Susan Tomes living out dream come true

Susan Tomes and Virginia Sutton rehearse before taping the 'Gatherin'.

If you have been to Renfro Valley in the past few years you have no doubt seen and heard Susan Tomes.

A regular performer on the Barmande and Sunday Morning Gatherin', Susan is living out a dream come true.

Just last year Susan was working two jobs, one that she had studied and worked to do and the other that she simply loved to do.

Now Susan is doing what she loves, playing and singing at Renfro Valley full-time.

Before coming to Renfro Valley full-time, Susan was an elementary school teacher in Bullitt County, just south of Louisville.

Susan has said many times that she is drawn to Renfro Valley. "It is like a magical power, I use to hate to go home," she said.

Ironically, Susan ended up at Renfro Valley by accident.

The father of some of her friends was a square dance caller and Susan had been helping him with harmony. The square dancers were scheduled to appear at Renfro Valley and Susan was asked to come along. "I hadn't ever heard of Renfro Valley when I came down here," she said. "I didn't know what was going on."

Susan sang "One Day at a Time," got an encore ("I had to sing the same song again. That was the only one I had"), was invited back for the next two weeks as a guest then hired as a regular.

That was eleven years ago, after Susan's first year of teaching school, and "I've been here ever since."

Susan has always been a big fan of country and gospel music and has taught herself most of what she knows about music.

Several of her aunts and uncles on her father's side played some instruments and sang gospel music.

Her parents bought her a guitar when she was 10 and an aunt taught her her first three chords. "I taught myself the rest."

Susan is thrilled about finally living in Berea and performing nightly on the barmande.

"I don't miss the 250 mile round trip each weekend," Susan said. "I love Renfro Valley, the people who come to visit and the performers and staff. They are all just like family," she said.

Susan grew up in Louisville.

She was a shy youngster who began writing songs "to let out some of my inner feelings. They were for me."

But when friends found out she could sing they began asking her to perform for them. "However, Renfro Valley was my first real public performance."

"I guess I've come a long way, from almost having to be pushed out on stage, to performing every night and on Sunday mornings," she said.

Susan still gets nervous at times, especially when there is a sold out audience and the tv cameras are on, but "It is still a dream come true. I am performing full-time, making albums and singing with some of the best musicians in the world," she said.

The Dream Continues

Talent Search is August 17

John Lair, founder of Renfro Valley, Kentucky's Country Music Capital, had spent the better portion of his life making Eastern Kentucky a better place to live. In 1975, the community decided to officially say "Thank you."

One day of the July 4th weekend was declared "John Lair Day." Ceremonies were held in the area that is now occupied by the New Barn in Renfro Valley. Colonel Sanders, of Kentucky Fried Chicken fame and a close friend of Mr. Lair's, was present. The governor of Kentucky and Gene Autry sent telegrams. Past and present entertainers were on hand to help with the festivities.

Flattered as he was by this unexpected honor, Mr. Lair still sought a way to turn the attention to the people and the music he loved. He requested that any special day observed in his honor become a talent showcase, held to encourage local musicians, dancers and vocalists.

Over the years, presidents, governors, folks from the world of country music, and even the Queen Mother of England visited or sent their regards to Mr. Lair and his talent contest. Each year brought new faces and new dream to the stage. This year will be no exception.

The 1991 Renfro Valley Talent Round Up will be held on August 17. Categories include country and gospel vocalists, instrumentalists and comedy. Winners in each category will be given the opportunity to appear on stage during another Renfro Valley event. The over-all Grand Prize Winner will receive a four-song recording session in the Renfro Valley Studios.

For rules or more information, call 1-800-765-SING or write to Renfro Valley Folks Inc., Renfro Valley, KY, 40743. Come on out, either as a spectator or a participant, and watch as the dream continues.

$125,000 price tag Board o.k.'s renovation project

By: Richard Anderkin

Renovated facilities complete with a new press box, concession stand, restrooms and storage area, are on the way, but chances are the work will not be completed by the end of this football season.

The project was approved by the Rockcastle County Board of Education Tuesday night. The price tag, $125,818.

I took the board almost an hour to decide whether or not to go ahead with the project at the Rockcastle County High School football field.

Board members and Superintendent Bigg Towery, Jr., were concerned with the mess that would be made by the construction and the problems that mess could cause with this year's home football schedule.

But, architect Garland Vanhook told the board that Principals Ronnie Cash and Charles Baker and head coach Tom Laney, all members of the building committee, were in favor of going ahead with the project.

The project was to have started this month and been completed by the middle of the season, but a problem with the bidding of the project delayed it.

No more paddling

They'll be sparing the rod in Kentucky schools when classes begin this fall, thanks to a new state school board regulation.

Superintendent Towery told the board that he and each principal were currently working on a detailed detention policy because "corporal punishment is out."

"We don't have a real good and clear detention policy in place, but we are working on one that will meet the needs of all our schools," Towery said.

The superintendent said that the "no paddling regulation," had nothing to do with the education reform act.

New tax rate

Last year Kentuckians were hit with the biggest tax increase in history, and because of state guidelines the local board of education was party to those increases.

Tuesday night the board voted to increase the property tax rate 1.6 cents. That brings the total levied rate to 46.3 cents per $100 assessment. The motor vehicle tax is the same.

In layman's terms if a Rockcastle County property owner owns $100,000 worth of property he will pay $463 in school tax and if he owns a $10,000 vehicle he will pay an additional $46.30 school tax on it.

The county's property assessment increased by 3.7 percent to $213,659,903.

90 show support for Lt. Governor

Breton Jones is 100 percent behind the Kentucky Education Reform Act, so he told a group of about 90 supporters at a breakfast in Renfro Valley Tuesday morning.

Jones was the honored guest of many members of the local Democratic party, who held a rally in his honor.

He told the group that it was his intention to make government work together and not against itself and to cut waste where it needed to be cut. He is not in favor of gun control,

At Mt. Vernon meeting

Councilman Adams resigns

By: Ray McClure

Incumbent Councilman Wayne Adams resigned from the Mt. Vernon City Council Monday night, the second councilman in as many meetings to resign his seat.

In a letter to the council, Adams said he was resigning for "personal reasons" and wished the council and city the best in the future.

The council then filled the first seat vacated earlier by Arthur "Ot" Bond with Mrs. Lou Vanhose. The council then filled Adams' seat with Mrs. Bessie King.

Mrs. Vanhose now retired, has been active in the community and was instrumental in starting "Mothers Against Drunk Drivers" in the county. Mrs. King is fuel feed attendant at Derby City South Truck Plaza at Renfro Valley.

Both women are for council candidates on the November general election ballot. Their appointment is until January, following the elections.

Grant may help solid waste plan

By: Ray McClure

A grant will be sought from a state pool for help in the operation of the county's solid waste plant.

The Rockcastle Fiscal Court approved seeking the $50,000 grant that could be used to purchase a backhoe and trucks or for other uses, to help cleanup dumps across the county.

The county would furnish 25 percent of the money for the estimated $66,600 project.

Jim Cass, representing Cumberland Valley Area Development District, also reminded the court that Sept. 16 is the deadline for applying for Community Development Block Grants, and suggested that the court decide what to apply for, noting applying does not mean they will get a grant.

He added, the court could once again apply for money to help construct a new Rockcastle Health Department Building if so desired.

The money for the health building was applied for last year but the application was not approved.

Deputy Sheriff Karen Alcorn presented Sheriff Shirley Smith's 1990 tax settlement.

She told the court all tax districts were overpaid except money going to the Board of Education. The settlement is subject to state audit.

The Rockcastle Conservation District sent the court its annual financial report showing total receipts of $141,870.32 and expenditures of $140,879.53 with a balance on hand June 30 of $1,829.42.

The court approved Judicial Annex construction bills. CB&S Construction will get $125,483 and Vanhook

The council now consists of --- in addition to Mrs. Vanhose and King, Clarice Kirby, Bob Bailey, Clark (Joe) Mullins and Lloyd Cain.

Councilman Cain is not a candidate for the council in November, and since the filing deadline has passed, one seat will be filled by a write-in vote. The six top vote getters will make up the new council in January, whether they are on the ballot or write-ins.

Incidentally, Livingston has four seats to fill and only one candidate on the ballot, incumbent Todd Mink. The four top vote-getters will be elected whether they are on the ballot or write-ins.

At Brodhead, there are four seats to be filled and there are four candidates on the ballot. The four top vote-getters will be elected, whether they are on the ballot or write-ins.

Mayor Cromer told the council the new sewer system to aid through Renfro Valley should be in operation in a few days.

He reported the holdup has been a lift station for the Renfro area. He said it is now in Lexington and should be delivered by Thursday (today), if not sooner.

The July police report to the council showed 258 complaints, 43 citations, 47 charges, 3 driving under the influence, 22 arrests, 27 assists, 7 transient reports, 17 accident investigations, 5 domestic violence, 2 public services rendered, 6 cases opened, 11 Mt. Vernon Fire Department runs and 3 false alarms.

Council gets petition against housing project

Petitions opposing a housing project adjacent to Mt. Vernon Villa Apartments near the Rockcastle County High School were presented to the Mt. Vernon City Council Monday night.

The petitions state "any further housing projects are not necessary and will lead to further congestion in the area due to traffic and other problems."

The housing project has been "in the mill" since 1989 when Meade

Inc., of Irvine asked the council about the availability of water and sewer for the 42-apartment complex for the elderly.

However, in a later letter, the project was termed "multi family" meaning low rent housing.

Tom Welch, a resident of the area, pointed out to the council the narrow road and busy street and added the city has enough low rent housing already, particularly in that area. Mayor Gary R. Cromer told the council he had checked various sources and found the city could not legally prevent the project since the city is not zoned. He noted that there is a discrepancy in whether the apartments will be for senior citizens or multi family.

Councilman Lloyd Cain reported he had contacted FmHA officials, who are to lend the money for the project, and was also told the council could not prevent the project, but if hook rehitural Services, $7,848. Architect Garland Vanhook told the court work is now progressing well despite earlier problems with drilling for the foundation of the new building which will house District and Circuit Court offices and other state offices.

The court approved Dennis Cromer and Larry Shepherd for work in the county road department on a call-in basis, or when needed.

The court carried over a request for help in payment of electric and backhoe bills for Little League at the Brodhead Fairgrounds. The bills totaled $654.

County Judge/Executive Roland Mullins was unable to attend the meeting. Magistrate Donald Bullock was in charge of the meeting.

"Pot" found

A total of 1,066 marijuana plants were confiscated during raids Saturday by Sheriff Shirley Smith and deputies and Daniel Boone foresters.

The plants were in plots on Red Hill, Poplar Gap, Singleton Valley and CrookedCreek.

At a breakfast rally for Democratic gubernatorial candidate Brereton Jones were, Doug Brock, Paul Gentry, Tommy Adams and Charlie Napier, who was covering the event for WKXO, radio in Berea.

Teen Center Perspectives

By: Ginny Gilpatrick
Rockcastle Teen Center

In his send-off message to the cast of "Joseph...," last Thursday night, director Allen Penzol explained the root meaning of the word, "amateur." He said it meant, "for the love of it," and he emphasized the value of the teens and adults coming together to sing and act out the marvelous story simply for their love of theater. It was not a polished performance, but the enjoyment of those involved electrified the audience and their response in laughter and applause was reward for six weeks of hard work.

The really wonderful thing about it was the community that came together for the event. This was the amateur community, the community that gathers together for the love of it. The heartening sense of appreciation expressed by the community following each performance encouraged and energized each of the actors and reinforced one another's importance in making good things happen in Rockcastle County.

There are, of course, professional members of the community (e.g., Mayor, judges, superintendents and employees of various departments) who hold their jobs for love of what they are doing. But there are many more amateur citizens, and it is they who give or withhold the spirit that can make "Rockcastle... a success." Actively involving oneself in PTA or other committees, recycling and carefully disposing of hazardous waste, attending performances and fairs, and volunteering time and talents are "amateur" ways of demonstrating love.

The CAP Teen Center is proud to be an active participant in Rockcastle County. They are grateful to the Council for the Arts and the high school for their combined efforts in making "Rockcastle... a success." The more ways amateur individuals and groups can figure out to get together for purposeful activity and enjoyment the stronger the community will become.

"Points East"

Prices, for the most part, are less expensive than you'd find in Lexington. Cigarettes at $2.50 a pack is the notable exception and anything you purchase on the premises at the Copley Plaza. My room was elegantly and tastefully furnished with maple, walnut and mahogany pieces, a marble bath. In the corner, however, sat a little refrigerator about three feet tall. It was stocked with soft drinks, a wide range of little ounce and a half bottles of booze and a few small, plastic bags of nuts, popcorn and candy.

It's called an honor bar, but there is no honor, in my opinion connected with charging $2.95 for a 12 oz. can of coke when you can get a 6-pack across the street for $1.75. The little bottles of liquor started at $6.50 and went up. Total inventory of the fridge figured out to be worth just over $300 and what you were supposed to do is keep a list of what you used as you went along. I not only didn't use anything, but I seriously considered hiring a guard to hang around my room and make sure that nobody else did. I went across the street, paid .79 cents for a styrofoam bucket, $3.50 for half a case of cola and waylaid the guy who stocked the fridge.

I offered to sell him my keys for a buck each when I finally caught him in the room. He didn't go for it. But restaurant prices were more than fair. Twice I had lobsters, corn on the cob, french fries and real, made on the premises, clam chowder for less than ten bucks including the tip. And I'm talking about lobsters three times the size of what you see in Kentucky grocery stores where they start at about $9 a head.

If you are considering a visit to a big city and you want to meet mostly friendly people and you appreciate cleanliness in general, you won't find a better place to go than Boston. If you want to visit "the cradle of liberty" and take in all the historic sights, you can get a pass on the public transportation system that allows you unlimited travel around for three days at a cost of $8. And you can't beat that anywhere.

I hear much talk about "Southern Hospitality" but I've been to Mobile and Atlanta for extended visits this year. And I can tell you matter of fact that there's two places in the South that could improve their images if they took a few lessons from Northern Hospitality, Boston Style.

Dean's list

Janice Wood of Mt. Vernon has been named to the Spring Quarter Dean's List at Kentucky College of Business, Richmond campus. She has maintained a minimum of 3.5 grade point average on a 4.0 scale.

SCC announces registration dates

The University of Kentucky's Faculty Scholars Program will administer a $900,000 portion of an Andrew W. Mellon Foundation grant, which will enable faculty at Appalachian colleges to pursue graduate-level study.

The funding is part of a three-year $1.8 million grant to the newly-formed Appalachian College Association, intended to stimulate research by students and faculty and to help faculty at private Appalachian colleges complete their doctorates.

According to Alice Brown of the Faculty Scholars Program, the money will finance about eight $30,000 fellowships each year. "We will promote the availability of the fellowships, screen the applications, and set up meetings with a board of advisors to select the recipients," she said.

Those who receive fellowships will be able to study or conduct research at any one of six graduate schools in the region. The schools participating in the cooperative network are UK, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, the University of Virginia, West Virginia University, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and the University of Tennessee.

The Appalachian College Association is headquartered on the campus of Warren Wilson College in North Carolina. Seven colleges in Appalachia.

Kentucky are members of the association: Alice Lloyd College; Berea College; Campbellsville College; Cumberland College; Lees College; Sue Bennett College; and Union College. An additional 26 colleges in Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia are members of the association.

Rockcastle County Students continue to show gain on Academic Performance Assessment

The students enrolled in Rockcastle County School System, grades K-11, were administered the CTBS/4 CTB-McMillian-McGraw Hill Achievement test on April 24, 1991. The results of this assessment shows an overall gain over the previous two years. Individual student scores may be reviewed at your child's school. Feel free to contact the counselor or principal to schedule a convenient time.

In the past, grades 3, 5, 7, and 10 were scrutinized.

If those standards were still applicable, students in Rockcastle County would have shown themselves continuing to show positive gain. CTBS/4 will be administered next year, however, Performance Based Assessment, as mandated by the Kentucky Education Reform Act (KERA), will likely involve all students in grades 4, 8 and 12 utilized for accountability and to see if individual schools are successful.

condemn the majority for the acts of a few without sound evidence, there have been off road vehicles at S-Tree since dirt bikes and dune buggies were first conceived almost thirty years ago, so if you find the area beautiful now, there is no reason that with reasonable maintenance and care by all involved that the present state cannot be maintained or improved upon.

The "mess" made by them. I have owned off-road vehicles for the past ten years, and would like to make some observations concerning this article. You are correct in your assessment that the S-Tree area is beautiful, as much now as it was ten years ago when I first rode there. The trails we used then, as now, were primitive roads established by pioneers, service roads used by the Forest Service, and logging trails. When I read your article, I could not believe that the Forest Service widened trails for motorcycle and ATV riders. I am very sure to confirm that they have done this solely for off-road vehicle usage. The reason I was given was that the trail was currently eroding and required maintenance to prevent further destruction. This was a trail used not only by off-road vehicles, but by hikers and horsemen. A "bobcat" was used due to the fact that one operator can do what a full crew of manual labor cannot, and the Forest Service, as any business or organization, must work as effectively as possible. It was unfortunate that immediately following the Forest Service work we experienced one of our recent heavy rains. Please do not condemn a dedicated organization for their earnest effort by using illegal gathered propaganda. Also please examine the photograph you used. I recognize the spot and it is neither in the S-Tree area nor is it in the Daniel Boone National Forest, and it is in the same condition it was ten years ago, an intersection of two trails. Also note that the photographer was not so concerned with the environment that he or she took the effort to hike to the spot, but drove their car instead. I will not deny that damage has been done in some areas by off-road vehicles, but they are not the only culprits. Four and two wheel drive trucks, as well as horses, have also been responsible. Regardless of the activity, whether it be off-roading, hiking, horseback riding, boating or driving on our public highways, there are some individuals who will abuse these resources. I ask that you not

ROAMIN' ROCKCASTLE

By HILDA PAYNE GABBARD

Hello from Anglin Falls Road, Livingston and Renfro Valley.

I've been doing some getting around this past week from the eastern, southern and central parts of Rockcastle and did I find good readers waiting to tell me their news. Nobody had lost a wife or husband and that was a big help.

The boss (Richard) did himself proud on that heading of the paper last week.

I'm a thinking that the sample of peach preserves that we'd made and I took him was what did the trick. You've heard that the way to a man's heart and mind is through the stomach. I'm an old hand at that trick. It works every time.

In the Citizen this week was a picture of Eugene and Hallie Alexander from Fairview Community taken at Galilee church.

I'll declare several folks said they had meant to put Eugene's picture in their late gardens but Hallie being so pretty in that picture would ruin the effect they meant to have with Eugene.

So there, to you, Eugene, for calling me names (like Grandma).

It was such a pretty day last week that took me up Anglin Falls Road. I drove right up the hill to good friends (and for sure readers) Lura and Kay Clark's patio at their back door which was a paved strip between the house and a root cellar.

The house was built by Lura's grandpa Mose Anglin and she believes it's about 66 years old. She has running water piped downhill from a spring.

Lura, and daughter Kay, are both pretty women and you know I lay that to their "drinking mountain spring water" out of the hills.

It works everytime.

I'm recovering from the stroke she suffered this past May, but uses a cane and walker to get about.

Lura has always done some kind of sewing or crocheting to help make a living for the family she was left to care for and raise.

"I don't know what I would have done if Kay hadn't been here to help me," Lura said as we sat on the cool back porch.

Right now, Lura is crocheting lace collars in the most beautiful pine cone design which are worn with a collarless dress.

Well, since I was bragging on the collar so, Lura said she'd be glad to make me one. Others that she made would sell for $5.00.

Get was I thrilled for they are so pretty. If you are interested, she can make one in about three days. Lura's telephone number is 1-256-4160. Mine is in the Berea book. I can take your order for her if you like.

Some folks have such magic in growing flowers, they are said to have a "green thumb" and I think Lura's whole bunch of fingers help her.

I was shown a beautiful flower called Angelwing Begonia and a plant with red flowers called Gloxina which had been owned by her mother, Demia Anglin, who died nine years ago. It has lived all these nine years in the pot that came to Lura from her mother. I believe that's a record.

My next stop was with Marie Cobb Venable and found her putting away groceries after a trip to Berea.

She was slicing a roll of sausage and putting portions of it in small packages for she lives alone right next door to daughter Patty Harding and family. Large dogs challenge an visitors so I'm glad I'm kinfolks.

Her husband, and my cousin, Richard Venable, is deceased, buried on a slight rise of land overlooking the place and family that he loved.

Dick left Marie in a mighty nice, rustic house which he had built, at the mouth of the Anglin Falls hollow.

Marie, has, hanging on the wall in the living room, a wonderful picture made by Dick, of the falls when water was pouring over. Perhaps I could get a copy for this paper.

We attended church at Sand Hill several miles out south of Lexington. Brother Bill Hammond, pastor of that church, will be guest speaker of the Galilee Church Homecoming Aug. 4. You will have heard him by the time you read this. He was a famous pastor of Galilee.

While at Sand Hill Church, I met some old friends, as well as new ones, from the days when I taught at the one room Rocky Bend School, which has been torn down since 1939. Ella Mae Hammond, the pastor's mother; his grandmother, Mrs. Snowy Nicely; Wilma Faulker Thomas, who said she had pe as her first grade teacher at age 6, and always remembered "Miss Hilda".

She was the daughter of John and Molly Nicely Faulkner, good friends in long ago days.

The song leader at the church was Virginia Nicely, who did a good job since most of the church members were women.

As we returned home, we went by the Renfro Valley Country Store where we found Brad Proctor in his Gun Shop. It looked a very rustic place. Board walls, hangers for different kinds of guns, pistols, knives, and big bows and arrows. There were weapons of all kinds.

I looked for one that I might could use on John when he didn't want to dig potatoes or pull cucumbers from our dog.

Brad showed us through other rooms of the large store. I'll declare they had anything you could name on the store shelves or tables.

I asked him about the Liar's Club which had started at his store in Fairview where Danny Dooley had made me a member.

Brad said, "There were so many members who planned to be on vacation that we decided to call it off this summer, but come fall, we'll start again."

Several folks have asked me how an innocent red or yellow juicy apple could break up several romances.

It was back in time 50 or 60 years ago when there were no such things as radios, telephones, electricity nor cars on Clear Creek in Rockcastle and not much elsewhere in the west of the county for young people to enjoy so they made whatever entertainment they could to be together.

Old timer Ike Harvey and wife Molly lived at the head of Anglin Falls Road. They had two cute, young granddaughters, Hazel and Resita B. Abney, who lived in Ohio but would spend summers with the Harveys.

The young fellows around looked forward to being with the cute city girls.

Ike was persuaded to let the girls have an "apple peeling" for all the young folks around who would peel apples for the chance to play "kissing games" afterward.

Came the night with coal oil lanterns hanging from several trees showing many wash tubs of yellow and green apples.

The young folks fell in and peeled rapidly, looking to play games. But as soon as one tub was emptied, Ike told the boys to bring out another.

The young folks felt this was not fair and began to mumble.

Suddenly an apple thrown out of the darkness sailed under the lanterns and hit the old man on his head with a loud pop.

He let out a roar cursing and yelling at whomever had thrown the shattered apple on the ground and told the young folk they could go home. He wasn't letting them play any games, the party was over.

Years afterward, my brother John Payne confessed he had thrown the apple because of the way the young folk were treated and no one blamed him.

Til next week: when life gives you a bowl of lemons, make lemonade.

Miss Biyins weds Mr. Geiger at Danforth Chapel June 22

Two missionary families were joined by matrimony on June 22, 1991 at 3 p.m. when Ruth Ann Biyins, daughter of Leccand Sarah Biyins of JellRock Retreat Center in Rockcastle County, became the bride of W. Kirby Geiger, son of Bill and Mary Jo Geiger, missionaries to Chile, furloughing in Memphis, TN. Friends of the Biyins family who served with them in Brazil and other countries in the Middle East joined friends of the Geigers from Chile and other Latin American fields, along with other friends from Canada to Louisiana and from Oklahoma to South Carolina to witness the ceremony in Berea College's Danforth Chapel.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of pearl white satin, appliqued with lace flowers on the front of the close-fitting bodice. The wide neckline was accented by full, puffed sleeves with more lace appliqued on them, and four round rosettes of the satin on the shoulders. The flowers followed the satin-covered buttons down the center back of the gown and continued down to circle the floor-length hem. A satin bustle bow with three roses completed the gown. Her blush length veil fell from a coronet of small white flowers which cascaded down the right side to her shoulder. Miss Biyins' hair was braided and swept up off her neck, which heightened the graceful effect.

Highways, Mountains and Skies

Well, I guess it's about time to tell you about another trip scene. I just got home from a short weekend in W. Va. where Deno and I visited with Rod and Birch.

The return trip home was begun in late afternoon and turned out to be one of the most scenic ones I've made.

Shortly before we left Rod's, a sudden windstorm hit the area and blew the top out of a large fir tree in the yard as well as a couple of trees in the nearby field. There was also a nasty downpour that lasted only a few minutes but was enough to make the roads black and shiny and slick. I had to drive with caution for the first fifty miles or so before I drifted into my normal speed. The intermittent rain for the rest of the trip was just enough to paint sections of the highway a shiny black between sections of the white winding roadways with the yellow center line plainly showing. This is an ordinary scene on all highways during the rainy season.

What made it unusual today was the touch it gave to the mountain country we were traveling through and the beauty we saw as the best of the day mingled with the rain drops then changed to the cool of evening. As shadows appeared on the mountainside I could almost feel the heat leaving the highway.

These mountains seemed to be stacked in neat piles all crowding for the same space and each seeming to be trying to rise higher than the rest. They were all covered by the heavy foliage that is so prevalent this year. I'm sure I've never seen trees so abundantly clothed as they are this year nor the leaves as dark as shade of green.

As I drove mile after mile totaling, (Cont. to A12)

Working Workers meet

By: Elizabeth F. Mullins

On July 29, at 7:30 p.m. Brodhead Homemakers met at Carol Riddle's home. This is the one time we play, instead of having a lesson.

What did we play? "Bingo" Small items were piled in the middle of the floor. When one bingoed, we chose the article we wanted. It was a lot of fun.

We discussed the Agricultural Fair's Floral Hall and found out several had articles to take to display the next day.

Clara Proctor gave each of us a map of Livingston, Brodhead and Mt. Vernon and advertisements of businesses in Rockcastle county. We found names of streets different than what we had always called them!

This time, yours truly, will tell what Ella Mae Martin and Carol Riddle prepared for refreshments! Why? To make those members absent, wish they had attended.

Those present sat around the long dining table and tried to decide which and what they would eat. Yours truly, finally decided to take a small portion of each goodie.

There were three cakes, since for the apple cake. The five cup salad and fresh strawberries were served in small bowls. The two cheese balls were delicious on tasty crackers. What a feast!

Then our next meeting was announced.

Another fun meeting! The family picnic would again be at Clara Proctor's home. Her large deck and surrounding tables and yard are a perfect place for this outing! It will be at 6 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 17.

Worship services were well attended at the Fairview Baptist Church over the weekend, but due to vacation time for some of our folks our Sunday School attendance was down to one hundred and three. But we are thankful for that number.

Our Temperance League speaker on Sunday Morning was Rev. Carl Townsend, a retired minister from Louisville. We thoroughly enjoyed his message and the information on drugs and alcohol. I just thank God for people that are willing to do what they can to help those whose lives are being ruined by these evils of today. We all need to pray for and support Bowles of Venezuela and cleft/Rock played the flute.

Following the ceremony, the newlyweds, their parents and the wedding party greeted guests at a reception in Baird Lounge in the Berea College Alumni Building. A buffet was served, featuring Middle Eastern foods, and bride's and groom's wedding cakes. Both the wedding and the reception were directed by Mrs. Gerald Irwin of Celebration Incorporated, London. The guest book was kept by Valerie Fields Arington. Others who served at the reception were Susan Geiger, Linda Geiger Keever, Laurie Geiger Albright, Peggy Bivins Mathews, Beth Lytle, Sallie Lanier Knollenberg, Kris Haines-Burnham, Joy Nicholas Lanier, Karen Thorne Kendrick, Teri Burnham Williams, Clarissa Cowan, Teresa Roberts, Caroline Reid, Heather Zgoda, and Crystal Cromer.

Family from out of town included the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Georgia Bivins and the bride's aunt, Peggy Bivins Mathews, both of Atlanta, GA, the groom's aunt, Mrs. Frances Davis of Liverpool, NY, and the groom's sisters, Linda Keever, Laurie Albright, and Susan Geiger. After a week's honeymoon in the Caribbean, the couple is residing in Lexington.

Congratulations to the Anderkin family of Mt. Vernon who have recently purchased the Berea Citizen Newspaper. They now own both the Mt. Vernon Signal and the Berea Citizen. We wish them all the luck in the world. They are good people and have always treated me nice.

We are experiencing some very dry weather at the present time, but God has been so good to us, blessing us with bountiful gardens, good crops and much fruit. We should always give our Heavenly Father thanks and praise for all His goodness to us.

A birthday dinner was given Sunday August 4th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tip Reppert of Scaffold Cane, in honor of their daughter Melody and her friend Kevin Reynolds of London. Attending were the ones already mentioned and Ronnie Reppert, wife Helen and son Ronnie Dale of Conway and Lonnie and Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Alexander have been neighbors Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hunsucker and their daughter and granddaughter who were visiting them from Ohio. Eugene and Hallie Alexander have recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Edd Croucher in Berea and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Ingram also of Berea.

Visiting Mrs. Mary Cope over the weekend were her son William and son of Dayton, Ohio and Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Cope of Mt. Vernon.

Our company during the past few days have been Eugene Alexander and grandson Jeremy Davidson, Joyce and Kim Seals, Wayne and Carolyn Chasteen, Kim Chasteen, Lorretta Smith and daughter Darin

Well, August is now here and we wonder how it got here so fast. The summer months it seems have just flown by. But we are so thankful anyway just to be living.

So remember to attend Sunday School and church somewhere and always remember to pray one for another and be good to children, they are God's jewels and so precious. Love to you all.

Her bouquet was fragrant with white roses, gardenias and stephanotis.

Miss Bivins was attended by her sisters, Lynn Anderson of Winston-Salem, NC and Simona Burchell of Albuquerque, NM, and by Alberta Henderson of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Doreen Jezek of Lexington. Their tea-length gowns of crisp blue and pink flowered white chintz featured snug fitted bodices, wide scalloped necklines, and full skirts. They carried flower sprays of pink Gerber daisies and small lilies, tied with blue ribbon. The groomsmen included William Geiger, who served as his son's best man and ushered, Ted Carter of Johnson City, TN and Jimmy Park of Louisville, both sons of missionaries to Chile.

The Gothic chapel was decorated with greenery on the altar rail and the standing candelabra. An arrangement of white daisies was centered on the altar. The wedding was conducted by the Rev. Livy Cope, long time friend of the Geiger family, who blessed the rings and the young couple, combining warmth and solemnity in a unique ceremony. Special organ music was provided by Nancy Marema of Berea. Glen Toney of London sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Darryl Phelps of London at the organ. Dale

NOTICE

Attention Parents of Fifth (5th) Grade Students

These students must have record of two measles-mumps-rubella vaccines to enter the 6th grade in August, 1991

As you may know, measles disease continues to be a significant health problem for our school-age children. This is especially true for those students in middle high through high school. Because the vaccines used prior to 1980 were less stable than those currently in use, as many as 20% of these students may not be immune. Measles disease tends to be more serious for older children and adults. Therefore, it is important that these students be adequately protected.

The Kentucky Department for Health Services has a policy that requires all students to have two doses of measles-mumps-rubella (MMR) prior to entry into sixth grade. Since the vast majority of students have already received one dose of this vaccine, only one additional dose will be required.

If you have a child in the fifth grade, and there is record of only one dose having been received, then your child needs to receive a dose of MMR vaccine before the beginning of school on August 19, 1991. It is recommended that students be immunized in their month of birth prior to the sixth grade entry.

The local health department has adequate supplies of the MMR vaccine, and are giving the MMR vaccine to students now in the fifth grade. Please be aware that no child will be turned away due to an inability to pay. An alternative would be to receive the vaccine through your physician.

A record of having received the two doses of measles-mumps-rubella (MMR) must be presented the first day of school, August 19, 1991, for all students entering the sixth grade.

Thank you for your cooperation.

"Joseph..." was an amazing production

By: Sara Anderkin

If you saw it, you'll have to agree with me. If you didn't see it, well let's just say -- you missed it and you should have seen it.

I am referring to the production of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" put on by the Rockcastle Arts Council and the Rockcastle Teen Center last Thursday and Friday.

The musical, and its cast of characters, was as vivid and imaginative as any of the earlier productions of the Arts Council.

It was a state of the art rendition of the biblical story of Joseph and his coat of many colors. I don't mean that it was just up-to-date art, it was a hilarious account of the story that everyone has grown up with. I doubt, however, that anyone has ever seen such an account as this.

Not only was the play a definite original, but H. Allen Pensol, director, and his cast of characters did an excellent job in performing this musical.

Ed Cortas, who portrayed the lead character, Joseph, did a splendid job in bringing the play to life and capturing the audience's attention. He kept a steady performance throughout the musical and deserves the credit due him.

Vincent Burdette, who was the musical's narrator, kept the musical together and flowing along with his telling of the story.

The high point of the play however, had to be David Phillips' rendition of Pharaoh. This part put the spunk into the production and caught everyone off guard. It was hilarious, well-acted and definitely the show stopper.

I thought Allen Pensol once again brought something wonderful to this production. The Arts Council and the Teen Center should be well applauded for the time and effort they spent on this production.

I, and I'm sure others, cannot wait for the next play -- musical, comedy, drama, whatever it might be, to come out of the Arts Council's production room.

I commend each and every performer in "Joseph..." for a job well done. I know everyone who saw the musical had to enjoy it and, if you missed it, well just be sure and catch the next one.

Other people were just as unimpressed as Andrews.

"I've heard this crap ever since I

The Klan festivities continued later that night on the farm of James Aaron Caldwell on High Moore Road.

About 75 Klan supporters gathered on Caldwell's land that night to listen to Klan speakers and to hold a cross lighting ceremony.

At the rally that night, Klan leaders again argued that God did not want all races united in fellowship.

"Any preacher that teaches that should be hanged," said Klan speaker Dale Reusch in his anti-semitism speech.

the city council went on record opposing the project then FinH would likely turn down the loan for the project.

The council discussed the project and generally agreed they were not opposed to low rent housing but that it is the site that poses a problem, and whether its for senior citizens or multi family.

On a motion by Councilman Cain, seconded by Bob Bailey, the council voted to write all parties concerned for more information, and to stipulate that the council opposed the site for the project until it is determined whether it is to be for multi family or for the elderly. The council will then reevaluate the project.

more than a hundred of them over the white ribbon of a road that was sometimes wet and dark and shiny from the light showers that would suddenly appear and just as suddenly disappear, my heart would soar with the exquisite beauty and a song of praise would struggle to burst forth. But the beauty was so overwhelming the sound of a human voice would have almost been a sacrilege. It took the quiet of the mountains and the ever lengthening white path of the road to allow the solemnity of this drive to soak into my very being.

pastoral scene below. In the hill side would be cattle grazing and moving about as if they were being orchestrated by an invisible hand and directed to where the grass was the sweetest. Or maybe a hillside would be covered with gentle sheep cropping the grass even closer until it all looked like a meticulous gardener had just completed manicuring whole mountainside.

The scene at the far end of the road where it disappears into the approaching mountains was often the most beautiful of all. The road, itself looked like a soft grey ribbon narrowing gently as it wound itself into the future to become lost in the unknown hollows of the mountains. Suddenly in this gap between the mountain tops and disappearing road tumbling clouds appeared. There were bright white cloud floating, dark clouds mingling their greys and black as if they were trying to decide if they wanted to shed the water that was causing their darkness or simply join together and get out of the way of the white clouds and allow them to perform their magic of changing their shapes and showing off. Then all of a sudden an element was added, the sun almost popped out. In seconds a glory of light appeared like I have never seen before. The sun pushing this conglomeration of clouds aside so I could show its fleeting beauty before going to rest created an explosion of the most brilliant light I have ever seen. The white clouds eased to the side, the grey and black ones became one soft grey tumultuous mass that slipped quietly into the background. At first the sun was a bright ray of pink slipping between the grey and white. Then the sun spot grew until the clouds weren't noticed at all and suddenly there were layers of light climbing at the very center where the sun was so brilliant the whole area was aglow with it. Yet it was all fused with pink and gold spreading outward till it filled the whole gap between the mountains we were driving straight toward. It is a sight I will never forget. After that experience the remainder of the trip was quite ordinary.

There was one more outstanding display of nature's beauty when the sun decided to give us a display of what a sunset can look like at the end of a showery day. The whole sky lit up with streaks of red, and gold, and pink over the hills beneath which were becoming increasingly dark as evening approached. The four lane highway with the neatly mowed space between them was becoming grey, fusing with the grey gravelled shoulders and the grassy fields edging up the hillsides. Only a faint showing of the yellow center lines could be seen. It was like driving into an exquisitely painted picture and I wanted to speed up a little so I could see the rest of the artist's work before it disappeared or was soaked up by the hills. This never happens though for if one can reach the crest of the hill and look into the horizon he will be able to see the sun setting as it ever moves westward. But sometimes the brilliance of the pinks and reds has faded a bit and the soft colors of lavender and purple that has taken their place have a quieting effect on the emotions and I seem to take a deep breath as I settle into a different position after such an exciting episode and silently give thanks to the Great Artist for allowing me to witness some of His brush strokes as He is creating an ever changing world.

Darkness finally overtook us before we reached home but the joy of driving on dark roads with the joy of others traveling shining in my face stayed with me until we pulled into our own driveway and turned on the lights of home.

Wilkinson asks for federal disaster aid

Gov. Wallace Wilkinson has asked the federal government to declare 10 Kentucky counties disaster areas because of crop damage from thunderstorms on July 8.

Rockcastle County is one of the 10. Wilkinson sent a letter to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan seeking the designation, said Mark McDaniel, spokesman for the state Division of Disaster and Emergency Services.

The 10 counties are Bourbon, Clark, Garrard, Harrison, Laurel, Madison, Owen, Robertson, Rockcastle and Scott, McDaniel said. If the request is granted, farmers in those counties would be eligible for low-interest loans. Farm leaders and officials at the University of Kentucky have estimated that 20 million to 30 million pounds of tobacco were destroyed in the storms. That amount would comprise 4 percent to 6 percent of an estimated crop of 490 million pounds in Kentucky.

William Thom, extension agronomist with the University of Kentucky, said the storm damage would also slow the tobacco harvest in August because of the extra time required to harvest damaged plants.

Dateline: WASHINGTON

A Weekly Report from Congressman Hal Rogers

Redistricting Southern Kentucky

As the Kentucky Legislature faces the task of reducing Kentucky's congressional districts from seven to six, let me make one thing clear:

I will fight to keep each one of the 27 counties which make up the 5th Congressional District. Inevitably, redistricting will bring changes to all our districts. But I believe these changes can and should be kept to a minimum to preserve the community of interests each district has acquired.

We hear of different plans almost daily. Most are either based on rumor or are trial balloons. We will continue to hear of more, no doubt, until the Legislature meets in special session to finalize a plan this fall.

Although I won't comment on each new plan, I must express my strong opposition to one proposal which combines much of Southern Kentucky's 5th District with much of Eastern Kentucky's 7th, creating one so-called "mountain district."

Essentially, the two districts' poorest counties in southeastern Kentucky would be lumped together, while the more affluent counties would be parcelled out to the adjoining 6th, 4th and 2nd districts -- even far Western Kentucky's 1st!

I cannot believe thoughtful and compassionate Kentuckians would permit such a discriminatory and destructive configuration.

The 5th and 7th districts are separate communities. Their 61 counties have but two things in common: They are poor, and only the federal government is capable of helping them.

Unemployment is high; isolation caused by poor highway access means few new jobs; a declining tax base starves budgets for schools, police, industrial recruitment and other vital government services; and out-migration has robbed the two regions of their most energetic youth.

Because the state's resources are inadequate to solve these problems, the two regions have had to turn to the federal government for help: for highways, water and sewer systems, industrial site development, flood control and other assistance.

Therefore, these areas need more representation in Washington, not less. The single-district plan would cut in half the voices in Washington pleading on behalf of these two regions.

Our two districts are not artificial political subdivisions. They are separate communities, each with its own history, tradition, culture and political philosophy dating back to the Civil War.

Over the last five years, the 27 counties of the 5th District have banded together in four development organizations -- Forward in the Fifth, Southern Kentucky Economic Development Corp., Southern Kentucky Tourism Development Association, and Southern Kentucky Agriculture Development Association -- in an effort to lift themselves up by their bootstraps. These groups are making a difference.

The 5th District is geared up for progress. To rip apart 27 counties would destroy the great effort they struggled so hard to pull together.

Kentucky can be redistricted without destroying the proud identities of the 5th and 7th Districts and the progress we have made.

Over many decades and numerous redistrictings, Kentucky legislators have always kept these two districts separate and apart, respecting their differing characteristics. In fact, since the 30s, the line dividing them has hardly changed, while all other lines have shifted all over Kentucky. I believe today's state legislators will continue to honor our history, tradition and culture.

I will be fighting for just that.

Environmental Action at Home

There's new story almost every day—the environment is in peril, another blow to the health of our small watery planet. You might ask "What can I do?" Actually, quite a lot, and right in your house too. A key place to start is the kitchen and laundry room. The following tips from product development experts who make KitchenAid appliances can help you save energy, help the environment—and save money too.

A trash compactor can be a valuable tool in reducing the volume of both your recyclable and non-recyclable waste. A compactor doesn't take up a lot of space, yet offers many quality features. For example, an 18-inch wide model from KitchenAid offers:

- Litter Bin® door that allows all items to be loaded even when the compactor is operating.
- Tilt-away trash basket and basket release handle for easy trash removal.
- Activated charcoal air filter and odor control fan with on/off switch;
- One-half HP motor that provides 3,000 pounds of ram force, to reduce trash to about one-fourth its original volume.

Besides helping eliminate ugly, smelly wastebaskets, compactors also fit smoothly into any kitchen decor.

Some consumers are even investing in multiple compactors to help separate and compact recyclable materials. As mandatory recycling becomes more common, trash compactors are more than just a nicety—it's right to use one.

Klan marches in Laurel Co.

By: Travis Flora
Laurel County Weekly

The circus came to London last Saturday afternoon.

But instead of a typical circus, this was a circus of hate, and despite the clown-like costumes worn, there was nothing funny this day.

This circus came all the way from Hamilton, Ohio, in the form of the Ku Klux Klan, which gathered on the courthouse steps at around 4:30 Saturday afternoon for a rally before marching a five-block parade route.

"What do we want?" cried one Klan member.

"White power!" was the response shouted back by the rest of the Klan group, which consisted of several groups, including Skinheads and about 50 Klan members.

The pro-white group was greeted by some support, mostly by Klan sympathizers from Ohio and northern Kentucky.

But mostly they were met by silence, as most people took several preachers and public officials advised and stayed away.

Only about 200 people showed up for the spectacle.

Of those, about two-thirds were either with the Klan or reporters from area newspapers, radio and television stations.

The remaining portion of the crowd was either there to protest the Klan, or just to see what all the fuss was about.

"I'd never seen anything like this except on TV," said London resident Thelma Onks. "I came out because I was curious."

Ben Daniel of London knew some people would attend the rally anyway. So he and some friends seized the opportunity to spread a message of their own.

Carrying signs that read "Love thy neighbor" and "This is a bad joke" and "We are family," Daniel and Bernadette and David Phillips marched through the crowd spreading their messages.

"Just for myself, it's just to voice an opinion. I'm against the Klan and that's my opinion," Daniel said.

"The first amendment works both ways," he said.

Other people in attendance took a more vocal approach to protesting the Klan.

At times the rally on the courthouse steps seemed like nothing more than a shouting match between Klan members and local citizens.

The shouts from Klan members usually followed a question by a member of the crowd.

One person asked if the Bible didn't say to "Love thy neighbor."

"Jesus didn't mean to love every neighbor," was the reply given by Klan vice-president Ron Lee.

This set off a round of shouts between the crowds, with Klansmen shouting "No more niggers and Jew control!" and "Nigger, nigger, out!" followed by cries of "Down with the Nazis" and "Go back home" from some members of the crowd.

As usual, the Klan gave reasons for why they believe what they do, including that blacks and Jews were the problem for almost every problem, and that blacks were the main reason AIDS was so predominant in this country.

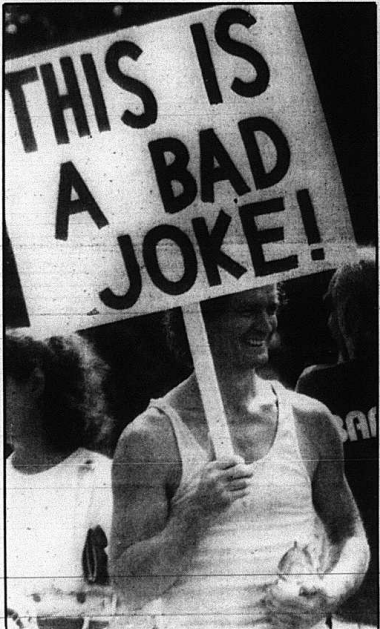

"I wish he'd look around and see who's got AIDS," said Charlene Andrews, who was one of a handful of black residents to attend the rally.

Andrews said she attended the rally

Ku Klux Klan members from Hamilton Ohio marched through the streets of London last Saturday afternoon. After the March, Klan members burnt a cross on a rural Laurel County farm.

David Phillips of London displayed a sign that showed exactly how he felt about the entire thing.

Cross burning is a normal activity of the Klan.

Ed Reynolds retires after 33 years

He is not sure that Education Reform was necessary because he thinks every child that wanted a quality education before could get one and he doesn't know whether it would be better to have a middle school or keep things the way they are.

One thing he is sure of, he has retired.

After thirty-three years of working daily for the Rockcastle County school system, Ed Reynolds has called it quits.

The former assistant director of transportation was honored by school officials and co-workers at a retirement luncheon at Renfro Valley last week.

Ed Reynolds has seen a lot of changes over the years, mostly for the better and he is optimistic about the future.

"People like to talk about how bad kids are these days, how they are mostly good for nothing and too lazy to do anything," he said, as he sat on his front porch in Orlando last week.

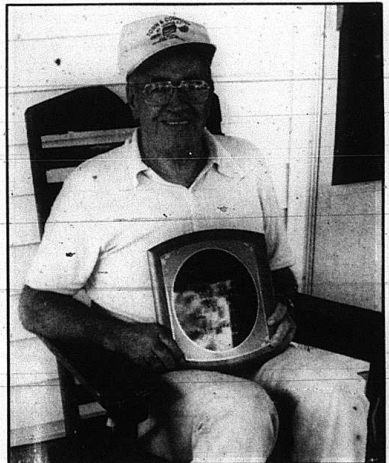

"But, if you think about how these kids are treated these days, how most of them are not expected to work or to do anything for themselves, most of them do o.k.," he said. "Under the circumstances they do pretty good," he said with a smile.

Reynolds reminisced about his last year of employment when he drove a bus, when school wasn't called off for any reason and when work days would start at 6 a.m. and end at 6 p.m.

"I enjoyed what I did, I had a lot of good people work with me throughout the years and I think we did as well as we could with what we had to work with," he said. "I'm proud of the fact that no kids were ever hurt on a school bus that we worked on and sent out on the road to transport them," he said.

What are his plans, "to sit back and take it easy, help Nellwanda take care of the grandchildren and work a little in the garden," Reynolds said. Last month, Sammy Stallworth was hired to replace Reynolds, who officially retired July 1.

Ed Reynolds was honored with a plaque, upon retirement.

Flav-O-Rich agrees to $5 million fine

Milk provider Flav-O-Rich Inc. has agreed to pay $5 million in criminal fines and civil penalties to settle federal price-fixing charges in Florida.

The Department of Justice on Tuesday charged Flav-O-Rich with participating in conspiracies to rig bids to supply dairy products to federally subsidized school-lunch programs and military installations in Florida and several in Kentucky, none in Rockcastle.

The Justice Department filed three felony charges Tuesday against Flav-O-Rich in U.S. District Court in Tampa, Fla.

The Department claimed Flav-O-Rich: Engaged in a conspiracy from the early 1970s through July 1988 to rig school-milk bids in the Florida panhandle.

Conspired to rig school-milk bids in the Florida peninsula from as early as the late 1960s through at least July 1988.

Conspired to rig bids to supply dairy products for military installations in the Florida peninsula and Puerto Rico and the Kings Bay Naval Submarine Base in Georgia from the early 1970s through January 1988.

The Justice Department submitted a plea agreement that it reached with Flav-O-Rich, requiring the company to plead guilty to all charges and pay $3 million in fines.

Flav-O-Rich reached a separate $2 million agreement with the Justice Department to settle potential federal civil claims arising from the company's Florida operations.

The settlement must be approved by the court.

Meanwhile, a civil suit against Flav-O-Rich and 14 other dairy suppliers is pending in U.S. District Court in London.

Last year, Kentucky Attorney General Fred Cowan filed the lawsuit on behalf of 119 school districts.

No water shortage expected

Despite expectations of continued higher-than-normal temperatures and lower-than-normal precipitation, the Kentucky Division of Water does not expect the current dry spell to result in municipal water shortages.

However, high water use -- especially during periods with little rainfall -- can cause stress to drinking water treatment systems and distribution networks or even outstrip their capacity.

The amount of water on the earth has not changed from earliest times, but the population has. In 1900, the population of Kentucky was 2.15 million; the number for 1990 was 3.68.

Average water use by individuals has increased dramatically as well. Kentuckians in 1900 used an average of five gallons of water per day, but usage by 1990 had grown to an average of 62 gallons per day per person.

These figures are just for personal use -- drinking water, bathing, cooking, and laundering. Seventy-five percent of water use in the home takes place in the bathroom. Another 20 percent is used for laundry and cleaning, and only 5 percent is consumed as drinking water and used for cooking.

Knox Deer Hunt

Applications will be accepted Aug. 18 - 31 for the post deer hunt, which annually draws hunters from across Kentucky and surrounding states. This year 66 areas or post are potentially available for hunting. For the safety of hunters and guides, 26 areas open last year have been closed to hunting under a new Army regulation prohibiting recreational use of impact areas, which contain unexploded ammunition from adjacent ranges. Almost 60,000 acres can still be used for hunting, depending on training requirements in the hunt season.

Two deer per hunter may be taken this year, one with bow and one with gun. The bow hunt period is Oct. 5 - Nov. 17. Gun hunt weekends are Nov. 23 - 24, Nov. 30 - Dec. 1, and Dec. 14 - 15. Applicants selected by random computer drawing will be notified about two weeks before the specific hunt dates they have been assigned.

The 'military' hunter category comprises active duty and retired military, Reserve Component members, all Fort Knox civilians (including retirees), and family members of those groups. All others are 'nonmilitary'.

Military hunters may apply in person at the post Hunt Control Office or by mail with a copy of valid military identification card. Nonmilitary hunters may apply by mail only. Military hunting with nonmilitary must apply by mail and follow the same rules and procedures as nonmilitary.

Separate applications and permits for gun and bow hunting are necessary.

The standard application form ATZK-EH 3605 may be picked up at post Hunt Control, Building 112 or requested in writing, with a stamped self-addressed envelope, mailed to: Hunt Control, DEH Fish and Wildlife Section, ATTN: ATZK-EHE, Fort Knox, Kentucky 40121-5000. For hunt information by phone, call (502) 624-7311 or 2712 (collect calls cannot be accepted).

Applications must clearly indicate 'gun' or 'bow' hunt. Applications containing the names of more than five persons, and individuals whose names appear on more than one application, will be disqualified for the drawing.

Fees must be included with each application, by money order, certified check, or cashier's check payable to "U.S. Treasury." The fee for active-duty military in ranks private through staff sergeant is $13; active-duty sergeant first class through sergeant major, $14.50; and for all other applicants, $15. Kentucky residents 65 and older may hunt free with a county-issued Lifetime Hunting and Fishing Card. Fees are refunded to applicants not selected in the random draw, but no refunds will be made to hunters who fail to show on their assigned dates.

During the bow hunt period, week-day hunting on space-available basis is permitted for individuals selected to bow hunt. No 'standby' bow hunting will be allowed on weekends. For the gun hunt, nonmilitary hunters are assigned two days, with no choice of dates or areas. Military are assigned to hunt either the first and second or first and third weekends. Military may state ten area preferences, to be assigned by random draw. If preference areas are filled, military hunters will be placed in open areas starting with the lowest numbered hunting area.

Gun hunters may use only 12, 16, and 20 gauge shotguns with slugs or single barrel muzzleloading rifles, percussion, or flintlock 38 to .58 caliber. Magazined shotguns must be plugged to hold one shot in the chamber and two in the magazine.

The suit alleges that as early as 1979 and continuing through at least 1988, the dairy suppliers conspired to rig bids on milk contracts to school districts throughout Kentucky. Flav-O-Rich challenged Cowan's right to bring the action. In December, the Kentucky Supreme Court ruled that Cowan had the authority to pursue the federal court case. "We have been trying to set up a schedule for depositions and discovery," said Philip Miller, spokesman for Cowan. Dairymen Inc. is a cooperative that collects milk from about 4,000 member farmers throughout the Southeast. Flav-O-Rich operates milk-processing plants.

Water . . .

Drink it up this summer!

By: Cheryl Witt
County Extension Agent
for Home Economics

During extremely hot weather, water is a necessary and very important nutrient. Strenuous exercise or work in intense heat increases the need for water.

In case you didn't know why it's so important, water is a part of every cell, even the solid tissues that form bone. It accounts for approximately 50-60 percent of adult body weight and is needed for the various chemical reactions that occur in the body.

Specifically, water is necessary for:

- *Transport - moving nutrients and oxygen to cells, waste products out of the body, enzymes to reaction sites, and blood cells throughout the circulatory system.

- *Temperature control - cooling the body through perspiration, allowing heat to escape when water evaporates on this skin.

Since water does so much for your body, make sure you drink enough. Adults require approximately two quarts of water daily. Actual amounts vary with body size, diet, the amount of physical activity, temperature, and humidity. For example, besides hot weather and strenuous activity, consuming large amounts of protein or salt also increases an individual's need for water.

As a general rule, adults should get the equivalent of six to eight glasses of liquids daily to assure enough water for bodily functions.

Your body obtains water not only from beverages but also from food and internal metabolic processes. Although beverages furnish the greatest share of our water needs, solid and semi-solid foods provide a surprising amount of water.

The following is the water content of a few summer favorites:

- Lettuce - 94% - 95%
- Tomatoes - 93%
- Watermelon - 92%
- Cabbage or Spinach - 92%
- Green Beans - 90%
- Yogurt - 89%
- Orange juice - 88%

- Berries - 83% - 88%
- Milk - 87%
- Citrus Fruits - 86% - 87%
- Apples or Pears (fresh) - 83% - 84%

Target Spot devastating some tobacco fields

By: Tom Mills
County Extension Agent
for Agriculture

Tobacco is the "target" of a disease that is causing dinner-plate-size lesions on plants in some eastern Kentucky fields, according to a plant pathologist at the University of Kentucky.

Target spot is showing up in burley and dark tobacco fields around the commonwealth. Nearly all fields in eastern Kentucky have some level of disease activity. Target spots have nearly destroyed some fields in eastern Kentucky, where heavy shade and poor air movement are involved.

There is no chemical control available for target spot. Ridomil has no effect on this disease.

The first cases of target spot were identified in 1989 on burley tobacco in Fleming and on dark tobacco in Logan County. The fungal disease causes lesions that can be confused with either brown spot or blue mold. However, growers can identify target spot by examining lesions carefully.

Target spot lesions start out as a small, circular water-soaked area about 1/32 of an inch in size. The area turns white as the spores germinate. In situations where hot, humid weather prevails, the fungus continues to colonize, causing larger spots featuring concentric rings and a yellow halo. Lesions can vary from a white fleck to the size of a dinner plate. Leaf tissue becomes brittle, paper thin and often splits.

Brown spot also can have concentric rings, but black fungal spores can be observed with some magnification. The brown spot lesions, which generally are smaller than target spot lesions, have sharply defined margins surrounded by yellow halos.

Blue mold initially appears as light green or yellow spots on the leaves. But with age, the lesions turn brown. However, the distinguishing characteristic of this disease is a grayish-blue, fuzzy mold growth on the underside of leaves.

Target spot is a relatively new situation and little is known about the disease. Experiments are underway to evaluate controls for the disease.

Peppers have bumper crop of bacterial leaf spots

Many commercial pepper growers have a bumper crop of bacterial leaf spot this season, according to a plant pathologist at the University of Kentucky.

"Bacterial leaf spot develops slowly under cool, wet conditions," said William Nesmith, Extension specialist with the UK College of Agriculture. "The disease 'explodes' during hot, wet weather, especially after driving rains."

Leaf spot continues to thrive under high humidity or weekly rains. Weather this season has favored spread and development. Once well established in a field, only dry weather appears to curb its development.

"Bacterial leaf spot is among the most difficult diseases to control in vegetable crops," Nesmith said. "That's why the key to disease control is prevention - not rescue."

The bacterium, which can be introduced on transplants, survives well in the leaf and on its surface. So it is spread easily in the field by rain, wind and plant-to-plant contact.

"Bacteria reproduce rapidly," Nesmith said. "During hot, humid weather, the population can double every 15 to 30 minutes. So a little goes a long way."

Fun and Foods overnight camp

By: Donna Parker
Summer Intern

Nine Rockcastle County youth traveled to the J.M. Felner 4-H Camp in London for the Fun and Food Overnight Camp July 22-23. Their two days there were filled with games, dancing and classes teaching a variety of ways to stay healthy. These classes included "Eating Right", "Looking Good", "Fast Foods", boating, swimming, crafts and nature. The FNEP Assistants from this county, Judy Hudson and Brenda Saylor, and I taught "Keeping Fit", in which the kids learned about staying healthy through exercise and even had a chance to practice by "moussing" (aerobics to Walt Disney tunes). Some of the highlights of the trip for the kids were making Heart Smart T-shirts and making their own pancakes for breakfast. The biggest complaint about camp was that it was too short!
