had some clients for 22 years, some from Lexington, London, all over. I just regret that I can't do both jobs."

Brock went on to say, "I feel I have to do what destiny has in store for me. My calling, I believe, is in camera art."

Brock intends to sell the hair business, as it is, within the next couple of weeks, and if not, Doug's Hair Designs will no longer exist.

Rodeo is Friday, Saturday in Renfro

A professional championship rodeo, sponsored by Dodge Ram-Tough Trucks, will be hosted by Renfro Valley folks beginning at 8 p.m. both Friday and Saturday.

"We're delighted to have the rodeo this year," said Dean Henriksen, executive vice president and general manager at Renfro Valley. "It's not often that folks in our part of the country have the chance to see this type of top-notch western sports competition," he added, "and we've had a very enthusiastic response for this event."

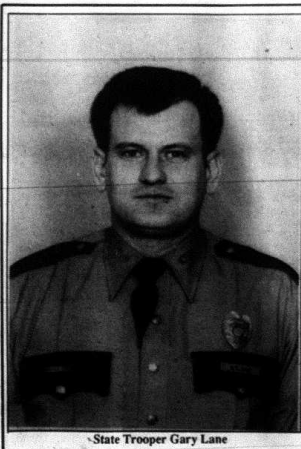

The Renfro Valley Championship Rodeo, sanctioned this year by the International Professional Rodeo Association, gives professional riders the opportunity to earn points toward a national championship. Riders pay an entry fee to compete for thousands of dollars in cash prizes in events such as bull riding, barrel racing and saddle bronc riding, calf roping, bull-dogging (also known as steer wrestling), and barrel racing. Free kiddie cowboy hats will be given to the first 250 youngsters each evening.

The week prior to the rodeo has been designated "Western Week" at Renfro Valley, featuring western music and song at Barnard's Show Tuesday, June 25 through Saturday, the 29th. During the festivities, entertainers and staff will dress for the occasion in western-style clothing.

Fan Fair at Renfro

Expos, Padres and Pirates win their respective league championships

Compiled by David Brack
It's official. The Expos with their 11-1 record have clinched the Senior League, the Padres with their 15-3 mark have taken the Major League and the Pirates with their 14-1 year have captured the Minor League. All are champions in regular season play and will take their impressive standings to their respective tournaments, beginning this week and concluding next week.

In regular season play this past week, beginning with the Senior League, the Reds squeaked by the Expos, 3-2, last Thursday at Roundstone to give the first place Expos their first and only loss of the year.

In Saturday's action at Thacker Field, the Indians forfeited to the Pirates in the first game while the Reds pounded on the Dodgers, 10-3, in the second. Chris McHargue belted a homerun for the Reds and was matched by one by Michael Shaffer of the Dodgers during the game.

Major League action started last Tuesday with the Cubs defeating the Reds, 12-7, at Thacker Field. The Cardinals followed suit on Thursday with a nerve-bending, 14-13, win over the Cubs. Also winning Thursday were the As over the Padres, 13-8, at Roundstone.

The Cubs chalked up another win last Saturday over the As, 11-10, when the winning run was walked in by the As' pitching staff in the bottom of the sixth.

But the biggest play of the week came this past Monday at Roundstone when the Pirates turned a triple play to defeat the Twins, 14-12. The triple play is the only one turned by any team this year.

And rounding out the week at Thacker Field for the Major League were the Padres defeating the Reds, 16-11, and the As defeating the Cardinals, 11-7.

The Orioles whipped the Angels, 24-11, last Friday at Thacker Field to begin Minor League action. And the Pirates and the Bears closed the week on Saturday. The Pirates defeated the Angels, 23-6, while the Bears overcame the Cubs, 32-1.

Home-run leaders for Senior League are: J.D. Russell, Expos, four; Jason Fletcher, Reds, three; Michael Shaffer, Dodgers, three; Jason Payne, Pirates, two; Jon Martin, Dodgers, two; Jason Goff, Expos, two; Stacy Kirby, Reds, two; Chris McHargue, Reds, two; Freddie Pruitt, Expos, one; Gregg Goff, Expos, one; Corey Scott, Indians, one; Brian Carter, Reds, one; Greg Bowman, Pirates, one; Ricky Tank Moore, Dodgers, one and Aaron Cox, Indians, one.

Major League homerun leaders are: Mark Todd, Twins, four; Brad Helm, Padres, four; Josh Blanton, As, three; John Moberly, Cardinals, three; Blake Childress, Cardinals, three; Jonathan Jasper, As, two; Brad McMullen, Twins, two; Jason Brown, Cubs, two; Jason Dillingham, Reds, one; Rodney Moberly, Padres, one; Brian Petey, Twins, one and Jason McFerron, Reds, one.

Senior League standings are: (1) Expos, 11-1; (2) Reds, 8-4; (3) Dodgers, 5-7; (4) Indians, 4-8 and (5) Pirates, 2-10.

Major League standings are: (1) Padres, 15-3; (2) As, 12-5; (3) Cardinals, 10-7; (4) Twins, 10-7; (5) Pirates, 7-10; (6) Reds, 5-13 and (7) Cubs, 3-15.

Minor League standings are: (1) Pirates, 14-1; (2) Orioles, 10-4; (3) Bears, 10-5; (4) Giants, 7-7; (5) Angels, 2-12 and (6) Cubs, 0-15.

Only one game has been posted since tournament play began for all leagues this week. The Reds defeated the Dodgers, 7-6, at Roundstone Monday in the first round of the double elimination tournament for the Senior League.

Look for all the results and photos of the tournaments beginning this week in next week's Signal.

The sanction fee is $22 for A.S.A. and the entry fee is $75 per team.

Player sanction forms and entry fee must be turned in and paid by July 8th.

All Regional Tournaments will be played in Lancaster, with 1st, 2nd and 3rd place finishers advancing to the state.

Football, note...

Rockets head football coach Tom Larkey would like to remind all high school football players that the Rockcastle County High School's weight room is open on Monday and Wednesday from 6:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.

Larkey commented that attending would be on a volunteer basis but that he urged all those who wanted to get a head start on football practice to attend.

Commission approves new crappie, white bass limits

New size and creel limits for crappie and new creel limits for white bass were among several items recently approved by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission.

The commission approved a 30-fish daily creel limit on crappie and white bass in all Kentucky waters except the Ohio River, where the daily limit remains 60. Waters with special creel limits on these two species also remain the same.

In addition to a reduced daily creel limit, the commission approved a 9-inch minimum size limit on crappie for Green River and Nolich River lakes. All new size and creel limits are scheduled to take effect March 1, 1992.

The 1991 dove, wood duck, woodcock and snipe seasons were set pending U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service approval in August. Season dates are: Dove - September 1-30, October 5-28 and November 30 through December 5 with a daily limit of 15; Wood duck - September 18-22 with two bird daily limit; Woodcock - October 15 through December 18 with a daily limit of five; and, snipe - October 15 through December 18 and the daily limit of eight.

The commission also took action to close portions of the Green and Barren Rivers as mussel harvest. The closed areas as follows: Green River, from the western boundary of Mammoth Cave National Park downstream to Lock Number 4 (Woodbury Dam); Barren River, from the Barren River, Lake Dam downstream to where it joins the Green River. This closure will become effective January 1, 1992.

In other business, the 10 horsepower motor limit for boats used on Wilgreen Lake in Madison County was removed. However, boat traffic on this lake will be restricted to idle speed only, effective March 1, 1992.

All regulatory actions of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Commission are subject to approval by the appropriate legislative committees.

Reppert Reunion

The eleventh annual Reppert Reunion was held at the Berea Memorial Park, Berea, on Sunday June 9, 1991. A number of descendants of the late Eugene and Liddie (Mullins) Reppert met for a wonderful day of being together. Since mom and dad are gone we hardly ever see our sisters but once a year but each year it seems we grow closer and enjoy each other more. Maybe its because we are all getting older and realize we don't have as much time as we used to have upon this earth. The good Lord blessed us again with a lovely day, sunny, warm and breezy. We made pictures and there was a lot of talking and laughter going on as well as hugging one another. I'm just so thankful that God has given us a loving heart so that we can love.

Before the table grace was given we all joined hands and our sister Dorothy said the blessing that our daddy used to say. That, along with other things, brought back precious memories of long ago, especially of mom and dad and our growing up years. I can never thank God enough for our Christian parents.

Our good cooks prepared delicious food and we all enjoyed it so much and I want to thank each one for their efforts.

Six of the Reppert children attended again this year, Anna Lee, Tip, Ruth, Mary Jane, Myrtle and Dorothy.

On Sunday morning those attending worship services at Fairview with us were Mary Jane and husband Earl, Sarah and Dorothy (Reppert) Pogorelc and son Michael Greer. They always love to come to Fairview to enjoy the service and see old friends and relatives too.

Attending the reunion from Ohio were: Myrtle (Reppert) Wilson and grandson Scott Lacoock of Amherst; Dorothy (Reppert) Pogorelc and son Michael Greer of New London; Johnene Harwood and son Wiley and Carol Knapp and daughter Traci of Wellington; and Earl and Mary Jane (Reppert) Sorah of Elyria.

From Rochester, Ind., Philip and Ruth (Reppert) Gatiff.

From Crossville, Tenn., Mrs. Cora Reppert and son Greg also her daughter Lydia Reppert and infant daughter Corie; and friends JoAnn Genomia and daughters Tracy and Shulits.

From Kentucky: Charles and Anna Noland of Independence, From Lexington; John and Esther (Noland) Hill and Aloysia and Abbie (Noland) Perry; from Corbin; Kevin Reynolds; from Paint Lick; Joyce Seals and daughter Kim and Bill and Beverly Brock and children Brian and Tara; from Berea Barbara Reppert and children Amanda and Benjamin; Curtis Reppert and wife Margaret and son Brian; Bert and Barbara Croucher; Wayne and Carolyn Chasteen and son Darryl; Beinda Reppert; David and Kim Chasteen; Darin and Monica Chasteen and Karen Hayes.

From Scaffold Cane; Tim and Florence Reppert and daughter Melody; Anthony and Darlene Hayes; Janet Ridgell and daughter Sherry and Hubert and Anna Lee Chasteen. From Snyder Mrs. Edith Mullins, our precious and lovely aunt and her daughter Lucille Ponder of Lambert Road. From Conway, Ronnie and Helen Reppert and son Ronnie Dale. From Fairview Cleitus Peters, Eugene and Hallie Alexander, Gerald and Irene Alexander and children Courtney and Cody and Jenia and Jeremy Davidson.

Another year has come and gone. We certainly missed all those who were not able to attend this year. We also lost three by death during the year. Kenneth Alexander, who was killed in a farm tractor accident last September. Charles Reppert and Mary Elizabeth (Noland) Tudor. We miss Kenneth so much a church and too, he had only missed one of our reunions. But I ask you to still remember these loved ones in your prayers. Eugene and Hallie Alexander and family, Mrs. Mable Burdette and family and all the relatives of Mary Elizabeth Tudor. When we lose a loved one we grieve a long time. So, I pray that God will comfort each of these families.

So thank God again for our time together and now we look forward to the year of 1992. So let's all try to live a good life and love one another, and always put God first in our lives. Hope to see everyone at our next reunion and always remember I love you all.
