products will have the best color and best chances for a ribbon.

Proper fill and liquid level are two important factors. When a jar is filled so full that the contents touch the lid, the chances of getting a good seal are reduced. For most products, half-inch to 1 inch head space is recommended. The liquid should cover the vegetable or fruit and also be 1/2-inch to 1 inch from the top of the jar. If you find that some of the liquid has disappeared from jars of vegetables, it is probably because you cooled the canner too rapidly. The sudden drop in pressure forces liquid inside the jars to come out. Let the pressure canner cool naturally after processing has been completed.

Another cause of loss of liquid in jars is fluctuating pressure. If pressure is not kept at a steady 10 pounds, liquid can be forced out of jars.

Uniform-sized pieces of fruit or vegetables make an attractive entry. And judges will look for a quality product free from blemishes and of uniform maturity. Sort your produce before canning and use overmature or blemished ones in some other way.

Using the correct procedure is important in home canning not only for appearance but for safety reasons. All vegetables except tomatoes should be canned in a pressure canner at 10 pounds pressure for the length of time specified in USDA or Extension bulletins. Tomatoes can be canned in a boiling water canner or pressure canner-but addition of lemon juice or citric acid is recommended to improve safety. Raw pack is no longer recommended for tomatoes. Call your County Extension Office for more information about canning food at home.

How jar lids seal

The two-piece lids most home canners use seal when a vacuum forms during the cooling of the contents of the jar after processing.

In order for this to happen, the top edge of the jar must have no nicks or imperfections, it must be clean, and it must be free of any bits of food. The lid must be unused and new enough that the sealing compound can still be trusted to its job. The screw band must be firmly tight before the jar of food is processed, and should never be further tightened after processing.

As the food in the jar heats up during processing in the boiling-water-bath or steam-pressure canner, the heated air in the headspace above the food expands and is gently expelled under the lid (which is not yet tight enough to prevent this venting).

3-Way Test For Seal. As the food in the jar cools after processing, the vacuum forms, pulling the center of the lid down and forming a tight seal. When the jar lid seals, you can hear it. You can see it, and you can feel it.

If you're right there when the lid seals, you can hear the "click." If you're out of the room when it happens, tap the lid with a spoon when the jar is cold. A clear ringing sound means a seal. If food is touching the jar lid, the sound will be dull, but it won't sound like the tapping on an unsealed-jar lid.

You can see a tight seal because the lid is curved down. You can feel a tight seal because the center of the lid is down when you press it and will not move under your finger.

If Seal Loosens. Airtight contact between the lid and glass retains the vacuum and keeps outside air from entering the jar and contaminating its contents.

If jar seal loosens within a few days, weeks or months, one of several things could be blame: a faulty lid (not likely if it's new), insufficient processing time, or spoilage of the food.

In the case where spoilage causes the seal to loosen, it means the food was either incorrectly processed or not enough care was taken in the selection or preparation of the food to be canned.

Remember: can only firm-ripe fresh foods and wash them thoroughly first. Over-ripe and bruised foods can produce spoilage in a canned product. Even if you cut out bruised or spoiled spots in fruits or vegetables, you can miss a soft or soured area around it.

If Jar Does Not Seal. If your jar does not seal upon cooling, you can either reprocess the food in another jar with another lid or put it in the refrigerator and use it up within a few days.

Pickle Pointers
Peter Piper picked them but you can learn to make them. Bring in those cucumbers and prepare to make perfect pickles.

There are five common faults of pickles. The first of these is soft pickles. Soft or slippery pickles are caused by many things. Often it's because the brine used for curing is too weak. They also become soft if not completely covered with brine or if over-processed.

"What Saith the Scriptures"

Paul in Rm. 12:1-2 says "I beseech you therefore brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice; holy, acceptable unto God which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." Paul said we are to be transformed, which comes from a Greek word where we get our "metamorphosis."

Metamorphosis is the process of say, caterpillars spinning a cocoon and emerging a butterfly, changing from one form to another. Even so these servants of God must be transformed from a man who walks after the flesh into a man who walks after the spirit, changing into the image of Christ, Rm. 8:29. We can no longer live, act, talk and think like the world. Paul said not to be conformed to this world: the world and realm of iniquity and sin, 1 Jn. 2:15-17.

Christians walk to the beat of a different drummer and if we try to be like the world, we are going to have nothing but problems. All along the way, and in the end we shall be lost. John said we cannot love this world, for to do so, the love of the father cannot be in us, 1 Jn. 2:15-17. The transformation process Paul tells us takes place by the renewing of the mind. Bible doctrine is the thing people need to get into their minds. It will drive out erroneous thoughts and concepts, which will put away also erroneous practices and deeds. With a heart filled with the good, acceptable and perfect will of God, men and women will then be able to be conformed to the image of Christ. To many assume things are God's good and perfect will. The folks in Mt. 7:21-23 may have assumed such. They failed certainly to "prove" the good will of God. Many in our day and time fail in the same thing. They assume a thing to be right, because some preacher told them it was right, but no Bible verse was given to "prove" such, or a verse was perverted to do so. Let's let what we believe and practice be in strict harmony with the world of God that we may be transformed into that new creature in Christ.

Enter your home canned vegetables and fruits at the fair

If you have never put any of your home canned foods to the test at a local fair, you may be apprehensive about the competition. But you will enhance your chances for a ribbon by careful preparation and by knowing what quality characteristics experts look for when judging entries.

First, make sure that you have canned in the correct container. For safety reasons, only regular canning jars (Mason Jars) are recommended for home canning. Foods canned in mayonnaise jars and other commercial jars will not bring home a ribbon.

The lid should be clean and certainly not rusted. The jar should be well-sealed and labeled properly. If mineral deposits from your canner have left a cloudy film on the outside of your jars, wipe them with diluted vinegar to display the bright color of the contents. And speaking of color, canned vegetables and fruits darken or fade with age, so your most recent

Fairview

By: Mrs. Hubert Chasteen

Worship services were well attended at the Fairview Baptist Church over the weekend but our Sunday School was down to one hundred and seven. But we thank the good Lord for that number.

The deaths of Bluford Sutton and his wife Stella shocked and saddened so many people in Rockcastle County and elsewhere. The family members left behind have our heartfelt sympathy, love and prayers. God bless them.

And we certainly thank the good Lord for sparing the lives of many people during the bad storms and tornadoes last Monday evening. There was much damage done to crops, trees, buildings and other things.

We were so glad to see Preston Anderk in back at church last Sunday, July 7th. He has been confined to his home for some time and not able to be out.

We were so glad to see George Chun at church Sunday. He is a native of Hawaii, now living near Louisville. He visited in our church with a youth group thirty two years ago. It was so nice to see him again.

Recent guests of Mrs. Irene Barnett of Mt. Vernon were her former neighbors on Little Clear Creek, Eugene and Hallie Alexander. The Alexanders also visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hall July 4th.

I thank all those who sent me birthday cards or called me. I thank God (or all my family, relatives and friends whom I love so much).

Mrs. Hallie Alexander and Mrs. Irene Alexander attended a baby shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Ingram of Berea last Friday night.

Guests of Mrs. Mary Cope during the weekend were her son William Cope and family of Dayton, Ohio and her daughter Mrs. Jean Hayes of Winchester. Also Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Cope of Mt. Vernon visited a few days ago.

Eugene Alexander visited his brother William and family last Saturday.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas of Georgetown July 4 were her sisters Lorene Napier and Mrs. Irene Alexander, husband Gerald and two children.

Some of our recent visitors have been Wayne and Carolyn Chasteen; James, Joyce and Kim Seals; William K. Bullens; Rickie Adams; Tip Reppert; Mr. and Mrs. Dick Rucker; Darrin Chasteen, Charlie Eise; son Herbert and Roland Mullins. We always enjoy seeing and talking to friends.

Enjoying a nice day and picnic at Brushy Fork near Berea last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Davidson and family and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Alexander and children.

We so enjoyed having Rev. and Mrs. Jack Bruce of Mt. Vernon at tend our worship service Sunday night. We invite them back any time.

They are so friendly and kind. Please attend church and Sunday school - God bless you.

Grant approved for Clear Creek water expansion

A water line to serve 46 customers in the Clear Creek area has been approved by the Appalachian Regional Commission.

The $97,000 grant will be matched by a $100,000 FHA loan.

According to Byron Baker, chairman of the Northern Water District through which the water is channeled, the district has applied three times for the grant and had been turned down twice.

Chairman Baker said people in the area are very pleased.

"They have waited a long time for water and are very happy," he said. "I'm happy also that water will be available for them."

He said bids would be advertised as soon as possible on the project with hopes of getting it started this fall.

There is about five miles of line in the project.

"If weather permits we should get a lot of work done this fall," he added.

The ban on added water customers has been lifted on the project.

Strike force continues to destroy "pot"

The destruction of Kentucky's illegal marijuana crop continues at full speed, thanks in large part to the efforts of the Governor's Marijuana Strike force.

As of July 10, the 13 participating agencies have reported 125,781 marijuana plants destroyed in Kentucky since Jan. 1 with 61 growers having been arrested.

"This represents an increase of nearly 40,000 plants reported destroyed in the last two weeks," said Gary Faulkner, Executive Director of the Governor's Office For A Drug-Free Kentucky and Chairman of the Governor's Marijuana Strike Force Committee. "That increase demonstrates the concentrated pressure the Strike Force is applying on marijuana growers."

In car on interstate 75 $400,000 found by police

Who says crime doesn't pay? Crime paid big last Friday morning for the Kentucky State Police when they discovered approximately $400,000 in drug money in a "suspicious" car that had been pulled over on Ky. 192 near I-75.

According to Trooper Gilbert Accardo, public information officer at the London KSP post, Troopers Joe Schenkenfelder and Charlie Loomis, along with Loomis's K-9 partner Nick, conducted a criminal patrol-drug interdiction traffic stop on a suspicious 1982 Mazda car Friday morning at around 4:45.

The troopers and Nick, a six-year-old German shepherd, led to the discovery of the money in a fake gas tank under the trunk of the car.

The driver of the car, Miguel Angel Garcia, Jr., 32, of Glen Ellyn, Illinois, charged with money laundering, a federal offense, and was arrested by a U.S. Marshal John Cwik in London.

Garcia was lodged in the Laurel County Jail and is being held without bond.

The state police believe Garcia was en route to Miami with the drug money.

$192,000 grant Seniors will get new building

By: Ray McClure

New or renovated senior citizens centers in Livingston and Mt. Vernon will be supported through $192,000 in state grants, Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson announced today.

The project are being funded from a $1.5 million appropriation authorized by the governor and the 1990 General Assembly. Additional grants in other regions of the state are expected to be announced later this month.

A new $172,000 building will be constructed in Mt. Vernon on property contributed by the Cox Family, and located near the Comprehensive Care Center.

The building, officially known as a multipurpose Senior Citizens and Adult Day Care Center, will be 7,500 square feet. It will contain activity rooms, showers, rest rooms, nurses station and other needed area.

The Livingston Senior Citizens Center will receive $20,000 to renovate the building, currently owned by Bobby Wilson, who has promised a long term lease.

Among things to be done at Livingston include making the building handicap accessible, dropping the ceilings and re-wiring.

The Mt. Vernon Center asked for $98,000 for a child day care center but that money will be delayed until later.

From the outset, this administration has made a commitment to expand or improve the services which benefit elderly Kentuckians, such as our additional funding for Homecare and adult day care centers," Wilkinson said.

"These grants mean much more than meet, back and forth planning and living planning," the governor said. "In most cases, the new centers or renovated facilities will open the doors to expanded services to each community's senior members and their families."

Each project represents a partnership between Frankfort and the local community that will benefit older Kentuckians for many years to come.

Making the presentation of the money at the two centers, Gov. Wallace G. McAnelly, chief of staff for Gov. Wilkinson, the governor has been interested during his term in office to get things back to the people where it is deserved. And, his have gone to senior citizens projects.

He said the governor said to the folks in Rockcastle County he and Martha love them, that rural Kentucky is important to us.

McAnelly is a banker, businessman and chairman of the board of the Casey County Bank in Liberty, as well as several other groups and organizations.

Shirley Cummins, director of the two centers as well as one in first-hand, thanked McAnelly on behalf of the many seniors that use the centers.

Applications were reviewed and scored by staff of the cabinet for Human Resources. The funds are available for use immediately on the projects.

McFerron awarded $2,500 judgement

Circuit Judge Daniel Venters has awarded Chester McFerron of Mt. Vernon $2,500 from City Policeman Larry Thompson stemming from McFerron's arrest at his home Dec. 7, 1990.

In an order, Judge Venters noted the policeman entered McFerron's home without a warrant and arrested McFerron for alcohol intoxication.

Judge Venters wrote, "the arrest was made without any reasonable grounds to believe defendant was committing an offense."

McFerron was awarded $10 for loss of property and $2,500 for mental anguish plus interest and costs.

Earlier McFerron filed suit against Thompson, but the policeman failed to respond to the suit. After hearing Friday on damages, Judge Venters ruled in favor of McFerron.

Brodhead school teacher Wreck claims Linda Cummins

A 42-year-old Rockcastle County woman was killed Monday when her car collided with a dump truck at the junction of Ky. 39 and Ky. 70, in the Bandy community of Pulaski County, according to the Pulaski County sheriff's office.

Linda Cummins of Gum Sulphur was westbound on Ky. 70 in her 1986 Chevrolet Camaro and failed to stop at a stop sign at Ky. 39, the sheriff's office said.

Ms. Cummins had taught at Brodhead school for the past twenty years.

She would have taught the fourth grade again this year, according to Tom Payne, principal at Brodhead.

"Linda was a dedicated teacher and a great person," Payne said. "She was easy to work with and an inspiration to her colleagues, she will be missed," he said.

According to the sheriff's report, Ms. Cummins pulled her car into the path of Joseph Flynn, 31, of Somerset, who was northbound on Ky. 39 in a 1981 Mack tandem dump truck pulling a trailer with a front-end loader.

The dump truck hit her in the left side, and both vehicles went through a fence and landed in a field.

Ms. Cummins, who was wearing a seat belt, was pronounced dead at the scene by Pulaski County Coroner J.B. Morris. Flynn was treated and released at Humana Hospital-Lake Cumberland and dismissed.

The accident occurred just after 10 a.m.

A complete obituary appears on page A-4.

Horse breeders don't get breaks

Points East

By: Ike Adams

If you read the Lexington paper every day, you may have noticed that some folks think the world is right on the verge of coming to an end. And even if it doesn't, life as some folks know it, may soon slip away. If so, you see, that between the state and federal government, the horse industry is almost taxed to death.

That's right. Horse breeders don't get the same kinds of breaks that other farmers do and it's driving them out of business according to the paper and the Greater Lexington Chamber of Commerce. Both Spedthrift and Calumet, arguably the two most famous farms in town, have both gone bankrupt in the last few months and they're blaming their troubles on the government. I reckon it's because they don't have price supports.

That's right again. If the government can say that milk ought to bring a dollar a gallon at the farm and tobacco, a dollar and a half at the market, then why in heck can't it say that a race horse is worth some minimum amount. To enable the horse to stay in the industry, I figure that somewhere near $540,000 a head ought to enable them to start breaking even again.

In other words, if a horse auctioned off at just $350,000 then the government would have to kick in another $190,000 to the guy that sold it. That way the breeders could stay in business and maybe even afford to buy the mares and the chauffeurs new uniforms every other year.

With adequate support, they could even afford to Simonzine the Rolls Royce every day instead of once a week and varnish the yacht monthly instead of twice a year. In fact, they could probably afford to hang on to both Lear Jets so there wouldn't be any problems if hubby and wife needed to travel in separate vehicles. He could still tool off to Monte Carlo and she could visit Paris at the same time without either one causing the other any inconvenience. And as a result of making all this possible, the government wouldn't have to worry about them starving to death.

I don't know about you all, but I would be a load of my mind too. I don't enjoy sitting around worrying about people having to cut back so much that they become uncomfortable. And anybody ought to recognize that death itself would be easier to handle than switching to a Cadillac when you've been used to a Rolls. Something simply has to be done.

So the horse set gave The Lexington Chamber a sack full of money and asked it to figure out what ought to be done. The Chamber went to the University of Kentucky and gave the money to them and for more than a year a team of economists from UK's Center for Business and Economic Research has studied on the matter. Neither the paper nor the study is saying just how much money was in the sack, but given the time lapse, it's probably safe to guess that it contained somewhere around 200,000.

It was, after all, more than 300 pages long. "Equine Industry: Its affects on Kentucky" the piece is called. However, we're still wondering about an unusual phenomenon that occurred in our house as I was reading the study. The living room was suddenly pervaded by an odor that was distinctly bovine. It smelled like three Brahmer bulls had spent about a week penned up with us. But that's beside the point.

The gist of the study's conclusion is that nobody in the horse business is making a dime. And the reason they ain't is because horse farmers get treated differently when it comes tax time than dairy farmers and tobacco farmers and hog growers and people like that. It should be plain as the nose on your face that a farm is a farm and they all ought to be treated alike. What's fair, for example, about having to pay more inheritance tax on a horse farm than say, a hog lot? And what about sales tax? If you buy a tractor for use on your farm, there's no sales tax. Buy a Rolls Royce and they tack on a percent. Does that sound fair to you?

The story about the study broke last Wednesday and made the front page of The Herald Leader on Thursday. Then on Friday at the top of the front page we found out that the study was right on target. Calumet announced bankruptcy.

I was over at the Garrard Stock Yards Friday afternoon trying to buy a beef before it got to the sales ring and I got to talking to a farmer from Lincoln County with six or seven Angus Cross steers on his truck. Said he needed to make $400 on the load so he could make a payment to Production Credit. Said he was worried sick cause he owed 'em nearly two thousand dollars and his tobacco had taken a heck of a beating in two storms in a row.

"Things could be worse", I told him. Have you seen today's paper? He hadn't so I hurried over to the lemon and fetched it. I pointed to the head lines and then I led him into the fine print.

"How much sleep would you be losing if you owed 'em $135 million?", I asked in my smuggest tone of voice because that's how much trouble the paper said Calumet was in. He just looked at me kind of sally. "Son", he said, "I'd be willing to bet you one of these calves that I'm a lot more worried about the two grand I owe PCA than anybody at Calumet is about all them milions. And if you'll give me a sack full of money, I can go up to UK and get anyone to say anything that you want said."

I sold two mules the other day for $700 apiece and I made money. Anyone who tells you that he can't make money selling horses for $100,000 a head don't know too much about farming anyway and you ought to leave it up to people like me."

Maybe he's got a point. Instead of treating the horse set like farmers, maybe the state should just encourage real farmers to take over the industry. It might be a real pleasant diversion between milkings and a profitable one at that. And just think about how much money it would save the government. Maybe we ought to get to see a sack full of money and run up to UK and see if we can't pay 'em enough to rethink this thing.

Dear Editor,

Surely hope you have a reunion or a personal column in which you list meetings or homecomings.

The former residents and employees of the Kentucky Children's Home, 8711 LaGrange Road, Lyndon, Jefferson County, Kentucky, are scattered throughout Kentucky.

We are anxious to contact as many as possible about an upcoming reunion on Sept. 28, at the Signature Inn, Florence, 1-75, and Turfway Road, East End.

At the reunion in October 1990, we found alumni from eleven different Kentucky areas and five from other states.

The home was organized in 1895 and it would be impossible to estimate the number of dependent children who have been served in that institution.

Since there has been no recent contact with these people, we are taking this means of trying to locate them and advise them about the meeting.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Lucille Dennis Jenkins, a former employee, 130-5 Witawaga Avenue, Lyndon, Kentucky 40222, or calling 1-502-425-7168.

Somebody killed a policeman today and a part of America died

A piece of our country he swore to protect

Just as if he'd gone off to war. Though the flag of our nation won't fly at half mast.

To his name they will add a gold star. Yep, somebody killed a policeman today, in your town or mine. While we sleep in comfort behind our locked doors.

"Beauty is only where you see it"

I have described my orchard so often I'm sure my readers picture it as a thing of beauty. I've told about it when spring was bringing forth young leaves and the trees were covered with bloom and the scent from them filled the air. I've described it when the apples were hanging heavy on the boughs and their pungent odor filled the air. I have described it when the snow was piled high on each barren twig and the winter birds, cardinals and blue birds completed the scene with their vivid colors. You see, the orchard is my only view from my living room, dining room and kitchen so it's what I see most of. I've watched each tree grow from a tiny sapling, set out fifty years ago, into a producing orchard and have shared the fruit with any one who wanted it.

Now I am looking at an orchard with many gaps in it by the aging process. There are vacant spaces now where once stood a crab apple tree, and a couple of June apple trees. Apple tree wood makes excellent fire wood and I've watched the bright sparks from the trees dance in my fireplace as the flames devoured the wood. There are others now needing the same treatment but there is no one here now to use the saw so the knarled old trees seem to be safe for awhile.

It is rather picturesque to see these knarled old trees with their branches drooping toward their final resting place in the midst of a few others that have stood the test of time and still are proving they can bear fruit. The quality isn't the same since the trees haven't been cared for but the beauty of red and golden apples hanging on every branch is a pleasing sight to behold. The winter apples will ripen later in the month of June and will have bushels of them to make into apple butter and enough left to keep us in tart juicy apples for eating all winter. But what do I need now with an apple orchard? There is no one left to enjoy a single apple much less a pie or juicy apple cobbler or the apple butter. It's just a view now from my windows as I sit idly by, either writing or crocheting.

So I've been comparing the beauty of an old orchard with another view from our front windows and perch when I was much younger. I was once overlooking the Ohio River in the eastern part of Ohio and I was a happy-go-lucky teenager.

We lived in a big house overlooking the Ohio River. On the other side of the river hills matching the one we lived on towered about the beautiful valley in V. Va. and cast shadows late in the afternoon on the glittering water. The river dam - No. 8 - was directly in front of our house and the water pouring over it also glittered like diamonds as the light caught its little waves. All boats had to stop at this dam and enter the locks to be lifted or lowered to the level they needed to continue on their way. It was always fun to watch this for miles and it sounded some times as if the engineer was playing tunes with it. The boats had a different mournful sound, deep throated as if it was coming from the bottom of the river. And some times the sound of music from a calypso would float across the water and put our feet to dancing.

An occasional honk from a car on the road above our house and the con-trails of a plane left in the sky as it followed the river to Pittsburgh completed all the ways of traveling that we knew about at that time.

The big fluffy white clouds that seemed to always be floating high over the river and mountains added serenity to all.

At that time I was dreaming of the future with all its excitement. Today I'm dreaming of the past and the exquisite beauty I saw and the sounds I heard on the banks of the Beautiful Ohio River.

'The Big Blue Collar River' features life along Ohio
From Pittsburgh to Cairo, Ill., the river teems with life. Its banks are dotted with steel mills -- both working and closed forever -- its waters surge with enormous barges. It supports the hard-working people along the banks. No wonder On the Water Express' and has performed a disappearing act for The Kentucky HealthPartners, Lee Greenwood and Josh Logan.

When he first began teaching in Kentucky, he had only two students. The next year he had ten, and now has classes with as many as 100. Interestingly, Woolum refers to clogging as a sport.

"In the past nine years, the popularity of this sport has grown like crazy," he said, "and I've taught hundreds of people, some of whom are now teaching others."

Whether clogging is a sport, a dance, or just plain fun, Ms. VanWinkle agrees that it has become extremely popular. "We always have a mind-boggling turn-out for the Renfro Valley spring clogging competition," she said. "Not only lots and lots of dancers, but hundreds of people who just like to come and watch the fun. Someone told me that clogging burns up more calories than aerobic dancing," she added, "so maybe I'll

Clogging classes to be held at Renfro Valley

Would-be or beginning cloggers and those who'd like to learn more advanced steps are "coming home" to Renfro Valley for a weekend cloggers workshop, starting at 5 p.m. Friday, July 19.

"There's still time to register," said Tamara VanWinkle, Special Events Coordinator for Renfro Valley Folks. "The workshop fee is $30 and includes beginning, intermediate and advanced classes, seven dance sessions, exhibition dancing and a 'clog off.' There's no certain age requirement," she added, "and we're even offering a special low-price 'spectator's only' ticket for folks who just want to watch."

Dance instructor Richard Woolum of Corbin will be in charge of the weekend workshop. Woolum has over 30 years of teaching experience, and has taught contemporary clogging in Kentucky since 1982. One of his groups of cloggers is an eight-member team called the "Rhythm Express" and has performed a disappearing act for The Kentucky HealthPartners, Lee Greenwood and Josh Logan.

When he first began teaching in Kentucky, he had only two students. The next year he had ten, and now has classes with as many as 100. Interestingly, Woolum refers to clogging as a sport.

Whether clogging is a sport, a dance, or just plain fun, Ms. VanWinkle agrees that it has become extremely popular. "Not only lots and lots of dancers, but hundreds of people who just like to come and watch the fun. Someone told me that clogging burns up more calories than aerobic dancing," she added, "so maybe I'll take it up, too."

Woolum thinks that clogging as we know it today has evolved over the years from a combination of old-time Buck-Dancing and Canadian Step-Dancing. "There are seven sounds in a Buck-Dance step," he said, "and five sounds in a clogging step. Buck-dancers; however, usually didn't lift their feet as high, but did more of a shuffle."

"It is as hard as it looks to clog," Woolum says, "but that it's just like anything else. Practice makes perfect. Anyone who has a little rhythm can learn," he said, "no matter what their age, and learning is only half the fun."

According to statistics, clogging is a very healthy form of fun. A 15-minute practice session every other day for ten weeks can lower an adult's resting heart rate by 10 to 15 beats and greatly improve circulation, which proves that good fun can also mean a good bill of health.

But we know he's always right
And with God's Word we must abide

But now sometimes he don't feel well
And someone has to fill in
But there's no one else can take his place
He'll always be first in this soul winning race

When his time comes to go on home
I know he'll have no fear
When he reaches the banks of old Jordan
He knows his Lord will be waiting there

When he walks down those streets of gold
How happy he will be
When he meets his loved ones who've gone on He'll shout the victory

When I was young and in my prime
You could buy a lot of candy, for a dime
We went to school, both black and white

We didn't have someone, always changing rules because we attended, an all American school.
We pledged "Old Glory," every morn and you didn't see it, battered and torn.
We had our religion and it was fun and no one walked out, no not one.
The Ten Commandments, were hung on the wall.
We never dreamed a court-order would make them fall.
Neighbors always helped out, with a smile
Now you can't get help, within a mile.
The kids all learned, for they knew better or they would be sent home with a letter.
You were corrected, at home and at school

Wheeler - Hasty

Linda Wheeler and Frankie Hasty, both of Mt. Vernon, wish to announce their engagement. No wedding date has been set.

and you did abide, by the "Golden Rule"
And if you didn't, you pulled the piper.
And believe me, it was worse than a viper.
Families played and prayed together.
You didn't hear of child abuse, no, no, never.

Parents made the children walk the plank and if they didn't, they got spanked.
We could walk our streets with case and leave our doors open, to feel a breeze.

The T.V., radio, and movies were a treasure.
Now we have nudity, riots, and vulgarity, to our displeasure.
The elderly people were treated nice
Now they are pushed aside, like a head full of lice.

For all our needs, we stand in lines
And the people in charge act like we've committed a crime.
I could go on with a whole lot more,
we need to shelter and feed our poor.

Now to end with one thought in mind
Love our Country, the Flag, and be kind
Those were the Good Ole Days.

Will the Pain Still Remain In My Heart
By: Mayrrell Ries

You broke my heart
Right from the start
Will the pain still remain in my heart

You are gone from me now
I must forget you somehow
Will the pain still remain in my heart

You once told me you loved me
But that was a lie
Now I sit home alone
With my pillow and cry

Are you home alone
Or with someone new
Do you think of me sometimes
Or glad we are through

Well, the pain is still here
It was from the start
Yes, the pain still remains in my heart

Michael Wayne Bryant II of Renfro Valley has enlisted in the United States Marine Corps. He entered the Delayed Entry Program and is scheduled to depart for basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot Parris Island, S.C.

Pvt. Bryant graduated from Rockcastle High School in June 1985.

1991 ACP Sign-up

The Rockcastle County ASCS Office now has a continuous ACP sign-up according to D.G. Albright, chairman of the Rockcastle County ASCS Committee.

Anyone wanting to sign-up for fall seeding practices can do so at any time, as long as you have a copy of a current soil test results from the County Extension Office. Practices will be approved in August.

Albright stated that practices available to the farmers of this county include, new seedlings, renovations, no-till, water conservation, critical areas, and forestry practices. A more detailed list of the practices available for this period is available in the county office.

Rockcastle County is now under the variable cost-sharing method. Requests are evaluated before County Committee Approval according to soil erosion. ACP practices which result in the highest saving of soil may receive up to 75 percent of the actual cost of completing the practice.

All requests must be filed and approved by the ASCS Committee prior to the starting of work pertaining to the practice.

A soil sample must be turned in to the county agent's office and the results must be in the ASCS Office before signing up for a cost-share practice.

Mullins gets anonymous appreciation

Surprise! Surprise!
That must have been how Larry Mullins of Mt. Vernon felt when he went to his car in the Richmond Mall parking area recently.
As he got closer he noticed something was different. Then he saw it. He had a note on the windshield written on a torn out piece from a brown shopping bag.
Someone had seen his rear license plate which reads, "Purple Heart recipient," and the front plate that reads "Vietnam Veteran."
The note read: "We don't know you, but, Vietnam and Purple Heart Veteran, USA is proud of you and so are we. Just thought we'd let you know. Some Americans didn't when you came home. There are people who are proud of you. From 2 sisters. Thank you for defending us. God Bless you all."
Mullins kept the note. He said he wanted to share it with all Vietnam veterans.

Randall Templeman

Templeman is new Conservationist

Randall Templeman, 27, has been appointed permanent district conservationist at the Soil Conservation Service at Mt. Vernon.
He replaces Dave Edwards who was transferred several months ago.
Templeman, whose hometown is Elkton, is a graduate of Murray State University and has been in conservation for seven years.
He is single and comes to Rockcastle from Morganfield in Western Kentucky. He was at one time assigned to Mayfield and Georgetown.
The new conservationist said he will be interested in soil erosion and water quality projects, also, with abundance of mines that property owners need to be upgraded.
He is currently working with others on the sinkhole project near Mt. Vernon Elementary School.

History of Rockcastle County coming soon

Most history books are yawn, stretch . . . ho-hum."
Not so with the forthcoming "History of Rockcastle." Why? Because it will be a people's history. People are not boring. Neither is the new book, because it will be written by the people of Rockcastle County.
Whether you live in, use to live in, or just have roots in Rockcastle, you will be eligible to submit a free 500 word story and picture about your family household. Churches, clubs and organizations will also be invited to submit 250 words and a picture, free.
At its July meeting the History Book Committee decided the book should strongly emphasize people, and these should be combined with a pictorial section. Photos of places, things and events.
Several samples of other Kentucky County histories were shared with those in attendance, and it was felt that a combination family and pictorial book would be best for Rockcastle County.
The next meeting is Thursday, Aug. 29, at 7 p.m. at the courthouse to learn more about this new "History of Rockcastle County." The public is invited!

Primary school program will begin here in Fall

The Rockcastle School System plans to begin implementing components of the Primary School Program during the 1991-92 school year. We acknowledge that many parents are concerned about how the program will be set up and more importantly what their child will learn.
Imagine a school in which your child can't fail. Picture your child playing and working with other children - some younger, some older, all excited about learning, all moving ahead as they are ready to learn new skills and explore new ideas.
If you can picture this, then you have an idea of how Rockcastle County's new primary program will work. Children will enter the program after completing kindergarten and remain in the program until they are ready for fourth grade. Using proven techniques and curriculum, teachers will help young children learn the way they learn best - by moving, touching, exploring, and doing.
Your child will not be under pressure to learn specific lessons or skills at specific times or "keep up" with other children. Instead, your child will learn and mature at his/her own pace. Your child will follow the lead of some children and be a leader for others, because all children will be achieving different skills according to their own learning schedules.
The primary school program puts an end to "cookie cutter" education. It shapes school to fit every child, not every child to fit school. No longer will a sense of failure cause our youngest children to run away from learning.
Imagine the future for children who get such a positive start at school! Read on to learn more about the primary school program and what it will mean to your child - to all children!

Q: When will my child's school switch from the traditional grades to the primary school program?
A: All schools will have a primary school program in the 1992-93 school year. Rockcastle County will start implementing components of the primary school program during the 1991-92 school year.
Q: Why is Kentucky switching to the primary school program?
A: Kentucky students have not been achieving as well as we know they can. Research has shown that children do well in primary programs. Kentucky's children deserve a program that allows them to be the best they can be.
Q: If there are no grade levels, how will I know if my child is making progress?
A: Teachers will know what skills your child has learned and what he has not. Your school will set up a system to keep you informed on how well your child is learning these skills.
Q: What are the advantages of a primary school program?
A: Here are just a few of the advantages:
Students experience success from the start. They feel good about themselves, about learning, and about school. That means they are more likely to do well, stay in school, and graduate.
Younger and older students are together, just as they are in families and neighborhoods. Having different age groups together teaches children to understand individual strengths and weaknesses and respect other individual differences.

Teachers and parents can get to know each other better and communicate better about the student's progress.

Slower learners are not held back in a grade as they classmates are promoted. All children move from group to group according to their own needs.

Chad Francisco and Conley Durham

Amber Senters and Matthew Northern

Q: It won't be easy for schools to make this change, will it?
A: Teachers will have to learn to teach on more than one level. Classroom scheduling will be more challenging, everyone will have to think in new terms and not try to measure student achievements according to the graded system. The primary school program will take effort and cooperation on everyone's part, but the effort promises better education for our children.
Q: Who will decide if my child is ready for fourth grade?
A: Teachers will decide, just as they do now, but they will have better standards to use when making that decision. The standards will be provided to every school district by the state.
Q: Most children in fourth grade are about 10 years old. What happens if a 7- or 8-year-old is able to do fourth-grade work?
A: Many educators think a child working far ahead of the normal learning level may not be that far ahead in other areas, such as physical or social development. Schools may decide it would be best for such a young child to stay in the primary school program and work on special projects that would expand his learning and keep him excited about school. Local educators will decide how fast it is best to be the best interest of a child. Parents will also be consulted before a decision is made.
Q: What happens if a 10-year-old cannot do fourth-grade work?
A: The reform law does not set age levels for completing the primary school program. It says a child must successfully complete the program before entering fourth grade. Kentucky educators are still deciding how to measure fourth-grade readiness. When that is determined, decisions will be made on what is best for 10-year-old students who are not ready for fourth-grade work.

Q: Will students in the primary school program get repetitive? If so, how will grades be shown and who will do the grading, since a child might be working with several teachers?
A: Teachers will keep parents informed about their children's progress by work samples, conferences, checklists, etc. But remember: the whole idea is that each child succeeds at an individual pace; there is no failure.
Parent meetings will be scheduled when school begins to answer your questions about the primary school program. You will be notified prior to the meeting. For more information contact your child's school or Shelby B. Reynolds or Ms. Chadrinnia B. Cash at 256-2125.

14 and 15 year-old all-stars win Area to advance to District

The Rockcastle County 14 and 15-year-old all-stars put in a top performance last week in order to sweep the Area 3 tournament at Clay County and advance to district play in Hazard. As of Monday, the all-stars remained only two games away from gaining a state berth within the District 4 tournament.

The all-stars began last Monday when they defeated the Lee-Owsley all-stars, 4-3, in the first round of the area tourney. And they captured the area title (consisting of Lee-Owsley, Clay, Jackson and Rockcastle) on Wednesday with a landslide victory over the Mason County All-Stars, 10-1, in the championship.

Thus far in district play, the all-stars are perfect with a 3-0 win over the Tri-City all-stars, a team made up of Benham, Cumberland and Lynch. In action, beginning with last Monday's first game with Lee-Owsley in the area, Rockcastle posted seven hits for four runs backed by a solid performance on the mound by pitchers Mikhael Shaffer and Gregg Goff, who combined, only gave up four hits and three runs.

11 year-olds win two in Somerset; King injured

The Rockcastle County 11-year-old all-stars managed to split a four game series during last week's 11-year-old all-star tournament at Somerset.

The all-stars defeated Burnside, 9-2, in the opening round of the tournament last Friday, despite an injury to Rockcastle's starting pitcher, David Lynn King.

The injury occurred when the first batter of the game lined the baseball back to the mound which struck King directly in the face. As a result of the accident, King had three permanent teeth and one baby tooth knocked out, a bottom mandible chipped, his bottom jawbone pushed back and his top and bottom gums busted.

King was taken to Humana Lake Cumberland Hospital where he underwent surgery Friday evening and then released.

According to his mother Karen King, David is in good condition and doing fine.

In the following game on Saturday, the first of three, the all-stars took their first loss by being shut-out, 15-0, by the London all-stars. However, pitcher Shawn Davidson led Rockcastle to victory, again over Burnside, in the second game Saturday by a margin of 11-5.

The Rockcastle all-stars were eliminated by Somerset, 11-8, in their third and final game Saturday.

Coach Glenn Gentry said that despite some good competition, his kids played well.

Highlighting the tournament was Rockcastle's Andrew Carrner, who posted three homers, including a grand slam, for 10 runs batted in.

Rockcastle scored first in the first inning on a walk by J.D. Bussell, single by Shaffer and fielder's choice by Jason Fletcher which scored Bussell.

After Lee-Owsley scored their first two runs in the fourth inning, Rockcastle countered with singles by Fletcher, Mickey McClure and Jason Goff and a sacrifice fly by Freddie Pruitt for two runs and the lead, 3-2.

Rockcastle never relinquished the lead after the fourth but offset Lee-Owsley's only other run with an on a run, single and eventually scoring on a pinch-hit single by Brent Asher.

Shaffer, the winning pitcher, walked three and struck-out 12 in the outing.

In last Wednesday's championship win over Jackson, Rockcastle's offense backed Bussell's one-run performance on the mound with 13 hits for 10 runs.

Rockcastle coach Jim Bussell remarked that the all-stars all contributed during the game and played a very good game.

Pruitt, Fletcher and J.D. Bussell all had two hits during the game.

In their most recent outing this past Sunday, the Rockcastle all-stars boasted their best game by earning two walks, five hits and three runs with no errors.

Coach Bussell contributed their excellent play to their defense. "We played really good defense to commit no errors," he said.

McClure at second base, Fletcher at third base and J.D. Bussell at shortstop all made some game-saving plays to highlight the Rockcastle all-stars' defense according to coach Bussell.

Rockcastle scored all three of their runs in the third inning on singles by Jason Goff, Gregg Goff and J.D. Bussell and a double by Fletcher.

The winning pitcher was Shaffer who gave up only two walks and four hits while striking out seven.

The Rockcastle all-stars were scheduled to play Wayne County late Tuesday night. The winner of the game will play Thursday (tonight) 7:00 p.m. in the championship game of the District 4 tourney against either Hazard or Knox.

10 year-old all-stars win one of three

The Rockcastle County 10-year-old all-stars had to settle for one win out of three chances in the Science Hill all-star tournament last week.

Rockcastle took their first loss in the first round of the tourney last Thursday against Russell County, 11-1. However, Rockcastle bounced back with a good outing to come from a 7-0 deficit and defeat the London 10-year-old all-stars, 10-7, on Friday.

Coach Clayton Cobb commented that everyone on the team contributed during the game which was evident in their come-from-behind win.

Greg Bowman crosses homeplate for the Rockcastle County 14 and 15 year-old all-stars against Jackson County in the championship game of Area 3 last Wednesday. The all-stars thumped Jackson by a score of 10 to 1 and advanced to the District 4 tournament.

Rockcastle ended the tourney Saturday with a 14-8 loss to the London nine-year-old all-stars.

11-12 year olds win two in Brodhead Invitational

The Rockcastle 11 and 12 year old all-stars kicked off the Brodhead Invitational Tournament with a 15-5 defeat of the Lincoln County All-Stars Monday night and followed with a 9-0 win Tuesday night over the Pulaski Co. All-Stars.

Tuesday night, the Pulaski Co. pitcher struck out 12 Rockcastle batters and Jonathon Pope struck out 11. There were only five hits (only two in the same inning) by Rockcastle and two by P.C. But, the nine runs by the local 11-12 year old all-stars came primarily on wild pitches and numerous errors by Pulaski.

Pope helped his cause with two of Rockcastle's five hits. Others getting hits were Jordan Jasper and Travis Underkin.

The All-Stars will now play Friday night at 5:30 against the winner of the Berea-London game to be played Thursday.

Nine and ten year-olds lose

The nine and ten year-old all-stars representing Rockcastle County fell victim to two losses this past week at Science Hill.

The first was to Pulaski County, 16-13, last Thursday while the second came to Burnside, 24-4, this past Saturday.

Cummins is Athlete of the Year

Brian Joyner and Rebecca Cummins recently represented Lincoln County High School as the top male and female athletes in the Kentucky Advertiser's annual Male and Female Area Athlete of the Year contests.

Cummins, the daughter of Gary Cummins of Beech and Larry and Ann Todd of Broughtontown, was the number two runner on the cross country team and averaged eight points and four rebounds per game for the Lady Patriots basketball team. She was named the best defensive player on the roundball squad.

A player for the softball team she hit .542 and drove in 22 runs, with .796 slugging percentage and .676 on-base average. Cummins, who will be a senior this fall, also ran track for Lincoln. The four-sport athlete also maintains a 3.1 grade point average.

- HUNTING AND FISHING LICENSE SALES HOLD STEADY
- Revenues from hunting and fishing license sales rose 5.6 percent in 1990, John Turner, director of the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, announced today. The total sales of hunting licenses decreased slightly from the previous year while fishing license sales held steady.
- A total of 15,806,864 people purchased hunting licenses during fiscal year 1990, compared with 15,858,063 in 1989. Fishing license purchasers numbered 30,731,821 in fiscal year 1990, compared with 30,302,244 in 1989. Income from the sale of licenses and associated permits, tags, and stamps in 1990 reached an overall total of $784 million, compared with $740 million in 1989.
- In making the announcement, Turner said, "Nearly 50 million Americans enjoyed hunting and fishing activities last year. These sportsmen and -women, through the purchase of licenses, tags, and stamps, provided vital funding to enhance outdoor recreation opportunities for all Americans." Hunting and fishing are two of the activities highlighted in the Interior Department's recently announced outdoor recreation initiative, "Enjoy Outdoors America."
- Money from the sale of fishing and hunting licenses, permits, tags, and stamps is used to fund state fish and wildlife programs. License sales figures are compiled annually by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service from information submitted by state fish and wildlife agencies. State funding through the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration and the Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration programs, both administered by the Service, is apportioned in part by the number of paid hunting and hunting license holders in each state.

Champions Corner

IT'S O.K. TO FEEL BAD!

To learn more about how you can help prevent alcohol and other drug problems in your family and your community call the Cumberland River Champions Against Drugs at (606) 528-7010.

In American society today it's easy to get the idea that feeling bad is not O.K. Cultural messages tell us, in no uncertain terms, that being upset, happy, healthy and energetic is the only way to go. And if you're not all of the above, you better do something about it, fast.

Advertisements proclaim instant solutions to problems from heartburn to heartache. Often these solutions are chemical in nature. We even have "The 23 second solution" for indigestion, and a popular painkiller tells us, "you haven't got time for the pain." At the end of a rough day, "It's Miller Time." Television programs and movies also routinely show people trying to escape from emotional pain with alcohol and other drugs.

Other solutions are healthier. People turn to exercise, yoga, and meditation to elevate mood and cope with stress. These are, in fact, good alternatives to drug use, and can lead to better mental health. However, a pitfall of the popular psychology of our day is the implication that we should never tolerate feeling bad, physically or emotionally. We are supposed to be "in control of our own lives," and "take responsibility for our own feelings." There is much wisdom behind these slogans, but unfortunately, they are often misinterpreted. The message that comes across says, "If you feel bad, there's something wrong with you."

In the real world, feeling bad is a part of life. Pain, both physical and emotional, must sometimes be lived with for extended periods of time. Often these feelings are caused by circumstances beyond our control: illness, death of a loved one, disabilities, injuries. Sometimes we are victimized by others, and the resulting anger and hurt may be extremely difficult to resolve. Uncomfortable relationships may result from our own faults and weaknesses. This pain can be instructive to us. We all make mistakes, and sometimes they create big problems in our lives. The consequences cannot always be "fixed" immediately, but they may help us to resolve our Regret and legitimate feelings of guilt are uncomfortable, and take time to work through.

Psychologists tell us that sometimes not taking time for the pain can result in more serious mental health problems later. In the process of grieving, for example, people normally must work through a variety of negative feelings over a period of time before they can truly accept their loss and begin to feel joy again. On the road to maturity, we are often called upon to choose temporary pain or discomfort to achieve a higher goal. For example, the teen who stands up to negative peer pressure, or the woman who gets up the courage to break off an abusive relationship.

As mentally healthy people, we must acknowledge and accept the inevitability of some discomfort in our lives. We must stop striving for the false ideal of a constantly "up" person, and learn to ask for help when we need it. People often turn to drugs as an escape from pain, partly because they have not learned that sometimes it's O.K. to feel bad.

Teen Center Perspectives

By: Ginny Gilpatrick
Rockcastle Teen Center

What rules should parents make for teenagers? Each family varies in its expectations of the children they must live with and the factors that constitute a safe environment for the child. For example, one child might be required to walk home for a mile or two if the lives on a paved road, but it would be unreasonable to expect another child to walk the same distance if his road posed the threat of copperheads, Curfews, bedtimes, and levels of housekeeping are personal decisions, but there are some guidelines for establishing family rules.

One rule of thumb is for the parent to never make a rule that he or she cannot literally enforce. Before setting time down an absolute rule, parents must think about whether they are able to make it stick. If they cannot control the child's action, then they must clearly state a consequence that they can enforce.

Some methods that are fully within parents' control include withholding of allowance, withholding of privileges such as TV, telephone use, trips, and special purchases. And parents can, if the situation is serious enough, invoke the intervention of social services or police.

A word of caution: withholding of love and affection is always counter-productive. It is like withholding water and sunshine from a plant and expecting it to grow. Children must know that their parents love them, even if they despise some of their behavior. The love is the bridge that will eventually bring them home to the parents' values. Cutting off that bridge is cruel and destructive. Not can parents, in good conscience, withhold necessities of life such as food, shelter, and adequate clothing.

What parents cannot do is "make" their children come home on time, keep their rooms clean, or refrain from drinking or smoking. Keeping a teen under twenty-four hour surveillance is the work of institutions, not of parents. What they can do is state their expectations loud and clear and set some enforceable consequences.

Recently a parent discovered a large hole burned in a mattress and a great number of cigarette butts hidden in her child's room. She believed the child was opposed to smoking until she found that trifling evidence. Clearly that parent could not have prevented her daughter's smoking in bed unless she had sat in her room each night until she fell asleep. Now that she knows there is a problem there are several appropriate consequences that might be applied: cutting off spending money, keeping the bedroom door open, moving her in with her sister, using money set aside for special clothes to buy a purchase a new mattress. Now that the problem is known, a rule can be set. It is very difficult to anticipate all the possible problem areas that would apply to a given child.

Asking a teen to set his or her own rules, works wonders. "What time will you be home?" can be followed by, "Will you call me if you are going to be late?" This treatment sets up a basis for mutual respect. Teens are unlikely to rebel against rules they have set themselves.

The CAP Teen Center has posted a list of rules. An occasional reminder is needed, but for the most part the rules are not broken because teens know that staff can and will withhold the privilege of their attending the Center for a period of time. The Center has "lost" any participants through this policy, nor will parents "lose" their children when they withhold something for the sake of maintaining the climate in their household which the parents value.

Summer school travels to Horse Park

The fifth week of summer school started with a guest speaker, Herb Vesco, from Eastern Kentucky University, who discussed grants, loans, and financial aid for post secondary education. The theme of the week was "Education" and learning how to finance college or technical school, which was very helpful.

Later in the week Big Towery, Superintendent of Rockcastle County Schools, talked to the students about the history of our school system. He told the students about the progress made in our county since education began in 1888. George Poyner, chairman of the school board, also gave his time to talk to the students about the importance of education and need for a diploma. He also expressed his appreciation of the current administrators and staff he works with who are making our school system better every year.

On Friday the students traveled to Eastern Kentucky University to hear the comments of two English professors, Dr. Glenn Cared and Dr. Harry Brown. They along with Lillie D. Chaffin, recently published a collection of poems, stories and essays by Kentucky authors called God's Plenty: Modern Kentucky writers. They told of personal experiences with these authors and discussed the works. Since the students had personally met some of these authors, James Still, Loyal Jones and George Ella Lyon, this session was especially interesting.

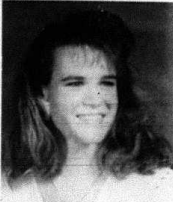

To end the week, the students were treated to a trip to Kentucky Horse Park. There they viewed the two short features "... thou shalt fly without wings..." and "All the King's Horses," which were entertaining as well as informative about horses and Clydesdales in particular. Then they watched the Parade of Breeds, as they look at various breeds of horses from miniature to the huge work horses. Everyone agreed the trip was fun as well as educational.

Thanks again to Bell South and the Education Departments of Frankfort and Washington for making all this possible.

Arts grants finalized

Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson has announced the 1992 Kentucky Arts Council grants that were finalized at the May meeting of council members in Frankfort, including two from Rockcastle.

Josephine Richards of Whitesburg, chairman of the council, thanked Gov. Wilkinson, Kentucky's congressional representatives and state legislators for their continuing support of the cultural and artistic life of the Commonwealth. "From Covington to Murray, Henderson to Middlesboro, Ashland to Pikeville, we congratulate the grantees."

The Kentucky Arts Council approved spring grants totaling $2.4 million. Categories included organization development, challenge grants that match an arts organization's own fund raising efforts, specific projects, artists-residencies in the schools and community artist-residencies.

Rockcastle grants included $2,000 to be used by Elizabeth Pike for purchase of dulcimers and guitars for a class where the instruments will be taught; and $5,050 to Paul Waddles for the teaching of visual arts as an artist in residence. Mrs. Pike also is listed as artist in residence.

"The arts and Kentucky artists have a special and distinct role to play in increasing the quality of life of all our citizens," Gov. Wilkinson said.

"These grants have a positive impact throughout the state, from the smallest to the largest community, in part because they return tax dollars directly to our communities."

Martin Newell, executive director of the Council said that increased funds from the state legislature and the National Endowment for the Arts have helped meet essential needs this year. "Good things are happening as a direct result of state and federal support for the arts. We want to share the credit with the communities who put that money to work."

The council staff is dedicated to making the arts available to all citizens of Kentucky through administering grants and services to individual artists, arts organizations, schools and other groups providing arts programs throughout the state. It is governed by sixteen private citizens appointed by the governor and has a 1992 budget of $4 million, primarily from state and NEA funds.

Musical to be at RCHS

The well-loved biblical story of Joseph and his coat of many colors will be brought to life with music on the stage of Rockcastle High School Aug. 1 and 2.

In the 1970's Webber and Rice set the story to swinging contemporary music, making its message relevant to the modern generation. The result was the smash hit Broadway musical, "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat."

As recorded in Genesis 37 and 39, Joseph, the favored of 12 sons of Jacob, infuriated his brothers by relating his dreams to them that indicated he would one day rule over them. The special coat that their father gave him only added to their disdain of Joseph. Determined to get rid of him, they sold him to a passing tribe of Ishmaelites, then dipped his coat in goat's blood and told their father he had been killed.

Joseph was taken to Egypt and sold as a slave to the prestigious Potiphar. His skill and hand work soon won him an elevated position in the household, but when Potiphar's wife seduced him he was thrown in prison. As fortune would have it, the household baker and butler were prisoners at the same time, and they confided to Joseph some very unusual dreams which he interpreted for them. Joseph won him a favorable reputation.

The Pharaoh got wind of his ability and sent for him when he, himself, was troubled by dreams. Joseph was able to predict from the dreams that Egypt would experience seven good years followed by seven years of drought. Pharaoh, impressed, put Joseph in charge of his stores so that Egypt was in good shape when famine hit the land.

The story climaxes when Joseph's brothers in Canaan decide to come to Egypt for help. They, of course, do not recognize Joseph as they grovel at his feet begging for food. Joseph decides to have a little fun with them before giving in to their request and Benjamin, as a thief by planting a gold cup in his sack. Eventually all ends well in a happy family reunion, with Jacob arriving on the scene.

Tickets will be available at the door for $3 ($1 students) at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday, Aug. 1 and 2. Tickets may be obtained ahead of time from members of the cast or at the Teen Center.

"Money found" (Cont. from front)

This is the largest seizure ever at this post," Acciardo said Friday. According to Loomis, Nick was able to find the money, mostly in 5, 10, 20, 50 and a few 100 denominations, because of the scent of the drugs on the money.

"Eighty-five percent of the paper money in circulation today is believed to be tainted with drug residue," Loomis said.

Acciardo said he believes the seized money will be distributed to various government agencies, and hopes some of that money will trickle back down to the London KSP post.

"We'll try to apply the federal forfeiture statute to it (the money)," Acciardo said, adding that the money will probably be distributed among state and federal governments, drug enforcement agencies, and the general fund.

Troopers Rick Clويد, Mike Hopkins and Jimmy Silvers, as well as Kentucky State Drug Enforcement/Special Investigations-East units also assisted in the continuing investigation.
