Nova retraces an infamous medical experiemnt

Herman Shaw considers himself lucky to have lived a long and, for the most part, healthy life. But Shaw, age 90, is especially fortunate because for 40 years he was an unwitting participant in one of the most notorious medical experiments in American history: the Tuskegee Study of Untreated Syphilis in the Negro Male. Nova's "The Deadly Deception," airing on KET at 8 p.m. Tuesday, January 26, investigates the story of this infamous human experiment, which many believe perverted the profession of medical ethics and the relationship between patient and doctor.

- 2. The purchaser(s) shall have the privilege of paying all of the purchase price in cash or paying the bond before maturity by paying the principal amount thereon, together with all interest accrued thereon to the date of said payment.

Auction set at Renfro Valley

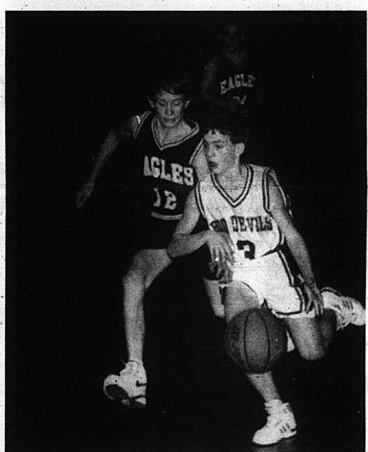

A 1975 Lincoln Continental used by Elvis and a Honda motorcycle owned by Jerry Lee Lewis are just two of the items country and bluegrass music fans can buy at an upcoming auction in Renfro Valley.

"More than 430 items will be for sale at this once-in-a-lifetime auction," announced Sammy Ford, president of Ford Brothers, Inc., whose firm is conducting the auction.

"The Buddy Settles' Collection of Country Music Memorabilia includes some extremely rare items," said Ford. "This collection, some of which has been on display at Renfro Valley, Gatlinburg, Tenn., and Berea, Ky., includes automobiles of the stars, stage costumes worn by recording artists at Renfro Valley and the Grand Old Opry, musical instruments, advertising posters, old 78 RPM records, Elvis memorabilia (including souvenirs from his West Coast mansion)."

"Buddy Settles is well-known in this region as the owner of Settles' Boot Country in Berea," added Ford. "Buddy has been infatuated with country music stars since he was a boy, and has made a point to befriend and get to know them. By having a great interest in country music, his store has become a regular stop for many country stars traveling through the area."

"After accumulating items for many years, Settles is selling his collection to pursue other business interests." (Cont. to 12)

UK plans to dig for artifacts locally

By: Ray McClure

Discovery of artifacts in the Rockcastle Industrial Park site has prompted the University of Kentucky Archaeology Department to dig further for more relics.

Before federal money can be spent at any site an archaeological study must be made of the area to be developed. The county has applied for $570,000 to develop the park known as the Henderson property.

The site is located on old Ky. 461 about 1,000 feet south of U.S. 150. The Phase One survey was conducted at the request of the Cumberland Valley Area Development District to meet the requirements of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966.

The report of phase one by John F. Scarry of the University of Kentucky points out the "proposed industrial Park will involve construction projects that could have significant impacts on any archaeological remains present on the tract."

Scarry reportedly found what appeared to be arrowheads and a glass shard.

The scope of work for the survey called for examination of the project area using a combination of pedestrian reconnaissance and shovel probing.

A total of 61 archaeological sites have been examined in Rockcastle County in the past with a total of 14 sites and 100 artifacts identified at the various sites.

One survey several years ago of mounds near Mt. Vernon was mentioned in the recent survey, but the mounds were not found again.

One discussion of Lambert, states the county has "little of archaeological interest."

But the report points out that two sites in the project area appear to have the potential to yield important information on the Archaic period and its utilization of the Rockcastle region, and trenching of a sinkhole-like depression in the site is worthy of an investigation of the possible presence of buried early components.

The report continues that "soils in the project area could have been used for agriculture, an attractive feature for peoples of the Late Prehistoric period."

"The most likely locales within the project area for prehistoric sites would be in the low rises that separate the several sinkhole - like depressions found in the center of the tract."

Additional investigations will include a contour map of the site and a permanent marker. The site will be plowed and/or disked for better examination.

The 35-page report by Scarry has maps of the area and points to where surveys have been made in the past, but most without noticeable results.

Lambert seeks fourth term

James H. Lambert has announced his intention to seek the Republican nomination for re-election as Rockcastle County Attorney. Lambert, a former teacher of history and English at Livingston High School, also worked for the State Department of Highways. In private law practice since 1976, Lambert was elected county attorney in 1981.

"I have had a careful consideration and discussion with my family and numerous citizens of Rockcastle County, I have decided to seek re-election as County Attorney," Lambert stated. "My family and I have a history of public service wanting to improve our county and the lives of the people. I would like to continue that tradition by serving as county attorney again."

"I believe that only when you have walked with people through the bad times of their lives and shared with them their joys can you really know their needs and how they feel in their hearts. During my years as a lawyer and serving as county attorney, I have seen much heartache and conflict. I have also seen great achievements by our people and our county. We are in a period of growth and positive direction, and I am proud to have been a small part of that. With my experience and knowledge of the county, the people and our history, I believe I can best serve as county attorney."

Lambert is married to the former Brenda Holt who teaches English at the Berea Community High School. He is the son of James W. Lambert, a local attorney, and the late Ruth H. Lambert, who taught in the Rock-

Viewpoints

Points East By: Ike Adams

Ralph King and I, as you already know, are currently on a sabbatical from the pea patch. What that means is that we are studying alternative ways to make a buck growing crops for which the public will pay high dollar while reserving for ourselves the right to re-enter the Snow Pea market.

We have placed intelligence gathering resources in Woodford County who are currently monitoring cultivation activities on Kim Lee Son's farm. Kim Lee, as you may recall, is our Korean rival who planted fourteen acres of peas last year. Word on the street is that he had to eat ten acres of them himself so there is reason to believe that he may vomit at the mere thought of a snow pea. If Kim Lee starts plowing in the next two or three weeks, we'll know what he's up to. If he doesn't, we may plow up an acre or so ourselves.

I'm pretty certain, however that we will plant at least a small crop because we have hit upon a marketing scheme that can't possibly fail. We believe that we can put those little tiny rubber bands that kids use to hold in their braces at strategic locations around a baby pea and force it to mature into a small vegetable that bears a striking resemblance to a guitar.

But that's not all. We are in touch with a precision medical instrument company that can make us a microscopic stamping device that will use tiny needles to replicate Elvis Presley's autograph. As we place the rubber bands around the baby peas, we will also use this device to rapidly engrave the autograph on each pea. As the peas mature, the engraving will expand and puff up like an aphid bice.

And that's still not all. The same company that is producing the engraver is coming up with another device that will enable us to place little nicks in the rubber bands so that they will break apart very easily. In fact, when the pea gets up to about four inches long, most of them should break and fall off in the garden. Removing the ones that don't should be at least as easy as stringing a guitar and we believe that to be a rather insignificant inconvenience to gourmet types who want a pea that is conspicuously fashioned like Elvis's guitar, even containing a 3-D autograph by the king of rock and roll himself.

Ralph maintains that we should plan on raising several bushels with rubber bands that haven't been nicked. His theory is that the rubber band could be plucked like a guitar string to produce a musical note or two and you could actually play "Ain't Nothing But a Hounddog" on your snow pea before you ate it. It's worth trying, but I worry that if the bands are too hard to get off, customers might end up swallowing them and wind up with gastro intestinal problems for which we could be sued.

But Ralph says he wore braces for three years, during the course of which time he must have inadvertently swallowed thousands of rubber bands and they never hurt him a bit. I still think we're going to have to come up with some kind of disclaimer telling folks we ain't responsible if they eat the band, but it doesn't appear to be a problem that we can't work around.

I know that by now some of you readers are probably a bit skeptical about this whole idea, but listen to this.

There are about 3,300 peas in a bushel and we figure we can get at least a quarter apiece for them. If people will pay 29 cents for a postage stamp they never intend to use, they ought to be more than willing to pay a quarter for something as substantial as a snow pea. And the bottom line figures out to $825 a bushel!!!! If we as well get out of the agriculture business altogether.

I believe a man could engrave them on both sides and then freeze them up in clear blocks of ice that you could sell for at least a dollar a shot. Folks could put them in their martinis as a substitute for olives and have the option of eating them or freezing them back when the ice melted.

I'm trying to get in touch with Anita Madden to see if we can't supply her with at least a bushel or two for her derby party alone. And we may even be able to talk the U.S. Postal Service into making them available as a premium for folks who are purchasing Elvis stamps in large quantities. And just think about all the publicity we're going to get from the network newspeople. We'll have to put armed guards around the pea patch to keep the press out of it.

If you have any other marketing ideas, we'd like to hear about them. At prices like this we can probably afford to pay a small commission to some salespeople.

Oh my, I must respond to some misses and queries that have come my way. But next week I'll fill you in on the donkeybuck that ensued at Harmony Chapel Church last week. word has it that some of the saints took to throwing song books. Ooops! The letters.

DEAR JOHN: The first thing I read in The Signal is your column, and I miss it when you don't have one. But I must say that I question some of the things you write. Don't you exaggerate at times?

DEAR QUESTION: Thanks for the management and remember that truth is stranger than fiction. Do I exaggerate? Well, it's hard not to after thirty-eight years of preaching!

DEAR JON NORMAN: Waah waah you write about speaking in tongues. Blasphemy against the Holy Ghost will not be forgiven.

DEAR WATCH: Thanks for the warning. As I understand it, there are two kinds of "longues" mentioned in the New Testament.

One type occurred at Pentecost when Peter preached, and pilgrims who didn't speak Peter's language understood everything Peter said. (This Peter should not be confused with the Peter Piper who picked a peck of pickled peppers.)

The other kind of "longues" is an ecstatic experience and is called a gift by the Apostle Paul (1 Cor. 14), who wrote that he himself spoke in tongues. But he also said it is unintelligible and ought not be done in public unless there is an interpreter—because it does not build up the church. He preferred prophecy (inspired preaching), which can be understood.

A recent barb in this column stating that speaking in tongues "kills kudzu" was evoked by some of the charlatans I see on television who seem to worship the unholy Spirit.

Last fall I read a graffiti on a college professor's door that reads for me:

1. Diversity among Christians believers is appropriate. God doesn't even make two snowflakes alike. —David Seaman, seminary professor

2. Noha sabucto muharabshundhi aialah foolyee. —Robert Tilton, television evangelist

3. Why does God make so many snowflakes? —Michael Peterson, college professor.

P.S. My wife declares that I speak an "unknown tongue" in my sleep when I eat a fried egg and horseshish on rye sandwich just before going to bed.

DEAR JOHN NORMAN: Some things you write make me wonder if you believe the Bible is the literal Word of God? You are a moderate did, and you did your preacher uncle, Ben Hillard. I hope you haven't gone liberal? The seminary has ruined many a good man.

DEAR WONDER: I appreciate my seminary experience; it did me no harm. Whatever is "ruined" in me is my own doing.

I take the Bible to be the written Word of God and believe it should be understood literally, meaning the "literal" sense in which it was first written. (Thank heaven for good translations.) The Bible contains prose and poetry, history, law, fable, sermons, songs, apocalyptic (end-time, humor, parables, prediction, prophecy, gospel, letters, symbolism, literalism, and much more). The Bible is more than literature, but it is literature, and that is a guide to interpretation.

If I make a statement symbolic that was meant to be literal, I abuse the Scriptures. Likewise, if I make a passage literal that was meant to be symbolic or representative, I also abuse the Word. Some verses are true to fact; some that are not true to fact are true to life.

Poetry, for instance, is not always literal truth, but it is truth nonetheless. (One-third of the Old Testament is poetry. If you're bound to the King James Version you'll never know that.) Again, when I read a parable, I look for one central truth and do not magnify each part. And I keep in mind that the parables of Jesus are about the kingdom of God and not the local church. The two aren't the same.

Permit me to speak of my own religious family: Southern Baptists (primarily pastors, professors and their wives) are today at odds (an understatement, for sure) with each other about the interpretation of Scripture. The origin of the skirmish goes back at least to the fifties when a prominent Texas preacher, who had even earlier graduated from the tion of the dead. But not so the Sadducees, and that, of course, is why they were so sad, you see."

been stopped until Hussein was ousted from power.

Hussein, who is immensely popular in the Arab world, is the focal point for resistance from the west.

Having largely put his region through the terrors of war for nearly a decade, first with Iran and then with the West, Hussein is little more than an egomaniacal despot.

The fact that he has pursued the production of nuclear weapons should give the world pause, for he would surely use them if he had them.

That's a terrible but truthful analysis. So far, United Nations teams have found evidence that Iraq was closing in on nuclear capabilities.

That was the basis for President Bush's order for bombing of a factory eight miles south of Baghdad.

Bush, having been forceful yet prudent in winning the Gulf War, left unfinished business with Hussein still in power.

The only argument which would support that idea is that it's better to have the devil you know than one you don't.

I can't say that I disagree with that sentiment and yet it seems that an ouster of Hussein could end the suffering of the people of that region—suffering that was caused by Hussein and his grand military delusions.

President Clinton, inheriting a policy from former President Bush, will have to be forceful in taking over the helm, but he must push for a process that will disarm the military machine Hussein has assembled over the years. At least, the machine that survived the Persian Gulf War.

America's presence in the Gulf region is no longer a toe-hold—we are there to protect the peace and the people of that region as well as the strategic interests of the West.

Well, on another note, Governor Brereton Jones has released a booklet called "The First Year in the Administration of Governor Brereton Jones."

The glossy 40-page booklet covers each area of government in the state of Kentucky.

Jones, an ambitious campaigner who made a number of promises to the electorate, seems to be proud of his record.

In a number of areas such as campaign finance reform, gubernatorial succession and eliminating politics from state architectural and engineering contracts, this administration has worked diligently to strengthen the office of Governor and to restore confidence in state government.

Jones also said he was proud of his record for the appointments of women and other minorities to high levels of government.

Jones is looking to the nation's capital for some help. The state really needs it — what with the budget shortfall and the many pressing needs.

In his letter to "fellow Kentuckians," Jones says "as we enter the second year of our administration, we look forward to a close productive working relationship with President Clinton and Vice President Gore, and I have directed all cabinet secretaries to accelerate their efforts in Washington, D.C. to ensure that Kentucky gets its full share of federal funding available to our state."

That's a long-winded way of saying "Hey Bill and Al—send money!" but basically Jones seems to be optimistic that support and programs from the Clinton/Gore administration could be forthcoming.

Looking through the booklet, one finds Education, Arts, and Humanities Cabinet and an analysis of what has been done in that area despite a $400 million dollar budget shortfall. Jones has repeated his support for the Kentucky Educational Reform Act (KERA) many times as well as his support for higher education.

In terms of action, Jones has done well to eliminate political influence from the appointments of state college and university boards of trustees and regents.

Under Jones' system, potential appointees must be pre-approved, based on qualifications and not politics.

In other areas, the administration has followed through on many of Jones promises.

One was cut the number of state employees — this was done by reducing employees from 41,972 to 40,555 reducing their number by 1,417 at a rate of 6.7 percent.

In spite of the cutbacks, Jones administration has targeted $15 million in federal funds to meet the state's most severe housing needs.

The booklet also claims that the Kentucky Housing Corporation has saved $600,000 by aggressively investing in long term securities.

One other area worth of note is that this past year at Derby time, Jones did not sponsor a lavish Governor's breakfast, instead channeling the $100,000 in savings to the Kentucky Housing Corporation to aid homeless Kentuckians.

The report is somewhat impressive. Jones hasn't had much fun with the media but should get his due before the end of his administration.

Well, that's about all for this week.

Several MVES students will again be participating in the University of Kentucky Gifted Education program this semester.

Tiger Pause

The twelfth annual BIT is history. Boyle County Middle School won the championship and MVES was runner-up. Congratulations to Wayne County and BES cheerleaders who shared first place. We want to thank the BVFD, PTA, and faculty and staff of BES. Special thanks to the BIT committee and especially, Mrs. Shirley Martin for the orchestration.

Andy McKinney, son of our principal, Mark McKinney and Mrs. Sharon McKinney, has designed the BIT program cover, for the last few years. These framed covers are on display at our school. We thank you, Andy, for sharing your talents with our school.

Pizza, being the choice food of most young people, is often used as an incentive. Pizza parties were quite common this week. Mrs. Katreka Cash's fourth grade homeroom won a pizza party for collecting the most canned foods for the REAP Food Drive. Mrs. Kathy Reynolds' fourth grade enjoyed their second pizza party for having good attendance. Mrs. Lillie Parson's primary levels 3 and 4, enjoyed a party last week as a reward for good attendance.

The SDBM will meet February 2. We continue to stress that the meetings are open to the public and encourage your attendance/input regarding your child's school.

The PFA did not have a meeting in January. The next meeting is Thursday evening, February 11.

The BES Advisory Council will meet Thursday evening January 28, at 7 p.m.

The Scholarship Fund Dance is scheduled for Friday evening, Jan. 29. The dance will be in the BES gymnasium.

Thus far, the following students have qualified to compete in the BES Spelling Bee. Andrew Gisler, Craig Sowder, Josh McKibben, Josh Fetters, Jeremy Saylor, Ashley Scoggin, Misty Jones and Josh McClure. The school's winner will be chosen and will represent us at the district level.

Thursday, January 21. We hope to have a Brodhead student representing Rockcastle at the state competition in Louisville.

Harry Sagraves won the new bicycle at the Principal's assembly Friday afternoon. For each week of the six weeks grading period a student having perfect attendance, puts their name in for a chance to win a new bicycle. Many students have their names in six times.

STATTIC, the Primary team of Mrs. Dyehouse, Mrs. Graves, Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Blanton, Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Bradshaw, enjoyed a tasting party last week. The activity was a culmination of a unit of study.

Roamin' Rockcastle

By Hilda Payne Gabbard

It has been hard to get news with the weather being so rainy these last few weeks.

"Your path crosses mine, I will be able to write about you or if I hear of you."

I send congratulations to Rockcastle representative Danny Ford for being elected to one of the eight leadership positions in the House of Representatives in Frankfort. It was said that he is a man of integrity and honesty (and boy, don't we need that kind down here).

Why of course being a good old boy from the mountains, Ford will do a good job for the people.

Mary Ann and Al Williams will be taking their usual vacation trip to Florida near the end of January. I asked Mary Ann if she would be taking her last year's bathing suit.

"Why of course I am! I may even get a new one, a bikini to take along with me."

John and Clay Gabbard are planning to raise sorghum cane this year and sell molasses. Already, John has contracted two gallons to folks who want the molasses.

They were over at the head of Lake Linville, Renfro Valley last week when John met Virgil Abney, son of Lester Abney.

Now if anybody has a drop of Abney blood in them, I claim kin.

Virgil was surprised to find out that John was the husband of the "Roamin' Rockcastle" writer.

"Why we read that all the time in the Signal and like it," he said.

"I'm always glad to have good readers and kinfolks. We may go and stay a few days with them this winter if they have killed hogs."

Back to New Year's resolutions that I've been getting this month.

Joan Keith, the pretty daughter of Jack and Jean Eggle said, "I'll try to make everybody around me happy for the year." (What if your husband says, no to a new dress?)

Wayne of Hair Plus says, "I will take as many trips to Florida this spring as I can. (He probably hopes to see Madonna there.)"

Wayne will bring his customers a drink in a cup but he will never say what's in the cup and we're supposed to think that it is coffee! Makes the customers happy.

Donna Anderson at Berea Health Care Center, activity director, did a good job during Christmas by all the things she had the residents do for Christmas.

Tommy Saylor, a manager at Superior Market, when asked for a resolution said, "I will treat all old customers as well as I do my dear old granny." (I wonder if he ever hugs grandma!)

Brenda Caldwell who makes very lovely flowers out of meat for the decorations in the cold foods display resolved, "I'm going to find myself a husband!"

Becky Hogan of I-75 shell station resolves to see that Sam and Dave (owners) keep on the mark of giving every customer good service.

Eta Davis who supervises the Berea Senior Citizen Center resolves to not get into as many things as she did last year.

Etta says the new center that is being built on Jefferson Street plans to open on April 6th. Keep that date in mind.

I saw Tom Schultz in the grocery in the check out line.

He is sporting a beard and I wonder if it isn't for the church Easter play again.

A woman in the line before Tom got so excited and said, "Isn't that the woman who writes for the paper?"

I did not get her name but Tom turned around his cart and got in line behind me to talk. He is one of the nicest people I know and a husband to boot, another great person.

Neurotic Miracle from Fairview took a trip to Florida recently. That is a nice change for the horrible weather we've been having here.

I hear Jim Lunsford from Ohio was in the office recently asking about me. He is an old friend I haven't seen in years, and he reads the Citizen.

Brenda Lambert has the right idea about celebrating birthdays. It seems so many of her kin were having a birthday in November last fall that she and husband, Jim, threw one big birthday party all at one time.

There was lots of food and gifts. It seems Jim wanted to claim November for his birthday month since everyone had such a good time.

Mary Payne of Berea, Jerry Payne of Lower Clear Creek, also John and I were guests at Cleve and Blanche's home for Christmas dinner. The food was wonderful but do you know that snowstorm that day came right about the time we began eating.

John was afraid we could not get up Holt Hill because the roads were getting slick. We had to cut short on eating the dinner and hurry back to Berea.

Now I didn't get to eat all that I wanted so I thought I'd do like an old woman did my mother long ago. She pretended to go back to the kitchen to get a drink of water after dinner before she went home. She filled her dress bosom with back bones left from dinner and took them home with her. Tell you I had that in mind in taking some of Blanche's good food home with me.

People in passing

John and I went to the bread shelves in Foodtown and I walked past a woman without looking into her face.

I heard John speak to someone and laugh as he said, "Hilda would walk all over you without speaking and I turned to see Evelyn Bultens who is a relative."

I apologized to her and said, when "I'm in a grocery store, I don't see anyone."

Till next week: Live, learn, then pass it on.

Library announces programs

Preschoolers ages 3 - 5 1/2 will once again have special storytimes at the Madison County Public Library in Berea. The programs will begin on Feb. 2 and run every Tuesday for 8 weeks. Programs will begin at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. and last for 45 minutes.

The "After School Group" (6 to 8/2 years) will meet every Thursday at 3:30 p.m. beginning Feb. 4 and running for 8 weeks. During this session, a number of the programs will give emphasis to the Native American Indian Culture. Local Artist, Pam Rockwell, has designed four of these programs to give children an exciting and insightful look into Native American's respect for Mother Earth and their wonderful artwork. Projects will include hands on making of paint from local clay deposits, and hammering of copper into containers for the paint. The end product will be a book made to hold each child's own story and artwork. As always it is free at the Madison County Public Library. For more information contact Stan Harris at the library 986-7112.

POET'S CORNER

The Thirty Million
Dollar Toilet
By: Preston Parrett

American astronauts traveled in style
As into outer space they rode,
For they'll be the world's first humans
To use a thirty million dollar commode.
The shuttle's solid waste system is really very neat,
It even has a foot holder
Where they can place their feet.
It's like an old one holer
Where one could sit on his seat,
And it even has tissue in a cabinet
To keep your butt tidy and neat.
The urine collection system
Is really very highly complex,
It can even be adapted
For use by either sex.
The foot pedal mentioned above
Turns suction on and off for urine flow,
And carries it into the collection tube
Which is located down below.
Now I've fully written about
The part that removes the liquidified
Now we need to move to the rear
And discuss the solidified.
Air suction pulls away the waste
That is excreted by the body,
Then centrifugal force separates waste from the air
For we don't do anything halfway or shoddy.
They devised a new method for compacting waste
Then put in a removable container,
Making longer space flights possible.
Now that's really a brain strainer.
To further elucidate for my friends
And make sure that they understand
I'm going to give a prime example
Of how to duplicate the 30 million dollar can.
Take a vacuum hose with a double nozzle.
Put it on a wet and dry vac,
Then one can simultaneously clean
Both ends at one crack.
Friends, don't think I've left out air separation
For there's another way you know,
That's to take along Gas X
And a six dollar bottle of Beano.

A Weary Pilgrim By: Pearl Newton

As I was traveling out the road
I saw a man with a heavy load
As I slowed down in the snow and sleet
I watched each step of his weary feet
I stopped the car and opened the door
He gladly climbed in, sat his load on the floor
I said, my friend, I don't think we've met
Because a face I hardly forget
He reached me his hand and mumbled his name
I saw he was handicapped, without any thumb
As we traveled slowly out the slick road
I learned of his past and where he abode
I said do you have folks or are you alone
Then the things he told me I could hardly alone
I fought for our country so you could be free
Now just look what's happening to me

I can't drive a car, I have to walk, you see
Because folks are too busy to bother with me
I wonder when I cross Jordan to the side
Will the folks over there still have their pride
Will we all be as one on that great day
Where there'll be no weary pilgrim
Traveling on their way

A lovely little golden head
Is growing very fast...
Her world is most exciting
As her baby days are past,
Exploring this, exploring that,
A precious little tyke
And getting almost anything
With just a "Pretty please."
How very dear to all our hearts...
How very soft and sweet,
A tender bit of "Little girl"
That makes each day complete!
A kiss, a hug, a charming smile;
She holds a store of these,

And she can win you every time
With one sweet "Pretty please."
No tears must mar those big blue eyes
No hurt must chase her smile
She'll be a little girl like this
For such a short, short while;
So if she's spoiled a little bit,
It matters not we say
For childhood is a precious dream
That we must keep that way.
Her heart is filled with childish love
How thrilling is her touch
And what a joy when from her heart
She says, "I love you much."
I'd do most anything at all
She's such a darling tease
And she can ahve my world and all
For just a "Pretty Please."

Protective Parenting

By Ginny Gilpatrick

Our pastor related his experience as a young boy aspiring to Little League fame: he reportedly went to bat and made out for his team on called strikes. When his father asked him why he didn't swing at the ball he replied that he was afraid he would miss it!

Fear of failure is a crippling illness that afflicts most of us from time to time. Think of the collective score of telephone calls, dates, job interviews and opportunities that have been missed because of fear or rejection or failure. The way this phenomenon is most often seen in the classroom is in the form of incomplete or "lost" papers. "If the teacher never sees it I can't fail," is the way the subconscious reasoning goes. At home it may be avoidance of chores and responsibilities that tips the parents off to the realization that the child is insecure and afraid of doing something wrong.

Children are taught to be insecure; they are not born that way. A famous social scientist, Erik Erikson, has identified certain stages that children pass through as they develop and has observed that children who are successful at one stage progress confidently to the next. On the other hand, if they experience lack of acceptance or discouragement at one stage they are more likely not to succeed at the next.

According to Erikson, infants learn to either trust or mistrust their world before they reach their first birthday. If the infant's needs are met and if parents communicate genuine affection, the child will think of the world as safe and dependable. If care is lacking, babies will learn fear and moving into toddlerhood, the child who has learned to trust (or mistrust) his parents should be allowed independence to do those things he is capable of doing for himself. He needs supervision for his safety, but if parents become impatient and step in and do things for him he will begin to doubt his own ability. This is a crucial stage because if he is not allowed to experience a sense of his own competence he will develop feelings of doubt and shame which will become part of his personality.

The healthy child of four or five begins to take initiative and plan out projects for himself. This can be a little messy or aggravating for the parent who likes to have ultimate control. But if parents can relax and encourage the experimental phase so gloriously expressed by kindergartners they will be rewarded with a confident child who is eager to try new things. But the child who is made to feel that his efforts are annoying will develop guilt. Guilt causes a child to withdraw.

The child entering elementary school, then, may have had five years of acceptance and encouragement or may have been scarred by significant amounts of rejection. Around age six a child's behavior is dominated by intellectual curiosity and performance. He wants to produce things and he develops a sense of industry. If the child is encouraged to make and do things well, helped to persevere, allowed to finish tasks, and praised for trying, he will not worry about failure. Of course not all of his efforts will be successful, but encouragement and love will enable him to take setbacks in stride. What produces the crippling sense of incompetence is sarcasm, criticism and disparaging remarks from people he loves.

Teachers and peers as well as parents give children positive and negative messages at each stage of development. But parents usually have the most impact because the child is bonded to them. With his father's patient encouragement, the pastor reports that he finally started to swing at the ball. Actively striking out was probably equally painful. . . but the day he finally connected with the ball brought him the thrill that transcended his feelings of agony.

Each child has the power in him to send some kind of ball, or ideal, soaring. Parents just need to help them swing with confidence.

"Teaching My Father to Read"

A story from a literacy tutor...

Reading has always been very important to me. I have enjoyed it immensely and it has always been a big part of my life. My father, on the other hand could never seem to understand why I loved reading so much and what it gave me. All through my childhood, I just thought my father didn't like reading; and then one day I watched him struggle to read an ad in a T.V. Guide and I realized why he didn't like reading. It was because he could barely read anything.

So, I attended a literacy workshop and started tutoring my dad in reading and writing. He is enjoying it a lot and so am I. It means a lot to me to be able to give him something this special and this important to him because he has given me so much. It makes me feel great inside and very proud to see my father enjoying his reading. There is a lot of hard work ahead, but I'm sure he will succeed and someday will read and write anything he wants to. That will be a great day.

If you would like to help someone learn to read, please call Rockcastle County Literacy at 256-5307.

ramblings . . .

by: perlin m. andarkin
I know it's for a good cause and all that but the current Easter Seal campaign has flattened our family financially.

Allison, our first grader, was tearing around soliciting donations right and left for each basket she could make. I pledged a $1.00 for each (after all how many baskets can a first-grader who can't usually walk and chew gum at the same time make in a three-minute time span) but her father, not to be outdone, came behind me and pledged another $1.00. Then her sister, Paige, also tossed in a $1.00 each (after assuring me she wouldn't make over 2 or 3). We pulled-in in our horns a little on Travis because he has burnt us before and only pledged $.50 each.

It's a good thing we got a little stung with Travis because Allison popped 40 baskets and Travis 77.

I asked Allison if someone in the gym obliged her by holding her up and letting her drop them in. She took offense and let me know they were all from the lay-up area. Allison's brother-in-law later told me that if he hadn't been in the gym at the time she was shooting and blocked five of her shots it really would have been outrageous. I only wish he had blocked several more.

Actually, I'm not complaining too much. Easter Seals is a worthy organization and the children have a sense of pride in helping others and we can skip on our grocery bill for a couple of weeks.

But, then, anyone on a diet as I am doesn't need too much for groceries. Actually, I am rather proud of myself. I lost three pounds the first week but after about two days, I checked the diet schedule -- I am neither a rocket scientist or Philadelphia lawyer and besides that just not smart enough to keep track of my fats, proteins, fruits, vegs, breads, etc. besides that I have a few other things to do with my time such as sewing, reading, watching T.V., working a little.

I knew all the time where most of my extra weight was coming from -- a ferocious sweet tooth that becomes active when I open my eyes of a morning and is only held in abeyance by a few hours of sleep at night.

I have managed to tame it somewhat in that I no longer feel I can't make it through the day without a nice Dolly Madison Cherry pie chock full of every artificial preservative and sweetener known to man. But, bread is a different matter and I may never conquer my craving for light bread, corn bread, biscuits, rolls, spoon bread -- you know a few of the staffs of life like those. And we won't even talk about the eight glasses of water per day.

As I get older, the more truth I find in the cliché that everything I like is either illegal, immoral or fattening.

KET program examines little-known Kentuckian

Henry Ward arguably has had a more lasting impact on Kentucky than some of its governors, yet most people don't know who he is, according to Peter Van Howe, producer of Hammerin' Hank, Henry Ward: A Kentucky Original, which airs on KET as part of the series Kentucky Independents Present at 11 p.m. Saturday, January 30.

Issues of concern to all citizens featured on KET

Programs on KET for the week of January 24 focus on the transition period of the new administration and some of the problems it faces: the conflict between artistic expression and social responsibility, the crisis in national health care (and a chapter from the past), and how to re-engage alienated citizens in the political process. Meanwhile, Nature goes along on a cheetah struggles to bring up a family in the land of lions, and Masterpiece Theatre presents Dame Wendy Hiller as "The Countess Alice."

Nature Chronicles a Struggle for Survival

Nature studies cheetahs -- their behavior and their struggle to survive against almost insurmountable odds -- in "Cheetahs in the Land of Lions," airing on KET at 8 p.m. Sunday, January 24.

The program follows a female cheetah and her small cubs as they face the dangers of predatory lions and hyenas on the Serengeti Plain of Tanzania. Lions kill cheetah cubs when they can't get for food, but to reduce future competition for food. They also will steal fresh kills from cheetahs, who cannot fight off the much larger cats.

"I have an extensive background in and with social and public service programs," Brown said. "My experience uniquely qualifies me for the office of District Judge. I am deeply committed to the fair and just treatment of those who might appear before me regardless of social status, race, religion, national origin or handicap."

"My previous work has required me of patience, compassion, open-mindedness, the ability to recognize bias, and an appreciation of human diversity. These qualities will certainly be beneficial to those who would appear before me in District Court," said Brown.

"I have a lengthy record in advocating for women's rights," Brown continued. Recently, the 28th district led the state in the area of services to victims of domestic violence. I want to see that that distinction remains in this area."

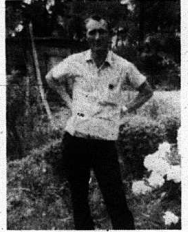

"As judge, I will champion all victims' rights with equal fervor. I believe in the rights of the individual and justice that is tempered with mercy," Brown said.

"One of my goals as District Judge would be to focus on alternative sentencing in ways which more appropriately impact criminal behavior and which would discriminate less between those with money and those without money. I am also interested in mediation and in lessening the adversarial nature of legal proceedings," he concluded.

Brown, an avid runner, participates in numerous long-distance races, including some marathons, each year. Brown is married to Brenda K. White, a social worker and former Director of Bethany House Spouse Abuse Center of Somerset and Family Life Abuse Center of Mt. Vernon. She was also Director of Somerset Community College's Transitional Support Services program.

according to Ford. Most of the extensive collection was first displayed at Settles' own Museum of the Stars in Berea, and then later moved to a museum connected with the Renfro Valley Entertainment Center.

The Renfro Valley Entertainment Center is internationally known, and has been home to country and bluegrass music for more than 50 years.

The items up for auction range from a guitar autographed by the late Keith Whitley to a stage dress worn by Kitty Wells, a photo autographed by Roy Rogers, a suit worn by Red Foley, a 1943 Grand Ole Opry poster of Hank Williams, and framed 78 RPM records recorded by Gene Autry.

There are several automobiles to bid on, including June Carter Cash's 1965 Cadillac, a 1963 Cadillac owned by the late Lefty Frizzell, and a 1972 Cadillac Fleetwood owned by Merle Travis (a member of the Country Music Hall of Fame), that bears the "16 Ton" license plate referring to his famous song as recorded by Tennessee Ernie Ford.

The auction will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 30, at the Renfro Valley Entertainment Center, located just off Exit 62 on Interstate 75. There is an $8 charge for a catalogue which admits two people.

For those who want to make the auction a two-day event, a "Tunes and Treasures Weekend" has been planned with a special wintertime Renfro Valley country music performance to be held at the new barn Friday, Jan. 29, at 7 p.m. The evening will feature country and bluegrass music with a lively blend of comedy.

Tickets are $10 per person. Either event can be attended separately. For more information call 800/435-5454.

Mt. Vernon takes second in Brodhead Invitational; Roundstone places fourth

As expected, a capacity crowd turned out for the finals of the 12th annual Brodhead Invitational Tournament at Brodhead Elementary School this past Saturday night.

And like last year, it was an out of county team that prevailed and claimed the rights of champions in this year's tournament.

Boyle County overtook the strong Mt. Vernon Red Devils in the championship game, 38-24.

However, Mt. Vernon started out of the chute strong. Point guard Travis Anderkin banged in two three-pointers early on to put the Red Devils up 14-10.

But second quarter woes proved fatal for Mt. Vernon as they went scoreless in the quarter.

On the other end of the floor, Boyle connected for 16 points to take a big 26-14 lead into the half.

The charity stripe did not play an important part for either team during the game. The Red Devils connected on only one of four chances while Boyle got only two of four attempts.

The Mt. Vernon defense appeared much sharper in the third quarter as they limited Boyle to only six points. But with a continued sluggish offense, the Red Devils countered with only seven points of their own to still trail 32-21.

Both defenses remained steady in the fourth quarter as Boyle managed only six points while the Red Devils garnered only three for a final of 38-24.

Scorers for the Red Devils were: Travis Anderkin, 9; Andrew Simpson, 8; Dusty McClure, 3 and Jonathon Cromer, 2.

In semi-final action Thursday night, Mt. Vernon rallied in the second half to defeat the Roundstone Eagles, 52-38.

The Eagles took charge of the game early on as they led the Red Devils, 16-9, in the first quarter of play. Shane Whittemore led the Eagles with 13 points and helped lead them into the half with a two point margin over the Red Devils, 27-25.

The makings of an upset proved otherwise in the third quarter as the Red Devils put a sticky defense on the Eagles to keep them scoreless in the quarter. In turn, behind Dusty McClure's 22 points, the Red Devils posted 13 points to take the lead for the first time in the game, 38-27.

One key factor in the game was the charity stripe. While the Red Devils did shoot poorly from the line, making only 14 of 34 attempts, it was enough as the Eagles reached the free throw line just 12 times and made only five.

Scorers for the Red Devils were: Dusty McClure, 22; Ronnie Vanzant, 8; Travis Anderkin, 8; Andrew Simpson, 5; Malcombe Shepherd, 2; Matt Ford, 2; David King, 1 and Matt Sowder, 1.

Scoring for the Eagles were: Shane Whittemore, 13; Brian Bullen, 10; Jimmy Kidwell, 7; B.J. Bradley, 4; Brian Bussell, 2; Eric Powell, 2. Waynesburg edged out the Roundstone Eagles, 45-39, in the consolation game for third place in the tournament.

The Eagles took the early advantage with a 14-12 lead in the first quarter. They were led by Shane Whittemore's 14 points and Brian Bullen's 10 points.

The game proved close for the remainder as Waynesburg took only a 22-21 lead into intermission.

While only a two point margin separated the two teams in the third quarter, 32-30, it was the charity stripe that eventually stretched out the Waynesburg hold. They were successful in connecting for 11 of 15 from the stripe. The Eagles got only five of 10 tries for a six point difference from the free throw line and a six point difference in the final score, 45-39.

Scoring for the Eagles were: Shane Whittemore, 14; Brian Bullen, 10; Jimmy Kidwell, 9 and B. J. Bradley, 6.

The Mt. Vernon Red Devils placed second in the Brodhead Invitational Tournament.

The Roundstone Eagles finished fourth in the BIT.

Lady Rockets edge Estill, 69-67; lose to 10th ranked Garrard

With one win and one loss this past week, the Rockcastle County Lady Rockets have now moved their seasonal record to 4-10.

Their loss came last Thursday to 10th ranked Garrard County, 64-45. They came back in Monday's action with a win over Estill County, 69-67.

In Monday's high scoring action, the pace was set in the first quarter as the Lady Rockets punched in 18 points while Estill garnered 16.

The pace continued in the second quarter as Estill zeroed in from long range to connect for three three-pointers to take a slim one point advantage into the half, 31-30.

Lady Rockets' head coach Christy Beaver credited the Estill offense but was also disappointed in her squad's defense as well.

"I don't think we played very good defense, we stood around a lot," she said. "I also don't think we blocked out like we should have."

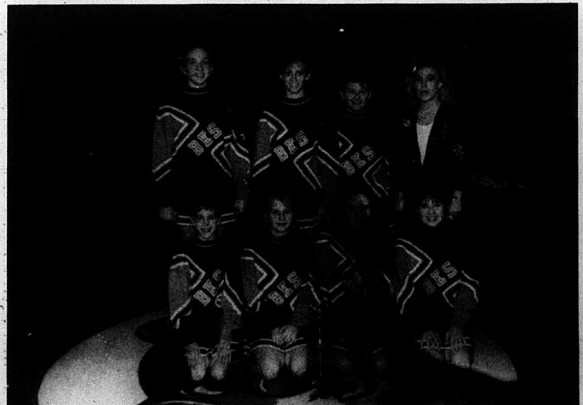

Junior Cindy McCauley, who gathered up the game's high point total with an impressive 31 points, caught fire in the third quarter by posting 15 points in the Lady Rockets' surge to re-gain the lead, 48-44.

"We had some good performance. (Cont. to B-2)

Organizational baseball meeting

There will be a baseball organizational meeting at Rockcastle County High School Monday, January 25 beginning at 7 p.m.

Anyone interested in helping with the new baseball facilities is urged to attend. Everyone is welcome.

The Brodhead cheerleading squad tied for first place honors with Wayne County in the cheerleading category of the Brodhead Invitational Tournament.

The Mt. Vernon cheerleaders placed third in the cheerleading category of the BIT.

Rockets struggle with three straight losses

It was a tough week for the Rockcastle County Rockets as they suffered three losses to drop the seasonal mark to five wins and 10 losses.

They were edged out by Barbourville Tuesday, 67-66. They also fell to host Garrard County, 85-72, last Friday and to host Jackson County, 61-56, last Tuesday.

"We've been coming out flat," said head coach Clayton Cash. "We have really lacked intensity."

"I think we should have won the last three games that we have lost," he added.

The Rockets started on the right foot against Barbourville Monday. They jumped out to an early 23-15 lead and were able to maintain a three point edge until the half, 37-34.

But a six point third quarter for the Rockets allowed Barbourville to jump out in front for the first time, 51-43.

Barbourville carried their biggest advantage - the free throw line - into the fourth quarter to edge out the Rockets, 67-66. They nailed down 21 of 25 attempts while the Rockets got only three of five attempts.

Scoring for the Rockets in the game were: Corey Craig, 18; J.D. Bussell, 10; Mikhael Shaffer, 5; Eddie Todd, 3; Mickey McClure, 2; Brian Carter, 2; and Mike Tackett, 4.

Against Garrard last Friday the Rockets had the game taken away in the second quarter when Garrard pumped in 37 points to change a 12 all tie into a 49-28 lead.

The ground was too much to cover although the Rockets did rally in the fourth quarter for 34 points to bring the score to 85-72 at the conclusion.

Scoring for the Rockets were: Corey Craig, 26; Brian Carter, 5;

Sharon McKinney presented the most valuable player award of the BIT to Kyle Green of Boyle County. Mrs. McKinney has painted the basketball for the award since the BIT originated.

Mikhael Shaffer, 7; Eddie Todd, 6; Mickey McClure, 25 and Mike Tackett, 3.

The tale of game deciding third quarter continued for the Rockets in their game with Jackson County last Tuesday.

The Rockets took a 11-10 advantage in the first quarter and carried a 27-24 lead into the half before suffering a nine point third quarter which allowed the Generals to take a 38-36 lead.

Jackson countered the Rockets' 20 points in the fourth quarter with 23 points to take the win, 61-56.

Scorers for the Rockets were: Corey Craig, 21; Mickey McClure, 2; J.D. Bussell, 13; Mikhael Shaffer, 14; Eddie Todd, 5 and Brian Carter, 1.

Shirley Martin was recognized in ceremonies Saturday for her countless efforts in coordinating the Brodhead Invitational Tournament. As expected, the 12th annual BIT was a huge success.

KET Program Explores '90s Philanthropy

Are we running out of Kentucky fortunes to support the work that needs to be done in the Commonwealth? How has the recession affected charitable giving? What does the transfer of assets in Kentucky to out-of-state ownership mean to the future of education, the arts, health care, and social reform?

These are the questions raised and reflected upon at the 1992 Shaker-town Roundtable, "Philanthropy in Kentucky." Highlights of the conference air on KET at 9 p.m. Monday, January 25.

ances by several players," said Beaver.

"McCauley had another solid night with 31, Melinda Smith also played very good as did Becky Osborne," she said. "Christy Coleman did a fine job passing the ball and pulled down nine rebounds for us," added Beaver.

And that does not include others coming off the bench, in which Beaver says have done a fine job the past two games in taking on the roles of other players.

The Lady Rockets committed only 11 turnovers and managed to maintain their lead in the final period by recording 21 points for a score of 69-67.

Other scorers for the Rockets against Estill were: Beth Amyx, 3; Christy Coleman, 8; Becky Osborne, 14 and Melinda Alcorn, 13.

Against 10th ranked Garrard County, the Lady Rockets struggled in the first and third quarters.

"Garrard beat us in the first and third quarters," said Beaver.

Garrard jumped out to a 20-12 lead in the first quarter before the Lady Rockets matched them in scoring in the second quarter, 13-13, to trail by only eight at the half, 33-25.

"Garrard is one of the best teams we've played this year," commented Beaver.

While the Lady Rockets managed only eight points in the third period, Garrard posted 19 to stretch their lead to 52-33.

Garrard coasted through the final period for a 64-45 win with 10 players reaching the scoring column.

"They are such a balanced team with a balanced scoring attack," said Beaver. "They don't have just one outstanding player, they have a lot of players that play as a team." she added. Dear Editor,
 To my good Christian brother who took time to call me and help me with my problem on tithing. You sure did help me more than I can express. I'd been confused on the matter so long now. The burden has been lifted and I can enjoy my salvation again. I know we're living under grace and not under laws of the old Bible. Thank you again and Tim sure God will bless you in many ways.
 Your sister in Christ,
 Pearl Newton

County Library announces long-range plans

By: Geraldine Robbins

The long range plan for the Rockcastle County Library has been completed and approved by the board and action on this plan will begin this year.

After looking at the library-user surveys, the Library Board of Trustees recognized that the largest percentage of our patrons (60%) are between nine and forty years of age. Fifty percent of our adult responses have completed high school and twenty five percent have some college training.

Therefore, we need to focus on our preschool through college population and support the educational process in this county. An educated and trainable population of young adults will be in demand in this state, and we want our people to have the opportunity to be a part of Kentucky's future.

The mission statement of the Rockcastle County Public Library will be to provide access to materials and services to help community residents obtain information meeting their educational, personal, and professional needs. Special emphasis will be placed on supporting students at academic levels, preschool through college. Special emphasis is also given to leisure reading and personal information needs of county residents. Betty Lindblom has been hired as a new staff member. Betty will be in charge of children's services. We are planning on several new programs in the future. We feel sure she will be a great asset to the library.

Carol Baughman, director of children's services at the department of Libraries in Frankfort, has been given a grant to work with all the libraries in the Cumberland Valley Region. She will do a series of workshops in all phases of working with preschool children, intermediate and young adults. Betty and I will be attending these workshops to get new ideas and share our resources with other libraries.

We have received a new shipment of videos and audio tapes. We now have about 100 videos and 50 audio tapes. Videos are free for two days and then a fee of $1 per day they are overdue. Audio tapes are checked out for two weeks and after that date 50 cents per week will be charged for them.

There are a large number of seed catalogs available to be checked out. This is a good time to plan your vegetable and flower garden for the spring.

Two new novels that I'm sure some of you will enjoy, are here to be checked out. 1. . . Dragon Tears by Dean Koontz. . . A startling original masterpiece of suspense from a number-one New York Times best-selling author.

Tuesday was a fine California day, full of sunshine and promise, until Harry Lyon had to shoot someone at lunch. From that first sentence, Dragon Tears explodes across the page with the excitement, chilling suspense, emotion, and deeply drawn characters that have earned Dean Koontz enormous worldwide popularity.

Police detective Harry Lyon is a perfectionist who likes his condo immaculate, his suits well tailored, and his homicide files typed error-free. To Harry's dismay his partner, Connie Gulliver, embraces chaos, urging him to "get in touch with the rhythms of destruction." But when Harry and Connie have to kill in the line of duty, the ensuing surreal nightmare makes Connie's cynical world view seem all too accurate.

That same afternoon, a hulking street person prophesies that Harry will be dead by dawn; then self-destructs before his eyes. As twilight falls, Harry glimpses strange creatures in the shadows, and finds his rational world transformed into a place of bizarre surprises and unimaginable dangers. As dawn ticks closer, Harry is caught in a whirlwind of terror that threatens to sweep away not only him but Connie and everyone he loves.

2. . . My Beloved Son by Catherine Cookson. . . Set in Catherine Cookson's English countryside, My Beloved Son is the wonderful, compelling story of a loving family dominated by one woman's suffocating desires. A novel of obsession and the search for true love.

Ironically, it is Ellen Jebeau's love for her son that threatens the family. She had married a man who did little but dream, and then died, leaving her a legacy of debt and a five-year-old son, Joseph. Impoverished and embittered, Ellen becomes determined that young Joseph shall have everything in life that she has missed. . . I also have some books by a new author, June Masters Bacher. Those of you that have enjoyed Janette Oke books, will like them I am sure.

There was a very generous donation of 10 new novels left in the drop book. Thanks to the person that left these. A lady had called earlier and said she would give us some books, but I have forgotten her name. I'm sorry, but thank's again for the books. Another lady gave us a large number of paperbacks recently and these are also greatly appreciated.

I would again like to remind you, please look for your overdue books. I will soon have to pull out the 1992 overdue cards and count them as lost. Many of these will have to be replaced and this will keep us from purchasing other new ones that are asked for. There will not be any fines charged for overdue during the remainder of January. Thanks to all of you who have already returned some of your overdue books.

Dairy refunds begin this month

Refunds of amounts deducted from 1992 commercial milk marketings under the Dairy Refund Payment Program (DRPP) will begin January 1993, according to Harold Ballinger, CED of the Rockcastle County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The program is authorized by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990.

The Act calls for an 11.25 cents per hundredweight reduction in the price received by producers for all milk produced and marketed for commercial use in calendar year 1992. The amount was increased on May 1, 1992 by 2.4 cents per hundredweight, for a total of 13.65 cents per hundred weight," to compensate for refunds paid under the 1991 program," Kenneth Ashby, State Executive Director said.

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service collects milk assessments and ASCS will issue any refunds required.

Under the DRPP, milk producers requesting a refund must establish their milk marketings for the refund year, 1992, and the immediately preceding calendar year, 1991, before the refund request is made. They must request refunds from our office between January and March 15, 1993," Ballinger, ASCS County Executive Director said.

Producers may be eligible for a refund payment under the DRPP if they can provide evidence that their 1992 milk marketings did not exceed their 1991 milk marketings.

Farmers should report operation change, ASCS says

Harold Ballinger, Executive Director of the Rockcastle County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), today urged producers to report any changes in their farm operations which could affect farm program benefits during 1993.

"Farm records must be up-to-date in order for us to help producers to get full program benefits," said Ballinger. "If a farm will have a new owner effective for 1993, or if a change is made in the operation of an existing farm unit, producers should contact our office."

The ASCS official said requests to combine farms or divide a farm should be made as early as possible because reconstructions require special processing as well as county committee approval.

Any changes in land owned and operated should be reported to ASCS as soon as possible.
