We agree, Justice Lambert

It was with great pride that we read in Friday's Herald-Leader about Justice Joseph Lambert's dissenting opinion in the KU-South East Coal Co. case before the State Supreme Court. Of course, this pride was tempered with sorrow that Justice Lambert's opinion was a dissenting one.

In his minority opinion (the case went in favor of KU 5-2), Justice Lambert wrote "the decision of the majority should chill the hearts of business-persons throughout Kentucky." He said the ruling meant contracts could be rewritten by judges "on a judgment call" to accommodate their views on equity."

We agree completely and applaud Justice Lambert's insight into this matter and are only appalled that the other five justices didn't see the case the same way.

Points East

By: Ike Adams

For the first time in five years I can truly say that I am finding great joy in picking and eating peas. As most of you know, Ralph King and I have managed a virtual snow pea plantation over the last several years and about this time last year I think I would have found your average handful of red worms more appetizing than a plate of peas.

This year, however, Ralph and I decided to let some Japanese and Korean fellows take total control of the market. It's a sacrifice, but we decided to forfeit the 37 and a half cents an hour we have been accustomed to making in exchange for our efforts to make snow peas affordable to the average Kentucky household for a few weeks in the spring.

Ralph has been spending his spare time courting real heavy and I've been trying to catch up on the sleep that I lost picking peas in the moon light a year ago. I've also had time to mow the grass and get in a decent little vegetable garden. Loretta still recognizes me when she sees me around the house. The kids call me "Dad" instead of "Dad-?" and the dog doesn't try to eat me up when I come on the place.

I was in a nearby Kroger store a couple of days ago and I ran into Kim Le Son, my oriental friend and former competitor. He was trying to talk to the produce manager into taking the last six bushels of snow peas off his truck. Kim Le Son has fourteen acres of peas somewhere close to Versailles. Last year he cut his prices so low that me and Ralph didn't have a chance. This year he can haggle over the price and Kim Le was born to haggle.

"Adams Son!!," he bellowed when he saw me. "You come talk this man how good ah my snow pea."

The he beamed the smile that makes everybody, myself included, love him.

"My pea so good that Adams Son go outa business and his pea, how you say?," top notch, best in Kentucky. You tell him Adams Son. Thirty two dollar heck you a deal."

Now I love Kim Le, but the most Ralph and I ever got for a bushel of peas, sold in that quantity, was 28 bucks. And that's what Kroger's paid me last year until Kim Le came along. I picked up a handful of his peas, munched on one, looked him straight in the eye and said "S18."

The produce manager's eyes lit up like a Christmas Tree. Kim Le's expression was no different than it would have been if I had stuck a dagger into his belly button.

"Twenty eight dollah," he bellowed with fire in his eyes looking straight at me. "Twenty eight dollah my bottom."

I looked at the produce manager and he shook his head.

"Eighteen is the man is gonna give you Kim Le Son," I told him and I turned to walk away. And the manager nodded his head.

"Twenty foah dollah," he yelled so loudly that it caught the attention of several shoppers.

"Twenty two," I replied, "and you'll need to bring them around back to the loading dock."

Kim Le headed for the door to unload the peas and the manager told me he didn't know what he was going to do with that many.

"39 cents a pound and you're still making good money," I told him. "Throw those old wrinkled things you have priced at $2.99 away and put Kim Le's on the rack. You'll be calling him for more on Monday."

And he will. Kim Le does, in fact, have very choice snow peas and they are a bargain at that price. You can also bet your bottom dollar that the price will jump dramatically next week.

But you will never know how much satisfaction I got out of the exchange. I have just described. I've spent my early mornings and evenings and weekends over the last five springs trying to sell snow peas to every Chinese, Japanese, and otherwise oriental restaurant in Central and Northern Kentucky. I've learned how to haggle and you cannot possibly imagine the sense of satisfaction I felt in putting one over on Kim Le.

It may be true that the only reason he took that price had something to do with his desire to see his wife for the first time in days. But I still feel good about it. In fact, I feel wonderful.

In the meantime, I have my own row of peas about a hundred feet long and we are picking them a mess at a time. We've also been sharing some with Loretta's family and a few neighbors. I even took my boss a mess.

We have spinach and mustard greens, radishes, green onions and early golden crookneck squash, red leafed and bibbed lettuce and pak choi to go with the peas and we've been eating so much of that stuff over the last few days that our skin may soon turn green.

Dorothy Amburgey, from Sally's Branch in Laurel County, just sent me Lazy Wife Fall been used to replant the fence row where the peas are growing and to be perfectly honest I'm almost to the point that I wish they were gone.

I have two little shortrows of sweet corn big enough to hoe and I aim to plant some of Bertha McQuery's goose neck beans in it. We should be eating cauliflower and broccoli by the weekend -- and Harvard beans and my oh my what a wonderful thing gardening is.

One of my neighbors told me last weekend that God was going to get me for weeding my garden on Sunday morning. I hope she's right, because that's where I do most of my communicating with God. We are, in fact, no closer than when we are in the garden together. And you don't know how much I thank Him for letting me enjoy peas again.

Moving brings back memories

Commentary
By George Ferrell

This past week, as I prepare to move from my family home of 35 years, I have been rummaging through my now departed parents' belongings.

Among the many items I have run across are pictures -- pictures from days long gone by that are somehow wonderfully valuable to me at this time.

This past week, I found a box of pictures and negatives in my father's study.

Dad passed away in 1977 and I had not taken the time to go through the nooks and crannies of his time-worn study. I found pictures of him from 1918 when he was in the Armed Forces.

Sitting there skinnny and shiny all at once, there is a record of what my father looked like when he was 25 years old.

I have also found pictures of my brother from the 1930s. If there was one thing about Dad, he enjoyed photography. Right in his study are 10 or 15 years of a popular photography magazine.

This is not the first photographic discovery that I have found around the house.

There have been boxloads of old family pictures. This uncle and that aunt or cousin are documented at various ages. These pictures may not have much value to people outside my family, but they are golden to me and my family members. Old cameras took some of the very best and very worst pictures you could ever imagine. At times they could rival a studio and other times they are blurred and poorly focused.

I guess that every family has their collection of photos, the albums filled with school pictures, the first prom, wedding pictures and the like. It is a documentation of the family life.

Too often these pictures lie stuffed in a shelf or closet, out of sight and out of mind. They belong in the lifeblood of the family, though, and are a valuable testament to times past.

After my mother had a stroke in September two years ago, she began to think more about the photos and memorabilia in those albums.

She pulled out one from the time of my birth. It contained cards, church bulletins, letters and other various memorabilia of my birth.

experience. Mom passed away last July 4th, and I have since had the responsibility to manage the affairs of the house as the real-estate transaction approaches.

Finding these pictures, old letters, some dating to and before the Civil War, and various other items has been something of a learning experience.

I imagine the same could be said for most families. The old albums with precious family photos eventually gather dust, the letters are filed away and the memorabilia confined to shelves and closets.

Most of us live fast-paced lives and hardly have the time to sit down and go through family albums.

Let me tell you, though, that it is a worthwhile experience for young and old.

Those old photos give us a sense of family, the knowledge of past generations and a glimpse of ourselves.

Finding pictures of a grandparent, departed for many decades, is very touching.

I have, in my adult life, caught myself mourning over grandparents that I never got to see or know. I can visit the graves, and sense a great loss.

At least with a photograph I can get a glimpse of the past -- seeing them in pictures that are somehow still alive, at least in memory.

Incidentally, there are also some pretty good trivia questions locked away in that memorabilia.

I found ticket stubs to the Rose Bowl, Jan. 1, 1942. Guess who didn't make the trip to California.

No, it wasn't played in California. It was played in Durham, North Carolina because the Japanese were feared to have planned a bombing of the Rose Bowl in Pasadena similar to the bombing of Pearl Harbor. I've even found a pennant bought the day of the game.

Such are the memories. Such are the times of our lives.

Well, that's about all for this week. Take the time to look through some old family pictures -- you might find something there that's pretty exciting.

History Book deadline extended for Rockcastle

The Rockcastle County History Book Committee met June 1. Due to numerous requests for additional time to submit articles of family history, the committee agreed to extend the deadline and will continue to accept family history articles as they proceed with the second phase of the project. The second phase will consist of collection of histories of local institutions and entities. The projected publication date of early 1993 will not be affected by this decision. A 500 word family history and one picture can be published at no cost to the contributor. The committee hopes to publish a 1000 family histories. Please help us reach that ambitious goal.

The date for purchasing books has also been extended. However, in order to assure your copy of the book, it is important that you order and pay for your book at this time. Only a limited number of books will be published and the prepublication prices quoted on the brochure are effective only until the end of the extension period, September 1, 1992.

Rockcastle Council for the Arts will produce "The Fantasticks"

Rehearsals began last week for the Rockcastle Council for the Arts summer musical, "The Fantasticks." After last summers jointly produced "Joseph And The Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" with the Rockcastle Teen Center, the Arts Council has again teamed up with local organizations to bring quality family entertainment to the Rockcastle community. The Family Resource Center and the Rockcastle Jaycees will join the Arts Council in co-producing "The Fantasticks" which is celebrating it's 30th anniversary as the world's longest-running musical.

Like so other organizations getting involved; this not only gives our productions greater flexibility, but also allows us to reach a wider audience.

In addition to old favorites like Jack Lewis, David Phillips, Ed Cortas and Matt Bryant, the cast includes newcomers, April Thorp, Jeffery Burdette and Kevin Isaacs. Shelly Raines, who in past productions has served as stage manager, will appear onstage this year as the mute. Signing will be provided for the hearing impaired and rehearsal space is being contributed by Cedar Rapids Recreation Center. "The Fantasticks" promises to be the Arts Council's most ambitious production to date.

Production dates have been set for July 30-31, and Aug. 1 at the Rockcastle County High School. For more information contact any member of the Rockcastle Jaycees or call the Family Resource Center at 256-2156.

This sign was recently erected on the 461 Bypass at the 25 entrance. It is in honor of David M. Smith, Rockcastle County's only winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor.

New 461 bypass named in honor of David M. Smith

By: George Ferrell
A section of KY 80 from the Rockcastle County line east to I-75 was recently named the David M. Smith Highway. Road signs were put up May 15 without a dedication ceremony. At least some local residents did not realize that Smith was the Livingston man who received the Medal of Honor for his valor in the Korean War.

Smith, born in Livingston, died Sept. 1, 1950, when he smothered a grenade's explosion during combat and saved five men from death or serious injury. The Medal of Honor is the highest order bestowed by the United States Congress. Rep. Danny Ford, sponsor of the naming of the highway after Smith, said he did not have much difficulty getting the honor through the General Assembly.

Ford said he tacked the honor onto a legislative amendment and it easily passed. The sign was put up by the state highway department without a dedication ceremony.

Smith is also honored by a historical marker in Livingston near the place of his home. There is another marker, this one at his grave site, which was put there by the VFW some years ago. The Congressional record states that Smith was a gunner under attack in Korea near Yongsan under attack by a "numerically superior hostile force."

He was ordered to withdraw but was surrounded by the enemy. Then, as a grenade fell nearby, he smothered the explosion, saving the five men around him from death or serious injury. The statement says "Private Smith's inspirational conduct and supreme sacrifice reflect lasting glory upon himself and are in keeping with the noble traditions of the infantry of the U.S. Army."

Income limits increase for Home Loan Program

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) has increased its income limits for all housing programs. According to local FmHA Supervisor Robert Hornsby, the income limits will be increased about 4.5 percent effective June 8. This will expand the ability to provide guaranteed loans for moderate income families to purchase a home, Hornsby noted. The new income limits for the Rural Housing Guaranteed Program are as follows: Number of persons in household and income limit in Rockcastle. One person, $17,150, two persons, $19,600, three persons, $22,050, four persons, $24,500, five, $26,450, six, $28,400, seven, $30,400, eight, $32,350.

According to Hornsby, FmHA guarantees loans to participating lenders for the purchase of new and existing houses up to 100 percent of the funds needed, and the loans are 3-year fixed rate mortgages. There are no square footage size limitations and loans may be approved not to exceed $67,500. Hornsby said that FmHA is giving special emphasis to the Guaranteed Program and hopes to utilize 70 percent of the state's annual allocation of funds by June 30, 1992. Approximately 7.9 million dollars is available for immediate use. For further information and a list of participating lenders, please contact the local FmHA County Office at McKece or phone 606-287-7126.

KET programs honor Kentucky history

KET's salute to the Kentucky bicentennial continues June 14 with encore presentations of a profile of influential attorney Edward F. Prichard Jr. and a series on Kentucky history. Prichard on Politics: The Philosopher Reminisces, will air at 12 noon Sunday, June 14.

History Book deadline extended to September 1

The Rockcastle County Bicentennial Book deadline has been extended to Sept. 1, 1992. Because of the tremendous response, and numerous requests, the publisher has granted extra time to order books and submit family stories and photos for the new book. Hundreds of stories and pictures have already been submitted, and it was felt that hundreds more could be included with an extension of time.

Don't forget to order your own copy of the book! If you wait, you will either not get a book, or you will pay considerably more. In other counties, many were disappointed that they did not order the book during the pre-sale! Word limits are as follows: 500 on each family history. Each word over the limit costs 10 cents (or $10 per 100 words extra). Eight words are allowed for captions on pictures.

Words are counted as follows: Mr. H.M. McCall - three words; Pittsburgh, PA - two words; D.A.R. - one word; December 12, 1978 - three words; twenty-one - two words; WW II - two words; N.A.A.C.P. - two words; V.F.W. - one word, up to and including four letters - one word, five letters or more - two words. If there is space between the abbreviation, it counts as two words. As in WW II.

Book orders and stories are due by Sept. 1. For your convenience, an order blank appears on this page of the Signal. If you'd like more information, attend our next book committee meeting; 1 p.m., Thursday, July 7 at the Senior Citizens in Mt. Vernon. You may write to the Book Committee at P.O. Box 1351, Mt. Vernon, KY. *With regard to abbreviations

"We've had our heat pump three years...and couldn't be happier!"

—David Miles, Richmond, Ky.

"This house is twice the size of our previous one, which was heated with LP gas. But the heating cost is the same!

"The heat pump keeps all the rooms comfortable. It's a lot cleaner than gas. We've got the benefit of both heating and cooling. And it's quiet.

"We don't have a humidifier, but the heat pump doesn't dry the air out as bad as gas does. And we don't have any trouble with static electricity.

"I always recommend that people consider the electric heat pump—especially those out in the country who are unhappy with oil, and unhappy with the fluctuations in LP gas prices. Electricity prices are more stable."

Get the full story on the advantages of the electric heat pump—the all-in-one heating and cooling system. Contact a customer service representative at the local KU office or your heating and cooling dealer.

Roamin' Rockcastle

BY HILDA PAYNE GABBARD

The first thing I want to write is to explain about last week's picture in this column. (I wonder what the editor or printers think you will do, read their minds?)

The name of the sweet faced woman who yet showed the signs of a pioneer who had lived through the hard times of raising a big family.

Her name is Ollie Jane Sexton Abney, wife of Jonathan Abney. She was also mother of Marion Sr. and Della Abney of Indiana, cousins of mine, who were kind enough to loan me the picture.

Several folks called and asked about the picture.

Now I move on to news of the week. I congratulate Ed Davis of the Berea Senior Citizen Center who has received a certificate of appreciation from the Bonner Scholarship Program of Berea College for working with student helpers.

I talked to Phyllis Thomas Hendrick, daughter of Dewey Thomas of Big Hill country, who is a nurse at the hospital. She is not only pretty (spring water drinker) but she's good at her job.

Larry Abrams is going into the bus business. I told him he could expect to be broke all the time. He agreed with me after buying lumber and making hires. He has bought six grades of bees from John.

His grandmother is Annie Abrams who once lived on Anglin Falls Road. Annie will be 93 soon and will celebrate.

If there was ever a pioneer woman, it was Annie. She shows hard work doesn't kill you. Worry will. Annie has remarried but I didn't get her last name.

Henry Voltmer, from our next door neighbor, Indiana, talked to John on the phone because I was out, and said, "It is time us farmers planted corn. It has rained so much it will be hard to get a crop in the ground."

Why, Henry! I thought that all your mind was on is girls!

We saw one of your friends at Renfro Saturday night where we'd gone to see a show - Susan Tomes was doing her usual good job.

John and I stopped to see Clyde and Margaret Linville in Scaffold Cane, hoping they would have a kettle of wild greens cooking. I could have stayed for dinner.

Clyde, who always plants his potatoes early, even wearing an overcoat in order to brag to us how soon he will have new potatoes to eat.

They said Scaffold Cane Baptist Church was doing well with Pastor Wayne Harding as their preacher.

Rosa Finnell, from Berea, a girlhood friend of Margaret's visits them often and cooks dinner for them. Of course, she eats too, but why haven't I thought of that?

Rosa is a great comfort to help Margaret.

The Linville's garden is being raised by kinfolk Moss Linville.

Now why doesn't Clay Gabbard do something like that for us?

Margaret is lucky in that her younger sister, Katherine Mullins Green and husband Bill, from Florida, are spending the summer here living in an apartment over brother Edd and Dorothy Mullins in Scaffold Cane.

This is great for Margaret who still spends some time in a wheel chair but is getting better.

Margaret was once one of those Rockcastle girls who became a rural school teacher who changed the lives of children. But along came Clyde Linville who changed her life and plans when he talked her into marrying him.

I don't often hear from my nephew, Jimmy Taylor Parsons who was raised in Rockcastle but went to Lexington to settle in making a living by owning a print shop.

But living in Lexington with all the big shots hasn't changed Jimmy. He still likes wild greens cooked in fat back or a good brown baked possum!

There may be a wild party going on up Davis Branch Road this Friday, June 12th when Eli Chastee celebrates his 80th birthday. I may be scolded for telling his age (you can't be 79 any longer, Eli!) The woman you robbed out of the cradle, Pearl, told on you.

You and John have so many faults that Pearl and I are thinking of divorcing you since we met a handsome lawyer, Jeffrey Dondanville from Burbank, California. I'll tell more about him next week. But stay ready, Pearl, we could go anytime.

Back to the duck raffle that I'm having of six, white, fat ducks which John is making me sell.

Lonnie Reppert is a good sport. He agreed to buy a ticket and he also told me what a changed man he was since eating the wild greens they ate, brought to him by Emma Gadd and Lucy Alexander from out Big Hill way.

They had read of his wanting some wild greens so bad, he even begged us to go with him.

Lonnie was so pleased that the hill country people had done this for him. He said, "After eating the kettle of greens my wife cooked, I don't feel my age, 40, anymore. I'm a different man, I feel younger." Jack Engle could take note of this!

Bob Herron of the Berea Register bought a chance on the ducks - said he might have to have a talk with his landlord.

Cortley Saylor of Superior Market said, "I'll take five chances on the ducks - I've got some friends I'm going to give a ticket to starting with my kinfolk, Tip Reppert in Scaffold Cane. Then I'm giving one to Sam Colville at the bank!"

But Sam has already bought a chance, I told Saylor.

That's all right - this will give him

U.S. Air Force News

Tambra Lynn Sowder, daughter of Joyo, Sowder of Brodhead, recently enlisted into the United States Air Force, according to TSQT Russell, the local Air Force recruiter in Somerset.

Upon successfully completing the Air Force's six week basic training course at Lackland Air Force Base, near San Antonio, Texas, Tambra will receive technical training in her designated career area.

Tambra, a 1985 graduate of Rockcastle County High School, will earn credits toward an associate degree in applied sciences through the community college of the Air Force while attending basic and technical training schools.

two chances. I want him to take them home to Ruth. She'll sure be pleased!"

You mean killed, I thought. Penny Saylor Quinley, was willing for me to sell Roy, her husband, a ticket.

Roy Quinley said, "Yes, I'll take a ticket. My wife doesn't feed me much. I'll take the ducks to keep from being hungry!"

Law mercy, Roy looks thin! He looks stuffed as a weiner.

Till next week: Sign on a public wall - Children! Tired of being harassed by your parents - act now.

Move out, get a job, pay your own bills while you still know everything!

'Rockcastle County Hospital supports Adult Education'

Dear Editor,

This past fall the Rockcastle County Hospital and the Family Life Center site GED classes for hospital employees.

Hospital Administrator, Lee Keene, said he felt that encouraging employees to further their education benefits the hospital as well as employees.

He pointed to the constant demand for trained medical technologists, therapists, LPN's and RN's and said the hospital is committed to providing the training needed to help meet this demand. For a few hospital employees, the GED is the first necessary step to advancement in the medical field.

The hospital provided a $100 bonus to encourage employees to try to earn the GED and gave employees time during working hours to meet with an adult education teacher in the hospital conference room. Several employees expressed an interest in the program and three enrolled. After four months, the program can now congratulate its first graduate, Joyce Stewart, and wishes her success in continuing her education. Mr. Keene and Lisa Bosley, manager of the adult learning program, believe that similar efforts by other Rockcastle County employers, to offer monetary or time incentives would greatly encourage those employees who need the GED to move ahead in their jobs. Earning the GED also increases peoples' self esteem and helps them encourage their children in their educational efforts. Any employer interested in launching a similar program may call the Family Life Center School at 256-5307.

Sincerely,
Lisa Bosley
Program Manager
