I will be on vacation the first two weeks of August. I hope to return on August 20th so don't forget am and turn all your attention to Ike Adams O'Paig Lick or I will have an achy breakly heart!

The "duck raffle" is over and I guess some of you are as glad as I am to have it settled. David Hale will be glad to know that I ohn had nothing to do with it.

They were my ducks and my raffle context so I did the drawing. Bill Stephens of Scaffold Cane was the lucky (?) winner of six white ducks. Bill has a large pond which will make the ducks hanny.

the ducks happy.
I seem to have caused more trouble than I meant to. Wives and husbands fell out, new married men were about to not be let come home because they might bring six ducks.

Neighbors fell out because the ducks might be put in their pool with a fountain, the wife of a man building a new home was putting them in her kitchen sink because she didn't want to cook or wash dishes.

to cook or wash dishes.

The folks that meant to eat them lost out on meat. I can just see the ducks going up the aisle of Superior Food Mart scattering customers. Some won't get a new featherbed, they were going to make. The ones giving the ducks to their friends sure won't have friends after this.

won't have friends after this.

Thank you all for being kind chough to go along on this gimmlick whereby I got news each weck for his column. Sorry Henry Vollmer didn't get a chance to by a ticket. If he had won, I'd had a terrible time delivering them to Indiana where he lives.

As to the money I was supposed to have made on the ducks, aboutevery-body charged the SI and others gave me "due-bills" which are hard to collect.

Yep, young Dr. William Stewart, who hasn't been there long, from Wildein in good lold Rockeastle. In the headline of the article it said he had come back to the roots (beginnings) of his career.

Yound Dr. Bill said he enjoyed the difference in his practice of car-ning for newborns to 100 year and particles. Wonder if he had me in mind?

Clay Gabbard injured his back while trying to start a lawn mower, of course he will use that for an excuse all summer if there's work to be done. Those weeds will get high, Clay. The Arthur Davidson's on Mene-

Ronnic, a young boy, enjoys driv-ing a 4-wheeler motor bike around in the field and he's pretty good at it. Of course, it's a bumpy ride and I know why Arthur only took one ride behind him once!

Our Gaillee Baptist Church has bought a tract of land just across the coad from the present church and has plans to build a large breath and has plans to build a large building for worship in the very near future.

A picnic shelter house was started by some members who are working on Saturdays to get it ready for Gali-lee's Homecoming on August 2. There is a lot of space which can be used for "singings" and other events.

On Saturday 18, I went out with some food for the men who were giving their time for a religious build-mining. It was very hot so every hot do was drinking all the cold water they could get as well as cans of pop.

On this Saturday, I believe Lee

The men hope to have it ready by the end of the month. Some of the womenfolk have been good about swing out food for the workers. This Standay, the 18th, I planned to sel was going to try.

I went to Superior Market where we do most of our grocery buying. Usually there are lots of people going, standing or coming at the front door but today there was no one - except the owner, Conley Saylor, standing as if he'd been waiting for me for a voice within me said, "This is a good man. Ask him for help." If let a cold chill go up my spine for the voice was so retal and urging. Conley spoke to me then I told about the shelter house that the menour church were building, I asked if he would donate some food to hetir lunch as I dight know if I had brought enough money with me to buy as I planned.

Conley looked hard at me for a minute to see if I was joking as I sometimes do so much, or telling the truth.

Then he said, "Come inside and we'll see what we can do. How many will be eating?"

I gave him a number (counting myself, too) and he went to the counter where the food was already cooked and sliced the meat himself.

I asked for some sliced cheese and told Conley except for bread that would be it.

tota Conney compared to the would be it. He came around the counter, his arms full of packages, while he chewed on a ragged piece of cheese. I could tell he was going to tease. "I cut everybody a slice of cheese but your slice didn't come out so but your slice didn't come out so but your slice didn't come out so like the picture." I bent over laughing at the picture of this tall, nice looking man, his arms full of packages, chewing on a piece of yellow cheese that hung part way from his mouth.

Then he stopped a clerk, Loretta Eheriff Livessy, and toldher tocharge the things I got to him.

I turned my back to get some potato chips, looked around and Conley was gone! I think he would be embarrased by the way I would thank and praise him for his service to the Lord. I don't think to lord did through him.

the ballots came out and how Bertie led the rest.

Anyway what I wanted to say was that I had some of her help last week when I lost my checkbook. I had ordered some checks from a company, had checks out, no checks to draw money from my account, and I was in the worst fix a person could be!

Well, Bertie took over for me, said I needed a new account number, the checks I had ordered were not of any use. I tell you'l was broke, couldn't draw on my account, but in Bertie's hands everything came out alright. So my name can be put on the ballot for Bertie along with all the other grateful people.

off potering around the house to make it more liveable.

Lumber companies sell a lot of suff this time of veyer to vacationing members of those professions. They are building decks, replacing representation of the remodeling projects.

They don't have to worry about work while they are off. When vacation time comes they literally vacate the job and they don't worry much about tuntil they go back. If it has to be done somebody glse is doing it. Most off the time they go back to work and pick right up where they left off.

I've rarely had that luxury, I've never had a job that I could just let lie for a week or two so that I could go off and entertain myself without giving a dam about what might be going on at the couple of occasions when I have had teaching positions with long Christmans breaks, I have managed to obligate myself to a host of extracurrical reactivities that were, in fact, work. Keeping score for hollday tournaments and chaproining trips to puberty land places. It's hard to do much fishing and gardening during the last two weeks of December. And I have never been able to afford a trip to the Bahamas.

Last week I took three days of Last week I took three days of vacation somy nephew, Chris Adams, and I could get in a decent fishing trip to a remote trout stream in The Big South Fork National Park in south-

We also found a little arcaoe room alongside the road leading into the park about 9 miles from our campsite and wonder of wonders, it had a pay telephone. The very thing that I had driven all that way to avoid. But it was there and I had people who really meeded to hear from me. I deas to discuss and proposals to make. Appinements to so schedule and arguments to counter. And on top of all that, they sold Pepsi's in those big 20 ounce bottles that Chris folves so well.

So we spent a lot of time on my vacation making runs to get bottles of pop. And since the phone was there, I accomplished an incredible amount of work. (I also scheduled a lot more even though I didn't take a calendar. The bad about writing stuff down on the back on my hands.) I came back to own't on Monday and promptly forgot two very important appointments with my boss and his boss and the other powers that be. And I spent most of the day on Monday thanking. God for Rachel Simpson, the wonderful, patient woman who agreed to take on the job of keeping up with me and telling me what it is that I need to do next. Rachel just barely kept me from getting into, as the President puts it, deep doo-doo. She caught me just before I was leaving to take care of a bunch of business I scheduled while I was on vacation.

Instead of coming back to work and jumping right back in, I figure it will take an average of I 6 hours a day over the next several weeks, just to manage what I already had to do and sway from the job.

I have two weeks of vacation and 'away from the job.

I have two weeks of vacation and 'away from the job.

I have two the tot it me and maybe then, I'll get some rest out of it.

A Series Of Informative "Plain Talk" Thoughts Regarding Your Money Matters

Your Credit Rating One of the most important assets you will ever have is a good credit rating.

You can't buy a home without it, you can't start a business without it, in fact there is very little you can do without a good credit rating.

How do you establish a good credit rating? First of all, maintain a well-managed checking account. Don't overdraw your account. Secondly, make sure all loan payments are made on time. If you're on time, every time, you avoid late charges as well as establish a history of reliability. Protect your credit and it will serve you well in the future.

Dear Editor, Much is being said about the health Much is being said about the health care program in America. I want to point out some very outstanding fea-tures of AARP's health proposal knows as "Health Care America." The American Asociation of Retired Persons is interested in the health care of every individual in America from birth to death. Health Care America is designed to include those "and" situations, it covers prescrip-"gap" situations, it covers prescrip tion drugs, mental care, hospital and doctor services, X-ray, community based and long-term care, some prebased and long-term care, some preventure measures, quality care and about it. Yes, as in all proposals, show taxes will be needed. But these taxes are much lower than in many proposals and is based over a broad scale so that everyone shares. Also, assets are free.

The "single payer" system system

Cable TV: Improving Prices and Service

In town meetings throughout the Fifth Congressional District, in letters, phone calls and personal visits, one of the things people tell me most often is that they pay too much for cable TV

After hearing all their complaints about cable prices and service, I was finally able to help this past week. I voted for the Cable TV Consumer Protection and Competition Act.

This legislation requires the Federal Communications Commission, along with local governments, to re-regulate cable television rates and service.

That includes setting a cap on the amount cable companies can charge for basic service. It means demanding that cable operators meet minimum standards for service. And it means ensuring that cable operators carry local broadcasters' programs.

Probably the most important of these is the need to check cable rate increases

Television is a window to the world. It should not be a window that is open only to the rich. Average folks should be able to look through it just as easily.

Cable brings valuable, quality programs to our people, and it is often their only source of television reception.

In some cases, however, greedy cable operators have charged outrageous prices for few channels -- and offered poor service as well. Unanswered phones, repairmen who fail to show up and poor picture quality are just a few of the complaints I've heard.

Our people deserve better. And our Kentucky cable companies generally do better. But in cases where they don't, things have got to change.

The Cable TV Consumer Protection and Competition Act will help solve those problems. It will make sure, first, that our people pay fair rates -- and, then, that they get their money's worth McClure doesn't seem to know what the fuss is about. He lives a simple life on his 187 acre farm where he grows corn and tobacco but no livestock.

"I used to have milk cows," he said, but noted that it became diffi-cult to get his milk to the market.

Born and raised in Rockeastle County, McClure was born within a mile of his present home and Rena grew up on just the opposite side of the creek from his old homeplace.

Even at that, William McClure is not a simple man. He has been on the board of directors of the Kentucky Highlands Investment Corporation for over 15 years. "It just got started from people around here holding community meetings," he said.

A few government grants helped get the concern off the ground, according to McClure, and he said that now some 2,000 people are employed because of Kentucky Highlands.

Zebra mussels coming!

Although none have been reported yet, Tom Wilkerson thinks it's "just a matter of time" before the zebra mus-sel infests the waters of Lake Cum-berland. Wilkerson, resource mansel intests the waters of Lake Cum-berland. Wilkerson, resource man-ager with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Somerset, said the ani-mal has spread into the Cumberland and Tennessee rivers and anticipates they will soon spread into the lake.

The zebra mussel is a non-native collusk accidentally introduced into the Great Lakes during the 1980s. They can multiply rapidly and as a result have infested many other waters in the eastern United States.

The major problem with the mol-lusk comes when they infest critical and water intake stations. They can also be a nuisance to boaters when they attach themselves to parts of the boat.

The Corps of Engineers and the Tennessee Valley Authority have recently decided to conduct an environmental assessment of the prob-lem in the Tennessee and Cumber-land River basins. From the report they hope to gain insight into control-ling the mollusk's infestation.

Control measures being considered include chemical treatment, thermal shock, exposure to drying, oxygen deprivation, mechanical removal and

Bro. Aeshal was silent for a moment and then spoke. "My goodness, this means a lot of my members come to church unforgiven and leave unforgiven, thinking they are forgiven?" True but love them just the same, Aeshal. "Whit says he can't forgive the man who bore false witness against him." Those who have been forgiven do not withhold forgiveness from others, whatever the wrong. Your friend has either forgotten that he has been forgiven or he never really faced his own sinfulness and received God's pardon."

"He does know the Bible." Bro.

Asshal said.

"But he doesn't understand the Sermon on the Mount," Dr. Taylor said. "That whole sermon is full of impossibilities, you know."

"You just lost me, Doc."

"I'm saying, Aeshal, that it is humanly impossible to forgive grievous wrongs. But, the One who gave that great sermon is more than human and empowers us to do the impossible."

Bro. Aeshal said, "So, when we really forgive, homes stay together, there are less law suits, and --" "And fewer church splits," Dr.

Taylor added.

When their conversation concluded, Bro. Aeshal set about to finish his Sunday morning sermon. He soon decided that could wait. Instead, he spent the night searching his soul for withheld forgiveness. He fell saleep at dawn, just after saying, "Lord, I dare not speak for You—about anything—if I have failed to forgive anyone."

school is an unusual phenomenon in that it is a school which focuses on a single topic that draws hundreds of professional participants from sev-eral states to a single site. The school offers a wide array of courses for personal development and/or certifiation or graduate credit.

What this has to do with "protec-

All last week I was fortunate to spend at the Kentucky School of Alcohol and Other Drug Studies held at Northern Kentucky University. The tive parenting is this. The reason there is such a phenomenal gathering focused on the prevention and treatment of alcohol and drug abuse, is that this problem in our societies, is escalated to such proportion that it has literally changed America. The wholesome values associated with family, education, and productive work have croded beyond recognition over the past two decades due to tion over the past two decades due to the prevalence of alcohol and drugs. The good news is that this isn't a hopeless situation. But, and this is an enormous but, parents and educators have to change the way they are bring-ing up the next generation. Many of the participants at the school were recovering alcohol and drug abusers. It is common for this population to enter the field of drug prevention and treatment because of their strong desire to spare others the agony they have experienced and caused while they were using. Their knowledge about the disease and their insight into the best approaches to dealing with it are profound. I will try to summarize some key points for those of you who are concerned about your community. We all win if sufficient success it sachieved with those who will lead us into the twenty-first century. mon for this population to century.

It is well documented that most

It is well documented that most alcoholics are born with brain chemistry that is different from that of the generally population. This inherited difference, simply stated, alters their ability to feel pleasure and peace of mind in the same way that others do. As young children, alcoholics often, but not always, behaved differently and typically felt restlessness and mild arriver in ordinary situations. Someanxiety in ordinary situations. Some-times children compensate for these feelings by over-achieving and be-coming "Superkids." Sometimes coming "Superkids." Sometimes children compensate with deviant behavior and unfocused hyperactiv-ity and/or hostility. Not all children who behave in these ways have the brain chemistry of an alcoholic, of course, but a wise parent or teacher will recognize the possibility.

The sad thing is that a person who has inherited that brain chemistry will often experience a sensation of pleas-ure or relief when he tries alcohol, or other drugs, that goes way beyond that experienced by the average per-son. Since we live in a culture that promotes drinking, it is virtually impossible to prevent a curious young person from experimenting, and thus experiencing this sensation that might be compared to that of a myopic individual putting on his first pair of

States and the chain that will cause the young person's life to be completely controlled by the pleasurable sensation he gets from alcohol. Alcoholism is always the choice of the individual Parents do not cause their child to become an alcoholic. But there are some things they can do that might prevent it. 1) They should see that their children are educated as to the biological causes of alcoholism. If there are alcoholism is not provent it. 1) They should see that their children are educated as to the biological causes of alcoholism. If there are alcoholism is not always the alcoholism is a seen alcoholism in the provent it. 1) and alcoholic. Since most young people are alraid of the disease of alcoholism, they may be more likely to abstain, or seek help to abstain it they exceed the warning signs carly, who exhibit unusual or irresponsible behavior, need strong and consistent limits set under the province of them is the province of them of the province of them of the province of them of the province of the province of them of the province of them of the province of the province of them of the province of them of the province of th glasses.

The challenge is to break the chain

No one can choose the genes he No one can choose the genes he inherits, but he can choose to live responsibly enough to overcome the harmful messages his genes (and his environment) give him. Parents must work overtime in today's troubled world to raise children with the strength and desire to let responsible choices, rather than drugs, satisfy them and rule their lives.

Jap beetles are eating tobacco

Tobacco normally is not a choice gournet morsel for Japanese beetles. It's a food they usually don't even try

For some reason, this year seems to be different, said Lee Townsend, Extension entomologist with the Uni-versity of Kentucky College of Agri-versity of Kentucky College of Agri-culture.

"The beedles have been present in many tobacco fields this season," Townsend said. "In some cases they have been feeding on tobacco plane, have been feeding on tobacco plane, More often, however, they just sit on-the foliage and cause no harm." Why are the beetles munching on the tobacco leaves at all?

"The nicotine level, or some other factors of the damaged plant leaf.

factors of the damaged plant leaf, must be different enough from normal that the Japanese beetles are able to feed," he said. "When beetles feed.

Sometimes the beetle feeding is limited to a single plant or a few scattered clusters of plants, Townsend said. While injury can be severe, often an insecticide application is not economically practical. A backpack sprayer can be used to treat specific areas if necessary.

Treatment should be limited, however, since carbaryl of Sevin, the Research finds blue mold strain resisting Ridomil treatments

A strain of blue mold fungus resistant to the commonly used preventive fungicide, Ridomil, has been confirmed in a field of treated to-bacco in Allen County.

"This is the first time we have found Ridomil-resistant blue mold fungus active in Kentucky," said Bill Nesmith, Extension plant patholo-Nesmith, Extension plant patholo-gist with the university of Kentucky College of Agriculture. The blue mold fungus has been active in almost all Kentucky coun-ties in recent weeks, but the Allen County field was the first considerity County field was the first one identified to have a strain of the fungus resistant to Ridomil, he said.

"Field observations have indicated "Field observations have indicated that the resistant strain probably is present at low levels in other fields in several other counties, but this is the first case we have been able to confirm by laboratory assay. We do not anticipate that the resistant strain is widespread at this time," Nesmith said.

said. "The fungus found in the Allen County field caused infection in leaf tissues with 10 parts per miltion concentration of metalaxyl, the active ingredient in Ridomit; usually and y 0.06 parts per miltion is needed to confer protection of tobacco plants on the fungus; he said. Because of the heavy pressure of bue mold in the state, late last week the Kentucky Department of Agriculture Division of Pesticides declared a crisis with the state's tobaccorp and allowed the use for two

Under last week's exemption la-belling, growers are allowed to spray their fields with Ridomil at one quap-per acre sprayed onto the soil, and not the foliage of the plants. In addition, growers who take advantage of the exemption labelling must use either Carbamate WDG or Dithane M-45 as

He cautioned farmers not to start spraying their fields with Dithane M-45 without a great deal of forethought, since this product could leave a residue on leaves that might cause a substantial loss in quality and leaf

"Growers need to know that should they begin spraying their fields with dithane M-45, they may risk having lower quality and lower valued tobacco at harvest, since this product is associated with EBDC residues. Tobacco product manufacturers have made it clear that these residues are not acceptable and that price could be lower if growers use it on their crops," Nesmith said.

In most communities, unless Ridomiol-resistant strains of the fungus are confirmed, the use of Carbamate is preferred, since it does not leave the EBDC residues on leaf tissues, he said.

For each week tobacco is left in fieldsafter topping, it generally gains 150to 201 pounds of weight per acre until it as ripe.

"Growers should not expect yields equal to those obtained without the disease, but yields will usually exceed those obtained if the crop were harvested early." Nesmith said. Early harvest is warranted only when the disease is substantially damaging the upper leaves as well as the lower and mid-stalk leaves, or

Growers who discover not spoot of blue mold activity in fields may want to harvest infected plants immediately to help prevent the spread of the disease. But wholesale, early harvest is seldom warranted, he said. "Early harvest leads to not only lower yields but also to the greaten potential for houseburn," he said.

Advisory Council is appointed

The Advisory Council for off-Campus programs to serve in Rock-scalte County for the 1992-93 aca-demic year has been announced. The council works with college person-nel in developing the schedule of classes and keeps the college in-formed as to how it can better meet the needs of the county. The following were reappointed: Kip Burdine, John Clontz, Donna Hopkins, Betty Jo McKinney, Bige Towery, Ronnie Cash, Lorella De-bord, Tarina Hellon, Lee Keene, and Roland Mullins. The Advisory Council for off-

Dr. Watson said, "We value the input of these citizens in the opera-tion of the college. Over the years, they have performed an invaluable service in making the college truly a community college, serving our en tire service area."
